During July, City License Commissioner Paul Moss suspended the licenses of two Rockaway Beach bath-houses for five days each for "willfully and knowingly" discriminating against Negro citizens. This was the first action of its kind under the City and State Civil Rights statutes. A second offense will make the licensees liable to revocation of their permits to operate. (GP)

POLICE ADMINISTRATION

HAMPTON, VIRGINIA

An officer, off duty, riding the crowded Newport News-Hampton-Phoebus street car, noticed a vacant seat near him and what seemed to him to be a white woman sitting in the Jim-Crow section for Negroes at the back of the car. He asked her to move to the front of the car—and surprisingly, sharp words were his answer. Too late, the officer found out that the woman was a Negro—but by that time it had gone too far. He arrested her.

His reasoning: Negroes are always being asked to move from the section reserved for whites or move so that whites may be seated. This time he was going to show that the law worked both ways.

The case was dismissed without trial. (It is reported that he was dismissed.)

Neither the officer nor witneses appeared against the woman. (FR)

ABBEYVILLE, ALABAMA

When Caroline Bellin, a young white woman who is executive secretary of the Committee for Equal Justice for Mrs. Recy Taylor (see MONTHLY SUMMARY, November 1944, p. 100; December 1944, p. 128; March 1945, p. 222), attempted to visit Mrs. Taylor's home in Abbeyville, Alabama, the sheriff is reported to have taken the young woman to the railroad station and ordered her out of town. Miss Bellin claims that she was manhandled and warned to stay out of the Negro community. Mrs. Taylor, the rape victim, reports that her mail has been opened and that her safety has been threatened. Meanwhile, Governor Sparks has been requested to reconvene the Henry County Grand Jury which has twice refused to bring in an indictment against the accused men. (FR)

MEMPHIS, TENNNESSEE

Two Memphis uniformed police officers have been indicted by the Shelby County Grand Jury in alleged criminal assaults on two Negro girls. According to the victims, the two girls—one seventeen and the other twenty—were waiting for a streetcar at 1:30 A.M., August 3 near Fred's Cafe (at which both girls worked) when two patrolmen drove up and accused them of loitering. The girls protested that they had just quit work and were waiting for the streetcar. They also showed the officers their health cards.[3] The officers persisted in their accusation and took the girls into custody. Instead of going to the police station, the car was driven to an uninhabited spot. One girl was allegedly taken out of the car and raped by one of the officers; the other girl reported that she was forced into "an unusual submission" by his comrade. Subsequently the girls were out of the patrol car at the home of one of them with the threat that they would be killed if the incident were reported.

One of the mothers called the girls' employer early the following morning and reported to him what had happened. "Mr. Fred" accompanied the women and their daughters to the police station where they told their story to Chief Carroll Seabrook. The victims were ordered locked up in jail on Saturday. Over the week-end, according to their story, they were questioned repeatedly and intimidated by police officials. One of the girls reported to the investigators that she had lost her health card during the struggle in the car. Her mother says that a policeman told her that the card was found in the car. On Monday the girls were removed from jail and taken into a room in which several police officers were lined up. According to one mother "Both girls walked up to the same two men, but they were not allowed to point out the officers. When I asked the Chief what was going to be done to the officers for treating my daughter that way, he told me that the girls were not certain in their identification and for me to take my daughter, go home with her and keep my mouth shut." (Press-Scimitar, August 14, 1945) The two men at whom the girls could not point are reported to have denied their guilt to superior officers; however, both of them resigned the following day.

The August 17 story in the Press-Scimitar was the first public report of the incident, although rumors concerning it had spread in the community. The entire Negro community and many white people were stunned and frightened: stunned for obvious reasons and frightened because the record of the City and County administration did not give them much hope for redress. However, a few citizens, Negro and white, began action to assure justice. The local NAACP began raising funds to secure an investigation and prosecution. Several white neighbors of the girls in the Binghamton Subdivision visited their homes and offered them financial support.[4] One Negro minister deplored it on a devotional program over a local radio station. A. Philip Randolph who had a personal encounter with Memphis civil liberties wrote to Attorney-General Tom Clark and asked for an investigation. The Attorney-General ordered the U. S. District Attorney in Memphis to investigate. A white waitress was taken into custody by police and examined for venereal infection and released a few hours later after she had been overheard by a patrolman to remark, "If those policemen did anything like that, I think it is terrible."

[3]Recently the Memphis police have been making wholesale arrests of unescorted women who do not carry cards certifying as to their freedom from venereal infection. Infected women are detained and treated. The measure has been taken as a means of "protecting" service men from VD. Aside from the efficiency of this type of venereal disease control—which is questioned by many public health authorities on the ground that it gives men a feeling of unwarranted security, the operation of the mass arrest technique resulted in the widespread intimidation of women and several alleged instances of abuse.

On August 23 the two men were arrested on orders from Shelby County Attorney-General Will Gerber. The County Grand Jury indicted the men during the first week of September. They are free on $5,000 bail at this writing; and Mr. Gerber has announced that he will prosecute the case personally. (FR, GP, NP)

ASHLAND, KENTUCKY

Fourteen inmates of the Federal Correctional Institution at Ashland have been receiving punitive treatment for refusing to eat in the prison mess hall as long as Jim Crow arrangements are continued. The men, all conscientious objectors, maintain that segregation is a violation of the personalities of persons subjected to it and that they cannot in good conscience take part in it. For their stand three Negroes, ten Caucasians, and one person of Japanese descent were thrown into solitary confinement. Later, two of the Negroes were transferred to other prisons. The protests of the CO's have brought attention to the general policy of segregation practiced in Federal prisons, even outside the South. Soon after the institution of conscription, during the preparedness period, CO's at Danbury, Connecticut, objected to racial segregation and succeeded in gaining some relaxation in practices there. Six men who protested segregation are reported as still being in solitary confinement at Milan, Michigan's Federal Correctional Institution. Edward R. Dudley, assistant special counsel for the NAACP has written Warden Hagerman of Ashland reminding him that the prototypes of racial dogma, the Nazis, did not segregate Negro and white prisoners of war. Ted LeBerthon, white columnist on the Pittsburgh Courier, stated that, although he could not agree with the conscientious objectors on their position with reference to the war, they are among the few people who have made him feel unashamed of being white. (FR, GP, NP)

[4]Each of the girls is the eldest of eight children. Both mothers are widows in extremely poor circumstances.

[5]See MONTHLY SUMMARY, December 1943, p. 10; and May 1944, p. 6.

GENERAL

HOUSTON, TEXAS

The following two incidents are reported as having occurred in Houston on August 14, 1945, the day that President Truman announced the Japanese decision to surrender:

One hour following the announcement a circular was distributed in white residential areas reading, in part, "War is over. High salaried Negroes in jobs must turn those jobs over to white people."

A shipyard bus driver, on being told that the war is over, immediately turned around and said, "All you niggers on this bus get back where you belong. The war is over and we are going to put all you niggers in your place."

Apparently Texas (white) had won the war! (ANP)

DETROIT, MICHIGAN

Negroes have worked as members of the maintenance and service staffs of the Fort Wayne Hotel for many years. Many have habitually gone into the drug store operated by the hotel for lunch. Recently they have complained that they are often kept waiting long past their turn before being served. A short while ago two Negro employees were ignored for their entire thirty-minute lunch period. Two days later there appeared at the time clock a note signed by the manager of the hotel to the effect that Negro employees are not to go either to the coffee shop, the tea room, or the drug store to eat. (FR)

THE SUPRANATURAL

FAYETTEVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA

Even the occult must bow to segregation! Madam Bessie, who describes herself in the Fayetteville Observer as an "experienced palmist and life reader" who gives "never failing advice upon maters of life, such as love, courtship, marriage, divorce, business transactions of all kinds", is careful to let it be known that her trailer palace of divination contains a "Separate Room for Colored." (FR, GP)

NEGRO VETERANS RETURN*

One of the most important race relations jobs of the next ten years will be the full integration of minority group veterans into a post-war world. There are 900,000 Negroes serving today in the armed forces. By the end of the war well over a million will have been in uniform. Large scale demobilization is now taking place. Ultimately then, a million Negro GI's, each with three or four dependents or close family connections, will be discharged. This means that a third of the entire Negro group will be directly affected by the post-war opportunities available to Negro veterans and the use they can make of their rights and benefits.

What are the opportunities open to the Negro veteran, and what are his plans? Using the reports on the "Post-War Plans of the Soldier" compiled by the Army Service Forces and data as to the number of Negroes serving in the Army released by the Adjutant General's Office, it is possible to get a good picture of what Negro GI's are planning and to estimate the number of men falling into the various types of plans.

First of all, there will be a substantial amount of post-war migration, the pattern of which will correspond roughly to movements already made by the Negro worker during the war. The net effect of these movements will be a heavy out-migration from the agricultural regions of the South with a considerable increase in the Negro populations of the Northeast and Pacific Coast states. While it is difficult to estimate the numerical volume of such migration, it should total about 300,000 men. Most of the migration planned is from one region to another, involving long distances, and hence will tend to be permanent.

EDUCATION

Almost every Negro veteran will be entitled to at least one year's education at any type of school he chooses, on any academic level, and may take this schooling wherever he wishes throughout the United States. He may also attend approved schools in foreign countries. Among Negro enlisted men 43.5 percent, an aggregate of 522,000 men, have made some plans for returning to school after the war. This total includes men with a very wide range of plans for full-time schooling, 32,000 of whom will be returning to the South. These are the men who will wish to resume high school or college studies broken off by the war. While the majority of these men are young—eighty-eight percent are under twenty-five years of age, and eighty-five percent are single—nearly a third, 17,000 men, have had less than four years of high school education.

Although some Negro veterans will take advantage of specific vocational training rights, most men will receive their benefits under the general education clauses in the GI Bill of Rights. The Bill has two qualifications particularly important for Negroes. First, the veteran must be acceptable to the school and meet its academic standards. Second, the school he chooses must be on the approved list submitted by the state to the Veterans Administration. Let us see what these two qualifications mean for the Negro veteran.

Because of the formal segregation in education in the South, the Negro veteran will be subject to the differential in the quality and quantity of education available for Negroes and whites. The facts of this differential treatment have been told and retold for years. The 112 Negro colleges, having a present over-crowded enrollment of 50,000 students, will be expected to absorb, at the minimum, about 22,000 Negro veterans. The southern Negro veteran will probably not be told by his sources of information that he may go to any college, including unsegregated schools outside the South. Neither will the counselors at Negro colleges be likely to urge him to go elsewhere, as these colleges have a vested financial interest in his attendance.

*Prepared by William A. Caudill

The 10,000 men who plan to return to full-time school below the college level in the South, must find their education in the very few, inadequate, and already crowded high schools provided for Negroes.

Outside the South the Negro veteran will be confronted by a high informal barrier; although there is no formal segregation, the majority of schools either will not take Negro students or do it grudgingly and often on a quota basis.

Since many states are lax about their standards of approval, all veterans will be exposed to the danger of being exploited by opportunists who start new schools or use their control of existing institutions merely to make money from government tuition payments. The Negro veteran, because he is mainly excluded from attending old and well established institutions, is highly susceptible to the inducements offered by these "sheepskinners". This will be especially true in the South where approval standards are very low, particularly where Negro education is concerned.

BUSINESS

About twelve percent, 144,000 men, have some fairly well formulated plans for owning a business after the war. Contained in this group are 84,000 men with definite plans, 49,000 of whom will be returning to the South. The type of establishment that Negro GI's are predominately planning is the small one-man retail or service business having a low capitalization met partly out of savings and partly by borrowing.

There are very stringent requirements that must be met before a veteran can get a government guaranteed loan. The veteran must satisfy the lending agency, governmental or private, that his ability and experience, and the conditions under which he proposes to pursue his business, are such that there is a reasonable likelihood of success. Of the Negro GI's definitely planning business, only an eighth, 13 per cent, were self-employed before the war. However, half of the men with definite plans have had previous experience as employees in the type of business they wish to own. It is doubtful whether this previous experience is adequate, in many cases, to enable the men to obtain a loan, or to operate a business of their own effectively. In general, it may well be that the widespread myth of the Negro's inability to operate a successful business will bar him from obtaining loans.

While 84,000 Negro GI's are definitely planning to own a business, mainly in the retail and service fields, the number of establishments in these fields owned by Negroes before the war was only 29,827. Moreover, it is exactly in these types of establishments, regardless of the color of the owner's skin, where the rate of failure is high.

There is a paradox facing the prospective Negro businessman whose success is largely dependent upon Negro patronage. Outside the South credit is relatively easier to obtain but he must compete fiercely with white-owned business for customers; in the South, credit will be difficult to get, but his clientele will be far more assured.

AGRICULTURE

Almost all the ten percent of Negro GI's, 120,000 men, who have either definite or tentative plans for full-time farming will be returning to the South. Of the men with definite plans, a group of about 84,000, a very high proportion were full-time farmers before they went into the armed forces. Most of these men received their previous experience working on the family farm. Over half of the Negro GI's who plan to operate a farm intend to invest not more than $1,000; less than ten percent intend to invest as much as $4,000. This small investment indicates that most of the men will be operating farms at the subsistence level.

In obtaining guaranteed loans for farms, Negro veterans are faced with much the same restrictions as confront them in getting business loans. The processing of farm loans is handled by the Department of Agriculture, and the Negro veteran interested in agriculture must go to the local office of the Department's county extension agent. The county agents in the plantation South often have an attitude on economic, social, and racial questions similar to that held by the large landowners. The question is, will the county agent and the local community in the South be more interested in a square deal for the returning Negro veteran than they have been in the past for Negro civilians?

A ray of hope for the Negro veteran desiring a loan is that the GI Bill of Rights also makes each veteran eligible for a loan under the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act to the same extent as if he were a tenant. This act is administered by the Farm Security Administration which has been the main federal agency helping Negro farmers in the South.

Southern agriculture has long been greatly overcrowded and during the war more crops than were grown in the prewar years have been produced by fewer men, using larger farms, more machinery, and increased capitalization. With the close of the war, the trend toward increased mechanization of farming in the South will be accentuated. Only by mechanization and large scale farming can the South hope to compete with the price of cotton determined in the world market. These new large farms will be owned by wealthy white landowners. In cold fact this means that the Negro in agriculture is at the very bottom of the economic heap.

OTHER EMPLOYMENT

A surprisingly large group, twenty-one percent, constituting 252,000 Negro GI's, have plans for public employment after the war. Of this group, 108,000 men have definite plans.

Because of the sweeping advantages granted veterans under the Veterans' Preference Act of 1944, the Civil Service for many years to come will be made up largely of veterans. Government jobs hold particular attraction for Negro veterans owing to the relative lack of racial discrimination. Due to the impetus given to public employment of Negroes by the policies of the Roosevelt administration, it is not surprising to find that eighty percent of the Negro veterans want federal jobs rather than state or municipal. A large majority of the men planning federal employment have worked for the government before the war and a third of these men desire a job in a different occupational group than the one they were in before joining the armed forces.

While the Negro veteran's chances for a job are better in the Civil Service than at almost any point in the employment structure of our society, the number of jobs available in the post-war period will meet only a fraction of the demand. The total number of Negroes in public employment in April, 1944, was about 200,000, in contrast to fewer than 60,000 in the same month of 1940. It is obvious that with the contraction of public employment after the war, Negro veterans will experience considerable difficulty in carrying out their plans.

Of the 700,000 Negro veterans who plan to join the general labor force as workers after the war, 400,000 will be returning to the South. Almost all of these men were employees before they joined the armed forces. However, their re-employment rights will be of little benefit to them as only a fifth of the men have definite plans for returning to their old job and employer. Further, only a third are even planning to return to the same kind of work they did before the war. Negroes have been trained in many skilled fields—as pilots, mechanics, radio technicians and operators—and will not be content in the menial unskilled employment of traditional Negro jobs.

The single basic issue confronting Negro veterans who plan to enter the labor market as workers is whether or not there will be a reasonably high level of employment in the reconversion and post-war periods. Between April, 1940, and April, 1944, the employment of Negroes in civilian jobs increased by almost a million, the occupational shift being mainly from the farm to the factory. But, looking to the post-war period, it must be noted that the Negro worker has made his greatest employment gains in occupations such as semi-skilled factory jobs, which will suffer the highest rate of lay-off once the war is ended. Further, the Negro's occupational gains have been in those industries—iron and steel, munitions, aircraft and ship building—which will experience the greatest decline and most radical reconversion adjustments.

For the 400,000 Negro veterans returning to the South as workers there may be no jobs of any kind. The South remains industrially under-developed despite the emergency aid of defense industry, and even during the war there was a surplus labor force. This surplus will be swelled now that the war has ended by the closing of defense plants and the coming home of millions of veterans looking for jobs.

The theory behind much of the administration, evolved to give the veteran adequate aid in reestablishing himself, is based on the belief that the local community can best handle the problems of its own veterans. The right to decide whether a veteran may enroll in a school rests with the local school he wishes to attend. Whether the veteran may make a loan for a business or farm rests with the local bank or other agency which will decide whether he meets the requirements for a loan. The veteran's re-employment in his old job is handled by the re-employment committeeman of his local draft board. A new job will depend upon the policies of local industry and the local United States Employment Office.

For the white veteran the theory of allowing each local community to take care of its own has a certain validity. It is true that with federal and state aid providing the channels through which local decisions are implemented, the community can give individualized special service to its own veterans. And the Negro veteran will receive individualized and special treatment in an ironical sense; it is at the level of the local community where he has always suffered the most discrimination.

At three points the Negro veteran will have difficulty not encountered by the white veteran. First, he will have less access to places in which he may obtain information about his benefits and where he should apply for them. In the South he will have to utilize "jim-crow" veterans' information centers, or no information centers at all. Second, once he has obtained information, he will be subject to careless treatment and possible discrimination in the offices where his rights are administered. Lastly, he has the very special problem, particularly in the South, that, even if he were to obtain sufficient information, if he were to meet absolutely no differential treatment in the offices of administering agencies, he would still not have the wide choice of schools, loan institutions, or jobs open to the white veteran.

Therefore, at many points of contact with society where veterans must act to change their plans into reality, the white GI will be considered first a veteran, secondly and incidentally a white man; the Negro GI will often be considered first a Negro, secondly and incidentally a veteran.

RECONVERSION—A CHALLENGE TO RACE RELATIONS COMMITTEES*

INSECURITY AND RACE RELATIONS

V-J Day was the signal for national rejoicing. It was also the occasion for realistic stock-taking of plans for reconversion and for coping with interracial tensions.

Failure to act on effective reorganization of governmental agencies, lack of legislation aimed at providing security and an orderly plan for reconversion, and the resultant last-minute scuffle for action at the national level indicate that the government, the economists, and the social planners were as unprepared for peace as they were for war.

The race relations field is equally derelict and just as lacking in realistic planning and programming for the post-war period. Had the government developed more effective plans to cushion the shock of reconversion—which would provide a national feeling of security and eliminate uncontrolled competition for jobs, housing, and commodities—the race relations question would undoubtedly be a much easier one to solve.

As it is, we are confronted at this time with rapidly increasing unemployment, with the return of GI's who, understandedly, refuse to be exploited, with a great dearth of adequate facilities for living. All of these factors are bound to markedly increase the intergroup tensions which were already apparent during the period when jobs were plentiful and economic insecurity did not loom as an immediate threat.

The next year will prove the extent to which now-existent national and local organizations in the field of race relations and civic unity are adequate to handle the job which confronts them. Certainly tactics and approaches now in use at both the national and local levels must be drastically streamlined and accelerated if those persons believing in the importance of the relationship of sound intergroup relations to an effective democracy are to successfully cope with the rabble-rousers, the neo-Fascists, and the various "shirt" organizations throughout the country which oppose a harmonious solution to America's race problem

The maintenance of national and civic unity among all groups in this country has become America's number one issue. To maintain this unity, however, we must immediately solve our economic and unemployment problems at the national level. We must underwrite a governmental policy of non-discrimination and we must give concrete proof of the fact that, here in America, we can provide security and equality for all who live within our democratic framework. Unless we do, intergroup conflicts are bound to arise and more people in this country will understandedly ask why we cannot solve our problems as well as other countries are solving theirs.

VARIETY OF PROGRAMS NEEDED

To meet the impending crisis in race relations, a variety of programs will be required.

First, a greatly accelerated, dramatic, and dynamic popular program of public education must be undertaken. Such a program—which would tax the facilities and resources of all national race relations agencies—should be directed at making effective intergroup relations synonymous with good Americanism. Such a program must make it so unpopular for persons to profess racist ideas that the large majority of Americans who have no set ideas on the subject will approach the matter in a democratic light.

Secondly, in order to buttress this program, an effective framework of national, state, and local legislation must be provided. In addition to ensuring security through planning for full employment, adequate social security, extension of housing, and underwriting of a living wage, legislation eliminating discrimination in all forms must be provided. Since Fascist governments underwrite discrimination in their basic policy and legislation, a democratic government has the same responsibility to develop legislation providing for non-discrimination in these areas.

*Prepared by A. A. Liveright.

But legislation and public education will not be enough. The problem of intergroup relations must, at the same time, be aggressively attacked at the local level and immediate causes of conflict—such as inadequate housing, discrimination in employment, inequality in rendering public services, and a disregard for civil rights—must be eliminated. This can only be done through unified and immediate local action. Whether present local civic unity and race relations committees are geared to meet this challenge can best be proved by results in the next year. Based upon present achievements, the large majority of these groups must be drastically reorganized and greatly strengthened if they are to overcome the dangers ahead.

Finally, in addition to immediate action in regard to public education, legislative and local action, a long-range program of education aimed at preventing prejudice in the growing generation must be undertaken.

Simple panaceas for curing intergroup relations must be studiously avoided. Undoubtedly hundreds of such idealistic cure-alls will be presented during the years to come and one of the greatest dangers to an effective over-all program will be the natural human desire to seek a simple way out of the race relations dilemma. Cure-alls will not and cannot work, and therefore both local and national committees should, more than ever, be on their guard against giving in to the temptation of accepting an over-simplified answer to intergroup problems.

COORDINATION OF EFFORT IMPORTANT

National race relations agencies, as well as local groups, must review their present programs in the light of the urgent need for action.

Acting separately and in an uncoordinated manner, the hundreds of national agencies concerning themselves directly or indirectly with race relations can only cause increased confusion and conflict. United on a common program of action and pooling resources in certain areas of action, these organizations have an opportunity to become a really potent factor in improving the over-all race relations picture here in America.

A pooling of effort on the part of national agencies is immediately required, especially as they concern: unified action on national legislation, development of a coordinated public education program, and agreement on special points of concentration in order that limited funds and staff can be directed toward solution of the most immediate problems without conflict or duplication.

Although this proposed pooling of energy by organizations may well sound utopian, the seriousness of impending problems and the tenseness of the present situation should warrant the immediate development of a unified national program.

CLARIFICATION OF LOCAL OBJECTIVES

As far as local race relations organizations are concerned, the first problem to be met is a clearer understanding of the objectives for which such committees were established, and of the specific action which must be taken to meet these objectives on an equitable basis.

No matter how the objectives may be worded, there should be general agreement that race relations committees should all aim at the provision of equal rights and equal opportunities for all groups at the local level.

These groups must also understand that to achieve equal rights and equal opportunities, serious attention must be given the problems of local employment, housing, civil rights, public services, and public education. Such programs cannot be put into effect on an unplanned, day-to-day basis, but must be woven into a realistic plan of action.

Nor can such a plan be carried out on a volunteer, haphazard basis. It must be based upon the organization of an effective committee with adequate finances and intelligent personnel.

The time for pious sentimentality has passed. Unless a local committee can develop an effective plan of action and secure the finances and personnel necessary to put the program into effect, it should be disbanded and an effective organization established. An inadequate committee which is not geared to action can do more harm by way of repressing an effective program than the little good that might accrue from the feeling that a committee has been formed and from the occasional pious public utterances which might emanate from such a group.

NEED FOR CONVINCING THE UNCONVINCED

At both the local and national levels, persons interested in race relations must forsake the coziness of discussing problems with each other without consulting the people they wish to help. It is true that there has been an enormous increase of interest in race relations during the past few years; also, there is a large audience to talk to now. However, the large majority of race relations organizations are still unwilling to take their program to those in the nation and community who are not convinced that America is faced with an interracial problem.

Fortunately, this increasing interest in race relations reaches persons in every station of life The labor unions are certainly, more than ever before, aware of the importance of sound race relations and realize the practical dangers to unionism inherent in racial conflicts. An increasing number of employers are beginning to understand that both their community and industrial problems will be simplified by effective intergroup relations. Church groups are increasingly admitting the degree to which their consciences are worrying them. Government officials, likewise, are more cognizant of the political dangers stemming from racial outbursts. Service clubs, parent-teacher groups, chambers of commerce, are also becoming more concerned with these problems. It is essential that this developing interest be nurtured and that an increasing number of new groups be brought into the picture.

Insofar as possible, all of these groups must be tied into local programs of action. No program can be effective unless broad community support can be mobilized and unless groups not primarily or ordinarily concerned with race relations can be made to participate on certain aspects of the program.

AN AGENDA FOR ACTION

So that local groups may have some criteria against which their present programs of action can be compared, the following agenda for action is suggested:

1. Pressure for national legislation

Local race relations and civic unity groups must combine with other organizations, the National Citizens Political Action Committee, for example, in working for over-all legislation such as the Murray Full Employment Bill, the Wagner-Ellender Housing Bill, the Murray-Dingle-Wagner Bill for Extension of Social Security, the Pepper Bill for Minimum Wage Rates, the Administration's suggestion for revision of governmental agencies, and other legislation aimed at full employment and adequate security for all.

In addition, local committees must take major responsibility in their communities for spearheading action for special federal legislation such as a permanent FEPC, abolition of the poll tax, and the anti-lynching bill.

Local groups should also join with other organizations in pressing for a clearly stated policy of non-discrimination by the federal government and by the various federal agencies.

Technique for securing national legislation should be in terms of direct pressure on local legislators; public education with respect to the significance of various bills; mass meetings to secure support for such legislation; delegations and visits to local legislators, both in the community and in Washington; and support for national organizations which are coordinating action on such legislation.

2. Pressure for state legislation

To provide the necessary state implementation for national legislation, the following action should be on the agenda of local committees:

a. With respect to over-all legislation aimed at human rights and security, local committees should participate in supporting state legislation such as the establishment of effective state planning agencies, state legislation enabling slum clearance and public construction projects, state adaptation of national legislation (such as social security, unemployment compensation, housing, etc.), constitutional conventions in states where present constitutions are outdated.

b. In regard to specific legislation dealing with race relations, local committees should support state FEPC legislation, an effective state civil rights act, state laws eliminating restrictive covenants, and, in the South, legislation aimed at eliminating the poll tax and providing for open primaries.

3. Local government action

Local committees should press for the following types of action:

a. An official ordinance establishing a municipal commission for civic unity or community relations (similar to the ordinance passed in Cleveland and contemplated for Los Angeles and Akron, Ohio).

b. An ordinance providing that land condemned by the city and earmarked for private construction cannot be encumbered by racial or religious covenants.

c. An ordinance preventing the distribution of subversive or divisive literature.

d. An ordinance forbidding discrimination in city employment or on contracts let by the city for public construction (such as the City FEPC Ordinance recently passed in Chicago).

e. The elimination of discrimination by city departments with respect to facilities or services provided by the city to the various communities.

f. Promotion of a constructive program of intercultural education in the public schools—implemented by sound materials, classroom techniques, and student participation—and the elimination of segregation in the school system.

g. Development of effective in-service training programs for city employees in order that they may realize the importance of equal service and facilities for all groups in the community. (In this connection, special attention should be paid to the police department.)

h. Planning realistic and intelligent action by the city government to meet any open conflicts or riots which might develop, intelligent devices for anticipating conflicts and for dealing with them before they grow to major proportions.

4. Over-all community action

Local civic unity or race relations committees should include the following items for over-all action on their agenda:

a. Public education program: An aggressive public education program utilizing the daily press, neighborhood, labor and minority group newspapers, radio, motion picture theatres, speakers at churches and service clubs, mass meetings, etc. Such a program should be developed at the local level in conjunction with the best possible advice and assistance from technical experts in the various communications fields, and should be aimed not so much at liberals as at those in the community who are not yet sure where they stand on the question of race relations. The public education program must be closely woven into all other aspects of the local program, and all segments of the project not backed by legislative sanction must lean heavily on effective public education for their success in the community.

b. Elimination of discrimination in employment: In addition to working for national and state legislation for fair employment practices, local groups should undertake a special educational program aimed at local employers and trade unions. Factual information about the success of minority groups in industry should be codified and widely distributed. Plans for the development of union contracts outlawing discrimination should be evolved. Local employer organizations and trade unions should be urged to adopt workable policies outlawing discrimination. Areas of employment now closed to members of minority groups should be opened up by the local committee.

c. Opening of new areas for housing: One of the major activities by local committees should deal with housing. In this area, the following action should be taken:

(1) A definite program for combating restrictive covenants and for opening-up new avenues for occupancy. Development of neighborhood agreements emphasizing occupancy standards rather than racial or religious barriers should be recommended.

(2) Promotion of active support for public housing projects: full support of the committee should be placed behind already-existing organizations working for public housing. In this connection, the committee should ensure the development of interracial housing and should work for the elimination of segregation in existing public projects.

(3) Stimulation of adequate private construction: An attempt should be made to develop interracial projects and to open new areas for occupancy by minority groups.

(4) Slum clearance projects, urban redevelopment programs, and the like: These projects should be carefully reviewed by the local committee, the effect on minority groups studied, and recommendations for any modifications or action on such programs made.

d. Protection of civil rights: Local committees should develop a workable mechanism whereby any situations infringing upon civil rights may be immediately reported and dealt with. A special attempt should be made to eliminate discrimination or segregation in transportation systems, eating places, hotels, and public amusement places. Where necessary, litigation under existing municipal, state or national statutes should be undertaken.

e. Public services: In addition to pressing for sound policies with respect to public services, local committees should take immediate action on any situations arising in which instances of discrimination in these services—such as in schools, transportation, welfare agencies, recreation facilities, and police authority—are reported.

f. Court action: A special activity of the local committee should be aimed at the provision of legal advice and assistance to persons who are discriminated against in the local community or whose civil rights are infringed upon.

g. Stimulation of and cooperation with neighborhood organizations: It is essential that local committees work with local and neighborhood groups as well as with top leadership in the community. Where effective neighborhood groups have already been established, the local committee should work through them on specific race relations problems. Where no such committees have been organized, the local committee should take the responsibility for developing effective neighborhood organization.

* * * * *

IMMEDIATE ACTION NEEDED, OR ELSE—

Extensive and complicated as the program outlined above may be, it still is not completely inclusive. It should be apparent, however, that to carry out this type of program intelligent local organization, adequate financing, and well-trained personnel will be required.

In adopting such a program, careful thought should be given to the possibility of allocating various phases of the program to organizations already existing in the community. For example, the Urban League may well assume major responsibility for the employment and welfare aspects of the program (but must broaden its scope to cover all minorities), the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and local civil liberties committees may be designated to handle the legislative and legal angles, and existing groups in the housing field can in some instances be delegated the responsibility for action with respect to housing.

However, no matter how many groups are working on specific segments of the program, there will still be a need for an over-all organization to map out the continuing plan of action, to follow up on the plan, and to integrate various aspects of the program into the community in order that confusion and duplication may be eliminated.

The complexity of the job to be done and the organizational difficulties involved in securing the necessary coordination may seem insurmountable. The fact, however, that an extremely varied and diverse group of scientists coordinated their efforts to develop the most effective form of destruction—the atomic bomb—indicates that such coordination and dynamic planning is possible.

Unless organizations and individuals in the fields of social science and race relations are able to achieve equal unity of purpose and courageous action, the country may well be blown apart without recourse to any atomic bomb.

FIRST CITY FAIR EMPLOYMENT ORDINANCE*

"Section 1. Whereas, it is the policy of the United States government in furtherance of the successful winning of the peace to insure the maximum participation of all available workers in production, regardless of race, creed, color or national origin, in the firm belief that the democratic way of life within the nation can be defended successfully only with the help and support of all groups within its borders, the city of Chicago, to cooperate with the United States government, by eliminating discrimination in public and private employment, enacts this ordinance to be known as the Fair Employment Practices ordinance.

"Section 2. It shall be unlawful for any department of the City of Chicago; or any city official, his agent or employee, for or on behalf of the city of Chicago; or any private employer performing work within the city of Chicago; involving any public works of the city of Chicago to refuse to employ or to discharge any person otherwise qualified on account of race, color, creed, national origin, or ancestry; to discriminate for the same reasons in regard to tenure, terms or conditions of employment; to deny promotion or increase in compensation solely for these reasons; to publish offer of employment based on such discrimination; to adopt or enforce any rule or employment policy which discriminates between employees on account of race, color, religion, national origin, or ancestry; to seek such information as to any employee as a condition of employment; to penalize any employee or discriminate in the selection of personnel for training, solely on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, or ancestry.

"Section 3. All contracting agencies of the city of Chicago, or any department thereof, shall include in all contracts hereafter negotiated or renegotiated by them a provision obligating the contractor not to discriminate against any employee or applicant for employment because of race, creed, color or national origin and shall require him to include a similar provision in all subcontracts.

"Section 4. It shall be unlawful for any person to discriminate against any other person by reason of race, creed, color or national origin, with respect to the hiring, application for employment, tenure, terms or conditions of employment or union membership.

"Section 5. Any person, firm, or corporation who shall violate or fail to comply with any of the provisions of this ordinance shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, shall be punished by a fine in any sum not exceeding $200.

"Section 6. If any part of this ordinance shall be declared invalid the balance shall remain in full force and effect." (ANP, August 29, 1945)

Chicago, Illinois. (See also* MONTHLY SUMMARY, this issue, page 2.

SURVEY OF THE JEWISH SCENE

WAR CRIMES

Mr. Justice Jackson's report to the President of the United States, in his capacity as Chief Counsel for the United States in the prosecution of war criminals, has been formally approved by the President. Jewish public opinion has been profoundly gratified to learn that trials before military tribunals are proposed in this report against those who are responsible for the Nazi master-plan of aggression and barbarity. (Jewish Frontier, July, 1945) This includes explicitly the atrocities and persecutions on racial and religious grounds committed since 1933, that is to say, the crimes against the Jews of Europe, no matter what their nationality—and coincides largely with the formula that was proposed by the American Jewish Congress several months ago.

THE UNITED NATIONS CHARTER

The Department of State Publication Number 2353 provides an opportunity to actually acquaint oneself with "Trusteeship" and the "International Bill of Rights", instead of merely reading about them. The status of Non-Self-Governing Territories, the International Trusteeship System, and the Trusteeship Council are dealt with in Articles 73 to 91 with such amazing vagueness as to make the old League of Nations look radically progressive in comparison. The Trusteeship Council is merely to consider reports, to accept and examine petitions and to provide for periodic visits and "other actions" in conformity with the terms of the Trusteeship agreements (Article 87). No responsibility of colonial administrations before an international authority is established. To the contrary, what was formerly considered a mandate is now recognized as a possession of the mandatory power. This is likely to strengthen the British hand in Palestine. Moreover, since the vicinity of Haifa Bay and the Dead Sea Concession may be regarded as strategic areas, the approval, the alteration, and the amendment of trusteeship agreements, in the case of Palestine, may be entirely or partially taken away from the Trusteeship Council and be exercised by the Security Council (Article 83). Complete uncertainty casts, therefore, its shadow over the colonial, and especially the Palestinian, scene. Against such uncertainty, on the other hand, Article 80 provides some amount of protection inasmuch as it is provided that nothing "shall be construed in or of itself to alter in any measure the rights whatsoever of any states or any peoples or the terms of existing international instruments to which members of the United Nations may respectively be parties." The wording is significant in several respects. First, peoples are mentioned along with states. This is of considerable importance for the Jewish people who have no state. Second, peoples are spoken of as a plurality. If "people" had been put into the singular, the Arabs of Palestine may have claimed to constitute the Palestinian "people". Third, the term "international instruments" has replaced the previously suggested and narrower term "instruments". This excludes from consideration the discriminatory British White Paper of 1939, which has failed to find the approval of the Permanent Mandates Commission of the League of Nations, while it includes the internationally confirmed Balfour Declaration which established a national home for the Jewish people in Palestine. However, the protection is frail and temporary in character because the provisions of article 80 can be abrogated at any time by individual trusteeship agreements.

All this ambiguity is out-done by the vagueness of the so-called Human Rights Provisions in the United Nations Charter. (See articles 1, 13, 55-60, 62, 68, 71.) Throughout the Jewish press, the determined publicity effort and the skillful diplomacy of the American Jewish Committees and their Gentile friends (who were largely responsible for the provisions), is being acknowledged, but scepticism is expressed with regard to the actual achievement (Life and Letters, July, 1945). Indeed, one is entitled to ask what the promotion by the United Nations, of "universal respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms for all without discrimination for race, sex, languages, or religion" may actually mean. (Committee Reporter, July 1945.) Since instruments for enforcement are conspicuous by their absence, the Human Rights provisions, as they stand now, rank with innumerable other resolutions against discrimination almost all of which are excessively in the breach. Nevertheless, even so severe a critic as Maurice L. Perlzweig (Jewish Review, August 23, 1945) maintains that "the constitution of the American Union, when it was first adopted, did not contain a Bill of Rights. The Bill of Rights had to be added subsequently and often in the teeth of strong opposition."

LIBERATION IN EUROPE

The jubilation, in some circles, about the merely promising achievements of San Francisco must be contrasted with the actual news from Europe. Nazism has been wiped off, but anti-Semitism has not been eradicated. In such a situation legal prescriptions, not to speak of moral declarations, are powerless to change reality. The storm-center is in Poland and in the Balkans. Recently, Polish Jews liberated from German concentration camps and repatriated to their home towns in Poland returned to the camp stating that they prefer to be there under military supervision rather than to remain in Poland where a wave of anti-Semitic terror is raging. (Jewish Post, August 24, 1945). Some of the returnees reported that huge posters "We want Poland for the Poles; Go back, Jews!" greeted them at the railroad station; that those without living relatives were compelled to sleep on benches in the parks; and that massacres have occurred in small towns and villages. Similar outbreaks are reported from Slovakia and from Hungary. Several Jews were killed by a mob in an anti-Semitic street demonstration in Presov, Slovakia; the police arrived on the scene only after the mob had done its work. (Jewish Post, August 17, 1945) In Hungary, underground anti-Semitic propaganda has influenced the man in the street to the point where he blames the Jew rather than the defeated fascist regime for economic insecurity and social dislocation. This trend in thought is also apparent in Western Europe especially in anti-Semitic street demonstrations in France. (Life and Letters, July 1945). Public opinion opposes with particular vigor the extradition of Gentile occupants of Jewish property upon return of the former owners. (Jewish Post, August 17, 1945)

Discrimination exists right in liberated Germany and under the eyes of Allied occupation authorities. Sometimes, what appears to be equal treatment in fact is discrimination—as for instance, in the case of the German Jews who are treated on an equal footing with the general German population. They receive punitively low food rations because they are considered plain Germans but, having subsisted on a starvation diet before, they succumb sooner than the Gentiles to such "non-discriminatory" treatment. Isabella Blum, socialist member of the Belgian parliament, reported that Jews in concentration camps receive less food now than they did under the Nazis because of the general economic breakdown in the country. A recent report from the correspondent of the independent press service in Paris asserts that 11,000 Jewish inmates of Bergen-Belzen, among them 7,000 women and 1,500 children, sent a heart-rending message to UNRRA Director Herbert Lehman, to be rescued from the camp which they described as hellish. They are still policed by German guards and the municipality of Belsen is responsible for the food supply. (Jewish Frontier, August 1945) Only now, many weeks after the German surrender, have representatives of the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee and the Jewish Agency for Palestine been allowed to enter the camps. Remarkably, Joseph Schwarz, J.D.C. representative, reports that the majority of liberated Jews generally, and almost all the Jews from Poland, Lithuania, Hungary, and Yugoslavia, want to proceed to Palestine or to the Americas. (New York Times, June 18, 1945) Mr. Schwarz has meanwhile again left for Europe, in his new capacity as associate to the State Department. He is to inquire into the problem and needs of stateless and non-repatriable refugees. (The Observer, July 20, 1945)

ZIONISM

The first World Zionist Conference, after Hitler, has convened in London. Three Americans have been given the status of members of the World Zionist Executive Board, namely, Rabbi's Stephen S. Wise and Abba Hillel Silver, and Mr. Louis Lipsky. They have been added to Dr. Nahum Goldman, resident member of the Jewish agency in the United States, who had been appointed by the last pre-war Zionist Congress. (The Sentinel, August 23, 1945) World Zionism as such has been greatly affected by the spectacular victory of the Labour Party in the recent elections to the British Parliament. The Labour Party has a platform most strongly in favor of a Jewish Commonwealth in Palestine—that is to say a Jewish State—of all the known party platforms in English-speaking countries. Already, one hears rumours about the practical abolition of the discriminatory provisions of the White Paper of 1939 through the issuance of a new immigration schedule of 75,000 certificates for the coming year. This would certainly ease the situation in Europe considerably. On the other hand, the new foreign secretary, Ernest Bevin, in his first deliverance before the House of Commons, made no mention of Palestine at all. This indicates that the Labour Cabinet, like their Tory predecessors, is mindful of imperial needs and intends to proceed with caution. Talks of partition are again in the air.

On the other side of the ocean, President Truman told a recent Press Conference in Washington that the United States Government at the Potsdam Conference of the Big Three took a position in favor of a Jewish State in Palestine, if it could be established and maintained peacefully. (The Jewish Post, August 24, 1945) He added that he did not wish to contemplate the dispatch of 500,000 American soldiers to maintain such a state. This latter statement has met with considerable amazement in some Jewish circles.

IMMIGRATION

It seems probable that the refugees now detained at Fort Ontario (Oswego, New York) will soon be released and permitted to reside in any part of the United States, perhaps under a quota system. The Congressional Committee on Immigration and Naturalization has already acted on these cases, but the decision has not yet been published. (The Observer, July 20, 1945)

As to normal immigration procedure, pre-war conditions have been restored. Sole responsibility for the issuance of immigration visas to the United States rests again with the American Consuls abroad. An innovation is, however, that the aspirant has to procure documents which show that he has the permission of his home government to leave the country. Considering the attitude of the Soviet Union and of the Soviet-influenced countries in Eastern Europe which do not want their citizens to emigrate, this means that applications from inhabitants of those countries where most European Jews live are practically excluded from consideration. New restrictions on Jewish emigration have recently been reported from the Carpatho-Ukraina.

ACADEMIC ANTI-SEMITISM IN THE U.S.A.

President Hopkins of Dartmouth College in a recent statement to New York newspapers admitted that Jewish students who apply for admission to Dartmouth are denied entrance as soon as the arbitrary Jewish quota of Dartmouth College is filled. Dartmouth, according to Mr. Hopkins, is "a Christian College" and would lose its attraction even for Jews if it were to become "predominantly Jewish".

POLITICAL ANTI-SEMITISM IN THE U.S.A.

Political anti-Semitism is working effectively underground. The Nationalist Party of former U. S. Senator Robert R. Reynolds of North Carolina is seeking to weld the different fascist groups in this country into an organization which prepares to make a bid for congressional seats in the election of 1946. Reynold's representative J. Victor Malone and the alleged seditionist Joe McWilliams are soliciting industrial contributions. (Memphis Press-Scimitar, July 18, 1945). A campaign has been started with the goal of infiltrating groups who have a real or fancied grievance against the administration. A special nationalist's Committee of the Nationalist Party is being organized on the unit basis. The unit is to consist of ten people as a nucleus. Operating in the straight Nazi manner is the Gentile Cooperative League which is headed by Eugene Flitcraft in Chicago and organizes boycotts against Jewish business and professional men. Another activity is pursued by the Committee of Veterans of World War II under the leadership of Frederick Kister. Here the attempt is being made to use the political pressure power of the returning veterans for the purpose of breaking up the labor unions. Youth groups are in the process of being formed in several states, especially in the Middle West. Finally, Homer Maertz of Chicago is reported to be travelling about the country in order to organize followers into action groups. Maertz cooperates with Gerald L. K. Smith and with the Ku Klux Klan. The Klan is again sprouting in various parts of the South.

There have recently appeared sheets which maintain that the Southern Negro is not really interested in the proposed permanent FEPC and that he is merely misled "by another racial minority". In Baltimore, the resentment of 150,000 Negro workers in defense industries who live in badly crowded areas, has been turned against Jewish renters and storekeepers by ex-Bundist and Fascist propagandists. (The Jewish Post, August 3, 1945) On the other hand, the newspaper men's delivery strike in New York could have easily grown into a race riot if it had lasted a few days longer. The newspapers were hiring young Negroes as strikebreakers and the resentment of the strikers, most of whom were Jews, could have easily turned against them. This is the opinion of Albert Deutsch, writer for PM, as told in a recent meeting of the Philadelphia Fellowship Commission. He urged that Jewish groups take the offensive against anti-Semitism and not wait until newly appointed research commissions complete their five-year studies on the causes of anti-Semitism. Fortunately, Negro and Jewish leaders have become increasingly aware of the danger which is inherent in the attempt to divert anti-capitalistic feelings into convenient anti-Semitic channels.

CORRECTION:

In the May issue of the MONTHLY SUMMARY (Volume II, no. 10, p. 292) reference was made to a pamphlet on anti-Semitism prepared by the Reverend Arthur J. Riley, Ph.D., and published under the imprimature of Archibishop Richard J. Cushing of Boston, as being "a vicious anti-Semitic pamphlet". Since the publication of this issue, Father Riley's pamphlet has been more carefully studied by specialists acquainted with currents of Jewish thought and, while critical of some of the material in the pamphlet, they are convinced that Father Riley's intentions in preparing this document were beyond criticism and that characterization of the pamphlet as anti-Semitic is unjustifiable.

JAPANESE-AMERICANS

PROBLEMS OF JAPANESE RESETTLEMENT

Conceived broadly, human resettlement is an aspect of the wider problem of human migration—the movement of people from one area to another in search of more adequate sustenance of life and greater personal security. The destination of an individual in search of a proper place within a competitive economy is determined by the differential in the two opposing forces—push and pull—operating within a given community. For example, the movement out of a community at any time may well be considered as a numerical expression of a competitive struggle among human beings and the presence of disequilibrium between the push and pull forces. When defined in this manner, the problem of human resettlement is not too difficult to understand. Like animals, human beings go where they can best survive and not where they would like to live. Where they can best survive depends first and foremost upon their competitive capacities—age, sex, occupation, health, and so forth.

However, human resettlement is indeed a social problem. Man, unlike animals, inevitably enters into and shares the attitudes, sentiments, aspirations and even anxieties of others. In this way, what was once a personal problem becomes social and, inescapably, the concern of the wider public. Something needs to be done about it and a course of action ensues. Moreover, in his effort to seek a satisfactory solution for pressing problems, man finds it necessary to resort to organized effort. In the final analysis, only through an adequate manipulation of the existing social institutions, is he capable of accomplishing this end. But the institutions, by means of which he must of necessity find his way out, are intricately intertwined and are deeply rooted in the tradition of society. Because of this fact, any policy with reference to Japanese resettlement that any one institution proposes, is probably in conflict with the specific aims and purposes of other institutions and encounters opposition of vested interests in society. Debates, quarrels, threats, and violences are to be expected. They may retard the process of resettlement by slowing down the successful execution of a proposed plan. Moreover, this conflict situation has its subjective effect on the individual evacuees—particularly on those persons in a state of indecision. They become more conscious of the precariousness of the world beyond their immediate experience. But by far the most significant outcome of any conflict is the fact that out of debate and discussion a more adequate and workable policy is generally formulated and more satisfactory cooperation is achieved. Perhaps it is within such a framework as this that the present problem of the resettlement of the Japanese in the United States needs to be examined and its future trends predicted.

Centrifugal forces have always been present in the War Relocation Centers. For one thing these Centers have been set up as transient abodes for a group of people who by the accident of World War II became temporarily nondescript "citizens" and aliens. From the point of view of a sound economic, political, cultural and moral life, the conditions within these Centers have not been favorable—this abnormal situation in turn has influenced some segment of the evacuees toward their exodus. Moreover, the policy of the WRA has been to disperse the evacuees throughout the United States as rapidly as communities could absorb them. Mr. Dillion S. Meyer, the national director of the WRA, has elaborated upon its policy and incidentally expressed the underlying philosophy of the Japanese resettlement program. He says in part:

As you all know, WRA is primarily a service organization. Its main job is to help the people in Relocation Centers become established again in private life. During the past three years, in helping over 45,000 people to relocate, we have encountered almost every conceivable type of resettlement problem. . . .

Never once have we found an individual or family relocation problem which we considered unsolvable. . . . It is highly important that we continue rendering this individualized type of assistance in relocation until the very end of the program. In order to do this effectively, however, we must have a comparatively even flow of movement out of the Centers over the next several months. . . .

Those who advise the residents of the Centers to hang back or tell them that their problems are unsolvable, therefore are doing a disservice. They are not only ignoring WRA's past record of relocation assistance but are actually working against the welfare of the people whom they pretend to help.

We have considered the problems of rendering adequate assistance on an individual basis to every eligible family and every person still residing in Relocation Centers.

In order to assure an even, orderly movement from the Centers and a well-planned program of assistance, it is essential that all residents should decide where they wish to relocate by September 1, at the latest.

Our advice and assistance to you cannot be made effective until you have made that basic decision. I am greatly pleased with the high degree of success achieved by the more than 45,000 evacuees who have already left Relocation Centers. The WRA is prepared to assist every one of you to make a similar successful adjustment.

As I have indicated on various occasions at the Centers, there is no such word as "can't" either in the vocabulary of Center residents or in the vocabulary of WRA. (Heart Mountain Sentinel, July 14, 1945)

Added to these external pushing forces are the subtle personal factors that operate in producing somewhat the same result. Personal pride, the wish for new experience, and for response—these personal motives led some of the evacuees to seek their lives outside the Centers. To be sure in any concrete individual instance of the resettlement none of the foregoing forces operated in isolation.

Whatever the factors and conditions which may account for the movement of the evacuees away from the Centers, to date it is estimated that approximately forty-six thousand persons have been relocated. This leaves over seventy thousand persons still remaining in the Centers. Of this total, about ten out of eighteen thousand now in Tule Lake, California, may not be eligible for relocation. This leaves about sixty thousand persons to be relocated before the closing date. This is a serious problem in view of the short time in which this dispersion is to be effected.

One thing is clearly evident from the above figures and, that is, the process of dispersion has been very slow. A partial explanation for this slow exodus may be found in the peculiar age and sex composition of the Japanese left in the Centers. The aged and the young children are still in the Centers. Up to date the predominant number of persons who had resettled were the youth. The individual floating alone or in a small number can be absorbed far more readily into a normal community life than the family units with old and young. He is no problem to the community to which he moves. However, the aged parents with young dependent children encounter innumerable problems of housing, recreation, occupations, and education in the new community. Thus, in the Centers were left the old and the young children and the acuteness of the problem is therefore far more serious than the mere number indicates.

One of the outstanding characteristics of Oriental immigrants on the Pacific Coast has been the family solidarity. A sound and workable plan for the resettlement of the Japanese either into the old communities along the West Coast or into new communities in other parts of the United States, must reckon with this basic institution of the group. Any plan that goes counter to the well being of the family and other basic mores of the Japanese people may be foredoomed. Herein lies the complexity of the problem of Japanese resettlement—it is the family as a unit which must be transplanted. It is far easier to find a proper place for young people in a new community than to find a place for families. The transplantation of families requires a careful weighing of the numerous inherent economic and social factors and conditions of the community into which the families seek their entree. Any large movement of families runs smack into the community resistance. Such sudden inflow of families makes the community as a whole conscious of the problems of housing, recreation, education, religion, and morality. It upsets the traditional equilibrium of the community. The oppositions that have been voiced recurrently from people in the various regions of the United States prior to and during the War have their roots in this subtle fact. In whatever form the opposition has expressed itself, it has had a single effect upon the minds of the Japanese people within the Centers. It resulted in an ever increasing sense of insecurity and confusion as to their life goals. Indecision has been the by-product of this state of mind. The WRA, by announcing the closing dates of the eight centers, has forced the issue upon those thousands of Japanese who still remain in the Centers. The schedule of the closing dates of these Centers are: for Units 2 and 3 or Poston and Canal Camp of Gila River, Arizona, on or before October 1; for Granada, Colorado, on or before October 15; for Topaz, Utah, and Minidoka, Idaho, on or before November 1; for Heart Mountain, Wyoming, and Butte Camp of Gila River, Arizona, on or before December 1; and for Rohwer, Arkansas, on or before December 15. No plans were announced as to Tule Lake, California, where about 18,000 have been segregated. However, from past statements, it seems fairly certain that the Department of Justice or some other federal agency will take over to enable the WRA to go out of existence. Every Center being closed is to be given three months' advance notice.

Keeping within the confines of the War Relocation Centers a large aggregate of Japanese has proved beyond doubt to be economically and morally unsound. To keep the Japanese in idleness by depriving them of their productive capacity or by encouraging production at minimum compensation has had a single effect in lowering group morale as well as personal moral value. In a society, such as ours, which prides itself in the value of the common man, any effort to prevent or prohibit a group of men who desire to contribute to the welfare of the total society may well be regarded as pathological. In time of emergency an organized effort to segregate any body of people whose freedom is deemed a threat to national security may be justly upheld if the threat can be objectively proved. But the difficulty is well-nigh overwhelming.

With the end of hostilities between the United States and Japan, the very reason for the exclusion of the Nisei and Issei from the West Coast has crumbled down, and racial baiters and vested interest groups have lost their reasonably tenable ground for objecting to the return of the Japanese evacuees. It should be remembered that the first blow, however, came with the rescinding by the War Department of the orders excluding all persons of Japanese ancestry on December 17, 1944, and thus the end of hostilities and the final formal declaration of war which is to come in the near future will give the Japanese greater freedom to move about in search of more favorable existence.

The resistance from the Pacific Coast will not likely be relinquished easily nor immediately. Opposition will continue to exist and in all likelihood will be blanketed in different terms. The reason may come out more clearly in economic threats. The reason for the exclusion of the Japanese has not been basically patriotic, for it is more patriotic to allow the Japanese to contribute their labor in the production of sorely needed commodities.

But the economic motive, to make a maximum profit in time of war, has been paramount. The magnitude of profit made by some of the white farmers on the Pacific Coast at the expense of the exigencies of war may be seen from isolated instances that have come to our attention.

In Hood River, it is reported that one Nisei had rented his orchard for $1,000 a year. It grossed in these years around $50,000 annually. Another had rented a forty-acre orchard for $250 a year. The tenant grossed $25,000 a year during the years of evacuation.

In California comes the report that there are countless numbers of cases where nurseries were rented for practically nothing and the tenants were reaping enormous profits. Growers and shippers monopolized certain farm products through the control of Japanese-owned lands.

Perhaps herein lies the secret of the success of so many instances of violence that have remained undetected or unpunished. So many avowed anti-Japanese organizations emerge and succeed in spite of the ideological contradictions. This brute economic competition is expected to heighten in the period of economic transition—transition from war economy to normal national economy. The laying-off by the thousands because of the cancellation of war contracts already in progress will in all probability accentuate the competitive economic struggle. If race conflicts stem from brute economic competition, it is not difficult to foresee the conflicts to follow. In the face of growing conflict, waves of legal barriers will be attempted; some legal experts will seek to find loopholes in the already existing laws —especially in the Anti-Alien Land Law of California. All these are evidences of the fear of the impending economic competition of the Japanese evacuees.

The Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West and the California Joint Immigration Committee were in the vanguard in advocating exclusion of all Orientals from this country. They continued their activities even after the evacuation although they have not been boisterous in recent months. Japanese, Chinese, and Filipinos have been the targets of persecution. Even today, the Chinese are not entirely free. The latest incident pertained to a Chinese American veteran who wanted to buy a laundry in San Francisco, California, and was prevented from doing so through pressure brought upon the seller. The regional office of the Japanese American Citizens League and the local chapter joined in the protest against the discriminatory action (Pacific Citizen, August 4, 1945)

The California Preservation Association is actively trying to form units in the rural districts of Northern California. Starting in Auburn, California, a meeting was held in Marysville recently and a new unit organized. Prior to V-J Day, the organization was opposed to the return of persons of Japanese ancestry to the West Coast for their own security. At the Marysville meeting, Mrs. Earl Lukens of Auburn announced the principal aim of the association will be to enforce four laws dealing with persons of Japanese ancestry in California: (1) those covering illegal entry; (2) entry of persons on temporary permits and as students; (3) on guardianship; and (4) Alien Land Law. (Pacific Citizen, August 4 and 11, 1945)

The most important development of the past months undoubtedly pertains to the unconditional surrender of Japan. With this came the inevitable cutbacks and reconversion—billions of dollars in contracts have been cancelled and millions of people will be unemployed. Mr. John Snyder, director of reconversion, has predicted that there would be five million unemployed by November and possibly eight million by next spring. As long as there was the shortage of manpower, the Japanese were tolerated. If unemployment figures should reach the millions as predicted, there is a strong possibility of trouble arising from economic competition. This will undoubtedly complicate the problems of resettlement.

One of the serious problems which the evacuee farmers will face this fall is the threat of boycott. On July 14, the new Secretary of Agriculture, Clinton Anderson, dispatched a telegram to the Northwestern Produce Dealers' Association at Seattle pronouncing the boycotting of produce grown by returned evacuees as unjustifiable. He stated that he had received numerous complaints that produce firms in Seattle had refused to handle products grown by Japanese-Americans in that area.

It was understood that the anti-trust division of the Department of Justice was studying the situation for evidences of violation of federal anti-trust statutes.

The War Department officials also were reported interested in the situation—particularly in any waste through spoilage of produce grown by returned farmers of Japanese ancestry which West Coast produce houses refuse to handle. (Pacific Citizen, July 21, 1945)

The nurserymen and produce men of the Los Angeles area are now seeking Federal legislation permitting local communities to vote against the return of Japanese-Americans from Relocation Centers. These leaders are expected to attend the August meeting of the Ivanhoe Citizens League. One thousand names are supposed to have been signed and petitions presented in the Ivanhoe area to Representative B. W. Gearhart of Fresno and Representative A. J. Elliot of Tulare asking Federal action against the unrestricted return of the evacuees to their former homes in the State of California. (Pacific Citizen, July 21, 1945)

Mr. Dillon S. Myer predicted in Fresno, California, on June 22, that there will be no question about acceptance of Japanese Americans by soldiers of either the European or Pacific wars. He pointed out that most of the terroristic outbreaks against the returned evacuees have occurred in rural communities, 75% of them in the Fresno district. He noted that farmlands left behind when persons of Japanese ancestry were evacuated have been "making money" and temporary operators are reluctant to give them up. He stated further that since January 2, 1945, and up to around June 23, thirty-three attacks against returned evacuees of Japanese ancestry have occurred in California. Twenty of the attacks were shootings; one a dynamiting; three were arson cases; in nine instances, returned evacuees were threatened and warned to stay away from a given area. (Pacific Citizen, June 30, 1945)

The prevailing "myths" about persons of Japanese ancestry in the United States in all probability will be capitalized by the few to counter the return of the Japanese. Some of the myths floating in the country are: that all American-born Japanese children owe allegiance to the emperor; that Japanese language schools indoctrinated their pupils with Nipponese national ideals; that Japanese on the West Coast congregated in military areas; that Japanese Americans knew all about the impending Pearl Harbor attack but warned no one; and, that a person "once a Jap, is always a Jap." But these myths in the face of increasing knowledge about the Japanese growing out of the wider contacts and associations lose their power. The Nisei-GI's and the Nisei in other parts of the United States have successfully destroyed once widely-held myths.

The press of the nation has been thoroughly aroused over the mistreatment of the persons of Japanese parentage. The Hood River American Legion Post, the terroristic acts on the West Coast, the Spokane Post 51 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and numerous other incidents have been given nation-wide publicity. Also the feats of the Japanese American soldiers have drawn favorable publicity and comment. This dispersal of the evacuees throughout the country has helped matters too. Many national leaders in all walks of life have come in contact with persons of Japanese ancestry, especially the Nisei. Some have them in their homes as servants; others in their offices or factories; on their farms; or as co-workers in government agencies or in civic affairs.

The percentage of successful resettlement is higher than failures. Evidence of this fact may be gleaned from the column of Dilworth Lupton in the Cleveland Press, July 20, 1945, addressed to the Nisei:

Reports of your work in defense plants and in other employment have won you the overwhelming approval of your employers. We Clevelanders have grown to feel that you are a part of our life—in industry, in our churches, our Y.M.C.A. and our schools.

To you Nisei, our Mayor Burke entrusts with me this personal message: 'Many of you will return to friends and families on the Coast. But to those who wish to stay and become fellow Clevelanders, we give you our heartiest welcome.'

By your fine behavior you have dispelled the poisoning myth, 'Once a Jap, always a Jap.' And you have proved conclusively what scientists have known for years—that the way people act doesn't depend on their blood stream or on the color of their skins, but upon their education and environment, and their own initiative. . . ."

Prospects of the Japanese resettlement in other areas outside of the West Coast seem less gloomy. An examination of the Japanese vernacular newspapers, two in Denver, Colorado, and one in Salt Lake City, Utah, reveals a growing number of dentists, physicians and optometrists opening offices in new localities. The number of dentists has been most noticeable, and all of them are reported to be busy with non-Japanese patients. Even on the West Coast, most dentists had a large following besides members of their own race. Japanese dentists had built a reputation of being proficient with their hands. All professional men seem to feel that there is no color line drawn in the Middle West and the East. This may mean a new field for Japanese-American professional men.

Physicians who are alien Japanese are the ones who are returning to the West Coast. They have found that most states will not permit aliens to have licenses to practice. Consequently, in order to continue their profession, they are being forced to return to the state where they were licensed prior to the evacuation.

A development which may produce interesting resettlement was the article about the Wilson Plantation, located at Wilson, Arkansas, 40 miles northwest of Memphis, Tennessee. The WRA relocation officer from Arkansas had gone to the Poston, Arizona, relocation center to explain about the possibilities of this project. It was stated that there were 57,000 acres under cultivation out of over 63,000 acres. This farm has been growing mainly cotton but it wants to undergo a change into a large truck farming land. Three plans have been offered. They are:

Plan No. 1—For family or bachelor with little or no money—on Share Crop or 50-50 to 65-35 basis. A minimum of 2 acres of cotton to each acre of vegetables to be grown the first year. The company will furnish all farming equipment, fertilizer, plants, seeds, housing and insecticides. The evacuee needs to provide the labor. Advances of as much as $2 per acre a month will be made if needed.

Plan No. 2—Rent land for $12 to $18 per acre, the evacuee providing the equipment and finance. Cotton producing is not required in this plan.

Plan No. 3—Same as Plan No. 2, but if the evacuee desires to grow cotton, he may rent additional land for half of the cotton crop.

The Seabrook Farms of Bridgeton, New Jersey, were the first to solicit evacuee labor on a large scale. Unconfirmed reports indicate that there are about 1,250 now working. And more are being welcomed.

The movement out of the relocation centers is progressing at a faster pace. Special cars are going out every week. And now special trains are being chartered. From January to July of this year, 15,907 persons left the Centers; 64 per cent going eastward; 11 per cent to Southern California; and the rest to the West Coast and Intermountain area. (Colorado Times, August 2, 1945)

THE AMERICAN INDIAN AND HIS CITIZENSHIP: A YEAR'S REVIEW*

The Indian's position in the American family has changed little during the current year. He remains the un-wanted child, pushed outside the warm family circle. Although all Indians in the United States are citizens, fully one-fourth of the Indian population is disfranchised. As wards of the federal government Indian control over their own affairs can be, and often is, curtailed. The long and bitter road our nation set their feet upon when we conquered them two hundred years ago still stretches ahead into an uncharted future. It is a road we have pitted with bottomless quagmires of poverty and imperiled with yawning crevasses of discrimination. Impotence in their own community and personal affairs renders their journey more galling and hazardous. While America takes time out to scold Bulgaria and Yugoslavia for flouting democracy in those distant lands our national Congress continues to pass laws vital to Indian welfare without Indian consent; federal officials still make plans for Indian communities without Indian participation; and Indian boys still are drafted to defend a country which denies them the right to vote for the laws that govern them.

Events of the past year have kept before Indians their uncertain status in American life. Arizona recently denied Indians the right to Social Security benefits of the state and nation on the ground that they are federal wards. Within the year the state legislature of New Mexico voted down a repeal of its present law prohibiting Indians from voting in state and national elections. A bill now before the Senate (S 1179) would force the application of state criminal laws on all Indian reservations regardless of the readiness of the people. Another bill (S 978) would repeal the Reorganization Act of 1934 promising greater self-government and a more secure economic base to Indians living on reservations. A decision of the United States Supreme Court (Northwestern Shoshone case) handed down only a few months ago, places in grave jeopardy the titles of all tribes holding claims against the United States and reverses the century-old policy acknowledging the rights of Indian tribes to recover for past injustices inflicted on their members.

The Protestant Church of the United States devoted a portion of the last year to a study of the Indian situation. One of the foremost topics of discussion by these groups and by the press has been the Indians' political status. Increasing public demand for some change in Indian wardship, and for the abolition of the Bureau of Indian Affairs resulted in an investigation of the total Indian problem by a select committee of the House of Representatives. This committee of six Congressmen spent four weeks visiting Indian jurisdictions in ten states and Alaska, returning to submit its report to the House December 23, 1944. The report begins with the assertion that the rightful goal of the Indian is 'to take his place in the white man's community, on the white man's level, and with the white man's opportunity and security status." The Committee found that Indian progress toward this objective is hampered by (1) inadequate economic opportunities; (2) inadequate educational opportunities at high enough level; (3) inadequate adult guidance; (4) failure to settle Indian claims and Indian heirship problems; (5) failure to provide a procedure whereby Indians may, of their own volition, become full-fledged citizens without the restrictions of federal guardianship. The committee further reported that Indians as a group are not ready yet to be "turned loose", and that the federal government had not yet discharged its obligations to Indians to the point where the Bureau of Indian Affairs can be abolished and federal services to Indians be discontinued.

*Prepared by Ruth Bronson.

Indian attitudes toward these questions of such burning importance to themselves was clearly revealed at the hearings (February 20 to March 1, 1945) before the Senate Committee on Indian Affairs on the appointment of a new Commissioner of Indian Affairs to succeed John Collier, who had resigned. Indian delegates representing widely separate sections of the country spoke with one voice their insistence that an Indian be named to this position holding such tremendous power over all Indian well-being. (They did not get him.) "An Indian will better understand us and our needs," they said. None felt that the time had come when the Bureau of Indian Affairs could safely be abolished but one delegate after another emphasized that Indians wanted more voice in their own affairs. Congressman Stigler, himself an Indian, speaking before the House April 26th, urged that Indians be allowed more control over their own property and their own lives. If the work of the Indian Bureau is to become more effective it must become more a bureau of service to Indians by Indians and less a bureau to regiment and control Indian lives by dictatorship of an alien race. A group of younger Indian leadership meeting informally in Chicago expressed the belief that Indians still need the Bureau of Indian Affairs but that it must be purged of those employees, of whom there are many, who look down on Indians as inferior; who believe Indians to be irresponsible children needing protection from the consequences of their own actions; who have no confidence in Indian future. Until such changes are made, this group felt, Indian self- government will remain largely in the realm of double talk where so much of Indian Service holds it now. Until these changes are made, federal guardianship can never become, as it ought to become, a creative and dynamic force in Indian development, but will remain instead the thing it is in so many areas today—a dead hand holding Indians victim to an enforced and carefully nurtured dependency.

NATIONAL CONGRESS OF AMERICAN INDIANS

One development of the year which may be of utmost importance to Indians is the organization of the National Congress of American Indians. In November, 1944, eighty delegates representing forty-five tribes from every section of Indian country met in Denver, Colorado, to create this all-Indian organization. The delegates were illustrative of the wide diversity found in Indian life today. Some were professional men, trained in the country's greatest universities, and completely and successfully assimilated to white ways. Other delegates spoke only their tribal language and knew little experience outside the pattern of their own tribal culture. In between were delegates representing all possible gradations of assimilation. It was not easy for such a varied group to reach a common mind, but the fact that they did while maintaining an atmosphere of good feeling and mutual trust marks a new trend in Indian development. It demonstrates a growing sense of racial unity. Until recent years Indian interests and loyalties were tribal rather than racial. But the critical need for common action, growing out of the desperate plight of so many Indian groups, has helped develop a feeling of racial solidarity that is constantly growing stronger. Today many of the younger, educated Indians think of themselves first as Indian and only second as Cherokee or Piaute.

The new organization illustrates, too, that Indians everywhere, even among the full-blood groups most wedded to ancient tribal ways, are increasingly willing to use white methods in their struggle with the white man for security. The old suspicion and scorn Indians once visited upon the Indian leader who tried to "ape" white ways by taking on the white man's education and his procedures is completely dead. Indians at long last know they must meet the white man on his own ground and with his own tools. Moreover, the struggle of other American minorities, notably the Negro, to achieve an assured place in American life has been to Indians a heartening example, inspiring them to action.

There has never been an Indian press to mirror and crystalize Indian opinion, and to present Indian problems in an unbiased manner. The N.C.A.I. proposes to establish a newsletter for this purpose. The first issues have already gone into the Indian country. It begins as an extremely limited service, but as financial support comes in it will be expanded. Plans of the organization also include establishment of: (1) a legal-aid bureau for Indian tribes or individuals in need of legal advice; (2) an in-service training program within their own Service; (3) scholarships for post-graduate professional training of Indians; (4) a poll of Indian opinion on current Indian problems.

The first legislation sponsored by N.C.A.I. is a bill to settle speedily and finally all prevailing Indian claims through creation of a special Indian Claims Commission. Two such bills have been introduced before the House, but neither have yet been reported out of Committee. This legislation was placed at the top of the MUST list by N.C.A.I. because the organization believes the present mass of unsettled Indian claims, some justifiable, some not, is confusing to Indians and retards Indian progress by keeping alive among some Indian groups an unhealthy spirit of bitterness and resentment; by making some Indians reluctant to break with reservation ties for fear of losing their share of whatever recovery is made; by making it possible for unscrupulous lawyers to prey on unsophisticated Indian groups with promises of fabulous riches to be recovered; and by discouraging Indian effort toward self-improvement through dreams of great wealth just ahead in a nebulous future.

Two items placed before Congress within the year reveal the public attitude toward Indians at two extreme ends of our national boundary, and dispel the rosy theory that aggression of Indian land belongs to a bygone era. The first, a joint memorial of the legislature of the state of Arizona (placed in the Congressional Record March 20, 1945, by Senator McFarland, Arizona) proposes that certain lands (of great potential productivity because of newly developed irrigation facilities) belonging to the Colorado River Indians be given by the United States to returning war veterans. No Indian consent is implied. The other, a resolution introduced by the Delegate from Alaska, Hon. E. L. Bartlett, (Congressional Record, April 17, 1945) deserves to be quoted in part:

"Resolved by the Alaska Territorial Chamber of Commerce: That the Congress of the United States be promptly petitioned to immediately enact legislation definitely and forever extinguishing any and all aborigine rights, if any, that the Alaska Indians ever held or possessed and all claims now, heretofore, and hereafter asserted to such, if any, aborigine rights, and authorize Alaska Indians to sue the United States of America in the United States Court of Claims, or other appropriate court, for the recovery of the value of such, if any, aborigine rights now or ever held or possessed by them, and provide that in the event of such, if any, recovery, the United States of America shall pay said Indians in money therefor.

"Passed and approved unanimously March 23, 1945, Alaska Territorial Chamber of Commerce by Homer Garvin, President."

ALASKA

This past year has found Alaska Indians in the middle of a desperate struggle to keep their land holdings and fishing rights claimed by right of original occupancy. The Department of the Interior has taken the position that the surest way to safeguard Indian title and to protect against trespass is to set up "reservations" under federal protection. A Congressional Act of 1936 gives the Department this authority. Toward this end Secretary Ickes sent Judge Richard R. Hanna into Alaska to hold hearings on the possessory claims of Indian villages of Hydaberg, Kake, and Klawock. Non-Indian Alaskans are bitterly opposing the reservations. The Alaska Chamber of Commerce asserts that uncertainty over Indian claims is retarding economic development of Alaska. Delegate Bartlett told the Alaska Native Brotherhood that establishment of reservations will only widen the already great distance between Indians and whites and create even greater racial difficulties. The commercial fishing companies, which, according to Indian claims have unlawfully usurped ancient Indian fishing rights, have been bitter in their fight against federal protection. Judge Hanna completed his hearings some weeks ago and only recently Secretary Ickes handed down the Department's decision based on Judge Hanna's findings. The Indians were allowed only about one-eighth of the territory they have claimed. They have appealed and an attorney has been assigned by the Department to assist them in establishing whatever additional proof they can for the territorial claims they wish to press.

While this fight over land and fishing rights is still at its hottest, Alaska Territory has moved ahead on her own volition to accord Indians greater social justice. Discrimination against Indians has been greater in Alaska, perhaps, than it has ever been in any part of the United States. "No Natives Permitted" is a familiar sign in Alaskan hotels, stores, restaurants, theatres, and other public businesses. Few Indians are welcome in Territorial schools. United States soldiers stationed in Alaska were forbidden to associate with Indians. But within the past year Alaska has enacted legislation making it illegal to display signs indicating discrimination on racial grounds and providing that "all citizens of Alaska shall be entitled to full and equal enjoyment of accommodations, advantages, and facilities of any public place." Furthermore, within recent weeks the old Territorial Mother's Allowance Law, which excluded Indian children, has been replaced by a new law granting aid to dependent children in which needy Indian children are given the right to share on the same basis as children of white parents.

EMPLOYMENT

The employment situation for Indians generally worsened during the year. Even before V-J Day appreciable numbers of Indians were beginning to return to their reservation homes because of unemployment. This is reflected in the lengthening reservation relief rolls at a time when the rest of the country was showing lighter relief loads. Like other marginal groups Indians are among the first to lose their jobs as work slackens. No program has yet been initiated, either by Indian groups or by the Bureau of Indian Affairs, to help those who want to stay in industrial work keep the toehold they have gained there or to extend those gains. Many who prefer to stay in the cities to work are being forced back into their segregated rural areas. Often they must return to communities socially impoverished; to wretched, over-crowded homes; to inadequate school opportunities for their children; to localities where there is not the slightest chance for a decent livelihood because of depleted soil or too scanty farming land. The hope in this dark picture comes from the profound changes the war years have made in Indian experience. The annual report of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs states that greater numbers than ever before in history have left the Indian reservations in search of work. Sometimes as many as fifty percent of a reservation have been away at work during a given period. More than 100,000 Indian men, women, and children were employed during the past year in the beet fields, the orchards, and other agricultural activities of the nation. Some 30,000 Indian boys and girls have served in the armed forces. As all these people return home, and large numbers of them will, their new experiences will help them face their reservation problems. They will have seen, some for the first time, how other races do things. They will have a new confidence, growing out of successful competition, if only for a short while, with people of other ways of life. They will compare, and they will understand how things can be made better at home.

Indian employment within the federal Indian Service remains much at the same point as it was a year ago. The official policy of giving preference to Indians for jobs in their own service is still operating —but still largely at the lower salary levels. Within the year a new personnel director for the Indian Service was appointed, but he was not an Indian. An Assistant Commissioner was recently chosen, but the post did not go to an Indian. Vacancies in the Reservation Superintendency position have rarely been filled with Indians, although qualified Indians are available for all these jobs.

VETERANS

The G. I. Bill of Rights offers many Indian veterans their first chance to share in a program with their fellow-Americans free of racial handicaps. True, even here some will run into the local banker who is sure no Indian is a good credit risk, or there may be an occasional Veteran's Administration Counsellor who believes all Indians too lazy to help themselves, but this sort of bias need not preclude justice to the energetic, for he can appeal his case to the Washington Office of the Veteran's Administration and be reasonably sure of a fair hearing as any veteran of any race. The personnel of the field offices of the Veteran's Administration, in those states where Indian populations are proportionately high, are being asked by the Central Office to make a special study of the needs of Indian veterans and to work out procedures that will insure Indian veterans are fully informed of the services available to them under the Serviceman's Readjustment Act.

This does not mean that the Indian veteran will not meet with discrimination on occasion, for of course he will. He may meet it when he goes away to school; when he goes to buy a home outside the reservation; when he seeks a job; even when he goes shopping in the city. Race prejudice expresses itself against Indians in the same areas and much the same manner as it does against other minorities whose ways and looks differ from the majority. The old cliches of racial bias used to beat down other undesired peoples are hurled at Indians, too. "Indians won't work"; "Indians can't be trusted"; "It is so hard to make Indians understand anything"; "Indians are diseased, or they are dirty." So long as these derogatory notions are universally applied to Indians they are handicapped in their struggle for a secure place in the American family.

STORM OVER TIGER BAY

A PROTEST MOVEMENT AGAINST SEGREGATION ON THE BRITISH ISLES

For the first time in Great Britain the cry of segregation has been raised in opposition to a measure designed to establish a precedent for what at least one national newspaper and a United Committee of five coloured organizations fear would be the creation of "ghettoes" for coloured people in the British Isles.

The zone of discontent lies adjacent to the Cardiff[1] docks area and is known, derisively, as "Tiger Bay", the coloured seamen's quarter. It covers an area of one square mile of the dreary, smoke-laden surroundings of Bute Town. Here elements of all the dark seafaring races owing allegiance to the British Crown—Arabs, Maltese, "Lascars", Somalis, Orientals, Negroes from all over Africa and the Caribbean—form a floating population of about 4,500. The social fabric of the quarter is woven—the pattern is similar to that of the "Manassas" societies of the Middle and Far West of a generation or so ago—on the basis of relationships between dark-skinned men and women of Welsh and English stock.

In May, 1938, one of Britain's biggest landowners, the Marquis of Bute, who, according to "Who's Who" currently owns 117,000 acres, set up an all-time record for the size of a real estate transaction. He sold half of the City of Cardiff for a sum estimated at 20,000,000 sterling. Under the terms of the sale "ground rents secured on 20,000 houses, 1,000 shops, 250 public-houses (saloons), several theatres and cinemas, and a large part of Cardiff docks passed over to a syndicate formed by two insurance companies and Shop Investments, Ltd., a company already owning properties worth more than 1,000,000."[2]

An endless desolation of a street along the waterfront figured in the sale.[3] This street—named after the builder of Cardiff docks, an ancestor of the Marquis, who is descended from one of the ancient kings of Scotland, Robert II—lies on the fringe of "Tiger Bay". It is only a tuppenny bus ride from the "Civic Centre" in Cathay's Park—perhaps the finest example of town-planning in the British Isles—but it serves to provide a sizzling contrast, under a set-up in which capitalism and the remnants of feudalism are closely linked, between the polarization of wealth and beauty at one end and poverty and ugliness at the other.[4]

In World War I, which gave a stimulus to the growth and expansion of the "Tiger

---

[1]Iron and steel mills, coal, the timber trade and shipping all play a big part in the industrial and economic life of Cardiff; but the city—straddling the Rivers Taff and Ely where they enter the Bristol Channel—is pre-eminent as a Port. It is, owing to its proximity to the South Wales coal mines, the largest coal-exporting port in the world Population (1938): 228,000.

[2]THE MEN WHO OWN THIS LAND OF OURS by Gordon Schaffer, Reynold's News, February 13, 1944.

[3]"As well as providing a notorious so-called 'red light' quarter of Cardiff, Bute Street is the district par excellence for cafes and lodging houses. In a distance of little over half a mile from West Bute Street to the canal bridge there are over 20 cafes and at least half a dozen boarding houses, including one or two sailors' homes, e.g., Salvation Army and Greek. There are also some half-dozen public houses, a rather large number of clothiers, who sell a great variety of garments from seafaring equipment, such as firemen's suits, naval uniforms, sea boots, wire belts, etc., to smart lounge suits and soft hats; three jewelers; a number of general stores and tobacconists."—"Loudoun Square: A Community Survey—I," by K. L. Little, The Sociological Review, Vol XXXIV Nos. 1 and 2, January-April, 1943.

"The long dreary expanse of Bute Street is another blot on the City; we believe that the new ground landlords have projects in mind for improvement as the old leases fall in. The whole task of transforming the Docklands into something that is more in accord with Cardiff's good standards elsewhere is one that calls for enterprise and imagination. We want to see it made into one of our show places in the best sense, a 'front door' to the City, not a 'back door' in which the Community takes little pride."—"The Planning Of Our City," a lecture given at Cardiff Technical College in 1942, by T. Alwyn Lloyd, Fellow of the Royal Institute of British Architects, J. P. and Past President of the Town-Planning Institute.

[4]Next to the "Civic Centre" and "Tiger Bay" the chief point of interest to U. S. Negro troops in Cardiff has been a time-stained relic of the Roman Occupation of Britain—Cardiff Castle, the hereditary residence of the Marquis of Bute.

Bay" quarter,[5] the contribution of coloured seamen from Cardiff to the Allied cause was considerable. Two things had combined to give the men their chance: (1) the shortage of manpower, owing to the enormous casualties in France and the demands of industry, especially the coal mines and munition factories, and (2) the fact that on coal-burning vessels it was found that coloured men engaged as stokers and firemen seemed to be able to withstand the heat better than white men.

On the outbreak of war in 1939, "Tiger Bay"—still a borderline 'case', still a refuge for the poor, the underprivileged and the outcast but unmistakably showing signs of stability and tenacity (had it not survived all the horrors of a melting pot within a distressed area; had it not known what it was to stomach cuts in unemployment relief and the degradation of the Means Test?)—did not flinch from the challenge. Coloured seamen were in the front-line from the beginning.

When, on September 6th, 1939, the "Royal Sceptre" was sunk without warning by a U-boat, thirty-two of the crew lost their lives; ten were coloured men from "Tiger Bay"—the donkeyman, four firemen and five able seamen.

Two days later the big cargo steamer "Manaar" (7,242 tons) was attacked and sunk by four German submarines 400 miles off the coast of Portugal. Eighty-six of the crew of 105 were lost, including a number of coloured men from "Tiger Bay".

On September 11th the steamer "Magdapur" was torpedoed by a U-boat and sunk; on the 18th the Furness liner "Aviemere" (4,600 tons) was also sunk. Among the survivors from both of these vessels were men from "Tiger Bay"—Somali and West Indian firemen.

As was not the case in 1914-1918, the losses which the people of "Tiger Bay" have suffered in the cause of Allied victory, the sacrifices which they have had to make in World War II have been not only at sea but on land as well.

During 1941 and 1942, the tramp shipping in the harbour, the coal barges in the Glamorgan Canal, the timber and rail yards, the flour mills and the iron and steel mills, the colleries and the adjacent coal mines all attracted the attention of the Luftwaffe. Bomb damage in "Tiger Bay" was heavy. Along Bute Street the walls of buildings gutted in fire-bomb raids are still precariously standing. Huge craters, open spaces where tenements once stood, windows without panes, the shored-up sides of buildings still in tenancy—all testify to the ordeal through which "Tiger Bay" has passed.

The blitz doubtless has done much to aggravate the housing problem in "Tiger Bay", but even before the war it was always rather acute.

"Sanitary and housing conditions of the 'Bay' are in many cases appalling, and the death rate from tuberculosis in this ward is double that obtaining elsewhere. Houses that have been condemned as long ago as twenty years are still standing and contain large families. Along Peel Street . . . once a dangerous, now only a deeply-depressed quarter, many of the rooms in houses have windows smashed and unrepaired, walls and ceilings are falling in, and the floor is broken through. Yet people live in these conditions and pay considerable rents."[6]

To remedy the housing situation in "Tiger Bay" the Cardiff City Council some years back put forward a plan for the construction of a block of flats for col-

[5]". . . Before the last war Loudoun Square (the centre of gravity of 'Tiger Bay') itself appears to have been the residence of a well-to-do class of sea-captains, lawyers, and the bourgeoisie, which its well-built three-storeyed houses accommodated until the influx of further alien (?) immigrants to the district. This last stream, which has been more or less continuous in years since, seems to have consisted in the main of men of African origin, whose arrival is probably attributable directly to the circumstances of the last war. During that period a large number of ships, which normally operated on the West African and other routes in which these nationalities (?) were employed, was requisitioned by the Government, and the seamen were left behind in this country. About the same time coloured labour battalions were formed and were also demobilised over here. In addition a number of coloured men were brought over to Manchester and other cities to work in munition and chemical factories. It seems likely that the situation was similar at most large British ports . . . . and that the increased influx of Africans and West Indians in Cardiff may also be explained by the more profitable terms of payment obtainable there as compared to Liverpool." (Little, op. cit.)

[6]"The City of Cardiff," Picture Post, London, March 18, 1939.

oured people only. Whether the plan was intended to cloak a policy of segregation or not is wide open to speculation. However, to the white women of "Tiger Bay" —almost all of whom belong to the Women's Branch of the Labour Party—it had within it all the germs of segregation. They put their feet down on it, and the plan was dropped.

In December 1944, the Cardiff City Council again met to discuss the housing problem in "Tiger Bay". According to a report in the South Wales Echo, the Council was acting, not alone, but with the backing of the Colonial Office in London:[7]

"Approval was given at Thursday's meeting of the Cardiff Corporation Estates Committee to the erection of thirty-six houses on the site of the Old West Yard, Bute Street, for coloured people. Lay-out will harmonise with the proposed 5,000 youth centre building, to be put up at the request of the Colonial Office, for children of Colonial people in the district. This building will also go up on the West Yard site. It is also intended to build a nursery school on another part of the site."

"Tiger Bay's" recoil from the Council's decision was swift and unequivocal. It was summarized the following morning by the London Daily Worker in a dispatch from Brinley Evans, its South Wales correspondent:[8]

"A decision by Cardiff Corporation's Estates Committee to erect thirty-six houses in the docks area for the exclusive use of coloured people has met with strong protests from their official representatives.

"A protest meeting is to be held by the Cardiff United Committee of Coloured Peoples and colonial organizations against any such move to segregate the coloured population of Cardiff.

" 'The erection of these houses, with the stipulation that they are for the exclusive use of coloured people, would be the starting point in the creation of a coloured "ghetto" in Cardiff with official sanction,' a member of the committee told me today.

"He emphasized that Cardiff's coloured population would welcome any move made by Cardiff Corporation to improve the deplorable housing conditions in the docks area.

" 'But it should be a general scheme,' he added, 'with no provisions to differentiate between white and coloured British citizens.' "

On the evening that the Council's decision was made known—the South Wales Echo is an afternoon paper—a hurriedly got-up bill poster began to appear on the walls of "Tiger Bay".

NOTICE

SEGREGATION THREATENED

A DENIAL OF FREEDOM
WE MUST PROTECT

The poster was issued by the United Committee, a central executive body made up of representatives of "Tiger Bay" 's "Big Five"[9]—the Moslem League, the Colonial Defence Association, the Youth League, the Sons of Africa and the Islamic Society. Every shade of political opinion, half a dozen creeds and a multi-hued melange of races are represented on the Committee; but in spite of subtle attempts to split it into fragments, the Committee has stood firm and unswerving in the task before it.[10]

The protest statement issued by the Committee follows:[11]

"Knowing full well that any social separation of a people gives rise to discrimination and perpetuates certain social ills, this Committee deplores any move suggestive of imposed segregation and, in particular, desires to express publicly its grave concern at:

"a. A Coloured Youth centre to be built in Bute Town, Cardiff, by the Colonial Office.

"b. The erection of 36 houses for coloured people on the Old West Yard, Cardiff, approved by the Estates Committee of the Cardiff City Council, to 'harmonise' with [7] South Wales Echo, December 15, 1944.

[8] Daily Worker, London, December 16, 1944.

[9] "Various organizations exist to draw in the coloured people. The Sons of Africa, the Kroo Men Association, the Islamic Society, the Salvation Army and the Wesleyan Church. But only the Colonial Defence Association appeals to all colonial people irrespective of race, colour or creed, and sets up as its objective the defence of the social rights persumably granted to any British subject. Fiery and able Tom Llewellyn, Cardiff Labour Councillor, is President of the Colonial Defence Association."—"The City of Cardiff", op. cit.

[10] This is due in large measure to the personality and character of the Chairman, Aaron Mossell, and the wide respect and esteem in which he is held by all classes not only in the docks area but outside it.

Aaron Mossell is now in his 81st year, although his lean figure, clear eyes and razor-keen intellect all seem to belie it. He was born in Canada in 1863, whither his father, a free U. S. Negro, had fled seven years before the Dred Scott decision. He is not a seaman, but a collier with a Board of Trade certificate, and he has lived in Cardiff for forty years.

[11] "Declaration" by the United Committee of Coloured and Colonial Peoples' Organizations, Chairman: A. E. Mossell, 9 Loudoun Square, Cardiff.

the proposed Coloured Youth Centre, Nursery School, etc.

"Our reasons for concern are:

"1. That the children and young people of the district being British born and citizens of Cardiff, should not receive special treatment on account of their colour, especially from the Colonial Office.

"2. That a definite coloured colony will be established by the building of houses for coloured people around a Coloured Youth Centre, and segregation will become recognized. Social amenities should be provided for all citizens according to need, without colour or racial distinction. Furthermore, although houses are greatly needed to replace the prevailing bad housing conditions, the site chosen is considered to be neither pleasant nor healthy.

"3. That in view of the present world conflict and the high ideals of justice, freedom, democracy and anti-racialism for which the Allies are fighting and in which same conflict coloured people are fighting side by side and shedding their blood in the British Army, the Air Force and the Merchant Navy, as well as contributing large portions of the financial agricultural, mineral and other resources, such a plan of segregation in the very heart of the British Empire is untimely, unjust, unnecessary, unwise and an absolute negation of the ideals for which we are all fighting and risking our all. Moreover the reaction that such a plan might cause among the 460,000,000 coloured members of the British Empire cannot be overlooked."

It is significant that of all the public bodies whose adherence to the protest has been solicited, only one—the Conservative Party Organization in Cardiff—has been reluctant to commit itself, one way or the other. All the others,—the Labour Party, the Commonwealth Party, the Liberals under Sir Archibald Sinclair (Air Minister in the Coalition Government), the Amalgamated Engineering Union and the National Council of Civil Liberties—have warmly expressed a willingness to stand solidly behind the people of "Tiger Bay" in their courageous fight.

THE BROTHERHOOD OF BATTLE

From YANK—September 14, 1945:

"Dear Yank:

I received a copy of your magazine and read that the AMG is letting the Germans go back to school. After that I read in MAIL CALL about the Jim Crow treatment of colored American soldiers.

Now I am from Mississippi. Until I came into the Army I hated Negroes. It wasn't anything they did to me; I just didn't like them. Since I have been in the ETO I have fought from D-Day to V-E Day with Negro soldiers. I was wounded twice in one foxhole and a Negro saved my life by using his first aid kit on me. Then he carried me to where a doctor could work on me. This was under heavy fire. Later he died. He was from New York and he knew I was from the South where he had no freedom.

Many Negro soldiers have died on the front for American soldiers who thought Jim Crow was right. So if Germans can have freedom after they have caused so much suffering and destruction, why not let the Negro race have what they fought for? I feel that they should, and a lot of Southern GIs feel the same way.

Germany T/Sgt. Willie Jones"

"Dear Yank:

The other night we had a jam session with some colored boys from a Quartermaster trucking outfit quartered near us. This morning we were read an order which prohibits us to associate with the colored troops 'except on business.'

A colored tank outfit fought side by side with this regiment clear to Steyr, Austria, and we were never ordered not to fight alongside of American troops of the colored race, so why should we be forbidden to associate with other American soldiers because of color?

Germany Pvt. David Icheson"

DEMOCRACY AND THE LAWMAKERS

(A Review of Congressional Opinion on the Rights of Minorities in the United States, February to July, 1945)

THE FAIR EMPLOMENT PRACTICE BILL

T. Millet Hand of New Jersey:

"Mr. Speaker, the very nature of Americanism is the protection of the vital rights of minorities both with respect to their political freedom, and their rights as individuals to live self-respecting lives. Among those important minorities are 13,000,000 Americans who are Negroes. Seven hundred thousand of them now serve in the armed forces, and millions are producing in our war plants. The future of these Americans depends largely on the wisdom with which we now act.

"I, for one, will welcome the opportunity to support the bill. I hope that history may record that the Seventy-ninth Congress was responsible for this great social advance in America." (February 23, 1945—In the House of Representatives)

Rankin of Mississippi:

"Mr. Speaker, on yesterday Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, 'using 22 pens', signed the so-called fair employment practice law, passed by the legislature of that State, which will go down in history as the greatest betrayal of the white Americans of New York that State has ever known.

". . . As I said on this floor some time ago, the white Gentiles of this country still have some rights left, and should be protected from the persecutions that they are now compelled to endure. If this drive continues unabated they will be driven entirely from the business world and from the professions, as well as from public life.

". . . This FEPC is a super-government, with more power for evil than any other agency that has ever been created in this country. If Congress should ratify it and make it the law of the land, then we will have sacrificed or destroyed that sacred freedom for which our brave men are now fighting and dying on every battlefront in the world.

"We have no right to pass such a drastic, revolutionary measure that literally changes our way of life, if not our form of government, while these boys are away from home in uniform, fighting to sustain American institutions.

"As I said before, we are going to carry this battle against un-American activities into every congressional district in the United States next year, in the primary, so that no one can crawl behind the party cloak and claim immunity at the hands of any segment of our people.

"This is a battle for the survival of free government, for the survival of the American way of life, for the survival of free enterprise, for the survival of American liberty itself.

"It is a battle to save America for Americans." (March 13, 1945—In the House of Representatives)

Charles M. LaFollette of Indiana:

". . . The proposed Federal legislation in the House (H.R.—2232) and in the other body (S.—101) to establish a permanent Fair Employment Practice Commission is designed, in my opinion, to extend the ethics upon which this country is established and in which we profess to believe, into the field of economic life and to thereby extend once more the idea that there must be full and equal opportunity in a democracy not only to vote, not only to participate in political life, and political activities, but to participate fully and without being subject to discrimination, which our Supreme Court has defined as "irrelevant and invidious" in reaching the fullest economic attainments which we offer to any citizen.

"I do not think that it is open to debate that we have not obtained this goal up to now in America.

"May I point out primarily that we are not attempting with this legislation to eliminate prejudice. Prejudice is something which sits in the inside of people. We are atempting to eliminate the outward effect to prejudice, which is discrimination.

". . . As a matter of fact, I am of the opinion, as many others are, that there is educational value inherent in the enforcement provisions of this legislation, that people will come closer together when they know there is behind a Federal agency, a power eventually to enforce action, to prohibit discrimination.

". . . It is not sufficient that legislation should be based upon sound moral or ethical grounds. In a democracy we cannot enforce ethical principles unless we find that they are legal or constitutional under our form of government. It is my opinion that this legislation very definitely is constitutional, because discrimination because of race, certainly, has heretofore been held by our Supreme Court to be an irrelevant and an invidious discrimination which the Court will not uphold." (April 23, 1945—In the House of Representatives)

Brooks Hays of Arkansas:

". . . While the Negro is acquiring and demonstrating fitness for more attractive types of employment he should recognize that it is not necessarily discrimination to regard him as unequal to the white workers in certain pursuits. He should also recall that he is regarded as excellent in certain trades even though most of them are humble ones." (April 23, 1945—In the House of Representatives)

Mary Norton of New Jersey:

". . . In simple language the bill prohibits discrimination in employment because of race, creed, color, national origin or ancestry. With the opening of the San Francisco Conference yesterday, we have the greatest opportunity to prove our sincerity to the world by adopting this bill. If we in America do not believe in this doctrine, our position at the San Francisco Conference would be impossible to explain. . . ." (April 27, 1945—In the House of Representatives)

Joe W. Ervin of North Carolina:

". . . It is my purpose to discuss the FEPC and to demonstrate that it would do more to Hitlerize and communize America than any other proposal now pending in Congress. . . .

". . . If the FEPC should force employers to accept Negro men for work in manufacturing plants where white women are now employed, it would have the effect of forcing the white women out of those manufacturing plants or of requiring them to work with fellow employees with whom they have not been accustomed to work. In this connection, it must be remembered that white women are employed in manufacturing plants in every state in the Union, and the white women working with Negro men would not be a sectional question.

"The Negro was brought to America from the darkest regions of Africa, where he had lived in savagery. He was brought to live among the best people of the world.

"The Negro's early stay in America gave him Christianity, and he is privileged to worship the one and only God in numerous churches which his white friends helped to build. Christianity gave him freedom. He not only enjoys personal freedom, but he has freedom in every other respect.

"I am speaking today for the alien who intends to seek American citizenship and also for the naturalized Americans who came here from their native lands to seek freedom and opportunity and who want us to preserve for them the American way of life; I am speaking today for the little Jewish boy or the little Jewish girl in the Southland who wish to grow up in that fine feeling of cooperation which now exists between southerners of all races, colors, and creeds. I am speaking for that Negro boy and that little Negro girl in the Southland who wish to grow up in that fine feeling of cooperation which now exists between southerners of all races, colors, and creeds. I am speaking for the dairymen of Wisconsin, who sell their milk and cheese in interstate commerce and are too busy milking cows and attending to their barnyard duties to be regimented by the FEPC. I am speaking for the cornhusker of Nebraska and Iowa. A man who cuts tops and pulls fodder and shucks corn has no time to be regimented by an FEPC examiner. (May 4, 1945—In the House of Representatives)

Robert F. Rich of Pennsylvania:

". . . I do not think we can enforce righteousnes upon the American people by legislation. I do not think we are going to help the colored people by legislation. I do not think we are going to help them as many of you would have us believe this bill is intended to do if you put FEPC on to it. I think it is only an illusion by some people to still further the interest of Communism in this country of ours. I do not want any of it. I think the Congress ought to be wide awake as to what they are doing here today." (July 5, 1945—In the Senate)

George E. Outland of California:

". . . Democracy is not simply a political creed; it is a way of life that encompasses all that we do and are and think. It is social, educational, and economic as well as political. Democracy means respect for the rights of the individual; it says that each person, regardless of his sex, his color, his religion, or his national background has certain inalienable rights which cannot be taken away from him by any human power. Moreover, it contemplates that there should be equality of opportunity to develop those abilities, talents, and capacities with which he has been endowed by the Almighty Creator. . . . It means exactly what I said, namely, equality of opportunity, without any barriers. Such barriers may be racial; they may be economic, such as cartels or monopolies; or they may take other form. Such barriers which stand in the way of the individual realizing his abilities are undemocratic, and it is the responsibility of the people's representatives in a democratic state to see that these barriers are minimized or eliminated altogether." (July 5, 1945—In the House of Representatives)

Theodore Bilbo of Mississippi:

"So far as the Jews are concerned, we have Jews in my State, and some of my best friends are Jews. I am a great admirer of the Jewish race. Jesus Christ was a Jew. But there is a certain class of "kike" Jews in New York, organized with the CIO and the Negroes in a drive to cram this piece of legislation down the throats of the American people. That is the point about it. That is the class to which I refer. What I am talking about is their perniciousness and officiousnes in trying to drive through this kind of fanatical legislation. There were forty or fifty of them down here from New York yesterday. To show that there is a dead cat on the line and a "nigger in the woodpile", while they were down here trying to get the Congress to pass this law, which would affect forty-eight States in the Union, New York had enacted a strong FEPC law. It went into effect July 1. If they like it, let them keep it. That is no concern of mine. But they have no right to try to cram it down the throats of the people of my state, or any other state. . . .

"Let me say this, and I will conclude. There are only about 13,000,000 Negroes in the United States, and 5,000,000 Jews. That makes the total of 18,000,000. There are 138,000,000 people in the United States, and 18,000,000 of them are trying to cram this damnable thing down the throats of 120,000,000 American people. I am speaking for 120,000,000 Americans." (July 6, 1945—In the Senate)

Ellis E. Patterson of California:

"Mr. Speaker, here in this Congress there are those who, in effect, would deny the right of any but white Protestants of American birth to live, to eat, to dwell in decent sanitary homes, to clothe themselves adequately. If ever any philosophy were un-American, this is it. This Nation's historic tradition, won in blood and reaffirmed in blood, is that it is a land for the many, not for the few. I regret that there are those in Congress who would deny this tradition.

"By opposing the Fair Employment Practice Committee, these men, under false guise of protecting the right of the employer to hire whom he wishes, or of preventing enforced social equality are in effect subverting a proud American tradition.

"These verbal guises mask the issue. The issue is that of equality of economic opportunity. The issue is that of a man's right to find employment commensurate with his ability, and without discrimination because of the color of his skin, his racial ancestry, the country his parents were born in or the manner of their worship. The issue is that of fairness to the American people—fairness, justice in permitting every man the right to earn a living.

"We do not want a caste system in America. Our American tradition glorifies the right of every human being to stand or fall on his own ability. To limit that right is to limit democracy, to limit Americanism and America. (July 12, 1945—In the House of Representatives)

William Dawson of Illinois:

"The right to work is the right to live. Take from me my right to work, take from me a job if I am capable and fitted for it, and you take from me the ability to raise a family, to buy a home, to educate my children, and to rear them according to American standards.

"There are those who cry out against changes. They want the old order to obtain. But every law that we pass brings about a change. Every law that we pass causes people to do something or not to do something. The right to a job is as dear to one as the right to property.

"We, the Negroes, are citizens of these United States and under our laws we are entitled to every right of citizenship. The right we are here talking about is the right of an American citizen to a job. There are those who talk about continuing to do things in the old way, and want to leave us as we were. But if you think that the Negro in the South—disfranchised, discriminated against—is satisfied, then you do not know the Negro citizens of America. We want the right to work out our salvation like every other American. That is all we are asking for ourselves—the same thing that every American citizen has the right to ask for. Certainly every American citizen is entitled to a job in this country of ours. This amendment should be passed and the funds for the continuance of the Fair Employment Practices Committee be provided." (July 12, 1945—In the House of Representatives)

Leonard A. Allen of Louisiana:

"Mr. Chairman, I am opposed to the FEPC in any form or in any amount. I am not willing to compromise or to give it one cent. It is communistic to the core, it is rotten, and I wan to bury it immediately." (July 12, 1945—In the House of Representatives)

Ned R. Healy of California:

". . . We have fought a bitter war to put an end to fascism not just in Europe, not just in Japan, but to the end in the whole world. Certainly we have lost that war if we are to refuse to accept the principle that some Americans do not have equal rights with others. If the color of a man's skin or his religious beliefs are to be a bar to his equality of opportunity in seeking and holding a job then surely the lives of hundreds of thousands of Americans have been lost in vain. . . ." (July 12, 1945—In the House of Representatives)

John M. Vorys of Ohio:

"Sooner or later Congress is going to have to deal with the central economic problem the FEPC is trying to solve. What about Negroes who cannot get jobs for which they are properly qualified, solely because of discrimination against their color? The overwhelming volume of cases that come before FEPC involve Negroes. That test, "properly qualified", is in the Norton bill. Shall those Negroes go on relief? All of us talk glibly about a "right to work". If that does not involve somewhere along the line a "duty to hire", it is a very hollow right. If a Negro has a right to work and no employer has an obligation to hire him for work which he is properly qualified, then does the Government have the duty to provide such work? Or does the Negro have a duty to go on relief? This is the problem involved in FEPC." (July 12, 1945—In the House of Representatives)

ON THE HEALTH OF AMERICAN NEGROES

Harold H. Burton of Ohio:

". . . I want, however, to address myself particularly to the health problem of Negroes in the United States. For the overwhelming majority of the colored race in this country, clinical and hospital care is, for all practical purposes non-existent. The few examples where good care can be had, found chiefly in the Northern urban centers, merely balance off the situation in the Southern rural communities where for the most part there is a total absence of medical facilities of any kind. For example, the Negro population of Mississippi is 1,074,578, yet in 1938 there were only 0.7 beds per thousand for Negroes. In this connection, after a careful study of hospital facilities for Negro patients for the years 1940-42, a responsible organization concluded that '. . . in some areas where the population is heavily Negro, there are as few as 75 beds set aside for over a million Negroes.'

"A great number of private hospitals completely exclude Negro patients. This is true even in many northern urban communities. Such private and public medical institutions that admit Negroes place heavy restrictions on the number of beds for Negro use. Moreover, they are invariably placed in segregated quarters inferior to those obtaining elsewhere in the same facility. With this overview, I advert to the situation obtaining in Mississippi. According to Harold F. Dorn, the beds per 1,000 whites were 2.1 as compared with 0.7 for Negroes. Although the number of beds required will vary with the type and prevalence of the disease, modern medical authorities set four beds per thousand as the minimum requirement for a well-cared-for community.

"The Negro not only suffers with the general population from the lack of a broad and adequate Federal health program but, as has been indicated, he is further victimized by practices of segregation and discrimination. How does this reflect itself in the general health of the Negro? By and large, it can be safely said that he suffers more from all sorts of diseases than white citizens. Current figures show that infant mortality for Negroes is 69 percent higher than for whites; that a Negro child born alive has an average life expectancy of 53 years as compared with a white child who may, in the normal course of things, expect to reach the age of 65.

"I am satisfied, from a medical standpoint, that these differentials in no wise reflect any innate susceptibility of the Negro to disease, but rather show the combined impact of discrimination in obtaining medical assistance. As one authority has put it, 'a white person who is ill, under existing racial provisions, has 14 times better a chance of recovering than a Negro.'

"In any discussion of the health of the Negro, it would be remiss not to touch on the status of the Negro physician, technician, and nurse. In 1944 there were 3,500 physicians in private practice, and 7,500 nurses and technicians. The net result is that in many southern hospitals, I regret to say, the attitude of white physicians toward Negro patients is one of indifference bordering on criminal neglect. A qualified Negro physician is denied staff and in-patient privileges in practically every non-Negro hospital in the United States. The limitation applies equally to Negro nurses and technicians. Moreover, the denial of staff privileges to the Negro medical profesion considerably lowers opportunities for training and specialization." (July 12, 1945—In the Senate)

NEGRO TROOPS IN COMBAT

Robert F. Wagner of New York:

"Mr. President, two weeks ago, on the floor of the Senate, a most unwarranted attack was made on the patriotism of our Negro soldiers, who compose one-twelfth of our Army, and who have served ably and heroically on every battlefront. In the course of his speech in opposition to the FEPC, the junior Senator from Mississippi (Mr. Eastland) asserted that the Negro soldiers were no good and that they had 'no initiative, no sense of responsibility, very low intelligence, and were a failure'. No evidence was offered in support of this astounding charge, but the Senator from Mississippi implied that his charges were based on information received from American generals, whom he did not name.

"Now, if there were any factual basis to these charges, certainly the War Department and the commanding generals of the Army would know about it. What are the facts? Let us see what those who are in the best position to know the facts have said about the performance of Negro soldiers.

(Quotes Under-Secretary of War Robert Patterson):

" 'No, if any high-ranking general has made such a statement, I have no knowledge of it. You have already heard views of our leading commanders—General Eisenhower, General MacArthur, General Eaker, and others—which do not support any such conclusion.

" 'The War Department is proud of its troops and that includes Negroes as well as all other groups. . . .' "

(Quotes General Eisenhower):

" 'I have many reports on their work where they have rendered very valuable contributions and some of them with the greatest enthusiasm.

" 'In November, when we were getting short of reinforcements, replacements, some 2,600 Negro soldiers volunteered for frontline service and they did good work. All my commanders reported that those volunteers did excellent work. . . .' "

(Quotes Lt. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, Chief of Staff of the Army Air Forces):

" 'The Ninety-ninth Fighter Squadron and other squadrons of the Three Hundred and Thirty-second Fighter Group have done well. They have carried out the missions assigned to them and they have destroyed enemy aircraft both in the air and on the ground. By their efforts and performance they have won a place on the great Air Forces team. They came on the hard way.' "

"It is unfortunate that the Senator from Mississippi (Mr. Eastland) did not consult the War Department of General Eisenhower or Lieutenant General Eaker before attempting to indict 13,000,000 American citizens." (July 12, 1945—In the Senate)

James M. Mead of New York:

"Mr. President, morale is a great factor in the winning of battles and in the waging of victorious warfare. I know no better way to enhance the morale factor than to give credit to the rank and file when credit is due. I know of perhaps nothing more destructive than to have a United States Senator rise on the floor of the Senate and speak in highly derogatory terms of the men who are baring their breasts and making the supreme sacrifice in the war in which this country is now engaged.

"Mr. President, while our colored troops are poised in the islands of the Pacific waiting to strike the death blow at our common enemy, it is untimely and inappropriate, and in my judgment very distasteful, for any Senator to make remarks on the floor of the Senate such as those made by the junior Senator from Mississippi, which were derogatory to the high standards and morale of those great troops.

(Quotes General Patton):

" 'The Negro tank battalion attached to my command fought bravely in the critical Battle of Bastogne. . . . The Negro soldiers were damn good soldiers, of which the Nation could be mighty proud."

(Quotes General Simpson):

" 'Colored soldiers were magnificent in the historic crossing of the Rhine and the devastation of the Ruhr Valley. The Thirty-fifth Infantry division and the 784th Tank Battalion were elements of the Ninth Army, and the teamwork of Negro and white personnel of the units comprised an unbeatable combination.' "

(Quotes Gen. Mark Clark, commander of the United States forces in Italy):

" 'The Ninety-second jumped into La Spezia, and with other Fifth Army units took Bologna. Then they moved into Genoa and took it, much to the surprise of the enemy headquarters. I needed the Ninety-second, and if anyone had tried to take it from me I would have protested loudly. . . . They were glorious.' "

"Mr. President . . . it was my privilege to visit various battlefronts throughout the world and to learn first-hand from the men who went into battle with Negro troops of the heroic way in which they carried out their mission. . . . that as a result of my own personal observation and as a result of the official records of the War Department, I feel that I have in a very humble way only discharged my obligation to this heroic segment of our great Army." (July 12, 1945—In the Senate)

THE NON-PROVINCIAL SOUTHERN PRESS

(Views of Southern Editors on Racial Issues which take account of local, national and world trends.)

"People of Virginia might just as well realize, with citizens of other states, that an effort is being made to abolish the segregation laws which for generations have kept the races separate on public transportation vehicles and at public meetings. . . .

"Pending now before the Virginia court of appeals are several cases which seek to challenge the constitutionality of the race separation law. . . . There are rumblings of similar efforts in other Southern states. Racial segregation is gradually crumbling away. Colored people sit with the white people in concert halls, colored people are in the dining cars of trains, there are 'incidents' on buses and the thin edge of the wedge of the removal of the discrimination as practiced since the days of the readjusters is being driven into the flank of the South. . . .

"The South will not like the elimination of a policy, if it is ordered and even if the South makes its objection known to the lifting of the barriers it is doubtful if it will be of any service because the South has had to surrender principles on strictly constitutional grounds ever since the New Deal cultivated the new freedoms.

"At the same time, it would be manifestly useless to be blind to the progressions which are taking place all around us and it would be stupid not to recognize the tendencies now abroad in the country." (Danville, Va., Bee, March 13, 1945)[1]

"'Negroes are all right in their place,' we hear so often. 'We want Negroes to have a chance but we don't want any intermingling with white people,' is heard quite as frequently.

"How then, is equal opportunity to be advanced to the Negro? How can we give lip service to freedom for all races, all religions and all peoples whilst resisting actual equality of opportunity for any minority group?

"There need be no dead herrings dragged across the pathway by shouting, 'Admission of Negroes to our institutions of higher learning means social equality, inter-marriage,' and a lot of other tommy-rot. That's bunk. We are either going to provide equal opportunity for Negroes in education and employment or we're not, and doing this doesn't even imply social equality or inter-marriage.

". . . There's much to overcome in making the United States the democracy each of us, as citizens, claims she is; but the greatest obstacle is our own hypocrisy; our own discriminatory attitude; our own revulsion to democracy that encompasses people of all races; our own unwillingness to accept Negroes as human beings rather than 'just Negroes' to whom we can dole out only as much equality as our smug, restricted souls desire." (Waynesboro, Va., News-Virginian, May 29, 1945)

"One might say on first thought that the FEPC has accomplished its purpose mainly because, since its creation, there has been more than enough employment for all who needed it or would take it. And there may be some truth in that, yet in the last two years the agency has received more than 8,000 complaints of discrimination and has disposed of all but 2,500. About 85 percent of the cases involved complaints of discrimination against Negroes and about 5 percent charged discrimination against Jews.

"Such complaints, or the incidents which cause them, are likely to increase as conditions move back toward normal. There will be gradual curtailment of war production and not so many jobs will be available for the working millions. In the growing competition for available jobs, pressure may be exerted upon many employers to practice discrimination against some classes of workers on account of race or color or religion.

"Such discrimination caused creation of the Fair Employment Practices Committee. It is out of place in this great Democracy where all men are supposed to have equality of opportunity, and the FEPC has done much toward its elimination. But that agency will expire the last of this month unless Congress gives it a new lease on life. Indications that it may be permitted to die hardly can be welcome to those who sincerely believe this should be a land where there is equality of opportunity for all, regardless of color or class, race or religion. Congress should save the FEPC." (Bristol, Va., Herald-Courier, June 6, 1942)[2]

". . . Must we assume that in the average community where Negroes are given what are termed 'white men's jobs', we Americans are to have the same sort of violence? If so, God help us, because we shall demonstrate that we have not sense enough to help ourselves. Victims of Negrophobia will froth, of course, at the assertion, but America cannot afford, on any basis, to keep the Negro as an unskilled laborer. In common decency and elementary justice, he must be given the opportunity of bettering himself economically. Can anyone justly challenge the principle of equal work and equal skill? If that does not imply equal opportunity, it means nothing." (Richmond, Va., News-Leader, August 3, 1944)[3]

[1]See Monthly Summary, April, p. 257.

[2]See Monthly Summary, May, p. 283; June, p. 316; July, p. 350.

"We wish to give our entire approval to the decision of Judge Almond in a fatal shooting case in which racial tensions were involved....

"For many years racial tensions have been increased when Negro families have moved into borderline areas or blocks hitherto inhabited only by white families. This is not the first instance of disorders growing out of such resentments. The community has done little or nothing to open new areas where Negro citizens could erect homes, or to cooperate in movements for providing adequate housing....

"Where two races live side by side, and are in some inevitable economic competition, tension and disorder can best be avoided by wise leadership, by impartial justice, by tolerance and by a sincere effort to understand and if possible to remedy the underlying causes of friction." (Roanoke, Va., World-News, September 16, 1944)[4]

"Ways and means of providing enough jobs to go around in the post-war economy are a matter of vital concern today. Many people are watching with interest the progress of a bill now before Congress to establish a permanent Fair Employment Practice Commission. For, as A. Philip Randolph, co-chairman of the national council for a permanent FEPC, said recently:

" 'The question of securing full employment is the most important one before us, but full employment is not necessarily fair employment. . . .'

"He is particularly concerned that all racial groups shall be given the right to use their best skills. Before the establishment of the FEPC, it was difficult for many, and particularly the Negro, to do so. He was obliged to take the job which no one else would do, regardless of his individual training and ability.

"There is much in what Mr. Randolph says. For, unless the Negro, the Indian, and other racial groups in similar position, are able to live on an equitable economic basis with so-called 'native white Americans', their resentment will cause continued and increasing unrest. A period of labor and racial strife here could undo the best-laid plans for peace and prosperity in the United States and in the world." (Raleigh, N. C., Times, March 14, 1945)

"A nation founded on democratic consent and now at war for democracy ought to have no difficulty in providing for 'the full and equitable participation of all workers in defense industries without discrimination because of race, creed, color or national origin.' Nevertheless the President's Committee on Fair Employment Practice is having some trouble in persuading labor unions and employers to live up to this reasonable ideal. In theory the Committee can force compliance under the war powers of the President. In practice it cannot. . . .

"No question of the social mingling of races is involved. The question is solely one of equal opportunity. We may hope that both employers and white workers will realize this simple truth, and that they will also realize that if opportunity can be denied to any group, for reasons of color, religion or national origin, no minority group's rights are safe. The principle of equal opportunity is not divisible. It ceases to exist if all do not have it." (Salisbury, N. C., Post, August 5, 1944)

"No section or region need be proud of bigotry, hatred or intolerance. But no section or region can pretend that it is entirely free of these animosities. If the pretense is abandoned, Americans together can postulate some workable theory or program. For prejudice, being blind, is blind in every direction. One prejudice cannot counteract another." (Asheville, N. C., Citizen, April 7, 1945)

"Most of the present Southern comment on the racial question misses the mark, we think, in assuming that the problem is solely one of segregation of the races. . . .

"In our opinion, this is at least an oversimplification of the problem. We don't believe in the first place that most Southerners fear a 'breakdown of segregation.' If any of them do, the fear is without justification. Segregation or social equality has very little to do with the racial question in the South at the present time. The terms have become a sort of shibboleth, and, as is usual with shibboleths, their use as such now is mainly as a substitute for thinking.

[3]Op. Cit; August-September (1945), p. 6.
[4]Op. Cit., November (1944), p. 94.

"The reason that segregation has little if anything to do with the racial question in the South at this time is that Negroes do not pine for a breakdown of segregation any more than white people yearn for social equality. Both races would agree, we think, that there ought not to be any breakdown of segregation in the South.

"But the Negro does want some other things that he is entitled to have. One of these is his right to the privileges of citizenship, which we deny him. Specifically, he is entitled to participate in his government by voting. The Constitution, as construed by the Supreme Court, gives him that right in unambiguous terms. So long as we deny it, directly or by devious subterfuge, we are treating him unjustly, and we know it. And social equality has nothing whatever to do with it.

"Another right the Negro is entitled to and wants is the right of opportunity for education. And that, too, we deny him. The facilities we afford the Negro for education are disgracefully inadequate and inequitable.

"We owe the Negro also an equitable apportionment of facilities for health and decent living. And we deny him that. Negro residence sections for the most part are notorious slums. Public services for the Negro population—water, sewers, hospitals, recreational facilities, and the like—in most places are virtually nonexistent.

"Frequently, also, we deny the Negro impartial justice in the courts. The theoretical presumption of innocence too often becomes an actual presumption of guilt if the defendant's skin happens to be black.

"And there is no such thing as equality of economic opportunity for the Negro. Condemned for the most part to be a hewer of wood and a drawer of water, because we deny him opportunity to develop his higher capacities, he gets less than a white man even for manual labor, merely because of the color of his cuticle.

"In our opinion, we repeat, the Negro, at least in the South, cares nothing for social equality, would not break down the barriers of segregation even if he could. But he does want to be treated as a human being and as a citizen. And such treatment is the least we can decently accord him. It is time for us to give him that and quit hiding behind a fancied fear of a breakdown of social segregation." (Macon, Ga., News, October 3, 1944)

". . . Separation as provided by law is for the best interests of both races, but . . . such separation was never meant to mean, as it too often means, discrimination against, and exploitation of, the Negro citizen.

"The law provides that segregation means equal facilities. Now comes the Urban League . . . with a report for the Atlanta Board of Education.

"It is factual, statistical. . . . It merely calls attention to one of our basic problems and reveals that we have not lived up to the duty imposed on us by segregation.

. . . In short, in almost every phase of educational opportunity the Negro child has not been treated fairly, nor has the requirement of the law been met.

"The cost would be great, but Atlanta searching its heart and conscience, cannot longer hide the fact of this discrimination and cannot further support it. A beginning should be made toward solving this, one of our great problems of justice and right, looking toward the improvement of our whole community." (Atlanta, Ga., Constitution, December 18, 1944)[5]

"The issue of free and equal opportunity in America has reached a proper forum. In their appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States for protection in their jobs, two Negro firemen on railroads in the South have challenged racial discrimination before a tribunal whose function is the enunciation of principle, serene and clear. . . .

". . . The rules of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, which are made the basis of its agreement with the railroads, define Negro firemen as 'non-promotable' workers, and by the dodge of writing into contracts with employers a restriction of employment of 'non-promotables' seek to eliminate Negroes from 'brotherhood' and from an economic chance which has been theirs by long tradition, and which should be sustained no less by American principle.

"The plain fact, then, is that the rules are intended to force Negro workers out of railway employment. This is a fact of discrimination. It is a fact of rivalry for jobs in which a majority seeks to win by sheer force of numbers over a helpless minority.

"A valuable contribution to the material of judgment comes from the Department of Justice, which suggests that the principle of majority rule in the Railway Labor Act ought to imply that the majority is obliged to represent also the interests of the minority, and to admit the latter into advantages which it has gained. Here is a point of solid ground on which the citadel of trade unionism must be built, if it is to stand against storms of protest that it is a structure in which cynicism, intolerance and force are dwellers." (Louisville, Ky., Courier-Journal, November 16, 1944)[6]

[5]Op. cit., January (1945), p. 157.

"The state penal institution at Pikeville, which bears the misleading name Tennessee Agricultural and Training School for Negro Boys, has not been a school in any constructive, educational sense of the word. . . .

"Actually it has been a sort of Devil's Island, to which young Negroes, convicted on a wide variety of counts from petty to serious offenses, could be sent and forgot. With the institution and its inmates isolated in a thinly populated section of the Cumberland Plateau, it was a case out of sight, out of mind. Only in its negative aspects, such as the absence of segregation of ages and classes of offenders, the lack of formal schooling and vocational training, and the failure to provide recreational facilities and direction, could the institution be considered a school—a school of crime.

". . . The citizens who pay the taxes for the maintenance of our institutions cannot but wonder why this festering sore should have continued so long untreated before action was impelled by two murders and a lynching.

". . . The new facilities under construction or in the planning stage and the reform of management ought to go a long way toward making the school in reality what its name implies, a character reform institution through education." (Nashville, Tenn., Tennessean, June 3, 1945)[7]

"Elsewhere in today's paper is an account of the start of an organization called Free White Americans, Inc., up at Jellico, Tenn. Its officials say that among its objectives are 'freedom from the forced mixing of the white race with other races,' and 'freedom' in the motion picture business from biased presentation of religious faiths.

"We do not challenge the sincerity of those behind this movement. But we do question their objectives, which are anti-democratic and restrictive.

"Like so many other groups which clamor for 'freedom' of one sort or another, what they seek is special privilege, not real freedom for everybody.

"The Jellico group, for instance, wants to classify humanity according to color. That's contrary to our conception of freedom. . . .

"After World War I this country was beset by many highly emotional orgainzations with warped ideas about liberty. . . .

"We hope the country isn't going to be exposed all over again to such misguided crusades." (Knoxville, Tenn., News-Sentinel, August 24, 1945)

"Fort Smith papers and radio carried lengthy reports last week of the arrest and conviction of a colored citizen who was fined for refusing to move back in a city bus when asked to do so by the driver.

"It seems that the culprit seated himself in front of the bus while seats were vacant in the rear, and that two white ladies were standing. Ordered to the rear by the driver the colored man 'used profanity' and refused to budge, according to the news stories.

"When the bus reached town the obstinate passenger was arrested, bilboed into court, and fined the maximum amount under Arkansas' Jim Crow law.

"Now we are not going into the 'merits' of the segregation laws in effect in all Southern states—not that we are timid but because this is just not the day we have set aside for butting our head against stone walls; we just want to make an observation and ask a question:

"We have ridden on many public conveyances on which white people sat in the rear seats and let colored people stand—AND we have seen this when seats to the front were vacant.

"Now the question: is there any record of a white person having been arrested for violation of the Jim Crow law? (As we have read the law, it applies equally to both colors when they intrude upon the section reserved for the other.)" (Fort Smith, Ark., The Labor-CIO-Journal)

FROM THE STUDENT PRESS OF THE SOUTH

'WHITE SUPREMACY' CAN'T EXIST IN DEMOCRACY

"When peace comes, the United States' calling card at the peace conference will be democracy. We will be one of the Big Powers at the peace table because we will have defeated the Germans and their Nordic supremacy, because Americans, white and black, yellow and brown, have made America a powerful nation.

[6]Op. cit., December (1944), p. 124; January (1945), p. 152.
[7]Op. cit., November (1944), p. 100; December (1944), p. 131; May (1945), p. 301.

"Yet what is the difference between 'Nordic supremacy' in Germany and 'white supremacy' in the South? In crumbling Germany we see the fate of 'Nordic supremacy'; southerners aboard the 'white supremacy' bandwagon are riding for a fall, simply because such an idea cannot live side by side with democracy. . . .

. . . The South cannot hope to wield its full share of political power so long as its spokesmen cling to antebellum ideas of 'white supremacy.'

"Political leaders often express certain views because they believe them favorable to the people who put them in office. But whether 'white supremacy' advocates speak from selfish motives or because they are so steeped in out-moded prejudices that they cannot see any other view, we blush to think that 'democratic' leaders representing a 'democratic' people, do not uphold and enforce the national constitution which is truly democratic.

"The idea of equal voting rights is not to lower voting standards to the level of illiterate Negroes, but to bring the less advanced Negroes up to meet the same requirements with which white voters must comply. This can be accomplished by a standard literacy test—not the sort of sham administered discriminatorily by politicians, but an impartial test given by competent officials (educators, for example), which examines a person's ability to vote, not the color of his skin. Thus the really good citizens of the Negro race would have a voice in the government, while the illiterates would have an incentive to come up to the literacy standards and prove their worth.

"Similarly, the South cannot have high educational standards so long as it keeps its Negro population poorly educated. Better and equal pay for teachers of both races—thus better teachers—is the first step. Compulsory education for white children is poorly enforced, and for Negroes it is practically nonexistent.

"These are the most elementary forms of simple justice and are largely legislative measures. But removal of fear and prejudice must come from the whole mass of people behind those who make the laws. Helping a race brought here through no wish of its own to adjust to our modern culture can be accomplished only by southerners, who know and understand the South.

"Whether the mass of southerners really knows the South as it is today is questionable. The war has changed the whole economic and political picture. The relationship with minority races cannot rock along as it has in the past. It will flare up into something terrible . . . unless southerners toss aside old prejudices and discriminations—fascistic ideas of 'white supremacy'—and guide it to a sane and just conclusion. The Negro is giving his life in battle, and he wants and deserves his just share in the democracy he is helping to defend." (Baton Rouge, La., Louisiana State University, The Summer Reveille, August 29, 1944)

LINCOLN'S JOB HALF-DONE

"When Lincoln freed the slaves, he undoubtedly hoped the Negroes would some day be accepted as equals, by the other colors of people in this country. Today we find the Negroes released from formal bondage, but not equalized.

"We believe and know that Negroes differ from other peoples only in surface characteristics; inherently all are the same. The Negroes should be recognized as equals in our minds and hearts. For us, this means that Nemade a lower score than whites on intelligence groes should attend William and Mary; they should go to our classes, participate in College functions, join the same clubs, be our roommates, pin the same classmates, and marry among us.

"However, this cannot and should not be done today, or tomorrow,—but perhaps the next day. Neither they nor we are ready for it yet. Only chaos such as the Southern states experienced during the Reconstruction would result if such a plan were initiated before both Negroes and others were educated for it. . . .

". . . Tests show that Negroes in this country made a lower score than whites on intelligence tests; they also show that Northerners, black and white, had higher scores than Southerners, black and white, and that Northern Negroes had higher scores than Southern whites. The differences did not occur because people were from the North or the South, or because they were white or black, but because of differences in income, education, cultural advantages, and other opportunities. Equal opportunities must therefore be offered to all peoples in all sections of the country.

"The most important work, however, must be done in educating ourselves away from the idea of White Supremacy, for this belief is as groundless as Hitler's Nordic Supremacy nonsense. We are injuring our personalities with arrogance; we are blocking our own emotional growth. Not until we eliminate Nazi race tactics in our own every-day life can we hope for a victory which will bring peace for the universal Human Race of the One World.

"Do you really want peace? Is your conscience clear?" (Williamsburg, Va., The Flat Hat, February 7, 1945) (PM, May 13, 1945)

THE FRONT PAGE

The war ended this month, but one could not determine that fact from the streamer headlines of the major Negro weeklies. Only one of the leading papers headlined that surrender in its national edition. The Norfolk Journal and Guide spread "War Ends as Japanese Surrender". Perhaps the event was ill-timed for the Negro weekly's deadline. It is a more rational conclusion, however, that the Negro press was being consistent in its new policy. It found in the problems of races, to paraphrase Shakespear's King Henry VII, "More pangs and fears than wars or women have." The news reported gave significance to the policy. In racial living, there was the usual drab side, some encouraging developments, and, as always, resolute expression of that which was desirable. The news and editorials of the month may be grouped in special categories—war news, full social participation, full employment, and the one-world-view.

The combat services of Negro troops in the Asiatic theatre provided good copy, which also included their capturing a high Japanese officer, the decoration of several heroes, and the transfer of Negro troops from the E.T.O. Chief war news copy concerned the atomic bomb, but not the devastation it wreaked. The Negro press featured in text and picture stories of the 179,000 Negroes who worked in the plants where this weapon was being manufactured. The number included scientists as well as laborers. Approximately 7,000 Negroes were said to have been employed at the Oak Ridge, Tennessee, plant where they had a church but no school (Afro-American). Scientists of color worked at Chicago and Columbia Universities and at other locations where the death-dealing Manhattan Project was being developed.

As the war ended a new type of war news made the front pages—alleged discrimination in discharge procedures, postponement of passages for Negro troops now overseas, withdrawal of Negro troops from combat units en route to the Pacific, the War Department's discontinuance of its racial attitude survey, and race riots in the famous 92nd Infantry. Most timely was the report that 52% of the Negro service men plan to leave the South when their war service is over. Significant meaning may be attached to these reports of the last days of the shooting war when they are read along with a featured headline in all the papers "Race Discrimination Ends—in Germany, Not America."

The home front news, directed as usual toward presenting both limits of the social participation pattern, was not altogether a pleasant one. Chief among the disturbing features was the Eastland-Bilbo criticism of the Negro soldier. The Afro-American featured stories of discrimination in the resort centers of the New Jersey coast. The reporter's experience was described as a Negro's guide on "How to Get Along in America". The drive to eliminate Jim Crow from organized baseball continued. The University of Illinois, providing no dormitory space for its Negro girl students, permits twenty of its Negro girls to live in six bedrooms of a "rundown sorority house." Two teenage Negro girls were raped by white policemen in Memphis. Negroes are discriminated against in the Washington, D. C., airport. Finally, in Alexandria, Virginia, a white woman was fined $100 for sitting in the Jim Crow section of a local bus.

However, there was favorable news, too. Florida got rid of its white primary. Negro teachers were appointed in Portland, Oregon, and are transferred from Negro schools to white schools in Trenton, New Jersey. The American College of Surgeons and the Institute of Mathematical Statistics lowered their racial bars and admit Negro members. A Canadian court ordered a Montreal hotel to end its Jim Crow practices. A Negro band leader won the legal right to live in a home he purchased in Los Angeles. And, in Philadelphia, two Episcopal congregations, one white, the other colored, merged under the pastorate of a colored rector. The Journal and Guide summarized the significance of these events, both favorable and unfavorable, in the story entitled "Our Troops Fought Hard for Victory". The Defender entitled one of its summary stories "War Sacrifices in Vain Without Equality-Leaders".

The chief news of the month concerned the employment prospects of Negro workers. In this problem the Negro press found no "ease after warre". The Courier made a survey of re-employment possibilities in mid-western centers and found them not too reassuring. "Critical" situations were found in St. Louis and California, "dark" ones in Pittsburgh, and good ones in Dayton, Cleveland, Youngstown and Detroit. As an over-all view the Courier believed that a "Job Famine May Sweep Nation." The Defender feared that 400,000 Negroes would be fired during the period of expected cutbacks. The Negro publishers continued to push for a permanent FEPC while their papers reported the presence of 40,000 colored West Indian workers in the United States, the forthcoming discharge of Negro workers in Southern shipyards, the shortage of 75,000 railroad workers, allegedly because of the discriminating hiring practices of the carriers, and, the fact that 1,300 Negro miners have left the West Virginia coal fields in the last two years. The Negro press is not too pleased over the employment prospects of Negro workers during the reconversion period.

The one-world of the Negro press is the world of color. As has been previously expressed in these columns, the war has tremendously increased the foreign news coverage of the Negro weekly. During the month there were special stories on the workers strike in Nigeria; the Simla Conference; an interview with M. Gandhi; the British colonies' faith in the Empire's Labour government; Mme. Eboue's decision to run for the office of Deputy from Gaudeloupe, where her late husband earned his basic reputation; Ethiopia's request to take part in the Italian peace parley; a border dispute between Ethiopia and Somaliland, and the flare-up between Senegalese troops and the French garrison at St. Raphael, Riviera. The American Negro press remains the chief conduit of world-color-news.

Apart from reporting the news, the Negro press saw fit to editorialize upon news and events of wider moment. The Afro had two front page editorials. One asked "Are We Prepared for Peace?" and indicated the futility of physical war. The other, "Who's Criminal, Anyhow?", suggested that Senator Eastland may be no less criminal in his castigation of Negro troops than is the army which fostered the Jim Crow arrangement. Editorially this paper maintained that the Japs were "Not as Dumb as We Think", that "Grounds for Desertion" may be found in President Truman's taking so many Southerners into the Nation's Executive Department, and queried on the rumor that Judge John J. Parker of North Carolina, was to be nominated for the U. S. Supreme Court—"Can Leopards Change Spots?"

The Chicago Defender, most politically militant of the Negro weeklies, carried significant editorials on "Now the Battle for Jobs", and, "Splitting the Atom of Race Hate." In other editorials the paper gave its blessing to New York's Councilman Ben Davis, who held and then lost the Tammany endorsement for re-election despite and because of his official Communist Party connections; told "The Truth About Haiti" with respect to the attempted assassination of President Lescot; and, discussed the British election and its aftermath in two editorials, "British Election Results a Lesson for U.S.", and "Churchill's Lament for the Wicked." The Defender has been a consistent and forthright editorial critic of Britain's war-time government's imperialistic policies.

The Journal and Guide carried three significant editorials on the employment situation: "The Peace and Jobs", "The Post-War Period and the Employment Situation", and "An Alarming Hindrance to our War Effort", which was a discussion of mining conditions in West Virginia. The editors attacked the Boston Globe for its "Nefarious Abuse of the Freedom of the Press" in the way it reported news about Negroes. The Journal and Guide also suggested "Let's Keep Our Powder Dry a While Longer"—"until we've really won this war . . . and be ready to use a few atomic bomb convincers to cool off the warned-about Samurai hotheads."

"Let Bilbo Stay" said the Courier, in an editorial comment upon the reaction of the nation to his undemocratic remarks. As the Mississippi Senator widens the social range of his rantings he incurs other enemies than Negroes—which is all to the good. This paper's editorials also discussed the wider social issues. They gave flowers to OPA, urged the building of 10,000,000 homes, called employment "America's No. 1 Task", opposed the Defender's defense of New York Councilman Ben Davis in "A Communist Plan", and commented upon a "Better Negro Press Service". It also discussed Britain's labor revolution, Churchill's defeat, and discrimination against Japanese Americans.

"Peace hath her victories no less renowned than war"—if they are fought for—might be called the Negro press' theme of the month. The Defender epitomized the theme with a poem by Langston Hughes, "Give Us Our Peace", the second stanza of which is:

"Give us a peace accepting every challenge—
The challenge of the poor, the black, of all denied,

The challenge of the vast colonial world
That long has had so little justice by its side."

ITEMS

Armed Services: The 969th Field Artillery battalion entered America's military hall of fame when they became the first Negro military group to be awarded the Presidential Distinguished Unit citation in honor of their heroic defense of Bastogne. (GP)

Jacksonville, Fla.: The second of a chain of Negro drug stores has been opened by William J. Smith. They are the only Negro chain drug stores in the city. (ANP, August 15, 1945)

Chicago, Ill.: Dr. U. G. Dailey, nationally known surgeon, has been notified of his election to active fellowship in the International College of Surgery, United States chapter. (ANP, August 20, 1945) . . . A teaching fellowship at New York University has been granted to Miss Jewel I. Plummer, brilliant 21-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frank V. Plummer. Miss Plummer has been in the graduate school of the University preparing for her M.S. degree. (ANP, August 1, 1945) . . . Gwendolyn Brooks, Chicago poet, has received praise from two of America's foremost authors, Richard Wright and William Rose Benet, for her individuality and technique in handling the race problem in her newly-published book, A Street in Bronzeville. (ANP, August 8, 1945) . . .

College Park, Md.: The University of Maryland extension service began a survey to determine economic and social status of Maryland's rural Negro families on August 15. The study will be completed by the end of 1946. (ANP, August 15, 1945)

Morristown, N. J.: Qualified Negro girls will be hired as switchboard operators by the Morristown Bell Telephone Company, William T. Ruffin, coordinator of the Morristown Service Council, a National Urban League cooperating agency, has announced. (ANP, August 15, 1945)

York, S. C.: Effective this school year, all teachers in York will be paid salaries in accordance with ratings attained under the state's new recertification plan, and not in accordance with race, Stanley N. Reeves, city superintendent of education, has announced. (ANP, August 29, 1945)

New York, N. Y.: Radio Station WNEW will launch a 13-week series of broadcasts sponsored by the New American Negro Theatre September 9. (ANP, August 22, 1945) . . .

OTHER PEOPLE'S MAIL

HOW TO MAKE A SOLDIER

(Portrait of a Commanding Officer Who Knows How to Handle Negro Troops)

FROM A NEGRO SOLDIER IN GERMANY:

". . . I am longing for the time when I can write one letter during my tenure in the service when I do not have any occasion for mentioning the fact that race cleavage is in evidence. Surely, that time has not yet come. In fact, instances are multiplying which show that the old South is definitely abroad. My mind is full of local instances today.

"This officer after making literally countless attempts to prove that all Negroes would rape, finally succeeded in building up an airtight case. He promised to give up a trip home if he could make the culprits hang. He told them that he had them and that he would personally see that they paid the penalty for violating a white woman. He intimidated witnesses, disregarded exonerating testimony—stopped at nothing to make his dream come true. Then, just when it seemed that all was well, something happened from without. He was removed as investigating officer, transferred from the unit and sent to another Negro unit where his invaluable experience in handling Negro troops could be utilized. He was there exactly two days and had so declared himself that he was transferred again. Meanwhile, his charges whom he had so well incriminated came up to trial for their lives. He made a special trip to be there to see the job well done—to lend any assistance necessary. When called upon to testify, he showed such marked prejudicial leanings that his testimony was thrown out. This led to the questioning of the methods that had been used in gathering the information that had incriminated the accused men. This was so damaging to his case that it seemed to fall through of its own weight in bias. But this officer was shrewd. He knew the weaknesses of whites where Negroes are concerned. As his ace in the hole, he exhibited the tattered underwear of the victim, and was in the process of making an emotional appeal guaranteed to bring results, but he was stopped. The defense attorney objected and was upheld. This officer and his exhibit were both put out of the room—excluded from the case. That man was one of our leaders for the duration of our term of combat in this theater, and was chosen for us because 'he knew how to handle Negroes'. . . . Yes, he came from Georgia, and has said more than once that the facts of science notwithstanding nobody could make him think that the Negro was his equal. P.S. The men were freed.

* * * * *

"This man delights in saying to his charges that 'You know that you have two strikes on you'—'Why don't you accept what comes your way and stop all of this howling about discrimination?' He likes to remind us how good a friend the white man is of us if we will just not press the issue, and try to go with white women. . . . This man told the German mayor to tell the German women not to have anything to do with Negro soldiers—that they were diseased, perverted and incorrigible sex fiends. This man took his troops out into the field where they could be together—easier to handle. He says that Negroes are not capable of having responsibility—that they just fail to meet the bill when it comes to being officers. Oh, yes, he is an authority on Negroes—'well qualified to handle Negro troops in a supervisory capacity'.

* * * * *

"This officer told Negroes who reported to him for special duty that they could wash their mess gear anywhere they chose other than the place where the whites washed theirs. They were not to sleep in the same building where the whites slept. They were not to bathe in the same place as the whites. He was sorry that this was the case, but there was nothing he could do about it. (He was the commanding officer and he made the rule.)

* * * * *

"The Rest Center Director in this area told some Negro prospective restees to go back to their units because no provisions had been made for Negro troops. Perhaps we are not supposed to tire.

* * * * *

". . . (A friend) and I were the recipients of some of the more subtle aspects of the Policy in connection with our applications for direct commissions. We were interviewed (at least I was) after the Highest headquarters over here had said that we met the qualifications. . . . (They kept) asking questions until there is something that you have not had. Then, that deficiency becomes the determinant of whether you are fit for appointment. I had not had prolonged experience in eliciting materials from psychiatric subjects. Consequently, it was not deemed advisable to appoint me directly."

EDUCATION AND THE SOCIAL PROCESS

(The following are some reactions to an article appraising the present state of race relations in the United States:)

From a former member of the Illinois senate, now in the Philippines:

. . . I am an enlisted man in the Marine Corps by choice and have had the opportunity to observe the reactions of the cross-section of American youth in all the fighting forces, and I'm of the opinion that unless the able minds of those men and women of fine character who are concerned with the social problems and some of the remedies suggested to remedy them are given more support by those in power much for which we are fighting will be lost. . . .

From "A Southerner" who does not sign his name:

. . . The trouble with you and your Northern friends is you have discarded the Bible and are trying to reverse God's plans. The Creator placed the black man in Africa and gave him a thick skull in order to be able to brook that equatorial climate. Our forefathers (some of them) made the mistake of bringing them to American soil. It should be corrected by returning them to their God-given home. There will never be peace between the white and black man, when or so long as they attempt to live side by side. His thick lips, flat nose, easy tendency to lie and steal makes him repulsive to a decent white man, that is, when the black man is asking for social equality. . . .

From a Southerener (a lieutenant overseas) who signs his name:

. . . I am a Texan-Southern-raised in the midst of all the labor on race relations. I have always rebelled at the thought of status-quo for black, brown or red peoples. Your article, from its unbiased standpoint, will do more to add recruits to the sensible study of racial relations than anything else. . . .

This one is signed, on a letter head displaying the stars and stripes, and the American eagle:

. . . No doubt you are perfectly sincere, but you don't know them (the Negroes). They are biological freaks. They are the sons of liars and thieves and hate the white race. . . . I am putting it very mildly when I say they are liars and thieves. They have no redeeming features whatsoever. They came from the jungle only 100 years ago and their background and mentality are inherited from their jungle ancestors who lived there thousands of years. . . .

From a lady in Michigan:

. . . The balance is more favorable than I had realized. I am particularly glad that Detroit has to some extent redeemed its reputation through not only the action of churches and other groups but in city-wide traffic, etc. I spent some weeks there last October and found Negroes as motormen and conductors handling the situation competently. Furthermore the passengers appeared to be nearly one-third Negroes, and all that I saw made a good impression as to appearance, dress, manners. They were neither aggresive nor timid. . . . If they were recently from the South (as many must have been, within two or three years) they have certainly made progress as citizens. . . .

From St. Louis:

. . . I was very much impressed by the good in the article and appalled by the following paragraphs: "Other Americans fighting for the status quo are determined that the Negro shall 'stay in his place' "; "A Negro in Mississippi was tortured and murdered because he refused to sell his farm to a white man". . . . I would say that news of this nature may cause the ignorant Negro (sic) to get up in arms and make him hate the white man instead of uplifting him as you seem to think. I believe news of this sort shouldn't be published for the ignorant class to read or hear about. It may cause him to get a chip on his shoulder and dare some white man to knock it off.

From a Kentuckian, a Pfc., stationed in North Carolina:

. . . The question of raising the Negro (sic) race can never be accomplished by writers, lecturers and race baiters, it is something that the Negro will have to do himself. White man never attained the heights to which he has risen through societies and trouble makers. . . . There is no doubt in my mind that some if not all the things in your article are true but like all Southerners I see no need for people to get excited over such things since those kind of things are practiced openly by labor unions among whites on whites. . . .

From another Kentuckian stationed overseas:

May I say this, not as a Negro sailor, but as a Negro.

. . . We have seen the country and the world. Coming back from such sights, we will never again fit into serfdom or second-class status. I'm just a service man, to be exact an Electrician's Mate 2d class. . . . I'd sure like to meet you in person. . . . Keep up the good work. . . ."

THE NEW FACE OF THE KKK

From an Agent of an Agricultural Organization:

"For quite some time I have heard reports about the organization, in certain sections of the South, of what is commonly called the home guard. Week before last I made it a point to visit Lake Providence, La., where I had been told there was a strong organization. The report is true, for I watched them march on the court house lawn and through the streets of the town, dressed in khaki uniform, with rifles. When they passed me I had the same feeling I had when I was quite a youngster and watched the Ku Klux Klan march by our door one evening. I sought in vain to find out what the purpose of the organization could be, even asking one of the town officials. Nobody seems to know, or if they do, they won't divulge. Negroes say it is to keep them in their places after the war."

BUS TRAVEL AND THE RACIAL ETIQUTTE

From a Government Worker stationed in the Southwest:

"Believe it or not, but do you know it has almost gotten to the place in the states of Arkansas, Louisiana, and Mississippi that Negroes are not taken on busses? For a long time only that long back seat was reserved for Negroes, but now, and especially in the smaller places, if a white passenger happens to get on that seat first that means that no Negroes are taken but told to wait for the next bus. In many instances I have talked with Negroes who had been trying to get a bus for two days. . . . I do wish this information could get in the hands of the officials of these bus companies. I guess you ask why I don't do it. Well, to tell you the truth . . . right now my hands are tied. Our agency has grown to be strictly conservative in every aspect, and were it known that I interceded in any way in helping to bring about better opportunities for Negroes (it) would mean death for me in this job. That may be hard to believe, but it is true. We are really fighting the odds now, and almost everything you do and say is questioned."

THE MAN FROM MARS IS STUMPED

The Man from Mars dropped in to see me today. He was disturbed. . . .

"I don't understand this Negro business. While I was waiting for the bus, I saw a fellow reading the ASTROPHYSICAL JOURNAL. He had a Phi Beta Kappa key. I scraped an acquaintance. He said he was a Harvard Sc. D. I invited him into the drug store for a drink. He said the only way he could get a drink there was in a paper cup to take out. I don't see the difference between standing beside a Negro in an elevator and in a theatre. If a Negro in a restaurant has a hat in his hand, it is wrong; but it's all right if he has a tray. He can't live in a room next to you in a hotel; but the black cook can live in the back room in your house. If he paints your front porch the police stop him; but if he sweeps it, no one objects. A Negro woman can hold your baby, wash it and even wet-nurse it, but your baby and hers can't play together in the yard. If the AME minister and a Negro doctor confer around a table with the mayor and city manager on politics, that is good citizenship. But if they talk about Spinoza, that leads to race riots. Living across the street from a Negro violates traditions, unless the boundary line of the Negro section runs down the middle of the street. To call a Negro 'mister' is tearing down society, but it helps good feeling to call him 'doctor' or 'professor'. If you write to a man and call him 'dear sir' and later learn that he is a Negro, all you can do is hang yourself."

"We Southerners have to preserve white supremacy," I said. "We are opposed to anything which will tend to promote race equality."

He nodded. "That makes it clearer," he said, "but where do the mulatoes come from?" (Miami, Fla., First Unitarian News Letter)

THE NEGRO DAILY

(Based upon an analysis of twenty-three isssues of the ATLANTA DAILY WORLD during the period July 4 to August 5, 1945)

There are approximately 1800 daily newspapers published in the United States but only one of these is a Negro paper—the Atlanta Daily World, a paper of six or eight pages. Strictly speaking, the World is not a daily, for it is "published every morning except Monday." However, if the term daily can be applied to PM and the New York Post, each having similar one day recesses, the World may well use the term, especially so since the war induced this curtailment.

Despite repeated attempts to launch Negro dailies, with the exception of the World, they have regularly failed. The Atlanta Daily World is the parent paper of the Scott Newspaper Syndicate, which represents an affiliation of two semi-weeklies, the Memphis World and the Birmingham World, and twelve weeklies. The World has a circulation daily and weekly of approximately 25,000 copies. The combined circulation of all of the Scott Newspaper Syndicate papers is approximately 75,000, according to the General Manager and Editor, C. A. Scott.

The Atlanta World was founded as a weekly in August, 1928. Two years later it became a semi-weekly. Early in 1931, the Southern Newspaper Syndicate was formed as an outgrowth of the paper's widening circulation. Semi-weeklies were established in Birmingham, Columbus, (Georgia), and Chattanooga. During that year these papers became tri-weeklies, publishing a full page of comics by Negro artists and later issuing the first and only rotogravure section to appear in a Negro paper.

The Atlanta World became the Atlanta Daily World some thirteen years ago, publishing five weekly editions and one Sunday edition weekly for six weeks when it became a seven-day daily, the only Negro newspaper so published anywhere in the world. On February 1, 1934, it was admitted to membership in the Audit Bureau of Circulation. Meanwhile, several additional Negro weeklies were added to the Syndicate, which then became known as the Scott Newspaper Syndicate.

The World, as it is locally known, publishes "News while it is news", according to its masthead. Like the Negro weekly it is a special pleader for human rights, and does not protest too much on local issues and news, but on general issues, politics and news from distant points. Banner headlines feature most of its issues. During the period under observation only five issues did not carry these across-the-paper streamers. The eighteen headlines so featured were:

SOLDIERS WIN FREEDOM IN COURT-MARTIAL CASE

40 HEROES OF TANK BATTLES GET DECORATIONS

WAR UNDERSECRETARY PATTERSON REFUTES SENATOR EASTLAND

SERVICE GI JOBS CAN'T WAIT, SOMERVELL (SIC) SAYS

AMERICAN VETERANS PROTEST EASTLAND SLUR

VOTE 250,000 TO EXTEND LIFE OF FEPC 1 YEAR

FACTIONALISM SEALS DOOM OF SIMLA MEETING

SOLDIERS MAKE TRUCKS ONE OF ARMY'S BEST WEAPONS

VICTORY OVER JAPAN EYED AS "BIG THREE" MEET

N.A.A.C.P. HOLDS UP APPROVAL OF PAN-AFRICAN MEETING

FEPC PLANS CURTAILED OPERATIONS

FEPC PERSONNEL SLASHED FROM 117 TO 51

CITIZENS HIT BIAS AT SAN DIEGO NAVAL BASE

FLORIDA NEGROES WIN RIGHT TO VOTE IN PRIMARY

"No Profit in Discrimination," Newsmen Told

Six "Intrepid" Gunners Get Bronze Star

N.A.A.C.P. Studies Michigan Housing Decision

Immediate Impeachment of Senator Bilbo Urged

Though the City Edition of this paper was the one analyzed, not one local issue was regarded as worthy of a featured headline. All of them dealt with problems peculiar to minority people's adjustment.

Front page news in the one Negro daily is usually composed of news stories accredited either to the Associated Negro Press or the Scott Newspaper Syndicate. Each issue carries approximately twelve front page stories. In three of the issues analyzed there were no local news stories on the front page. Five issues had one story; eight issues carried two, four issues carried three, and three issues carried four local stories on the front page. Except for local news hereinafter mentioned the remainder of the news does not differ from that found in the Negro weekly.

It need not to be concluded, however, that the Atlanta Daily World shies away from local news. To the contrary it is in open competition with two dailies, the Atlanta Constitution and the Atlanta Journal which report enough news of city-wide or cultural importance to appease the average resident. Beyond this point the Negro daily must and does go. First of all, the World has achieved some journalistic eminence because of its crusade against intra-racial and inter-racial homicides. By August 5, the number of such killings for 1945 had reached thirty-seven. The number is boxed in each story on the subject. The major problem, of course, is that of intra-racial homicides. This problem, the paper has suggested, should be met with strict justice and less leniency by the local courts, and with the employment of Negro policemen.

In the second place, the editorial policy of the World is one of political-mindedness. It has been a strong advocate of political rights programs and has taken a steady stand upon and plodding approach to securing full citizenship rights for Negroes in Georgia. It carried several stories on Georgia's new constitution in the issues studied and published a front-page editorial urging its endorsement and adoption at the August election. Furthermore, the World champions many of the steps being taken to secure these aforementioned rights and takes mild issue with local and state-wide political officeholders who do not recognize this differential in Georgia democracy.

The paper's editorial policy is partly reflected in the nature of its editorials. The issues studied carried thirty-two editorials in addition to the squibs known as "Sentence Thoughts". The most aggressive one was reprinted from the Lighthouse and Informer of Columbia, South Carolina, a member paper of SNS, whose editors organized South Carolina's Progressive Democratic Party, and challenged the White Democratic Primary in that state. This editorial commented upon Senator Eastland's vituperative remarks on Negro soldiers. It was entitled "Wicked, Warped, Adder-Tongued." The World commented upon articles and editorials appearing in the American and Colliers magazines, the New York Herald Tribune, the Christian Herald, the New Republic and the Negro Digest. It belabored the Georgia Board of Regents because it gave so little money for Negro education in one editorial and complimented the Board on its scholarship fund providing aid for out-of-state study for Negroes in another. In other editorials the paper discussed Mrs. Roosevelt, the coal industry, public vs. private utilities, liquor licenses in Alabama, the FEPC, the Navy's program of racial integration, inflation, war travel,

Negro health, southern politics and Negro migration. Saturday's editorials were usually columns of intelligent comments by a local minister entitled "From My Study Window." Three times during the month appeared signed and syndicated jejune editorials on such subjects as "The Music of Democracy," "The Mountains of the Heart," and, "Rights Imply Responsibilities."

Five types of news, carried by the Atlanta World, feed the interests of the Atlanta Negro community—"Personals," "Among the Clubs", "Social Swirl", and church and sport news. The Negro community is a very personal and intimate one at its various class levels. The community daily, the "white press", carries personal items on Negroes only when they are dead and these in paid advertisements of the undertakers. The Negro daily tells when the "West Side Rose Bud Club", the "Habersham Social Club", the "Rhythm Stepping Social and Saving Club", the "Ten Jiving Victorettes", "The Domestic Circle" and some score of other clubs will meet. It also carries intimate squibs on personalities in the community in a column "What Sam of Auburn Avenue Says." For the middle-class, "society"-minded there is the semi-weekly column, "Social Swirl", in which weddings, bridge parties, receptions, benefits, luncheons, and dinners, all involving from three to three-hundred or more guests are described in detail, sometimes ad nauseum. The society column is in reality the most revealing section of the Negro newspaper. The World's is no exception. The column is written in several styles. Sometimes the "It is" and "It was" lead of the syndicated gossip columnist is employed. At various times the comments remind one of a Walter Winchell or a Louella Parsons or a Cholly Knickerbocker. Socially—in the broadest sense—too, it is important. Where else could one report the Negro communities "gay round of bridge all day long" or "Belated Stork News."

The Negro service man is not mentioned in the regular Atlanta dailies save in some special dispatch of unusual military importance. The World, however, carries news and pictures of Atlanta's Negro service men in each issue, telling where they are, what services they have performed, their promotions, and who are their "loved ones" at home. Many of these pictures and notices appear on or about the time of the warrior's birthday or wedding anniversary. His relatives or friends extend greetings through the Atlanta Daily World.

News of the Negro's church is a regular part of the Negro daily's news. Not only are there columns by ministers—"From My Study Window", "Common Sense Religion", but news of the several churches and their pastors is carried with a regularity that indicates the tremendous social importance of the church in the Negro community.

Negro Atlanta has three college football and basket-ball teams, a golf club, a professional baseball team, and several sports aggregations, including high school teams. The World regularly reports the competitive events of these teams, events which may or may not be reported in the larger dailies.

Features in the Negro community's one daily newspaper are varied. There are such nationally syndicated columns as "Uncovering Washington", "Plain Talk" and "Between the Lines", and others by local commentators which include an intelligent think-piece by a World staff member, William A. Fowlkes, entitled "Seeing and Saying". In addition there are puzzles, syndicated stories of the romantic type, comics, and cartoons. The issues analyzed carried fifty-seven pictures on their front pages, thirty of which were official releases of the war agencies and the American Red Cross. There is a cartoon character "Joshua Jones" who gives a daily saying such as "Brother Bell says while an old man tries romance, a young honey eyes finance." The caricature of Joshua Jones would provoke strong racial protests if it appeared in a white daily. He is a dressed-up version of the too-well-known "Hambone" who "meditates".

Advertisements in the World are varied and interesting. There are, of course, the usual ads typical of the Negro press which promote the sale of drape model slacks, bust cream, love drops, diamonds for $10.90 plus tax, love powder, palmistry, occult readings, and cures for "any pain". In addition to these there are display advertisements by several national concerns including Coca-Cola and Pepsi-Cola. Negro schools advertise in the paper's columns as do some of the local merchants who may carry from one-half to full-page display advertising. The local utilities, the telephone company, publishers, movie distributors, grocers, all carry regular and special advertisements, some of which use Negro subjects. Negro advertisers, featuring special events and entertaining of various sorts, purchase an ordinate amount of space. One interesting advertisement of a Negro druggist read "Our store will be closed for vacation for all employees beginning Monday, August 6th through Sunday, August 12th.'"

The World provides interesting material for speculation on local labor market problems. When the War Manpower Commission and FEPC ruled that advertisements for labor which specified race, color or religion were viewed as evidence of discriminatory hiring practices, the existence of a Negro daily provided a way out —the employer and the United States Employment Service advertised in the Atlanta Daily World and achieved their ends. Meanwhile the paper's "Classified Advertisements" indicated what had happened in the employment of Negro workers. Household employees were offered $15.00 and more a week, day cleaners $4.00 a day, shipping clerks $30.00 weekly. Other advertisements called for bakers, painters, teachers, all of whom were offered wages and conditions of employment far above the usual ones prevailing in this region.

Gunnar Myrdal in his An American Dilemma concluded that "What happens to Negroes will continue to have a relatively low 'news value' to white people, and even the most well-meaning editor will have to stop far short of what Negroes demand if he wants to satisfy his white public." So long as this is so, and so long as the local racial "proletariat" and "bourgeoisie" find a Negro daily an appropriate vehicle for widening and binding their worlds, just that long will there be a World.

Meanwhile, it would be hoped that the one Negro daily could become as significant a group paper as New York's Jewish Daily Forward, a paper, which according to Oswald Garrison Villard in The Disappearing Daily has made profits totalling $3,000,000 in the last twenty years. The Forward was established in 1897 in New York; the World in 1932 in Georgia. The Forward is a non-profit-making daily; the World is profit-making. The Forward has hundreds of employees; the World has forty-five. The Forward has a minimum potential market of 4,500,000; the World, 13,000,000. "The men who write the Forward," says Villard, "are members of no Rotary Club and no Chamber of Commerce, and they belong to no social organization on Fifth Avenue. But whatever their faults, and however changed their points of view, they are Americans to the core; they have taught great masses of our working men how to stay organized and how to lift themselves up and thereby to lift up the whole standard of American living. To multitudes they have brought hope and inspiration and courage in times that are the worst possible for men and women of their faith."

SOUTHERN CONTROVERSY

"The Jackson Advocate, a Negro newspaper published on Farish Street with Percy Greene as editor, is quite indignant over President Truman's appointment of Tom Clark. . . .

". . . His editorial on the subject has this paragraph:

'The outspoken refusal of the states of the South to abide by the decision of the highest court of the land, the United States Supreme Court, outlawing the White Primary and giving to the qualified Negro citizen the right to vote; the failure of the states of the South to provide equal educational opportunities for Negro citizens in accordance with provisions of their own state constitutions reaffirmed by the decision in the Gaines case rendered by the highest court of the land; the impossibility to obtain appropriate action in certain areas of crime and human relations in state and Federal courts in the South; the ineffectiveness of certain Federal directives and laws in their operating in the South, are only a few instances and conditions retarding the general outlook and progress, as well as Negro progress in the South, as a result of its tradition of illegality.'

"That's the sort of stuff that is being spewed out to the Negroes of Jackson by Percy Greene.

"If we ever have a racial trouble in Jackson —and here's hoping we never will—Percy Greene is going to be in the middle of it, and what happens to Percy won't contribute much to his health or well-being." (Jackson, Miss., Daily News, June 17, 1945)

* * * * *

"To Major Frederick Sullens, Editor, Jackson (Miss.) Daily News: (From a Negro citizens group)

We, as law-abiding, peace-loving citizens of Jackson, Miss., wish to make a statement in the form of an open letter to you with reference to your editorial . . . in which you severely criticized Editor Percy Greene . . . for exercising his constitutional rights as a free man, in a free country—the rights of speech and freedom of the press.

As we understand it, we live in a country where the most humble citizen is privileged to criticize the official acts of any public officer, from the President down, when in his opinion, such acts may be against the best interest of the people.

. . . We want to ask you, Mr. Sullens, do you believe that the colored people of Jackson are so stupid as to be unable to recognize the unfair, discriminatory practices of the South against us when we meet them, and would, therefore, remain grossly ignorant of the facts, if they are not 'spewed out' 'to us by Percy Greene? If you do entertain such a thought, it will serve as sufficient evidence that you need to become acquainted with the colored people, not only in Jackson, but, throughout the state. Every intelligent, self-respecting colored citizen resents such an implication. . . .

We remember your bitter editorial on the meeting held at Jackson College a few months ago by newspaper men and outstanding educators representing thirteen southern states for the purpose of discussing steps to be taken for the implementation of the Supreme Court decision handed down in the Lloyd Gaines case. This meeting got its authority from the bill of rights—the right to peaceably assemble to discuss questions of public interest. Would you attempt to annul this right?

We remember numerous other editorials dropped from the point of your pen, which were equally as bitter. But, you were exercising the right of freedom of the press. What kind of law is that which would guarantee freedom to one part of the press while withholding it from the other? Are we being called upon to sacrifice our time, our energy, our monies, and our sons upon the altar of foreign battlefields for a freedom so one-sided as this? God forbid!

We cannot close this letter without making a brief comment on the last paragraph of your scorching editorial . . . of June 17. . . .

. . . (It) is a dangerous utterance. It makes us seriously doubt the sincerity of your hoping that there will be no racial trouble in Jackson, when this hoping is immediately followed by what appears to be a direct invitation to mob violence. . . ."

* * * * *

"Editor's Note: The Daily News has never, at any time, written a bitter editorial on the race question. Quite to the contrary, our editorial policy on this subject for more than fifty years has had the one purpose of maintaining friendly relations between the races and giving to the Negro a helping hand whenever it was proper to do so.

As for the above 'testimonial' in behalf of Percy Greene, the Daily News frankly regards him as a strife breeder and reiterates, with all possible emphasis, this admonition in our editorial of June 17th: 'If we ever have a racial trouble in Jackson—and here's hoping we never will—Percy Greene is going to be in the middle of it and what happens to Percy won't contribute much to his health or well-being.'

That also goes for the politically-minded Negroes who rushed to Percy Greene's defense by signing the above communication." (Jackson, Miss., Daily News, July 15, 1945)

BOOKS BY AND ABOUT NEGROES—1944-1945*

AFRICA

AFRICAN JOURNEY. By Eslanda Goode Robeson. New York, John Day, 1945. $3.50.

CONGO. By John LaTouche. Photographed by Andre Cauvin. New York, Willow, White and Company, 1945. $3.75.

WITHOUT BITTERNESS. By A. A. Nwafor Orizu. New York, Creative Age Press, 1944.

BIOGRAPHY

BLACK BOY. By Richard Wright. New York, Harper and Brothers, 1945. $2.50.

CITIZEN TOUSSAINT. By Ralph Korngold. Boston, Little, Brown and Company, 1944. $3.00.

CURRENT BIOGRAPHY, 1944. Published by the H. W. Wilson Company.

MEN OF POPULAR MUSIC. By David Ewen. Chicago, Ziff-Davis Publishing House, 1945.

NEGRO CATHOLIC WRITERS. By Sister Mary Anthony Scally. Detroit, Walter Romig and Company, 1945.

EDUCATION

BUILD TOGETHER AMERICANS. By Rachel Davis DuBois. New York, Hinds, Hayden and Eldridge, 1945. $2.00.

THE STORY OF THE SPRINGFIELD PLAN. By Clarence I. Chatton and Alice L. Halligan. New York, Barnes and Noble, 1945. $2.75.

YOUR SCHOOLS: YOUR CHILDREN. By Marie Syrkin. New York, L. B. Fischer, 1944. $2.50.

FICTION

THE WINDS OF FEAR. By Hodding Carter. New York, Farrar and Rinehart, 1944. $2.50.

SOME OF MY BEST FRIENDS ARE SOLDIERS. By Margaret Halsey. New York, Simon and Schuster, 1944. $2.50.

WINDS BLOW GENTLY. By Ronald Kirkbridge. New York, Frederick Fell, 1945. $2.50.

SWING LOW. By Edwin A. Peeples. Boston, Houghton Mifflin Company, 1945. $2.50.

MY HAPPY DAYS. By Jane Dabney Shackelford. Washington, D. C., the Associated Publishers, 1945. $2.15.

HISTORY

CAPITALISM AND SLAVERY. By Eric Williams. Chapel Hill, the University of North Carolina Press, 1944. $3.00.

THE NEGRO IN THE ARMED FORCES. By Seymour J. Schoenfeld. Washington, D. C., the Associated Publishers, 1945. $1.00.

NEGRO MAKERS OF HISTORY. By Carter G. Woodson. (Revised edition) Washington, D. C., the Associated Publishers, 1945. $2.15.

MUSIC

UNSUNG AMERICANS SUNG. Edited by W. C. Handy. New York, Handy Brothers Music Company, 1944. $3.50.

POETRY

A STREET IN BRONZEVILLE. By Gwendolyn Brooks. New York, Harper and Brothers, 1945.

PICTORIAL

THE NEGRO IN AMERICAN LIFE. Edited by John Becker. New York, Julian Messner, Inc., 1944. $1.00.

THE SPRINGFIELD PLAN. By Alexander Alland and James Waterman Wise. New York, The Viking Press, 1945. $2.50.

WERE YOU THERE WHEN THEY CRUCIFIED MY LORD? By Allen Rohan Crite. Cambridge, Harvard University Press, 1944. $3.00.

REFERENCE

ENCYCLOPEDIA OF THE NEGRO—(preparatory volume). By W. E. B. DuBois and Guy B. Johnson. New York, Phelps-Stokes Fund, 1945. $2.75.

THE NEGRO HANDBOOK, 1944. Compiled and edited by Florence Murray. New York, Current Reference Publications, 1944. $3.50.

SOCIOLOGY

ALL BRAVE SAILORS: THE STORY OF THE S.S. BOOKER T. WASHINGTON. By John Beecher. New York, L. B. Fischer, 1945. $2.50.

AN AMERICAN PROGRAM. By Wendell L. Willkie. New York, Simon and Schuster, 1944. $1.00.

COLOR AND DEMOCRACY. By W. E. B. DuBois. New York, Harcourt, Brace and Company, 1945. $2.00.

JIM CROW JOINS UP. By Ruth Danenhower Wilson. New York, William J. Clark, 1945. $2.50.

JOURNEY THROUGH CHAOS. By Agnes E. Meyer. New York, Harcourt, Brace and Company, 1944. $3.00.

ONE AMERICA: OUR RACIAL AND NATIONAL MINORITIES. Edited by Francis J. Brown and Joseph S. Roucek. New York, Prentice Hall, 1945. $5.00.

PRIMER FOR WHITE FOLKS. Edited by Bucklin Moon. New York, Doubleday, Doran and Company, 1945. $3.50.

RELIGION AND OUR RACIAL TENSIONS. By Clyde Kluckhorn, Everett R. Clinchy, Edwin R. Embree, Margaret Mead and Bradford S. Abernethy. Cambridge, Harvard University Press, 1945. $1.50.

RIOTS AND RUINS. By A. Clayton Powell, Sr. New York, Richard Smith, 1945. $2.00.

A RISING WIND. By Walter White. New York, Doubleday, Doran and Company, 1945. $2.00.

THEY SEEK A CITY. By Arna Bontemps and Jack Conroy. New York, Doubleday, Doran and Company, 1945. $2.75.

WHAT THE NEGRO WANTS. Edited by Rayford W. Logan. Chapel Hill, University of North Carolina Press, 1945. $3.50.

MAN'S MOST DANGEROUS MYTH: THE FALLACY OF RACE. By M. F. Ashley Montagu. (Revised edition) New York, Columbia University Press, 1945. $3.25.

NOTE:

*This listing is as complete as possible for the period August 1944-1945.

Contains biographies of eleven Negroes.

See BOOK NOTES, October issue.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE PEOPLE OF DADE COUNTY, FLORIDA*

WE HAVE LOST FAITH . . .
in the Dade County Commissioners with their apathetic attitude toward solving the present controversy in our community, their complete lack of any co-operation with the people of this community and, in our opinion, have shamefully failed us in our hour of need. Further, by permitting the expansion of the Brownsville Negro area into territory zoned for, and occupied by, the white race—and their failure to take any action whatsoever to halt the operations of powerful white real estate interests who are using unscrupulous methods to force the Negro on the residents of this community.

WE HAVE LOST FAITH . . .
in the County Solicitor's Office for its failure to even make an effort to prosecute the parties responsible for the flouting and breaking of our zoning laws, which have been in existence for years and have here-to-fore been enforced.

WE HAVE LOST FAITH . . .
in the Inter-Racial Committee, which was originally formed for the purpose of preventing such a condition as exists today in our community, likewise by its utter lack of wisdom in dealing with the present problems of the various Negro districts, which has created more unrest and dissatisfaction than ever existed before among the white residents residing adjacent to those districts.

THEREFORE, in order to prevent and forestall any violence, which could reach disastrous proportions WE APPEAL TO THE PUBLIC PRESS of Dade County "FOR AID" in our fight to expose the sinister motives of the proponents of this movement, in order that we may preserve our most cherished possession—our homes, which we have spent years acquiring and improving.

WE HAVE NOT LOST FAITH . . .
in the Almighty God and in humanity, and we feel the people of Dade County will back us in our fight—that RIGHT WILL TRIUMPH!

By Order of the Executive Board of THE NORTHWEST PROPERTY OWNERS LEAGUE

*See MONTHLY SUMMARY, this issue, page 8.

The INDEX to Volume II will be available on November 15, 1945. Request should be made to the Social Science Institute immediately.

Social Science Institute
FISK UNIVERSITY
Nashville 8, Tennessee

RETURN POSTAGE GUARANTEED

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
PAID
Nashville, Tennessee
Permit No. 346

Dr. George Mitchell
CIO Political Action Comm.
c/o 75 Ivy Street
Atlanta 3, Georgia

National Farmers Union
300 "B" St., S. E.
Washington 3, D. C.

Reading

October 5, 1945

Newsflash -- Confidential

WASHINGTON -- President Truman's show of fight on the unemployment compensation bill has radically changed the atmosphere in Washington -- temporarily. Conservative members of Congress were rocked back on their heels by President's action in calling in Ways & Means Committee members and insisting on his original measure. Whether effect will be enough by itself to salvage major part of Truman Program is doubtful. Unless it is followed up consistently there will be little permanent good.

Most heartening result of this incident is furore created in inner Administration circles by ineptness shown in handling of bill, especially by Glad Hander George Allen. Greatest weakness of Administration is curious mixed group of advisers on whom President leans. Ross, press secretary, is outstanding man among those close to President and his influence can be seen in nearly all progressive Truman moves. Amateurishness of Allen, Mobilization Chief Snyder, others, however, tends to cancel out these moves, render them futile when it comes to getting action. White House is beginning to wake up to this situation, however, and apparently intends to establish thorough-going liason with Hill, so that legislation will not be asked, introduced and then left to sink or swim with no further executive interest. If this happens, then tremendous improvement will be shown in enactment of Truman proposals.

FARM LEGISLATION -- Disquiet is spreading among liberals in Washington over developments in farm field. Extraordinary statements attributed to Secretary Anderson in recent session with Farm Bureau chiefs stand out above all other events here. Despite numerous speeches in which Anderson has proclaimed his allegiance to the abundance ideas of Milo Perkins, Wallace, Patton, at al., he told Farm Bureau, according to press, that we must go back to acreage restrictions, benefit payments, general AAA program of old type.

This is impossible. Even old-line farm organizations privately admit that it will not be possible to go back to scarcity policies. They cite cotton as outstanding example. Despite exhaustive hearings, Pace Committee has never found an alternative to BAE cotton conversion program, which is modeled on NFU program, and it is obvious that when time comes for general farm legislation return to AAA will be seen to be impractical.

NFU program is winning support right and left -- with, naturally, some modification here and there. Most recent instance is shown in inclosed pamphlet of the Dairy Industry Committee, representing American Butter, Cheese and Dry Milk Institutes; Ice Cream and Milk Dealers International Associations, and Dairy Industries Supply Association. This report rejects Farm Bureau restriction program and Grange multiple-price program in favor of outright government payments to supplement farmers income, with price allowed to seek market level. This is basic principle of BAE cotton and NFU general farm programs.

NFU states interested in dairy problems would do well to read inclosed program carefully and send reactions on to Washington NFU office, so that views may be taken up in proper quarters here.

USDA REORGANIZATION -- Has bogged down almost completely since first announcement of new Production & Marketing Administration. Same people are doing almost exactly same jobs except in few top level spots, and a terrific internal fight has developed over two questions: Whether AAA or former WFA offices shall be dominant in state offices; and whether regional offices are to continue to have former powers. Average official in Department goes on about his business about as usual, but expected efficiency predicted when Anderson took office is as far as ever from realization. Meanwhile, Eisenhower Committee appears to have made no progress toward any fundamental reorganization or legislative recommendations of kind urged upon it by NFU President Patton.

MVA -- Senator Murray's Bill, S555, will show far greater strength from here on out than it has shown heretofore. Effect of Regional Committee's work was abvious in hearings here. Not only did proponents make better case to Irrigation Committee than before, but opponents clearly were somewhat on defensive. Their testimony was repetitious, bored committee members. It also devoted itself for the first time to the bill itself, instead of being devoted as earlier to sweeping, unfounded charges. Murray shortly will ask unanimous Senate consent to add names of several co-sponsors to bill.

Chairman Thomas, Agriculture Committee, has sought to avoid holding hearings, on ground that bill cannot possibly pass, etc. Tackled by a committee of backers of bill, however, he promised full hearings and consideration of field hearings. Since making this pledge, he has been quoted by press as again doubtful. Senate agreement, however, calls for hearings and Murray and backers of bill intend to hold to agreement. Present prospect is such hearings will come in late November. Bill will be given adverse report by Irrigation Committee majority, dominated by water associations and power companies, but a strong favorable minority report will be filed. It is now expected St. Lawrence Seaway will come up within few weeks, and there is every prospect it will pass. Such favorable action will also react strongly to benefit of MVA.

FULL EMPLOYMENT -- Lull followed passage of bill by Senate. This is due to dilatory tactics in House Committee and to fact that Chairman Manasco must handle President's reorganization bill on House floor this week. Hearings will resume next week. Committee for Economic Development is expected to endorse measure, and some big-name witnesses are likely to give it new impetus. Division in committee is extremely close and result may be report to floor without recommendation. This is all right, if those of us interested will let our Members of Congress know we want the bill passed. Communications to them should call for passage of HR2202 as introduced.

Contrary to press comment and contrary to cynical statements by Barkley and overstatements by House sponsors, Senate did not damage bill. Inside story is that Republican high command became frightened after blistering attacks by O'Mahoney, Wyo., and Tobey, N.H., Fearing anti-labor tag in 1946 elections, GOP National Committee sent former Senator Danaher to Hill to carry word to Taft, Vandenberg, others. After having opposed Hatch amendment, which kept original intent of Full Employment Bill, Republicans turned around then and accepted it. Thus, proponents of bill won a major victory, despite press attempts to convey opposite impression.

SCIENCE -- Coming week will see opening of what may turn out to be major battle of next two years. This is over what to do about science and patents. It involves not only atomic energy control, but whole question of keeping government-financed research during war from being used by monopolists to entrench their control of economy. President Truman has told Senators Magnuson and Kilgore he wants a combined bill making all developments freely available to all, and that he does not want bill proposed by conservative scientists who are teaming with trusts and corporations. Hearings on Kilgore-Magnuson Bill open Oct. 8 and run for two weeks. You should keep a close eye on them.

Russell Smith

VIRGINIA STATE COUNCIL NEWS LETTER

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY BY VA. STATE CIO ORGANIZING COMMITTEE

Number 26 October 6, 1945

Brother Jack Clark, Secretary for Local 284 UFWA reports election at the Fibre Board Container Company, (Martinsville Branch,) Martinsville, Va. won by UFWA-CIO, 53 votes for CIO 6 votes for no union. Good work Jack.

Brother Thomas R. Linn, International Representative for PWOC reports that at last an election has been ordered by the NLRB to be held at the Mead Corp. Lynchburg, Va. with three Unions on the ballot, AFL, CIO and District 50, also no Union. This election we must win and we urge all CIO Locals to extend every possible assistance that they can to this campaign. Election will be held Tuesday, October 16th, 1945.

Brother John Wilmer, President of Local 90 USWA reports that at last, after a strike that lasted a little over 6 weeks Local 90 USWA have reached an agreement with the Craddock-Terry Shoe Company at Lynchburg, Va. After Governor Darden appointed Dr. J. J. Sherer as mediator who finally persuaded the Company to make concessions that the Union could agree to. The workers have gone back to work while a new contract will be negotiated.

Brother R. Wray Alt, Int'l Representative for IWA reports that a satisfactory agreement has been reached on renewal of contract between Local 403 IWA and the Richmond Cedar Works, at Richmond, Va.

SEND IN NEWS FROM YOU LOCAL,

WE WANT TO HEAR FROM YOU.

The meeting of delegates from all CIO Locals in Virginia that was scheduled to be held in Washington, D. C. on October 5th has been post poned until October 12th on account of the 5th of October being declared Admiral Nimitz Day in Washington and the Congressmen would be unable to meet with us. I am hoping that we will have a large delegation from Virginia. Twelve delegates will be there from Richmond.

Brother Wm. Doyle, Int'l Representative for TWUA reports that TWUA has petitioned for an election at the American Silk Mill in Orange, Va.

AROUND THE TOWN WITH RED FEATHER ...

Here's a story about twelve million American girls between the ages of seven and eighteen. These are future American homemakers and mothers ... voting citizens .. each of whom will yield a powerful influence upon her home, husband and family .. not to mention her neighbors and community. And NONE of these twelve million young people at present participate in organized recreational programs that build health, enrich life, and teach citizenship! And why? Because there simply aren't enough trained leaders in Girl Scouts, Girls' Reserves of the YWCA and other organizations to instruct all of the eager young people who want fun, and health activities like these. Such training will reach into the hearts and homes of families in America for generations to come, reflecting health habits, comradeship and better training in usefulness. Boys in this country are somewhat luckier than girls ... There are more boys enrolled in organized recreational pursuits than girls and their opportunities have already paid tremendous dividends in the war effort. As soldiers, sailors, airmen, boys who were once Boy Scouts had many occasions to use skills and an understanding of teamwork developed through their boyhood training in this organization. Yes, we're leading up to something! We're leading up to the fact that the only MORE girls and MORE boys can have the benefits of such programs is for us voluntarily to contribute more generously to provide these services for young people in Richmond through the annual campaign of the Richmond Victory and Community Fund which will open on October 16th for a goal of $968,657. This money will finance during 1946 not only the 32 local agencies which provide health, welfare and recreation services for everyone in the community but will also finance 18 National War Fund agencies for services to our men and women in the armed forces and our brave Allies.

Every CIO member knows that victory in Europe and Japan didn't end war-created shortages and misery abroad or here at home.

It's up to every one of us to "BE GENEROUS IN VICTORY".

Fraternally yours,

T. D. du Quennois

T.D. du Quennois
Editor

REMARKS OF JAMES G. PATTON, PRESIDENT OF THE NATIONAL FARMERS UNION AT THE
SOUTH DAKOTA FARMERS UNION CON-VENTION, OCT. 10, 1945, YANKTON
S. D.

The rocket speed with which our society travels onward from crisis to crisis in this atomic-energy age — which was announced to the world when the first atomic bomb fell on Hiroshima — leaves but little time, if any, for hard-hitting progressive organizations like the Farmers Union to cast up the accounts of the past. Historical reference has but little value when a scientific discovery even more significant than the steam engine was in its day or electricity was in its day shoves us from the pre-atomic age to the atomic age overnight. Historical reviews, though pleasant and sometimes reassuring, give but little framework in facts and reference with even the age of abundance into which discoveries of atomic energy, radar, and many other important unannounced discoveries have tossed us.

By way of reporting and reviewing for the delegates to this state convention, I believe it to be worthwhile to review hurriedly the history of the Farmers Union during the past four years. In 1941, at Topeka, the delegates to the national convention voted to take a bold step and raise a $75,000 budget in addition to the dues. At that time the NATIONAL UNION FARMER went to seven or eight thousand farm families in this nation. Today it goes to approximately 250,000 farm families. The National Farmers Union had no Washington office or full-time representative. Today, we have a very comfortable office building of our own, which has sufficient income to amortize its cost. We have a legislative secretary who is considered one of the ablest men in Washington. We have a staff of four other people in addition to the time I spend in Washington. The National Farmers Union Department of Education has grown and its services are available and are helpful in every state where there is a Farmers Union.

Since 1941, the National Farmers Union, and its positions on national affairs has become known to millions both in and out of agriculture. In that period of time it has come to be known far and wide as the voice of the working farmer and as the constant spokesman of the majority of agriculture — that is, of those who receive only 17% of the dollar paid to agriculture for agricultural commodities. The organization has grown from about 240,000 members among farm families to well over 425,000. More important than any of these, I think it can be fairly said that, during this period, all of the members, by receiving the NATIONAL UNION FARMER and by reading the daily press in which the organization has received thousands of column inches of publicity, know what their organization stands for and represents. Through common understanding and agreed-upon objectives, there has been constantly growing a unity of position and attitude. Certainly, it would be less than accurate for me to say that everyone in the Farmers Union is in agreement. As far as I know, no one wants that to be the case. But on the greater issues, there is a greater degree of unanimity than in any people's organization of which I know.

A few short weeks ago, this nation and the other nations of the world concluded the most devastating and revolutionary war in which mankind has ever engaged. This war, like each war which has gone before it, was more terrible, more devastating and involved more people than the previous one. It has left millions upon millions dead and maimed, untold millions homeless, starving, forever wrecked physically and mentally. The almost $300 billion which it cost this nation of ours is not an adequate yardstick for measuring the costs.

As terrible, as devastating, and ruthless as it has been, it has proven one or two important and basic issues which are of incalculable value to mankind if he will but read the bold signs painted in the skies and on the canvas of life. When we entered the war, we in this country — for that matter in many other countries of the world — were suffering and worried with burdensome agricultural and other surpluses.

As a matter of fact, in some quarters if one listened to the discussions going on, he would feel that we almost had a surplus of people. We had ten million unemployed in the United States. We had an industrial machine which had not modernized itself through the thirties and which although it had somewhat increased its industrial efficiency even as late as 1939 was only able to turn out $120 billion of national product.

The nation was divided both as to foreign and domestic policies. A very short time before Germany marched into Poland, a magazine with very wide circulation said that Germany could not wage war because it had no money. The so-called ragged Russian army was pictured by most of the military experts and writers as being so weak and ineffective that the quote, efficient, end of quote, Nazi German army would march right on to Moscow.

But what happened? In spite of all the chiseling for war profits, and the "I'll get mine" philosophy here at home we demonstrated that it was possible to have a gross national product of over $200 billion. Our meat and feed surpluses melted away as the man and his family who had lived on the dole were able to eat meat and as the 11 million men in our armed forces received 275 lbs. a year each instead of 125 pounds. We spent ten billion dollars on scientific research. We produced atomic energy and radar, and other miracles of science; and we did reach the 50,000-plane goal which everyone said was "dreaming", when President Roosevelt announced it. In agriculture we went from a "burdensome" surplus of corn, wheat and dairy products, to "scarcity". Mind you, we went from these "burdensome surpluses" to "searcity", and yet we only diverted at the most about seven or eight percent to feeding peoples other than our own.

The war has thoroughly demonstrated that we do have the productive capacity to produce an abundance for every man, woman and child in this country and to make available to the other people of the world $10 or $12 billions of our products.

In spite of this magnificent production record, we did not count all of our people into full production and full employment. Early in the war and defense period, the National Farmers Union began to call for an all-out production program for the nation, for farmers to produce the food and fiber to win the war and write an adequate peace. We called for an appropriation of $2 billion to do an industrial, efficiency-production job in agriculture similar to that done in industry. We called for war food production agreements that would place farmers on the same basis as war contractors. These agreements would have included all farmer costs, would have provided the necessary credit, technical guidance, and revision of scientific skills necessary to get a much larger production than we now have. It is my studied opinion that if the nation had done the kind of all out production job the Farmers Union called for, there would have been less rationing, less inflation and greater ability to help the millions who will be starving in Europe this winter and possibly next.

But those who did their post-war planning early while the war was going on, and while we were preparing to fight, were determined that two to three million farmers, lacking the credit, technical knowhow and the physical facilities, should not be counted in. They, like most manufacturers and some labor leaders, said all that was necessary was to give the price and that would get production, and to the extent that the upper one-third of farmers could increase production, there is no doubt that an adequate price did get increases. Just the same, there were hundreds of thousands of small farmers, tenants and agricultural workers frozen to underemployment, and in many instances frozen out, because adequate credit, technical guidance and assistance were not given them. At home, this war has been to a great degree a "safecrackers" war in which the powerful vested interests of this nation in agriculture, industry, and in one or two labor organizations, have seen to it that they got theirs while the getting was good. Small businesses to the tune of 560,000 went out of the picture. Big farmers, with more acres and high prices to return more dollars than the small farmer with few acres, have consolidated their interests and bought out small farmers in too many instances Agriculture, with seven million fewer people, has produced 38% more food and fiber than it did in the 1935-39 period. This demonstrated clearly that the emphasis has been upon commodities and dollars and not human beings. This has been the emphasis over many years, for 41 percent of the draftees from rural areas were rejected because of poor physical condition, resulting from bad nutrition, bad housing and poor health care.

The Farmers Union, alone among the farm organizations, has constantly fought against inflation. I am sure that our efforts along with those of the labor organizations, with the support of this administration, and particularly of Chester Bowles, Administrator of the OPA, have reduced the cost of this war to the people of this country by very close to $100 billion, as compared to the costs of the last war. The inflation fight is more vital today than it was during the war. I will deal in detail with that later.

President Truman said, when speaking of V-J day, that the crisis we faced following V-J day was as great as the crisis we faced at Pearl Harbor. It is true that the elements involved are a little different in the two instances, but the basic concepts are the same. The real issue facing us in this period is the issue of whether or not we will maintain a free society and a freely-functioning economy. I am not referring to government and governmental controls. I am referring to all of us, as people, who are the government. Either we will maintain our present form of government and the good parts of our present economy by maintaining production and consumption at high levels for all of our people, or we will go into an economic tailspin that will make 1932 seem like a tea party at a Ladies Aid society.

The real issue is whether or not we will maintain full employment, producing usuable goods and services, through an equitable distribution of the returns of capital and labor. Full employment at wages high enough and prices low enough to guarantee an equitable distribution of the goods and services we produce is the only lasting guarantee we farm people - along with other Americans - have for income sufficient to enjoy a decent standard of living. To put it another way, unless prices, wages and profits are equitable to all, this thing we call capitalism is done for and not only we in the United States but the people of the world will suffer cataclysmic consequences. Surpluses will beget surpluses. Unemployment will beget more unemployment. Deflation will bring more deflation. Despondency will beget more despondency. Confidence will be shattered, people will lose confidence in the government, its bonds, its money. The National Farmers Union is proud to have fought for the full employment bill as a declaration of policy and confidence of our government that we will not stand by and see men sell apples on the street and form block-long queues to get soup and bread.

The present situation is paradoxical in that we will have large numbers of unemployed, running up into eight or nine million, while at the same time we will have rising costs of living and inflation unless we are able to beat the deadline of converting our taxes to peacetime production and of applying to ourselves, as a people, at least a measure of the demonratic discipline which we applied to ourselves during the war in terms of price control, rent control, and the rationing and allocation of scarce supplies until our factories and farms can catch up with the demand. So confused is the situation that some parts of the economy may suffer serious deflation while other parts suffer from inflation.

The Farmers Union has given strong support to the Unemployment Compensation Bill. Our reason for doing this is two fold: First, business was guaranteed that it would sustain no losses on its war contracts. It was permitted to set aside millions of dollars for conversion. It was provided with carry-back and carry-over of unused tax exemptions, saving it billions. It was guaranteed that it would not lose any money by producing for the war effort. Our government built millions of dollars of plants for businesses to operate on a profit-making basis. Under the provisions of the Steagall amendment, agriculture was assured a support price of not less than 90% parity for two years after the formal declaration of cessation of hostilities for all commodities declared to be war commodities, which included all important agricultural commodities.

With the closing of the war, two things happened to labor. The discontinuance of overtime and reduction of hours to 40-hour week cut labor's income by about $12 billion annually. The closing of the war factories will throw some seven or eight million out of employment by early 1946. If it is fair to have provided well for industry and to guarantee agriculture 90% of parity, than it is no less fair to give the working man who did a marvelous job producing for the war effort unemployment compensation during the time when, through no fault of his own, he is unemployed, while the reconversion to peacetime is going on. Second, the Farmers Union supports the unemployment compensation bill as an agricultural measure. Unless the purchasing power of the laboring man is maintained during this period, agricultural prices will fall while the cost of things farmers buy will go up. We can continue to have a market for our products only if the man who lives in the city has enough income to buy them.

I am glad to say that on this important issue of unemployment compensation the American Farm Bureau Federation has joined the Farmers Union (a most unusual coincidence) in supporting demands for an adequate unemployment compensation bill.

Thousands of farmers and a great many others are critical of organized labor for the strikes that are going on at the present time. But I suspect that, if farm prices were to drop 30% overnight, there would be meetings of protest in every rural school house and in every farm community. It was only a few short years ago that the Farmers Holiday Ass'n. was threatening violence, and in a few instances did use violence to right economic wrongs.

The fundamental issue behind the full employment bill, unemployment compensation and the labor unrest today is the issue I stated before -- whether or not there shall be jobs for all and whether the product of the factory and the farm shall be equitably distributed to labor, management, and the farmers who produce the product.

If management insists on its return being more than enough to take care of obsolescence, depreciation, plant rebuilding and a moderate rate of interest on capital invested, and reduces thereby the purchasing power of working farmers, the laboring man, and the professional class, then our economy is certain to fall.

The full employment bill, sponsored originally by the National Farmers Union, probably will become a law. It has two basic principles. First a declaration of policy on the part of all of us, through our federal government, that we are all partners -- government, management, labor and agriculture -- in maintaining an economy that will afford enough jobs so that all who are able and willing to work can find work. This is a big step forward which says in effect that we, as a people, will not sit idly by as time makes and watch the terror of depression descend upon us, but that we will plan together, and be responsible together, to put into effect those fiscal and other policies that will insure us against boom and bust cycles. Secondly, this bill is a declaration of faith by the American people that we can have an economy of abundance, that we are determined to have it, and that we will democratically take the steps necessary to have it. If the bill becomes a law, it will need immediate implementation, if it is to mean anything. The Farmers Union has proposed implementation of the bill, first, by proposing an authorization by the Congress of the expenditure of whatever money is necessary to make up the difference between the private capital investment and the capital investment required to maintain a national gross product of $200 million, and next by supporting specific bills carrying out the policy of the full employment bill. For instance, we have proposed the development of the great national resources in the Missouri Valley by an authority patterned on TVA. We expect to propose the same development of the Arkansas Valley. We are supporting the development of a St. Lawrence Waterway, and will support the development of the other great river valleys of this country as they come along.

Since we are in the heart of the Missouri Valley here at Yankton, I wish to spend a few minutes discussing the Missouri Valley Authority. There are two basic concepts in Senate Bill S.555 commonly known as the Missouri Valley Authority Bill. One is the concept that government should be as close to the people as it is possible to get it, that an autonomous board, such as the TVA has, living and working in the valley, will be more responsive to the people's needs and demands than some far-off Washington bureau or Department. Second, it is the concept of those supporting the Missouri Valley Authority that when the Creator made the Missouri Valley He made it in one valley -- he was no respector of imaginary state lines and myriads of bureaus and bureaucrats of county, state, and federal character.

As a matter of fact He didn't even know there would be great utility lobbies to overcharge the people for electricity and use the overcharges to fight progress the people demand. I don't suppose He even knew that these utilities would call any plan or pro ram for bringing government closer to the people and for the use of all resources in an integrated fashion as socialism or communism. I sometimes wonder if He knew there were such words as socialism and communism. I am quite sure that in His wisdom He intended these resources, this water, this soil, this power, and all that they can create for the use of all the people. I am quite sure that He didn't intend that a few powerful corporations should use these resources to buy newspapers, influence public opinion against their own best interest, and to extort untold millions from those least able to pay and to prevent those least able to pay from having the benefits of all His beneficience. Our vested interest opponents including the power trust, some mining interests, lawyers who have been futilely negotiating inter-state water treaties all these years, and bureaucrats who have a vested interest in their jobs, both federal and state -- all these say that the Missouri Valley proposal will destroy states rights, but the governors of the states in the Tennessee Valley deny this. These same vested interests say that the Missouri Valley Authority Bill would deprive farmers of their water rights, but the bill carries the same provision for the protection of the individuals water rights that is carried in all our existing federal legislation. They say that it is impossible to have flood control, irrigation and power all in the same integrated plan. But it is obvious that the plans of the Bureau of Reclamation would develop practically no power. Neither would those of the flood control enthusiasts. There is even some question about the engineering feasibility of some of the dams proposed. The Army Engineers' record with the Canol project on the Pan-American highway, and some of the other projects which they have had in charge, demonstrate very clearly that their estimates of cost are almost always low and that they have a strange way of limiting the utility value of water to the neutral proposition of controlling floods.

The fight against the MVA is a fight against progress. It is a fight to prevent the people from having an integrated plan for an industrial, agricultural, balanced economy in this great river valley. This is essentially a power fight -- the irony of it is that it is paid for by the users of power in this great area. For years they have paid overcharges and high power rates, and now they see their own money brought back to fight their own best interests through well-paid lobbyists, kept members of the press, and all the slick devices and manipulations they can hatch up.

Those defeatists who say, for whatever selfish reasons they may have, that we should not constantly seek ways of making our government and its devices more responsive to, and effective in behalf of, the people, really don't believe in the concept of democracy. Government, just like the world forces, should constantly change, must be constantly changing, trying new things, to keep abreast of the change that is at work everywhere in the world. As a matter of fact, one of our greatest deficiencies today is that we are a very well advanced nation technologically, and are still trying to govern ourselves with devices and methods which were good in the horse and buggy days. Too often our government is not responsive quickly enough to desires and needs of our people. Vested interests are always quicker to marshall their forces to prevent changes than are those organizations and interests who attempt to act in the public interest.

Now, a word about human resources. During the last 150 years, our thinking and our actions primarily have been geared to commodities, dollars, and things with little or no emphasis upon human values. A youthful country, with great raw material and natural resources naturally has relied upon the almost unregulated competitive and profit motive to furnish the energy for its development. But that motive cannot be relied on exclusively as the forceful factor in a mature economy, where our natural resources are dwindling, where free land is no more, and where our minerals, our oil, our water, and other resources have been put into private hands and pricate control. The Department of Agriculture has placed most of its emphasis on doing things for commodities and dollars. This is a natural thing for the simple reason that the most vocal people in any community are those who have the most resources and the greatest interest in maintaining their status quo. Agriculture itself has been organized on a commodity basis and our society has functioned on what I term a vertical concept. Only a few short years ago the Farmrs Union was thoroughly convinced that all that was necessary in agriculture was to give farmers higher prices. We said in effect that if you help any segment of agriculture, you help all of agriculture. Samuel Gompers expounded the same theory for labor in his famous slogan "the aristocracy of labor". In other words, if you help increase the wages of the skilled craftsmen, you helped all of labor. Business is still very largely lumped as business. The small businessman still believes that what is good for one segment of business is good for him. But he has begun to find out during the war that 70 or 80 percent of the contracts going to 100 big firms hasn't meant much in the salvation of the 560 thousand businesses that have been eliminated during the war period. In agriculture, we have awakened to the fact that one-third of our farmers at the top get 83 cents out of every agricultural dollar and that two-thirds of us get only seventeen cents of that dollar. Or to put it another way, the upper half get ninety percent of the agricultural income from sales prices and the lower half get ten percent. The lower two-thirds do not have the resources in terms of land, working capital, technical know-how and health to compete with the upper third.

As a matter of fact, the Nazi government used the average cost of production principle to eliminate hundreds of thousands of small farmers and small businessmen. The man with inadequate capital and credit, lacking education and technical skill, simply couldn't produce and sell his product in competition with the adeuqately financed, technically well-trained and otherwise ideally-situated farmer. So in effect as the average cost of production went down through the process of eliminating those at the bottom of the scale, more and more people were eliminated. Selective Service statistics, studies made by the Farm Security Administration, and by other agencies of government clearly demonstrate that we have in agriculture millions of human beings who will not be helped by a high-price policy alone. Certainly, the two million in agriculture who have less than a thousand dollars a year gross income cannot be substantially aided, as long as they are at that level of income, by an increase of ten or even twenty percent in price, because even with a 20% increase, they would have only $200 additional to spend, whereas the farmer who has a gross income of even five thousand dollars would have a thousand dollars. This was the basic deficiency in the Triple A benefit payment system. It followed the philosophy of "Him who has gits."

It seems to me therefore, that, to use terms with which we are all familiar, that parity of income for agriculture can never be achieved unless something is done about the distribution of income within agriculture. We should add "parity of welfare" and place great emphasis upon human resources. It seems to me that as minimums we must fight for a universal health program available to all the people of this country, regardless of needs. We must move in substantially on rural housing, and a real study must be made of nutritional needs. Millions of farm families areundernourished and suffering from malnutirtion. In addition to a fair price for all agriculture, wemust make a large investment in rural America in terms of human beings. After all, we've been shippingout of rural America to the cities about $3 billion of our best youth. If we wereto receive just half of that back in terms of health, housing and nutrition each year, the increased efficiency in agriculture and the increased efficiency of those we send to the city would more than compensate our expenditure.

The Farmers Union has given a great deal of thought and study to land policy and an agricultural program. We sincerely believe that unless family-type farming is given real emphasis in terms of national policy that it is doomed. It isn't enough for politicans, some farm leaders, and agencies of government to give lip service to family-type farms, and then permit governmental and other policies to destroy them, to move people off the land even while they are talking.

If we are really interested in a decent standard of living for ourselves and our families, then we will equalize the competitive factors that we have to meet. We can't possibly have a decent standard of living as family-type farmers and work our wives and children 12 to 15 hours a day in competition with near peons working in our agricultural factories in the field. Therefore, we believe that no farm family, whether they are owners, tenants, or families of agricultural workers, should receive less than $2500 a year. We believe that the agricultural workers in the factories in the field should be protected by our government as to minimum wages and maximum hours, and we feel further that programs designed to add income to agriculture, such as the Triple A program, should have as it basic emphasis the payment of the largest amounts to those who need them most, with a top limit of $2500 a year. We have repeatedly proposed voluntary production agreements with our government. We propose them again. We propose that our nation take the* minimum food requirements in terms of a decent standard of nutrition would be for the nation, that food production goals be set on that basis, that our government establish a minimum price in advance of the growing and marketing season and that our government pay to us the difference between the market price and the minimum of $2500 per year to each farm family for complying with production programs. Further than this, if minimum support prices are necessary we can use the support price or loan device to accomplish it. We would limit any government payment to a maximum of $2500 a year. A $2500 a year guaranteed annual income per farm family would mean a minimum of approximately sixty cents per hour. In addition to a very sizeable program of health, housing, education and nutrition, we feel that the food allotment plan proposed by Senator Aiken, Republican of Vermont, is a minimum program for insuring the health and well-being of the nation. This proggam briefly provides that families without enough income to buy a minimum decent standard of diet will be allowed to use 40 percent of their income -- whatever it may be -- to buy food stamps. With these food stamps they would go to the store and buy the food they must have to make them moderately well nourished. In terms of all low-income families, they would be buying the food needed to make this a strong and well-nourished nation. And, finally, they would be the most stable market the farmer could possibly have for his product, since the government of the United States would stand back of that market. Incidentally, under-nourished farm families would benefit not only as producers, but as consumers. The integrated planning and development of our great natural resources, the millions of man-hours of asset-building work such planning and development would bring, the almost-undreamed of home market for the farmers in this great Missouri Valley, and the opportunity to de-urbanize our cities (which the atomic bomb makes almost imperative in terms of defense) — all this, coupled with a basic food allotment and nutrition program made possible by a well-integrated production program of needed foods and fibers, would create a climate in which family-type farmers would have some hope for continuance.

(*responsibility of determining what the)

Naturally, self help is the best help. Given the minimums I have outlined above we can go on and develop a cooperative business structure that most of our cooperative leaders haven't dreamed of. We farmers can't go on forever attempting to legislate ourselves into prosperity. If we are to follow the pattern of American industry, then prices to consumers must come down in many food products. We in turn must get more of the consumers' dollar. Through our cooperative devices, we must not only market our raw materials and buy our supplies for producing those raw materials, which is about as far as we have gone, but we must build processing plants, distributive systems of processed goods, and we must work with organized labor to see that they and other consumers in the city build a consumer distributive system which will as near as possible eliminate the many layers of distributive costs that now stand between us and the consumer of our finished product. Our cooperative business devices, important as they are, are only one of the devices that farm people must use as instruments for securing their tenure on the land, and obtaining from their labor a fair shareof the productive capacity of this nation. The over-all organization which the farmer can use to coordinate his various activities in his behalf of course is the general farm organization. The National Farmers Union has been striking out rather boldly in developing insurance services that make insurance available at savings to farmers and their families and at the same time build pools of capital which are being used and can be used more extensively as they grow in size to develop other cooperative mechanisms.

Members of general farm organizations must come to recognize that it is they who coordinate such activities. They are the patrons of our cooperatives, the members who control the farm organizations, and the ones who elect the Boards of Directors of both the cooperatives and the National Farmers Union. There need not be any conflict of direction or purpose if the farmers who belong to both will recognize that the purpose of each device is to improve the lot of the farm family living and working on the land. Farm organizations, like labor and business organizations, face the greatest test they have ever faced. It is no longer true, if it was ever true, that the general welfare is the sum total of special interests. As a matter of fact, the general welfare is much more than the sum total of special interests. If agricultural labor or industrial policy is to be consistent with economic progress, it must be an integral part of a sound national economic policy, based upon forward-looking political and economic cooperation.

The essential objectives of such a national economic policy are (1) greater economic stability, (2) an expanding overall real income and (3) a rising minimum of family living. No sector of our economy and no organization representing any segment of our economy can fail to have a primary interest in the realization of these three goals. However, these three goals cannot be attained by any single economic group or combination of special interests operating in isolation or placing special interests above the overall general welfare. Farm organizations, and particularly the Farmers Union, will either grow and become more and more effective, or else they will die of decadence and dry-rot depending upon the decision they make in the future. We simply cannot serve our own best interests except as we cooperate with those people in other walks of life who have the same basic economic interests. Therefore, the Farmers Union has followed and will continue to follow as long as I am president, a studied and positive policy of close cooperation with organized labor, people of good will and progressive small businessmen. The small businessmen on the Main Streets of America has had more common interests with the man who works in the local factory and with us working farmers in his own community, than he does with the gigantic corporations that too often use his place on Main St. as the suction valve to pump the wealth produced in rural America into the great centers of wealth and power.

We in the Farmers Union need to do a great deal of thinking about our participation in the affairs of government. We hold national and state conventions and adopt very progressive, forward-looking programs and then sometimes we turn around and by our votes help to put into office people who are controlled by, or listen to, the vested interests that constantly and irrevocably oppose the very program we support. It is high time that those of us who are Republicans attend all of our party meetings, our precinct caucuses, our state conventions and that we seek in every way to get Farmers Union programs adopted by the Republican party. We should see that candidates are nominated that will seriously attempt to put our program into action. Those of us who are Democrats have the responsibility to do the same thing. My guess is that if every Farmers Union member would take an active interest in making the political party of his choice a dynamic functioning, being, responsive to his desires and needs, we would all be surprised by the results. We simply cannot operate an economic system geared to the atomic age and try to keep our human and political relations carefully cached away in cobwebs and geared to horse-and-buggy ideas. We need to gear our political and human relationships to the industrial and technological age to which science has brought us. I sincerely hope that the Political Information Bureau, set up by the National Farmers Union convention, will begin to function in every state and that every Farmers Union member will study the record of those he elects to represent him in the Executive and Legislative branches of government and that his decisions to support or to vote against those with good or bad records will come to be less and less tinged with archaic personal political prejudices.

On the broad horizon of the world there are three major issues which we as members of society must resolve. In the international field we must learn to live in a peace based on patience, tolerance and understanding of the peoples who do not speak our language, who do not use our form of government and whose concepts are predicated upon centuries of economic, social, and political backgrounds widely different from ours. Specifically, we must learn to live in this world with the great country of Russia. Russia's population is growing, her science is constantly improving. Regardless of what we may think of her government, her people are human beings and she is the greatest world power other than the United States. It is sheer tragedy that there are so many little and prejudiced minds in this great nation that are constantly attempting to stir up suspicion and hatred toward Russia. Most of these people are defeatist. What they really mean is that they have lost faith in our ability to continue to make progress. They are like the old fable about the dog who had a bone he wanted in his mouth but who was ready to drop that bone to snap at the dog whose reflection he saw in the water. In effect, they say that Russia with her system of economics and government is going to outdistance us. Apparently, they are afraid of the American people. I think this is the worst possible kind of defeatism and backtracking. With atomic energy and the other great scientific brains which we have plowed up during this war period, we can, if we will have the same ingenuity, the same unity of purpose and willingness to cooperate with each other, have the greatest society on earth. The only time people really feel competitive is when someone else has something they want and they want to equalize their position. As I see it, there isn't any reason why we need to feel competitive with Russia. They have nothing we need or want, except that we do want to cooperate with them in a world economy. We have better science, more education, we are starting with a fifty-year advantage. We simply must come to understand how Russian people think, why they do what they do, and then guide our foreign policy in terms of a firm position but with determination to cooperate to live in peace.

The second great issue of our American society is, as I previously indicated, the bringing about of an equitable distribution of the products and services of our economy in terms of prices, wages, and return on capital investment. With a productive capacity of $200 billion a year, we simply cannot afford to have any segment of this structure take more than its share. If we are to have a smoothly functioning economy and to live in peace in the world, we must see that our economy provides an ever-increasing standard of living, not to just a few at the top, but to all our people.

The third great issue of our times is really not an issue but a problem almost as old as humanity. All of our wards, all of our other ills, can really be traced back to the relationship of man to man. Many of us in the United States have violated most of the moral concepts of democracy in our attitudes on race. We must attune our minds and hearts to an equitable and decent standard of human relations between the races of the world. Racial prejudice is one of the most useful devices of bigots. Religious and nationality prejudices destroy decent relationships between people and make scapegoats of those least able to defend themselves. We of the white race are a minority in the world, but in spite of this we most frequently think of ourselves in Hitler's terms as being the master race. Scientific studies, biological, anthropoligical and other directions lend absolutely no support to this contention. Given equal environmental opportunities, human beings, regardless of the color of their skin, make about the same amount of progress. We in America, who, in spite of our shortcomings still are the greatest single hope for world democracy, must begin with democratic factors, and that is the democratic relationship between men of all races.

With the discovery of atomic energy, a new era has been born. So far, most of the thinking and most of the discussion regarding atomic energy has been in terms of its destructive ability. Somehow, we seem to have a weird gleefulness in contemplating how one bomb or a few bombs can destroy society, What a pitiable, dastardly commentary upon man's progress in the world and in civilization that we should think in terms of returning to caves in order to defend ourselves from the creations of our minds!

What a dreadfully defeatist attitude is exemplified in the proposals to try to restrict the atomic bomb to our own borders in order that we may have either defensively or offensively the device by which we can destroy civilization! This type of thinking will certainly lead to the destruction of civilization.

We need to think in terms of the great new day that atomic energy can bring. One pound of atomic energy is as powerful as three million pounds of coal. Here is a discovery that has literally blown the concept of scarcity into kingdom come. All we need to do is reverse our thinking, and to being to implement the use of atomic energy in terms of freeing men everywhere of their burden. Those who want to bottle up the secret of the atomic bomb and atomic energy are really serving the vested interest of scarcity, monopoly and world cartels. The NFU Board of Directors, meeting on V-J plus-one day, adopted a resolution calling for the establishment of a National Science Foundation to develop and make available to all the people of this country, and for that matter the world, the productive ability of this great invention. We also proposed that the benefits of all scientific research be made available to all people.

The real challenge of today is the challenge to that instrumentality which makes man different from other animals, namely, the ability to think and reason. As President Roosevelt said - the only thing we have to fear is fear itself. The future is limited only by the limitation on our ability to think new thoughts, to deal with big ideas, to dare to live vitally and freshly from day to day. Civilization is approaching its crisis. It will either destroy itself or it will meet the challenge of the new day. Mankind will rise to a newer and greater spiritual renaissance in which its spirit and being will create that climate of human relationship in which competition between men and races and economies will be eliminated and we can live in a world of cooperation based on the solid foundation of a spirit of brotherhood and the unity of mankind.

* * * * * * * *

National Farmers Union,
300 B St., S.E.,
Washington, D. C.

FOR RELEASE IN A.M.PAPERS
October 11, 1945

AT 9647

Declaring that "civilization is approaching its crisis", James G. Patton, President of the National Farmers Union, today urged that not only atomic energy but "the benefits of all scientific research" be made freely available to all people.

In an address to the South Dakota Farmers Union convention in Yankton, S. D., made available simultaneously there and in Washington, D.C., Patton charged that "those who want to bottle up the secret of the atomic bomb and atomic energy are really serving the vested interests of scarcity, monopoly, and world cartels."

After reviewing legislative and economic developments during the war years, Patton described "three major issues" of the post-war world and what to do about them as follows:

"In the international field we must learn to live in a peace based on patience, tolerance and understanding of the peoples who do not speak our language, who do not use our form of government and whose concepts are predicated upon centuries of economic, social and political backgrounds widely different from ours. Specifically, we must learn to live in this world with the great country of Russia. We simply must come to understand how Russian people think, why they do what they do, and then guide our foreign policy in terms of a firm position but with determination to cooperate to live in peace.

"The second great issue of our American society is the bringing about of an equitable distribution of the products and services of our economy in terms of prices, wages, and return on capital investment. With a productive capacity of $200 billion a year, we cannot afford to have any segment of this structure take more than its share. If we are to have a smoothly-functioning economy and to live in peace in the world, we must see that our economy provides an ever-increasing standard of living, not to just a few at the top, but to all our people.

"The third great issue of our times is really not an issue but a problem almost as old as humanity. All of our wars, all of our other ills, can really be traced back to the relationship of man to man. Many of us in the United States have violated most of the moral concepts of democracy in our attitudes on race. We must attune our minds and hearts to an equitable and decent standard of human relations between the races of the world. Racial prejudice is one of the most useful devices of bigots. Religious and nationality prejudices destroy decent relationships between people and make scapegoats of those least able to defend themselves. We of the white race are a minority in the world, but in spite of this we most frequently think of ourselves in Hitler's terms as being the master race. Scientific studies, biological, anthropological and other directions lend absolutely no support to this contention. Given equal environmental opportunities, human beings, regardless of the color of their skin, make about the same amount of progress. We in America, who, in spite of our shortcomings are still the greatest single hope for world democracy, must begin with democratic factors, and that is the democratic relationship between men of all races."

-30-

NEWS RELEASE

C. I. O. POLITICAL ACTION COMMITTEE

National Headquarters, 205 East 42nd Street, N. Y. 17, N. Y.
MURRAY HILL 3-5580

RELEASE UPON RECEIPT October 12, 1945

NOTE TO EDITORS: The story below deals with the National CIO drive outlined on page 1. Space has been left on the second page of this release for the insertion of the radio station in your community which will carry the radio programs.

NEW YORK,N.Y. - Supporting the National CIO's coast-to-coast campaign to present the true facts behind the current labor unrest and requests for wage increases, Jack Kroll, CIO Political Action Committee assistant chairman, this week urged all its field units to rally community backing in behalf of the national drive.

The National CIO's plans call for a special series of radio programs on a national hook up of the American Broadcasting Company, articles for the Negro, foreign language, rural and labor press, and increased publicity in the regular daily press.

Calling attention to the National CIO drive, of which, the PAC official said, "PAC, as a regular committee of the CIO, is giving it its utmost support," all field groups were told that this campaign "should be tied in to the general CIO legislative program for which we are fighting. For the question of wages and purchasing power is tied to our chances for full employment, improved social security and the other issues which Congress must pass on."

The PAC organizations were urged to inform all workers, their friends and relatives through letters, flyers, handbills, posters of the radio programs, to place advertisements in newspapers, busses, street cars, stores and other business establishments, to inform all farm, consumer, minority and other labor groups of the programs, and if feasible, to hold neighborhood rallies, to which city and public figures would be invited, and which would feature the CIO programs.

All labor editors were alerted for special full page advertisements bearing a special action message from CIO President Philip Murray, who is personally directing the campaign. All industrial union councils, core of the PAC organization, were urged to contract for space in newspapers for dynamic advertisements of the CIO position so that the barrage of propaganda layed down by big business interests to confuse the people would be negated.

The theme of the CIO drive, Kroll added, is that labor's requests are not selfish requests but are for the good of the nation. It will emphasize that only maintenance of purchasing power by wage increases will permit high production with the consumers able to buy the goods which American industry will produce.

(MORE)

NEWS RELEASE

C. I. O. POLITICAL ACTION COMMITTEE

National Headquarters, 205 East 42nd Street, N. Y. 17, N. Y.
MURRAY HILL 3-5580

RELEASE UPON RECEIPT October 12, 1945

NEW YORK, N.Y. - A complete review of CIO Political Action Committee work throughout the country will highlight a meeting of liaison representatives from CIO international unions here, October 22, Jack Kroll, Assistant CIO-PAC chairman, announced this week.

The conference will be under the direction of CIO-PAC chairman Sidney Hillman, who has returned from the World Trade Union Conference in Paris.

To accelerate and improve PAC activity, each international union has appointed one representative whose function is to coordinate PAC work in the various locals.

The agenda for the October 22 meeting includes reports from each liaison representative with particular emphasis on the status of PAC in the local unions, coordination of activity between the national and local offices, use of labor newspapers and educational material, and affiliation of locals to state and city councils and legislative work. A full discussion of the present PAC organizational structure, built around the Industrial Union Councils, and a review of the present Congressional situation with reference to the delegations now visiting Washington, status of pro-labor and anti-labor bills, and methods of PAC assistance to the CIO legislative committee will round out the morning parley.

The afternoon meeting will lead off with a discussion of PAC literature, including posters, pamphlets, leaflets and the newly-proposed radio transcription series. Attention will also be focused on those Congressional districts demanding special attention and the liaison people will debate methods of arousing greater action in these areas through literature, letter writing projects, and cooperation with other labor groups and progressive organizations. Great stress will be placed on local PAC organization in these congressional districts.

The conference will close with a discussion of support for the National $1 voluntary contribution drive and the National CIO wage drive, currently being publicized via radio, press and other media.

The names of liaison representatives of the various unions are:

(MORE)

Jules Korchien, Architects, Engineers, Chemists and Technicians; Richard Frankensteen, UAW; Adolph Rosenbaum, Barbers & Beauty Culturists; Cornelia Anderson, Food, Tobacco, Agriculture Workers; Jacob S. Potofsky, Frank Rosenblum, Amalgamated Clothing Workers; Josephine Timms, American Communications Association; Gaylord C. LeRoy, UE; Grant W. Oakes, Farm Equipment and Metal Workers; J.F. Jurich, Fishermen & Allied Workers; George Bucher, Furniture Workers of America; Martin Wagner, Gas, Coke & Chemical Workers; Louis Goldblatt, Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union; Franz Daniels, Marine & Shipbuilding Workers; Ralph Rogers, Maritime Union Of America.

James Leary, Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers; Joseph M. Walsh, Newspaper Guild; Evelyn Adler, Office & Professional Workers; O.A. Knight, Oil Workers Int'l Union; Svend Godfredsen, Packinghouse Workers; Henry Fruchter, Retail, Wholesale & Dept. Store Employees; T.R. Owens, United Rubber Workers of America; George Martin, Shoe Workers of America; Leonard Goldsmith, State, County & Municipal Workers; David J. McDonald, United Steelworkers of America; John C. Lawson, United Stone & Allied Products Workers of America; Albert Clifton, Textile Workers Union of America; George L-P. Weaver, United Transport Service Employees of America.

Maurice H. Forge, Transport Workers Union of America; Jack Altman, Utility Workers Union of America; John M. Fox, Inlandboatmen's Union of the Pacific; Nathan Jacobson, National Marine Cooks' & Stewards' Association.

# # #

uopwa #1

NEWS RELEASE

C. I. O. POLITICAL ACTION COMMITTEE

National Headquarters, 205 East 42nd Street, N. Y. 17, N. Y.
MURRAY HILL 3-5580

RELEASE UPON RECEIPT October 12, 1945

NOTE TO EDITORS: The story below deals with the National CIO drive outlined on page 1. Space has been left on the second page of this release for the insertion of the radio station in your community which will carry the radio programs.

NEW YORK, N.Y. - Supporting the National CIO's coast-to-coast campaign to present the true facts behind the current labor unrest and requests for wage increases, Jack Kroll, CIO Political Action Committee assistant chairman, this week urged all its field units to rally community backing in behalf of the national drive.

The National CIO's plans call for a special series of radio programs on a national hook up of the American Broadcasting Company, articles for the Negro, foreign language, rural and labor press, and increased publicity in the regular daily press.

Calling attention to the National CIO drive, of which, the PAC official said, "PAC, as a regular committee of the CIO, is giving it its utmost support," all field groups were told that this campaign "should be tied in to the general CIO legislative program for which we are fighting. For the question of wages and purchasing power is tied to our chances for full employment, improved social security and the other issues which Congress must pass on."

The PAC organizations were urged to inform all workers, their friends and relatives through letters, flyers, handbills, posters of the radio programs, to place advertisements in newspapers, busses, street cars, stores and other business establishments, to inform all farm, consumer, minority and other labor groups of the programs, and if feasible, to hold neighborhood rallies, to which city and public figures would be invited, and which would feature the CIO programs.

All labor editors were alerted for special full page advertisements bearing a special action message from CIO President Philip Murray, who is personally directing the campaign. All industrial union councils, core of the PAC organization, were urged to contract for space in newspapers for dynamic advertisements of the CIO position so that the barrage of propaganda layed down by big business interests to confuse the people would be negated.

The theme of the CIO drive, Kroll added, is that labor's requests are not selfish requests but are for the good of the nation. It will emphasize that only maintenance of purchasing power by wage increases will permit high production with the consumers able to buy the goods which American industry will produce.

(MORE)

The alternative, which is what we are suffering now, is a continually shrinking national pay envelope which can only lead to one result - another disastrous depression.

The first radio program was heard October 15 from Washington with President Murray addressing the country following the first session of the labor-management conference called by President Truman. Future programs to be heard over the American Broadcasting Company station, _____, on October 29, November 12 and November 26 at 10:00 p.m. Eastern Standard Time. CIO workers, telling their own hardships due to cuts in take-home pay, nationally-known public figures and stage and screen stars will join with President Murray in these programs.

# # #

uopwa #1

NEWS RELEASE

C. I. O. POLITICAL ACTION COMMITTEE

National Headquarters, 205 East 42nd Street, N. Y. 17, N. Y.
MURRAY HILL 3-5580

RELEASE UPON RECEIPT October 12, 1945

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in the series of special articles by outstanding government and labor officials on the issues which confront the American people presented by the CIO Political Action Committee. This article, written by U.S. Senator James Murray of Montana, a fearless progressive, clarifies the air of deceit which has enveloped the discussion on this vital legislation. Sen. Murray, author of the legislation recently passed in the Senate, explains the workings of this bill and how it can lead to our national goal - jobs for all willing and able to work.

* * *

WHAT THE GOVERNMENT CAN DO ABOUT JOBS

By Senator James Murray
Democrat, Mont.

The Full Employment Bill reflects the faith of its sponsors in the producers of the nation, and their conviction that through concerted expansion, our vast resources can be mobilized in peace for a steadily rising standard of living that will provide jobs for all who are willing and able to work. At the same time it recognizes that only the government is in a position to underwrite such concerted expansion, because only the government has a broad enough influence, and only the government can assume the risks involved.

The central feature of the bill is its declaration of the right to work. It constitutes a promise that the number of would-be workers in this country will be accepted as a goal, and that total purchasing power will be kept large enough to employ this number.

Fears and misapprehensions are rampant as to how the measure would work.

Some anticipate that it would operate by decree. To these it should be made clear that this is not a plan for directing the economy from a Washington blueprint. As members of Congress we would hardly impose upon ourselves such a heavy and impossible responsibility. There need be no guarantee of specific jobs or of individual profits; no government allocation of materials or equipment or production quotas; no bureaucratic determination of prices or output. Producers would still face competition and the ordinary risks of enterprise. Private properity rights would not be affected, and the authority of the central government would not be expanded.

(MORE)

Others think the measure is offered as a gap-filler. They regard it as a proposal for the government to take over whenever and to the extent that private business fails to generate enough demand. To these it should be emphasized that the aim is to prevent gaps, not to fill them. This is precisely why the bill instructs the President to submit to Congress an annual inventory of the spending plans of the various groups in the economy, consumers at home and abroad, businessmen, local, state and federal governments. The idea is to sum up these estimated outlays to see if they are likely to yield a total large enough to utilize the whole labor price. It if appears that together these groups will be trying to use more resources than are available, anti-inflation controls will be called for. But if the various groups plan to make use of fewer resources than are available, the government should be ready to take steps to stimulate private spending and production.

How might the government go about encouraging private production? Actually the legislation offers no cure-all; it does not commit Congress to any specific measure. It provides only the framework within which the functional groups in the economy can through their elected representatives cooperate in threshing out a coordinated many-sided program for achieving full employment.

There are, of course, many ways in which the government can stimulate economic activity. It can make technical research more available to small firms. It can collect and distribute the statistical information necessary to better market analysis. It can improve the banking and monetary system. It can revise the tax structure so that it does not cut disproportionately into risk-taking or into the market for goods and services. It can reduce the area of monopoly and thereby increase the output of producer and consumer goods and lower their prices. It can develop the natural resources of the nation and make them accessible to producers. It can increase the efficiency of producers' workers through such public services as better housing, education, health facilities, social insurance and recreation. It can take steps to encourage increased international specialization and exchange. The larger markets which result from putting the unemployed to work and from larger national income and expanded international trade will in turn permit of lower prices, higher wages and more investment.

Looked at in this way the objective is to direct public activities toward stimulating increased private activity.

Congress itself will decide how far to go in each of these directions. It will at each stage of our dynamic and evolving econory decide whether the situation calls for greater stress on consumer spending, on business outlays, or on public investment.

The final program that emerges from the discussion and debate over the national budget will reflect a compromise between the views of the President, the Joint Committee, the full membership of Congress and various groups throughout the country. But that compromise will represent a truly national economic policy, democratically worked out on the basis of full information and intelligent, coordinated study of an integrated program of action.

Most important of all is the fact that the individual effects of these various measures will add up to enough total activity to utilize all available workers. To the workers this means job security, self-respect and the material necessities of a good life. To all America it means the confidence enabling us to go forward toward permanent peace and prosperity.

# # #

uopwa #1

THINKING IT THROUGH
BY BEN DOR — LPA COLUMNIST
Vol. II No. 15
Week ending October 13, 1945

Labor Press Associates
1707 H Street, N. W.
Washington 6, D. C.

Men Of Anger

by Ben Dor
LPA Columnist

9. mitchell

I saw an ad the other day that said, "The war won't be over 'til the last boy is home"; -and not even then for millions of them, I added to myself. For when a soldier leaves the army, he doesn't become just a civilian. He becomes a veteran, and the war stays with him for a long time.

To a lot of veterans, it doesn't make so much difference. After a short period of readjustment, the man begins to get back in the groove again. His family and his friends help. His job helps too, especially if it's the same one he had before the war.

But others will need years of reconversion before they can get back in the groove. These will be the ones who were really marked by the war. Not marked physically; there will be a lot of disabled veterans who won't be a problem either to themselves or to anybody else. The marks will be mental, and therefore even harder to deal with.

And a lot of these veterans will be carrying around inside of them a great anger. They will be angry because they were first made into unwilling but wanted soldiers, and later into willing but unwanted veterans. They will be angry because we have talked so much - and so big - and done so little.

Many of these veterans will not even know at whom they are angry. And that will make it even worse, because it is a terrible thing to carry around an anger inside of you, without knowing just whom to be angry at, or just what to be angry about.

Veterans' Welfare Depends on Us

How many veterans will feel this way, or what will come of that feeling, will depend not just on the veteran alone. It will depend on you and me as well, and maybe more on us than on him. It will depend on what kind of a life we have ready for that veteran when he takes off his uniform and steps into his civilian clothes again.

If he steps out of the army and into a job, that's one thing. If he steps out into a depression, that will be something else again.

If the vet finds a life that is going smoothly, a life in which his own place is secure; a life in which his family is O.K.; a life in which his foxhole dreams can change into reality without a great shock - the veteran will be able to relax and drift smoothly into the future again.

But if the other thing happens, the anger already seething in many veterans will boil over, and then watch out.

Good Book About Veterans

These thoughts come to mind because I have just been reading a very stirring book on the veteran. It is called, "The Veteran Comes Back." It was written by a psychiatrist, himself a veteran, named Willard Waller.

It is a stirring book, and a very disturbing one at the same time. Take this paragraph, for instance:

> "No one supposes, of course, that all veterans are alike. As an army is an expression of the national culture, so is the man who has served in that army. American veterans could never behave like German veterans; they could never become Storm Troopers, never be the hired bullies, thugs, and assassins of a stupid counterrevolution. They could never make war against their fellow-citizens.
>
> "Or could they?"

(MORE)

The answer to the question he asks, Waller gives himself, in this summary of the first half of the book.

> "Let us suppose that at the end of the war the soldiers do not find their promised land, the Beulah land flowing with milk and honey, but find instead unemployment and neglect. Let us suppose that some of the veterans must go hungry, must beg on the streets, must sell their Purple Hearts and other medals, must wear their army uniform until it dissolves in rags, must walk the streets in wind and rain and snow to look for work and to be told there is no work by sleek civilians who have obviously done well for themselves during the war and have collected a great deal of money; and let us suppose that these civilians can still eat and drink and dance in the expensive night clubs while the hungry soldiers watch them from the outer darkness....
>
> "If then there comes a suitable demagogue to lead these veterans and to tell them what many already believe--that politicians are swindlers and their followers are born fools--if there comes a demagogue who tells them they have been suckers and talks against talk with overpowering eloquence and he leads these sullen soldiers in a fascist crusade, may not our democratic structure which even now totters at length collapse? Will the veterans of World War II turn into Storm Troopers who will destroy democracy?"

Waller tries to help find the answers to "the problem of the veteran." Most of us will agree with his recommendations on guidance and rehabilitation work. His remarks of work with the disabled, and on the adjustments we need to make so that the veteran can go back to school, make sense. And his underlining of the importance of full employment and a fully functioning economy might have come right out of a labor pamphlet.

Unionist-veterans Can Understand

Few labor people will feel as tender toward Gen. MacArthur as Waller seems to feel, and few of us will feel quite as good about the American Legion as he does. However, the important thing is not to quarrel with Waller about the Legion but to learn from him what it is that makes the Legion so important to the veteran. Labor should find it easy to understand the feeling of group solidarity and group protection that the veteran gets out of his organization.

If labor plans wisely, the labor hall can become a meeting place for veterans as well. The union counselling program can be made to be of tremendous help to veterans as well as other workers. And in labor's fight for full employment we are serving the vet -- and every other group in society -- every bit as much as ourselves.

Here is one of the great opportunities of our lives -- an opportunity to serve the people who served us so well, and to serve the ideals for which labor has fought so well. In a very significant way, this book can help.

-LPA-

FAITH AT WORK

October, 1945

Volume I Number 2

"Faith, if it hath not works, is dead."

James 2:17

Published Monthly by The Religious Associates of the National Citizens Political Action Committee

Acting on Faith

Rev. Horace W. McMullen, radio chairman of the Rhode Island Council of Churches and pastor of Edgewood Congregational Church, Providence, R. I., was awarded one of seven fellowships for study at one of the NBC Summer Institutes at Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco. The fellowships are given cooperatively by the National Broadcasting Company and the Congregational-Christian, Presbyterian USA, and Methodist Churches. Mr. McMullen is a Religious Associate and has done outstanding work in the promotion of religious radio programs.

Mr. Clayton F. Smith, president of the Cook County, Illinois, board of commissioners in an address at Chicago's Fourth Congregational Church reported by THE CHURCHMAN, August, 1945: "Neither you nor I can imagine those early settlers of this country shunning community politics as many church-goers do today.—If things need cleaning up, if improvements are necessary, it is certainly the duty of those people who see the need to try to do something about it."

Editor Emory Stevens Bucke, writing in the Zion's Herald, says: "Many churchmen would do well to trace the political influence that religion has. When decent people are shocked at evil conditions in the community or in the world, it is an evidence of their religious training and conviction.—Religion never reaches a point of satisfaction until it has been expressed in a positive way. . . . It is increasingly obvious that churchmen must get into politics if our democracy is to be saved."

Father Benjamin L. Masse, S.J., speaking at a memorial mass in New York on September 3, honoring labor's war dead, declared that bad influences in management include "the few who would be willing to set the returning veterans against the union and thus raise a barrier of enmity and distrust between soldiers and civilians." Emphasizing that the Church is not "promoting social discord," but rather seeking to pave the way for unity of purpose between labor and management, "for their own good and the good of society," Father Masse said that the Church is "preparing the way for an economic order more in accord with Christian ideals than the present one."

The Most Rev. Francis J. Haas, Bishop of Grand Rapids and first chairman of the FEPC, speaking on Labor Day said: "Now and without delay Congress should enact into law the Murray full employment bill, increase unemployment compensation up to a national level of $25

(Continued on page 4)

PHILIP MURRAY DELIVERS SERMON FOR SENATORS

PHILIP MURRAY
President, Congress of Industrial Organizations

"THY KINGDOM COME"
A Sermonette

Prepared by Dr. Carl D. Thompson, a Religious Associate and Secretary of the Public Ownership League of America.

"Jesus taught his disciples to pray—'Thy Kingdom Come; Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven.' He also urged them to 'Seek Ye first the Kingdom of God and its righteousness.'

What was this Kingdom of God idea that Jesus emphasized in all His teachings, and made it the first duty His followers were to perform?

First of all, it was something to be achieved on this earth, here and now. He urged his followers to seek to transform the whole social order, until it conformed to the will of God and brought justice to all.

Also, this Kingdom idea as Jesus taught it, meant material welfare to all. He fed the hungry, clothed the naked and healed the sick; and made such ministrations the test of loyalty to Him.

Today the church, as well as progressives generally, are beginning to appreciate these teachings. And the failure of the world to accept and follow them has brought us all the unspeakable tragedies of war and our civilization to the verge of utter annihilation.

What must we do to be saved? We must begin at once to do anything and everything we can that will help to make this world a better world—more just, more kindly, more mutually helpful—the Kingdom of fraternity foretold. An immediate task, right here in our own community, that will help is to work for public power at cost. Meanwhile, we must protect and preserve the democracy we have and press on to its fulfillment."

We present excerpts from the testimony of Philip Murray, president of the CIO, given before the Senate Banking and Currency subcommittee considering the Full Employment Bill. This is a "sermon" for the Senate.—Editor.

Do you know what it means for ten million people who want to work to be without employment and without an income? I am not asking you to visualize ten million bales of cotton heaped up in piles, or ten million army trucks and military weapons lying idle, or ten million books on library shelves. I'm talking about ten million living breathing human beings who must have continuous employment with a good income to provide themselves and their 20 million dependents with food, clothing and shelter.

We are a powerful nation, in every sense. Are we going to master our own economic system or are we going to allow the cycle of unemployment, hunger and depression to lead us again to war? Are we masters of the force of nature, but unable to prevent little children in the workers' homes from being undernourished because their parents can't have a job? Are we talking about a world of atomic power, radar and electronics, while Americans are right now wondering how they are going to get the necessities of life?

For all these people and their families the hourly burning question is whether they can expect soon to be gainfully re-employed—or for how long if they do get a job. This doubt darkens their view of the world ahead. They and the whole country need some immediate, concrete evidence that their elected representatives understand the needs of today as they understand them.

Imperative Legislation

We want this Senate Bill 380 passed, but it is only a part of the legislation we know is necessary.

The Kilgore-Forand Unemployment Compensation bill should be picked up at once and moved on to passage.

We must have the Pepper amendment to the Wage-Hour Act, so there will be an increased number of workers provided a minimum wage, and to increase that minimum wage from 40 to 65 cents an hour.

There has been two years of dawdling over the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill to improve old-age retirement pensions, establish health insurance and provide other Social Security advances. Hearings should begin at once.

We expect Congress to pass the permanent Fair Employment Practices Act to abolish discrimination from our midst.

There must be further improvement in existing laws that provide help for demobilized veterans, especially for those permanently disabled in the service of democracy.

A whole new concept of tax legislation must be worked out, to provide relief for low income

(Continued on page 2)

Spurs to Action . . .

This column is reserved each month for quotations from the remarks of public figures whose mouthings remind us that there is work to be done. Your contributions are solicited.

THEODORE G. BILBO

Tens of thousands of individuals, hundreds of organizations, are telling their Senators and Congressmen that they must speak up in condemnation of a man whose blatant racism is a threat to basic American democratic principles.

The Catholic Committee on Human Rights has declared that his attacks on Jews, Negroes, Italian-Americans, and other groups are "a chilling deterrent to the world-wide belief that America is a symbol of democracy, freedom and human rights." The Southern Methodist Women's Organization denounced Bilbo as "unchristian and ungentlemanly."

Bilbo believes in Hitler's racial doctrine. On May 24, 1938 he said: "The Germans appreciate the importance of race values. The only justifiable war . . . is a war between a superior and an inferior race."

Among his recent remarks and writings was a letter to a Religious Associate, the Rev. Francis M. Ruland of Sioux City, Iowa, from which we quote: "Let me suggest to you that you had better stay with your Bible and study and become more able to properly interpret the scriptures and to lead your flock on the highway to Heaven instead of trying to stick your ecclesiastical proboscis into governmental affairs. . . . I naturally think you ought to study your Bible more; otherwise you would not be a Unitarian." The letter was dated July 4th.

Writing Miss Josephine Piccolo of New York who protested his filibuster against FEPC, he addressed her as "My dear 'Dago' " and told her to keep her "dirty proboscis out of the other 47 states." To Rabbi Stanley R. Brav of Vicksburg, Miss., he wrote: "I express the hope that you will soon make arrangements to move to New York where you can live in an atmosphere better suited to your type."

Writing the Rev. Ralph Mark Gilbert of Savannah, Ga.: "The Negro race . . . has made no progress at all . . . I prophesy that with the return of these million or more Negro soldiers that have been coddled and misled into believing that as a result of this war they . . . they will be permitted all the social and political rights that are the province of the white man, 'hell is going to break loose' ".

Writing Paul Bloch, a mazine writer: "I imagine I would have one helluva time trying to digest all that New York is furnishing to its citizens at this time with about 2 million Jews, 500,000 or 600,000 Negroes, 500,000 or 600,000 Italians, Poles, and alien nationalities from all parts of the world . . ."

MR. HEARST'S MIRROR

"The World Charter, quixotic as it is, might be workable without Russia, but with her, we are always faced by war."

WALL STREET JOURNAL

"Small towns in the South and midwest which overnight became focal points for war production will have to revert to their peacetime function as marketplaces for the surrounding rural community." 8-15-45.

REP. GEORGE B. SCHWABE

Says this Republican from Oklahoma: "It goes without saying that all consider a system of economy ideal where every person able to work would be provided with a job. This would be utopia. But it is not possible of fulfillment and realization under any system of economy. Neither can it be closely approximated."

THE ADVERTISING MIND

Ralph Blodgett, head of an advertising agency in Des Moines, Ia., in an article in the University of Illinois' Opinion and Comment: "It is to be hoped that depressions are never abolished for they have many desirable features. Those who learn to ride the business cycle can find as many advantages in depressions as in booms—personal as well as business advantages. Smart folks take advantage of the boom . . . they are then ready for depression-time bargains, bargains in every conceivable thing from a suit of clothes to a railroad."

"Congress Needs to Rise to the Challenge

(Continued from page 1)

groups and to pull the idle wealth of the nation into healthy economic circulation.

We insist that the anti-Poll Tax measure is a non-partisan responsibility of both Senate and House, so that we may extend the franchise to every American.

The need is great to modernize America postwar. There must be prompt action on the great program of roads, schools, hospitals, housing. The money already authorized for highways should be available at once. The Missouri Valley Authority is imperative, because of the new wealth it will bring to our nation.

The control of atomic power must forever rest in the hands of the whole American people. No group of private monopolists can be allowed to seize and wield control over these forces of life and death.

Congress has an enormous opportunity and a solemn responsibility. The country must be mobilized for an attack upon poverty, ignorance and fear. No one can say such a mobilization will cost us too much; the contrary is true—it will cost us too much to fail.

The total dollar cost of the war will be more than 400 billions. The sales lost through mass unemployment of Americans during the depression totalled 355 billion dollars. Even greater than wages and profit loss was the suffering of people which cannot be measured.

I insist that every citizen has a right to a job at a high income, commensurate with work performed.

I insist that it is the responsibility of the national government to assure that right.

I insist that all the resources of the government should be applied to make it effective.

My idea is not merely that work shall be created through appropriation of public funds to keep people from starving on a 55-dollars-a-month WPA. We are talking here today about potentials of new wealth greater than we have ever conceived, created by the application of skill, intelligence and energy in such volume that really substantial fruits of victory will spread throughout the world.

Some questions are in order: Are we concerned about the health and care of mothers and children only when the husband and father is being killed or mutilated? Are we willing to provide housing on the basis of people's need for it only when soldiers in foxholes have no home or place to lay their head? Are we agreeable to feeding people more adequately when they are making or using engines of destruction but care nothing about nourishment of the same people when war is done?

If the Congress fails to do now what I have pointed out as necessary a great deal more will be necessary a year from now.

Passage of this measure (Senate Bill 380) will be the legal acknowledgment that the national government is willing to assume the responsibility for prosperity in peacetime. The bill does not, of course, either bring full employment or say how the new high standard of living shall be attained. It is the declaration of intention and the provision of the means to start the job.

I think of the history of the Panama Canal as an illustration. We spent a century talking about digging a canal; Congress didn't pass the enabling legislation until 1902. The bill didn't contain all the specifications and engineering data. Enactment of the law merely said: It is the purpose of the nation to have a canal. There were many difficulties to overcome and much effort to be put forth before it was accomplished. But the canal was finished and the great oceans of the Atlantic and the Pacific were joined for the betterment of commerce and communication.

"THE FOUR BRAVE CHAPLAINS" is one of a series for American Democracy, an organization directed by th York, Boston and Minneapolis.

These stirring posters are available for local sponso or others.

The outdoor advertising company in your community American Democracy or the Religious Associates.

This Senate Bill 380 is enabling legislation, the objective of which is to unite the two great oceans of production and consumption so that commerce may increase and full employment be attained.

There is a certain disgrace that this measure and a score of similar imperative measures were not enacted into law a year ago. Some very important people were asleep at Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941; there is even greater condemnation for having been asleep at this second, economic Pearl Harbor.

Back in the summer of 1940 the big industrialists were unwilling to take orders for production of war goods unless they received certain unreasonable assurances. When new plants had to be built to increase output they refused to move until the national government guaranteed them that the cost of such plants would be amortized in five years. This has meant that the products turned out from these plants have been priced at least 20 per cent higher than they should have been. In consequence these plants have been paid for by the people, but are privately owned by the corporations.

In April, 1942, President Roosevelt sent to Congress the seven-point stabilization program, which was delayed and dilly-dalleyed over and amended until a weakened economic stabilization act was passed. The adverse economic consequences of selecting only wage control for real policing with almost no concern about profits and too little concern about prices, is apparent in the imbalance now existing betwen property ownership and workers' income.

In October, 1942, the Kilgore-Pepper-Tolan bill for total war mobilization was rejected.

In April, 1943, Congress repealed the $25,000 limitation on personal salaries, again giving concern only to those who have too much and ignoring the great mass of the people who have too little.

In February, 1944, there was the overriding of the President's veto of tax legislation, a bill which was aptly described as giving "relief for the greedy, not for the needy."

In August, 1944, after assuring corporations of all costs plus profits in a contract termination act, and promising them the exclusive use of government-owned plants in the Surplus War Property Act, Congress refused to report and pass the Murray-Kilgore bill to provide unemployment compensation and transportation costs to war workers.

Even though Congress did enact the War Mobilization and Reconversion Act of 1944 with its Title V calling for planning and preparation of public works through the Public Works Administrator, the 150-million-dollar appropriation requested to

of the Times - To the Atomic Age" — Murray of 24-sheet outdoor billboards prepared by the Institute e Rev. William C. Kernan and maintaining offices in New ship by business firms, church groups, civic organizations can give you further information or write the Institute for begin the engineering and blue-print work was rejected, the House Ways and Means Committee driving the figure down to a picayunish five million until a more sensible Senate came to the rescue and insisted on 17½ million dollars—a somewhat better but completely inadequate amount. The American Society of Civil Engineers shows a goal of ten billion dollars worth of private construction projects with only 404 million ready for bids and a goal of five billion dollars worth of public construction projects with only 805 million ready for bids.

Last July 20 a special interim tax measure was made law to hasten the return to the wealthy of some of the taxes they had been charged from their excess war profits. This action was taken at the same time President Truman's message urging unemployment compensation legislation was laying untouched. This action was particularly brazen because of the broken promise concerning the 1944 Murray-Kilgore bill with its provisions for reconversion needs of people.

The typical American corporation is protected against reconversion loss of income to the extent of 15 years of normal net income on the base of 1936-1939. If this huge sum were available to workers, it would mean that the average wage earner now has on hand war savings in the amount of $7,200, will shortly receive a tax refund of $1,200 from the United States Treasury, and in case of reduced earnings, or no earnings, during the next year or two, could call on the Treasury for additional payments up to $9,600. His total protection for the transition would add up to $18,000.

Instead of such a sum, each wage earner has on the average only about $300 backlog of savings. This includes the great bulk who have nothing as well as those who are lucky enough to have saved a thousand dollars or more. Even if the full $25 per week of unemployment compensation urged by President Truman and the labor movement should be paid, for the full 26-week period suggested, the total amount would be only $650. This is no amount to support a family adequately for a half year! This sum is a meager attraction for a sales manager.

I take this occasion to put the question directly to every member of this Committee and to all the members of the Senate: Do you want to see unemployment of Americans? I am not satisfied to listen in reply to legalistic double-talk. I am not interested in a sterile discussion about isolated phrases and whether the "right" to a job and a good income is an introduction of "tyranny," or any other nonsense talk.

The kind of society we have organized makes high income of the mass of people an economic necessity, quite aside from the ethical truth that common men and women should have a good share of the good things of life.

Help Business

Here, then, is the primary reason for the Full Employment Bill, S. 380. The manager of an individual business enterprise always makes his production plans on a scarcity basis, that is, he will make and offer for sale just a tiny bit less than his sales manager tells him the market can absorb. The merchandise is priced accordingly. For him to produce more than he can sell in the face of low purchasing power and competition of other products would be to create an unsalable surplus and leave him with a loss. All business men operate this way.

Through this bill, therefore, it is proposed that the national government shall step in with certain guarantees in order to reassure the individual business man, so he will be agreeable to expanding his production.

A second gigantic World War in our times, at the end of which we midwifed the atomic bomb, has forced us to adapt to new technics even before our social and political institutions were adapted to the older technics. The result is an even more rapidly extended technology, even further out of line with our institutions. A British columnist wrote last week in a London newspaper: "While the general election killed conservatism in England, the atomic bomb killed it all over the world." There is time to speed up lagging mentalities, but not too much!

Even while I support the bill and urge you quick action upon it, there is a certain word in it which alarms me. "When there is a prospective deficiency in the National Budget . . ." it says. The bill gives private enterprise two chances to make good—once under its own steam, and once with a stimulating injection by government. When private enterprise then fails, it calls for a making up of a "deficiency." This is certainly not the real vision we should have of the brave new world we are building.

The "deficiency" thinking is an upside-down approach to our full production potential. Our vision is that now, for the first time in our history, all Americans can have abundance because we can all work together with science and technology to create abundance. This is not talk against private enterprise; rather it is a plea for a program that will permit private enterprise to really do its stuff!

This Senate Bill 380 provides the machinery for the planning, the estimating, the calculating of our full potential. We do not look upon this and related legislation in the manner of a vice-president in charge of sales trying to figure out how many units of his company's product he can sell in a market where only a fraction of the people are employed, and where those who do have jobs have incomes so small they constitute only a trickle instead of a river of purchasing power. We are approaching the question from the other side.

We need to determine not how many people can normally buy shoes or afford houses with plumbing, but how many pairs of shoes the American people need a year and how much plumbing. One cannot raise objections about such planning that it involves controls. Certainly controls are necessary; they are present by necessity in the economy we have. Controls are merely laws. The main question is whether the controls shall be exercised democratically through government—such as the traffic laws are—or whether they shall be the controls imposed upon the people by financial barons without democratic ideas who make their decisions based on their own narrow and selfish interests.

The job can be done; it must be if we are to survive.

Issues For Action . . .

UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION

Legislation (House bill 3891, Senate bill 1274) would provide up to $25 a week for 26 weeks for unemployed. Legislation covers seamen, food processing workers, U. S. government employees and others too often ignored. It provides special veterans benefits and travel aid for stranded war workers.

SEN. VANDENBERG (Mich.) and REP. DOUGHTON (N. C.) in the Senate Finance and House Ways and Means Committees, respectively, are trying to kill this necessary legislation.

ACTION NEEDED: Write or wire your Senators and representative urging passage of these bills as written.

FULL EMPLOYMENT BILL

This bill (Senate 380) would acknowledge U. S. responsibility for full employment, either by U. S. private industry or with Federal aid.

SENATOR TAFT (Ohio) leads the opposition. He's using usual Taft and reactionary tactic of trying to kill progressive legislation with crippling amendments.

ACTION NEEDED: Remind Senators and Representatives that both parties committed themselves to full employment during last campaign. Read Phil Murray testimony in this issue for more information.

MINIMUM WAGE

Last issue of FAITH AT WORK carried plea for your support of bills (Senate 1349, House 3914) to make 65c minimum hourly wage. We would appreciate advice on any action you have taken to tell your representatives and Senators that this is part of minimum postwar program.

SOCIAL SECURITY

WAGNER-MURRAY AND DINGELL bills (S.1050 and HR 3293) extend present social security coverage to new people, increases coverage for all. Its health and welfare benefits are sorely needed. Similar legislation has been pending for 2 years without hearings on the bill.

ACTION NEEDED: Insist that your Senators and Representative demand immediate hearings on this vital legislation.

FAIR EMPLOYMENT

Bills to establish a permanent Fair Employment Practices Commission have been favorably reported out of Labor committees of both House and Senate. House bill is now caught in reactionary House Rules Committee, dominated by Southern congressmen. 218 signatures to Discharge Petition No. 4 will bring it to floor for consideration of House members.

ACTION NEEDED: Ask your representative to sign Discharge Petition No. 4.

Worth Using

PAMPHLETS

Labor's Enemy — Anti-Semitism. Anti-Defamation League, 100 N. La Salle St., Chicago 2, Ill. 5 cents single copy.

I Know My Neighbors, by Joe Doakes. Anti-Defamation League. Pocket-sized pamphlet for mass distribution.

For The People's Health (with summary of the Wagner-Murray-Dingell Bill). The Physicians' Forum, 510 Madison Avenue, New York 22, N. Y.

Emerging Conflicts of Faith. Address by Henry Nelson Wieman at Convocation Service, Divinity School of Chicago University. Mimeographed copies available from The Religious Associates, 205 E. 42nd St., New York 17, N. Y.

Labor Day Message and CIO News Report to Congress. United Christian Council for Democracy, Richard Morford, director, 457 West 123rd St., New York 27, N. Y.

ARTICLES

Christianity and the Worker, Benson Y. Landis and James Myers in the Adult Student, September, 1945, pages 19-38. C. A. Brown, editor, Board of Education of the Methodist Church, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tennessee.

The Church and Labor. Francis J. McConnell in the Highroad, September, 1945, Methodist Church, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tennessee.

The Monthly Message

We plan to publish each month a special message from a member of the Religious Associates. Here is one from Dr. Willard Uphaus, director of the Religion and Labor Foundation.—Dwight J. Bradley, Director, Religious Associates.

As early as 1926 Dr. Jerome Davis, the founder of the National Religion and Labor Foundation, wrote letters to eminent men in the church and the labor movement to find out whether they joined him in feeling the need for a movement to bring organized labor and the institutions of religion into mutual understanding and cooperation for justice and democracy. Among those who lent encouragement were Bishop Francis J. McConnell, Dr. Harry F. Ward, William Green and A. Philip Randolph.

The work actually began in the fall of 1932. Like similar organizations the Foundation appeared on the scene when the depression of the 30's brought such spiritual and economic havoc to millions of our people. The membership in those years, made up mainly of a small minority of clergymen of the various faiths and races, worked heroically by preaching justice in practical terms. They opened churches for the organization of the unemployed, supported remedial measures in state legislatures and in Congress, gave publicity to and raised funds for the first share-cropper unions, and vigorously defended the new CIO unions that were being so bitterly fought by the vested interests. Much of this activity on behalf of the unorganized and down-trodden was inspired by the Social Action Questionnaire of 1935 which went to over 100,000 religious leaders.

Probably one of the most formative influences of the Foundation from 1936 to 1940 were the traveling economic seminars for students and ministers. These trips, set up with great care and lasting a month, brought the seminar members into direct contact with reality and produced an emotional identification with the underprivileged.

When conditions became more stabilized, so that labor held an integral and responsible role in the American community, the emphases of the Foundation changed.

In 1939 the Interseminary Division was set up to encourage theological students and teachers to gain first-hand knowledge of labor through studying its aims and history, through personal acquaintance with labor leaders, and through helpful cooperation with unions in the seminary community. Two national and many regional interseminary conferences have been held at which the delegates reconsidered the meaning of our Judaic-Christian tradition in terms of social and economic needs. Today the Foundation's influence is felt in forty of the leading seminaries, and it bids fair to play an important part in the reorientation of theological education.

A second recent development is the appearance of Religion and Labor Fellowships and Councils in many of the principal cities in the United States and Canada. Men and women in the churches, synagogues, and unions felt the great necessity of banding together to resist reactionary forces and to win for all people in their communities the basic rights and responsibilities so prophetically set forth in President Roosevelt's Economic Bill of Rights. These local organizations in New Haven, Columbus, Dayton, Chicago, Vancouver, Calgary, Toronto, to name just a few—are teaching clergyman, layman, organizer, union member how to think and work together. The movement is growing from coast to coast. It is truly continental in its scope and outreach. The Foundation is rapidly becoming international.

Today, when we are faced with the tremendous task of making democracy and fair-dealing the living experience of all people, Religion and Labor become the most natural and necessary affiliates of our time. Because of their common aims and ideals and because of their great numerical strength they are in a position to help shape the destiny of America, and so affect the future of the whole world.

Acting on Faith . . .

(Continued from page 1)

a week for a period of at least twenty-six weeks; increase the present hourly minimum from 40 to 75 cents; broaden the social security act to include health insurance, and appropriate adequate sums for public works."

Dr. Henry Nelson Wieman in the Convocation Address at the Chicago Divinity School declared: "A new faith is about to be generated. This faith might be expressed thus: Faith in the virtue, in the rightness, and in the necessity of releasing the full power of technology for industrial production to feed and shelter humanity and equip the spirit of man. This faith is not yet fully emerged, but it is coming. It will dominate the age we are entering. It is rising in power and cannot be stopped." Dr. Wieman is a Religious Associate. The full text of his address may be obtained from the office of the Religious Associates.

John C. Granbery, Religious Associate and editor of "The Emancipator," Dallas, Texas, writes: "There is a unique feature about the Religious Associates that may well be cultivated. Through the years I have been a member of innumerable organizations . . . but they all have one feature in common: they are one-way affairs; there is no round-trip ticket. You send your cheque; you sign your name to some document; you write letters to Congressmen, Governors, etc. The program is made out for you; you take it or leave it. You have no part in policy-forming.

"But you invite suggestion and seek counsel. You are even interested in our own effort to fight it out here on the spot."

After Secretary of State James E. Byrnes, who comes from South Carolina, told the Bulgarian Provisional Government that "The will of the majority of the people can be determined only if all the people are able to vote free from force and intimidation," Dr. Frank Kingdon, Vice-Chairman of National Citizens PAC, remarked on an ABC radio broadcast: "Some Europeans wondered about this, but concluded Byrnes wants them to try universal suffrage in Bulgaria, so if it works he can recommend it to South Carolina."

The Religious Associates
NATIONAL CITIZENS POLITICAL ACTION COMMITTEE
An Independent, Non-Partisan Organization
205 East 42nd Street New York 17, N. Y.

10

Sec. 562 P. L. & R.
U. S. Postage
PAID
New York, N. Y.
Permit No. 4131

Dr. George S. Mitchell
Southern Regional Council
Wesleyan Mem. Church Bldg.
Atlanta, Ga.

Reading

IMMEDIATE ACTION

A Report to America on RADIO BROADCASTING
Prepared by the
NATIONAL CITIZENS POLITICAL ACTION COMMITTEE
October, 1945

CONTROL OF BROADCASTING IS "TOP PRIORITY" ISSUE

Hearst, Patterson, McCormick, Gannett Among Many Reactionaries Seeking New Licenses

As a responsible citizen interested in your country's welfare you have been urged to act on many important issues. We urge you to act now on an issue as important as any which has ever confronted you.

This publication includes a brief report on American radio and tells what will happen to the most important instrument for informing the public and molding public opinion, if you and others fail to act immediately.

Briefly:

Ten years ago Major Edwin Armstrong, a brilliant engineer of Columbia University, developed a new means of broadcasting, known as "frequency modulation" or FM.

FM broadcasting is static-free. It makes possible the licensing of hundreds of new broadcasting stations. Its potentialities for public service are limitless, if the Federal Communications Commission is able to protect the public's interest and prevent control of FM from falling into the hands of those who have demonstrated a lack of responsibility to the public.

There is a grave danger that the invaluable rights to use publicly-owned radio channels will be gobbled up by the "insiders" who now control standard (AM) broadcasting, and that many licenses will go to the Hearsts, Pattersons, McCormicks, Gannetts, and others who already control a high percentage of the nation's newspaper circulation and numerous radio stations.

The Federal Communications Commission has announced that it will begin granting licenses for FM broadcast stations on October 7. A great majority of the applicants who will receive FCC consideration on that and subsequent dates are those who now control standard broadcasting and the nation's largest newspapers and newspaper chains. You must act now, before too many choice frequencies are assigned.

You must act now to prevent control of FM from falling into these hands or the fight on other issues which interest you today and which will interest you in the months and years ahead will be the harder to win.

This report, including a brief digest of the system of licensing, some startling facts on the present state of American broadcasting, and the prospects for FM, is being addressed to thousands of civic leaders throughout the nation. If each one acts, as an individual and as a member of organizations, there is still hope that FM radio can be made the public instrument it should be. Read this report carefully. It has a direct bearing on your life and the lives of your children for decades to come.

ELMER A. BENSON
Chairman, Executive Council
National Citizens Political Action Committee

By Way of Background

Radio Channels Belong to the People

The air waves—the ether—the channels for broadcast operation belong to the public.

The right to broadcast is granted in licenses issued under an Act of Congress—the Communications Act of 1934.

In this act, the Congress wisely provided that radio stations should be operated only for the "public interest, convenience, and necessity," and licenses for broadcasting are granted for limited periods of time. It is specifically noted in the Act that this use does not give the licensee "any right beyond the terms, conditions, and period of the license" and that "the license shall not vest in the licensee any right to operate the station beyond the term thereof, nor in any other manner than authorized therein."

It is the job of the Federal Communications Commission to grant licenses and the Commission is prohibited from granting licenses for longer than three year periods. It is further stipulated that action on license renewal applications "shall be limited to and governed by the same considerations and practice which affect the granting of original applications." Too, licensees are prohibited from transferring or assigning their licenses to others until the FCC has found that the public interest will be served by the transfer.

Thus, the law seeks to prevent the growth of a vested interest in broadcasting, to give existing stations no advantage over others seeking to enter the field, and to keep the door open for new applicants better able to serve the public interest.

Every three years, according to the law, a licensee is expected to prove anew his operation in the public interest, and his renewal application must be given no advantage over the application of a newcomer.

The title to the radio spectrum in which stations operate is reserved expressly to the people. The radio channels belong to the people.

The Federal Communications Commission

The protection of the public interest in radio has been placed by the Congress in the hands of the Federal Communications Commission, seven men appointed for seven-year terms by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate.

The Commission is the guardian of the people's property—the radio spectrum. It determines whether applicants for use of this public property will use it in the public interest. It is expected to grant licenses and see that licensees make proper use of the public property.

The seven present commissioners of the FCC are:

Paul A. Porter, chairman, a Democrat who was formerly counsel for the Columbia Broadcasting System, former rent administrator of the OPA, and publicity director of the Democratic National Committee during the 1944 presidential campaign.

Paul A. Walker, a Democrat of Oklahoma, the senior member of the Commission and former state public utility commissioner of Oklahoma.

Clifford J. Durr, a Democrat of Alabama, and former general counsel of the Defense Plant Corporation.

Charles A. Denny, a Democrat of the District of Columbia and formerly general counsel of the FCC.

Ray C. Wakefield, a Republican of California, and formerly public utilities commissioner of California.

E. K. Jett, non-party, and former chief engineer of the Commission.

W. H. Wills, a Republican of Vermont, and former governor of Vermont.

The Granting of Licenses

Applicants for licenses to operate broadcasting stations are required to establish their legal and financial qualifications and to provide details about their engineering and program plans. If the FCC determines that the application is made by an individual or group which will serve the public interest, the license is granted. If, however, it has doubts about the qualifications of the applicant, or if there are more applications on file than can be granted, the application is designated for hearing. These hearings are public and are held to determine whether the application should be granted or denied.

AM licenses—those for standard broadcasting stations—are granted for three years, while FM licenses, for the new frequency modulation stations, are at present granted for only one year.

Under the law each renewal application must receive the same consideration as an original application, a most necessary precaution to protect the public interest.

Government By Pressure

As you reflect on the current state of broadcasting in the United States you will find it possible to direct criticism at the Federal Communications Commission for the prevailing conditions. The act of Congress establishing the Commission gives it sufficient power to protect the public's right, yet we, the people, must accept responsibility, too, for our own inaction.

Like many another Government agency, the FCC is subject to the day-to-day pressure of those with whom it must deal. In the case of the FCC its work has been largely with the big broadcasters, whose lobbyists in Washington are ever-active, clever, and well financed. Our history is replete with cases of small, powerful, well-organized lobbies for special interests who have been successful in thwarting the will of the people as expressed in acts of Congress. It is only when the people evidence their awareness and interest that Government regulatory agencies are able to operate with true effectiveness.

To prevent the FCC from becoming the complete tool of the powerful broadcasters and newspapers, the people—you, we—must act. Given proper support, an evidence of our interest, the members of the Federal Communications Commission will be in a position to resist monopolist pressure and control radio within the purposes of the Acts of Congress. The law specifically prohibits the FCC from exercise of censorship—from interfering with free speech, but we have no protection from the censorship of private interests, unless the FCC performs its licensing duties with a sense of public responsibility.

RADIO TODAY

Station Profits as High as 500% a Year
NAM Members Exercise Great Control
One-third of Nation Gets No Daytime Service Stations Reject Good Programs For Sales

Who Controls the Air?

We have today some 900 standard (AM) broadcast stations varying greatly in size or power. Thus, a 50,000 watt station on a clear-channel uses 200 times as much power and occupies 40 to 80 times as much channel space in the spectrum as a 250-watt local station.

There are, for example, 10 clear-channel 50,000 watt stations licensed to members of the National Association of Manufacturers which utilize more power and more space in the spectrum than all of the nation's 444 local 250-watt stations put together. The same is true of the 7 clear-channel stations licensed to CBS and its stockholders, and of 8 clear-channel stations licensed to newspapers.

More than 2/3 of all stations, including substantially all the powerful stations, are affiliated with one or more of the four national networks, further concentrating control.

Control of the networks themselves is exercised by a few big advertisers and advertising agencies. Thus:

26% of CBS's revenue in 1944 came from 4 advertisers, and 38% from four advertising agencies.

25% of the Blue network's business came from 4 advertisers and 37% came from four advertising agencies.

23% of Mutual's business came from 4 advertisers and 31% came from 4 advertising agencies.

More than half of all network revenues came from 2 industries, drugs and toilet goods, 27.9%; and foods and food beverages (22.4%).

The largest single group of broadcast station operators today are the big newspaper publishers, approximately 250 stations being owned by or affiliated with newspapers.

In more than 110 cities, where there is only one newspaper publisher and only one radio station, the radio station is owned by or affiliated with the newspaper publisher.

Some 208 newspapers, which also owned radio stations, took sides in the 1944 political campaign. Of these, at least 152 or 73% supported Dewey.

The N.A.M.

Mention has been made of the 10 clear-channel stations—equivalent of more than 444 local stations—owned by members of the N.A.M.

The N.A.M.'s control of a high percentage of radio does not stop there. 46 corporations listed among the largest contributors to the N.A.M. bought more than $71,000,000 worth of time on the 4 major networks in 1944.

The NAM also conducts an intense campaign to secure free time for programs to present "the businessman's point of view." In conducting the campaign they use the names of such large network advertisers as Donald S. Adams, president of Standard Brands, and Alfred P. Sloan, jr., chairman of the board of General Motors, as a bludgeon to secure free time. As a result of the N.A.M. power exercised over certain licensees, who are members of the N.A.M., and by reason of its overwhelming radio time purchases, the N.A.M. is able to boast that it has secured as much as $1,000,000 worth of free time in a single year.

It should also be noted that N.A.M. members have sponsored network commentators who, day after day, present the N.A.M. point of view. Upton Close, sponsored by Sheaffer Pen, an N.A.M. member, was an example of this influence.

Too, N.A.M. employees have even been presented to the public in daily broadcasts over national networks as "impartial" commentators without any revelation that they were not impartial, but on the N.A.M. payroll. This, for several years, was the case of Fulton Lewis, jr.

Public Service?

In a recent article in Consumer Reports, Commissioner Clifford J. Durr cited three stations as examples of the current state of American broadcasting.

Station A "licensed to use one of the best of the broadcasting channels and 50,000 watts of power" devoted 87.5% of its time to commercial programs, and only 12.5 to non-commercial programs. Most of the sustaining (non-commercial) programs were on Saturday and Sunday; on the other days commercial programs occupied fourteen out of fifteen hours.

"In addition to its commercial programs the station broadcast 329 commercial spot announcements between its programs, as compared with only six non-commercial or public service announcements."

This station had revenue of $1,000,000, spent only 3c out of each dollar of revenue for program talent, and "its net profits before taxes in 1943 yielded it a return of 265% on the depreciated value of its entire investment in broadcasting property." Only 39% of its revenue was needed for payment of all expenses, including depreciation.

Station B, Durr reported, is a medium-powered station. "Four days a week, no sustaining programs whatsoever are broadcast from 5 a.m., when the station goes on the air, until 10:30 p.m. when the listener may hear a 5-minute sustaining sports review." For the week as a whole, less than one percent of the station's time is devoted to sustaining programs of local origin.

Station C, a local station, operating daytime only, with 250 watts power, "originally procured its license after representing to the Commission that it would broadcast "sketches, music, duets, quartets, excerpts from opera, cuttings from great plays, literary characterizations . . . and general interpretation of literary works that are not ordinarily acceptable to the general layman." The applicant also obtained a station on the grounds that the community had excellent talent deserving of a radio outlet.

"An examination of this station's program log for a sample week in 1944, however, shows that 88.4 percent of its time was devoted to mechanically produced music. Less than 3.3 percent of its time was devoted to the 'excellent talent' which the applicant assured the Commission was available in the community. The station's programs were interspersed with 1,042 spot announcements or one every 5.5 minutes . . . (of which) 8 were broadcast as public service." This station "even after paying its Federal income taxes still had left a profit of 200 percent on its net assets. In short, the owners of the station in 1943 were recovering the entire value of their investment every six months."

Should such stations be granted control of new FM facilities—or renewals of their present licenses?

Our Stranded Americans

The failure of radio stations to meet tests of public service is dramatically revealed in a survey made by the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives. It was reported that 57% of those polled said that the clear-channel stations did not carry satisfactory farm programs; 43% said there were too few agricultural information programs, 48% reported that commercial programs were crowding farm programs into less desirable listening time.

C. Maurice Weiting in an article in the Cooperative Consumer notes that "Radio's potential in terms of a fuller and better rural life is so vast that it is difficult to envision. . . ."

Yet existing stations do not begin to fulfill that potential where they serve rural audiences, and, it should be noted, that one-third of the United States is still outside the daytime service area of any broadcasting station. This area includes some 10,000,000 people, more people than in all of Australia, twice as many as there are in Switzerland, and three times the population of Norway. As Commissioner Durr notes: "These stranded people do not share our abundance and most of them are likely to remain stranded for some time to come, if we think of them primarily in terms of their value as purchasers of advertised goods."

There is no question, however, that the thinking which dominates radio today is that of the American business interests who contend that "What is good for business is good for America." The converse, that "What is good for America is good for business" has not yet struck them. Last May, J. Harold Ryan, then president of the National Association of Broadcasters, said: "Radio has become a recognized guardian of the public interest. American business . . . likewise has become a guardian of the public interest. It is my prophecy that American business will want to use radio in the perpetuation of this trust, that it will find new ways to sell itself . . . through radio."

That business has already found excellent ways of "selling itself" is apparent in the controversial issues presented in the institutional advertising of such firms as Ford Motor, DuPont, American Telephone and Telegraph, and the electric light and power companies. As Commissioner Durr has noted: "all the discussion of public issues we hear over the air is not identified as such."

The effect of American business, including the American radio business, serving as "guardian of the public interest," is revealed in an FCC check of a sample radio week in 1944. In that week the CBS educational program "Invitation to Learning" was carried by only 39 of the 136 stations to which it was made available; the NBC "National Radio Pulpit," a non-commercial religious program offered in cooperation with the Federal Council of Churches was carried by 60 stations, rejected by 79. The University of Chicago Roundtable, available to 139 stations, was rejected by 84. "Labor for Victory," a program alternately presented by the A.F. of L. and the C.I.O. and, at the time, the only labor program carried on any of the 4 major networks, was rejected by 104 of 139 NBC stations.

Profits and "Service"

This concept of a guardianship of the public interest by American business has proven highly profitable to holders of publicly granted broadcast licenses. An indication of these profits was given in the cases of Stations A and B cited above, while for the industry as a whole in 1944, profits were 150% on depreciated value of the entire investment before Federal taxes.

It should be noted that in a fire year period less than 1% of the broadcasting stations have gone into bankruptcy, while the mortality for other businesses requiring small capital investments runs to 70% over a five year period.

A license to broadcast is an almost certain guarantee of high profits to the licensee; but the only guarantee that the public interest will be served by granting a license rests with the FCC.

There is an obvious relationship between the failure of stations to perform public services, as required by law, and their huge profits. It is profitable to carry an hour of recorded music interspersed with spot announcements; it costs money to broadcast a University of Chicago Roundtable.

The greatest asset of a broadcasting station is its license to operate, and though the Federal Communications Act, passed by Congress, stipulates that the air belongs to the people and must not be sold, rights to the air have been sold. Holders of licenses have sold their right to broadcast and the transfer of licenses has been approved by the Federal Communications Commission without a hearing and without general notice to those who might, under the Act, file a competitive application for the license no longer desired by the seller.

The prices which have been paid for the "right to sell the right to the air" are exorbitant, and the traffic in these public licenses borders on the scandalous.

Stations with physical assets of $50,000 have been sold for as high as $500,000. The license—the right to the air—representing most of the $450,000 difference, though this license is a limited public grant subject to public control through the FCC.

The Big Question

The big question is whether the American people will permit those who have failed to fulfill their pledge of public service—the present standard broadcasters—and the American newspapers, both subject to the great pressure of American advertisers, to dominate FM radio?

One of the principal causes of monopolist control of standard broadcasting, the limited room on the spectrum for broadcasting stations, has been overcome with the discovery and development of FM broadcasting. Where we have been limited to less than 1,000 stations in the past, FM makes possible the development of thousands of new stations.

Yet control of these new stations may easily fall into the hands of those who now dominate American broadcasting, unless the Federal Communications Commission remembers its own counsel that "It is economically and socially unwise to concentrate the control of broadcast facilities in the hands of a select few, and it is . . . essential to keep the door open to the fullest extent possible for newcomers."

RADIO'S FUTURE

Present Broadcasters Seek Control of FM
Hearst Has 6 Applications Pending; Gannett 3
Still Time to Protest Assignment to McCormick
Veterans Handicapped by October 7 Deadline

Evidence of public interest—your interest—in the control of American radio, registered by letter or wire or petition, with the FCC immediately will do much to help the Commission adhere to its belief that the door should be kept open for newcomers.

Of 500 FM applications now on file, all but a few are from existing broadcasting station interests or from newspapers, and a granting of these applications will mean that listeners will receive the same programs now heard on standard stations over FM stations. Moreover, a granting of all present applications will exhaust the available FM channels in important cities along the eastern seaboard as far south as Washington, in major cities like Detroit, Chicago, and Los Angeles, and even entire states, such as Ohio.

It should also be noted that because the public has not been aware of the issue involved, some 53 choice FM channels have already been assigned, of which all but 8 are to interests already in control of standard broadcast stations. If this ratio continues, and if the only "newcomers" admitted are to be the big newspaper publishers like the New York Daily News and the Washington Times-Herald, whose applications are about to be acted upon, the possibilities of FM broadcasting will be nipped in the bud.

Among the applicants "prominent" for past propaganda activities we find Hearst with 6 applications, Col. McCormick with 5, Capt. Patterson of the N. Y. Daily News, Cissie Patterson of the Washington Times-Herald, 2 applications from Scripps-Howard, and 3 from Frank Gannett, whose Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government has been described by Rep. Wright Patman as "the most sinister lobby ever organized."

A Little History

Ten years ago, Major Edwin Armstrong of Columbia University developed the new system of broadcasting known as FM. Because it made possible the opening of a new broadcasting band with room for additional stations, the development met strong opposition from the Radio Corporation of America, its subsidiary, The National Broadcasting Co., and other entrenched interests.

These interests recognized the inevitability of FM development, but they were determined to deter its development for as long a time as possible. They pooh-poohed FM far and wide, in all probability dissuaded enthusiasts who would have gone into the development of FM stations. All the while they made their own plans to get a good share of this new broadcasting wonder with its great technical advantages, including the more faithful reproduction of music, static suppression, less interference among stations, and others.

Despite this strong opposition, however, Major Armstrong was able to persuade the FCC under former Chairman James Lawrence Fly to allocate frequencies for FM broadcasting, and experimental licenses were granted.

Under Chairman Fly, many progressive steps were taken to promote FM, to ensure its flourishing, and to prevent it from being seized by existing broadcasters and by large-scale newspaper interests.

A rule was made that no more than six FM stations could be licensed to any one interest, and no more than one station unless it could be shown that additional licenses would enhance competition.

While standard broadcasters were not prevented from applying for FM stations, they were required to devote at least a part of the time to programs not broadcast simultaneously over their regular (AM) stations. Moreover, under Fly, the rules gave an advantage to those newcomer applicants who proposed to render a service distinct from any already available in the community. Too, specific frequencies were reserved for non-comercial educational broadcasting.

The Time Is Now

The war prevented FM from developing from 1941 to 1945. Then on August 7, 1945—the day after the first atomic bomb fell on Hiroshima—the FCC removed the "freeze" on new FM station licenses, effective October 7. But in the process, much of the hope for a truly new system of broadcasting has been undermined.

The FCC ruling giving preference to those who would offer a new and distinct service on FM has been dropped.

By announcing that it will begin to grant FM licenses on October 7, 1945, the FCC has opened the possibility that the choice frequencies in important sections of the country will be granted before men in the services are out of uniform, before small businessmen, presently concerned with reconversion, will have time to investigate this great small business opportunity; before farm, cooperative, labor, and other groups have had a chance to present their applications. To assure these individuals and groups a chance to bring "new life" to radio and to prevent a monopolizing of the information and opinion-molding media, the number of licenses for present broadcasters and newspapers must be severely limited.

At the FM hearings before the FCC (Docket No. 6651) a year ago evidence was presented to show that the 178 established broadcasters then applying for FM licenses had an aggregate worth of $158,422,603 or $983,991 each. Nine newcomers with net worth of more than $500,000 each had applied, and the average net worth of these nine was $1,905,218.

Yet it takes only about $40,000 to construct a good FM station.

The question arises why an instrument of free speech and public opinion, which is cheap enough to be operated by democratic groups, should be turned over to million-dollar aggregations of capital.

The FCC itself has provided the answer. In its report on FM, it stated:

"Only 26 of the 204 commercial FM applications on file August 25, 1944 were from interests independent of existing standard broadcasting stations . . . the bulk of FM applications are from interests having AM stations, and the newcomers are for the most part large-scale enterprises. . . . It is economically and socially unwise to concentrate the control of broadcast facilities in the hands of a select few.

Yet, as noted above, the FCC has already assigned 53 choice FM channels to some of this "select few." In announcing the assignments on September 12, the FCC acted without any public hearing whatever. It referred to the licensees as FM "pioneers" and made no provision for protests of these grants, except from the stations themselves, who were "given an opportunity to object to the Commission by September 25, 1945 concerning specific assignments."

Though it made no provision for public protests, such protests should be made and will possibly help save FM.

Among the 53 grants were Channel No. 55 in Chicago to Col. Robert McCormick, Channel No. 53 in Rochester, N. Y., to Frank Gannett, and Channels 39, 40, 56, 26, and 31 in Fort Wayne, Boston, Springfield, Philadelphia, and Pittsburgh to Westinghouse.

In its announcement of the assignments the FCC said: "The Commission recognizes that it would be better to make such a choice after a hearing." If you agree that it would be better "to make such a choice after a hearing" wire the FCC and your Congressman and Senators urging that the assignments be set aside and that the favored 53, including McCormick, Gannett, and Westinghouse be required to follow the same procedures and compete fairly and openly with the 500 new applicants and others, whom the FCC in its announcement calls "latecomers."

This is a special action, in addition to the following which should be undertaken at once:

ACTION REQUIRED

1. The petition inserted in this report carries certain specific recommendations. The sentiments expressed in the petition should be incorporated into personal letters to your Congressman and Senators, with a request that they forward your letter and their own recommendations to the FCC.

2. Every civic, labor, farm, veterans, small business, religious, and women's organization should pass immediate resolutions expressing its sentiments as to whether FM licenses should be granted Hearst, Patterson, McCormick and others who now control huge public information and opinion-molding instruments.

3. Where possible, delegations should visit Washington, see Congressmen and Senators, and arrange appointments with members of the Federal Communications Commission.

4. The petition inserted here may also be used to send your sentiments and those of your neighbors and friends to Congress and the FCC. Address the signed petition to your Congressman or one of your Senators and request that he forward it to Chairman Paul Porter of the Federal Communications Commission.

5. Check now to find which individuals and groups have made applications for licenses to broadcast in your community. Check too, the dates when licenses of standard and FM stations in your community are scheduled for renewal. You will want to support or oppose those renewal applications. You should and must be heard.

FUNDS FOR FCC

This report has emphasized:

1. That we must have immediate action to preserve a great portion of the public domain —the radio spectrum—for newcomers to radio broadcasting.

2. That there is a grave danger that FM radio, a powerful instrument for the dissemination of information will be controlled by a "select few", unless the FCC is cautious in the allocation of licenses.

This report has urged action.

In addition, it should be noted, that the FCC must be given adequate appropriations by the Congress to fulfill its functions as guardian of the public interest.

A Congressional Committee, under the chairmanship of Rep. Clarence Cannon, has recommended a cut in the FCC appropriation by reason of the end of the war emergency.

The protection of the public interest—in war or peace—demands that the FCC have sufficient operating funds. You are urged to ask your representatives to assure adequate appropriations for the FCC.

In making his plea for a $2,430,000 budget, Chairman Porter said: "The radio spectrum is a valuable and limited natural resource." That resource must be carefully conserved and protected by the FCC and the Congress.

To the Congress of the United States and the Federal Communications Commission

Deploring the failure of many American broadcasting stations to perform properly the public service to which they are pledged; and deploring the excessive profits of many licensees, made at the expense of public service on licenses granted by the people;

And, believing that those who have already abused their public licenses may be given substantial control of FM broadcasting through licenses to be granted by the FCC beginning October 7, 1945;

And, believing that the preservation of free speech and free competition make it essential to prevent the concentration of control of broadcast facilities in the hands of a select few;

The undersigned urge the Congress and the FCC:

1. To grant no more than one-quarter of available FM channels to licensees of existing standard (AM) broadcasting stations and to newspapers, and that such applicants be granted licenses only upon proof of exceptional public service in their present operations and guarantees that they will perform a wholly new and different program service on their FM stations.

2. To prescribe in terms of hours and expenditures standards of public service programming for all broadcasting stations, which standards an applicant must agree to meet before receiving a license, and which all licensees must demonstrate that they have met before being granted renewal of licenses.

3. To grant three-quarters of the FM broadcast channels to newcomers, under rules and regulations which will insure fair consideration for veterans, small businessmen, farm, labor, cooperative, and citizens groups, and others, who, to date, have not enjoyed broadcasting opportunities.

4. To prohibit the granting of an FM license to any standard (AM) licensee without a public hearing.

5. To prohibit the renewing of any broadcast license until the application for renewal has been advertised in a local newspaper of general circulation and all persons in the community, so desiring, have been afforded the opportunity to apply competitively for the same license or to submit evidence why such license should not be renewed.

6. To arrange, whenever and wherever possible, for local hearings to be held in communities which applicants intend to serve.

Name	Address	City	State

The Air Belongs to the People—

Because the air belongs to the people —

Because American broadcasting stations operate on licenses granted by the people through their Congress and the Federal Communications Commission —

The People have a right to expect— That adequate time, at good listening hours, be devoted to the presentations of facts and differing opinions on the many grave and important issues which face our nation.

The People have a right to demand— Full, frank, free discussions—everyday—on issues of everyday importance.

Check your local stations:

How many hours—and what hours—have been devoted to forums, speeches, roundtable discussions, and dramatizations of such issues as—

FULL EMPLOYMENT?
THE POLL TAX?
FAIR EMPLOYMENT PRACTICES?
CHILD CARE?
HEALTH PROBLEMS?
MINIMUM WAGES?
UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION?
REGIONAL DEVELOPMENT?

These are subjects of vital importance to every living American.

Radio—reaching more Americans than any other instrument for distributing information and opinion—can and should contribute to the solution of America's problems.

The campaign to protect the people's right to the air, to prevent control of radio by a select few, to provide greater competition and better public service from broadcasting stations licensed by the people—must be undertaken and sustained by all public-spirited citizens. Write your Congressmen and Senators urging them to support the FCC in protecting the public's interest. Write the members of the Federal Communications Commission telling them you expect ever-greater vigilance in protecting the people's interest. And tell your local radio stations you expect performance of the public service to which they are pledged.

Support the Campaign to Protect the People's Right to the Air.
Send Your Contributions to National Citizens PAC, 205 E. 42nd St., N. Y. 17, N. Y.

The Listening Post

NATIONAL CITIZENS POLITICAL ACTION COMMITTEE
205 East 42nd Street New York 17, N. Y.

10

Sec. 562 P. L. & R.
U. S. Postage
PAID
New York, N. Y.
Permit No. 4131

CIO-PAC
75 Ivy St.
Atlanta, Ga.
Att: Mr. George S. Mitchell, Dir.

Veterans Assistance
Information

from, National Headquarters
Selective Service System
Washington 25, D.C.

November 10, 1945 No. 5

JOB OPPORTUNITIES FOR VETERANS IN FOOD RETAILING

Peacetime job opportunities for veterans in the field of food retailing are numerous. Many independent retail stores are at present understaffed and are not only anticipating returning to their prewar standards of operation but expect to expand as soon as possible. In addition, it is anticipated that for persons who qualify and have the necessary experience, there will be opportunities as new store owners.

The National Association of Retail Grocers has set up the Nargus Employment Plan for Returning Servicemen which has as its objective helping veterans find jobs in the retail food industry. This plan includes lists of food industry positions available in the local area and in other areas in which the veteran may want to be located. Information on these positions is available from the Veterans Employment Representative of the local United States Employment Office and the local Retail Grocers Association.

In order to aid men who have had no training in this field, some local associations are setting up training courses for new entrants and brush-up courses for those who have had previous experience. Most retailers offer veterans the opportunity of earning while they learn the business.

There are no particular age restrictions and while, for the most part, employees in retail food stores are salesmen, they must expect to acquire knowledge and facility in stock handling, and experience in arranging displays both of produce and fresh fruits and of other merchandise. Large establishments require bookkeeping and some other clerical work. Salary ranges average from $22.50 for the inexperienced to $50 for experienced mid-town store clerks. Higher salaries are paid in some isolated areas and store managers command considerably higher wages in large cities.

Still other retailers pay a lower basic wage plus a commission on sales over a certain established amount.

For those who wish to start their own stores, local Retail Grocer Associations are being established throughout the country as advisory groups to the would-be owners. For the information of those desiring to start their own stores, Nargus states that the average retail food outlet with an annual volume of $50,000 or less makes up the bulk of retail food outlets.

For such an outlet and considering that the store is rented or leased at a reasonable fee, the new owner would require approximately $4,000 worth of opening stock with approximately $6,000 worth of fixtures and equipment (bought new). This is for the combination store with meats, dairy products, fresh fruits and vegetables, dry groceries, bakery products, etc. In addition, approximately $2,000 in cash should be on hand to meet day-to-day expenses, including rent, improvements, insurance, licenses, etc. It is not entirely impossible but it is not recommended that any retail outlet in the food field be considered with less than a $10,000 investment. In this average store with an annual volume of approximately $50,000, the efficient, intelligent, and successful operator averages between 1% and 2% net profit on sales, in addition to a reasonable salary, figured in his operating expenses, of around $250 to $300 per month.

To enter this highly competitive field of operating a retail food store, a person should have considerable training and should have served an apprenticeship. New owners must be extremely selective in their choosing of a location, in their operating methods, and must be particularly efficient in their operations to meet competition and yet satisfy customers so that these customers will continue to patronize their store. The store's location, aptitude of the owner, his adaptability and particularly his ability to build up popularity and a following in the neighborhood, are all extremely important.

Prospective new owners may learn of an already established business for sale, and in these instances, investment required may not be quite so large. The prospective purchaser should check carefully on sales, location, customer conveniences, reputation of the establishment, etc., before considering such purchase.

For further information on establishing a grocery store, veterans should consult the local Retail Grocers Association. An excellent manual entitled "Establishing and Operating a Grocery Store" is being prepared by the United States Department of Commerce and should be available in 90 days from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C.

U. S. GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE: 1945 O - 673479

Reading file

A COMMUNICATION

Our Negro Soldiers

Sir: On June 29, 1945, in the course of an argument against the FEPC bill, Senator Eastland of Mississippi asserted that American Negro soldiers in this war have disgraced their country in that they would neither work nor fight. He claimed he had evidence to prove that the Negro 92nd Division had been a dismal failure, that not a single Negro officer in it had proved competent to lead men in battle. Then he passed on to the familiar assertion of Negro racial inferiority.

Intelligent Southerners long since have learned to discount all fact-assertions based on race hatred and to ignore their resultant conclusions. The twin objectives of giving the Southern whites more genuinely liberal education and the Southern Negroes more self-confidence and pride of race (the two greatest needs today) are best approached with a minimum of agitation and controversy. But the Congressional Record is read in all sections of the nation, and as yet no specific answer to Senator Eastland has found general circulation. Hence this reply, based upon a life time of experience with Negroes in Virginia, New York City, Tennessee, Chicago and Florida, and upon service (at my request) with Negro troops during the current war.

Eastland's speech was made on the fourth day following General Patton's official commendation of the 3603rd Engineer Dump Truck Company (Negro) for outstanding performance in clearing and grading approaches to the Rhine River bridge. This was working under fire without opportunity to use cover or to shoot back--the hardest situation of all for even the most experienced soldier. The 3603rd left the United States in late February, 1945, and won commendation less than 60 days later. A few days after his speech, Lieutenant Vernon J. Baker, a rifle platoon leader in the 92nd Division, was awarded the DSC---the third Negro to receive this honor in that theatre.

General Clark cited the Negro 450th Anti-Aircraft Battalion for outstanding performance in the landing at Naples. Negro Combat Engineers, Anti-Aircraft, Engineer Service, Coast Artillery, Quartermaster, Air Service and Infantry troops have received unit citations and commendations in both European and Pacific theatres of operation. Emphatically the generals have not agreed with the Senator.

Eastland's charges against the 92nd Division are particularly despicable because he adroitly uses a partial truth to buttress assertions which fall when the whole truth is known. The 92nd has a spotty record, as have several white divisions. Reliable reports indicate that a strong German counter-attack pummeled it in one North Italian engagement, but it did not break nearly so badly as white divisions did under similar conditions at the Kasserine Pass and again in the neighborhood of Bastogne.

It is remarkable that would-be critics of the Negro soldier regularly ignore our other Negro division, the 93rd, which has done extraordinarily fine fighting in the Pacific islands, and whose record in World War I is described in an official Army publication as "one of the noblest of American Arms," where each of its regiments was decorated as a whole or in part with Croix de Guerre with palm, as well as with hundreds of individual citations.

The Regular Army long has recognized that the 9th and 10th Cavalry and the 24th and 25th Infantry are crack outfits, not excelled by any of our Regulars. All four regiments rendered distinguished service in the Spanish American War and World War I. All have been used at key spots through this war.

In either a fighting or a working situation the reactions of Negroes are about the same as those of white people of similar economic status and social opportunity. That is: If there is a fight in sight, curiosity and excitement will draw them in with too little regard for danger; but if work is to be done, away from the excitement of conflict, they will work well or poorly accordingly to how they have recently been treated and how much loyalty and confidence they repose in their leaders. To be fair, however, we must compare the Negro troops with a definite class of white troops.

About six-sevenths of the Negro troops come from areas in which equal educational opportunities, equal pay for equal work and opportunity to work at skilled trades are denied them. So far as it can be accomplished, pride and self-respect also are denied them by political discrimination, social ostracism and the common use of epithets which pound into most of them a hopeless feeling of inferiority.

More than half of them come from rural districts of the South where the land is poor, schools few and far between, wages low and appreciation of education small. While a large proportion have good basic intelligence, they are drastically handicapped by the lack of even elementary schooling. They were taken from school as soon as they were old enough to pick berries, chop cotton, weed onions, hoe corn, pick cotton or slash tobacco; this because their families were so poor that their earnings were needed. Similar conditions had precluded education for their parents before them.

About three-fourths of the urban 40 percent come from families struggling in the poorest segment of the industrial population, still relatively new to their environment, impoverished, baffled and to some degree intimidated.

So the vast majority of our colored inductees are men who have grown up ignorant, superstitious, unused to consecutive thinking, unacquainted with the world, frightened and homesick when away from their childhood settings, shiftless, unreliable, evasive--- and sullen under criticism or correction because they have been given no incentive to improve.

Now these traits, usually noted in underprivileged Negroes, are precisely the traits which are marked among ver poor people everywhere. We find the same characteristics among the "poor whites" of the mountain pockets in the Alleghenies, among the white sharecroppers of the Deep South, among the Okies, and among the very poor in our city slums. We in the Army have found that there are exceedingly few traits which can properly be ascrived to the Negro race as racial traits. The handicaps of our Negro troops are handicaps from successive generations of poverty, not of race. When we have recognized this, have ceased to think of them as Negroes and have learned to regard them as poor people in need of opportunity, we have taken the first and longest step toward making them good soldiers and good citizens.

It must be admitted that, thus far, the Negro's life in America has given him very little to fight for. When one asked me, "How come white folks is fighting Hitler for treatin' the Jews jes'lak they treats us?" I could find no adequate answer in any Army regulation or textbook. They must have an answer-- and it can be provided by the Army.

This can be done, but many officers--both white and colored--refuse to do it. Any officer who lives their life with them, eating in the same mess, sleeping in the area, attending their chapel, visiting their dayrooms, buying in their exchanges and showing interest in their sports and social activities, soon finds that these men are passionately eager for pride, self-respect and friends to whom they can give trust and loyalty. Those are the things Negroes will work for, eagerly fight for, gladly die for. I know. I have seen them do all three.

Negro recruits to whom the Army has been presented mainly by the reading of the Articles of War and Army Regulations, with ill explained enforcement of the disciplines therein prescribed, have yielded reluctant response. But present the United States Army to them as a great fraternity in which men of all races, creeds and colors come together as equal brothers in the uniform, its distinctions of rank based honestly upon training and accomplishment-- and they respond with eagerness. By their response they have put upon us the duty to make that Army ideal permanent.

From every continent and sea are returning the thousands of Southern white officers who have developed a solid respect for their Negro troops and are determined that henceforth these must receive in our country the rights, privileges and opportunities which they have helped to preserve for the rest of us.

Lieutenant Colonel John H. Sherman, AUS
San Francisco, Calif.

The New Republic/ p.677-678. November 19, 1945

Veterans Assistance
Information

from, National Headquarters
Selective Service System
Washington 25, D.C.

November 20, 1945 No. 6

ESTABLISHING AND OPERATING A SERVICE STATION

For those who are interested in working for themselves, the service station business has many advantages. For the right type of individual it offers unusual profit possibilities. The work is considered healthful as it is largely carried on outdoors. However, there are disadvantages and hazards to be considered by the man who plans to own a service station.

The person just starting out stands a 50-50 chance of failing during the first two years. The chances of losing capital and savings in private business ventures are always high and they are a gamble in which beginners without previous experience stand little chance of success.

For persons considering entering this field, the following requirements should be given serious consideration:

Previous experience working in a successful service station is a prime requisite. Retail selling experience is desirable, and an easy, friendly manner in meeting people is helpful. Practice in handling and taking care of money is essential. Although it is not necessary to be a skilled mechanic, one should be mechanically inclined and at least have a general knowledge of automobiles and their operation. A would-be owner must be energetic and in good health since the work, although not strenuous, requires lifting and bending and one has to be active. A minor physical handicap, however, will not seriously interfere with the operation of a station for it is possible to modify the services offered by the station to meet the owner's physical condition.

As experience in this field is vital, one of the best ways to secure it is through working for a well-managed, successful company. While acquiring this experience it is a good idea to attend training schools and to study trade periodicals pertaining to service stations. Such courses, covering many phases of station operation, are sponsored by oil companies and by the manufacturers or distributors of automotive products. As oil companies wish to attract the type of men who want to make s success of operating their own stations, plans are being developed which are flexible enough to include individuals with only a small initial capital to invest and who honestly intend to make service station operation their means of livelihood.

The amount of capital required for the purchase of a station or the erection of a new station varies because of many widely different factors. In general, however, to own or buy a station is an expensive proposition. In many cities stations cost anywhere from $35,00 to $50,000 and up. Much less capital is needed to lease an existing station. When leasing a station, capital is needed for investment in the many smaller items or equipment which are not furnished by the lessor; to pay for the initial merchandise; and cash must also be on hand for initial working capital to cover expenses in the first two or three months until the business gets on its feet. Leasing is probably the most common method of entering this phase of the business. Application for the leasing of a station, or for work as an employee, may be made at the district offices of the oil company and jobbers.

It will probably be relatively easy to enter the service station field in the postwar years. However, according to the judgment of many in the industry the trend in this business seems to be toward reducing the total number of stations; consolidating, enlarging, developing, and more completely equipping the remaining stations. Competition is expected to be very keen. For more specific information reference should be made to a 200-page manual entitled "Establishing and Operating a Service Station", prepared by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce. This manual will be available at a nominal fee in 90 days from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C.

U. S. GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE : 1945 O - 674639

P 61
State Veterans
Service Officers

SUGGESTED STATE POSTWAR LEGISLATION

Reading file

Developed by

THE COUNCIL OF STATE GOVERNMENTS

and

FEDERAL ADMINISTRATIVE AGENCIES in cooperation with
THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

December 1, 1945

Veterans Assistance
Information

from, National Headquarters
Selective Service System
Washington 25, D.C.

December 7, 1945 No. 8

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES IN POSTWAR BANKING

The 15,000 banking institutions in this country consist of commercial, savings, and trust companies. Of the 280,000 staff members in these organizations, nearly 50% are women. The staff personnel provides approximately 50 million customer services in depositing and withdrawing money, clearing and collecting checks and other bills of exchange, transferring credit and currency, obtaining funds through personal and commercial loans, safely keeping securities and other valuables, making investments, administering estates of persons, and handling affairs of corporations.

There are approximately 340 job titles to occupations performed in creating these services. In the large banks work is highly departmentalized. Staff members in these large institutions are specialists and practically every job is performed by one or more persons. In the smaller banks having fewer than 100 employees each, many of the jobs are combined into a multiple operation performed by one person.

Generally speaking, the non-executive work falls into two major classifications: (1) Handling cash, checks, notes, and securities, and (2) preparing or maintaining records of all transactions between the bank and their customers. In the first classification are the paying and receiving tellers, note and discount tellers, bond and coupon tellers, domestic and foreign exchange tellers, stock transfer tellers, and mortgage tellers who handle the work as it originates with the customers at the counters in the bank lobby. Clearing house clerks, proof clerks, transit clerks, and collection clerks handle the items as they move behind the scenes from the tellers to the point of final settlement.

In the second classification accountants, analyists, bookkeepers, checkers, file clerks, stenographers, and typists build up the records that provide detailed controls over every banking operation.

All of the work in both categories demands of staff members a fair degree of speed, a high degree of figure accuracy, and a marked ability to cooperate with others. Most bank jobs are only part of a series of closely related operations. Manual dexterity and skill in operating accounting, bookkeeping, and other mechanical office equipment are, of course, requisites of many of the jobs.

The formal educational background required of most bank people is at least of high school level. Beginners, as well as old timers, in the banking business have available to them a complete program of banking courses which can be taken either in local study groups or on an individual basis by correspondence. The courses are set up and supervised by the American Institute of Banking.

Salaries for beginners and junior clerical groups in banking generally start at less than $100 a month. Clerks and bookkeepers with some experience have a salary range up to $150 a month. Senior clerks and experienced tellers, naturally, are in a higher salary bracket, the minimum and maximum of which varies greatly, depending upon the size and location of the bank, the experience and ability of the staff member, and the responsibilities carried in a particular position.

Just how many openings there will be for newcomers in postwar banking jobs is uncertain. There are now 65,000 bank men and women in military service and the banks are making certain that jobs will be open for all of their former employees wishing to return to employment from the Armed Forces. Many of these veterans undoubtedly will not return to the banks and many of the present staff members, housewives and others who have filled in for the duration, undoubtedly will leave these positions.

Persons wishing more specific information on employment opportunities in banking should apply at the personnel department of larger banks or, at the small banks, proper direction will be given upon inquiry at such banks.

U. S. GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE: 1945 O - 676059

THE Nation

Truman and Labor

December 29, 1945

Reading file

Trouble for Veterans

A Frank Forecast for the New Year

BY CHARLES G. BOLTE

*

If I Had Been Forrestal

BY THOMAS J. HAMILTON

*

Japan's Political Ferment - - - - - - - - Andrew Roth

Iranian Checkerboard - - - - - Sydney W. Morrell

C.O.'s: Second-Class Citizens - Vincent H. Whitney

Book Reviews - - Music - - Films - - the Theater

15 CENTS A COPY · EVERY WEEK SINCE 1865 · 5 DOLLARS A YEAR

popular unrest in their own countries than of the British. They want to see British supervision continued, to protect them and their privileges against popular demand for reform and change. They share British imperial phobias about the Soviet Union, and they are considerably less progressive even than the right wing of the British Colonial Office. Men of Sir Walter Smart's type are well aware of the social conflicts brewing in the Middle East, and see the need for some measure of reform. But reform is reform at the expense of the big landowner. "If we begin to press the effendis for reform," one British official said, "they'll ask, 'What's the difference, then, between you and the Bolsheviks?'" You cannot make an alliance with the most reactionary elements of the Arab world and expect social reform—or stability.

Britain has no right to rule the Arab world. But it does have a legitimate interest in communications and oil. That interest will best be preserved by an international solution of the Palestine problem. A growing Jewish community there will continue to dissolve feudal Arab relationships, to raise living standards, and to make reform inevitable. If Arab fears are stilled by insistence on a bi-national Palestine instead of a Jewish state, if Arab aspirations are satisfied by the inclusion of a bi-national Palestine in an Arab federation, if Arab and Jew are helped by a United Nations program for land, water, and power development in the Middle East, the "slum" can be reclaimed, the old sore point of world politics healed, the Jews given a home, the Arabs given a break. This way, and not in disingenuous power politics, nineteenth-century style, lie peace and stability for the Middle East.

Trouble Ahead for Veterans

BY CHARLES G. BOLTE

(Chairman of the American Veterans' Committee and author of "The New Veteran")

A FEW WEEKS ago I found myself, in company with some five hundred other citizens, being hauled by the Long Island Railway at an unwontedly early hour to Mitchel Field, where the army air forces held an all-day conference on the reintegration of the veteran with the community. The air forces put on a wonderful show, as they always do: much brass, majors distributing programs, excellent food (one meal in the enlisted men's mess to let us civilians taste "G. I. food served in the G. I. fashion," as the program had it), a Lowell Thomas broadcast direct from one of the forum halls, a protracted refreshment period between the afternoon and evening sessions so that all the guests might revive their flagging spirits. But not the spirits, nor the message from President Truman, nor the four-star generals reading their carefully written scripts, nor the evident good-will and earnestness and high purpose of all concerned could conceal the fact that the conference should have been held two years ago.

It would have been a pretty good conference even one year ago. In December, 1945, with the armed forces half demobilized and slated to be almost entirely demobilized in another six months, it was not very useful. It advanced many excellent suggestions too late for them to be put into effect in most communities. And despite its good intentions, it did not put into the hands of those who listened—social workers, business and labor leaders, representatives of community groups, veterans' organizations, and the like—the specific tools for the job that needs to be done in the home towns. This is a serious matter, for present national arrangements for dealing with "the human side of demobilization" are so inadequate that the home towns have got to do the job. The responsibility of the communities is even larger than workers in this field had originally expected, as was pointed out at the conference by General Omar Bradley, chief of the Veterans' Administration:

> Washington alone can no more reestablish the veteran than Washington alone could win the war. While we can assist with benefits and offer guidance, it is the community that must do the grass-roots work.
>
> For it is in the community, in his daily association with his neighbors, that the veteran rubs shoulders with so many of the troublesome problems Washington cannot hope to solve. . . . The job is too big for the government or any federal agency. It's too big for any single organization within the framework of the community. It will be solved only when we pool the efforts of the federal government, the states, and the resources of all localities.

It is perhaps an index of how badly off we are that the statement of such an obvious truth can be the keynote of a national conference and can still make news. Moreover, although nearly every speaker talked about coordinating federal, state, and local programs, and about the need for community service centers, none explained how the programs were actually to be coordinated on the various levels, and only one described a service center in operation.

There are not many communities these days which can muster enough imagination, resourcefulness, and good-will to meet the requirements of an effective counseling and referral center for veterans. Several outstanding centers are in operation—New York, Los Angeles, Bridgeport, Flint come readily to mind. Altogether there are about 1,500 centers, in the 23,000 communities in the United States, and they range from very good to very bad. It is apparent that the federal government must fill in, counsel, provide funds, collate pertinent information, suggest procedures, and institute training programs for personnel. At this stage, if the communities have not acted, the government must act.

I say this, believing it to be true; but I cannot think that it will be done. It is not useful to counsel despair, but I think we must anticipate a real breakdown in government services to veterans and, indeed, in the whole rehabilitation picture. General Bradley told me at Mitchel Field that there were 300,000 unopened letters in the mail room of the Veterans' Administration when he left Washington the day before. He added that he was now getting to work on the job that should have been done a year earlier. The VA is short-handed in every category, especially in doctors and in claims adjudicators. Its low scale of pay makes it difficult to recruit personnel. It is so highly centralized that red tape accumulates upon itself in Washington; but office space is almost impossible to find outside, and further time would be consumed in moving. The VA was simply not ready for the end of the war, any more than it was ready for the whole fantastic expansion of its activities which should have been anticipated when 12,000,000 of the nation's young men registered for the draft. Some of the criticism of the VA which led to the replacing of General Hines by General Bradley was pooh-pooed at the time as exaggerated. It is now revealed to have been an understatement.

General Bradley is doing what he can, and is surrounding himself with some able administrators; the medical program of the VA seems slated to improve considerably; more flexibility in the labor market may ease the personnel shortage. But no sudden or radical improvement can be expected.

The other government agency engaged chiefly with veterans' problems is the Retraining and Reemployment Administration, which has had a checkered career since its creation was called for in the Baruch-Hancock report on the human aspects of demobilization nearly two years ago. After a slumbrous period under General Hines the agency began to function vigorously a few months ago when it was put in the care of Major General Graves B. Erskine, a tough and intelligent marine with a combat record in the Pacific, who showed his understanding of life in the twentieth century when he said at the conference that we must realize how our own jobs depended on "the tremendous fact" of jobs for all.

The RRA's particular job is to coordinate the rehabilitation, retraining, and reemployment of war veterans and war workers in the nation, the state, and the local community. One of its responsibilities is the setting up of community service centers. It is a real omnibus agency, with a grandly vaporous directive, an enormous field in which to operate, and apparently a tremendous opportunity for useful work. General Erskine started his job in the fall. He now has the imposing total of fifteen executives to carry out this vast program, practically no money, and as yet no clearly established authority to do the things expected of him.

That is why there were 300,000 unopened letters in the Washington mail room of the Veterans' Administration three weeks ago. That is why many veterans snort contemptuously when they hear glowing descriptions of how their country has prepared to receive them home again.

There is plenty of dynamite in this fast-developing situation. It isn't ready to go off quite yet. But in another six months listen for a succession of explosions, starting in the grass roots, running toward Washington, and getting louder all the time. The loudest explosion may not hit Washington until the fall of '48.

In the Wind

OLD CHINA HANDS, Hurley-era vintage, will be interested in an excerpt from the mimeographed newssheet published aboard a transport carrying occupation troops to Korea last fall. The item says MG officers en route were briefed for their forthcoming job with the statement: "One of the principal missions of military government in Korea will be to form a bulwark against communism." The briefing officer, the paper says, was "quoting from material gained at the recent conference in Tokyo with General Crist."

THERE'S A MAN IN CHICAGO, a miniature collector named Joseph H. Gray, with a fine sense of literary perspective. He is reported to own a twelve-volume set of Edgar Guest's poetry—and each volume is three-quarters of an inch tall.

THE ANCIENT CHINESE had a proverb which was invoked by New Mexico's Senator Hatch in urging strong international cooperation to meet the challenge of the atomic bomb: "What is the use of having a thousand-league horse if you do not have a thousand-league man to ride him?"

WE WERE FLATTERED to discover that Clare Boothe Luce had read into the Congressional Record for November 29 The Nation's recent article on veterans' housing by Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr.; so flattered that we will pretend not to notice that the heading on the entry was "The Luce Bill on Veterans' Housing."

WE'VE BEEN WONDERING about this and are sure you'll be as relieved as we were to have the matter cleared up: a G. I. in the Far East occupation troops reports authoritatively that Thanksgiving, under MacArthur, was celebrated in pre-New Deal style on November 29.

JOURNALISM NOTE: the Virginia Press Association is working on a plan for inviting newspapermen from the various United Nations to take temporary staff positions on Virginia papers as a means toward "more detailed understanding of American everyday life."

GRIM-VISAGED WAR, all unbeknown to us, has been haunting the austere halls of the Macmillan publishing company. A recent ad of theirs broods: "Nobody knows the trouble we've seen. . . . The grim story of paper shortage and manufacturing difficulties . . . keeps us awake nights. . . . We'll simply say this: your bookseller now has copies of 'Forever Amber.' "

FLORIDA'S GOVERNOR CALDWELL, according to an A.P. dispatch, refused to take action against Sheriff Lonnie Davis, of Madison, in connection with a lynching "because stupidity and ineptitude are not grounds for removal."

[We invite our readers to submit material for In the Wind —either clippings with source and date or stories that can be clearly authenticated. We will pay $1 for each item accepted.—EDITORS THE NATION.]

Reading file

SECONDARY EDUCATION FOR VETERANS OF WORLD WAR II

Gene Oppy
John Ramseyer
Harold Reynard
Margaret Willis, Editor

UNIVERSITY SCHOOL SERIES . . . . . Number 2

ADVENTURES IN EDUCATION

OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY

Reading file

OCCUPATIONS

The VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE JOURNAL

DECEMBER
1945

VETERANS WANT EDUCATION AND TRAINING
LOUIS E. BLOETJES

PROTECTING VETERANS FROM "FAKE SCHOOLS"
VETERANS ADMINISTRATION

GUIDANCE TRAINING FOR TEACHER AND COUNSELOR
HARRY A. JAGER

A PUBLIC LIBRARY SERVES VETERANS
ETHEL McGRUER

SCHOOL CLUB GIVES PREVIEW OF NURSING
ALPHONSO J. ORRICO

JEWISH AGENCIES OFFER VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE
A DIRECTORY

TOPICAL INDEX OF ARTICLES IN OCCUPATIONS

VOLUME XXIV
NUMBER 3

Published By
NATIONAL VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE ASSOCIATION, INC.

Reading

WETUMPKA, ALABAMA
March 1, 1946

To: The Pastor, Officers, Members, and Friends of the _____ _____Church:

Please permit us to call to your attention a most vital question of today - "How can we help our ex-service men readjust themselves to civilian life?"

During World War II, in the neighborhood of, one thousand Negroes from Elmore County went into the armed forces. Today hundreds of these men and boys have returned to their homes and communities right among you. They are deeply in need of Sprirtual, Economical, and Social encouragement and assistance. Without these some are certain to meet many unpleasant hardships and discouraging experiences.

To whom can they turn for help in readjusting themselves to civilian life? For good sound advice they must depend upon our Negro leaders among us -- the minister, mothers, fathers, teachers, and others who may be capable of giving wise counsel.

The Negro Civic League is planning the first large scale effort of this kind for these worthy sons of Elmore County -- those of your home, church, and community and of each home, church, and community. This is a big effort and the league is asking your help in this great cause. As a basic amount our request is $5.00 from each church; however, any amount, more or less, will be of great assistance and highly appreciated.

This affair is to be free for all ex-service men and their wives or lady friends. However, each one must notify the president (A. Geeter) of the League, or an officer of the Ross-White Post of the VFW on or before March 25. Other persons desiring to attend may do so by remitting .75 cents each, per plate, on or before March25 to the president or any member of the Civic League.

Churches are requested to report contributions to the president (A. Geeter of Rose-Geeter Funeral Home) of the Civic League on or before March 25, 1946.

The League's plan for these men - your sons, husbands, and relatives is:

BANQUET IN HONOR OF EX-SERVICE MEN OF WORLD WAR II

Time .....Friday evening, 7:30, March 29

Place .....Elmore County Training School

****

Invocation .....Rev. H. L. Nelson
The Occasion .....Mr. Joseph Bradford
Presentation of Ex-service Men.....Mr. Alphonso Smith

The GI Bill.....
Sprirtual and Inspirational Address.....Rev. A. C. L. Arbouin, Pastor
Dexter Ave. Baptist Church,
Montgomery, Alabama
Introductions and Announcements.....Mr. A. Geeter, President Civic League
Adjournment

All pastors and ministers are urged to attend so that they may be more inspired to help the cause of our ex-soldiers, our race, and humanity.

Yours very truly,
The Negro Civic League

A. Geeter, President

Reading

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
REETRAINING & REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
United States Department of Labor

No. 2 March 29, 1946 Washington 25, D. C.

MINIMUM STANDARDS FOR ON-THE-JOB TRAINING

RRA ORDER #4

RRA has released its Order #4, providing the establishment of a Committee to develop minimum criteria and standards for on-the-job training in order to insure nation-wide, high quality training for veterans. These criteria will be recommended for use by appropriate Federal and State agencies who are concerned with approval of institutions and establishments for on-the-job training.

The Committee will be known as the "Interagency Committee For Development of Criteria and Standards for On-the-Job Training." Agencies to be represented on the Committee are:

Department of Agriculture
Department of Commerce
Department of Labor
Navy Department
War Department
Civil Service Commission
Federal Security Agency

The Administrator of Veterans' Affairs will also designate his representative to serve as a member of the Committee.

In a general statement of purpose, the Order reads:

> "It is considered most desirable and necessary, if trainees are to enjoy maximum opportunities for such training as they may receive and are to obtain full value for the time which they invest and the money which the Federal and State Governments may expend, that there be sound principles of approval for such institutions and establishments as may conduct on-the-job training programs. The development of minimum criteria and standards for on-the-job training will provide further assurance that the best interests and rights of the trainee are being protected."

"In the performance of its functions," reads the Order, "the Committee is directed to consult with representatives of State agencies operating in this field and may consult with such other organizations directly interested in on-the-job training programs as it deems necessary."

****

All Centers immediately should get from the nearest Veterans Administration Representative copies of Circular No. 61, concerning supervision of veterans enrolled for courses in on-the-job training.

* * * * *

USE YOUR LOCAL COLLEGE

WELL EQUIPPED

RRA in cooperation with the Office of Education and the Veterans' Administration is working on a project to encourage wider attendance at local colleges, junior and teachers colleges and other institutions of higher learning throughout the country. The enrollment capacity of certain institutions in concentrated population areas is so overtaxed that unless some adjustments are made both veterans and all others will suffer from the situation.

Many people, especially those training for a particular profession, immediately think only of the more publicized institutions when making plans to go to school. Actually, the country is rich in good, less well-known colleges well equipped to provide both full four-year courses towards academic degrees and preparatory instruction towards professional degrees. In the case of the latter, it is entirely possible to receive preliminary training in a local college and transfer for advanced or graduate work to one of the nationally known institutions.

Reciprocal accrediting arrangements have been in existence for many years among colleges so that such transfers may be effected without loss of credit. An invaluable aid to Community Advisory Centers is a book which includes transfer of credit information as well as a wealth of material about special provisions for veterans. The book is A Guide to Colleges, Universities and Professional Schools in the U. S., by Carter V. Good. (American Council on Education, Washington 6, D. C., $5.00)

The Guide explains the type of institution; by whom accredited; special regulations governing admission of veterans; advanced standing and special instruction for veterans; curricula; housing arrangements; costs of tuition; health services; vocational advisory services; etc.

VETERANS' CONFERENCE IN OKLAHOMA CITY

ERSKINE SPEAKS

Oklahoma's Governor Robert S. Kerr recently called a State-wide conference of Federal, State, county and private agencies concerned with veterans, for the purpose of developing additional Advisory Centers throughout the State and increasing aids to veterans. Major General Graves B. Erskine, USMC, RRA Administrator spoke at the opening session. Similar conferences have already been held in Connecticut, Pennsylvania, and Texas with excellent results. Other States plan to hold such meetings in the near future.

"The veteran is well on the way to becoming the forgotten man," said General Erskine, "a political football, or a special petition unless every community in the nation speedily and aggressively accepts its responsibilities to reintegrate the veteran into his community." The General went on to say that the need for good Advisory Centers today is greater now than ever before. He believes that this need will be great for at least one or two years to come. Some communities plan to continue these Centers, explained the General, after this period of immediate necessity, as permanent symbols of common sense and humanity not only for veterans but for all citizens, men and women, veteran and non-veteran alike.

The Veterans Center in Oklahoma City was started exactly one month and a day before the meeting was called. Through the energetic efforts of World War II veterans the Center is already a full-fledged, going organization with vocational and educational counselors working full time. Full-time counseling is provided at the Center by local banks and insurance companies for those interested in loans and insurance. Also in attendance are representatives of USES and the Veterans' Administration. The funds for this Center were provided by the Community Chest.

** ** ** ** ** ** ** **

SURPLUS PROPERTY FOR ADVISORY CENTERS

OFFICE EQUIPMENT

Community Advisory Centers are eligible for a Class Two priority on surplus office equipment for their own use, if the Center's funds come from governmental sources. If the Center is operated on privately obtained funds, however, it is ineligible for this priority.

If a military installation or any other Federal agency should leave your area, be on the look-out for possible sales of typewriters, desks, filing cabinets, etc. Your regional Surplus Property office (see Bulletin #1 for chart) can keep you informed about this.

NEW YORK BUSINESSMEN PITCH IN COMPLETE SERVICE

The Young Men's Board of Trade of New York, according to the New York Times, acting as coordinator of the efforts of business and industry, lists the following free services to aid veterans in career-planning and employment:

ADVERTISING.--Individual counseling by advertising executives every Thursday at 7 P. M., conducted by Veterans Guidance in Advertising and Selling, Inc.

BANKING.--Job information given by bank officials every Monday, 7 P. M., directed by the Banking Committee of the Young Men's Board of Trade.

ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING.--Engineers of various lines present for personal consultation every Thursday, 7 P. M.

INSURANCE.--Executives provide career advice every Monday, 7 P. M., directed by the Insurance Committee, Young Men's Board of Trade.

PRINTING.--Placement consultation daily from 9 to 12 A. M., New York Employing Printers Association.

LAW.--Placement consultation from 9 A. M. to 7:30 P. M. weekdays, conducted by the War Committee of the Bar of the City of New York.

REAL ESTATE.--A panel of executives conducts a section at the Veterans' Guidance Forum every Monday, 7 P. M.

SELLING.--Sales executives of many industries render counsel every Wednesday, 7 P. M., conducted by the Sales Executives Club of New York.

TEXTILES.--Information and placement consultation from 9 A.M. to 5 P. M. daily, sponsored by the Central Textile Guidance Agency for Veterans, Inc.

THEATRE.--Individual counseling service, National Theatre Conference, Monday through Friday, 1 P. M. to 5 P. M. or phone for appointment.

JOB-FINDING FORUM.--Every Wednesday, 7:45 P. M., conducted by the Advertising Club of New York.

NEW YORK MAN-MARKETING CLINIC.--Meets every Tuesday, 7 P. M.

TUTTLE'S FOR ALL SCHOOLS

ACCREDITATION

Veterans' Administration has bought 25,000 volumes of "Tuttle's Handbook," the authoritative manual for translating in-service courses, training, and experience into school and college credits. The American Council on Education, from whom the purchase was made, has agreed to distribute the handbook to approximately 23,000 secondary schools and 2000 colleges.

Advisory Centers will find availability of these Handbooks a great asset to them in helping veterans obtain credits for service in the armed forces. Such credits will be especially valuable in broadening veterans' fields of employment, since a good many jobs require at least a high-school education of the prospective employee.

**** **** **** **** ****

VETERANS IN SCHOOL

GOOD STUDENTS

In a recent article in the New York Times, Dr. Benjamin Fine, prominent education writer, said: "At such widely separated institutions as Columbia, Harvard, Ohio University and the University of Kentucky, the veterans display a remarkable scholastic aptitude, indicative of a nation-wide trend. The returned servicemen at Columbia are better students than their non-veteran classmates. At the last marking period, not a single veteran was in serious academic difficulty, even though a majority had not been in school for three or more years."

* * * * * * *

VETERANS' CIVIL SERVICE STATUS

PREFERENCE

On February 4, 1946, President Truman issued Executive Order 9691, directing the Civil Service Commission to resume operations under prewar Civil Service Rules, starting on March 4.

The order does not affect Civil Service employees with permanent tenure, but requires those with War Service Appointments to take competitive examinations in competition with veterans, who will receive the 10-point and 5-point preferences granted them under the Veterans' Preference Act of 1944. Under that Act veterans with a service connected disability of at least 10 percent are granted ten points of preference, and all veterans five points.

Pending the holding of examinations, and establishing lists of eligibles, Government agencies may make appointments of a temporary nature, allowing these preferences to veterans. Ultimately, no person will be granted status until all ten-point preference eligibles standing higher on the list have been considered. The same consideration will then be given five-point preference eligibles.

Announcement of examinations will be made through regional of: of the Civil Service Commission, or Post Offices. The order provides for decentralizing of recruitment to local areas.

** ** ** ** ** ** **

NEWS AND IDEAS FROM CENTERS

BURLINGTON IOWA

A veterans' job-placement service promoted by the Veterans Advi Committee of the Burlington Chamber of Commerce, sent this lett to all Burlington employers:

> "You now have the opportunity of choosing present and futu employees from the best of Burlington's and Des Moines' counties' young men. A clear account of their ability, job learned in service, and physical condition is, or will be, filed with the U. S. Veterans' Employment Service represent tive, Wm. Squire, at the U. S. Employment Service office, t day the returning veterans are discharged . . . The Chamber Commerce cannot do this job alone, nor can the Employment Service, nor can you as an employer, but working together, can provide employment for our veterans."

A questionnaire was enclosed with the letter requesting informati such as training programs for veterans, types and numbers of job openings, etc. The returned questionnaires will be transmitted t the local Veterans Employment Service representative for follow-up.

SOUTH BEND INDIANA

An excellent example of complete community cooperation toward relieving the housing problem for veterans has been developed in South Bend. Through efforts of Mr. B. F. DuBois and others running the Veterans' Referral Center, South Bend last December embarked on a housing program which involved almost everybody in the City. One hundred and eighty prefabricated units, two and three bedroom, were obtained with the help of the National Housin Agency. Plots were secured from the City and from the Bendix Corporation, which leased their contribution free, provided that the City would absorb taxes. The City Council borrowed $105,000 from the City Water Works Fund to cover cartage and erecting the units. By early March 40 units were ready for occupancy and it was expected that the remaining 140 would be occupied by the last week in March.

Veterans pay $33 a month for a two-bedroom unit and $36 for three. All applications for these units are passed on by the Referral Center Commission for Housing. The County has loaned some 25 men to act as investigators to determine priority among veterans for this low-cost housing.

DES MOINES
IOWA

A Job Clinic, sponsored by the Veterans' Information Center, broadcast one of its sessions on a local network. Skilled craftsmen in the fields of drafting, refrigeration, radio, welding machine shop and mechanics were present to discuss the advantages and disadvantages of their crafts and to outline job opportunities in each.

The Veterans' Center also organized a series of Small Business Forums to acquaint returning veterans with business conditions in Des Moines. At a recent Forum, owners of a cafe, an oil station, a grocery store and a radio shop explained business opportunities in their respective fields and offered suggestions to veterans who want to start their own businesses.

SPRINGFIELD
ILLINOIS

The Illinois Veterans' Commission has started the ball rolling on an extensive on-the-job farm training program. Twenty meetings have been scheduled throughout the State--which veterans, farm advisors, vocational agriculture teachers and county service officers of the Illinois Veterans Commission will attend for the purpose of launching on-the-job training programs on approved farms.

Two steps are necessary to put the program in operation--approval of the farm facility and approval of the veteran's eligibility. Clearance of the farm for training-with-pay purposes will be determined by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction on recommendation of County Agricultural Committees, Vocational Agriculture Teachers, Farm Advisors and other recognized agricultural agencies. Approval of the veteran may be obtained by applying to any service officer of the Illinois Veterans' Commission.

Veterans will proceed through a pre-determined training course on farms of their own choosing, learning step-by-step important phase of modern agriculture. In addition, they will receive extra training from local high schools.

BOSTON
MASS.

Under the sponsorship of the Greater Boston Veterans' Service Center, the "Veterans for Jobs" group, a small organization of World War II veterans, is offering a free four-session course in "how to look for a job," at their Job Hunting School for Veterans. The four sessions cover the following topics: planning the job hunting campaign; locating your best prospects; approaching your prospect; interviewing for the job.

Roland Darling, who conducted a similar course before the war for more than 3800 young men and women at the Boston YMCA, and who is now a staff member of the Boston Center, will preside over the first three sessions. The fourth session will be an open forum with executives and personnel managers participating and interviewing veterans to help them develop their interview techniques. This session is also open to veterans who took the course in previous weeks.

Only 25 veterans will be admitted to a course at one time. If registration exceeds that number, more than one class will be held on the same subjects. Since such a course can only be of value to those who have some ideas as to what they want to do, registration will be confined to veterans who have received vocational counseling at some approved counseling service. Such counseling is available without charge at the Boston Center.

The school also plans to offer several occupational information forums at which veterans may get information about various fields from experts in those fields.

CHARLOTTE N. C.

The Veterans' Information Center issues a two-fold, multilithed monthly bulletin which includes both news and information of interest to veterans and also lists the various committees which work with the Center in solving veterans' problems. Two standard features of this bulletin are noteworthy. The following box appears on the cover:

FOR VETERANS

Open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. week days, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturdays.

Daily: Claims and benefits filed by North Carolina Veterans Service Commission; employment assistance by U. S. Employment Service.

Weekly schedule of advisory services:

Monday:	Employment and business advice.
Tuesday:	Education and vocational guidance.
Wednesday:	Medical examination and physically handicapped.
Thursday:	Life insurance and G. I. benefits.
Friday:	Personal problems, financial advice, purchase of homes and farms.

On the back appears Charlotte's Community Organization Chart, which includes all the operating committees and their members.

* * * * * *

LEGISLATION: STATE EMPLOYMENT PREFERENCE LAWS

All States have passed legislation providing employment preferences for veterans. Most of them include guarantees of reinstatement rights into State jobs, with preservation of seniority rights and other benefits. The selection of laws listed below are typical of many passed by several States. They can be found, together with many others, in a compilation of State Veterans' Laws which was distributed to Advisory Centers by RRA. Copies of this collection can be obtained from the Public Information Division of RRA.

CIVIL SERVICE

Alabama: Preference in State civil-service examinations is given to veterans, their wives or widows. In case of reduction in service they shall be the last to be dismissed.

BEAUTICIANS

Arizona: Beauty culturists and others requiring professional and occupational licenses are entitled to renewal of certificates without fee after termination of military service.

TEACHERS, BROKERS

Arkansas: Preservation of benefit rights for teachers are assured under the teacher retirement system and the Employment Security Act.

Veterans may be exempted from fees for license to give illustrated lectures, magic-lantern exhibitions, etc., to engage in brokerage or real estate, or any other business not prohibited in the State.

JOURNEYMEN, WELFARE BOARDS

California: Periods of service in the armed forces, whether that of an artisan or of the same general skilled nature, shall be counted by the State personnel board as regular journeymen experience under the State Civil Service Act and also under the Government Code.

Being a war veteran is a prerequisite to membership on the veterans' welfare board.

LAWYERS, TAX REPORTS

Connecticut: Admission to the bar without examination is permitted upon being discharged from military service, if applicant was graduated from an approved school after June, 1941.

Exemption is provided from penalty for failure to file an unincorporated business tax report for specified period after honorable discharge.

LICENSES

Florida: Renewal of business, occupational, and professional licenses without examination is permitted, following service in armed forces. Veterans of World Wars I and II and of the Spanish-American War are exempt from business or occupational license fees, to the amount of $50.

VETERANS PREFERENCE — Idaho: Preference is given disabled veterans in State, county and municipal work of any kind.

PEDDLERS — Indiana: Certain veterans are exempt from fee for license to vend hawk, and peddle goods, wares, fruits, and merchandise.

NEWSPAPERS — Nebraska: Preservation of status is assured to legal newspapers forced to suspend publication during military service of owners.

7 OF 11 — Ohio: At least 7 of 11 members of the board of trustees of town, municipal, or county memorials to veterans shall be veterans. Preference shall be given to veterans in employment on the construction and the maintenance of such memorial buildings.

COUNTY SERVICE — South Dakota: Preference is given to veterans for appointment as county service officers.

FIELD MEN — Texas: State service officer and field assistants shall be ex-servicemen.

CORPORATIONS — Washington: The directors or officers of a corporation, granted leave of absence for military service, are exempted from liabilit for the acts of the corporation.

* * * * * *

READING LIST: OF INTEREST TO VETERANS AND OTHERS

BOOKS, PAMPHLETS, ETC.

Industry for Veterans: A free pamphlet listing 3,026 firms throughout the country who have signed the Industry for Veterans Pledge to give preference to veterans in all new employment until at least 25 percent of their pay roll are veterans. Available at Industry for Veterans, Inc., 55 East Washington St., Chicago 2 Ill.

Facts About Jobs in Government for Veterans: Gives general discussion of what the city, State, and Federal governments do to serve the people, and specific facts on salaries, hours, vacation and other working conditions in public service. Also gives information about veteran's preference in competing for these jobs; ho and where to apply for them; and some information on training for government positions for those who are interested in studying wit a government job in view. The price is $5 for 100 and $35 for 1000, Public Administration Clearing House, 1313 East 60th St., Chicago 37, Ill.

Index of Government Publications: Available from the Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C., at no charge.

Why Co-Ops? What they are and how they work. Prepared for the U. S. Armed Forces by the American Historical Association. Now for sale at the Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C. 15 cents.

National Service Life Insurance: A compact manual which tabulates values of each age and for all permanent National Service forms authorized to date. Included are rates at all ages and available options of settlement. Prepared by the Insurance Research and Review Service, Inc., Indianapolis, Ind. Free.

Getting Into the Trucking Business: An excellent booklet, outlining factors in motor transport, for veterans who are thinking of going into the trucking business. Copies may be obtained free from the American Trucking Association, Inc., 1424 Sixteenth St., N. W., Washington 6, D. C.

Labor Market Information Area Series: A monthly publication by USES giving data on the labor market in different areas. Copies can be examined at local USES offices but can be procured only by writing to U. S. Employment Service, Washington 25, D. C. Free.

Employers' Guide for the Development of a Veterans' Employment Program: Suggestions to employers for increasing the number of veterans hired. Prepared by the Veterans' Employment Service, and available through local offices of USES. Free.

Selective Placement of the Handicapped: Published by the War Manpower Commission and available from Superintendent of Documents Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C. 25 cents.

The Veterans' Best Opportunities: By Edward R. Fiske. Analyzes business opportunities for veterans. Offers constructive advice from 50 contributing authors, each an authority in his field, from air conditioning and funeral directing to the newspaper business and taxidermy. (Duell, Sloan and Pearce, New York, 1946, $2.50)

So You Want to Go Into Advertising? By Mark O'Dea: Reprint of article giving vocational guidance to veterans who plan a career in advertising. (Printers' Ink Publishing Co., 205 East 42 Street, New York, Dec. 28, 1945, free.)

The Veterans' Program: By Charles Hurd. A complete guide to veterans' benefits, rights and options prepared by the editor of the widely-read New York Times column, "The Veteran." Written in simple, clear language and illustrated with good workable charts. Some of the information on laws requires updating because of recent, new legislation, but the basic material is comprehensive and currently useful. Whittlesey House, McGraw Hill Book Co., Inc., New York 18, N. Y. $2.

Reading

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING & REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
United States Department of Labor

No. 3 April 4, 1946 Washington 25, D. C.

ON-THE-JOB TRAINING CODE

STANDARDS

The Interagency Committee established by RRA (see Bulletin issue No. 2) held its first meetings to consider the initiation of over-all standards for jobs, farms, and other establishments offering on-the-job training.

At the first meeting Major General Graves B. Erskine, USMC, RRA Administrator told the Committee that the States are cooperating fully in this program. Many of the States, said the General, are handicapped by the lack of supervisory facilities and their chief need in an acceptable basis for approval or non-approval of job-training establishments.

At the second meeting a subcommittee presented a draft of minimum over-all criteria to apply to all job-training establishments except in agriculture. These criteria included wages, length of time for the training period, schooling, hours of work, and definition of training programs. Typical application of categories covered by these minimum criteria are listed below. A subcommittee was also appointed to begin drafting proposed criteria for job-training in the agriculture field which includes farming, forestry, and fishery. When the Committee finally approves these draft proposals a report will be sent to all Centers on the content of the proposals.

Typical Occupational Categories

1. Professional
2. Amusement, recreation, and related services
3. Wholesale and retail trade
4. Finance, insurance, and real estate
5. Government
6. Business and repair services
7. Personal services
8. Transportation, communication, and other public utilities
9. Agriculture, forestry, and fishery
10. Mining
11. Construction
12. Manufacturing

HOUSING PRIORITIES

ORDER #1

The Veterans' Housing Program Order No. 1 was released March 26 by the Civilian Production Administration. The points listed below may be noted for the guidance of the Community Advisory Centers, but it is advisable to consult regional or Washington offices of FHA, CPA and any other agencies involved in housing for official interpretation of specific points.

Copies of the Order and the CPA forms mentioned therein are being mailed to all Advisory Centers under separate cover.

1. To prevent any unnecessary diversion of materials, equipment and labor from the Veterans' Housing Program, the Order forbids most other types of construction not already under way when the Order was issued on March 26, 1946, by the Civilian Production Administration.

2. The Order should make it easier for war veterans to buy new homes during the remainder of 1946 and 1947.

3. Anyone, veteran or non-veteran, who wishes to build a house or to make home repairs or improvements costing more than $400 (except on a farm), should apply on Form CPA 4386 to the nearest office of the Federal Housing Administration.

4. Anyone who wishes to build a farm home or to improve a farm home at a cost exceeding $400 should apply to his County Agriculture Conservation Committee.

5. Any farmer, veteran or non-veteran, who wants to spend more than $1,000 for improving farm buildings should apply to his County Agriculture Conservation Committee on Form CPA 4423.

6. Any person who wishes to spend more than $1,000 to improve or build a store or other commercial establishment, should make application on Form CPA 4423 to the nearest construction field office of the Civilian Production Administration.

7. In the case of factory buildings and other industrial establishments involving an expenditure of more than $15,000, permission must be obtained from the Civilian Production Administration.

8. The CPA is reported to be also preparing an Order intended to revise the system set up under Priority Regulation No. 33, to direct a larger percentage of scarce building materials into the Veterans' Housing Program.

9. The present order, however, does not require permission for repairs to damage caused by disasters (fire, flood, wind), provided that such repairs cost not more than $6,000 and that such repairs are begun within 60 days after the damage.

* * * * * * *

INSECTS TO SUBURBANITES

GOVERNMENT PUBLICATIONS

There is no over-all catalog listing all Government publications as it would be too voluminous for practical use. However, a Semi-monthly List of Selected U. S. Government Publications for sale by the Superintendent of Documents, arranged alphabetically by subjects, with annotations and prices, may be obtained free upon application to the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C.

The Monthly Catalog of U. S. Public Documents, costing $2.25 a year, lists all U. S. public documents whether for sale or otherwise, and can also be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents.

In addition to the above services it is possible to obtain, free of charge, price lists of each available book or pamphlet on current topics. These lists are also available at the Superintendent of Documents and include the subjects listed below. When ordering the lists refer to the key number as well as the subject title.

PRICE LISTS OF GOVERNMENT PUBLICATIONS

These price lists are issued by the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C. They describe each available book or pamphlet, and embrace current topics as follows:

10 Laws. Federal statutes and compilations of laws on various subjects.

11 Foods and Cooking. Home economics, household recipes, canning, cold storage.

15 Geological Survey. Covers geology and water supply.

18 Engineering and Surveying. Leveling, tides, magnetism, triangulation, and earthquakes.

19 Army and Militia. National defense, veterans' affairs.

20 Public Domain. Public lands, conservation, National Resources Planning Board.

21 Fish and Wildlife Service, and other publications relating to fish and wildlife.

24 Indians. Publications pertaining to Indians, anthropology, and archeology.

25 Transportation and Panama Canal. Railroad and shipping problems, postal service, communications, Coast Guard Panama Canal.

28 Finance. Banking, securities, loans

(continued.)

PRICE LISTS OF GOVERNMENT PUBLICATIONS (continued).

31 Education. Includes agriculture and vocational education and libraries.

32 Insular Possessions. (Philippines, Puerto Rico, Guam, American Somoa, Virgin Islands).

33 Labor. Child labor, women workers wages, workmen's insurance and compensation.

35 Geography and Explorations. National parks, guidebooks.

36 Government Periodicals, for which subscriptions are taken

37 Tariff. Compilation of acts, decisions, and regulations, relating to tariff, taxation, and income tax.

38 Animal Industry. Domestic animals, poultry and dairy industries.

41 Insects. Bees and honey, and insects harmful to man, animals, and plants.

42 Irrigation, Drainage, Water Power. Federal Power Commission, water resources.

43 Forestry. National forests, ranges, lumber and timber.

44 Plants. Culture of fruits, vegetables, cereals, grasses, grain.

45 Roads. Construction, improvement, and maintenance.

46 Agricultural Chemistry and Soils and Fertilizers. Chemistry of foods, soil surveys, soil erosion, and conservation.

48 Weather, Astronomy, and Meterology. Climate, floods, aerological observations.

49 Proceedings of Congress. Bound volumes of Congressional Record and Congressional Globe.

50 American History and Biography. The Revolution, Civil War, World War.

51 Health. Diseases, drugs, sanitation, water pollution.

53 Maps. Government maps, and directions for obtaining them.

54 Political Science. Government, crime, liquors, District of Columbia, Supreme Court, un-American activities.

55 National Museum. Contributions from National Herbarium, National Academy of Sciences, and Smithsonian reports.

58 Mines. Explosives, fuel, gas, gasoline, petroleum, minerals.

59 Interstate Commerce. Steam railways, motor carriers, carriers by water.

60 Alaska and Hawaii. Mineral and agricultural resources, coal lands, geology, water supply, seal fisheries.

62 Commerce and Manufacturers. Foreign trade patents, trusts, public utilities.

63 Navy. Publications relating to Navy and Marine Corps.

64 Standards of Weight and Measure. Tests of metals, building materials, electricity, photography.

65 Foreign Relations. Executive agreements, treaties, neutrality, international conferences.

67 Immigration. Aliens, citizenship, naturalization, races.

(continued.)

PRICE LISTS OF GOVERNMENT PUBLICATIONS (continued).

68 Farm Management. Agricultural credit, farm products, marketing agricultural statistics.

69 Pacific States: California, Oregon, Washington. All material relating to these States.

70 Census. Statistics of population, manufactures, agriculture, occupations.

71 Children's Bureau, and other publications relating to children.

72 Suburbanites. Publications of interest to suburbanites and home builders.

75 Federal Specifications. Federal standard stock catalog.

77 World War II. National defense, postwar planning.

List of Field Manuals and Technical Manuals.

List of Radio Publications.

* * * * * * * *

CLOTHING CONFERENCE

MEN'S SUIT'S

A conference of some of the nation's leading mens clothiers and merchants was recently called by General Erskine to consider whether some means could be found by which manufacturers, distributors, or local dealers might be able to channel a more adequate supply of men's clothing toward newly discharged servicemen, many of whom are in dire need of civilian garb.

Although no immediate solution or remedy for the problem was evolved at this meeting, additional meetings will be held soon by RRA to explore the matter further. Several of the conferees, however, told of plans by which their respective establishments have been allowing veterans' preference in the purchase of clothing.

One store told of having declared a moratorium on all sales to non-veterans for a full week, allowing only veterans to purchase men's clothing during that period. Thereafter, each item of apparel was dated as it arrived in the shop and for three days from that date it was available only to veterans. Only items bearing dates more than three days old were sold to non-veterans.

Another store had tried restricting sales to veterans during the morning hours of business, but most admitted that their only policy was to provide for veterans whenever possible while giving non-veterans the same access to all available merchandise.

Community Advisory Centers might be able to influence local retail clothing merchants in the solution of the veteran's urgent need for civilian clothes during the present shortage.

* * * * * * *

State Scholarships: New York State voted 1,200 additional scholarships for veterans, granting free tuition at any approved college in the State.

* * * * * * *

NATIONAL SERVICE LIFE INSURANCE EXAMINATIONS

FREE PHYSICALS

Physical and mental examinations required of an applicant for National Service Life Insurance, or of an applicant for reinstatement of the insurance, can be had free of charge from medical officers of the U. S. Army, Navy, or Public Health Service, or from full time or part time salaried physicians at regional offices or hospitals of the Veterans' Administration.

Examinations may also be made by private physicians at the applicant's own expense, provided the physician is not related to him by blood or marriage, associated with him in business, or pecuniarily interested in the issuance or reinstatement of the policy.

* * * * * * *

100,000 FARMS

FARMS FOR VETERANS

The Bureau of Reclamation, (Department of Interior) recently announced that veterans of World War II will have at least a 90-day preference in homesteading on public-land farms. The issuance of public notices opening public lands for homesteading will be resumed during 1946, when veterans have returned in sufficient numbers to insure an equal chance to all who desire to apply for farms. For 90 days after the opening date, established by public notice, only veterans will be considered.

Veterans can take advantage of the G.I. Bill of Rights as amended, in connection with purchasing these lands. Land sales have risen substantially in the past few years, but the amended G.I. Bill does not limit the amount of the loan itself although the guaranteed portion cannot exceed $4,000.

Public-land irrigated farms will be available on projects under construction or being planned by the Bureau of Reclamation in 17 western States. Size of farms varies from 10 acres, adaptable to specialty crops, to 160 irrigable acres maximum to which water can be delivered under Reclamation Law. Projects under construction or authorized will create 100,000 additional family-size farms.

For further information on specific questions get in touch with Regional Directors as listed on map which follows, or write to the Commissioner of the Bureau of Reclamation, Washington, 25, D. C.

HOMESTEADING OPPORTUNITIES ON IRRIGATED FARMS

See Story Preceding Page.

RECLAMATION ADDRESSES BY REGION

I. R. J. Newell, P.O. Box 937, Boise, Idaho.
II. Richard L. Boke, Old Post Office Building, Sacramento 14, Calif.
III. E. A. Moritz, Administration Building, Boulder City, Nev.
IV. E. O. Larson, P.O. Box 360, Salt Lake City 8, Utah.
V. W. R. Nelson, P.O. Box 1609, Amarillo, Tex.
VI. H. D. Comstock, P.O. Box 2130, Billings, Mont.
VII. E. B. Debler, 220 Continental Oil Building, Denver, Colo.

NEW STATE LAWS

KENTUCKY

The Kentucky Legislature at its recent Biennial Legislative Session, passed the following bills of interest to veterans and others:

S. B. No. 18. Requires reemployment by the State government or any political subdivision of persons who have or will serve in the Armed Forces at the same status in the same position in which he was employed at the time he entered service.

S.B. No. 78. Authorizes building and loan associations to make loans in accordance with "G.I. Bill."

S.B. No. 113. Appropriates $7,500 to the State Educational Agency for Surplus Property, for employing personnel necessary for securing through the Federal Surplus Property Administration surplus property which may be available to the educational institutions within the State.

S.B. No. 114. Provides that Boards of Education may, without advertising for bids, purchase goods and supplies from the United States of America or any agency thereof.

S.B. No. 142. Provides that capital stock and accumulations of domestic life insurance companies may be invested in loans to veterans of World War II, and in bonds, notes or debentures of solvent incorporated companies existing under the laws of the United States or any State thereof.

S.B. No. 143. Amends system of Workmen's Compensation Law in industrial accidents to require employers engaged in business or occupations defined as "hazardous employment" to secure and pay compensation for accidental injury or death resulting from course of employment.

S.B. No. 152. Fixes method by which any person may obtain a license to practice pharmacy if (1) he has been honorably discharged from the Armed Services; (2) while in the service he was regularly employed for not less than twelve months in the preparation or dispensing of drugs and medicines, and (3) he has successfully completed at least two years of study in a college of pharmacy.

S.B. No. 175. Provides for the payment by cities of the second class of medical and hospital bills incurred by any city employee who becomes disabled while engaged in performance of duty.

S.B. No. 178. Authorizes the establishment and erection of memorials in honor of war veterans and creates a commission to manage and control the erection of the same.

PICTURES WANTED

Frequent requests for pictures of Advisory Centers makes it necessary for us to ask you for your help. We would appreciate your sending us small snapshot prints or regular photographs, depending on what you have available. We would like both shots of the outside of your building and interior shots which would show the activities going on in the Center. We would also be grateful for any written explanatory material you might want to add.

Please address your pictures to Public Information Division, Retraining and Reemployment Administration, Washington 25, D. C.

* * * * * *

NEWS AND IDEAS FROM CENTERS

We have received a good many letters stating that "the news and ideas from the Centers" section of the Bulletin is a valuable contribution. If there is any activity going on in your Center which you think other Centers might like to hear about, please send in your report to the Public Information Division, RRA.

****

RYE
NEW YORK

The Westchester County Service Agency of Rye, New York, working together with the city authorities, has completed plans under the New York State Housing Authority to furnish homes for 100 families of veterans. Building has already started and it is expected that a large percentage of the units will be ready for occupancy not later than June 1.

PLAINFIELD
NEW JERSEY

The housing shortage has been no problem in Plainfield in setting up its Advisory Center. The Veterans Service Center, directed by a former army first sergeant, is located in a large private home donated for this purpose by a local orthopedic surgeon who uses part of the house for his office. A good-sized gymnasium has been turned into a reading room and rest haven for veterans, and also serves as a waiting room when the Director and his staff are busy. A small kitchen off the back provides coffee for visitors.

AKRON OHIO

The Director of the Veterans' Information Center has set up a business, construction, and professional panel of 60 public members, to assist veterans in deciding the kind of work for which they are best suited. In order that veterans get the most benefit from this panel, the Center's Director gave an intensive 4-week instruction course to the panel members on counseling.

THIS IS A BAD EXAMPLE

For six months an Advisory Center in a good-sized community has been operating with almost no help from the citizens of the locality. Eight to ten calls daily have come in to the inadequately paid Director requesting aid and advice on every conceivable subject. The Director was forced to give inadequate help to the veterans who requested assistance because the citizens in the community do not seem to have the time nor the desire to do voluntary counseling. It has been the experience of this Director that Federal or State agencies can handle only a small percentage of the inquiries.

Unless every individual in a community pitches in, no amount of Federal and State aid can help the veteran. This is only one of all too many cases in which a community is failing to live up to its responsibility to the veteran, its displaced war worker, and others who contributed so much to winning the peace.

* * * * * *

DISCHARGE BUTTONS

Advisory Centers can sell discharge buttons, subject to Army Regulation AR-600-90, dated February 3, 1945. This regulation provides that upon obtaining written authority from the Adjutant General, War Department, Washington 25, D. C., an agent other than the Army itself may sell discharge buttons.

In other words, a Center can maintain a small supply of discharge emblems for distribution to men who have lost theirs and who are equipped with the proper papers. A letter from an Advisory Center, on its stationery, addressed to the Adjutant General should result in the Center being given permission to handle the buttons.

* * * * * *

READING LIST: OF INTEREST TO VETERANS AND OTHERS

BOOKS, PAMPHLETS, ETC.

National Apprenticeship Program: Free bulletin available from Department of Labor, Apprentice Training Service, Washington 25, D. C. Gives a non-technical explanation of the National Apprenticeship Program answering many questions raised by those interested in learning a trade. Lists regional offices of Apprentice Training Service and related publications now available.

Our Last Land Frontiers: How Veterans and Others Can Share Them. A brief outline of possibilities in homesteading, indicating where complete and official information can be obtained. Alaska--its public lands, fur-farming, mining, and business opportunities are sketched. United States--Gives information as to where and when public lands will be available within continental U. S. Published by Department of Interior, and for sale at Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C., at 5¢.

From Military Service to Civil Service: A Free booklet, available from U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D. C., answers 68 questions most frequently asked by returning servicemen and women about Federal employment, and carries a list of Civil Service Regional Offices.

The Training of Vocational Counselors: This is a 77-page information bulletin designed for those responsible for training and placement of vocational counselors. It includes a Directory of Agencies, with a brief description of selected Federal agencies involved in vocational counseling. Also contains a selected list of reading references. For sale by Superintendent of Documents. U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C., at 15¢.

The Veteran and the Forest Service: (Bulletin No. O-14) Outlines the type of employment in forest service which may be available, gives requirements for positions, and lists colleges which give courses leading to a degree in forestry. Seasonal employment is discussed, and a roster of Regional Foresters included. Write to Information and Education Division, Forest Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C. Free.

Directory of College Radio Courses: Contains an alphabetical list of colleges by name, and a list of institutions by States where courses in radio are available. Free from Federal Radio Education Committee, U. S. Office of Education, Washington 25, D. C.

Reading

RECOMMENDED MINIMUM CRITERIA FOR APPROVAL OF ESTABLISHMENTS OFFERING NON-AGRICULTURAL ON-THE-JOB TRAINING FOR VETERANS

* * * * * * * * * *

ADOPTED APRIL 8, 1946

BY

INTERAGENCY COMMITTEE FOR DEVELOPMENT OF

CRITERIA AND STANDARDS FOR ON-THE-JOB TRAINING

Department of labor

RETRAINING AND REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION

Washington 25, D. C.

Department of Labor
RETRAINING AND REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
Federal Trade Commission Building
Washington 25, D. C.

April 8, 1946

TO THE GOVERNORS OF ALL STATES AND TERRITORIES:

It is the desire of all concerned that maximum opportunity for on-the-job training be made available to veterans, but it is equally important that such opportunity be of a worth while character and bring adequate return to the veteran in terms of training received.

On March 22, 1946, I wrote to the Governors of the various States enclosing copy of Retraining and Reemployment Administration Order No. 4, which set up an Interagency Committee for Development of Criteria and Standards for On-the-Job Training. This Committee was the result of numerous requests from State agencies and organizations interested in on-the-job training for veterans. Such requests called attention to the need for basic minimum standards which could serve as a guide, on a nation-wide basis, for the approval of on-the-job training programs.

This Committee has been organized and has held a number of meetings. On April 8, 1946, it adopted basic minimum criteria for non-agricultural on-the-job training for veterans and recommended that they be transmitted to the States.

The enclosed criteria are respectfully submitted for consideration by the agencies in each State which have the responsibility of approving establishments for on-the-job training. It is clearly recognized that such agencies have full responsibility for setting up their own criteria and standards for approval, and that many States have higher standards than those developed by the Committee as a minimum.

The suggested criteria enclosed represent the combined thinking of Federal agency representatives and have been discussed with, and general approval has been obtained from, representatives of the following agencies:

American Council on Education
American Federation of Labor
American Legion
American Veterans' Committee
American Veterans of World War II
American Vocational Association
Chamber of Commerce of the U.S.
Congress of Industrial Organizations
Council of Chief State School Officers
Disabled American Veterans
National Education Association
Veterans of Foreign Wars

It is hoped that the States will see fit to adopt these criteria as a minimum basis for approval. It is believed that such action on their part would be of material assistance in promoting uniformity throughout the country in the development of on-the-job training programs that will serve the best interests of the veteran, employer, State, and Federal Governments.

The Committee is now at work on basic criteria for agricultural on-the-job training programs; it then intends to move on to more specific job fields wherever minimum standards appear to be needed.

Any suggestions in this connection, on the part of State officials or State approving agencies, will be most welcome to the Committee and to the Retraining and Reemployment Administration.

Sincerely yours,

G. B. ERSKINE
Major General, USMC
Administrator

Enclosure

Department of Labor
RETRAINING AND REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
Washington 25, D. C.

RECOMMENDED MINIMUM CRITERIA FOR APPROVAL OF ESTABLISHMENTS OFFERING NON-AGRICULTURAL ON-THE-JOB TRAINING FOR VETERANS

GENERAL STATEMENT

Subsistence allowances for on-the-job training have been provided under Public Law 346, 78th Congress (G. I. Bill of Rights), to assure economic security to veterans who want to learn a job which will increase their earning capacity and their opportunity for employment and advancement. Subsistence payments are in addition to the wages paid by the employer during the training period. The maximum subsistence allowance under this training program is $65 a month for veterans without dependents and $90 a month for those with dependents. Combined wages and allowance cannot exceed the wages of the experienced worker in the job for which the veteran is being trained.

The subsistence allowance is not a dole to the veteran nor is it intended as a subsidy to the employer. The value of the program would be lost and its integrity discredited if it were used as a cheap labor scheme or if the period of subsidized training were prolonged unnecessarily or veterans were trained for nonexistent jobs. Safeguards have been set up in some States through the appointment of local advisory committees made up of representatives of management, labor, veterans, and education to review the programs proposed by employers and to serve as consultants to the veterans on the adequacy of the job training offered them.

All groups concerned with the employment and training of veterans, including State approving agencies, employer associations, labor organizations, and veterans organizations have recognized the need for greater uniformity among the States in the approval of on-the-job training programs for veterans somewhat similar to standards applicable to the training of apprentices.

Apprenticeship is a form of training for which subsistence allowance may be payable. Standards to safeguard the welfare of apprentices are established by State and Federal apprenticeship agencies. These standards cover employment and training for recognized trades which require at least 4000 hours of training through employment supplemented by 144 hours of related classroom instruction each year of the apprenticeship.

Additional standards are needed only for training jobs which are not apprenticeable but which have sufficient training content to warrant a veteran's utilizing his education or training entitlement. Many jobs based on customary training practices in various industries are so narrow in scope that they do not justify the use by the veteran of his training entitlement. This is not intended to disparage any job, but where the amount of training is slight, and there is a relatively small differential between the entrance wage and the rate paid a trained worker, there would be little, if any, advantage to veterans in the approval of such training programs.

Certain types of on-the-job training with related or technical training may be given in programs of vocational education conducted under Plans of State Boards for Vocational Education. Such programs may be used in implementing the training conducted under standards set forth in this document.

Acting upon the request of State approving agencies and the evident need for a common approach to standards for on-the-job training, the Retraining and Reemployment Administration appointed an Interagency Committee under its Order No. 4 to develop suggested standards for on-the-job training.

DEFINITION

An used herein, "on-the-job training" means any form of training in a job in any industry or occupation which requires a minimum of 500 hours of training work experience and related or technical training to attain reasonable competency, and in which there is customarily a differential between the beginning wage and the wage paid a trained worker.

THE APPLICATION FOR APPROVAL OF ON-THE-JOB TRAINING

An establishment desiring to undertake an on-the-job training program under Public Law 346 should be required to submit to the appropriate State approving agency a written application setting forth the course of training for each job for which a veteran is to be trained. The written application covering the training program should include the following items:

1. Title and description of the specific job objective for which the veteran is to be trained.
2. Length of the training period in hours.
3. Schedule listing various operations for major kinds of work or tasks to be learned and showing for each the job operations or work tasks to be performed, and the approximate length of time to be spent on each operation or task.
4. Wages or salary to be paid at the beginning of the training program, at each successive step in the program, and at the completion of training.

5. Wages or salary paid by the establishment to employees already trained in the kind of work for which the veteran is to be trained.
6. Number of hours of supplemental instruction required.

STANDARDS FOR APPROVAL OF ON-THE-JOB TRAINING

The State approving agency should consider for approval only those establishments offering training programs which are submitted in conformity with the above specifications and should approve only those found upon investigation to have met or made provision for meeting the following criteria:

1. The training content of the program is adequate to qualify the veteran for appointment to the job for which he is to be trained.
2. There is reasonable certainty that the job for which the veteran is to be trained will be available to him at the end of the training period as is evidenced by such factors as the ratio of trainees, veteran and non-veteran, to trained workers.
3. The job is not in a standard wage classification, in which progression and appointment to the next higher classification are based upon such factors as length of service and normal turnover, and not upon skills learned through organized training on the job.
4. The wages to be paid the veteran for each successive period of training are not less than those customarily paid in the establishment and the community to a learner in the same job who is not a veteran and are in conformity with State and Federal laws and applicable bargaining agreements.
5. The job customarily requires a period of training which justifies the setting up of a complete program of not less than 500 hours of training.

6. The length of the training period is no longer than that customarily required by the establishment and other establishments in the community to provide the trainee with the required skills, arrange for the acquiring of job knowledge, technical information, and other facts which the trainee will need to learn in order to become competent on the job for which he is being trained.
7. Provision is made for related instruction.
8. There is in the establishment adequate space, equipment, instructional material, and instructor personnel to provide satisfactory training on the job.
9. Adequate records are kept to show the progress made by the veteran toward his job objective.
10. Appropriate credit is given the veteran for previous job experience, whether in military service or elsewhere, his beginning wage adjusted to the level to which such credit advances him, and his training period shortened accordingly.
11. A copy of the training program as approved by the State agency is provided to the veteran by the employer.
12. Upon completion of the training the veteran is given a certificate indicating the length and type of training provided and attesting to his competency in the job for which he was trained.
13. Employees of the establishment are advised of the training program.
14. The approving agency should have access to the establishment for the purpose of assisting in the development and improvement of the training program.

CERTIFICATION PROCEDURE

1. A certificate should be issued by the approving agency to the establishment indicating approval of the specific on-the-job training course, or courses, the maximum number of trainees for each of the approved on-the-job training courses, and indicating that the Veterans Administration is being notified of approval.
2. Copies of such certificate should be transmitted to all agencies involved in the training program.

Adopted on April 8, 1946 by the Interagency Committee for Development of Criteria and Standards for On-the-Job Training established pursuant to Retraining and Reemployment Administration Order No. 4.

Approved for transmittal to the Governors of all States and Territories.

Dated: April 8, 1946

G. B. ERSKINE
Major General, USMC
Administrator

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

NUMBER 6 APRIL 25, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

Reading

SURPLUS PROPERTY FOR SCHOOLS

BARRACKS, QUONSET HUTS

By RRA Order #5, a Federal interagency committee to assist State agencies and non-profit educational institutions in the acquisition of surplus Government materials and facilities for the expansion of schools and colleges was set up recently by Major General Graves B. Erskine, USMC, Head of the Retraining and Reemployment Administration.

"Hampered by wartime restrictions on construction materials and training equipment, our schools and colleges today are facing enormous difficulties in attempting to provide for the expanding enrollment of both veterans and non-veterans," explained General Erskine. "They must have quick access to additional buildings for instruction and living quarters and laboratory equipment and books.

"Now that the shooting war is over, we have a grave responsibility to see that those who won the war receive adequate training for keeping the peace. It is the purpose of this committee to help them get it by doing everything possible to provide facilities for it."

Under General Erskine's order, the committee will determine the needs for and availability of training facilities, equipment, and materials and make recommendations for the fastest possible disposition of available materials to educational institutions in accordance with their need.

Federal agencies participating on the committee under General Erskine's chairmanship include the Federal Security Agency, the War Assets Administration, the War Department, and the Navy Department. The Veterans Administration also is requested to designate a member of the committee.

* * * * * * *

NEW ADVANTAGES UNDER G.I. BILL

HOME STUDY

Veterans Administration announced on April 15 that it has negotiated contracts with 38 educational institutions throughout the country authorizing them to furnish correspondence and extension courses by mail to veterans eligible for educational benefits under veterans legislation. Courses offered by these schools cover virtually every educational field, making available to veterans instruction by correspondence in everything from academic subjects to a wide variety of trades and professions.

Under the original Servicemen's Readjustment Act (G.I. Bill) a veteran could not enroll for a correspondence course because the language of the Act specified "attendance" at a school or other training institution. As amended last December, the Act now authorizes such courses with the proviso that VA negotiate contracts individually with each school offering courses to supply them at a cost deemed "reasonable and fair".

The veteran receives no subsistence allowance while pursuing a correspondence course and the total cost of all such courses he takes may not exceed $500. A charge of one-fourth of the time spent in following a correspondence course is made against the veteran's period of eligibility for educational benefits. A correspondence course also may be taken in conjunction with regular institutional or job training.

Of the 38 contracts thus far signed, 25 are with colleges and universities in 19 States. Fifteen of these offer high school as well as college courses. Only one high school--Phoenix Union at Phoenix, Arizona--has contracted to furnish correspondence courses to veterans, and only to Arizona veteran-residents.

The 25 colleges and universities are:

Central Missouri State Teachers College, Warrensburg
Colorado State College of Education, Greeley
University of Colorado, Boulder
University of Denver, Denver
University of Florida, Gainesville
University System of Georgia, Atlanta
Indiana State Teachers College, Terre Haute
University of Kentucky, Lexington
Louisiana State U., A&M College, Baton Rouge
University of Minnesota, Minneapolis
Southwest Missouri State Teachers College, Springfield
University of Nebraska, Lincoln
University of Nevada, Reno
Northeastern State College, Tahlequah, Oklahoma
Ohio University, Athens
Oklahoma A&M College, Stillwater
University of Oklahoma, Norman
Oregon State System of Higher Education, Eugene
University of South Carolina, Columbia University of South Dakota, Vermillion
State College of Washington, Pullman
University of Tennessee, Knoxville
University of Utah, Salt Lake City
University of Washington, Seattle
University of Wisconsin, Madison

There are 13 trade and business schools on the approved list, offering courses in such diversified subjects as refrigeration, radio electronics, engineering, television, journalism, Federal income tax, machine drafting, hotel training, traffic management, accounting and filing.

The trade and business schools covered by contracts for correspondence courses are:

La Salle Extension University, Chicago
International Accountants Society, Chicago
Remington Rand, Inc., Buffalo
Commercial Trades Institute, Chicago, Illinois
DeForest's Training, Chicago, Illinois
Industrial Training Institute, Chicago, Illinois
Lewis Hotel Training School, Washington, D. C.
Capitol Radio Engineering Institute, Washington, D. C.
International Correspondence Schools, Scranton, Pa.
John Marshall College, Jersey City, New Jersey
National Radio Institute, Washington, D. C.
Newspaper Institute of America, New York, N. Y.

Eligible veterans who wish to enroll for correspondence courses should make application at the nearest VA regional office.

****

In this connection, there is available, free, from the National Home Study Council, Washington 6, D. C., a "Blue Book and Directory of Private Home Study Schools and Courses" which have been approved by the National Home Study Council. Not all of the schools are included in the VA list, but the references are useful for those other than veterans who may wish to study at home.

** ** ** ** ** ** ** **

HOUSING PRIORITIES

MORE HOMES

Expansion of the priorities system for the building of veterans' housing, to include new classes of individuals and kinds of housing, was announced on April 12 by the Civilian Production Administration and the National Housing Agency, through the amendment of CPA's Priorities Regulation 33. (Copies of this amendment together with other CPA regulations are currently being mailed to Advisory Centers.)

Builders of non-veteran housing accommodations which were under construction before the issuance of the building control order (see Bulletin No. 3, page 2) on March 26 may now apply for priorities assistance to complete these houses and apartments. However, except in unusual circumstances these applications will not be approved if the proposed sales price is over $15,000, or the shelter rental over $120 a unit per month.

Housing construction needed for the production of essential foods or scarce products, as well as the reconstruction of homes destroyed by disaster, is now also provided for in Priorities Regulation 33.

The National Housing Agency now has authority over applications for priorities assistance under PR-33 for almost all kinds of non-veteran as well as veterans' housing, and for authorization to do housing construction, repair or alteration which would otherwise be prohibited under Veterans' Housing Program Order #1. (Text of this Order also being sent to Advisory Centers.) The authorizations, and HH (housing) priorities are issued through the State and district offices of the Federal Housing Administration (FHA), a unit of the National Housing Agency.

"Veterans' Preference" in building, or buying or renting housing accommodations built with HH priorities assistance, is extended by the amendment to a larger group of people. In addition to veterans of World War II, Priorities Regulation 33 now applies to present members of the Armed Forces and the Merchant Marine, Americans who served with allied forces in the war, and the widow or widower of a member of the Armed Forces who died in service in World War II, or the spouse of a deceased veteran of World War II, if the spouse is living with a child of the deceased.

Kinds of housing to which Priorities Regulation 33 now applies are buildings primarily designed for family occupancy, farm houses including bunkhouses for temporary farm labor, apartment hotels not primarily for transients, and dormitories or group housing accommodations put up by educational or public institutions for veterans.

PR-33 does not cover institutional housing (except for veterans), nor military housing, hotels for transients, trailers, camps, nor buildings which contain both housing accommodations and business space if more than 25% of the floor space is used for non-housing purposes, in the case of one-and two-family dwellings, or more than 15% in the case of multiple family dwellings.

Products on which priorities assistance under PR-33, Schedule A, apply are:

- common and face brick
- concrete blocks
- clay sewer pipes
- bathtubs
- structural clay tile
- warm-air furnaces
- cast iron soil pipe and fittings
- cast iron radiation
- millwork
- hardwood flooring
- construction plywood
- prefabricated houses
- prefabricated sections
- prefabricated panels
- gypsum board
- gypsum lath
- lumber

** ** ** ** ** ** ** **

CLAIMS: WHERE TO WRITE

LOST PROPERTY, BACK PAY, ETC.

Veterans with back pay, property loss and similar claims may discuss method of filing with members of District Offices of the Armed Services, but the actual filing is handled at specific central locations, depending on the claim in question.

Following are the most recent addresses for claims problems:

ARMY

Soldiers' Deposits
Office of Special
Settlement Accounts
27 Pine Street
New York 5, N. Y.

2nd or 3rd Payments on Mustering-Out Pay
Finance Officer Separation Center where discharged

Lost Property
Effects Quartermaster
Army Effects Bureau
Kansas City Quartermaster
Kansas City, Mo.

Back Pay & Other Monetary Claims
Central Field Fiscal Office
Army Service Forces
4300 Goodfellow Blvd.
St. Louis 20, Mo.

MARINE CORPS

All Claims
The Commandant
U. S. Marine Corps
Headquarters Marine Corps
Washington 25, D. C.

COAST GUARD

All Claims
The Commandant
U. S. Coast Guard Headquarters
13th and Pennsylvania Ave.
Washington 25, D. C.

NAVY

All Monetary Claims Bureau of Supplies and Accounts
Field Branch Office
U. S. Navy
Cleveland 15, Ohio

Lost Property
Supply Officer in Command
Personal Effects Distribution Center, U. S. Navy
Farragut, Idaho

Claims for personal property returned in damaged condition are sent to the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts.

NON-HOUSING CONSTRUCTION

STORES, GARAGES, ETC.

Addresses of those District Construction Offices which already have been established to handle applications under the Civilian Production Administration's order controlling construction (Veterans Housing Program Order 1, March 26) have been announced recently by the CPA. Construction field office addresses in other cities will be published as soon as the district managers have been able to secure office space.

These District Construction Offices have one function only, and that is the handling of area non-housing construction problems. (Queries and applications dealing with urban housing--non-veteran as well as veteran--are handled by the local Federal Housing Administration offices. Immediately after (March 27) issuance of Veterans Housing Program Order 1, CPA transferred to NHA authority to approve application for all housing construction, non-veteran as well as veteran.) Matters dealing with farm housing or other farm construction are handled through the County Agricultural Conservation Committees.)

OFFICE ADDRESSES OF DISTRICT CONSTRUCTION MANAGERS

REGION 1 (Maine, Vermont, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut)

Boston, Massachusetts - 55 Tremont St. (William P. Homans)
Hartford, Connecticut - 119 Ann St. (Bruce Macmillan)

REGION 2 (New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Pennsylvania Delaware, District of Columbia, including Arlington & Fairfax Counties, Virginia)

New York City, N. Y. - 43rd Floor, Empire State Bldg. (W. Arthur Riehl)
Buffalo, N. Y. - 1132 Rand Bldg. (Earl R. Mason)
Albany, N. Y. - Room 1206, 112 State St. (F. J. Holman)
Newark N. J. - 20 Washington Pl. (John A.McNulty)
Camden, N. J. - Post Office (Frederick Cohen)
Philadelphia, Penn. - Broad St. Station Bldg. (J. M. Leonard)
Pittsburgh, Penn. - 1810 First Nat'l Bank Bldg. (J. F. Stephens)
Wilmington, Del. - Room 301, Penn. Office Bldg. (R. W. Willis)
Baltimore, Md. - Room 305, 22 Light St. (O. W. Carman)
Washington, D. C. - Room 2051, Social Security Bldg. (Edward H. Synan)

REGION 3 (Ohio, Kentucky, Michigan, West Virginia)

Cleveland, Ohio - 1289 Union Commerce Bldg. (Glen W. Thompson)
Columbus, Ohio - 1037 North High St. (Louis W. Gehring)
Cincinnati, Ohio - 6th Floor, Big Four Bldg. (J. Thomas Grace)

Toledo, Ohio - Room 15, Old Post Office Bldg. (Vernon H. Pfaender)
Detroit, Mich. - 800 Blvd. Bldg. (John D. McGillis)
Louisville, Ky. - Wave Bldg. (Henry Edson)
Charleston, W. Va. - c/o FHA, Chamber of Commerce Bldg. (Alex H. Copper)

REGION 4 (Georgia, North Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee, South Carolina, Mississippi, Florida, Virginia)

Atlanta, Ga. - 1608 Candler Bldg. (John B. Reeves)
Richmond, Va. - 906 North Lombard St. (O. W. McCullough)
Greensboro, N. C. - 1105 Guilford Bldg. (Chester O. Ensign)
Columbia, S. C. - 108 South Gregg St. (Albert H. Douglas)
Jackson, Miss. - 3951 Council Circle (A. G. McIntosh)
Jacksonville, Fla. - c/o FBA, P. O. Box 4910 (C. L. Ledford)
Tampa, Fla. - 3116 Oaklyn Ave. (P. Campbell Smith)
Miami, Fla. - 3rd Floor, City Hall, Coral Gables (Clifford W. Street)

REGION 5 (Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana)

Chicago, Ill. - 226 West Jackson Blvd. (W. Fred Stevens)
Indianapolis, Ind. - 826 Circle Tower (Albert O. Evans)
Milwaukee, Wis. - 312 East Wisconsin Ave. (R. R. Valier)

REGION 6 (Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, Arkansas, Colorado)

St. Louis, No. - 410 Old Customs House (Robert B. Miller)
Little Rock, Ark. c/o FHA, Old Post Office Bldg. (Sam G. Davies)
Des Moines, Iowa - 708 Liberty Bldg. (H. O. Parsons)
Denver, Colo. - 523 Continental Oil Bldg. (Norman J. Castellan)
Topeka, Kan. - c/o FHA, Topeka Nat'l. Bank Bldg. (Alga Nothern)

REGION 7 (Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, New Mexico)

Dallas, Tex. - 1221 Mercantile Bank Bldg. (George L. Noble)
Fort Worth, Tex. - Chamber of Commerce Bldg. (Walter P. Camp)
Houston, Tex. - Electric Bldg. (Edgar G. Goforth)
San Antonio, Tex. - Transit Tower Bldg. (George W. Chambers)
Oklahoma City, Okla. - c/o FHA, Cotton Exhange Bldg. (Merwin T. Buxton)
New Orleans, La. - Room 407, Canal Bldg. (George A. Pettit)
Albuquerque, N. M. - 436 North Hermosa Ave. (Murray H. Sprague)

REGION 8 (Southern California, Arizona, Utah)

Los Angeles, Calif. - Room 1220, 1031 South Broadway (Irving Dix)
San Diego, Calif. - 308 Broadway Bldg. (John Young)
Salt Lake City, Utah - 310 Atlas Bldg. (Arnaold M. Seiler)

REGION 9 (Northern California, Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Nevada, Montana, Wyoming)

San Francisco, Calif. - 1355 Market St. (Gilbert H. Kneiss)
Boise, Idaho - Baird Bldg. (A. J. Wahl)

REGION 10 (Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota)

Minneapolis, Minn. - Midland Bank Bldg. (William L. Jensen)
Sioux Falls, S. Dak. - City Hall Bldg. (E. E. Seubert)

Offices in the cities listed below are now being established and will be announced later. Meanwhile, contact may be made with the CPA District Construction Manager named below through the Federal Housing Administration local office.

PUERTO RICO - Virgin Islands

San Juan, P. R. - Ramon Montaner

REGION 1

Springfield, Mass. - Phillip W. Simons
Bangor, Maine - Charles E. Walker
Providence, R. I. - James Q. Dolan
Burlington, Vt. - Edward H. Sargent
Manchester, N. H. - George C. Vaughan

REGION 3

Grand Rapids, Mich. - Harry D. Rosenberg

REGION 4

Memphis, Tenn. - Leonard H. Dille
Birmingham, Ala. - Paul P. Henderson

REGION 7

Tulsa, Okla, - Carl Stevens

REGION 8

Phoenix, Ariz. - Louis Myers

REGION 9

Seattle, Wash. - Donald W. Carswell
Spokane, Wash. - Dewitt Wallace
Portland, Wash. - Nelson English

Reno, Nev. - Edwin S. Bender
Casper, Wyo. - Bayard C. Wilson

REGION 10

Fargo, No. Dak. - Charles W. Randall

** ** ** ** ** ** ** ** **

We wish to thank Advisory Centers who have sent in pictures of their Center. A few have mailed photos printed in publications, which we cannot reproduce. We must have prints. Glossies 8" x 10" are preferred if they are available. We hope soon to run a page of these pictures in an issue of the Bulletin.

Advisory Centers can feel free to quote the Bulletin at any time.

The Bulletin is a regular weekly publication. If you miss an issue, write to the Public Information Division, RRA, Washington 25, D. C., and we will send you the copy you did not receive.

** ** ** ** ** ** ** ** **

ARTIFICIAL LIMBS INDICTMENTS

"NOISELESS," "CUSTOM BUILT"

Trade practice rules for the Artificial Limbs Industry were established on April 16 by the Federal Trade Commission to "Protect physically handicapped persons from misrepresentation and deception" in buying artificial limbs and similar prosthetic devises or appliances and accessories.

This action was partly the result of an indictment last November which charged 45 corporations and 34 individuals with violating the Sherman Anti-Trust Law. The FTC pointed out that there are 600,000 users of artificial limbs and devices in the country, including 16,000 veterans of World War II. The annual sales volume of artificial limbs in the U. S. aggregates $10,000,000. It was charged that the manufacturers named in the indictment handled about 75% of the artificial limb business of the nation.

Some points covered in the unfair trade practices follow:

1. It is considered unfair trade practice to sell, distribute, or promote the sale or distribution of any product which deceives the purchaser as to construction, absence of noise in operation, strength, appearance, fit, etc. In this connection it is also unfair trade practice to state or infer, unless it is completely true, that the product will give use and satisfaction to the wearer equivalent or entirely equivalent to that afforded by the human limb.

2. Any member of the industry must disclose to the purchaser of an industry product any and all latent defects in his product of which the manufacturer is aware. The manufacturer must also point out to the user of the limb, in the case of a recent amputation, that though fitting properly at the time of delivery the prosthetic device may not continue to be a proper fit owing to stump shrinkage.

3. Misleading pictures or testimonials are prohibited, as well as deceptive demonstrations.

4. The terms "custom made," "custom built," "tailored," etc., are illegal unless the device is actually made and fitted to the individual needs.

A full statement of all the rules pertaining to the limb industry is contained in a 14-page release called "Trade Practice Rules for the Artificial Limb Industry," which is available from the Federal Trade Commission, Washington 25, D. C.

** ** ** ** ** ** ** ** ** ** **

SURPLUS JEEPS

WARNING

According to the ARMY & NAVY BULLETIN, veterans who survive the avalanche of paper work necessary to buy a surplus Army jeep are apt to wind up with a ticket five minutes after they drive off in their new purchase.

Because no provisions have been made as yet by War Assets to give prospective buyers information necessary to obtain license tags before collecting the jeep, few get home without a run-in with the law.

It is advisable for jeep buyers to get, in advance of collecting the purchase, all details necessary to buy a license tag so that he can take along the tag when calling for the jeep. But do not buy tags until you know definitely that a vehicle has been sold to you.

** ** ** ** ** ** ** ** ** ** **

VETERANS EDUCATION

STATE AIDS

The Governor of New Jersey recently signed into the law a Senate Bill providing $1,074,000 for the expansion of education facilities in the State for veterans entitled to benefits under the G.I. Bill of Rights.

The measure sets up a revolving fund of $750,000 for college, vocational and adult courses and authorizes reimbursement of up to $324,000 to secondary schools which will operate approved high-school courses for veterans.

In order to alleviate the present acute crowding in the colleges of New Jersey, the recently signed law permits the State Department of Education to create in the six New Jersey State Teachers' Colleges courses of collegiate grade in the arts, sciences, business administration, teacher training, and other branches of higher education.

Courses will be established in local school districts to provide for expansion of vocational education and refresher and retraining work. To serve veterans not desiring college or vocational training, there will be created in local school districts courses in the field of education for adults and out-of-school youths.

****

EMERGENCY PAYMENTS

At a meeting of college and university officials called by Governor Ralph F. Gates of Indiana, problems of G. I. students were discussed, particularly delay in receiving Federal checks. As a result of this meeting, Indiana will finance a program of emergency aid to G.I. students whose Federal funds have been delayed. The money is lent to the institution, which in turn lends it to the student. Repayment is made as Federal checks arrive. The program is being handled by the State Veterans Affairs Department.

** ** ** ** ** ** ** ** ** ** **

CERTIFICATION PROCEDURE

SURPLUS PROPERTY

The War Assets Administration, which controls the disposition of surplus property, has issued a new statement on the certification process. For your information and guidance, we outline below the procedure governing the disposal of surplus property.

1. Declaration: As equipment becomes surplus to the needs of the Armed Services, it is declared to disposal agencies of which War Assets Administration is one.

Under the law this property is offered first to Federal agencies, second to State and local governments, and third to veterans, before disposition through regular channels.

NOTE: AT PRESS TIME, HIGHER VETS PREFERENCES SEEM IMMINENT, WATCH NEWS OR FUTURE BULLETIN FOR ANNOUNCEMENT.

2. Veterans Preference: The Surplus Property Act of 1944 and supplementary instructions give to veterans a preference subordinate only to the rights of Federal agencies and State and local governments. This preference is limited to veterans who desire to establish or maintain their own small business, professional or agricultural enterprises, or are required by their employment to have their own tools or equipment. This latter does not apply to items for resale.

3. Filing Applications: Veterans desiring to exercise their preference must file their applications with a Certifying Office (these are listed below) of WAA on Form 66, available from the nearest regional office. One copy must be filled out and returned to the office in person or by mail with a certified or photostatic copy of discharge or a certificate of honorable completion of active military duty. Originals of these documents should in no case be mailed to the Certifying Office. Applicants are advised instead to secure from their clerks of court or counties certification documents. In describing surplus property items requested a complete description must be given. It is also necessary to specify how far you are willing to travel to inspect items of surplus located for you and the areas from which you will pay shipping charges. The search expiration date must also be noted.

4. Certification: Upon receipt of your application and satisfactory evidence of your eligibility, this office will issue to you a certificate which will establish your eligibility for preference in the purchase of items requested.

5. Search: We will immediately file a copy of your request with the proper Regional Office for search purposes. They will screen their available inventories for the items applied for. This search will extend over the entire territory you are willing to cover to inspect items located or pay shipping charges.

6. Notice of Availability: When the item is located, you will be notified by our sales office as to approximate price, when and where it may be inspected, and how it may be bought.

7. Purchase: If you are satisfied with the item after inspection, you will complete arrangements for purchase, payment, and delivery with the WAA representative indicated to you in the letter advising you of the items available.

Note: Contrary to previous practice, you are not expected to locate the desired items yourself. Experience has shown that such unorganized searching activity results in confusion and would add materially to your expense.

****

The addresses of the WAA Regional Offices are as follows: -- (this list supersedes those printed on page 4 of Bulletin #1)

ATLANTA, GA., 699 Ponce de Leon Ave., NE; BIRMINGHAM, ALA., P. O. Box 2090, 1955 50th St., North; BOSTON, MASS., 600 Washington St.; CHARLOTTE, N. C., 317 S. Tryon St.; CHICAGO, ILL., 209 S. LaSalle St.; CINCINNATI, OHIO, 704 Race St.; CLEVELAND, OHIO, 1746 E. 12th St.; DALLAS, TEXAS, 2001 McKinley Ave.; DENVER, COLO., 728 15th St.; DETROIT, MICH., Buhl Bldg.; FORT WORTH, TEXAS, Pacific Office Bldg.; HELENA, MONTANA, Power Block; HOUSTON, TEXAS, 900 Rusk Bldg.; JACKSONVILLE, TENN., St. John's Shipyard Administrative Bldg.; KANSAS CITY, MO., Troost & Bannister Rd (95th St.); LOS ANGELES, CALIF., Mode O'Day Bldg., Hill St. & Wash. Blvd.; LITTLE ROCK, ARK., Wallace Bldg.; LOUISVILLE, KY., 103 S. 5th St.; MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., 504 Metropolitan Life Bldg.; NASHVILLE, TENN., Consolidated-Vultee Bldg.; NEW ORLEANS, LA., 720 Franklin Ave., P. O. Station D; NEW YORK, N. Y., 350 Fifth Ave.; OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA., 200 Cotton Exchange Bldg.; OMAHA 2, NEB., 601 Wow Building; PHILADELPHIA, PA., 1528 Walnut St.; PORTLAND, ORE., 310 S. W. 6th Ave.; RICHMOND, VA., East & 4th; ST. LOUIS, MO., 505 N. 7th St.; SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS, 3rd Floor, Transit Towers Corner, S. St. Marys & Villita St.; SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, 504 Dooly Bldg.; SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF., 30 Van Ness Ave.; SEATTLE, WASH., 2005 5th Ave.; SPOKANE, WASH., 500 Welch Bldg.

** ** ** ** ** ** ** ** ** ** **

NEWS AND IDEAS FROM THE CENTERS

TELEPHONES

In NEW YORK CITY, the Veterans' Service Committee has written a 14-page leaflet on telephone answers for the use of receptionists. The leaflet covers fully all types of questions which test a receptionist's imagination, and also makes useful suggestions concerning the do's and don'ts of telephone manners.

The leaflet gives explicit ways of handling vague questions, outlines the most efficient procedure for keeping a written record of information calls, and offers many tips designed to help both the person calling and Advisory Center personnel answering the calls.

NEW BUSINESS

In MILWAUKEE, WIS., the Veterans' Information and Referral Center has worked out an arrangement with the Milwaukee Junior Association of Commerce for the guidance of veterans who wish to go into business for themselves. When a veteran applies to the Center for information about starting a new business, the Center contacts the Junior Association of Commerce and within a day or two an appointment is made by one of their members with an individual who is active and successful in the type of business in which the veteran is interested. The JAC arranges appointments covering a wide range of enterprises, among which are sporting goods stores, men's furnishings stores, florists and candy shops, electrical appliance stores, taverns, gas stations, and grocery stores.

The Center is currently working on an arrangement with the JAC for referrals to the professional groups for both employment and counseling. This service will be for veterans with training in the fields of medicine, engineering, accountancy, etc.

FIRST ANNIVERSARY

In PHILADELPHIA, PA., the Veterans' Advisory Center has just released the organization's first annual report. Approximately 60,000 veterans have been served by the Center, 10,000 of which were clients requesting employment counseling, loans under the G.I. Bill, and business guidance. About 8,000 veterans sought information on school and vocational guidance and another 1,000 needed legal assistance. Personnel services numbered 6,000 cases, medical aid was given to 560, and miscellaneous information to 9,700. The United War Chest has allotted $69,200 to the work of the Center in 1946.

HOUSING

In INDEPENDENCE, MO., the 4-months old Veterans' Information Center is working hard on a tough housing situation. Through the Mayor's help, 8 Army barracks were obtained for conversion into 24 housing units to take care of the most urgent cases. A Share-the-Home Campaign is underway, as well as a program to promote the conversion of existing dwellings through the use of CPA priorities. Community sense of responsibility towards this rapidly developing Center is exemplified by one of the local lumber dealers who is helping the program through advertising.

TRAINING

In BRIDGEPORT, CONN., the Community Advisory Center conducts a free training course the first week of every month, for personnel engaged in advising or otherwise aiding veterans. This intensive training and refresher course is designed to give advisers of veterans a complete overall picture of facilities and services available to veterans. The course is maintained by the State, and application for enrollment is made to the Director of the Connecticut Veterans Reemployment and Advisory Commission.

** ** ** ** ** ** ** ** ** ** **

LEGISLATION: MISSISSIPPI

The 1946 session of the Mississippi legislature, which has recently closed, passed a good many laws of interest to veterans. The following laws pertain to housing - next week we will print those relating to education and miscellaneous subjects.

House Bill 161, the Farm and Home Loan Act, sets up a Farm and Home Loan Board of six members appointed by the Governor to assist veterans in buying a farm or home to cost not in excess of $5,000 where it can be shown a qualified veteran has been unable to obtain a loan in his own county or community. Under this Act the State may purchase a home or farm for a veteran and resell it to him with financed payments, at 4 percent interest, over a period of not to exceed twenty-five years. World War II veterans may use the G.I. home loan guaranty in financing a State Farm and Home Loan and veterans of World War I may qualify by paying as much as 10 percent cash down payment. All loans under this Act must be approved by a local county committee selected by the State Board, and the property must qualify as to appraised value and all title requirements. This Act will become operative as soon as the Board is appointed and administrative procedure adopted.

House Bill 1021, appropriates $5,000,000 for the administration of the Farm and Home Loan Program, limiting administrative expense to not more than $25,000 a year.

Senate Bill 292, is an Act authorizing cities and counties to establish housing authorities as legal corporations to operate veterans' housing projects and to acquire housing facilities from the Federal Government, to borrow money to carry out the Act and to accept grants and gifts from any agency in establishing emergency veterans' housing facilities.

Senate Bill 260, authorizes municipalities to execute contracts with the Federal Government for war housing, prefabricated houses or any other housing facilities, and to provide sites for houses and construct sewers, streets and other facilities necessary to establish and maintain, during the housing emergency, temporary facilities for veterans and their families.

House Bill 864, is an Act amending existing State laws and regulations in order to permit any bank, insurance company or lending institution to make loans to veterans under the G.I. Bill and authorizing all lending agencies, with the exception of insurance companies, to make unsecured loans to veterans up to $1,000, provided one-half of the loan is guaranteed by a Federal agency.

Senate Bill 427, authorizes the State Building Commission to subdivide into lots to be sold to veterans at non-inflationary prices 153 acres of State-owned land known as the Tripps Crossing area, bordering Highway 51 just north of the city limits of Jackson.

House Bill 10 , provides for a general revision of the Homestead Exemption law in Mississippi, with specific changes to permit a veteran who purchases a home under the G.I. Bill of Rights without any cash equity in the home or farm so purchased to be eligible for complete homestead exemption if otherwise qualified.

Senate Bill 192, qualifies any veteran for Homestead Exemption for the years 1942 to 1946 to apply for retroactive exemption for the past years if the only reason he did not obtain such exemption was due to his absence in the Armed Services.

Senate Bill 191, appropriates $25,000 to reimburse veterans for Homestead Tax exemptions paid since 1942 if eligiblity for exemption can now be established.

House Bill 161, heretofore referred to as the Farm and Home Loan Act, also contains a section which enables any county in Mississippi to appropriate funds for the support of local Veterans' Service Centers. The amount to be appropriated by the counties varies according to size, population, and assessed valuation, with a maximum of $750 and minimum of $250 a month. The appropriation may be paid from the general county fund, and the Board of supervisors may levy a one mill tax if necessary to care for the expense.

** ** ** ** ** ** ** ** ** ** **

READING LIST: OF INTEREST TO VETERANS AND OTHERS

BOOKS, PAMPHLETS, ETC.

Higher Education Looks Ahead (Bul. No. 8, 1945): A roundup on postwar planning in higher education, this 98-page bulletin covers forces and agencies that condition State and local planning, State-wide planning, action taken and proposed, and selected institutional plans including plans for education of veterans. Published by the U. S. Office of Education, and for sale by the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C., at 20¢.

Journal of Rehabilitation: A professional magazine published quarterly by the National Rehabilitation Association, deals with Rehabilitation of the physically handicapped in articles contributed by members of the various agencies working in this field, and includes benefits available through the State Rehabilitation Services. $2.00 per year, or 50¢ per single copy. Write to 1114 56th St., Des Moines 11, Iowa.

What You Can Do With Your Army Training as a Civilian, and What You Can Do With Your Navy Training as a Civilian: Two separate illustrated charts, prepared to show the ex-serviceman what jobs he can fill by using his service training in civilian occupations. Published by the B'nai B'rith Vocational Service Bureau, 1746 M St., N.W. Washington, D. C., at 20¢ per copy. Free to Government and service agencies.

Careers in Retail Business Ownership: A guide in choosing a retail business, this book gives up-to-date information on 35 retail fields to aid in deciding whether or not to plan career in retail business ownership, and if so, what specific line to consider. Compiled with assistance from Department of Commerce, Dun & Bradstreet, and specialists in various retail fields. 347 pp. Paper-bound $2.00; cloth-bound $3.00. Write to B'nai B'rith Vocational Service Bureau, 1746 M St., N.W., Washington, D. C.

Schools Giving Courses in Range Management: (No. 0-17, Feb., 1946) A descriptive list compiled to aid in answering inquiries regarding college instruction in range management. Write to Division of Information and Education, U. S. Forest Service, Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C. Free.

Professional Nurses: (Bul. 203, No. 3) Published as one of a series of the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor on the outlook for women in occupations in the medical and other health services, this pamphlet discusses the future outlook for women in nursing, and reviews their prewar and wartime role in this service. For sale at the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C.,at 15¢.

Employment Opportunities in Characteristic Industrial Occupations of Women: Bul. No. 201. A 50-page pamphlet illustrates the way in which women's work in industry during the war has extended over a varied range of occupations closely allied with peacetime manufacturing. Published by the Women's Bureau, Dept. of Labor, and for sale by the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., at 10¢.

Reading

Cir. 99, 1946.

Circular
No. 99

Veterans Administration
Washington, D. C., April 25, 1946.

INTERPRETATION AND APPLICATION OF "SUPERVISION OF VETERANS ENROLLED FOR COURSES OF TRAINING"
(V. A. CIRCULAR 61, 1946)

1. In V. A. Circular 61, March 14, 1946, Managers are authorized and directed to institute direct supervision of veterans enrolled in schools and training-on-the-job establishments to the extent necessary to protect the interests of the Government and the veteran. In the case of the veteran pursuing a course of education or training in a school or training-on-the-job establishment which has been offering over a period of years well-established and recognized courses of training, the Circular contemplates only that supervision which is required by V. A. Instruction No. 4, dated April 17, 1945, Title II, Public Law 346, 78th Congress. It is expected that such institutions will report to the appropriate Regional Office of the V. A. the attendance and the progress of the veteran in accordance with the provisions of paragraphs 2 (A), (B) and (C), V. A. Instruction No. 4, dated April 17, 1945. However, if these institutions are unable to make reports in accordance with these instructions, it will be necessary for a training officer to obtain this information.

2. The last two sentences of paragraph 4, V. A. Circular 61, are being interpreted to mean that the employer-trainer must guarantee appointment to the position for which the veteran is being trained. This is incorrect. The V. A. assumes that where employers are offering bona fide courses of training to any employee they are offering such courses for the purpose of preparing that employee for appointment to the job for which he is being trained and further that the appointment will be made on or before the completion of the training. It is considered fair to assert that this is the common practice. Business establishments are not in the business of training people except where they need people to fill particular jobs. It is further believed that business establishments which are taking veterans into employment and processing them into training status under the Servicemen's Readjustment Act where there is no job to which each veteran will be appointed upon the completion of his course commonly are not giving the veteran a course of training in any reasonable conception of what a situation must be in order to constitute a course of training. The last two sentences in paragraph 4 are intended to emphasize that there is little point in training on-the-job unless such training is to qualify the veteran for that job or another job requiring the same qualifications. Circumstances in some cases may make it proper for a veteran to be trained by on-the-job method with advance understanding that he does not expect to be employed by the particular on-the-job establishment at which he will receive his training. For example, a veteran might wish to learn shoe repairing, carpentry, or any of a number of other crafts with the idea that he will establish his own business and therefore will not wish to accept employment with his employer-trainer. Nevertheless he would be training for a job which is attainable as a direct result of training rather than through promotion to the next higher position within the organization which advancement may be dependent upon many factors other than the completion of the so-called course of training. Furthermore, he will be training for a job which offers many opportunities for employment and is not limited in any sense to the establishment in which the training is received. Thus employment is available or will be available when training is completed because of the fact that there are many opportunities for such employment not necessarily at the place of training. If the employment objective is one which is limited to the establishment in which the training is to be given because a large proportion of the knowledge and the skills to be acquired are peculiar to the business of the particular establishment, then it is expected that the establishment will under normal conditions have a place to employ the veteran when training is completed, assuming, of course, that the veteran's conduct and progress during training continue to be satisfactory. No employer is expected to guarantee a job to a veteran who fails to demonstrate during the course of his training that he will merit employment. Neither is an employer-trainer expected to guarantee a position against unforseeable circumstances which may arise and make it necessary for him to reduce his force or at least not to expand it. On the other hand the V. A. must protect the interests of the veterans who elect bona fide courses of training-on-the-job by preventing an employer from taking veterans as trainees when the employer knows or has reason to think that employment will not be available when training is completed. The V. A. does not consider that the law is intended to provide a means for any employer to obtain help at less than standard wages with the idea that the Federal Government will make up the difference. Neither is it a means for subsidizing veterans in employment under the guise that they are being trained

3. A copy of this Circular will be sent by the Manager to the appropriate agency of the State responsible for approving training establishments; also, a copy will be sent to each training establishment in which veterans are now or hereafter enrolled and pursuing a course of training. Additional copies of this Circular will be forwarded under separate cover to Managers of Regional Offices to provide for this distribution. (7)

By direction of the Administrator:

ELDON L. BAILEY,
Executive Assistant Administrator.

NOTE: This Circular has been given distribution priority over Circulars Nos. 97 and 98 in order that all field stations may receive the information contained therein at the earliest possible date. Circulars 97 and 98 will follow in due course.

Reading file

NEW ENGLAND CONFERENCE IN ADULT

AND VETERAN EDUCATION

NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION

Swampscott, Massachusetts
May 1-3, 1946

CONFERENCE SUMMARY

The United States is at the threshold of a new development in the field of public education, namely education for our sixty million adults including fifteen million veterans. The impetus for such extended adult participation in education comes from two sources: (1) federal legislation, which provides educational opportunity to virtually all men in the early twenties and (2) the present world situation, which demands citizen understanding of the issues and the procedures for world peace.

Education for sixty million adults is neither feasible nor possible in 1946; it is still distant, but the hum of motors can be heard over the horizon. It is imperative that we plan now before the hum becomes a roar in our ears.

It is important, because we are as unprepared for this educational wave as we were for the military onslaught at Pearl Harbor. Adult education is still an appendix to the educational system. We lack staff, program, facilities, finances, and teacher training. We lack vision of the need; we lack community support and community participation in the program.

It is important, because we cannot risk a large proportion of practically trained adults who have no place in their communities--jobs depend on trained manpower. Nor can we depend on treaties or diplomatic staffs to maintain an Age of Peace--peace depends on trained citizenship. Hence, the present surge of education for adults must be developed on a continuous program of service by the public school.

N.B.: This report was prepared by a small editorial committee composed of Dr. Fred Cousy and Dr. Harry S. Broudy.

For over a quarter of a century, the public schools have housed and nourished the program of adult education. The school has operated on the principle that a democracy affords opportunities in terms of individual needs and abilities, but it has fed adults on a starvation diet. Consequently, the available educational opportunities for adults are now so limited that many are excluded, regardless of need or ability. Exclusion applies to the veteran and non-veteran alike, and to on-the-job training as much as to college education. With our present limited facilities, it is impossible to be democratic in the education of adults.

This Conference was conceived as the first of a series of work sessions in realistic planning for this new development in education. The participants included representatives of state departments of education, supervisors of adult education, social workers, guidance counsellors, librarians and representatives of schools, colleges, universities, veterans' centers, the Veterans Administration and veterans' organizations, the Retraining and Reemployment Administration, intercultural organizations, the Department of Immigration and Naturalization, and the National Education Association.

The Barriers. Like all good educational meetings this conference was a mixture of self-criticism, self-congratulation, and a strong determination to do better in the future. Because the difficulties were genuine, there were no preconceived remedies; because they were complex, there were no simple ones.

Because no one seriously doubted that adult education is important and imperfect, the time was spent in etching more clearly the nature of the obstructions to progress and in shaking imagination through the sieve of experience in the hope of finding ways and means of surmounting or removing these obstacles.

As the conference proceeded, it became clear that no matter in what area the discussion entered, satisfactory adult education demands the mobilization of many diverse community resources. Time and again it was asserted that agencies, A, B, C, and D ought to cooperate with enterprise X, Y, and Z, but this repeated insistence only stiffened the evidence for the conclusion that in rare instances were community resources so mobilized. Although all believed that it could be done, and although some had actually done it, none minimized the number or power of the distractions in which our times are so rich, and with which adult education will have to compete for the energies of men and women who are willing and able to take part in community enterprises.

As a result, intercultural education is stymied by the schools' alleged inability to get parents to refrain from creating the causes of intercultural friction, while social workers complain that too many teachers are either indifferent to or naively innocent about the facts and dangers of intercultural hostility. From the teachers who are neither indifferent nor naive comes the plaint that the teaching materials in this field either do not exist or are too dispersed to be useful.

The lack of cooperation within the community was deplored in turn by the librarians, who felt that they were pretty consistently forgotten by other agencies working in the adult educational field, by those concerned with counseling the veteran, by the workers in the field adult civic education, and of those whose primary concern was with education for family living. It seems clear that the efforts exerted in these areas are often strenuous, always sincere, but almost invariably dispersed among numerous agencies, institutions, clubs, divisions, and departments. Communication among these groups is very imperfect with the result that some fields are ploughed up over and over again, while others are left untouched.

It was not surprising to discover, therefore, that although "over-organization" was regarded as a minor curse of the American community, its exercism usually demanded another organization--either to do something that somehow escaped being done or to bring some order into the organizational chaos.

The lack of community mobilization, serious a barrier to the achievement of the logical goals of adult education, though it may be, is however, not the only one. Even if the community were adequately organized, even if energies were not dissipated in tangential efforts, we would still have to face the fact that size and suddenness of the new demand for adult education have found us unprepared.

First of all, there is the fact that physical facilities for schooling the huge numbers of veterans and adult civilians who need and want education now just do not exist in many places.

In the second place, expansion of the adult education program presupposes an expansion of funds for that purpose. While the federal fortune is to some extent taking care of the veteran area of the problem, state and community organizations still find a great gap between their needs and their finances.

In the third place, the new needs in adult education make it at least doubtful what traditional methods, materials, standards and schools will do what is required in the situation. On the other hand, while new materials and methods are fairly well developed in theory, they are still far from ready to be put into practice on a large scale.

Finally, and certainly of tremendous importance, is the lack of personnel trained for the new tasks in adult education. Along with the other obstacles there looms before us the task of training teachers of veteran and non-veteran adults. Since the needs of these adults are almost as various as they are numerous, this training project promises to be not only vast, but also complex.

Recommendations:

1. Each community should obtain information concerning the educational needs of veterans by means of:
   a. Guidance personnel should keep accurate records of the educational needs of those whom they counsel.
   b. Careful surveys of the great majority of veterans who have thus far not evinced any interest in education.
   c. Critical study of present educational programs by the personnel of the various institutions.
2. Guidance should be established on the community level rather than on the level of region, state, or county. The guidance program should have an advisory body representative of the important divisions within the community.
3. Although many agencies can contribute to the Guidance work, it should be centered in and directed by the school.
4. Guidance activities of a community should be planned so as to meet the need of all adults, veteran and non-veteran. Eliminate the word "veteran" from the title of the center.
5. On the state level there should be available a consultant service to help a community become aware of its needs, to help it with problems of organization, and to be a continuing source of advice.
6. The State Department of Education should train non-professional counselors in special fields through institutes conducted in the community. The center should develop its contacts throughout the community by training persons who can act as "case finders" for those in need of counseling.
7. The committee recommends that information obtained regarding educational needs be made available by periodic reports by schools and similar reports by superintendents to the state commissioners of education.
8. To provide for the educational needs, the committee recommends:

a. That schools be willing to make necessary changes in their educational programs.

b. That schools be willing to add new courses and curricula.

9. To make expanded and modified offerings available, the committee recommends:

a. Several dates during the year for beginning training.

b. A survey of buildings and equipment in the community which may be utilized.

c. A survey of human resources in the community from which qualified instructors may be obtained.

d. The operation of summer sessions.

e. The operation of evening classes.

f. The offering of extension courses.

10. Special provision should be made for providing veterans education on the high-school level. The group believes that special veterans' high schools, supervised correspondence study, and individualized instruction, all of which have been used successfully, are especially promising techniques.

11. Educational agencies should provide immediately additional post-secondary and junior-college educational opportunities in a greater variety of fields, with particular emphasis upon technical training.

12. Encouragement of the increasing tendency of colleges upon admission of students on the basis of educational development, scholastic aptitude and personal characteristics, as well as on school records.

13. Immediate collection by some national educational agency of data on available openings for students in post-high-school institutions, and issuance of a report of their findings is advised. It is also recommended that the agency that assumes this task make quarterly surveys and issue quarterly reports as a regular service to schools and other agencies that counsel veterans.

14. Recognizing the particular socio-economic personal needs of disabled veterans, it is recommended that adequate educational provisions be made for such veterans.

15. Expansion of school facilities to nearby urban centers to eliminate the necessity for student housing at the campus.

16. One agency should assume leadership responsibility for:

    a. Gathering knowledge about the experience of the many agencies concerned.

    b. Making the knowledge available for exchange.

    c. Acting as consultant to those who want to organize education in this area.

    d. Exploring opportunities for expanding the field of interest.

    e. Teaching leaders.

17. Courses in Family Life should be encouraged in high school so that adult education may in time become a "graduate study."

18. State library extension agencies should act as an exchange for information about published material in this field.

19. New England colleges or universities should be asked to interest an M. S. or Ph. D. candidate to explore for his theses the possibility of collecting data on the experience of groups who have organized courses in Family Relation for adults.

20. That State Boards of Education be asked to provide in their Adult Education departments a special course on Education for Family Life so that Federal, State, and local work in this field may be knit together.

21. Emphasis should be placed upon the teaching of positive democratic concepts with practical application to contemporary problems of group relations, rather than upon programs seeking to exalt or justify any one racial, religious or nationality group.

22. Formation of Community Relations Committees for promoting racial and religious understanding should be stimulated in every community to aid in creating a favorable public-opinion climate for the promotion of intercultural programs. Such Committees, should be flexible and, in each instance, of local design. Clearly defined policies should be adopted to safeguard the identity and autonomy of cooperating groups in the local Community Relations Committee.

23. Teachers and others within the educational field should cooperate with and aid in publicizing the needs of intercultural programs.

24. Specific intercultural projects should be evaluated in terms of the local public-opinion climate.

25. Those interested in intercultural relations should support adult-education programs.

26. Phases of intercultural education should be adopted in teacher-training programs. Educational research should devote additional attention to the field of intercultural education with a view to evolving a larger body of teaching materials, projects and lesson units within this field.

27. A thorough survey of community resources available for utilization in this new field should be a first step.

28. State and community authorities should be urged to allot adequate funds for the implementation of the needed programs.

29. Each community to survey its own needs to avoid overlapping local programs and to enlighten its citizens in our modern problems, should organize a Community Council under careful planning and leadership.

30. The philosophy should be earnestly advocated that any subject or course that answers the needs of any adult, leads to better opportunity for success, better economic security, more happiness, and better citizenship in America.

31. G. I. brides, as soon as their arrival is known by the card system of the U. S. Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization, should be recruited by the proper educational officials, and their presence should be made known to the proper social agencies.

32. A New England group of clergy, racial leaders, and educators should be called together by the State Commissioners of Education to aid in solving the problem of bringing aliens to a realization of their national civic responsibility.

33. Proper use of audio-visual aids should be made in the instruction of adults, and supervisors and teachers should be alert to their availability.

34. Information should be compiled by state and local supervisors of Adult Education to show the inadequacy of the present salaries of local teachers of adults.

35. Interest in "Citizenship Recognition" should be sought throughout the year rather than on a one-day celebration only, even though "I Am An American Day" is approved in principle.

36. Adequate resources for counseling and guidance should be available for each program of Adult Education.

37. We should expand and elaborate the United Nations' plan and idea throughout all our programs to the end that the body politic will be informed on modern international problems.

38. Libraries should assume leadership or cooperate in a pro-democratic, intercultural program.

39. Adult-education agencies should recognize the library as a primary source for continuing education of the individual.

40. Libraries should aid in achieving local coordination of adult-education activities.

41. State library associations should appoint committees to work with adult-education groups on the state level.

42. Library schools should be encouraged to intensify their training in the field of adult education.

43. Librarians should re-evaluate themselves and their libraries in terms of their responsibility for adult education.

44. Financial assistance should be provided from local, state or national sources so that every community may have library facilites adequate for a well-developed adult-education program.

Resolution

Resolved: That we would like to call again the attention of our leading educators in our respective New England States to the fact that the education of adults predisposes the education of the child and that a continuing education is necessary for an intelligent Americanism.

Committee Reports

This conference was organized into continuing sub-groups which prepared complete reports in six areas. These reports are available at the following address:

Miss Mary L. Guyton
Supervisor of Adult Civic Education
State Department of Education
200 Newbury Street
Boston, Massachusetts (16)

The six areas in which reports were prepared were as follows:

1. Organization of the community for better intercultural and group relations, family living, and community organization.

2. New developments in adult civic education.

3. Libraries in adult education.

4. Counseling veterans.

5. Problems in supervision, administration, techniques and teacher-training for veterans.

6. Expanding the program to meet a variety of educational needs of veterans.

6-5-46

George -

Thought this might be of interest

JWilkins

Reading

RETURNING SERVICEMEN'S COMMITTEE
of the
MINNEAPOLIS COUNCIL OF SOCIAL AGENCIES

ATLANTIC 4344

404 SOUTH 8th STREET

Dear Mr. Employer:

Minneapolis is facing a critical unemployment problem. Records show that with approximately 65% of Minneapolis' servicemen returned, there are at present *10,000 unemployed veterans. These veterans do not want to draw readjustment allowances, they want to work. Furthermore, among these unemployed are men with excellent training in many technical and service fields. Military experience has sharpened their sense of values and increased their capacity for cooperation and team work. Such experience is directly applicable to civilian employment.

The United States Employment Service plays an important role in the job placement of veterans. Returning servicemen are told of the USES from the time they leave overseas staging areas until their final processing through separation centers. The USES is established by law as the primary source for veterans seeking employment, and is generally the first stop in the veteran's search for work.

During the war years the manpower shortage resulted in friction between the USES and some Minneapolis employers. There is no longer a manpower shortage, and the USES must have more job listings if Minneapolis veterans are to find jobs with a minimum of difficulty and chasing from place to place. The USES has expressed a willingness to receive suggestions that would make their service more efficient to Minneapolis businesses. The Returning Servicemen's Committee, an affiliate of the Council of Social Agencies, will act as a liaison committee between employers and the USES.

It is estimated that about 2,300 veterans are now participating in "on the job" training benefits. Under such a program employers can train young men in their businesses, with the Government contributing to the salary of the veteran trainee. Complete information on this program is available at the Veterans Information and Referral Office, 414 South Eighth Street, AT 4344, and at the USES, 401 South Fourth Street, AT 0192.

Minneapolis' best evidence of gratitude and pride in a job well done by Minneapolis servicemen is to spare no effort in assuring these men a place in our commercial and industrial life. Please list your available jobs with the USES.

This community project is endorsed, supported, and approved by the following business and civic leaders, whose signatures appear below.

Very truly yours,

O. A. Pearson, Chairman

Hubert H. Humphrey
Mayor of Minneapolis

H. E. Atwood
1st Nat'l. Bank of Mpls.

P. W. Pillsbury
Pillsbury Mills, Inc.

G. N. Dayton
The Dayton Co.

B. J. Case
Janney, Semple Hill & Co.

Leon C. Warner
Warner Hardware Co.

Harry A. Bullis
General Mills, Inc.

Donald D. Davis
Minn. and Ontario Paper Co.

Paul S. Carroll
Judge of District Court

P. B. Juster
Juster Bros.

Frank P. Leslie
The John Leslie Paper Co.

* Current USES Application File, May 6, 1946.

Reading file

COUNSELING

issued by

THE COMMITTEE ON PLACEMENT AND GUIDANCE

Authorized by The Program Services Committee, National Board of the Y.M.C.A.'s

Placement and Guidance Committee: Hugh S. Richards, Chairman, 347 Madison Avenue, New York 17, N. Y. Counseling: Clifford M. Carey, Editor, 347 Madison Ave., New York 17, N.Y., C.A. Duran, Business Manager, 455 W. State St., Trenton, N.J.

May-June, 1946 Volume 4, Number 4

BOSTON'S SERVICE FOR VETERANS: JOB HUNTING SCHOOL, JOB FORUMS, RADIO PROGRAMS

Roland R. Darling*
Veterans' Service Center, Boston, Massachusetts

Sponsored by the Greater Boston Veterans' Service Center, a triple occupational service for veterans has been inaugurated in Boston. There is a Job Hunting School which specializes in training ex-servicemen in the technique of getting a job; there are Job Forums planned to furnish more information about specific fields; and two weekly radio programs keep listeners informed about the latest developments in veterans' rights and benefits.

Job Hunting School

Devised to help the veteran who never had a job as well as the veteran who wants to change his prewar job, this School offers a free course in "Looking for a Job." Meeting weekly in the Y.M.C.A., it is based on a study of actual job finding experience rather than theory. The course was planned and tested by a group of about a dozen veterans who faced the same problem which confronts most men recently returned to civilian life: how to go about looking for and finding a place in the postwar world. This group worked out the methods, and now the School is a going concern.

This School is not a counseling service. Any applicant who is not sure about the type of work he should seek is referred to the job counselors at the Veterans' Service Center for help. There he talks with a counselor, tells about his schooling and what he did in the Army. Since there is some doubt in the veteran's mind about the kind of work he wants, he is given a series of tests to determine the occupations for which he is best fitted. Once he has decided on the field, he is ready to take the course learning how to get the job he wants. Only then is his registration accepted for the School.

Tuition free, the course covers four sessions in two days. Subjects under consideration each time are:

---

*This article was summarized from recent reports by Mr. Darling.

Developing a complete job-hunting plan
Applying for a government job
Making use of the on-the-job training program
Writing job-seeking letters
Conducting job-seeking interviews
Following up an interview
Developing a list of prospects
Making efficient use of employment agencies
Obtaining the facts about occupations
Preparing a work and education record
Relating military experience to civilian jobs in an interview

The first session lasts an hour. During that time personnel managers of leading Boston firms explain the requirements for certain types of jobs. And they explain, too, just what those jobs would return in money, security, and opportunity.

During one session, business and professional men and women are there to give practical advice. Since the information presented at this time is constantly varying because of the different speakers, veterans who have already completed the course are welcomed as long as they wish to keep coming back for new ideas.

By the time "graduation" comes along, the veteran has a good idea of where and how to look for just the job he wants. When the course is over, he has no diploma or certificate, but he has a great deal more: a feeling of confidence as well as a feeling that people are concerned about his welfare.

Classes are limited to twenty-five in order that each participant may get the full value out of instruction. Only persons interested in the same broad field are enrolled in the same class. Thus, men and women interested in business would not take the course along with men seeking openings in mechanical fields or in the professions.

World War II veterans of the armed forces and of the Merchant Marine are eligible to take the course. When necessary, several classes are conducted during the same week. The School is being studied, not only by the Veterans' Administration which has the idea of setting up similar schools in other cities, but also by representatives of the rehabilitation staffs of the local service branches.

Placement is not one of the functions of the Job Hunting School. It does not get jobs. Instead, it endeavors to help the veteran develop plans which will bring his qualifications to the attention of employers most likely to use him and to present those qualifications in the right way. The veteran has to go out and get the job himself after he has been equipped to do the task.

Job Forums

For those who have a specific interest but need more information about their chosen field, Job Forums are held once a week. Participating in these programs are local leaders in their respective fields who bring to the discussions knowledge born of experience and years of training. These experts discuss their work with two or three ex-servicemen who are interested in becoming employed in that particular field. Usually the program starts with a description of the work and the types of men and women who are most successful in it. Then the veterans are invited to ask questions and to tell about their own qualifications; and as the leaders discuss them, much valuable information is obtained. Shorthand notes of the discussions are taken so that the Service Center has the material for its Occupational Information Department files where it is available for reference.

Each week there are at least two Job Forums, one which discusses jobs in a white collar field and one which deals with work in some industry. Plans are underway to add additional Forums on such subjects as "Going into Business for Yourself," "Getting a Job with the Government" and similar topics of interest to those who have been in the service.

Scheduled to coincide with the final session of each Job Hunting School, these discussions are for all who attended the classes and any others who might be interested in the current subjects under discussion.

Radio Programs

For those persons who feel that they are not keeping up to date on the latest developments in veterans' rights and benefits, Station WEEI in Boston presents a broadcast entitled "Veterans' Viewpoints" every Wednesday afternoon at 5:30. This program has been on the air since October, 1943, featuring veterans of World War II discussing the latest developments in veterans' laws and programs.

"Veterans and Jobs" is the name of a new program which can be heard now every Sunday afternoon over Station WCOP at 4:00. Coordinated with the School and the Forums, this program endeavors to be of value not only to the ex-servicemen who attend the sessions at the School but to all who are unable to do so. During this radio time, information is given regarding various fields of work, and suggestions are made to job-hunting persons. A question and answer period deals with various problems that may arise.

The Service Center finds that this triple plan is working out well. An interesting factor is that men over 38 seem to be availing themselves of this opportunity as well as the younger men.

- - - - - - - - - -

COUNSELING NOTES

St. Louis. John A. Cooper has joined the new St. Louis counseling and guidance staff. His arrival completes the organization of that department and gives rise to the general announcement that "the latch key is out" for all who need and want such service. Printed information outlining the scope of activities may be had on request. Dr. Cooper is a psychologist who has had experience in both education and counseling.

Pittsburgh. The Downtown Branch at Pittsburgh is offering a course to veterans on "Starting Your Own Business." This course is designed to aid the returning veteran to establish himself in his own business by pointing out possible helps, difficulties and methods of approaching the problems confronting the small business enterprise today.

VETERANS EDUCATIONAL COUNSELING

Donald E. Deyo, Director, New York Business Institute
New York Y.M.C.A. Schools

LEGISLATION PROVIDING EDUCATIONAL BENEFITS FOR VETERANS

A. Public Law 346, "The G. I. Bill of Rights"

1. Type of training, type of school, day or evening, is at the discretion of the veteran.
2. Subsistence of $65 a month for single men, $90 for married men, is available to those attending school full-time.
3. Procedure for beginning training.
   a. Application for training, Form 1950, is filed with the Veterans' Administration by the veteran in person, by mail or by the school.
   b. The veteran immediately receives a letter of acknowledgment that he has filed for training.
   c. From four to eight weeks later he receives a Certificate of Eligibility specifying his entitlement. This he presents to the school.
4. Complete psychological, vocational counseling is available to the veteran through the Veterans' Administration on the initiative of the veteran.
5. The amended act (December 1945) provides that the Veterans' Administration may pay up to $500 for courses shorter than a standard school year.
6. The student should inform the Veterans' Administration of his complete educational program and his educational goal. Failure to do so may later cause serious complications, possibly even the loss of entitlement. Students must adhere to this educational objective unless the Veterans' Administration specifically permits a change.
7. Veterans should exercise extreme care in withdrawing from school for whatever reason. Steps to follow:
   a. Notify the school.
   b. Notify the Veterans' Administration and state reasons for withdrawal.

B. Public Law 16, Veterans' Rehabilitation (Federal)

1. A ten percent or greater disability rating or a disability which prevents the reentering of prewar vocations in general entitles veterans to training under Public Law 16.
2. The veteran's entitlement, amount of training, and nature of training is a matter of determination in the individual case by the Veterans' Administration. When the veteran and the Veterans' Administration agree upon an educational objective and course of training program, there is no limit to the time or expense the government will undertake in order to rehabilitate the veteran.
3. Psychological and vocational counseling is mandatory under this act.
4. Except in special cases, full-time attendance in school is required.
5. The subsistence mentioned under Public Law 346 is paid in addition to the pension.

C. State Rehabilitation - see state laws.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR TRAINING

A. Most high schools, colleges, trade schools, professional schools, business schools are taking veterans.

B. Schools not taking veterans
1. Those not accredited by the State Departments of Education or by the Veterans' Administration.
2. Those whose enrollments are already too large to accept more students.
3. Those which cannot finance G. I. training because of slow government payments.

C. The correspondence and extension schools are eligible if accredited.

D. Colleges are overcrowded with veterans. This situation is expected to become more serious in the next year necessitating the following priority of admission
1. Veterans who are former students.
2. Veterans entering as freshmen.
3. Veterans with at least two years of training elsewhere wishing to transfer.
4. All other eligible veterans.
5. Civilian freshmen.
6. Civilian transfers from other colleges.

NATURE OF VETERANS SEEKING EDUCATIONAL COUNSELING

A. Veterans represent the same sort of cross section of the American people as any group of civilians.
1. Some do not want to accept government money.
2. Others want to accept what is coming to them and nothing else.
3. Some want to charge every sort of educational expense to the government.
4. Some are in school only for the sake of the subsistence to which they are entitled - "educational hobos."

B. Many require help and guidance because they do not have self-reliance or have lost it while in the service.

C. Because of their experiences in the armed services, veterans are familiar with and resigned to psychological testing; they are likely to interpret the result of such testing too literally.

D. Veterans are in a hurry to get started and in a hurry to finish their educational programs.
1. They demand to start school even in the middle of a semester and lacking proper Veterans' Administration credentials.
2. They want to finish in a hurry regardless of the established time of the course.

E. Many veterans have wives and dependents at a younger age than normal.
1. This accounts for the hurry of the veteran.
2. Generally, this precludes attendance at full-time school.

F. Many veterans require careful guidance; although they seem to know what they desire, they are actually uncertain.

G. Many veterans want only specific courses, not full curricula.

H. Aside from regular full-time college programs, trade courses are most popular, probably because of experience with service training.

I. Many veterans are seeking further education in the vocational fields that they were in before they entered the armed forces; but just as many have found new vocations in the service and are looking for training leading to new vocations or to a start in business for themselves.

J. The veteran hates to be "shoved around" or "given the brush off."

K. Veterans are annoyed by filling out forms.

GENERAL HINTS FOR VETERANS EDUCATIONAL COUNSELING

A. Credit for service training.
   1. Schools have policies of varying liberality, but there is little of the competitive granting of credit for service training that existed at the end of the last war.
   2. There are two general policies.
      a. "A Guide to the Evaluation Experience in the Armed Services" published by the American Council on Education.
      b. Written tests, either the school's own or U.S.A.F.I.

B. The Y.M.C.A. Schools are happy to have the opportunity to counsel veterans, but they are turning away more students than they keep wherever the veterans can be served better or more quickly in some other school.

C. Veterans are urged to use their G. I. entitlements to the best advantage.
   1. To weigh the relative advantages of Public Law 16 and Public Law 346.
   2. To weigh the advantages and disadvantages of Public Law 346 and State War Scholarships.
   3. To weigh the advantages and disadvantages of full-time day school and part-time evening school.
   4. To weigh the advantages and disadvantages of full curricula leading to college degree or high school diploma as opposed to a special course.

(from the February, 1946, News Letter of the Service Men's Council)

- - - - - - - - - - -

A recent issue of Counseling announced the opening of a Counseling Center at the Y.M.C.A. in Pittsburgh. A pamphlet describing the work of this Center has been developed. It explains the services offered, procedures, time requirements, reports, and charges in detail. Copies of the pamphlet can be secured by writing to Robert R. Corley, Director, 304 Wood Street, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

PLACEMENT AND GUIDANCE COMMITTEE MEETING

The Placement and Guidance Committee met recently at the Pennsylvania Railroad Branch of the Y.M.C.A. in New York City.

Among members present were Hugh Richards, chairman, R. W. Coleman, R. C. Whitford, A. C. Stalnaker, Norman Lufburrow, Donald Typer, Fred R. Berlind, Ernest M. Ford, James L. Bethune, Joseph V. Hanna and George A. Shumway.

The resignations of two members, James F. Bunting, of Schenectady, and Carl P. Rogers, of Chicago, were accepted by the group.

Submitting reports were the president, the treasurer and the training committee. Some discussion was given to areas of work which might call for attention in the coming months. Among suggestions made are these:

- Emphasize the importance of qualified counselors.
- Distinguish between "new member counseling," general counseling and specialized guidance.
- Avoid duplicating or competing with other adequate counseling services in local communities.
- Give increased emphasis to the matter of adequate placement service to supplement counseling.
- Need for practical direct help in the local field (e.g., is the man-marketing clinic still recommended?)
- Develop the idea that counseling today has somewhat the same role in the Y.M.C.A. as "personal work" of yesterday.
- Need for training the general practitioner. (There is a danger of overemphasis on specialist.) Develop aids for the general counselor who meets the larger number of people in the day-by-day work of Y.M.C.A.'s, churches and other agencies.
- Need to train staff to recruit and coach volunteers in order to multiply service and benefits of specialized training - i.e., shift secretary's position from counselor of member to trainer of volunteer.
- Persons in responsible administrative positions need to be sold the techniques of counseling as well as its importance.
- Consider counseling as part of the Y.M.C.A.'s traditionally unique service to youth.
- Avoid service to the general public (in competition with other agencies) at the expense of service to our own members.

Counseling will welcome reports, articles or other material for publication dealing with any of the items listed above.

FOREIGN SCHOOLS APPROVED BY VETERANS' ADMINISTRATION

While 524 foreign institutions of higher learning have been approved by the Veterans' Administration, and veterans may apply for study at these institutions under the G.I. Bill allowances, the Veterans' Administration appears not to encourage these overseas opportunities because of many difficulties that have to be overcome before a veteran can embark on foreign study, according to the Army Times.

Here are some of the questions a veteran must answer before deciding to study abroad:

1. Do you have enough money for travel expenses both ways?
2. Can you support yourself for three or four months?
3. Can you live on your government subsistence in the country in which you want to study?
4. Can you secure adequate living accommodations there?
5. Is instruction conducted in a language you know well?
6. Does the institution give degrees or training which can be useful to you?

Another matter worth looking into is the actual, not official, exchange value of the dollar.

A veteran, who, after carefully weighing all circumstances, definitely decides that he wants to study abroad should apply for education benefits on Form 1950 to the nearest regional Veterans Administration office. Upon receiving his Certificate of Eligibility, Form 1953, the veteran should send it to the foreign institution of his choice for a letter of assurance that he will be admitted. This letter must then be sent to the State Department for a passport and necessary vias. Passports are not needed for Canada, Newfoundland, Cuba and Guatemala.

OCCUPATIONAL AND EDUCATIONAL INFORMATION SERVICE

In an effort to stimulate a more active service of occupational and educational information in the Army and Navy Branches of the Y.M.C.A. and U.S.O. clubs under the supervision of the Y.M.C.A., the Program Department has made available to the different clubs and branches a small shelf of books and pamphlets on occupations. The books made available on request are:

Methods of Vocational Guidance,	Gertrude Forrester
Occupations Today,	Brewer and Landy
The Book of Opportunities,	Rutherford Platt
Your Job and You,	Campbell and Bedford
Laws Relating to Veterans,	Compiled by Elmer Lewis
Special Aids for Placing Military Personnel in Civilian Jobs	U.S. Government Printing Office

These were selected from a larger list which included the following:

Business Organization and Management,	Peterson and Plowman
Everyday Occupations,	Davey, Smith and Meyers
Occupations in Retail Stores,	Dorothea de Schweinitz
The Engineering Profession,	Hoover and Fish
The Return of Opportunity,	Edited by William R. Kuhn
Twenty Careers for Tomorrow,	Darrell and Frances Hoff
A Guide to Colleges, Universities, and Professional Schools in the U.S.	Carter V. Good

A list of pamphlets was also sent as a part of the occupational book shelf. Titles and publishers will appear in a future issue of Counseling.

Reading file

AMERICAN COUNCIL ON RACE RELATIONS

32 WEST RANDOLPH STREET CHICAGO 1 PHONE CENTRAL 3066

A. A. LIVERIGHT
Executive Director

CLARENCE E. PICKETT
President

CHARLES HOUSTON
Vice-President, Consultant

WILL W. ALEXANDER
Vice-President, Treasurer

MARY-JANE GRUNSFELD
Secretary

June 4, 1946

Dr. George S. Mitchell
Southern Regional Council, Inc.
63 Auburn Avenue, N. E., Room 432
Atlanta 3, Ga.

Dear Dr. Mitchell:

I am enclosing a report of progress made to date in the matter of the Washington follow-up meetings with government officials to whom the recommendations made at the first conference were submitted.

This assignment was completed by May 1st by which time the Special Committee composed of Walter White, NAACP; Jesse Dedmon, NAACP; George Mitchell, Southern Regional Council; Chat Patterson, American Veterans Committee; James Baker, American Veterans Committee; Robert Lee, United Negro and Allied Veterans Organizations; and A. A. Liveright, Executive Director, American Council on Race Relations and myself had met with General Omar Bradley, Veterans' Administration; Wilson Wyatt, Housing Expediter, National Housing Agency; William F. Patterson, Director, Apprenticeship Division, U. S. Department of Labor; Robert Goodwin, Director, United States Employment Service, U. S. Department of Labor; John W. Studebaker, Commissioner, U. S. Office of Education, FSA; Major-General Graves B. Erskine, Administrator, Retraining and Reemployment Administration, U. S. Department of Labor.

It was the opinion of the Special Committee that in general the response from the administrative heads was constructive. We believe that definite progress had been made and that with continued pressure, results will be achieved. To bear this out is the fact that following the Washington visits, the National Housing Expediter, Wilson Wyatt, issued an encouraging special order regarding housing for minority groups and already General Bradley has taken action to clarify the matter of blue discharges. In addition he has agreed to issue a policy statement to all regional administrators urging the appointment of minority group personnel as training and field contact officers in the Veterans' Administration. Encouraging too, is the fact that in the May 9th issue of the Bulletin, issued by the Retraining and Reemployment Administra-

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Louis Adamic - Bishop William Y. Bell - Mary McLeod Bethune - Homer S. Brown - Pearl S. Buck - Ralph J. Bunche - Lt. Col. Charles Dollard
Marion Edman - Edwin R. Embree - Adrien Falk - Marshall Field - Ernesto Galarza - Lloyd K. Garrison - Lester B. Granger
Most Rev. Francis J. Haas - Augustus Hawkins - Charles S. Johnson - E. B. MacNaughton - James G. Patton - P. L. Prattis - Robert Redfield
Leonard M. Rieser - Abraham Rubin - Bishop William Scarlett - Sara E. Southall - R. J. Thomas - Channing H. Tobias - Willard S. Townsend
Walter Wanger - Louis Weiss - Walter White - Richard Wright - Donald Young

tion, appeared a description of a Veterans' Information Center in a Southern city which is operating on an interracial basis. That such a description be incorporated in the Bulletin was part of the first specific recommendation presented to the Administrator, Major-General Graves.

You will be hearing from us again in the very near future regarding the Follow-up Conference.

Very truly yours,

Charles H. Houston

Charles H. Houston, Chairman
Special Committee on Washington
Follow-up Meetings

Enclosures

SUMMARY OF SPECIFIC RECOMMENDATIONS DISCUSSED
BY SPECIAL COMMITTEE WITH GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS

The recommendations discussed with General Bradley are as follows:

1. That the Veterans Administration include on its national, regional and local staffs representatives of minority groups to participate in the preparation and execution of policies calling for a fair extension of all services of the Veterans Administration to all veterans without regard to race, creed, color or national origin. The Committee urged that Negro, Mexican American, and Japanese American contact workers be added to the staff of the Administration in sufficient numbers to adequately handle special problems affecting minority groups.

   It was the understanding of the Committee that General Bradley agreed to issue a policy statement to all Deputy Administrators urging the appointment of minority group personnel as training and field contact officers in the Veterans Administration.

2. That the program of the veterans' hospitals be so administered as to accord every patient all facilities without discrimination or segregation based on race, creed, color, or national origin, and that employment in the veterans' facilities be open to all on the basis of merit. The question of discrimination in veterans' hospitals and facilities with especial reference to doctors and nurses was discussed at length with General Bradley and General Hawley and it was understood that although the general policy of the Veterans Administration is against discrimination the Veterans Administration cannot depart too rapidly from the present community practices. The Committee, however, strongly urged that immediate corrective action be taken as a precedent for Southern facilities in the North and West to eliminate segregation of doctors and nurses.

3. That the Veterans Administration investigate the conduct of all agencies under its supervision charged with the execution of any part of the veteran rehabilitation program and that it institute adequate corrective measures wherever it finds discrimination by such agencies against veterans on account of race, creed, color or national origin.

4. That the Veterans Administration establish adequate standards and safeguards which will guarantee that all applied training, such as apprentice training, on-the-job training, and on-the-farm training, shall be open to all veterans without regard to race, creed, color or national origin, and that Federal funds be withheld from any agency or industry which exercises, or is guilty of, discrimination against veterans on account of race, creed, color or national origin.

   The Committee went on record of approving the on-the-job training as a splendid method of offering employment and vocational opportunities to minorities, but stressed the abuses present in the program as it now stands. Particular attention was drawn to the plight of the Filipino veterans, who, through legislation, are prohibited from securing benefits for anything but service-connected disabilities. It is understood from the conference that legislation is at the moment being prepared which will, to some extent, eliminate this form of Federal discrimination existing against Filipino veterans. Again, the Committee recommended that the addition of qualified minority training personnel to the staff of the Veterans Administration will be an important means in eliminating present abuses under this program. In respect to the withholding of funds from those training programs and facilities which discriminate, it was the Committee's understanding that the Veterans Administration is powerless to take any action.

5. That the interpretation of Section 310 of the G. I. Bill of Rights by the Veterans Administration be changed so as to extend all rights under that bill to holders of blue discharges.

   From the discussion it was understood that the Veterans Administration is not in a position to take action on this request, with the exception of the fact that it has agreed to issue informational materials especially to the minority press, setting forth specifically the situation with respect to blue discharges and indicating clearly where holders of blue discharges may appeal in an attempt to secure regular benefits. It was agreed that the Committee would discuss the matter with the War Department in an attempt to have them adopt a system similar to that now in use by the Navy Department.

The recommendations discussed with Robert Goodwin, U. S. Employment Service are as follows:

1. The allocation of a qualified consultant on race relations and minority problems to all regional offices of the USES.

2. The immediate assignment of a qualified Negro race relations adviser to the staff of the state director of the USES in all states in the country.

3. Specific instructions to State USES offices to include minority representatives on state and local advisory committees and to see that special subcommittees on minority employment problems are established in all communities.

4. Extension of the pattern which has already been developed in North Carolina -- whereby Negro interviewers and professional workers are employed in local employment offices -- to all the southern states as rapidly as possible. In this connection it is suggested that in every southern employment office a special Negro counselor be added immediately to assist Negro veterans in drawing up their training, apprentice, and work program.

5. Rapid and aggressive training policy to be installed immediately in connection with the introduction of the new USES policy on minorities.

6. Specific training to insure the war-acquired skills of minority veterans are utilized in connection with the placement of such veterans by the USES.

7. Improvement of layout and office facilities in segregated divisions for Negroes in southern employment offices.

8. The establishment of effective standards with respect to non-discrimination in employment, to be instituted by the Secretary of Labor after the Employment Service is returned to the states in January 1947.

9. Securing of current statistics on white and non-white applications, referrals, and placements at the national level so that the Minority Employment Division at national headquarters may have a factual picture of the experience on the referral and placement of nonwhite workers.

USES was urged by the Committee to move ahead quickly on these recommendations so that the pattern will be set up and in force by the time that the Employment Service returns to the States for local administration. The members of the Committee were impressed by Mr. Goodwin's attitude and interest shown in the recommendations and the problems they represented.

Specific recommendations presented to William Patterson, Director of the Apprenticeship Division, U. S. Department of Labor are:

1. The formulation of a policy statement by the National Apprenticeship Committee setting forth as a policy of the Apprenticeship Division the introduction of representatives of all community groups on indentured - apprenticeship programs, and which puts the Apprenticeship Division directly behind an effort to provide opportunities for all minority veterans in apprentice programs.

   It was the understanding that the national meeting of the Apprenticeship Committee would be held sometime in May at which time the policy statement would be stated.

2. That the Apprenticeship Division appoint a Negro field worker to the field work staff of the Apprenticeship Division whose responsibility would be that of a specialist in Negro personnel problems, but also that of a consultant to employers in anticipating problems which might grow out of the integration of minority group workers in apprentice programs.

3. That the Division maintain regular statistics or establish spot surveys to determine the number of white and non-white apprenticees who are being employed on regular indenture-apprentice programs. This would be to determine the effectiveness of new policy on utilization of minority apprentices. It was understood that some steps will be taken by the Division to secure such statistics either directly through Division reports or through the Veterans Administration.

4. That in the 21 states in which apprentice programs are approved directly by the Apprenticeship Division, cases of discrimination will be directly brought to the attention of the Director of the Division and that approval of discriminatory programs will be withdrawn where discrimination have been proven.

5. That the Apprenticeship Division review and utilize the Gillem Report stating the Army policy against segregation of the armed forces in connection with the introduction of the new program for minorities in the Apprenticeship Programs.

The recommendations discussed with General Erskine Graves, Administrator, Retraining and Reemployment Administration are:

1. The inclusion of factual material on the successful operation of Veterans' Information Centers which are operating on an interracial basis. It was the understanding of the Committee that in contrast to the United States Employment Service which operated on a segregated basis, the Veterans' Information Centers in Richmond, Houston, and in several other southern cities, were being operated on an integrated basis. It was recommended that the inclusion of a description of such offices be incorporated in the Bulletin as a means of buttressing the policy of the Retraining and Reemployment Administration, but also as a demonstration that the integration policy can and does actually work in the South.

2. Revision of the list of organizations to be represented on local Retrainin and Reemployment advisory committees to include recommendations for representation of minority groups on such committees.

3. Inclusion of specific reference to the responsibility of local Veterans' Information Centers toward minority groups in the second edition of the agency pamphlet on Community Advisory Centers. It was urged that specific mention be made in either this pamphlet or in a field instruction from the headquarters office, of the need for the employment of qualified minority counselors in Veterans' Information Centers in communities where there is a sizable minority population.

4. The addition of a well-qualified Negro professional worker to the national staff of the Retraining and Reemployment Administration so that atleast one member of the national staff will be in a position to understand problems and to deal with minority groups.

5. The provision of special information materials on the operation of the Retraining and Reemployment program to the minority press and to minority organizations so that the present lack of information among these groups about this program may be eliminated.

6. Special emphasis on the employment and training problems of minority veterans in connection with the job opportunity program should be developed.

The committee was impressed and encouraged by Major General Erskine's interest in the program of his administration.

Specific recommendations made to John W. Studebaker, Commissioner, U. S. Office of Education are as follows:

1. That the Office of Education has a definite responsibility for suggesting programs, conferring with, and stimulating state school departments to deal with the problem of opportunities for vocational education and training for minority veterans. It was emphasized that this problem should be attacked despite the fact that the relation between the Federal Office of Education and the state school systems is a nebulous one, and that emphasis should be placed on problems now existing in the South.

2. That a program for the eradication of illiteracy in all parts of the country with particular emphasis in the South be undertaken by the Office of Education as rapidly as possible. It was pointed out that the War Department has recently developed successful teaching and method techniques in the rapid reduction of illiteracy and suggested that the Federal office cooperate with the states in the introduction of such training programs.

3. The broadening of the Information program of the Office of Education to include and publicize educational rights and provisions for minority groups.

4. The establishment of a special division or committee within the Office of Education for the introduction of programs of intercultural education in all states throughout the country. This was suggested in order that the Office of Education fulfill its responsibility for the development of better human relations.

The following are the specific recommendations discussed with Wilson W. Wyatt, Administrator, National Housing Agency.

1. That specific instructions be sent to the regional housing expediters to see that minority representation is included on all committees where there is a large minority population in the community. This is deemed necessary since there was no specific recommendation as to inclusion of minority representatives on emergency advisory committees in recent letters sent from the Administrator to Mayors. It was also suggested that additional instruction on this point should be issued to regional directors.

2. That the Race Relations Adviser in the National Housing Agency be placed directly in the line organization rather than in a staff capacity as is the present practice. This proposal was offered in the belief that such a change can be of enormous significance in insuring that the race relations aspects of the housing program are at all times covered not only in the policy but also in the operating aspects of the program.

3. That the Race Relations Division of the National Housing Agency be given considerably more responsibility for working directly with the Federal Housing Administration since some of the major problems with respect to minority housing occur in this division.

4. That Race Relations Advisors be appointed to regional housing agencies. It was understood that this had already been effected.

5. That the college housing program be expedited with special reference to the need for providing emergency housing facilities to Negro colleges and for seeing that temporary housing provided other colleges be occupied on a nondiscriminatory basis.

6. That the National Housing Expediter and the Agency take aggressive action to insure the employment of minority workers on the expanding construction program. In this connection, Mr. Charles Houston recommended strongly the use of recent legal opinions as an indication of the fact that a precedent has been set against a closed union policy.

7. That administrative devises be used to deal with the problem in federal administration whereby no requirement is made for the provision of housing for persons displaced through private housing developments.

8. That the Information Division of the National Housing Agency accelerate its activities in developing a special program to provide information on activities in the housing field to minority organizations.

AMERICAN COUNCIL ON RACE RELATIONS

32 WEST RANDOLPH STREET CHICAGO 1 PHONE CENTRAL 3066

A. A. LIVERIGHT
Executive Director

CLARENCE E. PICKETT
President

CHARLES HOUSTON
Vice-President, Consultant

WILL W. ALEXANDER
Vice-President, Treasurer

MARY-JANE GRUNSFELD
Secretary

June 4, 1946

M E M O R A N D U M

TO: All Invitees to the National Emergency Conference on Minority Problems

FROM: Sydney Taylor Brown, Coordinator of Veterans' Affairs

RE: Progress Report - Special Committee Follow-up Meetings with government officials.

On April 5, 1946, the National Emergency Conference on Minority Veterans' Problems, called by the American Council on Race Relations, convened in New York City. The Conference unanimously passed 18 resolutions in which charges of discrimination against minority veterans were placed at the door of the Federal agencies charged with and carrying out the policy and administration of the G. I. Bill of Rights. A Special Committee, headed by Charles H. Houston, Vice-President of the American Council, was set up for the purpose of meeting directly with the heads of the indicted agencies. By May 1st, this committee had completed its assignment by having called upon and presented to the following, the general and specific recommendations passed at the New York Conference:

John W. Studebaker, Commissioner
U. S. Office of Education, FSA

General Omar Bradley and General Hawley,
Veterans' Administration

Wilson W. Wyatt, Housing Expediter,
National Housing Agency

Robert C. Goodwin, Director
United States Employment Service,
U. S. Department of Labor

General Graves B. Erskine, Administrator
Retraining and Reemployment Administration
U. S. Department of Labor

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Louis Adamic - Bishop William Y. Bell - Mary McLeod Bethune - Homer S. Brown - Pearl S. Buck - Ralph J. Bunche - Lt. Col. Charles Dollard
Marion Edman - Edwin R. Embree - Adrien Falk - Marshall Field - Ernesto Galarza - Lloyd K. Garrison - Lester B. Granger
Most Rev. Francis J. Haas - Augustus Hawkins - Charles S. Johnson - E. B. MacNaughton - James G. Patton - P. L. Prattis - Robert Redfield
Leonard M. Rieser - Abraham Rubin - Bishop William Scarlett - Sara E. Southall - R. J. Thomas - Channing H. Tobias - Willard S. Townsend
Walter Wanger - Louis Weiss - Walter White - Richard Wright - Donald Young

William F. Patterson, Director
Apprenticeship Division
U. S. Department of Labor

The Special Committee comprised the following:

Walter White, NAACP

Jesse O. Dedmon, NAACP

George Mitchell,
Southern Regional Council

Chat Patterson,
American Veterans Committee

James Baker,
American Veterans Committee

Robert Lee,
United Negro and Allied Veterans Organizations

A. A. Liveright, Executive Director
American Council on Race Relations

Charles H. Houston, Vice President
American Council on Race Relations

Attached to this memorandum is a complete copy of the specific recommendations made to the heads of the six government agencies visited. It is strongly urged that the enclosed recommendations be passed on to your local agencies so that they may know what is being done on a national level. By such they may be made aware of the possibilities of similar action within the local community and at the same time use the recommendations as a basis for checking against the local administrations.

The Information Service of the American Council is proceeding with plans for follow-through in the minority press. A series of four articles dealing with problems of minority veterans, written by William R. Simms, has been released through the Associated Negro Press. In announcing the series, a note to editors from Mr. Barnett of ANP pointed out the need for information and assistance to veterans on the community level. Correspondence with veterans' editors and a wider list of newspapers is being readied for release.

The American Council has appointed Mrs. Sydney Taylor Brown to the staff as Coordinator of Veterans' Affairs. One of her major activities will be the planning of the Follow-up Conference on Minority Veterans that was requested as a resolution at the National Emergency conference on Minority Veterans' Problems last month. All communications should be addressed directly to her.

A

MONTHLY SUMMARY

OF

EVENTS AND TRENDS

IN

RACE RELATIONS

RECEIVED
NOV 25 1946
Southern Regional Council

OCTOBER 1946

SUMMARY OF THE MONTH OF
SEPTEMBER

VOLUME 4 NUMBER 3

PREPARED FOR THE JULIUS ROSENWALD FUND

BY THE

SOCIAL SCIENCE INSTITUTE

AT

FISK UNIVERSITY

NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE

UNDER THE DIRECTION OF CHARLES S. JOHNSON

RESEARCH STAFF

VASHTI M. GRAYSON

BERNICE E. BRILE
EDWARD F. BURROWS
MAURICE C. CLIFFORD
MIRIAM JEAN HORTON
LOUISE W. JOHNSON
CHARLES R. LAWRENCE, JR.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

IRA DEA. REID
SABURO KIDO
WERNER J.CAHNMAN
ERIC WALROND
JITSUICHI MASUOKA

CONTRIBUTORS

STEWART G. COLE
SAMUEL H. FLOWERMAN

TABLE OF CONTENTS

REVIEW OF THE MONTH 66
THE SOCIAL FRONT 68
THE ECONOMIC FRONT 74
PROGRAMS OF ACTION 76
INTERCULTURAL EDUCATION IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA 83
THE JEWISH SCENE 86
SUMMARY OF ACTIVITIES OF DEPARTMENT OF SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH OF AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE 89
JAPANESE AMERICANS 90
PRESS OPINION: THE OUTCOME OF THE COLUMBIA, TENNESSEE TRIAL 93
MAGAZINE COMMENT 95
RECENT BOOKS DEALING WITH RACE RELATIONS 96
PERSONALITIES 97
SALUTE 98

SYMBOLS

CNI—CHECKED NEWS ITEM
ANP—ASSOCIATED NEGRO PRESS
JP—JEWISH PRESS
GP—GENERAL PRESS
NNPA—NEGRO NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS ASSOCIATION
NP—NEGRO PRESS
FR—FIELD REPORT

A MONTHLY SUMMARY
OF
EVENTS AND TRENDS
IN RACE RELATIONS

VOLUME 4 OCTOBER, 1946 NUMBER 3

REVIEW OF THE MONTH

The close of the Nuernberg trials and the selective punishment of German leaders accused of war crimes left still urgent and disconcerting questions. The Manchester Guardian said, "The Nuernberg judgment will look well or ill in history according to the future behavior of the four nations responsible for it." America's chief prosecutor, Mr. Justice Jackson, said, ". . . . I am convinced that little progress can be made toward permanent peace without involving the elementary rights of minorities."

Under the decision of the judges that crimes against humanity are not punishable except in connection with aggressive war, it has been pointed out that "any nation today could . . . liquidate its Jews and Mohammedans . . . and there isn't a thing the world could do about it". And again, under the fundamental concept established of collective guilt, a nation is responsible for the acts of the individuals of that nation, especially its leaders. A Pittsburgh Courier writer translates this to mean that the North is responsible for the lynchings in the South and that no person in America can reject responsibility for Tennessee and Georgia.

President Truman urged Prime Minister Atlee to open Palestine promptly to substantial immigration of displaced Jews, and had his proposal described as "unfortunate" by a British government spokesman. In India, Hindu-Moslem rioting continues with a hundred villages burned and nine thousand made destitute. The Paris Peace Conference ended in anything but peace and the first United Nations Assembly opened in New York with minority problems high on the agenda, among these, trusteeships and South African treatment of Indian nationals.

In the nation, the increasing number of violations of civil rights and lynchings highlighted the inadequacy of Federal authority to deal with them. Attorney General Tom Clark admitted receiving 2,698 complaints from state officials, individuals and organizations during the first half of 1946 about which he could do nothing, because the Federal government has "no jurisdiction and no legal business in the case". Nothing can be done, under present law, about the still unsolved Georgia lynchings because of state jurisdiction. Nothing has been done in the state.

The War Department revised its order barring general induction and enlistment of Negroes when a Negro youth, who had been refused permission to enlist, brought suit. It decided to induct 1,000 Negroes during October, but under the special requirement of having completed a high school education.

In Norfolk, Virginia, a U. S. District Court handed down a significant decision when it ruled that a railroad union could not legally enforce a collective bargaining contract barring a Negro fireman from promotion or favorable assignment on account of his race or color. The case was a test of the old railroad brotherhoods' racial caste policy.

After the tradition shattering U. S. Supreme Court decision in June prohibiting racial segregation of passengers in interstate carriers (busses), there was no court challenge of the decision until September. A hearing was ordered on the first case when a Virginia Judge issued a warrant on the basis of a 1946 act of the Virginia General Assembly which defines as disorderly conduct refusal by a bus passenger to move his seat when ordered by the operator. Meanwhile, the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia has ruled that segregation of Negroes on railroad cars is illegal, and Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach ordered an end to segregation of white and Negro applicants for jobs in United States Employment offices in the District of Columbia.

In Alabama and Georgia, the "race issue" was given prominence in the state conventions. In the former, another device to circumvent Negro voting appeared in the "Boswell Amendment", which sought to prevent Negroes from registering by restricting the right to those who can "understand and explain" the Constitution. (In view of the divided opinions on the Constitution among the justices themselves, this requirement could, if legalized, prove helpful in restricting not only Negroes but labor and liberals.) In Georgia, the State Democratic Convention formally nominated Eugene Talmadge and announced a "white supremacy" platform which it hopes to carry out by making Democratic primaries similar to balloting in private clubs for the election of officers, thus eliminating Negro voters. South Carolina has also established a "private club" which bars Negroes from membership. In view of the persistent increase in Negro voting in the South, these efforts appear like earthen breastworks in modern warfare.

The Columbia, Tennessee trial of twenty-five Negroes, which attracted nation-wide attention, ended on October 5 with the acquittal of twenty-three by the jury. Says The Nation, "The verdict is a triumph for the defending lawyers who, in an atmosphere thick with prejudice, fought from beginning to end with skill and courage."

A mounting wave of public sentiment is preparing the ground for anti-lynching legislation, revision of the authority of the Department of Justice, outlawing of the Klan and Federal civil rights legislation. The Chicago Sun has broken with a long and cherished tradition of the press by discontinuing race labeling in crime stories.

C. S. J.

THE SOCIAL FRONT

THE COLUMBIA TRIAL*

LAWRENCEBURG, TENNESSEE

Twenty-three of the twenty-five Negro defendants in the Columbia, Tennessee affair were acquitted on October 4 by an all-white jury of Lawrence Countians. Two of the men, Robert Gentry and John McKivens, were found guilty of first degree attempted murder. Attorneys for the NAACP, Z. A. Looby, Negro Attorney of Nashville, Leon Ransom, former acting dean of the Howard University Law School, and Maurice Weaver, a white law- of Chattanooga, Tennessee have entered a motion for a new trial in the cases of the convicted men, and have indicated their determination to carry the fight to the U. S. Supreme Court, if necessary.

Attorney General Paul Bumpus and his staff were openly hostile toward Attorneys for the defense during the course of the trial. When Attorney Weaver charged that the prosecution had used intimidation in order to secure Negro witnesses for the state, the Attorney General "dared" him to make the statement "outside of the courtroom". At another time Bumpus told Weaver in conversation that he, Bumpus, would "wrap a chair around" Ransom's head if the latter continued to contradict him. However, the spectators in the unsegregated courtroom were remarkably calm throughout the trial.

There are no public facilities for eating or sleeping in the town that are open to Negroes.[1] This fact made it necessary for the defendants to travel sixty-eight miles each of the nearly sixty days that the court was in session. The attorneys for the defense had to travel 166 miles per day back and forth between Lawrenceburg and Nashville.[2]

Specifically, some of the accused men had been charged with the attempted murder of Will Willsford, Columbia police officer. Others had been charged with being accessories before the fact; while a few had been indicted on both charges. During the trial the prosecution sought to show that Willsford and his three fellow-officers who were injured on the night of February 25 were clearly recognizable as police officers when they entered the Negro business section (East Eighth Street) to investigate shots that they had heard coming from the area. Attorney General Paul Bumpus and his staff presented witnesses, including the injured officers, who testified that the lighting conditions at the time were such that the uniforms of the officers were clearly visible.

Several of the officers testified that they had made a previous visit to East Eighth Street during the evening of the shooting at which time they had seen several of the defendants; but did not recall any of them as being armed at the time. None of the prosecution witnesses identified any of the persons who fired shots.

Chief defense counsel Z. A. Looby and his colleagues tried to show that the shots that injured Willsford and his fellows were fired in self-defense, inasmuch as the Negroes in East Eighth Street were fearful of a white mob which they knew was present a block away on the Public Square. In support of this argument they attempted to introduce accounts of the two lynchings that have occurred in and around Columbia during the past twenty years. Judge Joe Ingram, who presided at the trial, disallowed evidence concerning the two lynchings as immaterial to the case on trial. However, defense attorneys were successful in getting an opportunity to read into the record—while the jury was excused—a statement to the effect that Squire C. H. Denton, the magistrate who fixed bond for James Stevenson and his mother, was known in the Negro community of Columbia as a leader and instigator in the lynching of seventeen-year-old Cordie Cheek in 1932.

*See also "Press Opinion" on the Columbia trial.

[1]It was known to the Negro people in and around Columbia that food could be left for the defendants at certain specified places. For each of the nearly sixty days of the Lawrenceburg phase of the trial the defendants and any of their friends among the spectators were amply supplied with food.

[2]On one occasion Judge Ingram assessed fines of fifty dollars each upon defense attorneys Maurice Weaver and Leon Ransom because automobile trouble had caused them to be ten minutes late for the beginning of the court day.

Several witnesses for the prosecution testified as to the good reputation and character of Julius Blair (seventy-five-year-old business man), his son, Julius Blair, James Morton (local undertaker) and several other defendants. Moreover, the defense introduced witnesses, including the principal of the Negro high school and the county supervisor of Negro schools, who testified that Messers Blair and Morton were attending a meeting of community leaders, seeking to raise money for a new school building, at the time police officers claim to have conversed with them during their earlier visit to East Eighth Street.

The conviction of Gentry and McKivens was based upon the testimony of a young Negro woman who said that she had been in the presence of the two men on the night of the shooting and that someone had said, "We just shot some officers." On cross-examination, the young woman could not remember whether the person speaking—never definitely identified by her—had said we or they. It was also brought out on cross-examination that she had been arrested on the night of the shooting (Monday) and held in jail until the following Sunday. She also claimed that the attorneys for the prosecution had threatened to see that she received a prison sentence if she failed to testify as she did.

The verdict of the jury has generally been hailed as a victory for democracy. The fact that twenty-three out of twenty-five Negroes charged with the attempted murder of a white peace officer should be acquitted was surprising to all of the defendants and to their attorneys as well.

Lawrenceburg, the county seat of Lawrence County, is a town of 3,486 white persons and 321 Negroes. (There are 28,025 whites and 701 Negroes in the entire county.) It is located in an unprosperous farming area eighty-three miles southwest of Nashville and thirty-four miles southwest of Columbia. (GP, NP, Special Reports)

ARMED FORCES

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Robert R. Kelly of Washington has filed suit on behalf of his nineteen-year-old son, Robert B. Kelly, seeking an injunction against Army and Selective Service Regulations whereby enlistments, re-enlistments, inductions and voluntary inductions of Negroes have been suspended. The suit, which is being handled by the firm of Houston, Houston, and Hastie, alleges that Kelly and other Negroes similarly situated are being discriminated against in violation of the Selective Service Act.[3]

Young Kelly, a graduate of Armstrong Technical High School where he was a high school cadet corps lieutenant, has been in Class 1-A since August 14, 1946. On September 3, he presented himself at his local Army Recruiting Station and requested voluntary induction into the Army; but was rejected solely on the basis of his racial identity. Kelly claims that white boys were being taken and that an active campaign of recruitment was in progress. Appeals to his local draft board and to the District of Columbia Selective Service Headquarters were without avail. He was informed, moreover, that the [3]Since the time of writing, the War Department has revised its order barring general induction and enlistment of Negroes. It will induct 1,000 Negroes during October, although under the requirement of having completed a high school education.

Army and Selective Service System did not anticipate any inductions of Negroes during the months of September and October. In addition to his losing the opportunity to complete his military service in order that he may go ahead with his plans for an education and employment, the brief filed on Kelly's behalf points out that he and others similarly situated are "kept in an uncertain state of mind", and that he is "losing his morale and faith in the democratic process." More important for many Negroes is the fact that the benefits accruing from the GI Bill of Rights are not available to persons inducted after October 6, 1946. (NP, GP, CNI)

POLITICS

WASHINGTON, D. C.

A group of prominent Mississippi Negro citizens have presented several affidavits to the Senate Committee on Campaign Expenditures citing instances in which Negroes were deprived of their civil rights during the July 12 Mississippi Democratic Primary. In addition to reporting the several instances in which Senator Bilbo called for direct action to prevent Negroes from voting, the affidavits referred to the following incidents:

> One of a group of Negro veterans who went to register was required to name the President of the United States, the vice-president and the secretary of state. When these had been named correctly the ex-soldier was asked to tell how the president and vice-president are elected, and answered correctly. The registrar then asked how the secretary of state is elected. The veteran replied that the ranking cabinet member is appointed by the president and confirmed by the Senate. "Naw he ain't," said the election official, "he's elected like the president. I'd like to register you. You study your civics and come back some time."
>
> Another affidavit charges that the town marshal visited the Negro business houses in one town and warned that any Negro attempting to vote would be "run out of town". When the author of the affidavit, a veteran, tried to vote, the marshal, who had his gun lying in a conspicuous position said, "I left word for the niggers to stay away."

According to Percy Green, editor of the Jackson Advocate, who was spokesman for the Mississippi delegation to the Senate Committee, over seventy-five white and Negro persons have signed a petition asking that the Senate refuse to seat Bilbo.

In a typical editorial entitled "Percy Green Was There" the Jackson, Misssissippi Daily News stated:

> "Reports of the Robeson meeting (protesting lynching) say that among those present was Percy Green, editor of the Jackson, Mississippi Advocate, a weekly Negro newspaper, 'who discussed racial tensions in his state'. One of these days Green is destined to learn a great deal more about 'racial tensions' than he now knows." (GP, NP, ANP)

HOUSTON, TEXAS

J. R. Davidson, who was defeated in a close run-off election for sheriff by Sheriff Neal Polk,[4] has entered suit asking that his name replace that of the nominee on the November 5 general election ballot. Davidson lost by a margin of 207 votes out of 75,000 cast; and precincts 24 and 48—predominantly Negro—were decisive. The defeated candidate is trying to show that there were gross irregularities in the balloting, especially in the Negro precincts. (FR, GP, NP)

CIVIL RIGHTS

CLEVELAND, OHIO

Euclid Beach, Cleveland's largest amusement park, has long excluded Negroes from the use of its swimming pool, dance hall, and roller skating rink. Whenever excluded persons have brought suits under the Ohio Civil Rights Law, it is reported that the Humphries Company, owner of the park, has made a cash settlement of the case out of court.

[4]See MONTHLY SUMMARY, August-September, 1946, p. 14.

During the past summer several organizations, including the United Negro and Allied Veterans of America, the American Youth for Democracy, the Committee for Racial Equality, the NAACP, the Future Outlook League and the American Veterans Committee, have attempted systematically to break down the policy of discrimination. Within the past two months, two interracial groups have been escorted bodily from the park by policemen. The second of these groups is reported to have been attacked violently by the police—one member of the group suffering painful injuries. The various civic groups concerned with the matter have picketed the park on several occasions; and have succeeded in getting the matter publicized in the local daily press, which has hitherto ignored complaints of discrimination at Euclid.

The civic organizations interested in the matter have approached Mayor Thomas A. Burke and Frank Baldau, secretary of the Community Relations Board, requesting their support in passing a city ordinance making violators of the civil rights statutes subject to loss of license. The support of the Mayor and Mr. Baldau has been promised and Councilman Charles V. Carr is expected to introduce the ordinance at an early date. (FR)

ROCKWALL, TEXAS

Five white men—three peace officers, a former sheriff, and a farmer—have been indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of holding a Negro in involuntary servitude. The sheriff, a constable, and the jailer of Rockwall County are charged with holding R. D. Andrew, a Negro, without legal cause and forcing him to work for the benefit of others. On another count the sheriff and deputy are charged with arresting two other Negroes, a man and a woman, and depriving them of their civil liberties by beating them. (FR, GP)

TRANSPORTATION

WASHINGTON, D. C.

In a two-to-one decision, the United States Court of Appeals in the District of Columbia has ruled that the Supreme Court decision declaring segregated travel on buses illegal applies equally to train travel. The suit was brought by two employees of the Afro-American, Ralph Matthews, chief of the paper's Washington Bureau, and photographer William J. Scott, together with the Reverend William H. Jernigan, executive secretary of the Fraternal Council of Negro Churches. The men, who had bought through reservations on a coach from Philadelphia to Greensboro, North Carolina, via the Southern Railway, were ordered to change to the segregated Negro coach at Alexandria, Virginia, but refused to move. In Lynchburg, train officials called the police who ordered the men to move or to leave the train. The plaintiffs are seeking damages from the railroad to the extent of $45,000. (ANP, GP)

* * * * *

Mrs. Lottie E. W. Taylor, a Negro resident of New York, is contesting the manner in which some bus companies have sought to evade the Supreme Court decision in the Morgan case. Mrs. Taylor was fined five dollars and costs in a Fairfax, Virginia court on charges of disorderly conduct after she had refused to obey a driver's orders to move to the segregated section of a bus operated by the Virginia State Line Bus Company. Thomas Cheres, attorney for the carrier, argues that the Morgan decision applies only to the validity of state segregation laws as they affect interstate commerce passengers. Therefore, he argues, carriers still have a right to insist on the right to seat passengers according to "company regulations based on custom, usage and tradition". Mrs. Taylor's attorney, James H. Raby, retained by the NAACP, has appealed the decision. (GP, NP)

HOUSTON, TEXAS

Berry Branch, Sr., a sixty-five-year-old respected member of the Negro community, was fatally wounded by a bus driver on the Nance Street line in Houston recently. According to persons present at the time of the shooting, Branch was fired upon when he asked to alight from the bus while the driver was engaged in a violent argument with a seventeen-year-old Negro boy. (The boy had been accused by the operator of "insulting" the latter's girl friend; and was being threatened at the time that Branch made his request.) The driver responded by shooting Mr. Branch in the back of the neck.

The tragedy has aroused numerous protests from the Negro community of Houston. Houston's two leading Negro papers, the Informer and the Defender, point out that the general practice among Houston bus drivers of carrying side-arms while driving on lines patronized largely by Negroes is both illegal and dangerous. There has also been criticism of the reportedly growing tendency of operators on these lines to bring along women guests with whom it is alleged they converse to the neglect of their duty.

The day of Mr. Branch's funeral was an occasion of general mourning among Houston Negroes. Nineteen organizations, led by the NAACP and including veterans, civic, CIO and AFL organizations issued a formal call to protest. (FR, NP)

POLICE ADMINISTRATION

BATESBURG, SOUTH CAROLINA

Attorneys from the United States Department of Justice have filed charges against Police Chief Lynwood L. Shull of Batesburg in connection with the blinding of Isaac Woodard. (See MONTHLY SUMMARY, August-September, 1946, pp. 6-7.) The charges filed in the federal court in Columbia, South Carolina allege that Chief Shull violated the veteran's civil rights and his "right and privilege not to be beaten or tortured by persons exercising the authority of arrest". (GP, NP ANP)

BEAUMONT, TEXAS

Corporation Court Judge Hoyt A. Pond assessed fines of $125 each to two seventeen-year-old white youths who were convicted of simple assault against Negroes in Beaumont. According to the arresting officers the attacks were unprovoked. (ANP)

MEXICO CITY

In an address before the International Association of Chiefs of Police in September, Joseph T. Kluchesky discussed the importance of specialized training for peace officers in the handling of situations involving race tension and in dealing with minority groups. Mr. Kluchesky has recently retired after a long period of service as chief of police in Milwaukee, Wisconsin and now serves as police consultant for the American Council on Race Relations. The Police Academy of the FBI has recently adopted portions of Mr. Kluchesky's course for the training of officers in dealing with race relations. (ANP, GP)

GENERAL TENSION

CINCINNATI, OHIO

Race tension in Cincinnati nearly reached the breaking point during the latter part of August following the reported rape of a young white woman by four Negroes. According to the story related by the eighteen-year-old night club entertainer and her escort, the two of them, returning from work at three o'clock in the morning, were driving through the West End (a congested area populated largely by Negroes) and stopped at a traffic light. At this point, four Negroes, one of whom was armed with a pistol, stepped on the running board of the car, ordered them to drive to a secluded spot and attacked the young woman by turns.

Two facts served to heighten the racial feeling aroused by the story. The alleged attack occurred in the midst of a period when segments of the local press were emphasizing incidents of rape, robbery and similar offences under the heading of "crime wave". The Enquirer and the Times-Star made capital of this particularly heinous crime by making prominent use of the reported racial identity of the perpetrators and by reporting several irresponsible threats, statements and rumors.[5]

The handling of the story by the Enquirer and the Times-Star made the task of individuals and organizations trying to avert a full-scale race riot considerably more difficult. The Enquirer published a map (8/21/46) showing the location of ten rape cases since January 1, 1946 and emphasizing the fact that they had all been committed by Negroes. Two days later Acting City Manager John D. Ellis released a statement saying that the city was not facing "a racial problem with a very dastardly crime of rape". He provided statistics saying that he was "vitally interested that the problem should not assume a racial aspect and that it shall be treated only in its true picture of crime". Mr. Ellis' statistics showed that of the sixty-seven cases of rape reported to the police since January 1, thirty involved cases in which all parties were white, in fifteen cases the victim was white and the suspect Negro, and all principals were Negroes in twenty-two cases. The City Manager also presented figures to show that the incidence of crime was not a matter of territory. The Ellis statement was carried prominently by the Post which had maintained a fair and objective attitude throughout the affair, but was given considerably poorer coverage by the Enquirer and the Times-Star. (FR, NP, GP)

[5]See especially Times-Star (8/20/46, p. 6) and Enquirer (8/21/46) "Location of Ten Rape Cases Since January 1" (map caption).

PHILADELPHIA, PENNSYLVANIA

A street fight between a group of whites and a group of Negroes in the Front and Dauphin Street area during mid-September resulted in the death of a white man, Harry Ulmer. A Negro, Thomas Lockhart, is being held without bail in connection with Ulmer's death. The fight, in which the man was fatally injured was, according to a city detective, the second in one evening between the groups involved. The first melee was precipitated when Negro residents of the 2200 block on North Hope Street objected to the conduct of a member of a group which included Ulmer. The white group was outnumbered and fled, returning in a short while with reinforcements. Eight persons, white and Negro, were arrested as material witnesses, and are now out on bail. (FR)

THE NEGRO IN AMHERST COUNTY, VIRGINIA

The Sweet Briar College Branch of the American Association of University Women has prepared a study of conditions among Negroes in Amherst County, Virginia, where the college is located. The study covers the areas of population, occupations and migrations, housing, health, schools, churches, non-religious organizations, and crime, and includes a section on the Negro and the war.

Compiled by eight members of the local AAUW branch, the study traces the history of the Negro in Amherst County back to the Antebellum period, and concludes with recommendations in three categories: 1) suggested projects having immediate and tangible effects, such as the awarding of a scholarship to enable a promising Amherst County Negro youth to obtain a higher education; 2) projects seeking to educate the general public with the object of arousing greater public interest in community problems, especially the improvement of conditions among Negroes; 3) projects aimed at stimulating a sense of civic responsibility and interest in local and national government affairs among members of the sponsoring organization.

THE ECONOMIC FRONT

EMPLOYMENT

DETROIT, MICHIGAN

Through the efforts of the Detroit Urban League and other civic minded organizations a precedent has been set in Michigan with regard to the certification of discriminatory training schools. Detroit's Meinzinger Art School has in the recent past refused to accept Negro students for enrollment in its courses. Its catalog has carried a statement: "The school does not accept Negro students." Several Negro veterans who sought admission for training under the G. I. Bill of Rights were refused and reported the rejection to the Detroit Urban League. The League's vocational secretary immediately interviewed Fred J. Meinzinger, president of the school, and was informed that Negroes had been barred because they were generally unable financially to pay the tuition charged by the institution. Mr. Meinzinger was reminded of the fact that the United States government would pay the same tuition and fees for all veterans, but the school head informed the Urban League representative that the discriminatory policy would continue.

When persuasion failed, the League turned to the Veterans Administration and found that authority for certifying schools for training had been vested by the VA in the Governor of Michigan who, in turn, had delegated this responsibility to Dr. Eugene Elliot, State Superintendent of Public Instruction. Mr. Elliot was urged by the League, the American Veterans Committee, and the Wayne County CIO Veterans Council, together with many individuals and organizations to require the Meinzinger Art School to admit qualified persons without reference to race or be barred from certification under Public Act 346. After an investigation which substantiated the League's charges, Elliot gave the Meinzinger School such an alternative. The school has announced a change in policy, stating that it will now admit Negro students and that the catalog statement to the contrary has been deleted. (FR)

* * *

The Committee for a State FEPC in Michigan is seeking 275,000 signatures on an initiative petition to place the matter on the ballot in November. (FR, NP)

DENVER, COLORADO

The National Opinion Research Center (NORC) at the University of Denver has found that an increasing proportion of white persons believe that Negroes should be given equality of opportunity in securing jobs. A stratified and carefully selected sample representing a cross-section of the white population throughout the country was asked the following question:

"Do you think that Negroes should have as good a chance as white people to get any kind of job, or do you think that white people should have the first chance at any kind of job?"

The same question was asked in 1944 and in 1946. During the interim there was a slight increase in the minority favoring equality of opportunity, a slight decrease in the proportion of persons asking for priority for white persons and a decrease in the proportion of persons undecided as shown below:

	1946	1944
Negroes should have an equal chance	47%	42%
Whites should have first chance	49%	52%
Undecided	4%	6%
	100%	100%

Forty-seven per cent of whites interviewed felt in 1946 that Negroes should have the same chance to get a job. However, there were:

I. Sectional differences:

	For job equality
New England and Middle Atlantic States	60%
Midwest and West	50%
South	27%

II. Differences according to extent of education:

Attended college	65%
Attended high school	49%
Eighth grade or less	39%

III. Occupational differences:

Professional people	65%
Business men	53%
White collar workers	52%
Service workers	50%
Manual and factory workers	44%
Farmers	40%

This poll compares very favorably with a report released by NORC two weeks earlier. In this case a similar cross-section of whites and a cross-section of Negroes had been asked:

"Do you think most Negroes in the United States are being treated fairly or unfairly?"

	Whites	Negroes
Fairly	66%	28%
Unfairly	25%	66%
Undecided	9%	6%
	100%	100%

UNIONS

NEW YORK CITY, NEW YORK

Negro employees of the R. Gesell Company (Dorothy Gray Cosmetics) have been on strike for more than seven weeks in an effort to secure union recognition and the abolition of certain alleged discriminatory practices. According to officials of Local 121, United Gas, Coke and Chemical Workers (CIO), a clear majority of the employees of the company signed union cards; however, when a strike was called, all Negro workers and only a few of the white workers responded by walking out. Among the demands of the union were the ending of segregation of Negro workers and the abolition of discriminatory promotion and job ceilings. It is charged that the company has used these demands as a means of dividing the Negro and white workers. In fact, all white workers are said to have returned to work shortly after the strike began.

An allegedly independent union has been organized in the plant since the beginning of the strike, and has petitioned the National Labor Relations Board for certification as bargaining agent. The Negro strikers have been joined on the picket line by Negro and white trade unionists from CIO and AFL unions. (FR, GP)

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

The Brotherhood of Railway Carmen (AFL) which has hitherto limited full membership to white persons has voted to delete the word "white" from its constitution. By this action the nearly seven thousand Negro auxiliary members of the Union will be eligible to full membership, according to Felix M. Knight, president of the Brotherhood. As is the case in other similar arrangements, Negro members of Carmen auxiliaries have paid regular union dues but have not been permitted to influence policy by voting or by sending delegates to national conventions. (GP)

STUDY MANUAL ON FAIR EMPLOYMENT LEGISLATION FOR DISCUSSION GROUPS

The history of legislation against discrimination, which goes back as far as 1909, is considered in a new pamphlet on FAIR EMPLOYMENT LEGISLATION IN NEW YORK STATE: ITS HISTORY, DEVELOPMENT, AND SUGGESTED USE ELSEWHERE (Associated Press, 1946, pp. 48, 50 cents per copy). Instructive chapters on the development of the present legislation, a table of arguments for and against such legislation, a copy of the New York Law Against Discrimination, and a carefully chosen bibliography are also included. The pamphlet is edited by Phillips Bradley, Harry Carmen, Bernard Gittelson, Roderick Stephens, and Abraham Wilson; and includes a foreword by New York State Senator Irving M. Ives, co-author of the Ives-Quinn Bill which established the New York State Commission Against Discrimination (SCAD).

PROGRAMS OF ACTION

WORK OF ORGANIZATIONS IN COLUMBIA, TENNESSEE CASE

When the Columbia, Tennessee violence occurred last February, numerous civic, religious, labor and interracial groups throughout the country began intensive campaigns in an effort to see that Negro victims of the riot were given a fair trial and that necessary reparations were made to Negro businessmen and householders who suffered damages to their property as a result of the disturbance. The following account is a brief resume of the efforts made by the organizations.

National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. The NAACP has been the agency in charge of the legal defense of the Negro defendants at Columbia. The national organization and its local branches have publicized the case widely by mass meetings throughout the East and Middle West, with the cooperation of trade unions and civic organizations. Numerous radio programs have been sponsored and magazine and newspaper articles published through the efforts of the NAACP; a pamphlet, "Terror in Tennessee", was prepared by the public relations bureau of the organization. Walter White, executive secretary of the NAACP, has appeared on several of the radio programs, accompanied by one or more of the Columbia defendants. At the instigation of the NAACP, the National Committee for Justice in Columbia, Tennessee, was formed.

National Committee for Justice in Columbia, Tennessee. Headed by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and Channing H. Tobias, this committee was formed to provide every possible safeguard to Negroes unjustly charged with crimes in the case. The group has worked with the legal staff of the NAACP in providing adequate legal defense for the victims. It has solicited contributions and attempted, as far as possible, to provide reparations for the damage occasioned Negro businessmen and householders. It has worked to publicize the case throughout the country.

Southern Conference for Human Welfare. The activities of the Conference may be summarized as follows: (1) cooperation with the NAACP in sending the first investigators to Columbia; (2) cooperation with other agencies and press services in making investigations; (3) making the group's own study of the case; (4) publishing the facts, primarily through the circulation of 180,000 copies of a pamphlet, "The Truth About Columbia"; (5) cooperation with the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties and the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, CIO, in sponsoring an emergency conference in Washington, D. C., to publicize the facts and bring pressure upon the Department of Justice for a federal investigation; (6) initiating a meeting in Nashville where the story of the victims was heard by prominent citizens; (7) cooperation with the NAACP in the formation of a national committee to raise funds; and (8) circulation of 20,000 post cards which were to be sent to Governor Jim McCord of Tennessee.

National Federation for Constitutional Liberties. The Federation has been active in soliciting contributions, publicizing the case, and in arranging the National Emergency Conference, which was held in Washington, D. C., in March.

Civil Rights Congress. The Congress, in denouncing the "whitewash" by the Federal Grand Jury in Nashville, sent telegrams to President Truman and Attorney General Tom Clark, calling for a new federal grand jury investigation. It also conducted a petition campaign in an effort to bring about a new investigation.

Committee for Justice in Tennessee. This group has been particularly active in publicizing the facts of the case throughout Tennessee and in demanding that Governor McCord remove Lynn Bomar as Chief of the State Department of Safety.

Southern Regional Council. Guy B. Johnson, executive director of the Council, prepared a careful study of the case, "What Happened at Columbia," which appeared in the Council's publication, New South. The article urged justice for Negro victims of the outbreak.

Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. The Council has sent resolutions to Attorney General Tom Clark and Governor Jim McCord, demanding a full investigation by the Governor of Tennessee and the Department of Justice to determine the extent to which civil rights of Negroes were violated.

THE MONROE, GEORGIA LYNCHING CASE*

Further action developments in connection with the Monroe, Georgia lynching, occurring during the month of September, may be summarized as follows:

(1) On September 23, the American Crusade to End Lynching inaugurated a one-hundred day campaign against mob violence, with a "March on Washington" and a visit to the White House by a delegation headed by Paul Robeson, chairman of the Crusade; (2) A delegation representing the newly-formed National Emergency Committee Against Mob Violence, headed by Walter White, Executive Secretary of the NAACP, conferred with President Truman on September 19, urging him to call a special session of Congress to pass laws against mob action; it was reported, following the conference, that a new White House Commission, to study and make a complete review of lynchings, is under consideration by President Truman; (3) Pointing out that local authorities and citizens can do much to curb lynchings, Attorney General Tom Clark called on the nation's lawyers "to do all within their power" to insure that participants in mob violence "are speedily brought to justice . . ." (The request was made in letters to Willis Smith, President of the Lawyers Guild, and to the presidents of all state bar associations); (4) Innumerable protests, in the form of mass rallies, petition campaigns, the formation of committees against terrorism, and resolutions and telegrams sent to the President and Attorney General, were voiced by citizens and citizens' groups throughout the country, as well as abroad.

With the number of participants in the "March on Washington" estimated at 5,000, the Crusade to End Lynching, on the eighty-fourth anniversary of Lincoln's first Emancipation Proclamation, held a mass meeting at the Lincoln Memorial, where eyewitness accounts of lynchings that have occurred in recent months were given by relatives and friends of victims.

The next morning, September 23, the problem of mob violence was discussed with the President by a delegation composed of the following: Paul Robeson; John Sengstack, publisher of the Chicago Defender; Mrs. Harper Sibley, president of the National Council of Church Women; Rabbi Irving Miller, of the American Jewish Congress; Dr. Max Yergan, president of the National Negro Congress; Aubrey W. Williams, editor and publisher of the Southern Farmer; Dr. Joseph L. Johnson, chairman of the Washington Committee of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare; the Rev. W. A. Jernagin, president of the National Baptist Young People's Union; and Dr. Charlotte Hawkins Brown, president of Palmer Memorial Institute.

The delegation delivered to Truman a letter from Dr. Albert Einstein, stating that security against lynching is "one of the most urgent tasks of our generation", and placed before the President a three-point action program: (1) Apprehension and punishment of every lyncher; (2) Passage of a Federal Anti-Lynching bill; (3) Keeping the Klan out of the Senate—No seat for Theodore Bilbo. Following the conference, Robeson reported that the President indicated that political matters made it difficult to issue a statement of his views on lynching at that time. As to possible Federal legislation to curb lynching, Robeson said Truman expressed the veiw that passage of an anti-lynching law was a political matter in which timing was important.[1] (GP, NP, Special Reports)

*See MONTHLY SUMMARY, August-September issue, pp. 29-30, for a report on action taken during the month of August.

COMMITTEES AGAINST LYNCHINGS FORMED

BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS

The newly-formed "Committee for Action on the Georgia Lynchings" has opened a campaign to encourage citizens of the North to take an active interest in the social, political and economic problems of the South.

The group recently sponsored an interracial, interfaith meeting attended by a capacity audience at Symphony Hall, and adopted a resolution calling upon President Truman and Attorney General Tom Clark to take definitive steps to halt the lynching of Negroes in the South. (Boston, Mass., Christian Science Monitor, September 23, 1946)

DETROIT, MICHIGAN

A permanent "Committee to Fight Racial Injustice" has been organized from the Detroit emergency committee which sponsored a mass memorial parade protesting the Monroe, Georgia lynchings.

During a recent meeting of the new group, composed of approximately forty civic, labor, veteran and church organizations, the Directors stated that the objectives of the committee will be to initiate and correlate all protest actions around issues of racial injustice and terrorism, and that the group will promote mass rallies, petition and telegram campaigns, and picket lines. Co-Chairmen are the Rev. Charles A. Hill, President, Detroit Branch of the NAACP; and Jack Raskins, Executive Secretary, Civil Rights Congress. (FR)

NEW AFL GROUP TO FIGHT BIGOTRY

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA

The Los Angeles Central Labor Council (AFL) has appointed a special Labor Committee to Combat Intolerance for the purpose of directing the Council's campaign against racial and religious prejudice among AFL workers.

The new group, lauded highly by the Negro and liberal press, announces that it has been formed "because organized labor suffers at the hands of the same Fascist-minded groups which stir up hatred of minorities" and "because workers who distrust each other will cause the collapse of trade unionism and democracy if bigotry and discrimination grow among them".

The committee will operate "without publicity or empty resolutions by leaders alone" but rather "by concentrating on the mass education of the 450,000 rank and file members of the AFL in this area (Los Angeles) through their trade union locals. Union educational programs, membership meetings and the labor press will be used to bring the evils of intolerance, and a workable program to fight it, to the attention of each and every union member." The committee's director is Zane Meckler, who is also West Coast Director of the Anti-Discrimination Department of the Jewish Labor Committee. (CNI)

[1]In this connection, it should be noted that Attorney General Tom Clark has announced his intention to ask the 80th Congress, when it reconvenes in January, to pass a Federal anti-lynching law, and that a group of senators led by James M. Mead and Robert F. Wagner of New York have declared their support of the proposed measure.

NAACP PLEDGES FIGHT ON BOSWELL AMENDMENT

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA

Methods of defeating the Boswell Amendment, which would disqualify Negro voters in Alabama, were discussed at the annual conference of Alabama branches of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, meeting in Birmingham.

Delegates from Birmingham, Dothan, Huntsville, Samson, Selma, Tuscumbia, Montgomery, Sheffield, Florence, Ozark and other cities in the State unanimously passed a resolution stating that the conference will "use all of its resources to defeat the Boswell Amendment", and that it will "publicize the fact to all parties concerned that it is prepared to fight the insidious and undemocratic . . . amendment to the ultimate victory and to press its fight to the Supreme Court, if necessary".

The organization of Alabama Negro editors and publishers has also pledged its support to the forces working for the amendment's defeat. (ANP, October 2, 1946)

ACTION TAKEN ON KU KLUX KLAN

As evidences of Klan terrorism continue to spread throughout various sections of the country, opposition forces have mobilized their efforts into an effective program of protest and action.

In New York, the Committee for Justice in Freeport disclosed that Governor Dewey has been called upon to publish the names of 1,100 Klan members in the state in order to serve the "best interests of democracy". Among those demanding action were James Montgomery Flagg, artist; Herman Shumlin and Oscar Hammerstein II, producers; and several educators, including Henry Pratt Fairchild of New York University.

In Philadelphia, 4,000 American Legion representatives passed a resolution stating that "whereas the Ku Klux Klan is a cowardly blot on the honor of the State and Nation, be it resolved that the Klan be outlawed from the society by appropriate legislation." The Legion declared that it planned to promote and support such legislation before Congress and the State Legislature.

In Knoxville, Tennessee, the local branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People sent a memorandum to city officials, judges and law enforcement officers, charging that little or no investigation of the Klan has been made, and requesting that immediate steps be taken to prosecute members of the Klan under existing laws. It was suggested that the City Council pass an ordinance prohibiting policemen and firemen from belonging to the Klan, since there is already an ordinance prohibiting them from belonging to labor unions.

In Arden, Delaware, a rally was held, protesting a cross burning on a local school house lawn. Governor Arnall of Georgia, in an article in the October issue of Coronet, warned that "America must get rid of the Klan before the Klan gets rid of America". (GP, Special Reports)

COUNCIL ASSAILS G. L. K. SMITH

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA

The Los Angeles Council for Civic Unity reports that Gerald L. K. Smith is back in Los Angeles to conduct a so-called Christian Nationalist Conference and that the best way to oppose him is "to refuse to do what he wants".

"1. He wants picket lines—so let's not give him pickets.

"2. He wants a show of police force—so let's give the police no reason for special detail.

"3. He wants (to create) controversy over the Civic Center . . . so let's not give him opportunity to claim he was denied freedom of speech.

"4. He wants money—so let's not donate to his nefarious causes.

"5. He wants disunity—so let's marshal our forces to maintain a unified opposition to everything for which Smith stands. The program of the Council for Civic Unity is constantly working toward that end."[3] (Council for Civic Unity release, September 7, 1946)

SCAD TO HANDLE ORGANIZATIONAL COMPLAINTS

NEW YORK, NEW YORK

The New York State Commission Against Discrimination has ruled that it will accept enforcement jurisdiction over verified complaints filed by organizations and predicated upon Section 131, Subdivision 3 of the New York State Law Against Discrimination,[4] according to an announcement by Henry C. Turner, Chairman of the Commission.

Turner also revealed that two cases based on complaints filed by the American Jewish Congress against an insurance company and a calculating machine company had been settled in the stage prescribed by the law as conference and conciliation and that the unlawful employment practice complained of had been eliminated.

Previously, complaints had been brought against SCAD because of alleged refusal of the commission to handle cases filed by organizations. (Special Report from the State Commission Against Discrimination.)

[3]A split in the ranks of liberal forces in Los Angeles occurred with Smith's recent appearance in the city. Mayor Fletcher Bowron, backing up the stand of the Council for Civic Unity by an enjoinment against the picketing of Smith's meetings, was opposed by the Mobilization for Democracy, which planned to picket the meetings and advertised widely for 20,000 marchers.

[4]This section of the law forbids any employer or employment agency from printing or circulating any statement or using an application for employment or inquiring facts in regard to employment which express directly or indirectly any discrimination in regard to race, creed, color or national origin unless based upon a bonafide occupational qualification.

TAMPA UNIVERSITY FORMS HUMAN RELATIONS DEPARTMENT

TAMPA, FLORIDA

Dr. E. C. Nance, President of the University of Tampa, has announced the formation of a new Department of Intercultural and Human Relations at the University, which is "designed to promote better human relations through understanding based on facts instead of prejudice and propaganda".

Dr. Nance stated that "the scope of the program will include the problems of all minority groups and a clinical examination and treatment of all factors (social, economic, racial, religious, and psychological) which create group tensions and group frictions within the community and bad international relations. Its goal can be stated in three words: Education without discrimination."

The new Department is headed by Dr. William G. Niederland, noted physician and educator. (CNI)

ANA VOTES TO ADMIT NEGRO NURSES

ATLANTIC CITY, NEW JERSEY

The American Nurses Association, at the closing session of the fourteenth biennial nursing convention in Atlantic City, voted to take into membership qualified Negro nurses, largely from Southern states, who cannot become members of the ANA through their respective state nurses' associations. In a resolution adopted by the 2,000 member house of delegates, the members called on their board of directors to take steps to implement the action and report back no later than the next convention.

At the concluding meeting of the National Organization for Public Health Nursing, the members adopted a resolution calling on "professional nursing organizations to use their influence to make equal opportunities for employment and equal salaries for all public health nurses on basis of their qualifications and without regard to color, race and creed". (GP; New York, N. Y., Times, September 28, 1946)

URBAN LEAGUE HOLDS ANNUAL CONFERENCE

St. Louis, Missouri

Attended by more than three hundred Urban League personnel from twenty-eight states and the District of Columbia, the National Urban League held its annual conference from September 25 to 28 in St. Louis.

The conference's main emphasis was on effective methods of opposing race hate and solving social problems through American team-work in local communities. The theme of the conference, which attracted national leaders and Urban League executives from more than fifty cities, was "American Teamwork Works —Attacking Postwar Problems in Race Relations". The program consisted of four days of work shop sessions on employment, housing and community planning, and was addressed by Negro and white leaders in industry, labor, government and public welfare from every section of the country.

The conference, greeted by messages from President Truman, Albert Einstein, the Governors of eight states, and Mayor A. P. Kaufman of St. Louis, adopted a number of resolutions, among them resolutions urging support of the AFL and CIO organizational drives in the South, improved housing for minorities, enactment of fair employment practice laws and better administration of laws for the benefit of Negro veterans, and protesting the return of the USES to state agencies. Industrialization of the South and equalization of freight rates with those of the North and East, to the end that the "colonial-like" position of the region might be abolished, was urged.

Another resolution pointed out that the first obligation to the welfare of nations is the job of implementing the American bill of rights and making America a place where the guaranties of the constitution are without prejudice or favor in the protection of every citizen. The world peace resolution asked that American foreign policy be such as to inspire world-wide conviction that the nation is interested in the welfare of the common man of all races and creeds.

The four-day workshop meeting was addressed in special sessions by Winthrop Rockefeller; Rear Admiral James L. Holloway of the United States Navy; Boris Shishkin, economist, AFL; Edgar Ray, President of the Tampa Urban League Board and managing editor of the Tampa Daily Times; Mrs. Fannie Cook, author of the novel, Mrs. Palmer's Honey; Reverend Francis J. Gilligan, Professor of Moral Theology, St. Paul's Seminary; Sylvan Gotshal, New York City attorney; Benjamin Wood, Managing Director, Tea Bureau, Inc.; and Lester B. Granger, the Urban League's Executive Secretary. Seminars were led by leaders in the fields of employment, housing, group work and community organizations.

With the recent addition of two new affiliates in Oklahoma City and Denver, Colorado, the Urban League movement has extended to fifty-six cities covering twenty-nine states and the District of Columbia, serving approximately forty-five percent of the urban Negro population in the United States. (GP, NP, Special Reports from the National Urban League)

CHICAGOANS LAUD PRESENCE OF NEGRO WACS IN CITY

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Through the Chicago Council Against Racial and Religious Discrimination, prominent citizens of Hyde Park and Kenwood have issued a statement pointing out the success of the quartering of Negro WACs adjacent to Gardiner General Hospital.[5] The statement was issued following a community meeting called by the Council to offset protests against the original order of the Army to quarter the WACs in the Hyde Park-Kenwood area. (Special Report from the Chicago Council Against Racial and Religious Discrimination.)

[5]See MONTHLY SUMMARY, July, 1945, p. 353.

TEXANS ASK EQUAL EDUCATIONAL ADVANTAGES

HOUSTON, TEXAS

Representative Negroes throughout Texas met on September 14 to organize the Texas Conference on Equalization of Educational Opportunities for Negroes. Since the Constitution of the state calls for separate but equal schools, and since the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is pledged to oppose separate schools, the new organization plans to extend its efforts on a different level from that of the NAACP. Dr. W. J. Howard of Houston is president. (FR)

ACTION NOTES

SOUTHEAST

ELKO, S. C.: Incensed over the lynching of James Walker, Jr., Elko citizens have organized two NAACP branches and completed plans for the organization of four other branches in other sections of the country. (ANP, September 4, 1946)

HAMPTON, VA.: An experimental four-week institute on the adult education of Negroes was held at Hampton Institute August 12 to September 14, in an effort to curb illiteracy among Negroes. Use of the Army's new teaching techniques in the instruction of adult Negroes was a main feature of the Institute and Army representatives served as supervisors. The project was jointly sponsored by the United States Office of Education, Hampton Institute, the American Association for Adult Education and the National Conference of Adult Education, and financed by a grant from the Carnegie Corporation of New York. (GP, Special Report from the Carnegie Corporation of New York.)

NORTHEAST

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y.: With prominent lecturers and persons in attendance, an Intercultural Conference was held during the summer at Chautauqua under the sponsorship of the East and West Association. A group of individuals attending the meetings have organized a committee composed of members of the Board of Trustees of the Chautauqua Institution and cottage and hotel owners, who will work for the elimination of racial and religious restrictions now existing in Chautauqua. (CNI)

NEW YORK, N. Y.: Efforts to encourage and expand scientific research on minority group problems in the United States through a system of "grants-in-aid" to university students, enabling them to carry out special studies in communities throughout the country, were recently announced by the Commission of Community Interrelations of the American Jewish Congress. An initial sum of $10,000 has been appropriated to cover awards during the college year, 1946-47. (ANP, July 29, 1946)

PHILADELPHIA, PA.: An anti-hate ordinance which forbids the circulation of anonymous literature attacking racial or religious groups has been unanimously approved by the Philadelphia City Council's law committee. (ANP, July 31, 1946)

BORDER STATES

BALTIMORE, MD.: The United Seamen's Service Club, government sponsored agency which provides housing and recreation for men of the Merchant Marine, now operates on a nondiscriminatory policy. (FR)

FOREIGN

OXFORD, ENG.: As an outgrowth of the First International Conference of Christians and Jews, which convened in Oxford, England, July 30 to August 6, representatives of Christion and Jewish faiths are slated to meet in Zurich, Switzerland this winter along with social scientists, educators and clergymen from various parts of the world to seek a solution to anti-Semitism as a "Christian problem", according to an announcement by Dr. Henry MacCracken, President-Emeritus of Vassar College. (ANP, September 18, 1946)

Intercultural Education in Southern California*

From its earliest colonial days Southern California has been involved in an experiment in intercultural relations. When the Spaniards moved North along the seacoast, establishing missions and trading centers with the Indians, transplanted and native cultures began to interact. Eventually the Hispano-Catholic pattern of community life became the dominant one. A hundred years ago the Anglo-Protestant culture which had been spreading westward across the continent reached California. Although the Spanish and Anglo types shared in various ways, in the course of time the more aggressive Eastern pattern of culture prevailed as the established custom, and the Spanish pattern along with the Indian mode of living took on the status of subordinate cultures.

The task of converting California into an integral part of the United States through the development of agricultural, mining, railroad, urban and industrial resources was continued with vigor by the people who migrated from the middle-west and eastern areas of this country. To help in this endeavor employers imported cheap labor from all parts of the world: Chinese, Irish, Italian, Japanese, Philipinos and Mexicans. Other immigrant peoples, first and second generation, gravitated to the only remaining social frontier in America, attracted by better economic opportunity, the climate and more basic social satisfactions.

During the recent global war many thousands of men and women came to California to secure military training or to help in war production. All metropolitan centers expanded at an abnormal rate to accommodate the newcomers. New communities sprang up to provide living quarters for the families of industrial workers and to serve military establishments. Peoples of widely different racial, religious and nationality traditions met here for a common task. One result of this meeting is that an accelerated intercultural experiment in neighborhood living is now going on throughout the state. The fundamental issue in this situation is: How can these heterogeneous peoples now learn to live together in harmony, respecting their own and each others' cultural heritages, at the same time uniting in a common devotion to the American way of living?

Problem and Treatment: During the growth of California toward economic and social maturity certain unfavorable intercultural trends in community life have developed, detrimental to the well-being of society and especially to the members of minority groups. For instance, ghettos of dark-skinned peoples have been formed, segregated schools established and exclusion acts passed. Jim-Crow churches, lily-white trade unions, restrictive covenants, and the like are among the evidences of social discrimination. Furthermore, the seeds of prejudice and bigotry, of an ancient order in the old world, transplanted and nurtured in America, have also become rooted on the West Coast. Conflicts of class, faith, color and caste have been particularly plentiful during the past few years. Four main types of intercultural conflicts, white-Negro, Anglo-Mexican, Caucasian-Japanese and Gentile-Jew, exist among the people of California. There are other intercultural and intracultural tensions, but their effects upon community harmony are less serious.

In Southern California two types of social strategy have been introduced to deal with these tensions: the first of which is planned community action and social pressure to change the course of intercultural events. These endeavors usually are channelled through local "councils of civic unity", either voluntarily organized by the citizens or set up by the municipal government. There are literally scores of such committees and councils in the southern part of the state. Two agencies which have been helpful in lending direction to these local enterprises are the American Council on Race Relations under the regional direction of Laurence Hewes, and the California Council for Civic Unity of which Ruth Kingman is the executive director.

The second procedure is education to change the beliefs and attitudes of people in the realm of human relations. Its advocates recognize that the rank and file of American citizens have not yet reached the stage of literacy in the area of human relationships in the community. Whatever is done to meet immediate social needs and to compel immediate changes in the folk ways of the various culture groups, including those of the dominant group, the long-time process of painstaking education of the people about race and racism, dominant and subordinate group rights and privileges, intercultural adjustments and social democracy is necessary if these changes are to be permanently effective. This type of endeavor is being defined by public school leaders as intercultural education. Its importance for school children, teachers, and adults in all walks of life is becoming increasingly apparent. The principal sponsor of intercultural education in California is the Pacific Coast Council on Intercultural Education, with headquarters in Los Angeles.

*Prepared by Dr. Stewart G. Cole, Director, Pacific Coast Council on Intercultural Education.

Educational Trends: Citizens are discovering somewhat tardily that segregated schools are inimical to the well-being of all the people in a local society. If youth enjoy the free rights of American citizens, then they should share this heritage in the public schools whose prime function is education for good citizenship. Santa Paula, Upland, Ontario and Corona have recently closed their segregated schools; Chino is about to take the step, while in Santa Ana the issue has been taken into court by Mexican-American parents. Several other communities have not yet adopted corrective measures, though they are studying the situation. The Pasadena school system has done away with segregation in the use of community swimming pools. This action will undoubtedly serve as a challenge to those continuing similar discrimination elsewhere in the state.

Public school educators are divided in their attitude toward bilingualism in classroom practice. The situation in which English and Spanish-speaking youth are involved points up this problem. Some leaders, recognizing English as the official language, believe that children of foreign-language parents should abjure their parents' tongue and concentrate exclusively on speaking, reading and writing English. Other educators recognize the social advantage any person enjoys who can express himself in two or more languages. They, therefore, are encouraging youth to retain and improve their familiarity with their parents' tongue while acquiring facility in the use of English. The teaching of Spanish in elementary schools in communities where Mexican-Americans are numerous is apparently on the increase. The schools of the city of Los Angeles are teaching Spanish to the children of this particular minority group, believing that the practice stimulates improvement in the use of both Spanish and English.

The recent severe racial and cultural tensions in community life have led to the adoption of different courses of action by the various boards of education and superintendents of schools to meet the situation in a variety of ways. Some leaders are resisting social pressures, for they realize that intercultural education deals with controversial subjects, and they prefer to avoid this field for fear their efforts may do more harm than good. It is possible that such schoolmen, by attempting to by-pass the issue, are actually confirming undesirable conditions in school and society, and thereby abetting the socially disintegrating forces in community life. Other school administrators are facing the problem fearlessly and working out constructive programs of classroom activity and in-service education of teachers. These leaders are the hope of parents and pupils who sense keenly the tragic effects of the intersectional conflict that besets them. They are working at the roots of a psychological and moral disease whose symptoms are prejudice and ill-will, a disease which thrives upon neglect and spreads like contagion through a community.

The Los Angeles and Riverside county school offices are particularly active in providing intercultural guidance to local school systems within their jurisdictions. Mrs. Marie M. Hughes and Mrs. Afton Nance represent the respective offices in this counseling service. The Los Angeles City Schools are planning a series of extended teacher institutes this autumn to meet intercultural needs of high school teachers. The school systems of Burbank, Santa Barbara, Ontario, Long Beach, Inglewood, as well as some other cities, have active committees of teachers and pupils which are cooperating in a variety of formal and informal intercultural activities. School librarians are beginning to add books and pamphlets in this field for both pupil and teacher use. Individual teachers, many of whom are courageously addressing themselves to the personality needs of their pupils, are experimenting with new curricula, "units of work", and methods of classroom organization with a view to increasing the practice and considered value of the democratic way in all human relationships. Several parent-teacher associations are scheduling panels, discussions, and audio-visual programs accenting the problem of better intergroup relations in school and community. Riverside Junior College will offer a course in intercultural problems in American life in its adult evening school during the fall semester.

Experimentation: An outstanding effort in experimentation involving a measure of scientific inquiry in a rural community has been continuing for several years in San Dimas under the direction of Miss Elis M. Tipton.[1] Mrs. Marie M. Hughes has been developing special techniques for teaching Mexican pupils how to read, write and speak English more effectively.[2]

Probably the most striking city school experiment on the Pacific Coast is under way in the port-city of San Diego. With the counseling guidance of Stewart G. Cole and a liberal grant from an interested Foundation, the Board of Education has approved a three-year program worked out by a committee of fifty persons representing a cross-section of the school's professional leaders. The program includes (a) in-service education of teachers and administrators, (b) curriculum revision and expansion, and (c) school-community coordination of adult practices. Dr. William Jack Stone has been appointed full time director of this project by the superintendent of schools. The Board made provisions for five selected teachers and principals to attend the Workshop in Intercultural Education at the University of Southern California during the past summer. Their special assignment was the preparation of a syllabus for the first year of the new program.

The Pacific Coast Council on Intercultural Education has been experimenting with several educational techniques over a three-year period, the most rewarding of which procedure has been the workshop. Summer workshops under the direction of Stewart Cole have been held at the University of California in Berkeley, Stanford University, and the University of Southern California. The brochure, Charting Intercultural Education 1945-55, describes a citizenship program that engaged the staff and members of the shop at Stanford.[3] Stewart Cole has also directed a variety of community workshops composed of representatives of schools, churches, social agencies, police, municipal housing, labor, industry, and minority groups, meeting for a two or three-hour session weekly for six weeks to consider their intergroup problems and what to do about them, working individually or collectively.[4]

[1]"Good Neighbors on the Home Front: An experiment in Mexican-American Relations", Intercultural Education News, March 1943, pp. 2, 3; June 1943, p. 5. New York: Bureau for Intercultural Education.

[2]Mrs. Hughes' report on this experiment will be published during the next year.

[3]Published by the Stanford University Press, 1946 (Stanford University, Calif.).

A year ago an intercultural experiment with the commercial motion picture "Tomorrow the World" was sponsored by the Pacific Coast Council on Intercultural Education, the office of the Los Angeles County Schools, and the school systems of Pasadena, Beverly Hills, Willowbrook, and Salt Lake City. Under the direction of Dr. Mildred J. Wiese, a special test was prepared and used with two thousand high school students before and after they had seen the picture to find out their beliefs and attitudes with respect to certain intercultural aspects of life today in America and Germany. The findings throw light upon the reactions of Negro, Mexican, Japanese, Mormon, Jewish, Catholic and Protestant youth to each other as well as to the American way of life.[5]

The American Council on Education, through the instrumentality of a commission on intergroup education, begins an experiment this autumn in six cooperating schools in Riverside County.

Intercultural Studies: Several intercultural studies have been published recently in California. Professor W. Henry Cooks of Claremont Colleges presents in the pamphlet, The Teaching of International and Intercultural Understanding in the Public Schools of California, a survey of intercultural practices, good and bad, as he discovered them during a six-months' study of trends in the public schools of the state.[6] The California Elementary School Principals Association selected intercultural education as its theme for its 1945 Yearbook.[7] Stewart Cole prepared for this yearbook a comprehensive review of the literature in the field for teachers and for pupils, reprints of which are available at the office of the Pacific Coast Council on Intercultural Education.[8]

[4]For a report of one of them, see: Stewart G. Cole, "A Workshop for Urban Community Leadership", Journal of Education Sociology, Vol. 18, No. 9, May 1945. (Reprint available, Pacific Coast Council on Intercultural Education, 429 Chamber of Commerce Bldg., Los Angeles 5, Calif.)

[5]For a description of the experiment and the findings, see: Wiese and Cole, "A Study of Children's Attitudes and the Influence of a Commercial Motion Picture". Journal of Psychology, Jan. 1946, pp. 151-171. Gertrude Laws and Mildred J. Wiese, "Youth Appraises the American Way", National Parent-Teacher, November 1945. (Reprints available, Pacific Coast Council of Intercultural Education, Los Angeles) The documentary evidence of the experiment is being interpreted for publication as a teachers' manual in Intercultural Education.

[6]Published by The International Center, San Francisco.

[7]"Education for Cultural Unity", California Elementary School Principals Association 1945.

[8]"Toward Better Intercultural Education: A Bibliographical Guide for Parents, Teachers and Pupils". Reprinted from the 1945 Yearbook, Education for Cultural Unity, and by permission of the California Elementary School Principals' Association.

THE JEWISH SCENE

THE HIGH HOLIDAYS

The High Jewish Holidays, New Year's Day and the Day of Atonement, were celebrated in an atmosphere of domestic as well as international strain. In their holiday sermons, Rabbis throughout the country stressed the deep disappointment of the Jewish people after the first year of precarious peace. The physical and psychological plight of the Jewish displaced persons in the European detention camps was not eased, new detention camps were erected in Cyprus, where Jews ejected from Palestine were kept behind barbed wire, and action on the recommendation of the Anglo-American Committee of Inquiry on Palestine, that at least 100,000 of the D.P.'s should be admitted into Palestine at once, was being delayed in an endless diplomatic chess-game. (GP and JP)

PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S MESSAGE

On the eve of the Day of Atonement, President Truman published a new statement of American policy on Palestine. The President recalled earlier efforts of his administration in this field, especially the Harrison report and the report of the Anglo-American Committee. Referring to the Cabinet Committee on Palestine and Related Problems, he remarked that their proposal for implementation of the Inquiry Committee's recommendations, the so-called Morrison Plan, had met with opposition among the major political parties in the United States and could not therefore be accepted. Instead, the President adopted the formula of the Jewish Agency for Palestine that "a viable Jewish state in control of its own immigration and economic policies in an adequate area of Palestine" should be created. He reiterated the necessity to admit a substantial immigration into Palestine "at once" and reaffirmed his willingness to recommend to the Congress a plan for economic assistance for the development of Palestine as well as the liberalization of the United States immigration laws with a view to facilitating similar measures in other countries. (GP)

With this declaration, the weight of the United States, at least for the time being, is put squarely behind the partition formula of the Jewish Agency for Palestine. This formula was advocated jointly in Washington by Dr. Nahum Goldman as representative of the Jewish Agency and Judge Joseph Proskauer as representative of the American Jewish Committee. Rejected were not only the "Federalization" plan of the British Government, but also the suggestion of a bi-national state, as championed by the American-born Chancellor of the Hebrew University, Dr. Judah L. Magnes, as well as Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver's plan of a Jewish Commonwealth in the whole of Palestine. This is noteworthy, in view of the fact that the Anglo-American Committee had previously rejected both partition and a Jewish or an Arab state in Palestine in favor of a bi-national solution.

THE NEW YORK ELECTIONS

The President's message must be understood against the background of the November elections. The Democratic candidate for Senator from New York is a Jew, namely, former Governor and UNRRA director Herbert H. Lehman. Among Jews, Lehman stands for the American Jewish Committee which, without the help of labor and Zionist groups, would hardly be in a position to deliver the Jewish vote. The American Labor Party, the New York State CIO, and among the AFL unions, at least the International Ladies Garment Workers' Union with its large Jewish membership, are backing Lehman, but the Zionists of New York have passed resolutions threatening opposition to his candidacy. In addition, an "open letter to the Democratic National Committee" was advertised in the newspapers in the name of the Greater New York Zionist Action Committee, stating that "no new promises or new planks" are expected by them and asking "that American policy on Palestine be carried out now". Herbert Lehman, in his opening campaign speeches, had already gone on record as advocating a Jewish state in Palestine in addition to an increased immigration into this country and into other countries. He had also committed himself in favor of a National FEPC. But so had his Republican opponent, State Senate Majority Leader Ives who is known as one of the sponsors of the present New York State FEPC law. Likewise, both candidates have urged passage of a state statute outlawing discrimination in education. And only one day after the Day of Atonement, Governor Dewey, at a United Palestine Appeal Dinner, came out in favor of an immigration into Palestine "not of 100,000, but of several hundreds of thousands". The race for the vote of the minority groups is close and it remains to be seen whether the President's Yom Kippur message has tipped the scales. (GP)

AMERICAN POLICY IN PALESTINE

Among non-Jewish views on the Palestine situation, three are particularly noteworthy. Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) expressed his opposition to the British-proposed federation plan for Palestine. He stated that it would represent complete frustration for the Jews of Palestine and discouragement for the 1,500,000 surviving Jews of Europe. (C.R., p. 10559) Dean Alfange, chairman of the American Christian Palestine Committee of Greater New York, charged that the British in Palestine were currently undertaking a campaign to disarm Jews, on the one hand, while supplying Arab military cliques with weapons, on the other. He called upon the United States to "avert the impending wholesale massacre of defenseless Jews for which the British have cunningly prepared as part of their policy of divide and conquer". (Special report) Finally, Bartley C. Crum, of San Francisco, member of the Anglo-American Committee of Inquiry on Palestine, called for the resignation of Loy W. Henderson, director of the State Department's office of Near Eastern and African Affairs. His assertion that "the middle level of the State Department officials" have since the time of President Wilson frustrated American policy on Palestine was, however, contradicted by Acting Secretary of State Dean Acheson. Crum, in turn, widely supported by public opinion in the United States, challenged the Department to make public its secret files on Palestine. (GP)

IMMIGRATION INTO THE U. S.

Public opinion is likely to be much more divided on the President's suggestion to liberalize the U. S. immigration laws. Among those favoring the proposal, two groups ought to be mentioned. The Orthodox Agudath Israel Youth Council of America, in a telegram to President Truman, urged the United States government to "grant the Jewish people a loan of visas, similar to financial loans granted to other peoples, to admit here within the next six months all displaced immigrants who would be entitled to enter this country during the next ten-year period". At the same time, the President received a letter from fifty-nine prominent persons who, declaring that Palestine alone could not offer a solution to the problem of the Jewish refugees in Europe, urged that the United States "and all other nations" open their doors to a number of immigrants. (GP) On the other hand, President Truman's announcement was attacked by Rep. Gossett (D., Texas), who stated he would reintroduce his bill calling for a 50 per cent cut in all immigration quotas. Rep. Rankin (D., Mississippi) added that nearly all Southern Democrats would support Gossett's measure. (GP) Actually, the existing quotas are not filled.

JEWISH PROBLEMS BEFORE THE PEACE CONFERENCE

The question of what is to be done with the property of Jewish victims of the Nazis without heirs is unsolved. The Jewish delegations at the Paris Peace Conference, especially the one of the World Jewish Congress and the American Jewish Committee, have asked that the estimated billion dollars in money and property belonging to Jews who perished under the Nazis be turned over to the remaining Jewish communities in the four former enemy states of Bulgaria, Italy, Hungary and Roumania. The Jewish point of view has recently been supported by one of the special envoys of President Truman, Edwin W. Pauley, who suggests that a considerable proportion of the German reparations be used to settle Jewish D.P.'s in Palestine. However, according to Jewish newspapers, the recommendations of Pauley's report are being contested in Washington. (JP)

VANDALS DESTROY SYNAGOGUES

On the domestic scene, anti-Semitic vandalism is rampant. In the Fall River, Mass., Beth David Synagogue the arch of the altar was smashed open, holy scrolls ripped and thrown on the floor, the curtain torn, furniture broken, and flags stolen. Forty-one tombstones were found overturned in the Jewish Mount Moriah Cemetery in Fairview, N. J. The Synagogue of the Gicreth Zion Hapocl Hamisrachi and the Synagogue of the Educators Institute, both in Brooklyn, N. Y., were broken into and holy scrolls taken from the ark and destroyed. The interior of the Synagogue of the Corona Jewish Center in Queens, N. Y., was set afire so that prayer books, curtains, tables, religious gowns, and part of the altar were destroyed. In addition, there were gang attacks on both Jews and Negroes in several parts of Brooklyn and Queens. Complaints were brought before New York Police Commissioner Arthur W. Wallander by various Jewish and civic groups. The police were charged with laxity toward the perpetrators of the crimes, whereupon the Commissioner promised "special and sustained attention". It is a sign of the times that 1,000 patrolmen were assigned throughout the city of New York to protect synagogues and worshippers during the high holidays. (GP and JP)

DISCRIMINATION IN EMPLOYMENT

An investigation by the New York State Commission against Discrimination reported that "a Jewish person seeking employment in the Brooklyn Borough Gas Company was handicapped because of his ethnic origin and that the Negro was weighed by the traditional conception of his role in industry". The Commission found that "the method of recruitment of employees by the company through the years has been largely through recommendation of those in its employ". This method "insured the perpetuation of the original racial and religious composition of its personnel and was effective insulation against the population changes in the area". It was therefore recommended to the company that the so-called in-breeding method of recruitment should cease, that all foremen and supervisors should be instructed in writing of the intent of the management to eliminate the factors of race, creed, color, and national origin both in hiring and up-grading; that a central employment office should be instituted to eliminate bias by departmental officers, and that neighborhood and government resources to recruit personnel should be utilized. The president of the company, Miss Mary E. Dillon, while retorting that the Commission "has misconceived the nature and scope of its authority under the statute", has pledged that the future employment practices shall be in compliance with the law against discrimination. (GP and JP)

DISCRIMINATION IN EDUCATION

The City Council of the city of New York voted unanimously to set up a special committee to look into alleged discrimination against students seeking admission to professional schools in the city. Councilman Walter R. Hart, Brooklyn Democrat, will serve as counsel and Councilman Anthony J. di Giovanna, another Brooklyn Democrat and candidate for State Attorney General, will serve as chairman. The resolution creating the committee empowers it to "examine into, study and investigate the admission practices and policies of all educational institutions within the city claiming to be non-sectarian, for the purpose of ascertaining whether, or to what extent, these institutions or any of them practice discrimination against any person or persons because of race, color, creed, religion, or national origin, either in the admission of students or the employment of members of their teaching staffs". (GP and JP)

ACTIVITIES OF JEWISH ORGANIZATIONS

New York Supreme Court Justice M. Steinbrink was elected national chairman of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith at the organization's annual convention last month. Among other measures, the League's National Commission voted ten university fellowships for the study of intercultural relations, to be known as Sigmund Livingston Memorial fellowships. The fellowships, carrying a grant of $2,000 each, will be awarded annually. (GP)

According to a survey which was conducted by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith recently, important sections of the German-American press are now as blatantly anti-American, anti-democratic, and anti-Semitic as they were before the outbreak of the war. Before the war, the report points out, the German-American press was largely controlled by the Nazi regime. Pearl Harbor smothered the viciously pro-Nazi line of these papers, but after V-E Day they resumed their attacks against U. S. foreign and domestic policies, whereby they are linking anti-Semitism with their attacks on international cooperation. (Special report)

A four-point model legislative program suitable for introduction in every state legislature was presented this week by Will Maslow, Director of the Commission on Law and Social Action of the American Jewish Congress, to the Platform Committee of the New York State Democratic Party. The program consists of: 1) a model FEPC law such as was recently passed in Massachusetts. (The New York State law would be strengthened, allowing civic organizations to file on behalf of the racial and religious groups they represent.) 2) A law to eliminate discrimination in admissions by schools enjoying tax-exemption. It would empower a state agency to investigate the quota system and other discriminatory practices and order their abolition. 3) Amendment to the criminal libel law to forbid libel of groups. This would make anti-Semitism a crime in the state. 4) Elimination of restrictive real estate covenants by legislation. (JP)

Summary of Activities of the Department of Scientific Research of the American Jewish Committee*

On November 1, 1944, the American Jewish Committee established the Department of Scientific Research to study the causes of, and the possible control measures against, anti-Semitism. The guiding assumption underlying the work of the Department is that anti-Semitism, like other forms of prejudice, must be studied in terms of the socio-psychological situation of those who are prejudiced, the dominant group. A corollary postulate of the Department's work is that such characteristics that the minorities may possess, which provoke aggression, are primarily compensatory in nature, being developed in reaction to their unsatisfactory status.

The Department is engaged in two types of research: fundamental, long range projects which probe deeply into the basic conditions of prejudice, and smaller, more quickly completed, studies which are of special utility in developing education materials used to combat discrimination or prejudice. A number of these long range projects are conducted with the cooperation of the University of California and the University of Chicago.

The central office of the Department of Scientific Research is under the direction of Dr. Samuel H. Flowerman. Dr. Max Horkheimer, under whose direction the department was first established, is Chief Research Consultant.

Psycho-Analytical Case Studies of Anti-Semitism. This study is being conducted under the direction of Dr. Nathan W. Ackerman with the assistance of about twenty-five psychoanalists. Its purpose is to gather case histories from individuals who have manifested anti-Semitic prejudices, in any form or to any extent. The case history material will be analyzed so as to lead to a better understanding of the genesis as well as the psycho-dynamic functions of anti-Semitism.

Study of Anxiety and Social Aggression Among War Veterans. This is a study of the anxieties of war veterans who have been recently discharged, and of the way in which such anxieties may be channelled into, or related to, anti-minority hostilities. An effort will be made to discern the differential effects of combat service as opposed to occupational force service on the veterans' anxieties and anti-minority potentialities. This study is being conducted at the University of Chicago under the direction of Drs. Bruno Bettelheil and Edward Shils.

The Personality Pattern of the Anti-Semite. At the University of California, the study of the personality pattern of the anti-Semite is nearing completion, under the direction of Drs. Else Burnswik, R. Nevitt Sanford, and T. W. Adorno. This project seeks to determine the attitude syndrome which is correlated with varying degrees of anti-Semitism. Employing the scale developed by Sanford and Levinson, as well as implements of depth psychology such as the T.A.T. and the Rohrschach Test, this study will do much to clarify the psychological functions of anti-Semitism.

The Study of Anti-Semitism Among Children. The University of California, in conjunction with the Institute of Child Welfare, is conducting a systematic investigation into the manner in which prejudices develop among children and its relationship to their intelligence, personality, and life experiences. Jointly directed by Dr. Harold E. Jones and Dr. Else Brunswik of the Institute of Child Welfare, this project will have at its disposal comprehensive records of the lives and biographies of two hundred children which have been kept from birth until they reached their present age of seventeen.

Testing and Evaluation Work. The Department of Scientific Research has engaged in studying the potential effectiveness of educational materials such as cartoons, comics and pamphlets. It has also recently begun similar investigations in the field of films and radio.

Public Opinion Polling. Simultaneously, the Department is responsible for a nation-wide poll which is conducted at regular intervals every year for the purpose of ascertaining the trend of the development of anti-Semitism in the United States.

Development of Visual Educational Materials. The Department is conducting a series of experiments with visual materials with a view to developing a technique to be used in classroom demonstrations of the way in which prejudice affects perception.

The Fascist Agitator. An intensive analysis of the devices used by American demogogues is in process under the direction of Dr. Leo Lowenthal of the Institute of Social Research.

The German Tragedy. Dr. Paul Massing, also of the Institute of Social Research, is completing the analysis of the German tragedy, comparing critically the methods used to combat anti-Semitism in Germany with those in the United States.

*Prepared by Dr. Samuel H. Flowerman, Director of the Department of Scientific Research of the American Jewish Committee.

JAPANESE AMERICANS

ARMY CAMPAIGNS AGAINST BIAS

After the outbreak of the war with Japan, the United States Army through the Western Defense Command evacuated all persons of Japanese ancestry, including the Nisei GI's, from the West Coast. But because of the conduct of the evacuees and the men in the armed services, the Army has since become one of their most ardent champions. The Army's campaign against prejudice directed against Japanese Americans at home and in the armed services is continuing.

The August 19 issue of "TIPS" (Troop Information Program Service, published by the Information and Education Section, GHQ, United States Armed Forces, Pacific) devoted four of its eight pages to a feature article, "The Nisei: Victors or Victims." This article appraised the attitudes toward and treatment of Japanese Americans during the war and noted the prejudice that still exists among "the unthinking few at home".

> "Up until the time that their allegiance to the United States had been demonstrated by force of arms, the Nisei could hope for little support from public opinion. True there were editors and enlightened public officials who viewed with shocked disapproval the dragnet tactics which indiscriminately uprooted Japanese families and planted them in relocation centers. But the average American, caught up in the hysteria of war, haunted by tales of fifth column treachery, was far more inclined to be cautious than reasonable. . . .
>
> "It is race hatred itself which must be calmed if the Nisei's battle-won place in society is to endure. It is now fairly apparent that following Pearl Harbor the quite natural fears of Americans were fanned by the merchants for political or commercial gain. . . .
>
> "It is against this background which ran the gamut from doubt to out-and-out hatred that the original official steps to 'neutralize' Japanese Americans must be appraised. It now seems certain that if the U. S. Government and its people had possessed the knowledge of Japanese Americans which now is theirs, a different course would have been pursued and we would have averted what one Yale professor labeled 'our worst wartime mistake'."

WASHINGTON STATE DEMOCRATS

The Democratic Party's State Convention held at Olympia, Washington, on September 7 passed a resolution favoring the creation of an Evacuation Claims Commission to indemnify Pacific Coast evacuees of Japanese ancestry for losses sustained as a result of the 1942 mass evacuation, and the removal of restrictions based on race and ancestry from the immigration and naturalization laws of the United States. The resolution was introduced by the King County delegation and was passed by a unanimous vote.

A Nisei delegate to the convention stated:

> "The emphatic manner in which the resolution was approved by the 1300 delegates to the Democratic party convention, representing every precinct in the State of Washington, demonstrates once again that the vast majority of people everywhere believe in fair play and will act to oppose any contradiction of the American tradition of justice and equality."

HOSTILE FEELING DECREASING

The National Opinion Research Center at the University of Denver reported that according to its latest nationwide survey "hostile feeling against the Japanese living in the United States apparently is decreasing". The NORC stated further that "twice as many adults think that the 'average Japanese' living in the United States is loyal as think he is disloyal. Taken as a whole fifty per cent of the American public think that the 'average Japanese' is loyal to the American government, twenty-five per cent think he is not loyal and twenty-five per cent are undecided whether he is or not".

Over one-half of those answering either "loyal" or "don't know" would permit resident aliens of Japanese ancestry to be naturalized as American citizens.

The NORC also reported that when, on the current survey, a comparison is made between opinions on whether or not Japanese should be allowed to become citizens and opinions on whether Japanese living in this country engaged in espionage or destroyed war materials during the war (there is no record of any sabotage or espionage by persons of Japanese ancestry in the United States during World War II), "a significant correlation is found".

"Of those persons thinking that Japanese Americans committed sabotage, only twenty-eight per cent think that they should be allowed to become citizens if they are not already. Of those who think Japanese Americans did not commit sabotage, more than twice as many—fifty-seven per cent—think they should be granted citizenship," the NORC report stated.

The NORC reported that their recent survey on public opinion regarding Japanese and Japanese Americans has revealed that education is the factor responsible for the greatest differences of opinion. Almost twice as many of the college-educated persons believe that the "average Japanese" is loyal to the United States as do persons with only eighth grade education.

RESTRICTIVE COVENANTS

Attorney General Robert W. Kenny of the State of California declared that restrictive covenants which bar Japanese Americans, Negroes and other non-Caucasian Americans from occupying homes in residential areas are illegal.

He also stated:

> "Restrictive covenants are un-American and inhuman. They outrage the conscience of America. . . ." (Broadcast over KLAC, Sept. 16) (Pacific Citizen, Sept. 21, 1946)

In South Pasadena, a community of about 15,000 which had about 500 Japanese prior to the evacuation in 1942, eighty-five per cent of the land is subject to restrictive covenants. The city manager stated:

> "We do not have any Negroes nor do we have any other non-Caucasian people in South Pasadena. To insure the continuance of this policy, several years ago the city council instructed the city attorney to draw up a restrictive clause and insert it into all properties coming into possession of the city."

The restrictive clause provided that persons not of full white race are permitted to work in South Pasadena and may live in the city only if they are "strictly in the capacity of servants" of white employers. Persons "not entirely of white or Caucasian race" may work in South Pasadena only "during reasonable business hours" in areas zoned for business. (Peoples World, Sept. 7, 1946; Pacific Citizen, Sept. 14, 1946)

A Nisei war veteran who bought a house in Denver, Colorado was threatened with violence by his neighbors if he moved in. Petitions were circulated and signed but no legal action has materialized although the Nisei and his family have occupied the house.

It is reported that ten of the thirty-eight persons who signed the petition are willing to rescind their signatures. A number of persons had signed merely because they had been asked to do so and displayed "no obvious racial prejudice". (Pacific Citizen, Sept. 21, 1946)

'CITIZEN 13660'

Former Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes wrote in the New York Post about "Citizen 13660", saying, "To understand just what we did to many thousands of our fellow Americans we should read 'Citizen 13660'."

In advocating the passage of the evacuation claims bill, he stated:

> "If we Americans, with the Army in the lead, made fools of ourselves for which we ought properly to be ashamed, it must be said that the American Japanese, with very few exceptions, gave an example of human dignity by which all of us might profit. However, they have not had returned to them the property that was rifled from them, or its equivalent. A bill was introduced in the recent session of Congress setting up a commission to pass upon the claims of these dispossessed American Japanese for property of which they were despoiled. This bill ought to pass and no time should be lost in making restitution for property that was lost or misappropriated." (Pacific Citizen, Sept. 28, 1946)

READJUSTMENT PROBLEMS

A survey of problems of readjustment and discrimination in housing and employment among the Japanese Americans is being made by the WRA liquidation unit in the Department of Interior.

Last June the WRA reported that when the relocation centers were closed, about fifty per cent of the evacuees had settled at least temporarily in the Rocky Mountain states, the Midwest and the East.

Mr. Robert Cullum, who is directing the study, stated: "There undoubtedly has been some movement since the closing of the camps, and I believe it is still going on." He estimated that at least 5,000 who at first stayed away from the West Coast since have returned to that area.

The WRA report indicated that about 15,000 have settled in Illinois, the great number in Chicago. The reason for the preference for Chicago might lie in the city's position as a railroad center. It was also disclosed that about 5,300 evacuees settled in Colorado and 5,000 in Utah.

Cullum predicted that future movements of Japanese Americans as they seek to become settled will be more in the direction of the Pacific Coast, so that eventually more than half of the Japanese Americans will live on the West Coast. (Pacific Citizen, Sept. 28, 1946)

PROPOSITION 15

An amendment to the Constitution of the State of California to validate the various amendments to the Alien Land Law passed since the enactment of the initiative measure in 1920 will be voted upon at the November election. It is known as Proposition 15.

Interest is being centered on this measure because it will in a sense serve as a barometer of the anti-Japanese feeling still prevailing in California. Inasmuch as the Alien Land Law is in force, at present, Japanese Americans and their friends believe that the adoption of the amendment will not change the legal status of the law. On the other hand, if the voters of California should refuse to approve Proposition 15, it will be accepted as an indication of growing sentiment against the Alien Land Law.

The Santa Ana Register is one of the first of the major dailies in the state to urge a "NO" vote on Proposition 15. Concerning this proposition, it said:

> "No. 15 is in regard to the alien land law. The whole amendment seems to be class legislation that would work hardships on certain individuals. It would strengthen the alien land law which takes property from aliens without compensation. It is an amendment that would lead only to more friction, feeling and hate and do much more harm than good. It should be defeated."

The California Council for Civic Unity, the American Civil Liberties Union, the church groups, the American Veterans Committee, and the Westwood unit of the League of Women Voters are among those who have already signified their intention to work for the defeat of Proposition 15.

Proposition 11, a proposal to establish a state FEPC, is also on the November ballot. It will doubtless be supported by the same groups who oppose Proposition 15, and vice versa.

FACULTY MEMBERS

The number of Japanese Americans entering the teaching profession has been noticeable. Robert Hosokawa of Seattle, Washington is a new instructor in English and journalism at Winona State Teachers' College, Winona, Minnesota. (Pacific Citizen, Sept. 28, 1946)

Harry Oshima, a graduate of the University of Hawaii who has been working for his Ph.D. at Columbia, recently was appointed assistant professor in economics at American University in Washington, D. C. (Pacific Citizen, Sept. 28, 1946)

Dr. Kenneth Kuirhara, who worked for OSS during the war, has been appointed to the economics department of Princeton University.

Osamu Shimizu, a native of Canada, will be an instructor in the Far Eastern division of Columbia University.

Constance Murayama, formerly of Hampton Institute where she taught English literature, is a new member of the faculty of Adelphi Academy in Brooklyn. (Pacific Citizen, Sept. 21, 1946)

The first Nisei teacher in the San Francisco public school system is Miss Toshiko Senda, formerly of Seattle, Washington. (Pacific Citizen, Sept. 14, 1946)

INTERRACIAL PARADISE

Hawaii is an interracial paradise, according to Dr. Albert Palmer, moderator of the General Council of Congregational Christian Churches of the United States, who recently returned to Hawaii as the ad interim pastor at Central Union Church in Honolulu.

"There is no spirit of Jim Crow and there are no restrictive covenants," he said. "If people divide racially in churches or other areas of life, it is because they choose to. . ."

After reviewing the historical background that partially accounts for such a happy situation, Dr. Palmer warns of four threats to Hawaii's interracial good will.

> "First, there is some danger of a haole (white) Chinese cleavage. . . .
>
> "A second danger lies in the recent emergence of groups of hoodlums. These gangs are interracial but tend to discredit all the races they contain.
>
> "The third menace . . . is over-population.
>
> "The fourth and most menacing . . . is the danger of an industrial cleavage which consciously or subconsciously might come to be felt as identical with a race cleavage. . . ."

("Americans of Japanese Ancestry", Honolulu Star Bulletin, August 23, 1946)

PRESS OPINION: FROM EDITORIALS AND COLUMNS

THE OUTCOME OF THE COLUMBIA, TENNESSEE TRIAL*

A verdict of not guilty for twenty-three of the twenty-five defendants accused of attempted murder in connection with the Columbia, Tennessee race riot of last February brought almost unanimous praise from that portion of the nation's press choosing to comment on the trial. Dissenters, from both North and South, based their criticism on the fact that none of the twenty-five should have been tried in the first place, that the two found guilty should not have been indicted, and that white persons involved in the disturbance should have been placed on trial also.

Typical of Southern opinion acclaiming the verdict was the following comment from the Nashville Tennessean (Oct. 6, 1946):

> "The Lawrenceburg County Circuit Court is to be commended for its justice in acquitting twenty-three Columbia Negroes. . . .
>
> "The jury's decision that two other defendants are guilty will doubtless be reviewed carefully by higher judicial authority, particularly in view of the tenuous nature of the evidence against them. . . .
>
> "The jury is also to be commended that it could reach a just decision on the issues involved at a time when all sides were seeking to make the trial an occasion for putting all Southerners into the dock. . . ."

The Louisville Courier-Journal (Oct. 7, 1946) points out that "the State of Tennessee has shown a proper regard for human rights" and that the jury's action "has partly wiped out the shame of the violent episode at Columbia. . . ." The Courier-Journal, however, recognized that "justice is not quite complete" even though "the result is far from the terror and the indiscrimination of raids and arrests".

The New York Times (Oct. 6, 1946), in acclaiming the decision, reminds its readers that "the trial at Lawrenceburg was not reassuring" in that "the prosecution conducted its case in a calculated atmosphere of Bilboism". Despite this, however, ". . . the jury was hard-headed enough to realize that they were trying twenty-five Negro citizens for a crime for which the overwhelming majority . . . were patently not responsible. . . ."

Vincent Sheean, who covered the trial for the New York Herald-Tribune, and who apparently had held a pessimistic outlook for a just verdict, highly praised the Lawrenceburg jury—"twelve good men and true"—and expressed the opinion that such episodes as the Columbia disturbance are "primarily a Southern problem".

"Disregarding the whole farrago of sectionalism which had constituted the closing argument for the prosecution, this . . . jury brought in a verdict of not guilty," declared Mr. Sheean in the October 7 issue of the Herald-Tribune. "A more stinging rebuke to the prosecution would have been difficult or impossible under the social conditions of the time and place."

The New York Daily Worker (Oct. 7, 1946), although lamenting that ". . . . the freedom of two defendants still remains to be fought for", saw that "the verdict is a historic victory against oppression of the Negro people".

Three editors, however, found reason to criticize either the decision or the trial itself. The Winston-Salem (N. C.) Twin-City Sentinel (Oct. 9, 1946), in an editorial "The One Big Blot", points out that "all the defendants were Negroes" even though "it seems clear that quite a few whites were guilty of violating the law and . . . certain patrolmen abused their authority . . .", concluding that "this adds up to one-sided justice, and may lead to further tension among the two racial elements in that section of Tennessee. . . ."

The Greensboro (N. C.) News (Oct. 7, 1946) says that "there is considerable suspicion that the emotional atmosphere of the trial was not conducive to a fair and impartial hearing" and adds that "the St. Louis Post-Dispatch raises the question: 'Why do Southerners go out of their way to invite the resentment of justice loving people?' It is, we are sorry to say, a pertinent question."

The Chicago Sun (Oct. 6, 1946) declared that while the verdict "prevented a judicial mass lynching . . . justice demands that the two convictions be appealed to the highest courts".

Many of the editors, showing a degree of surprise at the decision, chose to credit it largely to the fairness of the farmers of Scotch-Irish stock who composed the Lawrenceburg jury. However, four Northern papers expressed the belief that had it not been for the "outside interference" so highly criticized by the South—meaning the NAACP, which handled the defense, the liberal Northern press, and various interracial and labor groups which criticized the State of Tennessee for trying the Negroes—the outcome of the trial would have been radically different. Two Northern papers declared that it was obviously "a new spirit" growing in the South that accounted for the verdict. Four editorials from the North and two from the South predicted a "new era" in race relations because of the verdict.

*Press opinion analyzed includes editorials from the following states: Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolian, Tennessee and Washington, D. C.

Jennings Perry, writing in PM (Oct. 15, 1946), states the opinion that had it "not been for 'outside interference' . . . the case would not have gone before the Lawrence County jury at all", but would have remained in Maury where the trial's outcome "would have worn quite a different face".

In an editorial, "A Temperate Verdict," the New York Herald-Tribune (Oct. 8, 1946) notes that "the national attention given the trial, and its interpretation by detached observers, may have contributed to the jurymen's saner perspective on the underlying issues."

The Newark, N. J., News, prophesying that "a new era" lies ahead, says that "this trial ought to mark the beginning of a general housecleaning in some Southern states. Certainly it should go a considerable way toward diminishing the suspicion with which the two races, not as individuals, but generally, regard each other in some sections of the South. . . . It is difficult to estimate the amount of good that can develop from this widely heralded exhibition of what true justice means."

The Augusta, Ga., Chronicle (Oct. 6, 1946) predicts that "if every Southerner, both white and Negro, would purge their (sic) hearts of prejudice as these Tennessee farmers sitting on this jury did, we should see the beginning of a bright new era in racial relations, particularly in the South."

The Gary, Ind., Post-Tribune (Oct. 8, 1946), in an editorial "The South Is Awakening", observes that "sometimes it takes a long time for the old order to give way to the new but here is one place where the change is taking place throughout the nation."

Claudia Jones, writing in the Daily Worker (Oct. 12, 1946), declares that "only the most sectarian would fail to see that the jury's action is evidence that real dents can be made in the Southern superstructure of Jimcrow."

Several of the Southern editors, while lauding the Lawrenceburg decision, showed resentment of Northern criticism during the course of the trial, declaring that the verdict should serve to completely convince "trouble-makers" and "agitators from outside" that the South is capable of handing out justice in the courts, even though the defendants might happen to be Negroes.

The Chattanooga, Tenn., News Free Press (Oct. 5, 1946) calls the verdict a "Triumph for Justice" and says that it "provides convincing and timely evidence of how unwarranted is the vicious propaganda of outside agitators who have adopted as one of the principal themes in their campaign of calumny the false assumption that 'the Negro can't get justice in the South'."

The Chattanooga, Tenn., Times (Oct. 6, 1946) describes the decision as "outstanding", and predicts that it "will give food for thought to the Southern Conference for Human Welfare which broadcast unfair charges against Columbia and Tennessee justice".

The Albany, Ga., Herald (Oct. 9, 1946) comments that ". . . the State of Tennessee, under most trying circumstances, scored a signal victory against what might have been a mockery of justice. And it should stand as incontrovertible evidence that the South is capable of handling its race problem without outside interference."

LETTER TO A SOUTHERN SENATOR

". . . Everytime I board a bus to go out of town, I have to wait in line while the Negro passengers get on first and fill up the back of the bus, taking two or three seats. Then the white passengers get on, and often white passengers who have been waiting for a long time have to stand or don't get on at all.

". . . I have had opportunity to notice that this situation exists in all the cities of this state. Why it is tolerated I do not know. As far as I know, there is no law which says Negroes should be seated first. If there is such a law, I think it should be changed. . . .

"Sir, I believe in treating whites the same as blacks. Why should the whites have to wait while the Negroes get on first? They should wait in line like the rest, and if the seats are all taken they should stand as we have to do. I have actually been told by drivers that I couldn't sit in the back seat, and I have seen a Negro get on later and take the vacant seat while I stood up for hours. Such discrimination is uncalled for.

"I don't believe, Sir, that the Negro people would object to being treated equal in this matter. I lived in the North before I moved here, and up there the Negroes get on like the whites and there is no trouble. The person who gets on last just has to stand, whether he is black or white, and those who get on first get the seats. I think that is the only fair system. . . ." (From a soldier somewhere in the deep South, reprinted from the NEW REPUBLIC, September 16, 1946)

MAGAZINE COMMENT

HEALTH

Free World: Richard Wright calls attention to the tremendous need of psychiatric guidance for the inhabitants of Harlem and the attempt being made to meet that need by the Lafargue Clinic, staffed largely by volunteers. (Psychiatry Comes to Harlem, Vol. XII, No. 2, September, 1946, pp. 49-51.)

HOUSING

Pulse: Wilson W. Wyatt outlines the plans of the FHA and challenges local communities ". . . to take minority group housing into consideration, appoint minority representatives to Mayor's Committees, set aside and assemble the necessary land and to take the other steps needed to see that the minorities receive their share of the houses which will be built." (The Veterans Emergency Housing Program and the Community, Vol. 4, No. 8, September, 1946, pp. 2-4.)

Common Ground: Elmer R. Smith presents a rebuttal to the usual arguments in favor of restrictive covenants, and suggests definite action to be taken to put an end to them. (Restricted Housing—Restricted Democracy, Vol. VII, No. 1, Autumn, 1946, pp. 89-92.)

SOCIAL ACTION

The Churchman: Attention is called to the release of a new documentary film, produced by Horizon Films, Inc., concerning the Jews—Of These Our People. (The Jew, Vol. CLX, No. 15, September 1, 1946, p. 20.)

Common Ground: Leo Shapiro describes NEA's attempts to promote intergroup education through its bulletin "More Than Tolerance: Suggestions to Teachers on Intergroup Education". (Intergroup Education, Vol. VII, No. 1, Autumn, 1946, pp. 102 ff.)

Elis M. Tipton reveals the steps taken to alleviate tensions between the Mexican-Americans and their neighbors in San Dimas, California. (What We Want Is Action, Vol. VII, No. 1, Autumn, 1946, pp. 74-81.)

The Journal of Education: Frank D. Whalen records the methods used by the schools in the south Bronx to meet the problems that arose when Negroes and Puerto Ricans moved into the community in large numbers. (The Bronx Averts a Racial Crisis, Vol. 129, No. 6, September, 1946, pp. 200-201.)

Motive: The Pic of the Month catches an incident of the activities of the Student Interracial Committee in fighting the discrimination practiced in certain restaurants on the campus of the University of Illinois. (Vol. VII, No. 1, October, 1946, p. 27)

New York Times Magazine: Catherine Mackenzie gives a glimpse of an interracial, intercultural camp sponsored by the Woodlea Foundation. (September 1, 1946, p. 36.)

Parents Magazine: Leslie W. Kindred and Bernard G. Kelner reveal how "the Chesley school program was geared to the problem of teaching children of different races and nationalities to live and work together"; and the decidedly beneficial effect it produced upon the entire community. (The Town That Found Itself, Vol. XXI, No. 9, September, 1946, pp. 288 ff.)

The Phi Delta Kappan: William C. Haygood notes the trend within the last two years toward recognition of Negro educators; and lists Negro faculty members in Northern Universities and Colleges. (Negro Teachers in White Institutions, Vol. XXVII, No. 2, October, 1946, pp. 74-75)

SOCIAL ANALYSIS

Commentary: Solomon Andhill Fineberg presents a strong argument for the "silent treatment" of rabble-rousers. "The way to fight the rabblerousers is by fostering attitudes that reject and negate the purposes, techniques, and concepts of racial and religious hostility wherever and whenever." (Checkmate for Rabble-Rousers, Vol. 2, No. 3, September, 1946, pp. 220-226.)

Common Ground: J. Milton Yinger briefly surveys the causes of race prejudice; and describes the method used to attack it by Flanner House and the Friends Work Camp in Indianapolis, Indiana. (Breaking the Vicious Circle, Vol. VII, No. 1, Autumn, 1946, pp. 3-8.)

Charles H. Nichols, Jr., analyzes the growing interest among "New England Clubwomen" in the "race problem" and condemns the paternalism that is often revealed. (You Should Meet My Chauffeur, Vol. VII, No. 1, Autumn, 1946, pp. 29-52.)

A portrait section of American Jazz Artists is introduced with the following statement: "Here as in most other fields of American endeavor the performers—whether band leaders or members—derive from a wide variety of racial and national backgrounds. And here, perhaps to a greater extent than elsewhere in American life, has racial derivation ceased to matter; men are artists working together." (Vol. VII, No. 1, Autumn, 1946, pp. 53 ff.)

Carey McWilliams makes an interesting contrast of the position of the Jews in St. Paul and Minneapolis, and attempts to analyze the high degree of anti-Semitism in the latter. (Minneapolis the Curious Twin, Vol. VII, No. 1, Autumn, 1946, pp. 61-65.)

Motive: George Avent hurls a challenge at students: "We have the alternatives of pledging ourselves to alleviation and final dissolution of the problem (race prejudice) or of repudiating the democratic ideal or of living as hypocrites before the world." (Mr. Ignoramus Hypocrisy, Esq., (white), Vol. VII, No. 1, October, 1946, p. 39.)

Negro Digest: Eva Knox Evans gives a keen insight into the effect prejudice among adults has upon children. (Our Prejudices Are Showing, condensed from Reader's Scope, Vol. IV, No. 12, October, 1946, pp. 27-30.)

New Republic: Daniel L. Schorr observes the discrimination against Mexican-Americans in Texas, with special consideration of the situation in San Antonio, and warns of the increase of tension since V-J day. (Reconverting Mexican Americans, Vol. 115, No. 13, September 30, 1946, pp. 412-413.)

New South: Hodding Carter takes a critical look at the South. "By almost every gauge by which a culture or civilization can be measured, the South is still at the bottom . . . Yet there are signs of ferment . . . No longer is the South an unchanging stereotype." He observes the danger signals that are arising but considers the situation hopeful. (A Southerner Looks at the South, reprinted from the New York Times Magazine, Vol. I, No. 8, August, 1946, pp. 1-4.)

Politics: Charles Lord attempts to explain race prejudice of certain groups by an analysis of his own reactions in given situations. (A Note on Race Prejudice, Vol. 3, No. 8, September, 1946, p. 289.)

Survey Midmonthly: Levi Cahn discusses the role played by certain foreign-born groups, especially the Chinese, in "volunteer" agencies during the war and recommends that such experience be utilized as a basis for further integration into community life. (Test for Democracy, Vol. LXXXII, No. 9, September, 1946, pp. 226-229.)

RECENT BOOKS DEALING WITH RACE RELATIONS

BIOGRAPHY

Citizen 13660. By Mine Okubo. New York, Columbia University Press, 1946. $2.75. (The experiences and reflections of a Nisei girl through the difficult days at an assembly center and a relocation center.)

To Master A Long Goodnight. By Brian Gysin. New York, Creative Age, 1946. $3.00. (A study of the real life of the original model for Harriet Beecher Stowe's Uncle Tom.)

FICTION

Tale of the Twain. By Sam A. Constantine, Jr. New York, Harper, 1946. $2.50. (An appeal for interracial and international good-will through a story of Japanese and Americans in California.)

Jule. By George Wylie Henderson. New York, Creative Age, 1946. $2.50. (A Negro youth's development, first as a child in a southern community, and later as a young man exposed to the darker side of Harlem.)

Cross on the Moon. By John Henry Hewlett. New York, Whittlesey House, McGraw-Hill, 1946. $2.75. (Story of a sensative child entangled in the ignorance, prejudice and religious zeal of a small Georgia town.)

Night Fire. By Edward Kimbrough. New York, Rinehart, 1946. $2.75. (The romance of a young Negro couple in the midst of interracial conflict and tensions in Mississippi.)

Quality. By Cid Roberts Sumner. Indianapolis, Bobbs-Merrill, 1946. $2.75. (A very fair Negro nurse, educated in Boston, encounters the race prejudice and tensions of the South. The author is a Mississippian.)

Not With the Fist. By Ruth D. Tuck. New York, Harcourt, 1946. $3.00. (The experiences of a Mexican-American family in a southwestern city serve as a media for examining the relationship of that minority to the communities where they are concentrated.)

SOCIOLOGY

Color Blind: A White Woman Looks at the Negro. By Margaret Halsey. New York, Simon and Schuster, 1946. $2.00. (A study in human relations based on the experience of the author as captain of hostesses at Stage Door Canteen which was conducted on a non-discrimination basis during the war.)

PERSONALITIES

THE MONROE, GEORGIA LYNCHING

TOM CLARK
Attorney General of the U. S.

. . . I have called upon and I again call upon all of our local law enforcement agencies to be particularly alert at this time, to be active in repressing the slightest semblance of mob violence and to invoke swift action in the courts of redress. . . .

When the Congress returns, I shall file a report . . . pointing out the weaknesses of the present Federal statutes in the light of these incidents and the need for legislation to protect every citizen in his civil rights.

. . . Hatred, bigotry, and intolerance have no place in our national existence, and so long as I am the Attorney General of the United States, all of the powers vested in me will be used to . . . purge them from our midst. (Excerpt from an address delivered by Mr. Clark before a homecoming picnic sponsored by the Guernsey County and the Cambridge Chamber of Commerce in Cambridge, Ohio, in August.)

ELLIS ARNALL
Governor of Georgia

. . . I am doing everything possible to ferret out, prosecute and convict the parties guilty of the lynching of four Negroes at Monroe, Georgia. . . . I have instructed the Georgia Bureau of Investigation to remain in Walton County until this crime has been solved. . . . I am violently opposed to mob rule and you may be assured that every precaution will be taken to see that all citizens of Georgia, white and Negro, will be adequately protected insofar as that is possible under law. (Excerpt from messages sent by Governor Arnall to John H. Sengstacke, Publisher of the Chicago Defender, and to C. A. Scott, Editor of the Atlanta Daily World, in answer to a wire of Mr. Sengstacke's and a letter of Mr. Scott's urging action in the Monroe, Georgia lynching case.)

DR. ALBERT EINSTEIN
World-Famous Scientist

. . . Security against lynching is one of the most urgent tasks of our generation. There is always a way to overcome legal obstacles whenever there is an inflexible will at work in the service of so just a cause. (Excerpt from letters to President Truman from Dr. Einstein on behalf of the American Crusade to End Lynching.)

AUBREY WILLIAMS
Former Director of NYA

. . . Federal action to date amounts to practically nothing. Negroes are being terrorized by the people who are supposed to protect them. . . . The answer is not in military government for the South. . . . We have got to have law enforcement in the South, but it should be civilian in character. (Excerpt from an address by Mr. Williams, delivered at a conference sponsored by the American Crusade to End Lynching in September.)

SHOULD NEGROES LEAVE GEORGIA?

BENJAMIN E. MAYS
President, Morehouse College, Atlanta, Georgia

Negroes have been battling things worse than Talmadge since they hit America. Talmadge will try to take the vote away. He will give courage to the Klan. He will wave the red rag of race. But any governor would hold to segregation. We won't win the fight by running away. (Excerpt from a statement by Mr. Mays, appearing in PM, August 8, 1946.)

A. T. WALDEN
Georgia Lawyer

I'm still in Georgia because I realized thirty years ago that for the foreseeable future most Georgia Negroes would stay here. The fight is here. We will resort to the courts again to keep the vote. If Talmadge is too bad, he will ruin the State and white folks will turn against him, too. (Excerpt from a statement by Mr. Walden, appearing in PM, August 8, 1946.)

RALPH McGILL,
Editor, Atlanta Constitution

The Negro's every day life changed little under Arnall. In the intangibles of self-respect there was a change. Talmadge will destroy the atmosphere of hope. As a by-product, many Negroes will leave Georgia. (Excerpt from a statement by Mr. McGill, appearing in PM, August 8, 1946.)

SALUTE

SOUTHEAST

ATLANTA, GA.: In discussing a long-range program to take care of Atlanta's growing population, both white and Negro, Mayor Hartsfield of Atlanta announced that new Negro residential areas will be planned around Negro schools and parks. Hartsfield added that some general agreement must be reached by which Negroes can expand to new sections of Atlanta, including the city suburbs. (GP)

MEMPHIS, TENN.: The Memphis chapter of the American Veterans Committee has observed the practice of its parent body in voting to admit Negro and white veterans on an equal basis. (Color Line, September, 1946)

MIAMI, FLA.: With a present Negro police force of nineteen men, the second anniversary celebration of the Negro Precinct of the Miami Police Department was held in September. The Negro police force in Miami started off with five men in 1944. (Special Report)

NORTHEAST

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.: As a means of enlisting interest in the motion picture, "Don't Be A Sucker", the Bridgeport Labor Committee to Combat Intolerance has circularized 700 churches, synagogues, associations, clubs and fraternal organizations advising them to view the film. (Bridgeport, Conn., Herald, September 1, 1946)

HAVERFORD, PA.: Dr. Ira DeA Reid, chairman of the sociology department of Atlanta University, has been appointed visiting professor of sociology at Haverford College for the coming year. Dr. Reid will divide his time between his duties at New York University, where he is visiting professor in the School of Education, and Haverford. (Special Report from Haverford College)

NEW BRITAIN, CONN.: James Singleton is the first Negro to be appointed a regular policeman in New Britain. (New Britain, Conn., Herald, September 18, 1946)

NEW YORK, N. Y.: Lester B. Granger, Executive Secretary of the National Urban League, has been awarded an honorary Doctorate in Humane Letters by Dartmouth College. (Color Line, September, 1946) . . . Dr. Frank P. Graham, president of the University of North Carolina, will receive the 1946 Clendenin award of the Workers Defense League "for being in the forefront of every struggle for Labor's rights in the South". (Release of the Workers Defense League, September 3, 1946) . . . Miss Frances Douglas, former teacher at Xavier University in New Orleans, has been added to the staff of St. Joseph's College, the first Negro appointee to the staff. (Brooklyn, N. Y., Citizen, September 27, 1946) . . . The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has presented an award to radio station WBBM and the Chicago Defender for their cooperation in producing the program "Democracy, U. S. A." (New York, N. Y. Tide, September 20, 1946)

MIDDLE STATES

CHICAGO, ILL.: The Chicago Sun has announced that it has dropped the practice of identifying a person's racial background in ordinary crime stories. The Sun's announcement follows a similar declaration by the New York Times. (GP) . . . Allen Wright, senior medical student at Loyola University, has become the first Negro in thirty years to interne at Cook County Hospital. (Color Line, September, 1946) . . . Adolph Slaughter, a member of Grace Presbyterian Church in Chicago, has become the first Negro moderator of the Westminster Fellowship Council, which embraces the youth groups of the Chicago Presbytery. (Chicago, Ill., Bee, September 15, 1946)

CLEVELAND, O.: Dr. Sarah Pereira, instructor in Spanish, has been appointed to the teaching staff at Cleveland College, the downtown division of Western Reserve University. (FR)

DECATUR, ILL.: Chief of Police W. Glenn Kerwin has announced the appointment of Charles Pitman, the third Negro patrolman in the Decatur Police Department. (Decatur, Ill., Herald, September 14, 1946)

BORDER STATES

DES MOINES, IOWA: The first Negro school teacher for the city of Des Moines was employed this year. (Kansas City, Mo., Call, September 20, 1946)

WASHINGTON, D. C.: Red Cross National Chairman Basil O'Conner has announced that the Red Cross will be reorganized to integrate racial minorities into all activities of the organization. (Chicago, Ill., Defender, September 28, 1946)

WILMINGTON, DEL.: The American Legion of Delaware has granted Negro youth the privilege to participate in Boys' State, an annual tradition whereby the state government is given over to the administration of boys elected from high schools in the state for a period of two days. (Wilmington, Del., Star, August 25, 1946)

Social Science Institute
FISK UNIVERSITY
Nashville 8, Tennessee

RETURN POSTAGE GUARANTEED

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
PAID
Nashville, Tennessee
Permit No. 346

Mr. George S. Mitchell
Room 424
63 Auburn Avenue, N. E.
Atlanta, Georgia

TEXTILE WORKERS UNION OF AMERICA

Affiliate of the Congress of Industrial Organizations

15 UNION SQUARE NEW YORK 3, N. Y.

ALgonquin 4-7885

OFFICE OF THE
GENERAL PRESIDENT

248

Dear Friend:

The United States today is at one of the most important crossroads in its history. It can take the road back to apple-selling, hunger marches, and a depressed standard of living for all of us. Or it can continue the forward march toward full employment, security, and a higher standard of living. The choice is ours - yours and mine.

I am sending you the enclosed pamphlet because I believe you are deeply interested in the direction which our country shall take in these momentous months. It is a brief and simple documentation of the need for a minimum wage of 65 cents an hour, which we of the Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, believe to be "must" legislation for Congress. If you find the pamphlet interesting and useful and want additional copies for your friends, clubs, churches, or community associates, please let me know.

Sincerely yours,

Emil Rieve

General President

Reading

NATIONAL FARMERS UNION

300 "B" St., S. E.
Washington, D. C.

Dear Co-Workers:

We have had a conference with Treasury Department officials relative to our cooperation in the coming Victory Loan, and have assured the Treasury that the National Farmers Union is anxious to promote this loan in any way that we can.

I am sure our members everywhere realize the importance of the Victory Loan. The cost of war didn't end when the guns stopped firing. To speed orderly reconversion to peacetime production the government must promptly cancel war contracts. This involves heavy expenses for there is much war material yet to be paid for.

It is obvious to all of us that the cost of maintaining the Armed Forces goes on. We must finance the necessary occupation of enemy countries. We must pay the bill for bringing the boys home and giving them mustering out pay. Above all, we must make certain that our wounded veterans get the finest hospital care and rehabilitation.

For these reasons the Victory Loan is necessary to wind up the war job and get America started on the road to a prosperous peace. But to the individual farmer the Victory Loan means even more. It's the last big opportunity to invest an expanded wartime income in Government Bonds that will give financial security in the postwar period. I am sure you agree that we want to urge every farmer to take full advantage of this opportunity.

As a result of our conference with the Treasury, we have received from it the attached suggested ways in which our organization could cooperate in making the Victory Loan a success. I hope you can use some of them.

Sincerely,

JAMES G. PATTON, President
NATIONAL FARMERS UNION

HOW THE FARM ORGANIZATION CAN HELP IN THE VICTORY LOAN

1. Every member buy VICTORY BONDS. Farm organizations can make a mighty contribution to the VICTORY LOAN by encouraging all their members to buy bonds.

2. Cooperate with the County War Finance Committee. This is a volunteer committee that has been selling War Bonds as a part of their contribution to victory. The chairman of this committee would appreciate very much a call by representatives of all farm organizations in his county. Conditions vary in counties, but everywhere the local farm organizations can be of much help. A personal visit is the best way to make plans for this assistance.

3. Have a VICTORY BOND program at one or more meetings in October or November. County War Finance Committee could furnish a speaker. You might want to have a returned veteran on the program.

4. Feature VICTORY BONDS during November and December in all publications -- national, state and county. When possible both editorial material and full page advertisement should be used. Mats and plates of suitable ads are available from the War Finance Division, Treasury Department, Washington, D. C. If you are not on the mailing list for proof sheets write at once. A suggested news story featuring the VICTORY LOAN is available.

5. Sponsor a VICTORY BOND play. Simple one-act plays that can be staged in any meeting room without special stage properties are available, from the Agricultural Section, War Finance Division, Treasury Department, Washington, D.C. In ordering plays state whether you are interested in one for youth groups or adults.

6. Sponsor a VICTORY BOND auction or some other celebration. Be original -- think up some kind of a program that will be especially appropriate in your community.

7. Show 16mm VICTORY LOAN motion pictures. Your County War Finance Chairman can tell you how to get these films. Make arrangements as far in advance as possible.

8. Distribute VICTORY LOAN literature and display posters. Get this material from the County War Finance Chairman.

9. Promote VICTORY BONDS on the radio. Of course this applies only to farm groups that have radio programs. Bonds can logically be brought into most educational farm programs. For example, any discussion of inflation or the dangers of a land boom could point out the advantages of Victory Bonds as a place to invest money while other things are scarce or selling at inflated prices.

10. Remember that this is the VICTORY LOAN -- the last of the organized drives that have financed the way to victory. This time we should buy to the limit for there will be no more loans. This is the opportunity to put an expanded wartime income into bonds where it will mean financial security for a long time to come. This is a loan to win the peace and get the boys back home.

11. Encourage farmers to read "Straight Talk" about the VICTORY LOAN. Your County War Finance Chairman will be glad to furnish local groups with enough copies for their members and other farmers in the community. It's a concise statement of why the Victory Loan is so important.

LETTER TO AN OLD-LINE AMERICAN OF ANGLO-SAXON STOCK

Louis Adamic's new book A NATION OF NATIONS is dedicated to his friend Merritt H. Perkins, to whom he addresses a letter which serves as the preface (somewhat abbreviated here):

Dear Merritt: I dedicate A Nation of Nations to you first because your interest in the "project" of which it is a part has meant a great deal to me during the past half-dozen years, and second because you are a New Englander whose Puritan ancestors came to America in the 17th century and helped to shape the beginnings of the civilization and culture of the Colonies which became the first thirteen United States. And with your permission I dedicate it through you to other Americans of Anglo-Saxon stock, whether the story of their background in the New World begins with Jamestown or Plymouth Rock, with the Protestants of the Massachusetts Bay Colony or the Catholics who settled in Maryland, with Roger Williams in Rhode Island or Thomas Hooker in Connecticut, with John Mason in New Hampshire or William Penn in Pennsylvania. I offer it also, if I may, to those who—unlike you—occasionally remark, "Why don't you go back where you came from?"

Remember our long talk when we first met in 1938? Somehow it took us no time at all to get acquainted. Soon you were telling me about the diaries and letters recently come into your possession after lying for a century or more in a trunk in the attic of your family home in western Massachusetts. They gave a vivid picture of life in a New England town before the Revolution, and I liked the warmth and excitement with which that picture filled you.

I asked if you had heard of the "America letters" written by Scandinavian, Dutch, Polish and other immigrants to relatives in their old countries. You said you had not, and I described them. You were interested, which was all I needed. Presently I went on to say that the whole of American history could stand rethinking, rewriting . . . that the Negroes' American tradition of fighting for liberty dates from 1526; that a handful of Polish, German and Armenian workers at Jamestown, Virginia, in 1619 staged one of the first rebellions in the New World; that John Peter Zenger, a German printer in the 1730s whom the governor of New York jailed for publishing attacks on his regime, fathered the American ideal of freedom of the press; that Philip Mazzei, the Italian friend and neighbor of Thomas Jefferson, influenced the Revolution of 1776; that the Irish were vastly important in the War of Independence and in shaping the polity and destiny of the United States. . . .

Just then I was coming upon many neglected bits of Americana and I guess I was trying them out on you. I had an idea that I might write some such book as this, for which I needed not only facts buried in obscure prints and manuscripts but also contact with contemporary Americans of as many backgrounds as possible. I was traveling over the country checking up on my feelings and notions, and you and I chanced to meet in Denver.

You mentioned your family papers again. And I told you of a recent experience in your New England when, walking through the elm-shaded cemetery of a lovely old town, reading the names and dates and epitaphs on the stones leaning this way and that, I had suddenly felt a wonderful sensation of intimacy with early America. I was unable to analyze the feeling verbally. It wasn't necessary. Your face lighted up.

You got me to talk about the people I had been meeting, and I told you of the two days I had spent at a farmhouse north of Bemidji in Minnesota listening to an old immigrant from Norway. He had known O. E. Rölvaag, the author of Giants in the Earth, and as he spoke about him his own being seemed to shine. His English had an accent but the meaning of the words came clear. In and around and through what he said I got a feeling of the churning inside of America.

He told me of an "Americanization" campaign in that part of Minnesota around 1905. A poster appeared on walls in little towns and on tree-trunks by the roadsides. It was a picture of an elegant Uncle Sam and an outlandish yokel. In a loop coming out of Uncle Sam's handsome mouth was the word Yes, the loop from the yokel's wide-open mouth read Ya, and across the top in big letters was the admonition: "Don't say 'Ya'—say 'Yes'!"

"That placard," said the old man, "it was as though pasted on a wall in our home and I couldn't pull it down. My oldest boy ran away. The children could not forgive their mother and me that we were 'foreigners.' They would not let us say anything in Norwegian to them—anything intimate. They held us away. It was years before that placard wore off enough for the runaway to come back."——

You nodded slowly—a shadow on your face—as you did when I told you about a Negro friend of mine in Washington whose words and personality, encompassing a big part of the American Story, had repeatedly impressed me, but with whom I could not lunch anywhere outside the Negro section of the National Capital except at the Union Depot.

We talked of other things—a bit about ourselves, getting the range of each other's experience and interests. Given to understatement, you spoke quietly, slowly; from me words sometimes tumble out too fast for precise articulation or meaning. You were born in Massachusetts during the Great Blizzard in 1888; I was born eleven years later at a place that became part of Yugoslavia. You had moved to the Rockies as a young man; I came to the United States at fifteen. You were a businessman with a deep, natural interest in the humanities, in painting and writing, in manners and good taste. You were, I judged, a man of quick perception; outwardly calm, inwardly perturbed about some things in the United States. Focused on the Anglo-Saxon-Protestant phase of America, you were wide-open to other phases as well.

I don't know what was in the back of your mind as we talked; in mine was: "We're both Americans." This had been my unspoken thought many times in the previous months. It had been there while the old Norwegian immigrant was telling me of his life in Minnesota. You and he were as different superficially as two men could well be, yet you had much in common. And you and I had things in common, different as we were.

You asked me to amplify my remark that our history could stand rethinking and revision.

I wasn't any too clear. There was an enormous mass of American history, I said, that did not appear in the standard books; what did appear was fallacious in its emphases. And the trouble was not just with the books; the fallacy diffused throughout our national life and thought. It was like a fog rolling about, spreading everywhere in the American atmosphere, and without a palpable center. The nearest thing I could see to a center was history as written and taught. For to most people history textbooks are authoritative, the information disseminated by the written word and by teachers is relatively final.

> Here [in these United States] at last is something in the doings of man that corresponds with the broadcast doings of the day and night. Here is not merely a nation but a teeming nation of nations.
>
> —WALT WHITMAN, Preface to 1855 Edition of Leaves of Grass.

You recalled that Emerson had been dissatisfied with written American history, branding it "a shallow village tale." Malthus had described history as "a chronicle of the upper classes," somebody else had said it was "a tired old man with a long beard." I had a friend who, agreeing with Henry Ford that "history is bunk," maintained that it was not intelligent to traffic with the past. He was impatient with my question: "But does that make for any sort of continuous communal intelligence?" and with my reminder that Ford in his Greenfield Village had started what was nothing if not a historical museum.

You and I wondered why so many Americans, highly educated or not, took no interest in the history of their country; why some actually had a resistance to it. Were many people untouched by it because it was about somebody else, leaving them out completely? Were they bored with it, feeling somehow that as a record of what really happened it was very inadequate?

But we were not primarily concerned with books, rather with the effect that the information—and the lack of information—in the books had upon American currents of thought, feeling and behavior.

For a long time, I went on, this country had been the scene of a psychological civil war. Once upon a time that had had at least the practical good result of furthering pioneering. When groups faced antagonism, they were likely to pull up stakes and move on, breaking new ground, founding new colonies, opening up new territories. But now the physical frontier had disappeared, distances had shortened, communications spread. Nowadays our psychological civil war was in most respects part of the psychological civil war raging the world over, moving toward a new climax in another military war. (Franklin Roosevelt had delivered his "quarantine" speech at Chicago. Munich was happening.) But it was possible to think of it as an American phenomenon. There were several overlapping fronts: the privileged versus the underprivileged, isolationism versus internationalism, Catholic versus Protestant, Gentile versus Jew, White versus Negro, the old-stock Americans versus the "foreigners," and the "foreigners" one against the other.

I was driving over the continent—some 12,000 miles that summer and autumn; all that was required of me was my driver's license and money for gasoline and oil, and I was moving about with a physical freedom unimaginable in the Old World. At the same time, however, I saw that this vast and free land was crosscrossed with cultural walls sheltering snipers, bearing ill-considered posters, casting shadows, keeping men from the light, preventing the full flowering of life.

Some of these walls, I thought, might be weakened and eventually tumbled and some of the fronts in our psychological civil war might be eliminated by giving the history books new emphases, by putting into them facts hitherto ignored. Not that I thought accurate history books constituted the whole remedy, or that I knew how accurate, inclusive history books might be brought about—the historians were as much in the fog as other people.

How to get at this "shallow village tale" fog dominating our cultural atmosphere? How did fundamental changes take place in a culture? Where was one to begin? We tossed these questions at each other without expecting answers.

What was desired ultimately, you and I thought, was a reorientation of the American state of mind, or rather states of mind, merging them on some levels without suppressing their special qualities and contents; a revaluation of facts in the American Story so that Immigration might cease to be a footnote on page 317 and become a main subject in the text, so that each group in our population would be seen as a necessary and integral thread and would receive its proper stress in books, in revised attitudes and relationships. But which would come first —rewritten history or a change in the cultural atmosphere? Probably a bit of one and then a bit of the other, each acting upon and reacting to the other, so that widening circles of revision and reorientation would alter both the history books and the American atmosphere. And this could not be brought about from the outside. The American people themselves would have to tear down the walls, dissipate the fog. Many were at it already in the course of their daily living. . . .

This is as far as we got in 1938.

The psychological civil war still goes on. That it seldom spilled over into active violence was largely due to F. D. R.'s great political skill in postponing, smoothing, compromising, adjusting issues between opposing groups. But the psychological civil war was not transformed by his leadership or by the military war into national unity except in appearance and for the duration. On some fronts a kind of armistice was effected. The issues went underground, there to seethe and gain in force like a teakettle with a plugged spout. They are almost certain to break out with increased pressure now the military war is over. One hears: "Wait—we'll fix them" meaning the groups disliked (feared) by those making the remark. Indeed in many departments of our national life, including sections of the Army and Navy, "they" are being "fixed" or put or kept "in their place" during the war. . . .

At the same time there is more getting-together among Americans than ever before, more acceptance of people on the basis of their personal qualities regardless of background. This is especially true of the men in the services. There is nothing like being together in a foxhole, a bomber or a submarine.

A good many Americans know that a perplexing, infinitely complicated future is rushing upon us. A few here and there feel that if the issues of the psychological civil war are not weakened or supplanted, if they break out again with fresh vigor, by themselves or in connection with our domestic economic troubles and our foreign policy, they will hamstring our ability to cope with the future. I am one of those who feel this way.

On the other hand, I see more and more clearly that the American Story as it actually happened has within it a tremendous unifying and constructive power. It is an immense story—larger than the sum of its parts, and a good deal larger than most of us realize—so large that the share any element in the population has had in its making does not cast a shadow over the work of any other element—so large that when one sees it, many elements in the psychological civil war become appalling absurdities.

Now in 1945 my ideas shape up as follows:

There are two ways of looking at our history.

One is this: that the United States is an Anglo-Saxon country with an Anglo-Saxon civilization struggling to preserve itself against infiltration and adulteration by other civilizations brought here by hordes of "foreigners."

The second is this: that the pattern of the United States is not essentially Anglo-Saxon although her language is English. Nor is the pattern Anglo-Saxon with a motley addition of darns and patches. The pattern of America is all of a piece; it is a blend of cultures from many lands, woven of threads from many corners of the world. Diversity itself is the pattern, is the stuff and color of the fabric. Or to put it in another way: The United States is a new civilization, owing a great deal to the Anglo-Saxon strain, owing much to the other elements in its heritage and growth, owing much to the unique qualities and strong impetuses which stem from this continent, from the sweep of its land between two oceans, the mixture and interplay of its peoples, the plenitude of its resources, and the skills which we all of us have brought here or developed here in the past three centuries.

The first view prevails in American thinking. We have absorbed the idea, the picture, from the atmosphere; in school, in church, in politics and business; over the radio, in the movies, in books, magazines, and newspapers; from each other. The three-hundred-year-old notion is taken for granted. It is the conceptual core of our uneasy, unformed culture. It furnishes the imaginary American norm, whose hold is strong on the minds of many people, preventing them from seeing that the actual American norm is not only not exclusively Anglo-Saxon, but that it is not yet formed, that it is still in process.

With few exceptions our historians, essayists, novelists, short-story writers, and our editors—geared to the prevailing view, constituting a kind of unconscious working committee to maintain it—minimize or ignore as incidental or irrelevant all but the tough and great Anglo-Saxon thread, and thus—in most cases unwittingly—encourage the psychological civil war. In 1945 the Writers' War Board (proving itself an exception) issued a report concerning popular writing, of which Columbia University's Bureau of Applied Social Research had made a study. The report declared that "constant repetition . . . was exaggerating and perpetuating the false and mischievous notion that ours is a White, Protestant Anglo-Saxon country in which all other racial stocks and religious faiths are of lesser dignity."

The Bureau analyzed 185 short stories published in 1937 and 1943 in eight magazines whose circulation totals about twenty million. "Of 889 identifiable characters 90.8 percent were Anglo-Saxon, whereas only 9.2 percent . . . were drawn from all other population stocks in the United States. Only sixteen Negroes and ten Jews were counted. And where the authors brought in menials, racketeers, thieves, gamblers, shady night club proprietors, crooked prize fight managers, such non-sympathetic characters were seldom Anglo-Saxon.

"To quote the Bureau: 'The overwhelming attention is given to the Anglo-Saxons. The stage and the spotlight belong to them.' They were habitually pictured as the salt of the earth. Their superiority, wealth, and prestige were usually taken for granted, whereas in a few instances where a non-Anglo-Saxon character was represented as rich or important the author offered an elaborate explanation. . . . Again quoting the Bureau: 'The behavior of these fictional characters could easily be used to "prove" that the Negroes are lazy, the Jews wily, the Irish superstitious and the Italians criminal.' "

Advertising copy during 1937-43 showed "the general acceptance of the whole White-Protestant-Anglo-Saxon myth." Novels, the stage, the movies (including news reels), comic cartoons and the radio are somewhat more pioneering and less prejudiced, though they still have a long way to go.

The important point here is that most of this is done unconsciously. Writers, whether of history or fiction, editors, artists and producers do not intentionally sidestep the truth any more than do the rest of us. They simply inhale the fallacious cultural atmosphere—and exhale it back again.

The writers and commentators, teachers, preachers and publicists in the United States are in a sense like the European cartographers whose maps were perfectly all right until somebody discovered the world was round, not flat. Then the maps had to be thrown away and new ones made. The new ones gradually discarded the misconceptions and errors of the old, kept what was still true, and rearranged the whole in the light of the new perspective. The cartographers began to draw the world round, and by-and-by they gave us the globe we can twirl with a forefinger.

Even before scientists said the world was round and navigators set out to prove it, all sorts of people had begun to wonder, to suspect it was not flat. But it took quite a while for the idea of its roundness, struggling against uncertainty and fear of the new, to get into practically everybody's head. When it did, the general current of thinking and feeling changed immeasurably. It led to the discovery of the New World, to the great Atlantic Migration. It gave new thrills, new vistas to human life. Observed facts which had not jibed with the old idea fell into place in the reorientation. Acceptance of this new way of seeing profoundly affected life, released its dammed-up energies, gave it new impetus.

Perhaps we in the United States are today in somewhat the same state of being, of thinking and feeling, that existed before the world's roundness altered the flat, cramped horizons of men's minds. Millions of Americans, all sorts of them, sense the inadequacy of the first way of looking at America. It does not explain enough, take in enough. I have no doubt that we are reaching toward something new, reaching forward, hanging back, struggling betwixt and between, but slowly changing.

With over one-third of our population first, second and third-generation non-Anglo-Saxon Americans, with about a tenth of it Negroes, many an old-line American feels a certain despair when he surveys the present and ponders the future. To him the Negroes migrating at will and the "hordes of foreigners" with such names as Krzycki and Ramaganti and Katz seem to threaten rack and ruin to the nature of the country as he conceives it to be. This feeling is not restricted to the fascistic demogogue; it appears in many people who are kindly, sensible and intelligent in other directions, but who still cling to the White-Protestant-Anglo-Saxon-country concept as the fact and the ideal.

On the other hand, the immigrant and his children and grandchildren find their continuity cut off not only from the land of his origin and their descent, but from their heritage here, bequeathed them through the share their forebears—people of their special background—had in building America. Like the Negroes who too have a rich American heritage which few of them know, the so-called new-immigrant groups have little means of learning what their forebears did here; at best they do not learn it as part of the American Story.

Louis Adamic's new book

A NATION OF NATIONS

contains 8,000 to 20,000-word chapters:

AMERICANS FROM SPAIN AND MEXICO
AMERICANS FROM ITALY
AMERICANS FROM GERMANY
AMERICANS FROM FRANCE
NEGRO AMERICANS
AMERICANS FROM HOLLAND
AMERICANS FROM YUGOSLAVIA
AMERICANS FROM SWEDEN
AMERICANS FROM NORWAY
AMERICANS FROM RUSSIA
AMERICANS FROM GREECE
AMERICANS FROM POLAND
AMERICANS FROM IRELAND

$3.50—To be sure of getting first-edition copies, place your order in your bookstore now. If you desire autographed copies, inscribed to you and your friends, order them from:

LOUIS ADAMIC, MILFORD, NEW JERSEY

Generations have grown up unable to visualize, to know about, to feel attachment to or kinship with the beginnings or growth of their country, unable or hesitant or virtually forbidden to share fully in its life. The American Story as written in standard books, as it pervades our ideas, does not touch any vital chord in many people of Negro, French, Norwegian, Polish, Russian or Oriental descent, in many people whose names are Schmidt and Ziegler, Basilone and De Capite, Huot and du Vigneaud, McCleary and O'Sheel, Rosenberg and Sulzberger, Havlichek and Markovich, Varnos and Bakjian, Ling-hoy and Kikuchi. Comparatively few succeed in linking themselves to the whole great current of the American experience. To many their name, color or cast of countenance is a prison wall because other Americans, living in the atmosphere of the first view, make it so.

Nothing could be more unfortunate.

The coming of peoples to this continent, voluntary or in chains, is at the very center of our historical process. It is a main constituent of America. A gigantic potential strength, overwhelmingly complex, tremendously alive, it remains "the Immigrant Problem" or "the Negro Problem" only so long as our historical process is considered primarily an Anglo-Saxon process. The potentiality of production, construction, creation will be released only after it is fully realized that what sociologists now call "the Immigrant Problem" and "the Negro Problem" belongs more to the country than to the particular groups which now suffer under it. Widen the view, widen the perception of historical facts about the different elements, and many of the so-called problems which now mark them off will disappear through having merged into a single situation—less problematical than promising.

To say as some politician does every once in a while "Immigrants all—Americans all" is merely gesturing. It changes nothing. We go right on feeling "We—and the immigrants" . . . "We—and the Negroes" . . . "We—and they." By "they" the Negroes mean the Whites, the immigrants and some of their American-born children mean "the Americans," the Gentiles the Jews, the Catholics the Protestants, and vice versa. And the various "wes" crawl into themselves to fret and fear, some to plot and act against their "theys."

More and more of us are beginning to wonder at this, to worry about it. Some of it is dangerous.

More and more of us are perceiving that something fundamental is wrong with our stock of historical facts and ideas. Increasingly we sense the distortions, the omissions, the departure from reality, the chasm between what we think America is and what it actually is. Many Americans, with a growing suspicion that the White-Protestant-Anglo-Saxon-country idea is not adequate, is not true, are on the brink of discovering and adopting the other view.

Some details we are so used to that we overlook their significance. Take our place names: Dundee, Schuylkill Haven, Prairie du Chien, Warsaw, Los Angeles, Dublin, Wichita, Lyndhurst, Scandia, Berlin, Traunik, Athens. Our food: roast beef, smörgasbord, gefülte fisch, pasta, corn, potatoes, consommé, borsht, knedliki, goulash, strudel, wienies, hamburger. People: Lincoln, Roosevelt, Toscanini, Steinmetz, Brandeis, Chavez, Tesla, Kaiser, Benet, Paul Robeson, Ingrid Bergman, Maurice Rose. Where did many of our objects, customs, forms come from? To most of us the Christmas tree is as "purely American" (i.e., Anglo-Saxon slightly modified) as the Thanksgiving turkey, yet the Christmas tree is a German contribution to our way of life and the turkey came from the Indians.

When one mentions facts like these, some people say, "Really?" or "You don't say!" or "Propaganda!" They are interesting (like Ripley's "Believe It Or Not" cartoons) or irritating as the case may be, but not so deeply that they effect a change. Most of them slide off the crust of the habitual attitude like water off a duck's back. For in themselves, out of context, like a bit of color out of a spectrum, a theme out of a symphony, they have only a specific, local, thin, flat meaning.

The crust, however, is not invulnerable either within or without. The prevalent view omits so many things around us that most people have a sense of frustration, of dissatisfaction, which in the end—as the crisis about us mounts—will impel us to take a fresh look, to let ourselves see whatever pattern is actually formed by the sum-total of the facts.

To help this process along, the facts have to be available. One purpose of A Nation of Nations is to make some of them easily available. I do not think it is the straw that will break the back of the first view of American history. One does what one can; one makes a beginning. There are many other beginnings at the same time in the same general direction.

In my opinion and in that of a good many others, the facts about America add up to the second view. But the statement Diversity itself is the pattern of America will remain a rather chilly formula until we become aware of the abundant details which give it life, until we know more about the experiences and qualities, hopes and achievements of the many kinds of people who have made America. Not until wave after wave of these facts sweeps over us, startles us, rouses our interest, will the second view, or something very like it, ring in the American atmosphere, the American consciousness.

Then the American Story will no longer be shadowy, no longer dominated by a huge image cast upon a screen with trick lighting arranged to fall fully upon one figure alone among the participants on the stage. The lighting will fall impartially upon all the actors, who will assume the proportions they have in our history. The audience will feel their identity with the actors in the past and with each other in the present, drawn together, knit together by a common stake in America.

Then all over the country, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from the Canadian to the Mexican border, Swedish Americans, Russian, German, Italian, Irish, Negro, French, Spanish, Oriental, Czech and double-check Americans will feel the same warmth and pride in their old, yellowing letters and documents which you felt in yours. They will feel themselves at home in the history of America.

The interplay, the diversity, is America; all that lacks is to transplant the fact from obscurity into the American imagination. The rest will pretty much take care of itself, for the readjustment in thinking and feeling will reach into very nearly every phase of American activity.

The reoriented cultural atmosphere of the United States will mean new, freer, broader ways of seeing and reacting, new and freer relationships. It will mean new integrations irrespective of background, integrations which let people remain themselves. It will bring into full view and play the healthy simultaneous tension and fusion of stubborn creative differences. It will enable us to cope more successfully with the future here and abroad.

Yours, Louis

PUBLIC AFFAIRS COMMITTEE

INCORPORATED

30 ROCKEFELLER PLAZA, NEW YORK 20, N. Y. • TELEPHONE CIRCLE 5-6420

ORDWAY TEAD, Chairman
HARRY D. GIDEONSE, Vice Chairman
S. M. KEENY, Secretary
ERLING M. HUNT, Acting Secretary
BEULAH AMIDON, Treasurer
ELEANOR C. ANDERSON
EARL BROWN
RAYMOND LESLIE BUELL
WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER
LUTHER GULICK
F. ERNEST JOHNSON
HARRY W. LAIDLER
ROBERT P. LANE
FRANCIS P. MILLER
FRIEDA S. MILLER
FELIX MORLEY
THOMAS D. RISHWORTH
WALTER R. SHARP
DONALD SLESINGER
GEORGE SOULE
MARK STARR
WILLIAM T. STONE
WILLIAM H WELLS
MAXWELL S. STEWART
Editor of the Pamphlet Series
GLADYS GUNNERSON
Business Manager
VIOLET EDWARDS
Education and Promotion

"Today the swindler looks upon the returned soldier as an easy mark . . .

". . . but let no man fancy that he is safe from gyp schemes."

From GYPS AND SWINDLES, No. 109.
Publication date: October 15, 1945.

Dear Friend:

We are sending you an advance copy of GYPS AND SWINDLES because you are in a position to see that this exceedingly timely pamphlet gets widespread distribution.

In GYPS AND SWINDLES Dr. William Trufant Foster has given us a pamphlet which will do an excellent job of public education for people generally . . . and for the returning serviceman particularly.

We predict this pamphlet (suggested to the Committee by the Cleveland office of the National Association of Better Business Bureaus, Inc.) will top the 150,000 distribution mark of Public Affairs Pamphlet No. 39, Loan Sharks and Their Victims, also written colorfully and convincingly by Dr. Foster.

For your quick response we enclose our convenient order form and our schedule of quantity rates. May we count on filling your order from our first -- and limited -- printing of GYPS AND SWINDLES?

Cordially,

Violet Edwards

Violet Edwards

P.S. We know you'll find this a useful pamphlet in your activities.

Reading.

Department of Labor

RETRAINING AND REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION

ORDER NO. 3

Organization and Operation of Community Advisory Centers

1. General Statement

(a) The task of reintegrating the millions of people whose lives have been disrupted by war is considered to be primarily a community responsibility. This task cannot be effectively executed without the full cooperation of all local, State, and National agencies, both civic and governmental, whose operations and programs may in any way affect the peacetime readjustment of veterans and others. The same teamwork among government, community, industry, labor, and business, which enabled us to defeat our enemies in war, must continue if we are to win our battle for peace. Community interest and action must be basic to all planning for the reintegration of veterans and others into civilian life.

(b) All of the States have established veteran agencies to assist returning veterans, and many communities have established agencies known as Veterans Information Centers, Veterans Service Centers, Community Information Centers, etc., which assist veterans and others in solving their many problems in readjusting themselves. A large number of these centers have rendered magnificent service. The purpose of this Order is to assist all communities to reach the standards attained by outstanding communities.

(c) Such centers are, for the purposes of this Order, referred to as "Advisory Centers." The Community Advisory Center should not displace or usurp the functions of other local, State, or Federal agencies or services. It cannot operate without their active aid, and through its dealings with individuals it assists and supplements their efforts. It should also help in mobilizing all resources of the community that are capable of assisting veterans and others in their readjustment problems.

Where practicable, the Advisory Center should be centrally located and render one-stop service, except such direct referral as may be necessary to established agencies and services.

Each Advisory Center, where local resources permit, should provide the following services:

(1) Information. -- Veterans and others should be furnished accurate and up-to-the-minute data on their rights and benefits, and the services available from government and community agencies.

(2) Referral service. -- The referral service should place the applicant in understanding contact with the agency or individual which can best meet his needs or requests.

(3) Counseling. -- Counseling service should be provided to the extent that the applicant is enabled to understand his problems in the light of his background and abilities, and arrive at a logical and sound decision as to his general course of action. For example, a returned veteran may not have decided whether to return to full-time education, take an apprentice training course, or take a regular full-time job. Once he reaches a decision as to which course he will take, he should be referred to a qualified establishment or individual so that he may receive competent attention from a man in the field he has chosen. Counseling should include educational, vocational, financial, personal-social, and such other similar service as may be required in the particular community.

(4) Clearing-house functions. -- The operation of a center gives its staff and the committee in charge a direct and continuing opportunity to observe any gaps, overlapping, or lack of coordination in the services that the various agencies render locally to individuals. Accordingly, the committee should act as a clearing-house through which all resources in the community can be coordinated, through mutual consent, so that all reasonable needs of applicants may be met most efficiently and with the least possible delay.

2. By copy of this Order, the Governor of each State; the Governors of Hawaii, Puerto Rico, Alaska and the Virgin Islands; and the Board of Commissioners, District of Columbia, are urged to take the following action:

(a) To establish or implement a State governmental agency to stimulate and encourage communities in the establishment of Advisory Centers throughout the State, wherever the local situation may require such a center, as a means of counseling and dispensing general information pertaining to the rights and benefits of veterans and others. The service rendered by the Advisory Centers should not interfere with or preclude the counseling and dispensing of information to veterans and others by the various Federal agencies in the execution of their legal functions.

(b) To charge the State agency with the responsibility of obtaining the cooperation of all State-wide agencies which have functions and operations that may affect the efficient operation of Community Advisory Centers.

(c) To provide in the organization of the State agency for full participation of all interested organizations and agencies that may be of help in providing assistance and guidance to veterans and others.

(d) To authorize the State agency to take such measures as may be necessary to insure that Community Advisory Centers provide such information and counseling service to veterans and others as is not furnished by Federal and local agencies in the execution of their legal functions.

(e) To designate the State agency, and Community Advisory Centers, by appropriate names, such as State Advisory Center Committee, State Veterans Service Committee, Veterans Information Centers, Veterans Service Centers, Community Advisory Centers, Retraining and Reemployment Advisory Centers, or otherwise, in accordance with the laws and customs within the State and communities concerned.

3. Federal Cooperation with the Community Advisory Center Program

(a) All Federal agencies subject to the jurisdiction of the Retraining and Reemployment Administration will cooperate with State and local agencies in the establishment and operation of Community Advisory Centers through the following action:

(1) Represent, at the request of the State governments, the Federal government on State bodies dealing with the readjustment of veterans.

(2) Direct their organizations to lend assistance, in the form of personnel, data and other aid, upon the request of Community Advisory Centers.

(b) To improve service rendered to veterans and others, and to expand Federal cooperation with the State Advisory Center program, cooperation between the field representatives of Federal agencies administering programs affecting veterans' rights, benefits and services, through the establishment of formal committees or otherwise, is encouraged.

(c) Federal agencies will dispense information, counsel individuals, and make such determinations as they are directed to do by law.

(1) A Federal agency should refer an individual with a problem outside its own scope to an established Advisory Center if the problem is not sufficiently well-defined to make direct referral to another agency logical.

4. The Administrator of Veterans Affairs concurs in principle with the provisions of this Order in so far as they affect the operations of offices of the Veterans Administration and is issuing separate instructions with a view to effecting close cooperation of officials of the Veterans Administration with State and community agencies.

5. The Army, Navy, and Coast Guard will continue to advise and instruct personnel prior to and at the time of discharge in accordance with programs initiated pursuant to RRA Order No. 1.

6. Retraining and Reemployment Administration Order No. 1, dated May 17, 1944, is hereby rescinded.

G. B. ERSKINE
Major General, USMC
Personal Representative of the Secretary of Labor in Charge of RRA Affairs

February 13, 1946

Reading

Ahern - RRA 553

RETRAINING AND REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
U. S. Department of Labor

INFORMATION SHEET
HISTORY, ORGANIZATION AND PROGRAM

> We recommend the creation in the Office of War Mobilization of a new, most important post which, for want of a better title, we would call a "Work Director" to unify the forces of the Executive Branch and to work with Congress on the whole side of demobilization. * * * His duties will embrace far more than the title indicates, for his will be the responsibility of finding every possible way in which the opportunities for individual Americans to pursue their chosen peacetime pursuits may be broadened so as to benefit the population as a whole. * * *
>
> There is at present a scattering of effort on the part of many agencies to plan for the veterans' return. The important point at which civilian plans must be coordinated with the military in the demobilization of men and women in the service is a crucial one and it is now the final responsibility of no one agency.
>
> From the Report on War and Post-War Adjustment Policies, by Bernard M. Baruch and John M. Hancock, issued February 15, 1944.

ORIGIN

An outgrowth of the Baruch-Hancock Report, the Retraining and Reemployment Administration, already in existence through an Executive Order of the President issued February 24, 1944, was given statutory authority to function by Congress in the "War Mobilization and Reconversion Act of 1944", approved October 3, 1944, and was made a part of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion. It was transferred to the Department of Labor by Executive Order of September 19, 1945, and on October 26, 1945, Major General Graves B. Erskine, USMC, became the Secretary of Labor's personal representative in charge, pending his confirmation as Administrator.

In the "War Mobilization and Reconversion Act of 1944", Congress gave RRA the responsibility of supervising and coordinating all Government programs at the national level -- except those of the Veterans' Administration -- as they related to retraining, reemployment, vocational education and vocational rehabilitation; to eliminate overlapping functions of Government agencies in those fields, and to coordinate their activities with those of existing State agencies concerned with those functions. To accomplish this, RRA was authorized to confer with State and local agencies and officials in charge of existing programs of that nature.

OVERALL FUNCTIONS

In carrying out the mandate of Congress, RRA surveys the needs of veterans and displaced workers, points out gaps and overlapping in programs of those agencies over which it has supervision, and advises and assists them in determination of matters of policy and administration. In general, it identifies the field of action or problem requiring coordination, consults with the agencies concerned, develops proposals for coordination, and obtains adoption of approved proposals and reports regarding the operating results. In cases of duplication, it may issue orders providing for elimination of overlapping functions of the various agencies, through appropriate channels, or remedial legislative or Presidential action, whichever may be required.

PROGRAM

To the extent of the authority given it by Congress, RRA is directing attention to the following major activities in the fields of demobilization and reconversion:

1. Establishment in every principal community of the nation of well-run and capably-staffed community advisory centers where veterans and others may go to obtain advice and counsel as to their rights and benefits, and to speed their complete reintegration into community life.

2. Assurance of maximum service to returning veterans and displaced workers by federally-operated job placement agencies; improved and expanded training programs to fit veterans and others for employment opportunities created by economic and industrial changes.

3. Coordination of Government job placement services relating to physically handicapped workers and other groups needing special attention; of Federal aids to veterans and others seeking or engaged in self-employment in business, agriculture and professions, and of employment counseling activities.

4. Development of a program through which Federal agencies, both military and civilian, may reach employers requiring skilled workers so as to emphasize the availability for such positions of veterans who, in the course of military service, received training qualifying them for the jobs.

5. Development of data on veterans' educational needs for State agencies and educational institutions so that proper adjustment of curricula may be made; furtherance of the program for greater housing facilities for veterans attending educational institutions, and expediting the release of surplus property to such institutions where returning veterans have caused increased enrollments with attendance shortages in equipment.

6. Developing and improving the apprentice training program so that the systematic training of workers in many skilled occupations, interrupted by the war, may be accelerated.

7. More effective utilization of on-the-job training programs, coordination of vocational rehabilitation activities among Federal agencies and at State and local levels, and mobilization of efforts to meet the needs of displaced and disabled workers during the reconversion period.

ORGANIZATION

Much of the responsibility for these activities rests with four divisions of RRA, the Reemployment, the Retraining and Vocational Education, and the Vocational Rehabilitation Branches, and the Advisory Centers Division. In the formulation of policies and procedures dealing with these activities, RRA is not only guided by legal opinions and interpretations, but also the determination of legal questions involved in defining jurisdiction of Government agencies in relation to reemployment, retraining and vocational education, and vocational rehabilitation for purposes of coordination and elimination of overlapping functions. Also, legal questions involved in coordinating such activities of Federal with State agencies are determined, and continuous studies are made of Federal and State laws within the cognizance of RRA.

ADVISORY COUNCIL

Officials of military and civilian governmental agencies, whose programs are concerned with functions of RRA, comprise an Advisory Council created to assist RRA on general policies and procedures.

###

Reading

REPLIES FROM TELEGRAPHIC INQUIRIES SENT TO THE CHIEF STATE SCHOOL OFFICERS CONCERNING VETERANS ADMINISTRATION CIRCULAR 61

The following states replied to the telegram:

Alabama	Maine	Ohio
Arizona	Massachusetts	Oklahoma
Arkansas	Michigan	Oregon
California	Minnesota	Rhode Island
Colorado	Mississippi	South Carolina
Connecticut	Missouri	South Dakota
Delaware	Montana	Tennessee
District of Col.	Nevada	Texas
Florida	New Hampshire	Utah
Georgia	New Jersey	Virginia
Idaho	New Mexico	Washington
Illinois	New York	West Virginia
Kentucky	North Carolina	Wisconsin
Louisiana	North Dakota	Wyoming

Question 1--Has your state appropriated special funds for approval and supervision of on-the-job training? How much?

Wide variation was found among the states. The following states report the following special monies, secured either through appropriation or the governor's contingent fund:

State	Appropriation	State	Appropriation
California	$240,000	Mississippi	$ None--but planning
Colorado	15,000	Missouri	30,000 (3 months)
Connecticut	65,000	New Hampshire	3,000
Delaware	10,000	Ohio	8,000
Georgia	180,000	Oregon	25,000 (Apprenticeship Council)
Louisiana	20,000	Rhode Island	7,640
Massachusetts	"substantial sum"	Utah	30,000
Michigan	250,000	Virginia	23,000 (6 months)
Minnesota	10,000 (3 months)	Wisconsin	17,000

Question 2--What is your state now doing to approve and supervise on-the-job training establishments?

Among the replies the following states indicate different ways of presently handling the problem of approval of on-the-job training:

Alabama--Using regular Trade and Industrial personnel plus additional personnel made possible by collection of tuition from Veterans Administration for conduct of institutional part-time cooperative training program.

(over)

California--The Department of Industrial Relations, division of Apprenticeship Standards, has already employed some twenty supervisors, and hundreds of training establishments have been approved by the Department of Industrial Relations.

Georgia--A Veterans Education Council has been functioning in Georgia since September 1944. This agency is working under the Veterans Service Board, which is a Constitutional Board in charge of all veterans affairs in Georgia. The Council is working with the State Department of Education and other qualified agencies in the inspection of establishments to see that they meet the criteria and standards that have been set up by the Veterans Education Council. Money has recently been made available for the supervision and coordination for on-the-job training. A staff is being selected and trained to integrate and correlate the manipulative practices and the related training.

Louisiana--The State Department of Education has appointed a full-time person to coordinate approval procedures of on-the-job training and is using funds from its regular budget to pay the salary of this individual. It has been necessary, however, for us to enlist the cooperation of sixty-seven parish and city superintendents in processing applications on the local level. Furthermore, all members of the Trade and Industrial Education, Agriculture, and Distributive Education divisions of this Department are lending their services in processing applications. Also, it has been necessary for the Director of Instruction and the Supervisor of Distributive Education to devote a very great amount of time in the administration of the program on the state level. It must be understood that in addition to the one full-time person appointed on the state level the services of all other individuals mentioned are on a voluntary basis and at no cost to the Federal Government. The drafting of the personnel referred to in the foregoing has made it necessary for these individuals to withdraw from regular duties to such an extent that the programs for which they are responsible have suffered to no little extent.

Massachusetts--We have already prepared and approved over 4500 "on-the-job" training programs involving well over 10,000 employment opportunities for veterans. This has been accomplished largely through either part-time or full-time teacher service from forty-five State Aided Vocational Schools and from supervisors of the Division of Vocational Education supplemented by a few full-time supervisors and a small clerical staff paid for from State funds made available for this purpose.

Michigan--We are utilizing sixty vocational coordinators, one hundred twenty-five USES employees, five-man trouble-shooting team, four specialists in building trades. In addition, there are 25 to 30 volunteer workers When assisting us the USES personnel are subject to our supervision.

Mississippi--A committee has been set up in the state known as the Governor's Committee. When an application is made to this committee it is submitted to the Selective Service group and to other State agencies that have been designated as official inspectors. After the inspection is made the committee either approves or disapproves the recommendation of the organization submitting the inspection report.

Nevada--The Governor of Nevada has appointed the State Superintendent of Public Instruction as a general supervisor of approval for this type of training. She has appointed approximately 50 local committees throughout the state to secure applications for approval of various types of training. Such committees are composed of the local superintendent or principal of the school system as chairman. He has selected a committee representing the Veterans, Labor, Management, the U.S. Employment Service to secure applications from local establishments for approval as training institutions. When the local committees approve and send applications to our State Superintendent, she in turn approves the institutions and forwards her approval to General Bradley and the various Veterans Organizations throughout the state and nation. Then it becomes the duty of the Veterans Administration to contact the approved establishments and enter arrangements with them for the training of veterans. Applications for apprentice training are handled by the State Apprenticeship Council, while approvals of state educational institutions are made directly by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

North Carolina--The State Superintendent of Public Instruction appointed a special committee of six members to act as authority to approve educational establishments, including schools and industrial and business concerns. We are using personnel on part-time from the Vocational Division to assist in the approval of schools and industrial establishments but have not given any supervision to the places after they are approved. In addition to these part-time persons referred to, we have employed four full-time people by using State Vocational Education funds.

Ohio--(Ohio has a mimeographed guide to the approval of on-the-job-training institutions. Copies of this can be obtained by writing the State Department of Education, Division of Vocational Education, Columbus, Ohio.)

Developed and distributed standards and instructions for establishments desiring approval. Completed arrangements with local school authorities whereby local school personnel will assist employers in developing and preparing programs for submission to the approval agency. Inspect facilities to be used in training program. Arrange programs of related instruction for those veterans interested in supplementing their on-the-job experiences. Local school authorities are not providing supervisory or follow-up services.

Oregon--Our state is having the local apprenticeship council in each local community recommend the firms to us for approval. These local councils have been operating for a number of years and have been approving standards for apprenticeship agreements. We felt they would be the logical ones to make recommendations to us for the approval of firms. The first approval of the business establishment is a general approval, signifying that the place is reputable, has equipment and has men fully qualified to give on-the-job training. If an individual applicant wants to be covered by an apprenticeship agreement in a certain firm, then the local council considers it on an individual basis to determine if that applicant would get the type of training he needs at that particular establishment. We think this is a very important angle to insure good on-the-job training. The local school coordinator on the trade and industries education program works up the training processes to be learned and wage schedule with the applicant (veteran) and the business establishment and presents it to the apprenticeship council. The local school trade and industries coordinator also supervises the on-the-job training after the veteran begins his training.

(over)

Utah--Our State now has a well organized program for the approving and supervising of on-the-job training establishments. All work is being directed through the State Department of Education by local school districts or state educational institutions on a regional basis. They are assisting us in carrying out the approvals and inspections according to plans and procedures provided from the State School Office. We have an advisory committee of three employers and three representatives of labor working with the State Superintendent of Public Instruction on a state basis. Our training plans are written. We work out a wage schedule which the employer promises to follow and we are granting approvals for a limited number of trainees based upon the capacity of the plant and the number of journeymen already employed. At present we are from two to six weeks behind in granting approvals in some instances because our organization was not completed and funds were not available until the past three weeks. Within the next four weeks, we should be fully up to date on granting approvals.

Virginia--The State Department has a State Committee on Veterans' Education. A staff has been employed to assist in the field of Agriculture, Distributive Education, Trades and Industrial Education, and Apprenticeship Training. The agency desiring approval for training submits an application to the central office and these applications are referred to the various fields which investigate the agency and recommend approval. In case, in the judgment of the special field, the agency should not be approved, the matter is referred to the Committee on Veterans' Education for final decision and rejection, if this becomes necessary.

Other states use somewhat similar plans to those listed.

Question 3--Will your state be able to handle the rapidly increasing load of on-the-job-training approval and supervision?

Responses to this question were varied. Many states indicated they would be completely unable to handle an increased load. Others stated that it would depend upon the degree of increase.

Question 4--With sufficient funds could your Department secure and train a staff adequate to handle this job under your direction?

The answers to this were "yes" by practically all states replying.

Question 5--How much staff and money should you need beyond your present resources to handle this job satisfactorily?

This varied from state to state, with the average $112,000. Larger states indicated they would need from $200,000 to $300,000 additional funds.

Question 6--Would you prefer that federal funds if available be granted directly to you without federal control to enable you to do this job or would you prefer that Veterans Administration assume this total responsibility, or would you prefer action different from either of these alternatives? Please indicate.

The majority of states indicated that they prefer money to be allotted to to them directly so that they might do a job. Two or three states preferred to have the Veterans Administration handle it. A few other states felt no hope of getting such money and hoped they could work out some arrangements with Veterans Administration which would be acceptable to both.

Question 7--Do you think that your national organizations such as the four listed above /American Council on Education, American Vocational Association, National Council of Chief State School Officers, National Education Association/ which are working together should press immediately for some modification of Circular 61?

Most of the replies indicated that either a modification of Circular 61 should be secured or a revision of the G.I. Bill or some other means to help the states carry out their responsibilities.

Following are comments quoted from the various letters sent in by the States:

"There is already sufficient overlapping in the veteran education program to make possible considerable confusion and in the end, inhibited progress in this endeavor. Additional overlapping of authority and responsibility will create more confusion and will reduce all opportunity to maintain a satisfactory over-all educational program for the ever-increasing number of veterans interested in training.

"In this state there is definite need for greater control of the strictly educational features of on-the-job training. To the end that both the federal government and the veteran will be protected, this control must be placed in the state and local educational agencies.

"Wherever on-the-job training is offered there should be state, regional, and local-level coordination of the actual training, both in the establishment and in the classroom. For this service the public schools need additional funds. For every 20 to 25 veterans in training there should be an educational coordinator. If the Veterans Administration can see fit to reimburse the educational institution for this service, the responsibility can be completely and satisfactorily consummated."

"Practically speaking, we realize the futility of requesting federal funds without federal control. However, if such were made available in a similar, but not matching, manner as are the regular vocational education funds, we would have no worry in this respect. In any case, we do not wish that the Veterans Administration should assume this total responsibility. We believe it is the responsibility of the public schools and the regular established educational agencies to supervise this entire program. These agencies have proved in the past their capabilities, and the addition of new and inexperienced agencies into this field would further confuse the program."

"We are enclosing a copy of a letter written by our Governor to General Bradley. This expression has the approval of all agencies, both federal and state, with whom we are cooperating in this program. May I suggest that an effort be made to establish an interpretation of state departments of education and state boards for vocational education as educational institutions with power to contract with the Veterans Administration on a basis similar to that upon which other educational institutions may now contract. I believe that would be the solution to our difficulties."

(over)

"Whether or not the Veterans Administration should assume total responsibility for the approval and supervision of on-the-job training programs may depend entirely upon the character of such programs. If the program is one involving employment primarily, with a minimum amount of related training or perhaps none at all (we understand the latter exists to some extent in several states), it is questionable whether the educational authorities have any responsibility. If, however, the on-the-job-training program is a real cooperative program involving a sufficient amount of related training to guarantee that it is not primarily an employment program, then it appears that the State Department of Education, in cooperation with local school officials, should administer such a program."

"We would definitely prefer that federal funds be made available to the state for this responsibility. With all due respect to the Veterans Administration, we simply do not believe that that agency can successfully assume this responsibility, nor do we believe that obligations of this type, which are definitely a state responsibility should be assumed by a federal agency."

"I believe that the circular cannot successfully be carried out in this state if we follow to the letter the directive. I do not think it would satisfy the veterans and certainly it would not satisfy the establishments that set up training programs for the veterans. It seems to me that it is in line for our organizations to do what they can in getting the directive modified. I shall appreciate it if you will keep me informed with reference to this matter.

"Let me say in conclusion that we want to do whatever we possibly can in giving to the returning service people that type of training to which they are entitled. We want to assume our responsibility in full measure. However, we do not want to have the program set up in a way that we do not have control of it and yet be put in the position of receiving criticism because it is not being successfully carried out."

"It is our opinion that there needs to be a clarification of the duties of the Veterans Administration and the State Department of Education. The provisions of Circular No. 61, concerning the Veterans Administration's plan to scrutinize training standards provides an opportunity for a conflict on standards already worked out by this department for the approval of on-the-job training. It is our opinion that the State Department should work in close cooperation with the training officers of the Veterans Administration in setting up standards for approval for on-the-job training. Furthermore, when such approval is made by the State Department as the appropriate approving agency, standards should be accepted without question by the Veterans Administration.

"In this state we have splendid working relations with the Veterans Administration and the State Service officers. As State Superintendent of Schools I feel that the problem of working out standards and approvals is our function. Conversely, the working out of details with the individual veteran and supervising individual cases, along with reimbursement plans, certainly belongs to the federal agency, namely the Veterans Administration. Our educational organizations should be careful not to sponsor movements that infringe upon the responsibilities of the Veterans Administration."

"In this state we do not want the Veterans Administration's training officers to go into organized schools, teachers colleges, the state trade schools, or any other organized schools or colleges which are offering regular educational programs approved by the State Department of Education. If the Veterans Administration wishes to check on the educational progress of the veteran, it may do so by mail with the administrative head of the school or college concerned. It seems to me that this is the point upon which the principal attack of educators should be focused. Organized education in schools and colleges is a state function. We do not intend to permit federal interference with the programs of organized schools and colleges in the state. We believe that Veterans Administration supervisors will, in effect, be supervising these educational programs if they appear in the schools and colleges under the guise of supervising the veteran."

"It is probable that the Federal Veterans Administration would not be able to assume this total responsibility as efficiently as can the State Departments of Education. We are opposed to the plan proposed in Circular 61 because it would lead to dispute between the federal Veterans Administration and the State Departments of Education or would make rubber stamps of the State Departments of Education."

"The Supervisors are unanimous in their opinion that Federal funds if available should be granted directly to the State Department of Education without federal control. It is their opinion that the various divisions of the State Department of Education should be the judges as to the efficiency of the training program. This should not be the responsibility of the Veterans Administration. If, in the opinion of the school official in charge of the training, the veteran is being exploited or the veteran is not maintaining adequate standards, it should be the responsibility of the school officials to recommend to the Veterans Administration that work with the training agency be discontinued if this is the difficulty, or that the Veterans Administration cease to pay the veteran subsistence if he is not maintaining the proper standards."

The general impression obtained by going over all of the letters with care is that many of the states are making definite moves to handle this problem themselves, e.g., the Department of Public Instruction in Florida has just sent out a directive to the county educational bodies to concern themselves with on-the-job training as well as with other training programs for veterans. The letters also leave the impression that the states with a minimum amount of help can develop adequate means of taking care of this problem undoubtedly more economically and more efficiently than can the Veterans Administration. The letters also leave the impression that the states do not wish to withdraw from this problem but wish to seek some solution which will enable states to maintain their responsibilities but will also enable the Veterans Administration to make certain in some way that subsistences should be paid to the veteran.

Reading

To Organize To Operate

YOUR COMMUNITY ADVISORY Center

FOR VETERANS AND OTHERS

RETRAINING & REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION

10c

PUBLIC AFFAIRS PAMPHLET No. 109

GYPS AND SWINDLES

BY WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER

Let Our People Live

A PLEA FOR A LIVING WAGE

by Joseph Gaer

WAR DEPARTMENT PAMPHLET NO. 21-4

INFORMATION FOR SOLDIERS

GOING BACK TO CIVILIAN LIFE

78th Congress
2d Session } COMMITTEE PRINT

A GRAPHIC GUIDE TO DECENTRALIZATION

AND

SOME SIMPLE FACTS ON RECONVERSION

United States Senate
SEVENTY-EIGHTH CONGRESS
SECOND SESSION
PURSUANT TO
S. Res. 190
A RESOLUTION TO INVESTIGATE THE EFFECT UPON THE COUNTRY OF THE CENTRALIZATION OF HEAVY INDUSTRY IN THE UNITED STATES

OCTOBER 7, 1944

PRINTED FOR THE USE OF THE SPECIAL COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE THE CENTRALIZATION OF HEAVY INDUSTRY IN THE UNITED STATES

Postwar Employment

and the Removal of Wartime Controls

A Statement on National Policy

by

THE RESEARCH COMMITTEE

of the

COMMITTEE FOR ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

Copy 2

What Peace Can Mean To American Farmers

Post-War Agriculture and Employment

MISCELLANEOUS PUBLICATION NO. 562

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

For sale by the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office
Washington 25, D. C. - Price 10 cents

ECONOMIC OUTLOOK

PUBLISHED BY THE CONGRESS OF INDUSTRIAL ORGANIZATIONS

PHILIP MURRAY, President — JAMES B. CAREY, Secretary-Treasurer

DEPARTMENT OF RESEARCH AND EDUCATION, 718 JACKSON PLACE, N. W., WASHINGTON 6, D. C.

KERMIT EBY, Director — KATHERINE POLLAK ELLICKSON, Assistant Director of Research

Vol. VI No. 6 — 10c a Copy—$1.00 a Year; Up to 25 Copies—3c each; 25 to 100 Copies—2½c each; 100 or More Copies—2c each — June, 1945

The Reconversion Score

They've closed up Willow Run. They gave the workers Army-Navy E's and told them to go home because the government and Mr. Ford didn't want the plant any more.

Nobody wants Willow Run, the $95 million factory that produced almost 9,000 Liberator bombers. Nobody wants the 51,950 pieces of machinery —lathes, mills, presses, shapers, etc., the 28,000 portable tools, the 988 typewriters and adding machines, the 1,450 autos, trucks and tractors, the 2 beautiful airports (one bigger than LaGuardia Field in N. Y.), the $25 million super-highway, nor the $25 million war housing community. And nobody wants the more than 20,000 human beings who go with the plant, too, over 100,000 if you count the workers in plants which supplied Willow Run.

One isn't supposed to worry about the workers because "there are plenty of jobs." Yet a survey by Bomber Local 50 of laid-off Willow Run workers showed that only 41 percent of the men and 3 percent of the women are being referred to other jobs in the Detroit area. Those who are referred find they have to accept pay cuts averaging 25 percent.

We are not expected to be concerned about the women since "most women want to stop working after the war anyway." Yet a recent survey by the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor, of women working in this same Detroit area showed 80 percent want to keep on working after the war, and that three-quarters must work in order to wholly or partially support their families.

"Someone Has Bungled"

"What are we supposed to do?" said Mrs. Beatrice Fletcher, who worked in Dept. 960H. "My husbank just came back from a TB sanitorium and won't be able to work for about a year, and we have two children. Here I am without a job."

Mrs. Marguerite Roberts, sole support of her daughter and baby grandson, says, "I'm in hopes they'll start up again. I can't understand why they'd let a good place like this lie idle."

And Red Cole, committeeman for Bomber Local 50, UAW-CIO, says bitterly, "Somewhere along the line, someone has bungled. You just don't close up an enormous plant like that—equipped the way it is—and tell that fine group, who have worked so hard and learned so much—to forget the skill of their hands, and go home."

Some say Mr. Ford, who has an option on the plant, does want it, but not for anything like $90 million. Ford officials made repeated statements

"What Can Be Holding Up the Flyer?"

during the war that Willow Run would be used by the Ford Company after the war. Some say Mr. Ford is playing cat and mouse with the government and 100,000 Americans, hoping to beat down the government's price by creating fear of idle plants and idle men. If this is true, if Mr. Ford is crying "Wolf" and if thousands of workers are sleepless with worry and are being uprooted from their homes in order to get Mr. Ford a better price on Willow Run———

When unemployment hit Willow Run, it drained away over $1,000,000 a week in lost payrolls. There'll be $1,000,000 worth of unsold goods on storekeepers' shelves, thousands of dollars worth of unsold farm produce, many unpaid doctors and dentist bills.

The fate of Willow Run is a bright red danger flag for everyone. It's the visible top of the iceberg, the first mine in a minefield, the warning crack in thin ice, the tremor that precedes the earthquake. For those with eyes to see and ears to hear, Willow Run means LOOK OUT, Danger Ahead, Stop, Look, and Listen!

Willow Run a National Problem

For the situation at Willow Run may well be a miniature picture of the country as a whole on V-J Day.

Everyone knew Willow Run would be cut back some day—Congress, executive agencies, Mr. Ford, and the free enterprise system. Yet between them they have cooked up not a single plan for use of the plant and employment of its workers. As they were not prepared for the cut when it came, so this country is totally unprepared for peace when it comes.

This is not a problem of the future. We must win the war with Japan, but we must not foolishly blind ourselves to the beginning of reconversion. Scheduled munitions production has been cut by something like 25 percent already.

National income payments dropped by 4 percent in April—even before V-E Day. This was, according to the Department of Commerce, the sharpest drop in 6 years. This drop was caused almost entirely by loss of wages in durable goods industries. Profits and farm income continued to increase.

Some of the cutbacks are hitting with sledge hammer suddenness. The Chrysler Tank arsenal in Detroit was cut back one Saturday, with 3,000-5,000 workers to be released, beginning that day. The union, the UAW, was notified the following Friday. The Willow Run plant was scheduled to shut down on one-day notice—only the efforts of the union prevented precipitate closing. Yet unions are entitled by government policy to at least 7 days' notice of cutbacks of prime contracts.

Some communities will face mass unemployment this month, next month, or the month after. All over the nation—in Savannah, Duluth, Minnesota; Superior, Wisconsin; Elkton, Maryland; Panama City, Florida; Mobile, Alabama; from Portland, Maine to New Orleans, Louisiana; in Provo, Utah; Sacramento, San Francisco, and Spokane, millions of men and women will be facing certain unemployment.

All told, 9 million workers in war industries will be laid off and 10 million veterans will be coming home, most of them wanting—no, demanding—a job.

And this country cannot look its returning veterans in the face and say for certain, "Sure, we've got jobs for you." 28,000 ex-soldiers and sailors were already unemployed by the end of April.

Take government-owned surplus property, for instance. It belongs to the people. There's $100 billion of it that you and you and you have paid good tax money to buy. "Surplus property resulting from this war will total such an enormous quantity that one estimate places its cost as equal to a third of the value of every man-made article —from the smallest pin to Boulder Dam—which this country contained less than 10 years ago," says the Surplus Property Board.

$20 Billion of Idle Plants?

There's $15-$20 billion worth of plants like Willow Run. They represent 10 percent of the nation's steel capacity, 50 percent of the machine tool-building capacity, 70 percent of aluminum capacity, 90 percent of our synthetic rubber capacity, 90 percent of aircraft production facilities, 90 percent of shipbuilding and repairs capacity, and 96 percent of the magnesium capacity. The CIO was urging over a year and a half ago that "agreement should be reached immediately to assure that the new productive capacity be utilized wherever possible and reconverted quickly to civilian use. The employes of these new plants must be protected, but not at the expense of other workers." Yet today we have no assurance whatsoever that these plants will be used. They may well stand as huge empty monuments to the short-sightedness of our time which refused to plan for a bountiful future. The people who paid for them may well stand, jobless, outside their gates, waiting in vain for them to open.

Guernsey-Montgomery for the Economic Outlook, CIO

The bare essentials for successful reconversion are not hard to name. They revolve around the two critical facts of reconversion:

Crisis 1: The "dislocation" of millions of workers and soldiers—"dislocation" being a fancy name for being at loose ends, out of a job, having to move to find a job, changing type of work and pay, or any other upheaval in one's occupational and hence social and domestic life.

Crisis 2: The sudden withdrawal of demand for over half the goods being produced today. We're producing some $200 billion worth of goods a year now. The government buys half and "extraordinary" earnings—like overtime and wartime bonuses account for an additional $15-$20 billion.

If we're to keep 60 million people on the job this great hole in buying power must be filled. Wartime savings in the hands of individuals are large, amounting to over $65 billion, but they will help for a short while only, and only if they are spent (See Economic Outlook, August, 1944, for a discussion of wartime savings.)

For Crisis 1, "dislocation" of the people who made possible the winning of the war, we need adequate legislation to cushion the bump. Right now we are coasting along with an ineffectual GI Bill of Rights and unemployment benefits that will mean near starvation for workers' families at present prices.

Veterans are being discharged at the rate of 120,000 a month. They need this help now.

There is very little disagreement on the failure of state laws to provide adequate unemployment benefits. Mr. Byrnes, early this year, said, "I did not think the benefits . . . were sufficient, and I now urge that Congress give further consideration to liberalizing the provisions of the Unemployment Compensation Law." President Truman, in urging maximum benefits of at least $25 for a maximum of 26 weeks, described benefits under state laws as "inadequate to maintain purchasing power and to provide a reasonable measure of economic security for the workers."

Men and women are being laid off now. They need help now. Yet one member of Congress remarked casually of the President's recommendations: "I don't know when we will take it up. We have got a good many other things to do." One of the "other things" may be providing corporations with excess profits tax relief. Unemployed workers with hungry children are not casual and do not expect their representatives in Congress to be so. Relief for human beings must come before relief for corporations—it must come before Congress recesses next month.

The United States Employment Service has received no additional appropriation to keep its workers from being swamped in a period—beginning now—when as many as 20 million people may be looking for jobs. On the contrary, there is a movement in Congress to cut its appropriation. There is also a growing effort to greatly weaken the efficiency of the USES by breaking it up into state units, in spite of the fact that as many workers will be changing jobs across state borders as within them.

The Wagner-Murray-Dingell Bill, which would have provided for the emergency period, and for a sound permanent system of unemployment, old age, and sickness benefits, as well as adequate medical care, has lain in Congress for over two years. A new version of the bill has been introduced in the present session, yet not one single day of hearings has been held on either version. We need them now.

If the United States were prepared to meet Crisis 2 (the potential disappearance of over half the demand which has created full employment) we should have:

1) A definitive statement of a national wage policy in the reconversion period designed to maintain and increase workers' purchasing power. The War Labor Board itself acknowledged this need in a report by the public members February 23, 1945: "As we move out of the wastage of total war back to peacetime and the promise of the future, we will no longer be thinking or speaking about 'maintaining pre-war wage standards.' The cost of living adjustment of the Little Steel Formula will have to give way to wage and price adjustments which definitely raise the general level of real wages." William Davis, Director of the Office of Economic Stabilization, has declared that the American standard of living must go up 30-40 percent if full employment and production is to be maintained.

20 Percent Increase in Wage Rates

"Expansion, not contraction, of purchasing power . . . must now be our objective," said President Murray to Judge Vinson, in a memo of May 14th. "Take-home pay must be at least as high as at present to sustain national income. Merely maintaining current hourly wage rates is not enough. Labor's early argument that wage rates must be increased to keep pace with the cost of living still holds good, and would necessitate an upward adjustment of at least 10 percent, using the most conservative estimates. But such an adjustment would make no allowance for the increase in labor productivity, which in over four years may be estimated conservatively as 10 percent or more. Thus, a 20 percent increase in basic wage rates is necessary simply to restore pre-war relationships between wage rates, prices and productivity per man-hour.

"But unless labor receives an even larger share of what it produces than in 1940, when 10 million workers were jobless, even more workers will be unemployed." The CIO made the following specific proposals to Vinson: 1) an immediate increase in basic wage rates. 2) The doing away with the "bracket" system, which perpetuates and rigidifies regional differences between wage rates in the same industries for the same jobs. 3) Setting a floor of 65c an hour under wage rates. 4) Special increases for white collar, government, professional and other "forgotten" workers. 5) The prohibition of reductions in wage rates.

Economic Outlook, CIO

This is the kind of program labor has the right to expect from an agency which is not afraid to act boldly for the nation's welfare. The V-E program announced by WLB falls far short of this mark. It has stated that it will allow no increases in basic wage rates beyond the limits of the Little Steel Formula. It has freed labor and management to negotiate increases within the bounds of the so-called "fringe" issues. But you don't fill in the "fringes" of a gaping hole and think you're doing a first-class plugging job.

2) A program for setting prices on goods coming back into production which would protect consumers purchasing power. The OPA recently announced a price formula for reconversion goods, such as pots and pans, automobiles, irons, and so on. The formula goes like this: 1942 ceiling prices, or 1941 ceiling prices plus an amount to cover increased costs due to increases in wage rates and in the cost of materials. The 1936-39 rate of profit is guaranteed. Beyond this, manufacturers must absorb increased costs.

Looks good on the surface, doesn't it? There's a joker, though, and a big one. "OPA has decided to use only cost-increasing factors in its formula," says the CIO Cost of Living Committee. "Increased wage rates is one of the factors used, although for all OPA knows labor cost per unit of output may have gone down since 1941.

"The suppressed steel study in OPA found, for example, that while hourly average wages rose 46 percent from pre-war to 1943, labor costs per unit dropped 8 percent. In the reconversion formula, however, the increase in wage rates will be used to raise price ceilings.

"As higher prices are authorized under the new formula, OPA doubtless will cite wage increases as the reason for the rise, although it will have no facts on actual labor costs."

Big Productivity Increase

The increase in productivity (or decrease in labor costs per unit of output) during and immediately following the war is going to be very large. Some estimates run well over 30 percent. Even the "normal" increase in workers' productivity (2.5 percent per year) would result in a total increase of over 10 percent since the war began. There are many indications that the increase has been larger than 10 percent, and if experience after the last war is any guide, we may expect an increase of 10 percent per year for three years. The OPA is not taking this factor into account in its reconversion pricing policy. This is a gross injustice to labor, which is producing goods cheaper, but will have to pay more for them, and furthermore will get the blame for the higher prices.

Economic Outlook, CIO

Blame for high prices can more easily be found in the $25 billion profit margin between costs and prices which industry enjoyed in 1944.

3) A schedule for public works, by states, counties, and the federal government, to provide employment and purchasing power in case free enterprise should fail to do so. We are making a little better progress on this front. The Federal government has appropriated some $4.5 billion. Mr. Byrnes estimated that plans for non-federal public works, private construction and housing would bring this total to $7 billion. A study by the Department of Labor reveals an estimated total of $10.8 billion of public and private construction by the end of the second year after the war. " . . . actual working plans are completed or in preparation for a considerably smaller program than that which has been estimated." But we may need as much as $15 billion of construction each year, according to Federal Works Administrator Fleming.

The Senate Commerce Committee has reported unfavorably on the Missouri Valley Authority, one of the most needed, most productive enterprises this country could undertake. Other committees have still to act.

We are only half ready. We've got the hose but not enough water—the fire could get out of control.

4) A plan for orderly resumption of civilian production, with the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion acting as an economic general staff, directing through other government agencies the flow of materials and men into the most essential and job-productive civilian goods. We have yet to have a positive indication that this will be done.

5) A mechanism, such as that provided in the Murray-Wagner Full Employment Bill (S. 380) for anticipating economic dangers and planning to meet them.

STATEMENT ADOPTED AT A SPECIAL MEETING OF THE EXECUTIVE OFFICERS AND VICE PRESIDENTS OF THE CONGRESS OF INDUSTRIAL ORGANIZATIONS AT CIO HEADQUARTERS IN WASHINGTON, JUNE 13, 1945.

Since V-E Day and for the immediate future, with increasing severity, there will be accelerated cancellation and cutbacks of war orders. This has resulted in some unemployment and with every prospect of increasing. In addition, our economy is now witnessing a marked decline in overtime wage payments, a tendency of present wage rate structures to be lowered in the course of reconversion to the production of civilian goods—all of which result in a loss of weekly wages and purchasing power so essential to maintain an expanding postwar economy of full production and full employment.

The cost of living continues to increase and industrial profits to soar.

This is the condition which now confronts American workers. Unemployment, increasing job insecurity and decreasing weekly wages to meet a rapidly rising cost of living are the plain ugly facts. It would be foolhardy to deny the seriousness of the situation.

Full war production for the war against Japan is still of the utmost importance for our fighting forces. Yet we tolerate a situation which threatens to impair the morale and productive efficiency of the workers. At the same time, we ignore the basic need of maintaining the purchasing power of wage earners to assure an expanding postwar economy of full production and full employment.

With an abysmal absence of policy, no concrete steps are being taken to meet these needs.

The CIO calls upon President Truman, Director of War Mobilization Vinson, Director of Economic Stabilization Davis, the War Production Board, the National War Labor Board, and Congress to take immediate steps to accomplish the following necessary program of action:

1) Congress should immediately enact the necessary emergency legislation, requested by President Truman, to provide federal supplementary unemployment compensation payments to war workers rendered unemployed during the reconversion period so that a minimum of $25 per week for 26 weeks be provided. In addition, unemployment compensation should be made available to all federal employes, members of the merchant marine, and all other groups not now covered by existing law.

2) The President should immediately revise the national wage policy and confer the necessary authority upon the National War Labor Board to make such wage adjustments as may be necessary and which will not substantially affect the cost of living:

(a) To aid in the effective prosecution of the war;

(b) To eliminate substandard wages; and

(c) To assure a continued high level of purchasing power for the maintenance of full production and full employment.

3) Consistent with maximum war production, the War Production Board should take all necessary steps to assure resumption of production of civilian goods in those plants where cancellations and cutbacks of war contracts have occurred.

Security of employment on an annual basis is a burning aspiration of wage earners. At the same time, its attainment would be the fullest assurance of a peaceful and expanding economy. No more important issue is before the American people today because the successful achievement of this objective would effectively establish Freedom from Fear and Freedom from Want—the essence of Franklin D. Roosevelt's historic Economic Bill of Rights. Employers should therefore recognize their responsibility to their employes and to the nation and in good faith enter into collective bargaining with the unions representing such employes for the purpose of assuring security of employment on an annual basis.

This realistic and necessary program presents the minimum requirements for an orderly transition during reconversion and a peaceful and expanding postwar economy. For this reason, we are confident that it will command the wholesome support of all progressive groups. We shall not desist in our intensive national campaign until it has been accomplished.

". . . in any case, full employment requires a perfection of management that we have no right, in a democracy, to assume. Allowance has been made for four million unemployed in 194Q" (post war).—Editors of Fortune, "Transition to Peace; Business in A. D. 194Q" Fortune, Jan., 1944.

The planning score to date is practically zero. The first blow fell way back in 1942 when Congress killed the National Resources Planning Board. Another came with the defeat of the Kilgore Bill last year. The OPA has been mangled each time it has appeared in Congress. Less noticeable, but nonetheless damaging has been the infiltration of businessmen and attitudes into the branches of the government which should be directing reconversion, not just letting it happen.

Chairman Krug, of the WPB, gave business the ball the other day. "All the WPB can do," he said, "is to release industry from wartime restrictions as rapidly as possible. From then on industry must take the initiative in the task of reconversion and reemployment." He spoke of the "resilience" of the economy and the "natural forces working toward reconversion and reemployment."

"Natural Forces" in 1932?

Where were those natural forces in 1932? How many depressions must we have before we learn that prosperity is not necessarily fore-ordained by the "resilience" of our economy, that it is not an automatic by-product of the workings of the "free enterprise" system, that it must be planned and struggled for.

There has been a growing attitude of callousness toward human feelings and human dignity. There is a school of thought which believes "free enterprise needs a normal labor float." Mr. Krug has said "As soon as munitions contracts are cut back in volume, a large portion of the American people will be going back to what they have always done." Does he mean to send 10-15 million Americans back to starvation wages and "resilient" unemployment?

Perhaps we've forgotten what unemployment feels like. Here's a worker from New Haven, talking in the depression (Bakke, Citizens Without Work):

"God almighty, it's a terrible thing when the way that you get your grub and things is by going down to the city hall, especially when you need something extra. You come home after asking for it and the wife says, 'Well, what luck?' And then you sit down and you just rock and rock, and pretty soon she asks you what you're rocking for, and you tell her that it's none of her business. And you keep on rocking and thinking of how queer it is to be getting your living by asking for it at the city hall instead of working for it. And finally when you can't stand it no longer you get up and go over to the Green and sit on a bench that don't rock. That's one reason why you're damned glad when CWA gives you a chance because then it keeps you away from home and your money is your own and you don't have time to think about things like that. And the old woman isn't jumping on your neck all the time."

Reconversion Questions That Need Answers:

Insist on Facts and Concrete Action!

We've drawn up a list of questions, shouting questions, which each and every person who agrees with our analysis of the situation should ask.

THE KIND OF QUESTIONS TO ASK EMPLOYERS:

(If the company's headquarters are in another city, it would be well to have a committee call on the top officials there, representing a single local, locals from all the plants of the company, or the national Union.)

What are your plans for future use of the plant?

How much employment do you expect to have 3 months, 6 months and a year from now?

How much would your plans be changed by sudden collapse of Japan?

What will happen to payrolls and wage rates in your plant in the next six months?

What are the bottlenecks or possible delays in reconversion that may arise?

What can be done to minimize their effect?

If the plant is government-owned what are the terms under which you now have the right to buy it and how long are you going to wait before making up your mind?

THE KIND OF QUESTIONS TO ASK THE MAYOR, THE MUNICIPAL COUNCIL AND THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS:

(Be sure the city engineer and other appropriate officials are present to help with the answers.)

What drop in total payrolls in this area do you expect in the next 3 months to a year?

What will be the effect on business activity throughout the community?

What plans have you made for catching up on delayed maintenance and for new schools, for housing, libraries, playgrounds, sewage disposal plants, roads or other public works that would provide jobs as workers are laid off?

What can be done to speed up and enlarge these programs?

If a company is shifting work to plants elsewhere, what help will you give in meeting the problem?

What provision have you made for the unemployed in case jobs are not available?

THE KIND OF QUESTIONS TO ASK CONGRESSMEN:

(As many people as possible should write personal letters.)

What are present levels of employment in your Congressional district?

How did these compare with 1940 employment levels?

How many persons were unemployed in your district in 1940?

How many are unemployed today?

How many are likely to be unemployed in the next 3 months, 6 months or a year?

How much have incomes risen in your Congressional district since 1940—not only wage-earner incomes but farm and business incomes?

How much will these incomes be cut as war orders end, workers are laid off, hours are decreased, and the present demand for farm products declines?

What is the value of government-owned plants in your Congressional district?

How many persons depend upon these for jobs?

What is to happen to these plants?

What plans have been made in your district for public works to provide jobs and essential facilities?

What are present provisions in your district of seeing that unemployed workers receive enough to support their families?

THE KIND OF QUESTIONS TO ASK LOCAL CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE OR OTHER ASSOCIATIONS OF BUSINESSMEN, SUCH AS THE COMMITTEE FOR ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT:

What are present levels of employment in the community?

What are they apt to be in 3 months, 6 months or a year, unless special programs are undertaken?

What is to happen to workers who are laid off and to returning veterans if they cannot be absorbed in private business in this community?

What are your plans for maintaining purchasing power?

Will you join with us in support of special local public works, a broad federal program of public works, and other measures needed to protect workers and veterans, such as an emergency federal unemployment compensation law?

RESEARCH REPORT

Published Monthly by
INTERNATIONAL RESEARCH DEPT.
United Automobile, Aircraft & Agricultural Implement Workers of America (UAW-CIO)

Vol. V No. 4 22 June, 1945 411 W. Milwaukee. Detroit 2, Mich.

EDITORIAL STAFF:
J. H. Wishart, Research Director
Sigmund Diamond
Lincoln Fairley
Joseph Califf
Pat Crozier

In This Issue . . .

HEAVIER LAYOFFS COMING
ALKA SELTZER FOR THE BOSS
AUTO INDUSTRY PROFITS
FROM THE FILE

HEAVIER LAYOFFS COMING

Expected steel shortages and threats of industry lockouts for super profits are menacing the reemployment hopes of 400,000 or more auto workers who will have lost war jobs by the end of summer.

"Lift OPA price ceilings on the auto industry or we close down our plants and refuse to produce passenger cars." This was the blackjack ultimatum delivered last week by representatives of organized automobile parts manufacturers. And clearly they spoke not only for themselves but for the GM and Chrysler giants of the auto industry, who fear to take open leadership in a lockout conspiracy against auto workers and the American public.

No one seriously believes that very handsome profits would not roll in to auto manufacturers from sales in any volume at 1942 prices. Since 1942 straight time wage rates have risen less than 5 per cent in the industry; prices on raw materials have risen even less according to reliable government statistics. And 1942 profit margins were lush.

INDUSTRY ARGUMENT

The industry's only real argument for price increase is the open muzzle of a gun leveled at the head of workers and the public. A firm stand by the Office of Price Administration will demonstrate that the gun is not really loaded—unless government itself subsidizes an auto industry sit-down strike by paying profits to the industry under the carry-back carry-forward provisions of the Revenue Act for the time of self-imposed shutdowns.

Appeasement to the industry's profit grab would open the way for a general skyrocketing of prices, cuts in workers' real wage levels, and postwar depression.

STEEL

Perhaps even more dangerous to a speedy return to work for laid-off auto workers is the expected shortage of sheet steel. After military and essential civilian needs are met it is expected that no more than 300,000 tons of steel will be on hand for passenger cars. This is what has restricted production schedules for passenger cars to 200,000 in the last four months of 1945.

Such production would provide jobs for no more than 100,000 workers. Already (Cont. on Page 4)

Alka Seltzer for the Boss

Management raids on corporation treasuries have increased during the war, with salaries, bonuses, and pensions skyrocketing even faster than swollen wartime profits.

Management placed no ceilings on its own compensation to match wartime stabilization of workers' earnings. And both stockholders and the government lost as the insiders, skimming off the cream, cut into dividends and increased the cost of war contracts.

Significantly, management touchiness on salary grabs is growing. Industrialist Gerard Swope, blasting the SEC rule requiring publication of the names of the three highest paid officers, maintains such publicity is "embarrassing," especially when large companies are "located in small communities where all people know each other. It only produces heart burning and envy, and impairs the morale of the organization and community."

HEART-BURN

Auto workers will read the following figures, therefore, only at the risk of a good case of "heart-burning."

Between 1941 and 1944, salaries of the three top Chrysler officers, K. T. Keller, B. E. Hutchinson, and F. M. Zeder, increased from $100,950 to $126,150, from $90,900 to $114,250, and from $85,450 to $108,300, respectively. During the same period, Mack Truck's three top men, E. C. Fink, E. F. Staniford, and J. E. Savacool, raised their "take" from $87,700, $47,700, and $40,640 to $102,620, $65,-260, and $58,696, respectively.

While net profits of most auto plants rose from 1941 to 1944, management's share rose far more rapidly; and in the few cases where profits fell off, executive salaries did not collapse as much—or actually increased.

Following are examples of the three trends:

- Profits up, salaries up more. Bendix Aviation's net profits rose from $13,267,989 in 1941 to $14,723,000 in 1944, or 11 per cent. Executive salaries increased 34.4 per cent, from $440,900 to $592,732.

- Profits down, salaries up. J. I. Case profits dropped 34.5 per cent between 1941 and 1944, from $3,263,-233 to $2,138,000. But executives' salaries shot up 15.3 per cent, from $235,159 to $271,124.

- Profits down, salaries down less. Chrysler profits after taxes dropped from $40,114,420 in 1941 to $24,819,000 in 1944, or 38.1 per cent. But executive salaries in the same period dropped only 20 per cent, from $855,-700 to $684,833.

Mr. Swope seems to have it all wrong. At present wage levels, workers are in no danger of getting "heart-burn." But corporation executives, living richly off fat salaries, are easy meat for the Alka-Seltzer salesmen.

Auto Profits

A study of the peacetime and wartime profits of 29 leading auto and parts companies has just been completed by the UAW-CIO. The results of the survey—covering more than four-fifths of the industry—show that:

- 1941-44 net sales increased 128.0 per cent over the 1936-39 average
- 1941-44 profits before taxes increased 120.1 per cent over the 1936-39 average
- 1941-44 profits after taxes increased 20.6 per cent over the 1936-39 average.

TOTAL PROFITS

For the 29 companies as a whole, net sales soared from an average of $2,733,615,606 in 1936-39 to $6,231,408,995 in 1941-44; profits before taxes rose from an average of $330,512,328 to $727,386,001; and profits after taxes (including postwar and contingency reserves) jumped from an average of $248,338,350 to an average of $299,484,737.

INDEPENDENTS

The profits of the smaller auto and auto parts companies increased far more than did the profits of the Big Three. A breakdown shows that net sales of the smaller companies increased 185.2 per cent from the 1936-39 average to 1941-44; profits before taxes increased by 667.1 per cent over the 1936-39 average; while profits after taxes increased 226.1 per cent, as compared with a 20.6 per cent increase for all auto companies including the Big Three.

The extent to which the smaller auto and parts companies have been raking in profits during the war period can also be seen by comparing the rate as well as the volume of profit between 1936-39 and 1941-44.

During the four-year period from 1936 to 1939, the average rate of return for these companies was only 5.6 per cent. In other words, these companies made a net profit of only $5.60 for every $100 owned by the stockholders. During the four years from 1941 to 1944, however, return on net worth increased to an average of 16.1 per cent, or $16.10 for every $100 owned by stockholders. During the same two periods, return on net worth for all auto companies—including General Motors and Chrysler—averaged 16.0 per cent and 15.8 per cent respectively. This figure on average return on net worth for the auto industry from 1941 to 1944—15.8 per cent—is approximately 1⅔ times

AUTOMOBILE IN

1936-39 a

	Net Sales
	1936-39 Average	1941-44 Average	% Increase	1936-
E. G. Budd	$ 32,692,816	$ 108,949,890	233.3%	$
Budd Wheel	12,609,324	44,121,678	249.9
Chrysler Corp	600,000,767	874,140,586	218.9	5
Continental	6,755,026	* 118,151,108	1649.1
Briggs	116,184,935	 115,487,720	—.6
Detroit Steel Products	* 8,896,955	16,671,255	87.4
Divco Twin Truck	* 1,679,679	2,617,292	55.8
Eaton Mfg.	23,671,936	99,625,062	320.8
Electric Auto-Lite	51,867,220	112,764,380	117.4
Electric Storage Battery	26,242,605	62,635,671	138.7
Federal Mogul	 5,611,467	21,101,679	276.0
Fruehauf Trailer	10,184,894	50,978,924	40.1
Gar Wood	8,429,780	38,499,403	356.7
General Motors	1,372,470,279	3,186,428,777	132.2	2
Houdaille-Hershey	17,222,718	55,426,718	221.8
Hoover Ball Bearing	1,823,707	5,738,632	214.7
Kelsey-Hayes	23,289,315	64,579,469	177.3
Mack Truck	31,740,435	109,657,301	245.5
McQuay-Norris	.....	12,320,756	....
National Auto Fibres	5,431,272	17,742,097	226.7
Murray Body	 38,582,320	66,648,663	72.7
Packard	83,029,969	284,594,571	242.8
Studebaker	66,274,928	279,264,443	321.4
Timken-Detroit Axle	20,706,698	126,176,166	509.4
Willys-Overland	* 16,875,106	127,817,345	657.4
L. A. Young	15,869,849	23,395,897	47.4
Hudson	62,133,586	104,258,609	67.8
Graham-Paige	9,201,107	19,757,261	114.7
Nash-Kelvinator	59,513,445	165,869,857	178.7
TOTAL	$2,733,615,606	$6,231,408,995	128.0	$ 3

*Average for 3 years.
Average for 2 years.

DUSTRY PROFITS
d 1941-44

Profits Before Taxes			Profits After Taxes
9 Average	1941-44 Average	% Increase	1936-39 Average	1941-44 Average	% Increase
662,117	$ 12,775,086	1829.4%	$ 236,572	$ 2,634,442	1013.5%
781,717	7,316,740	835.9	404,370	1,598,639	295.4
1,778,441	71,734,854	38.5	42,129,469	36,752,610	—12.8
98,160 (def.)	* 14,532,771	....	333,529 (def.)	* 5,666,143	....
7,234,444	* 8,138,913	125.0	5,698,355	* 6.310,548	10.7
749,982	1,524,589	103.3	612,838	644,570	5.2
* 177,027	369,177	108.5	* 127,735	242,364	89.7
2,516,031	17,640,759	601.1	1,943,900	4,834,260	148.7
5,495,929	18,278,371	232.6	4,051,773	5,535,298	36.6
2,281,880	8,013,123	251.2	1,919,583	2,295,228	19.6
570,225	3,642,057	538.7	447,060	1,023,825	129.1
1,271,442	6,414,288	404.5	869,891	2,151,521	147.3
571,294	4,842,384	747.6	391,927	1,267,742	223.5
4,779,268	395,194,321	61.5	184,071,821	190,532,963	3.5
2,166,530	9,110,878	320.5	1,598,829	2,133,940	33.5
363,660	1,287,117	253.9	267,494	419,712	56.9
864,683	7,140,137	725.8	482,742	2,054,085	325.5
1,051,173	15,114,187	1337.8	619,839	3,897,799	528.8
574,150	2,220,343	286.7	363,734	640,125	76.0
835,230	1,809,373	116.6	537,172	579,897	8.0
* 181,445	3,419,207	1784.4	* 96,351	1,584,469	1544.5
2,866,107	19,159,352	568.5	2,253,245	4,915,014	118.1
2,146,947	13,591,688	533.1	1,040,110	3,727,055	258.3
2,414,407	24,829,740	929.4	1,863,296	5,680,280	204.9
* 776,432 (def.)	17,517,735	....	* 888,731 (def.)	5,029,404	....
1,171,918	2,397,054	189.9	736,670	992,370	34.7
178,005 (def.)	4,132,909	....	512,605 (def.)	3,048,121	....
1,352,699 (def.)	2,445,475	....	1,512,610 (def.)	1,415,826	....
588,423 (def.)	10,121,674	....	1,179,951 (def.)	4,206,662	....
30,512,328	$ 727,386,001	120.1	$ 248,338,350	$ 299,484,737	20.6

as large as the 9.8 per cent return which, according to the National City Bank Bulletin, was the average for all manufacturing industries in 1944 alone.

Many auto corporations which were drowning between 1936 and 1939 on a slim margin of profit or even at a loss, were able because of the water wings provided by war orders to pull themselves out of the deep water they had been pushed into by the monopolists of the industry, GM, Chrysler, and Ford.

Willys-Overland, for example, which showed an average net loss of $888,731 after taxes between 1936 and 1939, piled up profits after taxes averaging $5,029,404 for the 1941-44 period. Hudson shot up from an average net loss of $512,605 after taxes in 1936-39 to an average profit after taxes of $3,048,121. And profits after taxes for Packard increased 118.1 per cent, from an average of $2,253,245 in 1936-39 to $4,915,014 in 1941-44.

TRUCK COMPANIES

The smaller truck and trailer manufacturers, as well as the independent auto companies, were able for the first time during the war years to shove their heads well above water. Divco Twin Truck's 1941-44 average profits after taxes were 89.7 per cent above the 1936-39 level. Fruehauf Trailer and Gar Wood showed increases in profits after taxes of 147.3 and 223.5 per cent respectively in 1941-44 over 1936-39. And Mack Truck's profits skyrocketed from $169,839 in 1936-39 to $3,897,799 in 1941-44 for an increase of 528.8 per cent.

GM, CHRYSLER

The wartime increases in profits for General Motors and Chrysler do not seem as startling as they do for the smaller companies because even in peacetime GM and Chrysler profits were considerably higher than those of the other auto companies. Even at that, however, GM still increased its profits during the war period. During 1936-39, profits before taxes for GM amounted to $244,779,268. In 1941-44, they had risen to $395,194,321, for an increase of 61.5 per cent. Profits after taxes rose slightly from $184,071,821 to $190,532,963, or 3.5 per cent. During the same period, profits before taxes for Chrysler went up 38.5 per cent and profits after taxes dropped 12.8 per cent.

RESERVES

During the four wartime years from 1941 to (Cont. on Page 4)

From the File

● Senator Robert Wagner and Congressman John Dingell have introduced a new social security bill in Congress calling for health insurance, increased disability and retirement allowances, and a federalized system of unemployment compensation. Self-employed persons and farm workers would be covered under the new bill.

● The Securities and Exchange Commission reports that corporate working capital reached a new high of $45.5 billion at the end of 1944, an increase of 41.7 per cent over the 1941 level. At the end of the year, corporation holdings of U. S. bonds amounted to $4.8 billion more than corporation income tax liabilities.

● Just why manufacturers fought renewal of the bill requiring renegotiation of war contracts is clear from a recent report of the War Contracts Price Adjustment Board. The report discloses that in 1942 and 1943 alone, more than $5.8 billion was refunded to the U. S. Treasury as a result of renegotiation.

● The CIO members of the National War Labor Board have presented to the Board a reconversion wage policy calling for wage increases to aid in the effective prosecution of the war, to eliminate substandard wages, and to assure a continued high level of purchasing power to maintain full production and full employment.

● Senators Robert Taft and Elmer Thomas have teamed up on a drive to cripple price control. Thomas' proposal is for a guaranteed profit on agricultural products; Taft's is for a a guaranteed profit on all manufactured products and for the elimination of rent control.

● Companies with no established policy for dealing with discharges termed "without cause" by the union, must permit the discharge to be taken up as a grievance under the existing grievance procedure, according to the War Labor Board. Grievances not settled by negotiation should be submitted to an arbitrator for final and binding decision, with power to order reinstatement and back pay.

● In a case between the Globe Mills Co. and the ILWU-CIO, the NWLB for the first time ordered negotiation on sick leave in a dispute case. The Board's order stated that in the event negotiations fail after 30 days, either party could refer the issue back to the Regional Board.

Layoffs

(Continued from Page 1)

200,000 out of 1,000,000 auto workers employed at the peak of the war program have been laid off. An additional 200,000 will have been laid off by September when civilian production begins.

Few of that 400,000 total would find jobs if production is held to the proposed 50,000 cars per month. That would be scarcely enough to provide jobs for those laid off after September 1 by further tapering down of the industry's war load.

But steel shortages need not throttle down output after passenger car assembly lines start to roll again. Seven sheet steel mills throughout the country were reliably reported to be running far below capacity. No one yet has explained why these mills could not be put into full operation to add 400,000 tons of critical steel sheet for civilian use. That would allow for passenger car production three or four times greater than 50,000 units per month.

SHORTAGE?

Union leaders suspect such powerful auto corporations as GM could easily open up this supply bottleneck. Thus laid-off workers could be speedily returned to productive jobs. A long period of demoralizing unemployment would not face workers and their Union. In addition auto companies prepared for a speedier reconversion than GM would hit the market earlier and with more cars. But these may be the reasons why GM accepts the expected shortage of steel philosophically.

The extent of cutbacks already carried through and announced for the months ahead emphasized the urgency of UAW-CIO requests that government act to speed full scale reconversion. For government to shrug off responsibility with fine phrases of free enterprises "resiliency" would mean disaster to millions of workers and to the country.

LAYOFFS

Over 450,000 workers employed by peacetime aircraft companies will have been laid off between March and December of 1945.

From the 800,000 workers doing various war jobs in auto corporation plants in March layoffs are expected to total as follows:

Aircraft	167,000
Trucks and parts	**———
Tanks	34,000
Guns	11,000
Marine equipment	21,000
Other	6,000
Total	239,000

Auto Profits

(Continued from Page 3)

1944, General Motors and Chrysler salted away $119,276,758 in postwar and contingency reserves, $76,051,805 for GM and $43,224,953 for Chrysler. This is actually greater than the average profits after taxes—$72,199,-164—all the other 27 companies of the industry were able to pile up during the same four years.

The facts brought out by this auto industry profits survey are clear. In the first place, the industry has profited enormously from the war. In the second place, the industry is in a good position not only to finance a rapid transition to peacetime production, but even to increase its facilities for the production of civilian goods and the employment of hundreds of thousands more workers than were employed in the pre-war years. The workers whose muscles and brains helped the auto industry pile up these profits—and who don't have contingency reserves amounting to the millions—will be watching to see how many jobs they will be used to create.

RESEARCH REPORT
Official Publication, International Union, United Automobile, Aircraft & Agricultural Implement Workers of America, UAW-CIO.
Published Monthly by International Research Department
Publication Office: 6543 Sylvester Ave., Detroit 7, Mich.
Entered as second-class matter May 18, 1944, at the post office at Detroit, Michigan, under the Act of August 24, 1912.

GEORGE MITCHELL, REG. DIR.,
CIO POLIT. ACTION COMM.,
75 IVY ST.,
ATLANTA, GA.
PA

Reconversion

From WAR to PEACE

A Challenge

OFFICE OF WAR MOBILIZATION AND RECONVERSION
Washington, D. C.

Savior from Texas

Reprinted from Collier's
August 18, 1945

By Walter Davenport

Vance Muse has mined the sucker lists thirteen times for funds with which to "save America" from assorted isms. Now he's at it again, with Lewis V. Ulrey, likewise an old hand in the name-calling business, as chief name-caller

Vance Muse, left, and Lewis V. Ulrey are doing well with their latest money wangling and name-calling campaign

MR. LEWIS VALENTINE ULREY paused for breath. And just in time, too; he was completely out of it. As chairman of the Christian American Association, Inc., he had just given us a partial list of men and movements that he, his organization and its secretary-treasurer, Mr. Vance Muse, were determined to eliminate lest The American Way of Life vanish without a trace. Mr. Ulrey and Mr. Muse agree that it is pretty much on its last legs anyway, what with twelve years of Roosevelt rule.

In his thin old voice that frequently rose to a shrill, quavering falsetto, Mr. Ulrey had held forth, his mouth bitter with acrimony, against social liberals, political radicals, labor unions, international-minded Jews, the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, the American Civil Liberties Union, the Union Theological Seminary of New York, the Child Labor Amendment, the Methodist Federation for Social Service, the Political Action Committee-C.I.O., the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the National Council for Soviet-American Friendship, the World Trade Union Congress and several other organizations. All of them, he said, were nothing but proponents of Red Russian Communism. . . .

Mr. Muse assured us that he, too, was eager to put an end to his chairman's black list, adding thereto a name which Mr. Ulrey had overlooked—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt. . . .

Christian American's current objective is to add an open-shop amendment to the federal Constitution, an addition referred to by them in reverent tones as The God-Given-Right-to-Work Amendement. The congressional end of this enterprise is to be guided by the Honorable Wilbert Lee O'Daniel—"Pappy"—junior senator from Texas, a man proclaimed by both Mr. Muse and Mr. Ulrey as at least the equal in pure patriotism of George Washington, Andrew Jackson, Thomas Jefferson and Jefferson Davis. They foresee that Pappy may need a bit of assistance and are therefore laying down upon state legislators and legislatures a barrage of mimeographed and printed exhortations to memorialize Congress to adopt a resolution calling upon forty-eight states to vote on such an appendage to the Constitution.

Wanted: the Approval of 32 States

The states they are working on just now are Oregon, Montana, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Colorado, New Mexico, Kansas, Mississippi, Minnesota, Iowa, Arkansas, Florida, North and South Carolina, West Virginia, Indiana, Texas, Tennessee, Georgia and Oklahoma. If they can induce thirty-two states thus to demand that the God-Given Amendment be submitted to the states for ratification, it becomes mandatory upon Congress to do so. If thirty-six legislatures ratify, it becomes a part of the Constitution. The proposed amendment reads thus:

"No person shall be denied employment because of membership in or affiliation with or resignation from a labor union, or because of refusal to join or affiliate with a labor union; nor shall any corporation or individual or association of any kind enter into any contract, written or oral, to exclude from employment members of a labor union or persons who refuse to join a labor union, or because of resignation from a labor union; nor shall any person against his will be compelled to pay dues to any labor organization as a prerequisite to or condition of employment.". . .

California defeated just such an amendment last November, something which might not have happened had Christian American been running things, Mr. Muse thinks. Louisiana's legislature would have nothing to do with the amendment or Mr. Muse, adopting instead a resolution condemning Christian American as an "organization that would set capital against labor, Catholic against Protestant, Christian against Jew."

Furthermore, it demanded of Mr. J. Edgar Hoover that the F.B.I. investigate Christian American. . . .

So while belaboring state legislators and, incidentally, their constituents, with amendment propaganda, he and Mr. Ulrey are whooping it up for state labor regulatory laws. Their favorite, they say, is the Pappy O'Daniel antiviolence law which makes it punishable by fine and imprisonment for a striker even to threaten a nonstriker or address to him words which may be construed to be a threat. . . .

Christian American has ballyhooed for anti-labor union legislation in forty-four states and claims credit for success in eight: Kansas, Idaho, South Dakota, Arkansas, Colorado, Mississippi, Florida and Texas. All these states have adopted in one form or another Christian American's second best favorite: a law to license union business agents, open their records on the complaint of any interested party, and revoke a non-cooperative agent's license.

Texas Expands the Law

In Texas, this law was expanded to provide that a union's officers must be elected by a majority of its members for one-year terms and that unions may not collect dues or initiation fees "which will create a fund in excess of the reasonable requirements of such unions."

The Florida law (not to be confused with the amendment) places all unions, their members, officers and representatives under rigid state control. It creates a board to pass on anyone aspiring to hold office in a union and holds that no such aspirant may be licensed to hold such a job who is not a citizen of Florida or who has not resided in the United States for ten years or who has been convicted of a felony or is "not a person of good moral character," this last decision to be made by the examining board. . . .

When Christian American was saving Arkansas by ballyhooing the God-Given Amendment into their constitution, the contributors came through with $67,873.49. Mr. Muse says that almost three quarters of this came from farmers, ranchers and "slaves of labor unions who appealed piteously to us to help them throw off the racketeer's yoke." Out of this, he goes on, he paid himself a mere $4,452.85 in salary. Of course, he had some personal expenses, not specified, and there were such things as office rent, printing, mimeographing and so forth. The mimeographing is done by Mrs. Muse who also gets a salary, which, you must agree, is only fair. Out of this $67,873.49, too, came the salary of Mr. Val Sherman, Mr. Muse's assistant, who did most of the lobbying in Little Rock. Mr. Sherman gets $300 a month. Saving America from New Dealers, labor unions and Communism (the three being just about synonymous in Christian American's book) costs about $3,000 a month. . . .

Christian American was incorporated by Mr. Muse in Texas in 1936. The legal papers say: "This corporation is formed for educational purposes; to publish and distribute Christian American literature of a nonpartisan and nonsectarian nature for the promotion of Americanism, religion and righteousness, and to conduct a program of education and organization to combat Communism, Fascism, Nazism, Socialism, Atheism and other alien 'isms' designed to destroy faith in God and Jesus Christ, the Church, the home, and the American system of one's own conscience. This corporation is not organized for profit and has no capital stock."

At the time, Mr. Muse was casting about for a new outlet for his highly specialized talents. For twenty years he had served a number of America-savers as organizer, contribution hustler and general shill. But the outlook had become a big foggy, and his current patron, the late Mr. John Henry Kirby, a wealthy oil and lumber man for whom Mr. Muse was publicity shouter and representative on the staffs of a number of America-savers, was apparently becoming discouraged. Mr. Kirby—"Uncle John"—was a rugged individualist, hating Roosevelt with a spectacular fury. . . . Mr. Muse, however, was not discouraged. His experiences as a havoc crier had been rich and profitable. Here are a few of the outfits he had served in the capacities stated above:

Southern Tariff Association, Texas Businessmen's Associates, Texas Farmers Union, American Taxpayers League, Southern Committee to Uphold the Constitution, Texas Tax Relief Committee, Election Managers Association, Order of American Patriots, Southern Republican Council, League of Ten Million, Dirt Farmers Association and the National Council of State Legislatures. The latter is not to be confused with the National Council of State Governments.

In Agreement on Plans

In their objectives they were all pretty much alike: tax reductions for their subscribers, resistance to liberal social and economic trends, anti-labor-union and, after 1932, anti-New Deal. If you simply can't get along without details, consult the reports to Congress made by three senatorial investigating committees—Senator Thaddeus Caraway's in 1929, Senator Hugo Black's in 1936, and Senator Theodore Francis Green's in 1944. Mr. Kirby, who, according to Mr. Muse, "revered the Constitution as second in sacredness only to the Holy Bible," was a heavy contributor to some of the above organizations. So was the late Maco Stewart, Sr., founder of the corporation for which Mr. Ulrey is a geologist. In addition, Mr. Ulrey "took charge of the antiradical activities of Maco Stewart & Son." The quotes are from a pronouncement by Christian American. . . .

As long ago as 1918, Mr. Muse was a whipper-in for fund-raising outfits. At that time he was collecting from railroads who wanted the Adamson 8-hour-day bill nullified. For that cause, he helped pile up $250,000, of which he got his cut. As a roundup worker for the American Taxpayers League and the Southern Tariff Association, he drew a base pay of $600 a month, and there was an agreement whereby he and his sister, Mrs. Ida M. Darden, a co-worker. were to share in ten per cent of everything over $100,000 harvested in their territory of eighteen states.

The agreement stipulated that they were to receive forty per cent of all checks they fetched in, but the Caraway Committee was unable to learn whether they actually got that much. Nevertheless, those were Mr. Muse's best days. For the American Taxpayers League and the National Council of State Legislatures, dedicated to sharp reductions in subscribers' taxes and the abolition of inheritance taxes, Mr. Muse and his colleagues collected more than a million dollars.

It is not improbable that Mr. Muse's mind was dwelling on those elegant days when, prospecting for a new and gainful way of saving America, he presented himself in cowboy boots, gorgeous flannel shirt and ten-gallon hat at Macon, Georgia, where the Honorable Ole Gene Talmadge, then governor, was throwing a Grass Roots Rally to see what he and such patriots as the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, the Detroit rabblerouser, and the likes, might do about confounding Franklin Delano Roosevelt. . . .

There's a good deal of similarity between Mr. Smith and Mr. Muse. They're both huge men—six feet four and weighing two hundred and fifty. It is his size, among other properties, that have made him known in Southern labor circles as The Big Fink and Jumping Jumbo.

Mr. Muse is slightly older than Mr. Smith but looks a trifle more rugged. This is enhanced by a deep scar on his right cheek, the origin of which is something of a mystery. For a spell, while at liberty from fund collecting, Mr. Muse was a federal prohibition agent. And while Mr. Muse is not, like Mr. Smith, an ordained preacher, he is no less handy with Biblical quotations. At the top of Mr. Muse's business stationery, there are the Cross and the Flag so piously used by Mr. Smith. . . .

When Mr. Ulrey joined Mr. Smith and Mr. Muse at Ole Gene's tub thump, he delivered himself of a group of scorching opinions about "the coming Armageddon—the great struggle between Christianity and Jewish Marxism." Also he held forth on "the Talmudists" and the "capture of the New Deal by the Sanhedrin." And he had a thing or two to say about the Protocols of The Elders of Zion. Also he was sore at something he called The Hidden Hand.

Before he had finished, doubtless out of breath, he had polished off Felix Frankfurter, Harry Hopkins, the League of Women Voters, Mrs. Roosevelt and several other influences which, he said, would never be satisfied until the Constitution was a discredited rag. . . .

The Power of the Pen

Until the Reverend Gerald Winrod of Wichita, Kansas, was indicted for sedition, Mr. Ulrey wrote with an all-consuming fury for Mr. Winrod's Defender. Whereas Winrod and lesser imaginations of his sort wrote conventional pieces in favor of American isolationism and found virtues in Fascism, Mr. Ulrey was never predictable. For example, he'd come in with a skull-buster about the Reverend Harry F. Ward, and the American Civil Liberties Union, of which Mr. Ward was a founder. In the Defender, he showed no mercy whatever for such organizations as the League for Industrial Democracy, the Labor Research Association and the International Labor Defense. Once he wrote a destroyer to the late Senator Joe Robinson of Arkansas, published in the Defender, to say that Mr. Winrod was "one of America's leading patriots and one of the century's leading protagonists of Christian Americanism." . . .

Nevertheless, Christian American didn't actually get rolling smoothly until 1941. Mr. Muse's angel, Uncle John Henry Kirby, had died rich but discouraged. In the meantime, Messrs. Ulrey and Muse had kept up a scattering fire against Communism, atheism, Negroes, Jews and labor unions and so forth, but lacked focus. They got out a warning that Russia planned to set up a Soviet republic in our Southern states to be ruled by Negroes. They told their audience that "Freedom must be fought for, and this fight cannot wait. It is literally a life and death struggle—THIS MEANS CIVIL WAR." A map went along with this, showing that there were 12,000,000 Negroes ready to leap redly to arms.

When this didn't happen, Messrs. Ulrey and Muse filled rural mail boxes with dodgers about Christian Democracy, Atheistic Communism, the Red Record of Henry A. Wallace, Communist-New Deal Coalition, Roosevelt's Antichrist Policies and the like. Scare sheets were broadcast asking Southerners whether they wanted their wives, daughters and sweethearts to work side by side with Negroes. And whether Ulrey and Muse did it or not, they got credit for papering white political rallies and conventions with unsigned throwaways starting: "In grateful appreciation of our great Commander in Chief Franklin D. Roosevelt from the Negroes of Texas," and ending: "A vote for Franklin D. Roosevelt is a vote for EQUAL RIGHTS for ALL—economic, social and political."

Willing to Die for Their Ideals

They announced that they were prepared to die if need be for the "restoration of the Four Vanishing American Freedoms: the right work, the right to produce, the right to earn and the right to own." This evoked no frenzied cheering. They were credited with issuing a poster asking Texas citizens: "Will Your Daughter Marry a Negro?" They promised America to "knock the jug-handle off the Wagner National Labor Relations Act. . . ."

And yet, in 1942, Mr. Muse was so apprehensive for his own future that he ran for Congress—as an Independent, of course, he says, in the public interest. He got nowhere. The regular Democratic nominee, Mr. Albert Thomas, had voted in Congress for the abolition of the poll tax, thus, cried Mr. Muse, "giving Negroes free voting privileges." He set forth his bid for election in an advertisement in the Houston Post, saying in part:

"The so-called Eleanor Clubs are encouraged by the Communists. It is a Red Radical scheme to organize Negro maids, cooks and nurses in order to have a Communist informer in every home. . . ."

Not, says Mr. Muse, that he is anti-Negro. Mr. Muse's protest that he is not anti-Negro is as vulnerable as Mr. Ulrey's contention that he really isn't anti-Jewish. To prove that he is not anti-Jewish, he proclaims that the two finest journalists in America are Mr. David Lawrence and Mr. George Sokolsky, both Jews.

Nevertheless, in the Reverend Mr. Winrod's Defender, Mr. Ulrey has let fly from time to time with bits like these:

"Colonel House flitted back and forth across the Atlantic . . . and collaborated and conspired with foreign Jews for the establishment of the League of Nations. . . .

"Human nature being what it is, it is not strange that the Germans decided against the Jews and in favor of Hitler. . . .

"Hitler put it up to the Germans to decide between Jewish ownership and domination of the country or domination and ownership by the ninety-nine per cent German population."

As we left Messrs. Ulrey and Muse we said that we'd been told that Christian American was just the Ku-Klux Klan in modern dress.

"Nonsense," said Mr. Muse. "Why I helped drive the Klan out of Texas. However, the original Klan Reconstruction days did a lot of good. Maybe we need something like that now. I'm against it but it might be a good thing. . . .

"Why do you think we put on that big campaign in Arkansas? I'll tell you. It was at the request of the workingman and the little businessman. The workingman and the little businessman financed our campaign.

"Don't let the atheistic Communists tell you different. They call me anti-Jew and anti-Nigger. Listen. We like the nigger—in his place. . . .

"Good niggers, not these Communist niggers. Jews? Why, some of my best friends are Jews. Good Jews. . . ."

Not that you could prove it by us. We tried hard but could find no employer who confessed to admiring Mr. Muse and his Christian American. Maybe some of them were coy. Perhaps some of them agreed with his and Mr. Ulrey's distaste for organized labor. But none admitted it. As for organized workingmen—well, we've kept this piece clean thus far and there's no use ruining it by quoting them.

The

SOUTHERN CONFERENCE

for Human Welfare

Through its affiliated state committees invites your cooperation in working for:

World cooperation, full employment, improved labor laws, better farm conditions, federal aid to education, fair employment practices, health legislation, extension of the franchise, and extension of social securities.

And in Opposing . . .
Bigotry and Intolerance

Send Copies of
SAVIOR FROM TEXAS

☐ Send Information about the
SOUTHERN CONFERENCE
FOR HUMAN WELFARE

NAME _____

ADDRESS _____

Mail to: 507 Presbyterian Building
Nashville 3, Tennessee

AMERICAN SOCIETY FOR PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION

MEMBERSHIP LISTING

1313 EAST SIXTIETH STREET
CHICAGO 37

LE

Harold J. Laski—Diplomats in Conference

THE Nation

October 6, 1945

AMG—
Innocents Abroad

BY SAUL K. PADOVER

*

The Plight of the Jews - - - - - - - - - - - I. F. Stone

Some Don't Wear the Purple Heart - Frank Trager

The Driver Was a Nice Guy - - - - Edgar Brooke

Spanish Prison - - - - - - - - - - - - - Percy Winner

"The German Talks Back" - - - - Franz Hoellering

15 CENTS A COPY · EVERY WEEK SINCE 1865 · 5 DOLLARS A YEAR

THE HOME TOWN JOB

A Report on Community Services for Veterans

NATIONAL COMMITTEE ON SERVICE TO VETERANS

Under Auspices of National Social Work Council

1790 Broadway, New York 19, N. Y.

BATTLE FOR PRODUCTION

REPORT

TO THE PRESIDENT, THE SENATE
& THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

By the Director of

WAR MOBILIZATION AND RECONVERSION

January 1, 1946

PRODUCTION MOVES AHEAD

REPORT

TO THE PRESIDENT, THE SENATE
& THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

By the Director of

WAR MOBILIZATION AND RECONVERSION

April 1, 1946

RECONVERSION

Introduction

A Republican Administration would be committed to terminating all emergency powers of the government and would leave reconversion to private enterprise. This manner of handling the problem of reconversion would tend to promote monopolies and would result in decreased production, large-scale unemployment, and inflation. A high standard of living, full production, and full employment can never be achieved in this manner. A Democratic Administration would retain for a period the emergency powers and would assume, on behalf of the national government, responsibility for a planned and orderly process of reconversion. If the policy of the Democratic party is followed - that is, if the government adopts responsibility for planned reconversion -, inflation and black markets can be prevented and full production and full employment can be promoted.

What Reconversion Means

Reconversion means timing the resumption of large-scale production of civilian items with curtailment in munitions output. There must be established a priority list for civilian items. Reconversion means, too, working out a policy on reconversion competition: Shall all companies in an industry start up simultaneously? Shall newcomers be barred? Or shall each industry's problem (and each plant's and each community's) be considered when it arises?

Likewise reconversion means determining whether full employment and full utilization of all resources at peak wartime levels are the main objectives or whether some slack should be allowed. In other words, shall unemployment be permitted to increase slightly? Shall the hours worked per week be reduced?

Reconversion also means carrying out the Baruch and other proposals, mapping out a policy on government surpluses: How shall specially built war plants be disposed of? Shall they be scrapped, held for the next war, or shall they be sold off promptly to private industry? Similarly, reconversion means formulating programs on raw materials. Large postwar stockpiles must be avoided, yet reserves of scarce commodities must be kept on hand as military insurance.

How Many Plants and Workers Do Cancellations and Cutbacks Involve?

Changes in the needs of the army and navy, such as shifts from one type of equipment to another as the kind of fighting changes, have involved a large proportion of the factories engaged in war work. Up to April, 1944 these changes had affected ten thousand prime contractors and an unknown but much larger number of subcontractors. The orders involved in the changes amounted to $22,000,000,000. While most of the plants got other contracts to replace those cancelled, this was less true of the subcontractors.

Up to April of 1944 contract terminations totalled $22 billion, and approximately 10,000 prime contractors have been involved. These terminations have been, by and large, contract adjustments, since most of these contracts were replaced by awards for other products or different models of the same product. However, there have been some plants, such as certain explosives and ammunition loading plants, that have been wholly or partly shut down as a result of reduction in the production goal.

The effect on employment was to diminish the number of jobs available in manufacturing. By the end of 1944 this decrease in available jobs in manufacturing is expected to total 1,000,000.

What Formerly Scarce Materials Are Available For Civilian Production?

Substantial quantities of certain basic metals and some machine tools, formerly on the highly restricted list because of their scarcity, are counted now as surplus. They offer the basis for partial reconversion at once, so that the pattern for new products and new jobs can be set before the war ends. There are now surpluses of copper, zinc, aluminum, and magnesium.

On June 14, 1944, according to the War Production Board, approximately 12,700 machine tools of fairly recent manufacture had been reported as surplus by war contractors and were available for distribution. These are government-owned. Private dealers or owners have reported a surplus of 39,100 machine tools, 6,500 of which were manufactured in 1940 or later.

What War Industries Can Reconvert Easily?

More than one quarter of all plants counted as war industry can turn to peacetime production with no changes in machinery or other facilities.[1] A great many more can convert with quick and relatively easy changes. Most of the rest will need not more than six months. Only a very small minority of war factories cannot be used for peacetime production. Only those few will not offer postwar jobs if the reconversion is carried out on the basis of full production for peace as for war. Among the industries that can work for civilians without any mechanical reconversion problems are:

high octane gas	synthetic rubber
diemakers	food processing
clothing	farm implements
petroleum	leather
mining	railroads
beverages	air transport
retail trade	tobacco

1. "Reconversion and Jobs," Press Research, vo. I, no. 12, July 17, 1944, page 3.

In those fields reconversion will be easiest. Yet here, the big problem from the standpoint of full production and full employment is the completeness with which all available facilities are used as soon as possible.

Not all plants and facilities will have salvage value. Some were so constructed that they are useful only for the special purposes for which they were built. Examples are some of our special ordnance installations. Others were equipped with special machinery of such size that there would be little peacetime demand for articles that could be made. Examples of this are found in the plants to make heavy, long-range gun barrels.

However, the great bulk of all war plants and the machine tools and facilities contained in them, and many of the machine tools and facilities in the special war plants, can be utilized for civilian production.[2] Any assumption that they cannot be used is as baseless as the contention made in 1941 that our automobile plants and tools could not be used to produce war materials. Of course, some of the tools cannot be used, additional tools will have to be acquired, and the arrangement of tools will have to be changed. But, by and large, most war plants are suitable to produce peacetime goods.

There is a relatively narrow field that we get into from the standpoint of basic industries that will have difficulty in getting back to peacetime production. Their problem will be that of getting business. For instance, the automobile tire industry has been practically reconverted to making tires. While a certain portion of the textile industry has been diverted to war purposes, they have not changed their facilities or their set up. That is also true of the agricultural implements production. Many of them have had to expand facilities or to take on new facilities, but all the farm equipment industry needs is a release of materials and components. The die maker has been making dies, jigs, and tools for the war. He does not have to reconvert. When he is released from making machinery for war, he simply makes them for peace. That is true of many industries in this country.

Time Required For Specific Reconversions

Less than three months will be required for conversion by the following industries: steel, textiles, rubber, tire, building, container, farm equipment, paints, household furnishings, electrical equipment, chemical, and foundry.[3]

Four to six months will be required by the automotive, heavy machinery, machine tool, metal fabricating, and railroad equipment industries, and by some carpet makers.[4]

2. Additional Report of the Special Committee Investigating the National Defense Program, Report number 10, part 12.

3. "Reconversion and Jobs", Press Research, vol. I, no. 12, July 17, 1944, page 5.

4. Ibid.

More than six months will be needed by the office equipment industry. Major problems will be faced by the aircraft manufacturing industries, with extended periods of readjustment likely.

How Will Reconversion Delays Affect Industry and Jobs?

Since June, 1940, some 120,000 manufacturing firms (exclusive of food processing) have been engaged, in whole or in part, in war production. Three-fourths of them, that is 90,000 have received prime contracts at one time or another. The remaining 30,000,mostly small, have operated only as subcontractors, while many of the 90,000 have also had subcontracts. In May, 1944, it was estimated that only 40,000 of these 120,000 held direct government contracts; the other 80,000 had nothing but subcontracts. The immediate conversion problem affects mainly plants which are in the class of subcontractor or even sub-subcontractor.

The Special Senate Committee on Postwar Economic Policy and Planning predicted on May 9, 1944, a thirty to fifty percent out in munitions production when Germany is defeated. As a result of these cutbacks in war production, a large number of workers will leave the munitions industries. Estimates of the number range from four to five million. In addition about two and a half million service men will be discharged in the year after Germany's defeat.[5]

The smaller plants would be the first available to take up the slack in jobs, for the most part. There are 168,000 small plants with one hundred workers or less. They are first to be hit by cutbacks, since the prime contractor keeps as much of the order as he can. If these small plants do not reconvert speedily, many may never do it at all, and that much productive capacity, and job capacity, is lost.

If we have no production, military or non-military, in small plants, it is obviously going to force widespread bankruptcies over the country. It will, in effect, dry up those hundreds and thousands of small plants. That is because when a plant is taken out of production the people go away and the management disperses. The whole plant just dries up.

It has been found that when plants close down, a considerable portion of the workers affected simply evaporate. They do not all go to war jobs by any means.

Reconversion and Industry Leaders

The question has been asked whether reconversion can safely be left to industry. Industry's chief spokesmen make these three main points: One, wages must come down. Two, taxes must be lowered. Three, there must be subsidies for big business. These spokesmen also want certain controls removed, but they are not for removing all controls. They argue for keeping restrictions that will prevent competition with existing firms. Retraining and re-employment policies, unemployment payments and safeguards for small business are not taken into consideration more than to register opposition. When Mr.M.B. Gordon, Vice-President of the Wright Aeronautical Corporation was asked by Defense Plant Corporation lawyers late in June, 1940, what he would propose doing with the government-financed Wright-owned plant at the end of the emergency, he replied: "We will pull the roof off and let the rain come in."[6] Mr. Donald W. Douglas, president of the biggest aircraft company in the world, in summing up his postwar plan said: "You shut the damn shop up"[7] The commentator Roger Babson said: "We employers, however, present little constructive legislation. We have asked only for lower taxes and to be let alone."[8]

5. Special Senate Committee on Postwar Economic Policy and Planning Report, page 3.

As late as 1941 leaders of the steel industry insisted that the industry's capacity was ample to meet all possible emergencies. Industry leaders in automobile manufacturing were opposed to converting the automobile industry to war production claiming it could not be done. In view of the record and the present attitude of industry leaders it would be very undesirable to leave reconversion solely to industry.

Disposal of Surplus Property

Another side of the reconversion problem is the disposal of surplus property. No estimate places the total dollar volume of surplus war property, valued on a cost basis, at less than $50,000,000,000. Some estimates reckon the total at more than $100,000,000,000. The Surplus War Property Subcommittee of the Senate Small Business Committee has published a summary estimate of Government-owned war-end surpluses that adds up to the higher figure.

Facilities (excluding land):
Non-industrial (airfields, housing, etc.)	$23,784,000,000
Industrial (buildings, machinery, etc.)	16,554,000,000
Aircraft	26,000,000,000
Ships	10,000,000,000
Military vehicles, radio and radar equipment	9,500,000,000
Potential Civilian Goods:
Finished products	7,450,000,000
Raw materials	4,588,000,000
Materials in process	3,700,000,000
Miscellaneous equipment and supplies	2,252,000,000
Grand Total	$103,828,000,000

In addition, some 20,000,000 acres of land, comprising property taken over for troop contonments, training areas, war housing, and other purposes, will eventually be declared surplus.

6. "Reconversion and Jobs," Press Research, Vol.I, No. 12, July 17,1944, page 16.

7. First Fight for Full Employmen Won on Washington Battleground" Press Research, Vol. I, No. 12, July 17, 1944, page 3.

8. "Who's For Full Employment," Press Research, vol. I, no.11, July 13, 1944, page14

Perhaps one-half or more of the military supplies that become surplus will be located in Europe and the Far East. Much of this material will be disposed of abroad.

It is very important to achieve adoption of disposal policies which will fit the enormous mass of property into an economy of full production and full employment. To achieve this, the following policies must be followed. First, productive facilities must be turned over to those who will use them to full capacity. Second, consumer goods should be sold in such a way as to help prevent postwar inflation as well as dumping. Third, community plans to use surplus property should be encouraged. Fourth, small business and the family farm must be protected in getting their full share of property they can use. Maury Maverick, Chairman of the smaller War Plants Corporation, has emphasized that offerings of surplus supplies not only should be made in small lots but also should be widely advertised, and that, when necessary, credit facilities should be made available to prospective purchasers among small business men. The following are some of the dangers against which disposal policies must guard: First, getting rid of the property at any price to any purchaser in order to liquidate the government's investment is completely undesirable. Second, holding on to property for fear of competition with normal channels of business, which will accentuate shortages is another danger of great magnitude. Third, allowing productive facilities to fall into the hands of those who will keep them idle through a philosophy of scarcity should not be tolerated.

Orderly release of surpluses of scarce consumer goods will help to prevent a skyrocketing of prices that would drain off consumer purchasing power and pave the way for a business collapse. Prompt distribution of raw material surpluses will assist manufacturers to make an early start on peacetime production.

Guarding Against Monopolies

By encouraging and assisting newcomers in formerly monopolistic industries to take over and continue the operation of government-owned plants, the government can promote competitive conditions favorable to full production and full employment.

The government could also operate government-owned plants as a yardstick for production, efficiency, and profits.

The Political Record Thus Far on Reconversion

Early this summer Senator Kilgore, Democrat from West Virginia, introduced a bill dealing with the over-all reconversion problem. The Kilgore bill provided for centralizing responsibility for government action on reconversion problems in an Office of War Mobilization and Adjustment which would have jurisdiction over all agencies dealing with production planning of cutbacks, contract termination, control of surplus property, manpower transfers, training programs and unemployment benefits.

It also provided for creation of a board representing industry, agriculture, labor, and the public to serve as a clearing house for reconversion and postwar programs. The bill, moreover, contained comprehensive provisions for retraining and transfer of war workers and ex-servicemen, and for payment of special unemployment compensation in the form of so-called interim placement benefits. Largely because of the provision for liberal unemployment benefits the bill was defeated. Twenty-six out of twenty-nine Republican Senators, or about ninety percent of the Republicans, voted to kill the Kilgore bill. This indicates the Republican attitude on comprehensive measures for reconversion. Fifty-one percent, or twenty-three out of forty-five, of the Democrats also voted against the bill. Southern "Poll Taxers" made up a considerable portion of the Democrats who opposed the Kilgore bill.

POCKET LIBRARY ON THE U.S.S.R.

X

RELIGION TODAY IN THE U.S.S.R.

by

Rev. William Howard Melish

15c

National Council of American-~~Soviet Friendship~~

As goes Reconversion so goes Our Future

CIO POLITICAL ACTION COMMITTEE
205 East 42nd St., N. Y. 17, N. Y.

It is up to Congress

A man at work, at good wages, is the best guarantee of a lasting peace. If, when war ends, everybody who can work has a steady job at high enough wages to buy a decent living for himself and his family, then we will be sure of our future—then we will be sure of peace.

Enough has been said and written about reconversion to fill a library, but the only plan put forward so far that is sure to work is the CIO 7-Point Program:

1. Higher Basic Wages

We ask that all basic wage rates should be increased by 20 percent and at the same time we ask for 65 cents as the minimum hourly wage for all workers.

2. Take-Home Pay

We ask that the take-home pay should not be lowered when cutbacks come and we return to a shorter work week.

3. Price Control

What does it profit a man if his take-home wages are kept the same or even increased if at the same time the cost of living goes up 50 percent? We must retain the present ceilings on prices, and eliminate the black-market.

4. Unemployment Compensation

In the shift from war plants to peace-time production there inevitably will be temporary unemployment. We ask Congress to pass a Bill to give unemployment compensation insurance to all workers and to allow 25 dollars a week for a minimum of 26 weeks in any year of unemployment.

5. U. S. E. S.

We need the United States Employment Service during the reconversion period more than ever before, and we ask that the services of the U.S.E.S. should be improved to help transfer workers from war production to peace-time production.

6. Public Works

We ask that the Federal Government and the State Governments should plan useful public work projects to give work to the unemployed wherever unemployment appears. We recommend the establishment of the MVA and other river-valley developments as well as the building of needed hospitals, schools, low-cost housing and similar projects.

7. Management-Labor Cooperation

We ask that the government should join hands with labor and industry to establish a National Production Council and work out jointly to plan full production for full employment for peace.

What can YOU do about it?

The CIO 7-Point Program is a good program. It is not just a program for labor alone. It is a program for the benefit of all our people. The responsible leaders of the CIO are working hard to realize it. But they cannot realize it themselves without your help.

1. Ask your Congressman what he is going to do to protect the wage-earners in his congressional district against unemployment, and their children against want.

2. Ask your Governor and Mayor and their Councils what they are planning in local public works to improve conditions in your area and to provide jobs to workers released from war production.

3. Write or wire your Congressmen that you want them to support: continued price control; the Wagner-Murray-Dingell (Social Security) Bill; the Fair Employment Practices Committee; the appropriations for useful public works; the Murray-Patman Full-Employment Bill.

Tell your Senators and your Congressman that you will keep them personally accountable if they fail to do all in their power to help realize the People's Program for Reconversion.

Darling, if President Philip Murray's plan for an efficient national production program for reconversion goes through, and if we get the assurance of an adequate take-home pay along with successful price-control,—will you marry me?

This leaflet is based on "The People's Plan for Reconversion"
CIO-PAC's Pamphlet-of-the-Month No. 2

The PEOPLE'S PLAN for

RECONVERSION

PAC's Pamphlet of the Month No. 2

Victory Comes First

In The People's Program for 1944, and on many occasions since, we have repeated again and again that our first aim and duty is to support the war effort without reservation and help speed the day of full and final victory.

That is still our first duty and our first aim.

At the same time it is our duty to remember that while we are winning the last rounds of the war in Yuka Shima, Kumamoto and Tokyo, we must not lose the first rounds of the peace in Detroit, Pittsburgh and San Francisco. For victory on the battlefield and victory at home are one and inseparable.

We cannot tolerate the possibility that our men, who now cover themselves with glory on distant battlefields in the fight to preserve freedom and democracy, might face the prospect of returning to the humiliation of apple-selling on corners or leaf-raking on a dole.

To our men and women in the armed services, as well as to our great armies of men and women on the home front who demonstrated their zeal in the production of the tools of victory, we wish to make clear that we shall consider ourselves victorious only when we win the war and when we are assured victory over poverty and the fear of depression.

Between V-E and V-J we must establish the blueprints for a greater tomorrow.

The reconversion period is here now. It is not something that will happen in the future. Cut-backs are taking place in many areas. Hours of work are being cut. In some industries thousands of people are losing their jobs. At the same time, the war production for the needs of victory in the Pacific must not be allowed to slacken.

We are in the midst of reconversion at this very moment. We do not have as yet widespread unemployment. Many of the people leaving production centers are going home. Women are returning to household duties. Others find clerical or service jobs, which are still easy to find, but at much lower wages.

The result is that the great productive force that we have built up during the war and which can become a great force for full civilian production and increased prosperity is gradually dispersed. Already machinery is lying idle and purchasing power is declining. All this means that the returning veterans will be coming back to a sagging economy. The CIO has proposed a number of steps which must be taken without delay to prevent this condition from continuing. Under the far-sighted leadership of President Philip Murray, the National CIO has prepared several plans for the good of labor, organized and unorganized, and for the good, as well, of the farmer, the professional worker, the businessman, the housewife, and the general consumer.

In this pamphlet we present some of these plans and some of the steps that must be taken to turn these plans into realities for the good of our people. We urge you to take particular note of what you can do to secure your job and your future and help in winning the peace as you are helping in the winning of the war.

SIDNEY HILLMAN, Chairman
CIO POLITICAL ACTION COMMITTEE

CIO: This is our plan, Gentlemen!

As Goes Reconversion--
So Goes Our Future

A man at work, at good wages, is the best guarantee of a lasting peace. If, when war ends, everybody who can work has a steady job at high enough wages to buy a decent living for himself and his family, then we will be sure of our future—then we will be sure of peace.

But whether or not we have full employment after the war depends on what we do right now to protect our workers as we daily shift the balance of production from war goods to civilian and peacetime needs.

Though we still have the war in the Pacific to win, we are already face to face with cutbacks in certain war industries. It is our responsibility to prevent the cutbacks from creating chronic unemployment. It is our duty to protect the worker released from a war plant until he is working on a peacetime job. It is our duty to maintain our purchasing power at its present level.

The CIO has for some time demanded, and is now demanding again, that certain specific steps should be taken to increase wages, to legislate adequate unemployment compensation, to work out a balanced reconversion program, to keep prices from rising and the quality of consumer's goods from falling, in such a way as to assure maintenance of our purchasing power.

President Truman said: "The Congress has created the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion to co- ordinate the reconversion activities of all Federal agencies." It is our duty to demand of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion and of the Congress of the United States to co-ordinate the reconversion activities in a way that they will lead to prosperity and not to an uncontrolled boom which must inevitably end in a crash. This we must do now. This is part of the victory we must win now, as partial reconversion takes place.

Some people talk of reconversion as the probable cause of unemployment. They are wrong. Reconversion might be the excuse, but not the cause. More than 60% of all war industries do not have to be reconverted. They can start producing for peace within 24 hours. What they want to know is this: When Uncle Sam stops buying food, clothing and thousands of other items needed by the armed services, will the civilians have the money to buy all the things they want and need? If the industries can be assured of customers, and if they will produce low-priced goods instead of high-priced luxuries, reconversion will not worry us.

The war has taught us how fast we can change our production lines; how much we can increase our production; how fast we can employ all employables; how high we can raise the national income; and that we must put ceilings on rent and controls on prices to protect the people's income.

What we did for war we can and must do for peace.

And just as we acted cooperatively and continue to act cooperatively toward winning the war, we must likewise join hands to establish firmly the peace to follow.

We, of the CIO, maintain that we can "reconvert" without difficulty—we can consume all the goods we are able to produce, provided we maintain sufficient purchasing power.

If you could be sure of a job—if all the men in the armed forces could be sure of having jobs when they come back—if all the people now working could be sure of jobs at decent wages, then we would not have to worry about the future. For then we would have the necessary purchasing power.

As part of maintaining our purchasing power we must keep the cost of living from going up. And we will need to keep the production of civilian goods gradually and intelligently increasing as war production decreases and tapers off.

These things we have to do now.

What we do right now as we begin to shift over from a full war economy to peace will determine the pattern of our lives when war ends.

As goes reconversion, so goes our future.

Between V-E and V-J

The closing down of some war plants is already taking place. The cut-back in production and employment in other war plants is already taking place. The downgrading of many workers to lower scales of pay is already taking place. The fear of unemployment and want has already been planted in the hearts of many workers who have done their utmost to help win the war.

There is no reason why these things should be. With proper plans and emergency legislation we can pass from war to peace without long-term unemployment and without the fear of insecurity.

The war has demonstrated that we can produce and distribute what we want and need in this country. Labor has for some time made proposals to prepare for V-E Day, while the war in Europe was still on. These proposals still hold. We now demand that we should take immediate steps before V-J Day to prepare for full employment after the war.

We must not for one moment believe that unemployment during and after the war is like the weather—that we must accept it because we cannot do anything about it. Unemployment is not inevitable and there is a great deal we can do to banish it.

Listen to this:

> "After the war we must maintain full employment, with Government performing its peacetime functions. This means we must achieve a level of demand and purchasing power by private consumers—farmers, business men, workers, professional men, housewives—which is sufficiently high to replace wartime Government demands; and it means also that we must greatly increase our export trade above the pre-war level * * * Our policy is, of course, to rely as much as possible on private enterprise to provide jobs. But the American people will not accept mass unemployment or mere makeshift work. There will be need for the work of everyone willing and able to work—and that means close to 60,000,000 jobs."

Those are the words of our late President Roosevelt. He knew whereof he spoke.

We do not have to accept anything less than "the right to a remunerative job" guaranteed us in the Second Bill of Rights.

After the war, industry has been guaranteed tax-rebates to protect business in case it encounters lean years.

Farmers, likewise, have been guaranteed parity prices to protect them in case of lean years.

We demand that the workers should also be given some assurance of postwar security.

We can have such guarantees—provided we act, and act now, to get the people's plan for reconversion adopted without delay.

As President Murray pointed out to the Director of War Mobilization and Reconversion:

"Cut-backs are under way, workers have been laid off, and the reconversion period has begun. A formulation of wage policy to meet this condition is not a problem of the future but an immediate necessity so that workers may be able to buy enough and so that employers will be able to estimate both labor costs and consumer demand."

President Murray pointed out that "The success with which we handle the partial reconversion in the months after V-E Day will demonstrate the ways and means for the full-scale reconversion after Japan's defeat."

Here, in essence, is the CIO reconversion program:

Darling, if President Philip Murray's plan for an efficient national production program for reconversion goes through, and if we get the assurance of an adequate take-home pay along with successful price-control,—will you marry me?

1. Higher Basic Wages

We ask that the President should allow the War Labor Board to increase all basic wage rates by 20% and up to 17 cents an hour. This must be done now because of three things:

The cost of living has gone up since wages were frozen;

The output per worker has greatly increased since wages were frozen;

When war ends we will go back to a shorter work-week and we must not allow the purchasing power of workers to shrink.

And for the protection of the workers and the good of the nation, we must establish 65 cents as the minimum hourly wage.

President Truman and Judge Vinson should hear from you and your Congressmen that you want basic wage rates increased now.

2. Don't Touch That Take-Home Pay!

When cutbacks come, and we return to a shorter work-week, the pay workers receive must be adjusted upwards so that their take-home pay is no less than now. This must be done to protect the workers' standard of living, which in millions of cases is already dangerously low. Also, a sudden cut-back in purchasing power of about 20% of workers' income would start the snowball of depression rolling down a steep mountainside to the depths of a depression greater than we ever suffered.

We must do everything we can to keep the present take-home pay from being reduced.

Your Congressmen, your Mayors, and your Employers must understand that contracts should be re-negotiated so that the take-home pay is maintained.

3. Hold that Price Line

What does it benefit a man if his take-home wages are kept the same or even increased by 20%, if at the same time the cost of living goes up 50%.

After World War I, from Armistice Day to June 1920, the cost of living went up 46%. What happened to payrolls in the same period? (Watch it—watch it carefully!) Payrolls went down 44%.

If prices start going up again and payrolls start going down, what will happen to our returned servicemen who have plans for a lot of living? Their plans must take a front seat in our theatre of considerations!

We must keep prices from going up. And at the same time we must see to it that the quality of goods does not go down. A pair of shoes costing $5 which are half as good as they were before at the same price, really costs you double.

We must retain the OPA to keep a ceiling on prices. And we must add to price control, quality grading.

Representatives and Senators must hear from you now that the O.P.A. must have enough enforcement funds and must be continued for another year.

4. Retain and Improve U.S.E.S.

Some war plants will have to be closed. Some industries will have to reduce their number of employees. Other new plants making consumer goods will be opened. Certain peace-time industries will expand.

But the closing plants and the opening plants may not be in the same city or the same state.

We shall need an improved United States Employment Service to help to transfer workers to the right jobs. An efficient U.S.E.S., friendly to labor and more concerned with the welfare of the people than the present U.S.E.S., can be very helpful during the conversion period.

Labor committees must be established to work in close cooperation with the U.S.E.S. in placing workers in new jobs and in transferring some to new areas.

The work of the U.S.E.S. will be greatly aided if legislation is immediately passed to pay for the transportation of shifted workers.

You should ask your local union for a report on the local U.S.E.S. Office. You should support continuation of a national employment service for as long as necessary after the war.

5. For A Rainy Day

We must demand of Congress to pass immediate emergency legislation to increase and improve our Unemployment Compensation. We ask that all workers not now covered by Unemployment Compensation Insurance should be covered, including farm and domestic labor. We ask that Unemployment Compensation should be raised to allow a maximum of $25-a-week for a minimum of 26 weeks in any year of unemployment.

President Truman has already asked Congress for such legislation as "an indispensable form of prosperity insurance." Let us support the President's right arm until Congress heeds him.

This, of course, is only an insurance measure. If we carry out the first four points in our plan, point five will be nothing more than an umbrella for a rainy day.

Write your Congressman that you want him to support the Unemployment Compensation Bill which President Truman has called for. Get your Mayor and City Council to join you in your demand.

6. By Our Public Works--

We must also plan and approve state and federal public works projects in such a way that as soon as the number of unemployed reaches a given size, these projects are started to absorb all the unemployed.

$25 FOR 26 WEEKS
Richter

But we demand that only useful projects should be planned on a national, regional, state and local basis. The Missouri Valley Authority is a good regional example. Other river valley developments can now be planned to give employment and increase the nation's wealth and well-being. We also need hospitals, schools, improved roads, additional airport facilities, and millions of houses for low-income people who cannot afford the more expensive, privately built homes. Our needs are many.

Find out what the needs are in your own community. Discuss them with your neighbors and other workers. Take them up with your Mayor and your civic leaders. Get together in your community and let your needs be known to your Governor and your Congressmen.

Remember that in those needs we can find the blessings of full employment.

Keep your Congressmen informed of cut-backs and lay-offs in your locality. Ask him what he intends to do about it.

7. Needed: Teamwork.

The CIO was the first to recognize that to achieve full production and full employment from now on, we must plan. Labor alone cannot plan effectively. Government alone cannot plan effectively. Industry alone cannot plan effectively. They must plan together.

I can't find it anywhere in Emily Post's etiquette book, but I just know this is the right time for me to ask for 65 cents an hour.

President Philip Murray, AFL President William Green and President Eric Johnston of the United States Chamber of Commerce have joined in agreement to create a national committee, composed of business and labor, dedicated to the task of advancing the best interests of our nation.

Labor is also represented on the Advisory Board to the Director of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion.

But we need more than that.

We ask that the Advisory Board, the President and Congress move for the establishment of a National Production Council, consisting of representatives of labor, industry, agriculture, returned veterans, management and government. It should be the duty of this Council to work with Industry Councils of each mass production industry. The National Production Council should be held responsible for piloting the nation through the dangerous shoals of reconversion and bringing us safely to a lasting prosperity.

Only through teamwork between labor, industry, agriculture and government can we achieve our common goal—the people's goal of peace in an environment of economic security.

Start pushing your local Labor-Management Committees to assume more and more responsibilities for full production and full employment in each plant.

No 'Ifs' -- No 'Buts'

Everybody wants a good world. Everybody, or almost everybody, wants workers to have steady jobs and a decent living. Many people say: "If we do this we shall have what we want."

But "ifs" will not get us anywhere.

Good plans on paper and good will among a few leaders are not going to be enough to do the job.

The CIO has already worked out its plans which are to be found in the CIO 7-Point Program.

Now it is up to you, wherever you are, to help make these plans work.

Accept no "ifs" and do not let the "buts" discourage you.

Your future depends on what you do now to secure it. On the security of your job depends the welfare of the returned servicemen. On the security of your job depends the lasting peace of the world.

Here is what you can do:

Victory Visits and Community Planning

At the CIO Executive Board Meeting (March, 1945) President Philip Murray proposed:

"That in every town and city where there are CIO Local Unions there be arranged Victory Visits to the mayors, city managers, municipal councils and boards of commissioners. These Victory Visits will be for the purpose of asking: 'Where will the people of this community, now doing war work, find employment when military orders are cancelled?'

"CIO members will not be the only ones who want to know: 'What will happen in our town when the war orders are done?' To this end the Victory Visitors will propose that cooperative conferences be called by the municipal officers, attended by all the organized groups and interested individuals in the community. These should not be large meetings, but working conferences, at which manufacturers and business executives can be asked: 'What is the schedule for jobs and production in your plant? What wages will you pay to create purchasing power in this community?"

Find out at once whether there is a Community Planning Committee in your community. If there isn't, join with other workers to demand that one be established at once. If there is one, find out how well it is working and whether you can take part in it.

Make sure that it is not a committee consisting only of labor. Make sure that it truly represents the community.

Find out whether you have a CIO Council Planning Committee in your city and what it is doing about reconversion.

And find out whether in your own shop or plant there is a labor-management group working on this problem.

Flood control? Not for me!

Ask questions. Do not be satisfied with vague answers. Your job and your future are at stake. You have a right to demand that your community, your CIO Council and your labor-management committees get together to realize the CIO 7-Point Program, which is really the people's program for reconversion.

This Calls For Real Political Action

There is plenty of room for political action to help realize our program.

There are bills before the Congress and the State Legislatures dealing with: the protection of the returned soldiers and war workers; increased unemployment compensation; equal pay for equal work for women; equality of employment opportunities for Negroes; child labor laws; an increase in minimum wages; price controls and grade labelling on consumer goods; and the planning of useful public works.

Follow those bills. Study them with other workers and other members of your community. Support the good bills. Denounce the bad bills.

Next to voting the right way, the best political action is writing to your Congressmen, your Governor, your Mayor and your local newspaper. Tell them. Tell them how you feel and what you want to make your job secure.

You and I and all of us have a real job on our hands. If we do it well, we shall have the people's plan for reconversion put into action for the benefit of all.

Here's What You Can Do

1. Ask your Congressman what he is going to do to protect the wage-earners in his congressional district against unemployment, and their children against want.

2. Ask your Governor and Mayor and their Councils what they are planning in local public works to improve conditions in your area and to provide jobs to workers released from war production.

3. Ask your employer how soon he will make up his mind to get together with his workers and chart plans for employment; increases in basic wage rates; and for severance pay to workers who must be released.

4. Ask your local union leaders how you can help them in the drive to awaken your community to the urgent reconversion problems and to keep the purchasing power of the people at a high level.

5. Write or wire your Senators and your Congressman that you want them to support: continued price control; the Wagner-Murray-Dingell (Social Security) Bill; the Fair Employment Practices Committee; the appropriations for useful public works; the Murray-Patman Full-Employment Bill.

Tell your Senators and your Congressman that you will keep them personally accountable if they fail to do all in their power to help realize the People's Program for Reconversion.

This pamphlet was written by JOSEPH GAER and illustrated by MISCHA RICHTER

As goes reconversion now, so goes our future. It's the duty of every wage-earner to understand why we must have immediate increases in our basic wage rates, secure the take-home pay, and keep prices from rising again during this reconversion period. It is important for every worker to know that job security for himself spells security for the nation; and unemployment spells disaster. Each worker must join hands with all the progressive forces in the community where he lives toward the realization of the People's Program for Reconversion.

SOLDIERS' PLANS FOR FARMING AFTER THEY LEAVE THE ARMY

POST-WAR PLANS OF THE SOLDIER SERIES

REPORT No.B-131

20 DECEMBER 1944

INFORMATION AND EDUCATION DIVISION
HEADQUARTERS, ARMY SERVICE FORCES

Copy No.

POST-WAR MIGRATION PLANS OF SOLDIERS

POST-WAR PLANS OF THE SOLDIER SERIES

REPORT No.B-128

10 JANUARY 1945

INFORMATION AND EDUCATION DIVISION
HEADQUARTERS, ARMY SERVICE FORCES

SOLDIERS PLANS FOR GOVERNMENT JOBS AFTER THEY LEAVE THE ARMY

POST-WAR PLANS OF THE SOLDIER SERIES

REPORT NO. B-132

30 JANUARY 1945

INFORMATION AND EDUCATION DIVISION
HEADQUARTERS, ARMY SERVICE FORCES

POST-WAR OCCUPATIONAL PLANS OF SOLDIERS

POST-WAR PLANS OF THE SOLDIER SERIES

REPORT NO. B-129

1 March 1945

INFORMATION AND EDUCATION DIVISION
HEADQUARTERS, ARMY SERVICE FORCES

POST-WAR EDUCATIONAL PLANS OF SOLDIERS

POST-WAR PLANS OF THE SOLDIER SERIES

REPORT NO. B-133

14 MARCH 1945

INFORMATION AND EDUCATION DIVISION
HEADQUARTERS, ARMY SERVICE FORCES

Copy No.

Legco

79TH CONGRESS
1ST SESSION

S. 1078

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES

MAY 31, 1945

Mr. THOMAS of Oklahoma (by request) introduced the following bill; which was read twice and referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry

A BILL

To foster the cooperative agricultural educational work of the Extension Services; to free the Extension Services from the performance of nongovernmental functions; and to promote economy in the expenditure of public funds for the conduct of cooperative agricultural extension work, and for other purposes.

1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representa-
2 tives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,
3 That the last proviso in section 3 of the Act entitled "An 4 Act to provide for cooperative agricultural extension work
5 between the agricultural colleges in the several States re-
6 ceiving the benefits of an Act of Congress approved July
7 second, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, and of Acts sup-

1 plementary thereto, and the United States Department of
2 Agriculture", approved May 8, 1914, is amended to read
3 as follows: "Provided further, That no payment out of the 4 additional appropriations herein provided shall be made in 5 any year to any State until an equal sum has been appro-
6 priated for that year by the legislature of such State, or 7 provided by State, county, college, local, or other public
8 authority, for the maintenance of the cooperative agricul-
9 tural extension work provided for in this Act, and that 10 the matching of any Federal funds provided under author-
11 ity of this Act by funds obtained from sources other than 12 public sources is specifically prohibited."

13 SEC. 2. Section 3 of such Act of May 8, 1914, is 14 amended, effective July 1, 1947, by adding at the end
15 thereof the following: "No payment out of any funds pro-
16 vided under authority of this Act shall be made in any year
17 to any State the laws of which (1) establish a private farm
18 organization as an official cooperating agency for the State,
19 (2) require the organization of farmers as a prerequisite 20 to the conduct of cooperative agricultural work in any 21 locality, or (3) provide for the furnishing of housing, pub-
22 licity, or clerical or other similar services to any private 23 farm organization. None of the funds appropriated by or 24 under the authority of this Act or any of the Acts men-
25 tioned in this Act shall be certified to the Secretary of the

1 Treasury for payment to any State or Territory until the 2 director of cooperative agricultural extension work in such
3 State or Territory shall certify to the Secretary of Agricul-
4 ture and the Secretary of Agriculture shall find that no por-
5 tion of such funds may or will be used by such State or Ter-
6 ritory to pay all or any part of the salary, wages, or expenses
7 of any person who, during the preceding fiscal year and while 8 employed to carry out the purposes of this Act or any of the 9 Acts mentioned in this Act, has acted as representative,
10 agent, salesman, or solicitor of membership of any business,
11 commercial, or farm organization or enterprise. Any sum
12 withheld pursuant to the provisions of the foregoing sentence
13 shall be reported to the President, retained in the Treasury,
14 and disposed of in accordance with the provisions of section
15 6 of this Act."

16 SEC. 3. The fifteenth paragraph under the heading 17 "Miscellaneous" in the Act entitled "An Act making ap-
18 propriations for the Department of Agriculture for the fiscal 19 year ending June 30, 1920", approved July 24, 1919
20 (U. S. C., title 5, sec. 563), is hereby repealed.

79TH CONGRESS
1ST SESSION

S. 1078

A BILL

To foster the cooperative agricultural educational work of the Extension Services; to free the Extension Services from the performance of nongovernmental functions; and to promote economy in the expenditure of public funds for the conduct of cooperative agricultural extension work, and for other purposes.

By Mr. THOMAS of Oklahoma

MAY 31, 1945

Read twice and referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry

RR

RESEARCH REPORT

Published Monthly by
INTERNATIONAL RESEARCH DEPT.
United Automobile, Aircraft & Agricultural Implement Workers of America (UAW-CIO)

Vol. V No. 5 22 July, 1945 411 W. Milwaukee, Detroit 2, Mich.

EDITORIAL STAFF:
J. H. Wishart, Research Director
Sigmund Diamond
Lincoln Fairley
Joseph Califf
Pat Crozier

In This Issue . . .

WHY WAGE INCREASES
DISCRIMINATION—MANAGEMENT STYLE
AIRCRAFT INDUSTRY PROFITS
VINSON REPORT
PS ON PROFITS
FROM THE FILE

WHY WAGE INCREASES

Many months ago, talk about revisions in wage policy "following V-E Day" began in Washington. But though V-E Day has come and gone, and worker purchasing power counted on for postwar prosperity is being drained away in reconversion unemployment and wage cuts, no action has yet been taken.

Action now to raise wages is overdue, for it alone can turn down a future of apple-selling and economic disaster for the country.

Wartime payrolls in the automobile industry, including government-owned plants, can be estimated as follows:

AUTO PAYROLLS

	Average Employment	Total Payrolls (in billons)
1942	508,000	$1.3
1943	950,000	2.8
1944	900,000	2.6

If the industry slumps back to 1940 levels of employment, and if present straight time rates are not increased, the postwar auto industry will employ 465,000 workers and pay out not $2.8 billions annually in wages, but $1 billion.

EFFECTS

Such a 65% cut in auto workers' wages, would have the following effects:

(1) Retail business in all UAW centers would slump.

(2) Workers' wages, expected to provide buying power for postwar booms in automobiles, homes, frigidaires and other durable goods, will be used up to buy the food, clothing, and shelter necessary to a minimum standard of living.

(3) With wages going down and profits going up, any kind of postwar prosperity would become merely the first act leading to a general economic tragedy.

Labor's program of wage increases is not inflationary. Comfortable profit margins for the payment of higher wages exist throughout the industry.

Government responsibility to assure postwar full employment cannot be met by kind phrases and benevolent hopes. Determined action to maintain the income and the buying power of millions of workers is the first safeguard against postwar disaster for the nation.

Discrimination—Management Style

Industry's program for a return to unemployment, low wages, and discrimination against Negroes got off to a fast start here recently with the help of Mayor Jeffries of Detroit.

Speaking at a conference sponsored by Mayor Jeffries' interracial committee, William H. Leininger, chairman of the Detroit Committee for Economic Development, dished out large and concentrated doses of management propaganda designed to play off one group of workers against the other and blaze the trail for a return to a "reservoir" of unemployed workers.

MANAGEMENT ADVICE

Leininger glibly quoted all sorts of phony statistics to prove that industry in Detroit cannot possibly employ as many workers in the postwar period as it did for war production. His solution to the problem was to advise Negro workers to leave mass production industries and go back to the garages, filling stations, and service trades, where, though Leininger forgot to mention it, wages are far lower than in the auto industry.

This free advice from industry, especially since no one asked for it, was bad enough. But, even worse, it was accompanied by as Nazi an attack on Negroes as Detroit has heard since Gerald L. K. Smith last opened his mouth. Leininger's excuse for advising Negroes to leave industry was that "the Negro is, racially, more of an individualist than the white" and is therefore unsuited for mass production jobs. (We always thought that the greatest "individualist" of all time was a white man, named Herbert Hoover.)

The CED spokesman's blunt warning that postwar Detroit industry will not hire Negroes fits in perfectly with the editorials of the Detroit News, Mayor Jeffries' private newspaper, advising unemployed workers to pack up their unemployment and take it back south with them.

SCARCE JOBS

What Leininger and, through him, the industrialists of Detroit were really saying was that they have no intention of planning for full production and full employment. They are planning for a return to the days when they could get workers to compete for scarce jobs on the basis of race and color, when they could get unemployed workers to replace union workers at lower wages, when they could dictate wages and working conditions without a union to safeguard the interests of the workers.

Guaranteed employment for ANY worker will come only with full employment for ALL workers. So long as industry is able to count on a reservoir of unemployed workers to take the places of those who have jobs, wages will remain low and jobs will remain insecure.

Aircraft Profits

LAST month Research Report presented a comparison of the peacetime and wartime profits of the major auto and auto parts producers. A similar study of profits of aircraft companies has just been completed. The results of the study—covering the majority of the industry—show that:

- 1941-44 net sales skyrocketed 2,485.3 per cent over the 1936-39 average;
- 1941-44 profits before taxes increased 2,261.1 per cent over the 1936-39 average;
- 1941-44 profits after taxes increased 744.6 per cent over the 1936-39 average.

For the 26 companies as a whole, net sales rose from an average of $226,310,588 in 1936-39 to $5,850,802,-144 in 1941-44; profits before taxes leaped from $30,835,504 in 1936-39 to $728,046,591 in 1941-44; and profits after taxes (but including postwar and contingency reserves) shot up from a measly $20,554,274 in 1936-39 to a substantial $173,598,422 in 1941-44.

RATE OF PROFIT

Between 1936 and 1939, these aircraft companies averaged a return of 12.3 per cent on net worth. In other words, for every $100 owned by the stockholders, a profit of $12.30 was averaged. Of the 26 companies, nine actually operated at a deficit. Boeing, for example, lost $15.60 for every $100 owned by the stockholders.

Between 1941 and 1944, however, the return on net worth for the same 26 companies had shot up to 39.4 per cent (an increase of 220.3 per cent over the 1936-39 average), $39.40 for every $100 owned by stockholders. If a stockholder had invested $100 in 1941, by 1944 he would have received nearly one-third of his total investment back in the form of profits.

This average return on net worth for the aircraft industry—39.4 per cent—is about four times as large as the 9.8 per cent rate of return which, according to the National

AIRCRAFT INDU

1936-39 a

	NET SALES
	1936-39 Average	1941-44 Average	% Increase	193
Aeronca Aircraft Corp.	$ 657,110	$ 4,192,384	538.0%	**
Air Associates, Inc.	1,550,194	13,811,222	790.9
Aviation Corp.	4,373,352	49,523,195	1,032.3
Beech Aircraft Corp.	969,589	63,791,915	6,479.3
Bell Aircraft Corp.	928,447	181,696,544	19,469.9
Bellanca Aircraft Corp.	838,665	4,428,273	428.0
Bendix Aviation Corp.	36,951,280	576,984,571	1,461.5
Boeing Airplane Co.	5,422,862	397,147,438	7,223.6
Breeze Corp.	2,049,124	36,096,058	1,661.5
Cessna Aircraft Co.	209,718	40,587,385	1,925.4
Consolidated Vultee	7,993,549	539,189,797	6,445.3
Curtiss-Wright	31,200,638	*812,971,521	2,505.6
Douglas Aircraft Corp.	21,258,071	682,954,194	3,112.7
Fairchild Engine & Airplane Co.	*975,597	64,136,497	6,474.1
Hayes Mfg. Co.	1,834,493	11,128,071	506.6
Lockheed Aircraft Corp.	13,199,785	486,208,641	3,583.5
Glenn L. Martin Co.	12,661,331	392,589,501	3,000.7
North American Aviation	12,782,192	387,723,121	2,933.3
Piper Aircraft Co.	969,142	8,028,006	728.4
Ryan Aeronautical Corp.	424,663	*27,227,543	6,311.6
Timm Aircraft Corp.	*55,981	*3,514,194	54,056.1
Thompson Products, Inc.	13,059,457	66,225,988	407.1
United Aircraft Corp.	35,118,237	575,981,878	1,540.1
Waco Aircraft Co.	845,256	7,919,976	836.9
Warner Aircraft Co.	288,099	4,371,594	1,417.4
Wright Aeronautical	19,693,766	412,372,637	1,993.9
TOTAL	$226,310,588	$5,850,802,144	2,485.3%	$

*3 years average.
2 years average.
(a) Including postwar and contingency reserves.

USTRY PROFITS
nd 1941-44

PROFITS BEFORE TAXES			PROFITS AFTER TAXES (a)
6-39 Average	1941-44 Average	% Increase	1936-39 Average	1941-44 Average	% Increase
$ 25,913	$ 545,087	2,053.4%	$ 14,351	$ 166,234	1,058.34%
120,848	1,966,960	1,527.6	95,043	603,340	534.81
396,315 (def.)	9,789,682	———	593,499 (def.)	3,950,913	———
709 (def.)	10,772,839	———	17,794 (def.)	2,607,745	———
45,320	15,582,962	34,284.4	32,493	3,845,404	11,743.49
53,402	845,035	1,482.4	6,153	323,336	5,154.93
3,521,069	110,113,542	3,027.4	2,480,661	17,883,326	620.91
752,458	30,167,608	3,909.2	840,038 (def.)	7,294,040	———
185,293	8,731,901	4,612.5	130,789	1,671,042	1,177.66
1,846	7,965,937	431,424.2	3,299 (def.)	1,857,820	———
1,079,802	61,837,872	5,626.7	823,702	16,957,763	1,958.73
4,221,051	*113,823,982	2,596.6	2,954,566	*25,351,791	758.05
3,357,622	46,089,297	1,272.7	1,772,361	14,458,449	715.77
*23,474	6.475,812	27,487.2	114,694 (def.)	1,722,780	———
84,896 (def.)	1,200,737	———	138,087 (def.)	468,926	———
1,280,073	49,965,312	3,803.4	953,006	12,500,403	1,211.68
2,848,289	51,320,164	1,701.8	2,083,787	13,569,776	551.21
3,133,374	59,818,884	1,809.1	2,373,127	12,037,392	407.24
59,668	1,675,217	2,707.6	24,545	320,609	1,206.21
130,954	3,430,420	2,519.6	33,731	796,406	2,261.05
25,921 (def.)	6,658,745	———	25,653 (def.)	171,646	———
1,141,447	10,446,304	815.2	839,627	2,604,411	210.19
6,190,679	65,084,429	951.3	5,146,117	20,563,021	299.58
14,647 (def.)	432,509	———	14,939 (def.)	152,115	———
5,596 (def.)	746,241	———	5,944 (def.)	199,250	———
3,191,606	*52,559,113	1,546.8	2,544,172	*11,517,484	352.70
30,835,514	$728,046,591	2,261.1%	$20,554,274	$173,598,422	744.6%

City Bank Bulletin, was the average for all manufacturing industries for the year of 1944 alone. It is almost two-and-one-half times as large as the 1941-44 average rate of return for the auto industry, 16.1 per cent.

This tremendous increase in aircraft profits is accounted for largely, of course, by the spectacular growth of the industry: from less than 50,000 workers in the 1936-39 period to the nation's largest single industry in 1944. But that growth has not been enough to challenge the dominant position of the auto industry, or to rewrite the nation's tax laws—which now favor the auto industry—in the interests of the aircraft industry.

TAXES

That present corporation tax laws work to the advantage of older well-established industries like auto can be seen in the fact that taxes eat up a smaller percentage of their profits than they do of the profits of newer industries. Profits after taxes of the auto companies included in the recent UAW-CIO survey amounted to 75.1 per cent of profits before taxes during 1936-39, and to 41.2 per cent of profits before taxes during 1941-44. For the aircraft industry, however, profits after taxes amounted only to 66.7 per cent of profits before taxes during 1936-39, and to 23.8 per cent of profits before taxes during 1941-44. In other words, not only has the actual percentage of profits after taxes to profits before taxes been lower for aircraft than for auto, but the new tax bill of 1942—which was supposed to lop off excess wartime profits—took a deeper bite out of aircraft than out of auto profits. Profits after taxes to profits before taxes dropped 45.1 per cent from 1936-39 to 1941-44 for the auto industry, but 64.3 per cent for the aircraft industry.

The effect of the tax laws on the profits of auto and aircraft can also be shown in terms of dollar of net profit per dollar of sales. In 1936-39, the auto industry averaged a profit of 9 cents for each dollar of sales; aircraft averaged 9.1 cents of profit for each dollar of sales. In 1941-44, however, while auto dropped to 4.6 cents of net profit per dollar of sales, aircraft dropped even more sharply to 2.9 cents for each dollar of sales.

From the File

• In the Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron Co. Case (No. 111-11447-D) the Fourth Regional War Labor Board ordered time-and-a-half for call-in pay when employees are called in after having worked 40 hours and no work is available.

• President Roosevelt knew what he was talking about when he accused Congress of passing a tax bill that provided "relief for the greedy, not for the needy." In 1941, it was necessary to include incomes up to $15,000 to account for one-half of all income taxes paid. In 1942, however, after the new tax bill, nearly one-half of all income taxes were paid by persons earning less than $5,000.

• The British Government has announced that 200,000 cars, of which 100,000 will be exported, will be produced during the next 12 months. In France, 90,000 trucks and 60,000 cars are to be turned out in the year beginning July 1.

• In 1939, the gross value of the entire aircraft industry in the United States was $114 million. In 1945, U. S. government investments alone in the aircraft industry amounted to $3.6 billion.

• When Gerald L. K. Smith appeared in the city of Chicago recently, he spoke at the hall owned by the Plasterers Benevolent and Protective Union, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

• When Senator Robert Taft proposed an amendment to the price control act guaranteeing a profit for all manufacturing companies, he was coming pretty close to Nazi economics. In Germany, stockholders were guaranteed by law a 6 per cent return on their investment free from both corporation and income taxes. Alfred Krupp, whose investment in the Krupp Works amounted to 160 million marks, raked in 9,600,000 marks each year free from all taxes.

• According to the London Daily Telegraph, Herr von Schnitzler, chief of I. G. Farben in Germany, told the officers who captured him: "Gentlemen, it is a pleasure to be working with you again." He explained that he was looking forward to visiting his "friends, the DuPonts, and several other people in the United States and Britain."

Vinson Report

Fred M. Vinson is not numbered among that group of government officials who feel that all problems of the nation will be solved by giving big business a free hand. His recent report as Mobilization Director clearly recognizes that government must guide reconversion toward the goals of peacetime full production and employment.

Increased unemployment benefits, protection for the farmer, steps to check monopoly practices or to speed reconversion, higher wages, effective control of prices, and the Murray full employment bill are all measures which Vinson supports for this purpose.

SHORTCOMINGS

But in some spots Vinson's report falls short of the measures required if peacetime full employment is to be made a reality.

• He is for higher wages. But he is not for government action required now to counteract fully the downswing in payrolls which has marked the last three months.

• He is for continued price controls but with some dangerous reservations.

• His proposals for cutting sales taxes are sound. When he proposes cuts in corporation taxes, he appears to be conceding to the pressure of business groups who have urged the complete elimination of corporation or profit taxes after the war. Since Vinson has replaced that loyal New Dealer, Henry Morgenthau, as Secretary of the Treasury, his views on taxes are of special significance.

Eliminate corporation taxes, say certain industrialists, and you will cut production costs, thereby paving the way for wage increases and price reductions. Then profits can be taxed when they are paid out as dividends.

BAD THEORY

This is bad economic theory. Profits taxes are not a cost of production (they stop automatically when profits stop). Higher profits are not usually followed by voluntary price cuts and wage increases—particularly when industry price structures are monopoly controlled or administered. Taxes on dividends can always be avoided by holding profits in corporate treasuries to increase the value of the stockholders' investment.

On this question, therefore, somebody has sold Mr. Vinson a gold brick. Cuts in normal corporation taxes to be offset by increases in individual income taxes mean more money to the rich and less to the poor. It is from such prescriptions that depressions are compounded.

PS on Profits

Since the Ford Motor Co. is not required and does not publish an annual income account, it is impossible to get yearly figures on the profits of the company. Ford has just filed a statement, however, with the Massachusetts Commissioner of Corporations and Taxation which gives some indication of the company's financial position.

Cash, notes, and accounts receivable rose from about $504 million in 1943 to about $630 million in 1944, an increase of 25 per cent. At the same time, accounts payable dropped from $258 million to $239 million, for a decrease of 7.4 per cent.

At the same time, the surplus account of the corporation rose 2.4 per cent, from $669,102,290 in 1943 to $685,034,092 in 1944—an increase of just about $16 million in the single year. And just in case anyone should have any fears, Ford is still in the blue-ribbon list of billion dollar corporations. Total assets of the company in 1944 amounted in $1,021,325,159, as compared with $1,009,092,488 in 1943.

RESEARCH REPORT
Official Publication, International Union, United Automobile, Aircraft & Agricultural Implement Workers of America, UAW-CIO.
Published Monthly by International Research Department
Publication Office: 6543 Sylvester Ave., Detroit 7, Mich.
Entered as second-class matter May 18, 1944, at the post office at Detroit, Michigan, under the Act of August 24, 1912.

GEORGE MITCHELL, REG. DIR.,
CIO POLIT. ACTION COMM.,
75 IVY ST.,
ATLANTA, GA.

PA

RESEARCH REPORT

Published Monthly by
INTERNATIONAL RESEARCH DEPT.
United Automobile, Aircraft & Agricultural Implement Workers of America (UAW-CIO)

Vol VI No. 3 PRINTED IN U. S. A. March, 1946

PUBLICATION OFFICE—2457 E. Washington St., Indianapolis 7, Ind.
EDITORIAL OFFICE—411 W. Milwaukee, Detroit 2, Mich.

EDITORIAL STAFF
J. H. Wishart, Research Director
Sigmund Diamond Pat Crozier

In This Issue . . .

PRICE CONTROL—NAM STYLE
BLUEPRINT FOR ROBBERY
WAGE RATES
KEEP CAR PRICES DOWN
SALES, LABOR COSTS, AND PROFITS
REVIEW AND FORECAST
SPEED-UP
VETS
LIVING COSTS
FROM THE FILE

PRICE CONTROL—NAM STYLE

The cure for inflationary high prices is higher prices. The way to control the cost of living is to give up all attempts to control it.

That is the crazy economic theory which blossomed out recently in full-page advertisements signed by the National Association of Manufacturers.

Even though NAM economic logic may be insane, even though the people can never be convinced that up is down or that the way to lower prices is to raise them—the doctrine of the NAM is still dangerous. It is dangerous because it is backed up by billions of dollars and all the political power those dollars can muster.

INFLATION

Industry's campaign to cut take-home pay is being smashed against the solid resistance of the CIO. But the campaign to cut the buying power of workers' pay through inflation has been moving forward ominously.

Industry, denied the right to make super-profits through wage cuts, is now intensifying its fight for super-profits through price increases.

Price control, therefore, is threatened not by the level of wages, but by the terrific drive of big industry for higher profits.

Wage increases will not require the lifting of a single price in the cost-of-living index.

PROOF

Here is the proof:

1. A 15% increase in the nation's private wage and salary bill in 1946—about $64 billion—would amount to $9.6 billion. This is estimated without making any allowance for increases in productivity which may cut the wage bill for the year by as much as 10%.

2. Business was expected to make $18 billion in profits before taxes this year and $11 billion after taxes.

3. Subtracting the total wage

(Continued on Page 4)

Blueprint for Inflation

Prices on Ford Cars Requested Last Summer by the Ford Motor Company

	1942 Price	Requested Price	Per Cent Increase
Super De Luxe 2-door	$895.00	$1,388.20	55.1
Super De Luxe 4-door	930.00	1,429.29	53.7
Super De Luxe Coupe	920.00	1,396.91	51.8
De Luxe 2-door	850.00	1,339.33	57.6
De Luxe 4-door	885.00	1,378.11	55.7
De Luxe Coupe	815.00	1,277.56	56.8

(In 1938 a Ford 4-door sedan was priced at $705. For the same model the 1946 price is $989—a 40% increase. Ford's request would have upped the percentage to 102%.)

Wage Rates

The last few years have seen real increases in the wage rates for auto workers. Average hourly earnings, including recent wage increases, are now above $1.40.

How they stood in the past is revealed by the following table:

1925	$0.71	1940	$0.95
1935	.73	1945	1.22

The UAW-CIO has succeeded in doubling auto workers' money earnings in one ten-year period. In the ten-year period before the union (1925-1935) hourly earnings rose only 2 cents, while hourly output per worker, according to the Department of Commerce, rose nearly 75%.

WEEKLY PAY

In money terms, weekly wages have increased rapidly since 1941. In January of that year, $37.66 went into the average auto worker's weekly pay envelope. By April, 1945, the pay envelope was $58.28. After deductions the auto worker had considerably less; and when the money went across the counter to the butcher or to buy a new pair of shoes for the kids, it seemed to lack the power of the green stuff which went into pay envelopes a few years back.

The ending of the war dropped weekly earnings to an average of $47.04, even while the cost of living continued to climb.

Increases in hourly rates will bring auto workers' weekly pay back to the neighborhood of $55 —somewhat less than wartime earnings.

What that will mean in terms of food, clothing and shelter will be determined by what happens to the cost of living.

According to the Heller Budget, $3,084 a year at 1945 prices ($59.32 per week) is a minimum income for a worker's family of four, with no provision whatsoever for savings, and with allowances for current tax reductions.

Keep Car Prices Down

If the evidence is strong that industry as a whole need not increase prices to meet current wage increases, proof of that fact for the automobile industry by itself is overwhelming. The table below presents the pre-war picture of the industry. In 1941 the industry could have added 63c to every dollar paid out in wages before reaching zero profits. If an 18½c wage increase had been given to every worker in the industry that year, approximately $187 million would have been added to the industry's wage bill. That would have left profits before taxes for the corporations to divide among themselves amounting to $677 million—rather than $864 million. Even that reduced figure would have been a record-breaking take for producers of cars and trucks.

The Department of Commerce predicts for 1946, assuming cautiously a production level 10% below that of 1941, that profits would be about $600 million for the industry. This compares with the 1936-39 average of $336 million.

$1.50 AN HOUR

This by no means exhausts the profit possibilities of the industry. When capacity production is reached, according to Commerce Department estimates, the industry can pay wages amounting to $1.50 per hour, meet material costs which have been upped by 10%, hold to 1942 car price ceilings, and wind up the year with profits at more than 250% of the pre-war average.

These estimates are based on the assumption that labor productivity in 1946 will be no higher than it was in 1941, and that no more than a normal increase in productivity will come with the attainment of full production.

PRODUCTIVITY

This estimate, based on the closest analysis and study, is, of course, in conflict with the wild charges spread by George Romney of the Automobile Manufacturers' Association. The clear-cut economic analysis of the Department of Commerce shows that in the period of UAW organization, from 1935 to 1941, pounds produced by the average auto worker per hour increased from 17.52 to 20.80. This is a 19% increase in productivity in a six-year period. That took place at a time when, according to Romney, the UAW was engaged in a conspiracy to slow down the operations of the automobile industry.

Sales, Labor Costs, and Profits

AUTO INDUSTRY

	Total Income* (Millions)	Labor Costs* (Millions)	Profits Before* Fed'l. Inc. Tax (Millions)	Profits Per Wage Dollar
1929	$4,405	$951	$497	$0.52
1931	2,040	487	43	.09
1933	1,403	321	44	.14
1935	2,847	660	311	.47
1937	3,665	961	404	.42
1939	3,078	766	368	.48
1941	5,149	1,363	864	.63
			Average:	$0.39

*U. S. Department of Commerce

Review and Forecast

Continued refusal of GM to meet the fair demands of the UAW-CIO kept auto production at low levels in the first two months of 1946. About 100,000 cars and trucks were produced then, compared with the 400,000 or more units per month the industry is expected to turn out at full production.

Although the physical job of reconversion has been completed for months, output of manufacturers other than GM continued to drag far below capacity. Behind this lay a number of causes:

- Universal grabbing and hoarding of critical supplies. (By December, auto industry inventories were 85% above normal, but every producer lacked one or more items which competitors had piled up in surplus inventory.)
- Refusal of some parts producers to get into production without increased prices.
- Refusal of industry to settle strikes in GM and other plants producing critically needed parts and subassemblies.

SPEED-UP

Newest darling of Big Business?

None other than John L. Lewis.

The February issue of the "National City Bank Bulletin" gives Lewis a pat on the eyebrow for having sent all anthracite miners a letter advising them that "every effort must be made to bring about increased production per man per day. . . . Each individual member of the organization knows in his heart if he can increase his daily production of coal. Let each man, then, examine his own conscience . . . and act accordingly."

The directors of the National City Bank, who approve heartily of the Lewis speed-up, include Gerard Swope, of General Electric; Sosthenes Behn, of International Telephone and Telegraph; C. E. Dodge, of Phelps Dodge; J. R. Hobbins, of Anaconda Copper; and A. P. Giannini, of the Bank of America, second biggest bank in the U. S.

WAR RECORD

Present auto production is about 25% of expected peacetime capacity. It is no more than 10% of the record-smashing wartime output.

The auto industry turned out from December 1941 to August 1945 a total of $28 billion of war materials.

This poison for dictators broke down as follows:

Aircraft and parts	$11,244,857,000
Military vehicles and parts	8,591,143,000
Tanks and parts	3,781,356,000
Marine equipment	1,951,658,000
Guns, artillery and parts	1,589,841,000
Ammunition and components	907,535,000

These totals represent the contribution of workers in the auto industry alone. They do not include the sky-high production totals of UAW-CIO workers in the aircraft industry.

On the average, the U. S. Government was paying about one-third less for UAW-CIO war products in 1945 than it had paid in 1941 and 1942.

EMPLOYMENT

The end of the war for the common man brought considerable unemployment to the common men of the automobile and aircraft industries.

Out of two million workers who were employed in aircraft, not more than 175,000 were still in the industry by the first of 1946. Employment is not expected to swell much above the 300,000 worker level at any time in the foreseeable future. The war's end displaced 1,700,000 aircraft workers permanently.

AUTO

Such mass unemployment has not been suffered by auto workers. But only in comparison with the slash in aircraft could the cut from 900,000 wartime auto workers to present employment of less than 500,000 seem moderate.

Automobile production is expected to increase by 400% or more within coming months, but employment by not much over 20%. Even at the record-breaking output prophesied for the next few years, total employment will not rise much above 600,000, according to the plans of auto industry executives.

This, it should be understood, is a matter of deliberate policy chosen by executives of the industry. It is a matter of corporate policy rather than the relentless operation of any eternal economic law.

In its postwar plan released last year, the UAW-CIO showed how employment for upwards of 900,000 auto workers could be achieved. This would call for building mass purchasing power at home, through wage increases and price cuts; for full employment policies from government; and for democratically expanding foreign trade policies.

All this, of course, runs against the grain of those who call the tune for the automobile industry. High profits and high prices, low volume and low employment is their formula. Only economic and political action from labor can counteract this industry prescription for economic disaster.

VETS

Forbes Magazine, which calls itself "Adviser to Business," was advised by vets recently that unions are giving them a better break than management. The first question was: "Do you feel business is playing fair with veterans in filling jobs?" Of those vets with a decided opinion, 40% answered "yes," while 60% answered "no." But when asked, "Do you feel unions are doing their best to aid you as a veteran?" 62% answered "yes" and only 38% "no."

From the File

• The following is quoted from a review of a book called "When Foreman and Steward Bargain" which appeared in the January issue of the "NICB Management Record," required reading for executives: "Mr. Gardiner's premise in the field of labor relations is that honesty, sincerity, consistency, openmindedness and fairness should prevail. This program obviously requires long-range planning."

• Manufacturing industry payrolls dropped 36% during the 12 months from December 1944 to December 1945. In the durable goods industries, which were most completely involved in war production, the decline has been even greater, amounting to 49%.

• According to a recent study by the National Bureau of Economic Research, productivity in the automobile industry rose more rapidly in the period 1909-37 than in any other industry. In each of those years, the number of workers per unit of output dropped 7.1% and the number of manhours per unit of output dropped 8.5%.

• According to the Federal Reserve Board, liquid asset holdings of business increased 305% from December 1939 to December 1945, while personal holdings rose only 220%. Total liquid business assets are now $79.8 billion, compared with $19.7 billion in 1939.

• According to the Securities and Exchange Commission, net working capital of U. S. corporations reached the greatest peak in history shortly after V-J Day. As of September 1945, business coffers were bursting with $50.9 billion in net working capital, compared with $44.9 billion in September 1944, $32.1 billion in 1941, and $24.6 billion in 1939.

Living Costs

The next round in the battle is being fought on the price front.

The increase in living costs since before the war has already been much greater than official figures indicate. According to the Office of Economic Stabilization, the rise in prices of consumers' goods and services since January 1941 has been 33%. But the study which Philip Murray and R. J. Thomas made, "Living Costs in World War II," showed that workers' living costs had gone up 45.3% between January 1941 and March 1944. With allowance for a further rise since March 1944 of at least 4.5%, the whole rise in living costs since January 1941 amounts to 52%.

WAGES

Even if no further price rises were in sight, the auto workers' prewar average weekly earnings of $37.66 would have to be increased to $57.24 simply to enable them to buy as much each week as they did in January 1941. How can we hope to have full production and full employment when workers cannot even buy as much as prewar despite immense increases in their ability to produce?

The robbery of inflation must be stopped. That can be done only through effective political action based on the full unity of labor and the common people of America.

Price Control

(Continued from page 1)

increase from total profits (18—9.6) would leave industry with a cool $8.4 billion of profits before taxes. After taxes profits would be $5.7 billion.

Could industry operate at this lowered level of profit? Would it force the Rockefellers and the Morgans and the Du Ponts into bankruptcy? Hardly.

In the four pre-war normal years (1936-1939) U. S. corporations received income after taxes averaging not $5.7 billion but $3.4. Corporations as a whole could pay a 15% wage increase without increasing prices to consumers and come up with profits averaging 68% above normal.

Some readjustment of profits and prices among industries might be necessary; for instance, certain auto parts plants operating on very low profit margins might have to increase prices a few percentage points on items sold to GM. Such price increases could be met out of the fabulous profit margins of that giant automobile producer without lifting an additional cent from the final consumer.

FORD

When Economic Stabilizer Bowles reported that the Ford Motor Company had urged a 55% lift above 1942 levels for price ceilings on Ford cars, he revealed exactly what the NAM program would mean. And the Ford proposal was made, it should be remembered, before wage increases had been asked or given.

RESEARCH REPORT

Official publication, International Union, United Automobile, Aircraft and Agricultural Implement Workers of America (UAW-CIO).

Published monthly by International Research Department.

Publication Office:
2457 E. Washington St., Indianapolis 7, Indiana.

Entered as second-class matter February 1, 1946, at the Post Office at Indianapolis, Ind., under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Subscription Rates: 50c per year. Bundle Copies—4c each up to 100 copies; 3c each over 100 copies.

Please send notices of change in address on Form 2578, and copies returned under labels No. 3579 to 2457 East Washington Street, Indianapolis 7, Indiana.

War Department

Special Issue

Georg S. Tuliard

occupational

WHAT THE SOLDIER THINKS

INTRODUCTION 1

I. GOING BACK HOME 3

II. SETTING UP SHOP 5

III. A CAREER ON THE FARM 8

POST-WAR PLANS OF THE SOLDIER

IV. WORKING FOR WAGES 10

V. A GOVERNMENT JOB 12

VI. BACK TO SCHOOL 13

VII. AN ARMY CAREER 15

RESEARCH BRANCH . INFORMATION AND EDUCATION DIVISION
ARMY SERVICE FORCES

Reprinted from ASSOCIATION OF AMERICAN COLLEGES BULLETIN,
Volume XXX, Number 3, October, 1944, pages 454–467.

WHY A RETIREMENT PLAN?

RAINARD B. ROBBINS
VICE-PRESIDENT AND SECRETARY, TEACHERS INSURANCE AND ANNUITY ASSOCIATION OF AMERICA

This article is addressed to Boards of Trustees and administrative officers of colleges and universities because the discussion is from their point of view. Great though the advantage of a retirement plan is to its individual participants, stress of this aspect of the subject is omitted in the interests of brevity.

BOARDS of college trustees and administrative officers testify that plans for retirement and for income after retirement help them

(1) To part in a socially acceptable manner with superannuated staff members;
(2) To attract new staff members of the best type;
(3) To hold the most valuable of their associates; and
(4) To part amicably with those who must leave before retirement, whether for reasons personal to the individuals or inherent in college changes.

Every college should plan definitely for the retirement of staff members as they become superannuated. A square deal with students and their parents demands that a professor be taken out of the classroom when the ravages of age impair his power as an instructor. A square deal with taxpayers and other contributors to the college budget demands that salary shall not be continued when reasonable services can no longer be rendered. A square deal to the faculty, as well as to other parties concerned, demands that this same attitude be taken with respect to the president and other adminisrative officers.

Object lessons are hardly necessary. You can fill in your own illustrations to show the harm that results when a professor or an officer, beloved by alumni, remains in harness after his productive vigor is gone. You know the financial and personnel problems that arise if you must pay full salary and still "work around" a well-meaning patriarch after his power has waned. Economy can hardly be expected of the administration if substantial payments from current funds bring no return in current service.

Unfortunately, several hundred colleges and universities in the United States have as yet failed to plan with any definiteness for the retirement of superannuated workers in either the professional or maintenance group. The presidents of some of these institutions are complacent to "think not of the morrow." Others are far from happy, but contend that funds are not available even for essential current needs.

Those responsible for the administration of our colleges and universities continually face the problem of how to use a limited income to greatest advantage. At every turn they must choose between a variety of uses of scanty dollars; current needs seem ever pressing. If plans for retirement income are to receive serious consideration, administrative officers, trustees and generous friends of the college must be convinced that these plans are fundamental for the welfare of the college.

Elements of a Retirement Plan

A retirement plan is definitely dual in nature; it is a plan for retirement and for income after retirement. With human nature what it is, most individuals, if left to their own devices, will fail to provide adequately for old-age income; and the governing bodies of colleges will not retire professors and other workers as early as they should be retired unless a source of more than bare subsistence income is in sight for them.

No college board is justified in holding out expectations of substantial payments to retired workers years in advance of the period of payment unless it lays definite plans to see that funds will be available from which payments can be made. Nor is it fair for a current administration to pledge the revenues of a succeeding administration toward the pensioning of present teachers. Furthermore, the transactions and precautions necessary to give assurance of ability years hence to pay such benefits are foreign to the purposes for which a college operates, and neither should be confused with or endangered by the other.

Hence a large majority of the contributory college plans for retirement income consist of arrangements by which both the college and the staff member make payments to a third party in return for its promises to pay annuities to the staff members beginning at an advanced age, presumably when they retire from service. In this way, through current payments as service is rendered and in recognition of this service, the institution assures itself that staff members will receive income after retirement. When retirement occurs, the institution has no further obligation and the third party, a life insurance company, begins contractual payments to the individual to replace in a modest way the salary payments that the college has been making.

Values of a Retirement Plan to a College

Ostensibly a contributory retirement plan is a simple savings scheme to provide income after retirement, but its significance has come to be far greater. College administrators have repeatedly verified that a carefully constructed plan helps also to attract promising staff members, to hold those who have proved to be valuable and to part before retirement with those who may do better elsewhere. Brief comments on each of these values may he helpful.

To attract good men. Some of the most promising young professional men have declined offers of otherwise attractive appointments because no satisfactory procedure was in operation during service years to provide for retirement income. Such declinations are becoming commoner as more and more of our better institutions inaugurate contributory retirement plans, to the point that some college presidents, in desperation, are placing the establishment of such a plan in the "must" category. In making such decisions, some individuals think only of themselves and their families; others have in mind that during their working years they want to be associated with hopeful, aggressive and progressive leaders in their profession, and they feel that the prospects for such an experience are poor if provision for retirement is not systematized. It is a legitimate hope of a young man who has already shown his ability in his special field that he may some day be head of his department and assume the responsibility of maintaining a corps of able, productive associates. To expect to do this pleasantly and, at the same time, keep fit for the best professional work is difficult at an institution that has failed to face the retirement problem.

Twenty-five years ago colleges were leaders in the establishment of retirement plans. Today, with Social Security coverage in the picture for industrial employees and with many prominent business corporations providing substantial supplementary social benefits, the college with no formal provisions for old-age income and survivors' benefits is falling far behind. Its staff members see these provisions being made all about them and must realize that in every purchase of goods or services they are helping to support social benefits for other workers without having any expectation of similar benefits for themselves or other members of their families.

To hold good men. Many college administrators testify that a satisfactory retirement plan has helped to hold their best men. Certainly, in competition with an institution with a well-developed retirement plan, an institution without such a plan is at a distinct disadvantage. On the other hand, when uncertainty exists regarding the future of an institution or a department but prospects are otherwise bright and conditions are pleasant, an individual can afford to await developments if he knows that he may leave at any time without sacrificing provision that has already been made for retirement income. This he knows will help to make him welcome at another institution even at a fairly advanced age.

To part with misfits. It is common knowledge that cases arise in which normal professional growth seems inhibited. Unfortunately, a promising beginner may lose his promise through a variety of causes; and not infrequently a change of scene is a life saver through the consequent renewal of an outpouring of energy that never would have come without the change. Climatic conditions may be the cause, whether it apply to the worker or to another member of his family. Or conflicting personalities, whether between a worker and a colleague—particularly one of superior rank and authority—or between the wives of these men, or even more intimate personal difficulties may dictate that severance of connection with a particular institution is the only solution for both the institution and the individual. These situations arise with considerable frequency and, when they do, the presence of a plan for retirement income so constructed that the individual in trouble may carry with him the whole of the provision for retirement income that would have been earned to date had service continued, facilitates substantially the separation. It may give the worker a new lease on life at another institution where he would otherwise be unwelcome because his comparatively advanced age would make of him a retirement burden.

These are then some of the values to an institution of a well-constructed retirement plan, and it is obvious that, with respect to these values, the interests of the institution and of its staff members are harmonious. When a worker is restless and discontented and shows a desire to leave an institution, it will perhaps be best for both that they part company no matter how valuable have been the worker's services to the institution. When, for any substantial reason, officers of higher rank think best that the services of an individual should be discontinued, the welfare of that individual probably lies in the direction of a separation. At any rate, personnel contrivances that ease such partings are of value and any that interfere are probably to that extent harmful.

No Forfeitures Upon Withdrawal

For a retirement plan to exact a forfeiture of benefit prospects upon separation is to be deplored, and especially so if the magnitude of the forfeiture increases with years of service. Such a plan does positive harm by tying mediocre men to their jobs and, in the long run, the institution will collect far more than its share of unambitious time-servers who have lost their energy, their imagination and their loyalty for the institution, and are waiting discontentedly for the time when they will have completed the arbitrary conditions for retirement with incomes that are invariably incorporated in such plans.

Value of Retirement Plans to Education as an Institution

Occasionally we still meet the narrow argument that a retirement plan should deliberately penalize withdrawal as a means of minimizing turnover of staff members. Fortunately for our colleges, this point of view was scorned from the beginning of the movement toward contributory retirement plans twenty-five years ago. In urging the formation of these plans, the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching was not interested in the welfare of any particular college; its objective was to raise professional standards in higher education as a whole.

College retirement plans have repeatedly facilitated the transfer between educational institutions of professional men of great ability who would have been continued enthusiastically at their old jobs. The institution that loses such a man is apt to consider itself poorer from the loss. Without question, however, this free mobility of professional talent, facilitated as it is by the transfer of non-forfeitable, non-cashable pension equities, is one of the strengths of our system of higher education. And, in the course of a generation, all institutions with qualities that justify their survival are the richer for the fusion thus brought about of a large variety of backgrounds, points of view, training and experience.

Deterrents to the Inauguration of Retirement Plans

It may be helpful to consider some of the explanations given at different institutions for failure to plan for retirement. Some college administrators have convinced themselves that they have no need for such plans. Of this group, some will say that the college fulfills its obligation when it pays adequate salaries; that, when an individual can no longer do his work because of old age or for any other reason, the college will dismiss him with no responsibility for his later support. Others contend that their professional staff members get more valuable the longer they live, and that maintenance employees can be shifted to lighter tasks as they get older and can thus be continued in service indefinitely.

But retirement plans have attained sufficient standing that the officers at most colleges without them are admittedly on the defensive. The most frequent attitude is a claim to realize the value of a funded plan and regret that the means necessary to inaugurate one are simply not available. Other administrators who recognize the value of retirement plans are procrastinating with the explanation that it would be unwise to inaugurate a comprehensive plan and then have to make adjustments almost immediately if and when the coverage of the Social Security Act is extended to include employment for colleges and universities. Perhaps this explanation is made easier by a belief that this extension would take care of a large part of the college's prospective pension load so that hope of the extension relieves the urgency of independent action. These deterrents will be considered in some detail.

Poverty. A large number of college presidents and college trustees dismiss all thought of provision for retirement income with the explanation that they cannot afford it. Yet many of these colleges are better off financially than are a number of sister institutions with well-thought-out retirement plans. It has been well said that a university is its faculty and students. Wherever administrative officers and trustees of an institution are impressed with the thought that the character of the operating personnel is more important than buildings and equipment, outlays for retirement income take precedence over those for many other purposes, even in the face of financial stringency. And some institutions have demonstrated that the best safeguard against an empty purse and depleted enrollments is an able, vigorous faculty centering attention on fundamental courses of instruction.

Individual responsibility. The number of college presidents and trustees who carry their rugged individualism to the point of contending that provision for income after retirement is the affair of the worker alone is dwindling. Certainly an individual has no difficulty finding a life insurance agent who will sell him a deferred annuity contract; the contractual means to provide retirement income are all about. But employers have long since learned that individual workers, in no substantial number, buy these contracts on their own initiative. If the employer does not plan retirement income beforehand, he has the choice of providing pensions when retirement is necessary or dismissing large numbers with no visible means of support. The second alternative is being eliminated rapidly by public sentiment. Hence those with administrative responsibility are learning that their theories of personal responsibility are beside the point.

Power wanes with age. Senescence is no respector of persons, titles or types of work. Sooner or later it comes to all. The only way to avoid it is to die young. Perhaps it is most harmful in a college when it comes to a president or a dean or a department head; but it can be extremely troublesome in the rank and file of maintenance workers. At least one college president is convinced that practically none of his faculty members realizes it when he should retire; I wonder if he will. Some professors who put their whole souls into their special productive work seem almost oblivious of what is about them and, not infrequently, they are distinctly shocked by the suggestion that they retire. This is at times aggravated by a younger and more vigorous wife who is outraged at the thought that her partner is growing old.

Among colleges and other non-profit institutions there are unfortunately some elderly administrators who will not admit deterioration in fitness for regular occupations with advancing age. Not infrequently everyone in the organization, excepting the aged president, or chairman of the board, realizes the shortcomings of many faithful workers who have grown old in service. Yet this top officer wields much power; his board is not willing to overrule him or to volunteer proposals that should come from him. They recognize the outstanding contribution that this officer has made to the institution in years gone by, and no one member of the board feels his responsibility with sufficient keenness to suggest a change.

Repeatedly these conditions have been revealed finally through retirement or death of the elderly officer. A newly appointed administrator sees most clearly what was hidden from his predecessor through long years of familiarity and he soon experiences difficulties in hurried revamping that should have been done gradually over a much longer period.

It is indeed unfortunate that these situations arise, but the best mechanism to minimize them, both in number and severity, is a well-thought-through contributory plan for retirement income. Such a plan, established when personnel conditions are normal, and administered with meticulous care so that its operation may gradually come to be to a large extent automatic, will avoid embarrassments that would otherwise arise when powerful officers lose their perspective as a result of the very senescence that justifies the plan's existence. This does not mean that decisions as to retirement should be either arbitrary or capricious, nor does it mean that part-time service at advanced age is undesirable.[1] It does mean that care should be taken continually to see that old age does not result in unsatisfactory service, no matter how kindly or how loyal, and that, as a simple accounting practice,

[1] It is beyond the scope of this statement to go into further detail. Conviction is growing that retirement practices are too arbitrary and that, in the future, retirement resolutions will require that administrators exercise discretion in recommendations as to retirement and, perhaps, as to continuation of service on a part-time basis.

budgets for current service should not be confused with pension payments in recognition of former service.

Social Security coverage. For half a dozen years, proposals have recurred that old age and survivors' provisions of the national Social Security Act be extended to cover

(a) employment for privately-administered, non-profit institutions; and
(b) public employment, i.e., employment by the national, state and city governments.

Privately-administered colleges and universities come under the first classification; state and municipal institutions of higher education, along with all other public educational institutions, come under the second classification. So far as any one can tell, either or both of these extensions may come in a few years or may be long delayed. Hence administrative officers in some of those institutions that have not yet established retirement plans question whether they should act soon or wait to see what will happen at Washington.

The answer to this question seems clear. With half a dozen years of doubt and with our national governmental machinery now thoroughly engrossed in international problems, it seems that an educational institution should no longer delay the establishment of a retirement plan. Such a plan is in the nature of systematic saving over a long period of years to provide income in old age. When as much as six years is cut from the possible saving period, either a substantial dent is made in the objective that can be attained or a substantial increase must be made in the periodic burden to attain the original objective.

An institution might well hesitate to inaugurate a contributory retirement plan if a substantial sacrifice would result from subsequent interruption of contributions. But no such sacrifice is involved in any plan making use of TIAA contracts. Premiums already paid for these contracts purchase benefits quite independently of any future premiums.

If amendment of the Social Security Act makes it seem desirable to modify or discontinue a plan now operating, the benefits already purchased will become available to add to whatever may be produced under the Government plan, and any desired modification of premiums may be continued in the future to swell the total benefit. Furthermore, the Social Security provisions are quite modest and colleges will probably desire to provide substantial supplementary benefits, especially for professional staff members. If and when this change takes place, all college retirement plans should be scrutinized in detail and amendments will be in order. However, haste will be much less important than care in this review. Overlapping for a few months of contributions for retirement income will do no harm; corresponding benefits will be independent of each other and, when we consider the inadequacy of most plans today, a short period of overlapping without modification of the existing plan seems preferable to any hasty repudiation of present plans.

With these prospects in mind, it seems that no institution should longer delay establishment of a retirement plan because of possible amendment of the Social Security Act. Every such plan should contain a definite reservation of the institution's right to modify or discontinue the plan at any time; no such amendment would affect a participant's equities previously established as these are protected by a contract with a third party.

Responsibility for Retirement Planning

When social benefits are proposed, the tendency of some college presidents is to appoint a committee of the faculty to look into the question and, not infrequently, we hear the statement that the administration favored the establishment of a retirement plan but the faculty voted it down. This indicates a failure on the part of the administrative forces to grasp the true function of a retirement plan. The administration must shoulder the responsibility of keeping the college on its toes. Rarely do the long-run interests of the college and individual faculty members conflict, but the administration must decide what is best for the college as an institution and it is thoroughly justified in making participation in a retirement plan a condition of employment on the ground that the best interests of the college cannot otherwise be preserved.

It is gratifying that staff members usually welcome an opportunity to participate in a retirement plan and that committees of such organizations as the AAUP have done so much to impress the importance of planning for retirement; but responsibility for such planning rests squarely on those in administrative positions and cannot be shifted to any other shoulders.

These thoughts lead to the suggestion that the administration should take the lead in any study preceding the inauguration or improvement of a retirement plan; it should be aggressive in the determination of the fundamental provisions of such a plan; it may do actual harm by submitting such questions to a vote of prospective participants unless the voters can have a thorough understanding of all that is involved, not only from the standpoint of their interest as individuals, but also from the standpoint of the satisfactory functioning of the college as a whole.

Some Desirable Features of a Contributory Retirement Plan

To get best results from a contributory retirement plan, it is essential to look after a number of technical details; unfortunately, some college administrators have been content to have "a plan" in operation without bothering to learn that some of these details need attention:

1. Participation in the plan should, after a chosen preliminary service period, be required of all excepting definitely temporary or part-time workers. The individual who fails to participate in a voluntary plan is apt to be just the person with respect to whom the advantages to be gained by the plan are most needed.
2. Provision for retirement income should be non-forfeitable and non-cashable and should vest in the staff member. It should be non-forfeitable for the protection of the individual. It should be non-cashable for the protection not only of the individual and his family but of the institution as well. It should vest in the staff member so that he may have full confidence under all circumstances that provision for old-age income is assured. It will enable him to move freely to more lucrative employment; but the knowledge of freedom to move will allay anxiety on the part of one whose normal tendency is to remain in pleasant, modest surroundings that seem to promise real developments in the future.
3. A retirement age should serve as an announcement of what may be expected in the way of retirement. To meet the fact that retirement is appropriate at earlier ages for some than for others, it is well to announce an age beyond which service will be continued only at the option of the board of trustees. Many retirement plans today state that retirement will occur at age 65 unless, by special vote of the board of trustees with respect to a particular individual, he is invited to continue on whatever terms may be arranged as to compensation and amount of service. It is important that, after some age like 65 years, service should continue only after special consideration and that retirement should otherwise take place automatically with no showing of cause on the part of the administration.

A Danger for Publicly-Administered Institutions

Privately-administered colleges and universities have quite generally accepted the principle that the free mobility of professional talent is essential to the best interests not only of education as a process but of individual institutions as well. Perhaps that philosophy is accepted also by state universities but, unfortunately, a number of them have, sometimes unwittingly, become participants in retirement plans in which equities created by institutional contributions do not vest in individual participants. In time this is bound to tie mediocre men to their jobs. It will make difficult the parting with those who fail to develop in middle age—often men who need the stimulus or the health-giving qualities of a new environment. This type of plan will not attract the best men; it will not hold the best men; but it will hold the mediocre ones. An institution with such a plan is not doing its part in the development of high professional standards; these can thrive best only with free interchange of professional talent.

Officers of publicly-administered colleges and universities owe it to their institutions to be constantly on guard against having their staff members included in retirement plans of this sort for public employees. That the danger is real is evidenced by the fact that nearly all retirement plans for public employees have this weakness and that, in a number of cases, these have covered employment for state universities almost without the knowledge of those most vitally concerned. The formulation of a retirement plan is a technical task that should not be farmed out; administrative officers have the duty to know in detail what is involved and to take the responsibility of urging definite recommendations regarding provisions of plans brought up for consideration. No more vital, long-range personnel mechanism exists.

TIAA Will Help

For those charged with the duty of formulating a contributory retirement plan, TIAA has prepared a pamphlet, entitled "Planning a Retirement System," which is available upon request. This pamphlet discusses in far more detail than is here possible questions that are bound to turn up and should receive careful consideration. It includes a draft of a resolution which, with appropriate modifications, might be adopted by a governing body for the inauguration of such a plan and comments upon various provisions of this draft. Many colleges that have adopted retirement plans in recent years have been guided by this draft.

Those interested in knowing about the retirement plans now operating in various colleges and universities are referred to a book published by the Columbia University Press in 1940, entitled "College Plans for Retirement Income." This describes briefly the plans of colleges and universities in the United States and Canada as they existed at the close of the year 1939, reviews the history of the development of college retirement plans, and discusses general principles incorporated in attractive plans.

TIAA offers to help in the study of problems at particular institutions. Whenever possible, its officers visit the campuses to discuss special problems in detail. Its visiting force is, however, very limited and, besides, at times it is advantageous to carry on discussions through the written word. It is essential that someone at each college be thoroughly conversant with all that is involved in the inauguration and operation of a retirement plan; this is far better than learning blindly on the guidance of an outsider.

Summary

The preceding paragraphs undertake to tell what a retirement plan is, what a well-constructed contributory plan for retirement income is good for, and why colleges and universities should have such plans. They point out that a retirement plan should be both a plan for retirement and a plan for income after retirement, that colleges and universities need such plans as personnel mechanisms and for the maintenance of good public relations, and that an institution should expect a satisfactory plan to help in obtaining good men, in holding good men, and in parting with mediocre men, as well as in retiring in a socially acceptable manner those whose services suffer from the ravages of age.

Some hundreds of colleges and universities have as yet failed to establish retirement plans; the above paragraphs try to tell why. Poverty, absence of conviction of need, and procrastination in anticipation of amendment that would extend Social Security coverage to college employment are perhaps the most frequent deterrents to the adoption of retirement plans. The claim of poverty is a judgment that something else is more important than a retirement plan—a conclusion in which the best educators will probably not concur. A conviction of absence of need too often reflects lack of acquaintance with the facts and lack of imagination as to what the facts should be. Waiting for Social Security is frequently merely an excuse for delay. This serves some college administrators and governing bodies as a thousand and one petty, spur-of-the-moment thoughts serve individuals who put off from day to day decisions they know they should make, but which would mean tightening their belts for things distinctly worth while though not immediately urgent.

Preceding paragraphs suggest a few provisions that seem essential for a satisfactory retirement plan, including compulsory participation in the creation of non-cashable, non-forefeitable pension equities, and refer the reader to other publications for more detail. Finally, a word of warning is given that merely to have "a retirement plan" may lull both administrative officers and faculty members to sleep so that they fail to give careful thought to the exact provisions of their plans. Likewise, tax-supported institutions are in danger of being included unwittingly under defective retirement plans for public employees; hence their officers need to be alert to their intense interest in helping to determine the provisions of any statewide public employee plan that may be proposed.

Department of Labor
RETRAINING AND REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
Federal Trade Commission Building
Washington 25, D. C.

Recommended Minimum Criteria for Approval of Establishments Offering Nonagricultural, On-the-Job Training for Veterans

By a Committee Representing

Department of Agriculture
Department of Commerce
Department of Labor
Navy Department
War Department
Civil Service Commission
Federal Security Agency
Veterans Administration

Introduction

It is the desire of all concerned that maximum opportunity for on-the-job training be made available to veterans, but it is equally important that such opportunity be of a worth-while character and bring adequate return to the veteran in terms of training received.

On March 18, 1946, there was issued by the Retraining and Reemployment Administration, Order No. 4 which set up an Interagency Committee for Development of Criteria and Standards for On-the-Job Training. This committee was established as a result of numerous requests from State agencies and organizations interested in on-the-job training for veterans. Such requests called attention to the need for basic minimum standards which could serve as a guide, on a nation-wide basis, for the approval of on-the-job training programs.

This committee was organized, and on April 8, 1946, it adopted basic minimum criteria for nonagricultural, on-the-job training for veterans and recommended that they be transmitted to the States.

The enclosed criteria are respectfully submitted for consideration by the agencies in each State which have the responsibility for approving establishments for on-the-job training. It is clearly recognized that such agencies have full responsibility for setting up their own criteria and standards for approval, and that many States have higher standards than those developed by the committee as a minimum. It is further hoped that they may be brought to the attention of all those agencies of the Government, Federal or State, as well as such semipublic and private organizations as have concern for the welfare of the veteran.

The suggested criteria enclosed represent the combined thinking of Federal agency representatives and have been discussed with, and general approval has been obtained from, representatives of the following agencies:

American Council on Education
American Federation of Labor
American Legion
American Veterans Committee
American Veterans of World War II
American Vocational Association
Chamber of Commerce of the U. S.
Congress of Industrial Organizations
Council of Chief State School Officers
Disabled American Veterans
National Education Association
Veterans of Foreign Wars

It is hoped that the States will see fit to adopt these criteria as a minimum basis for approval. It is believed that such action on their part would be of material assistance in promoting uniformity throughout the country in the development of on-the-job training programs that will best serve the interests of the veteran, employer, State and Federal governments.

General Statement

Subsistence allowances for on-the-job training have been provided under Public Law 346, 78th Congress, as amended (GI Bill of Rights), to assure economic security to veterans who want to learn a job which will increase their earning capacity and their opportunity for employment and advancement. Subsistence payments are in addition to the wages paid by the employer during the training period. The maximum subsistence allowance under this training program is $65 a month for veterans without dependents and $90 a month for those with dependents. Combined wages and allowance cannot exceed the wages of the experienced worker in the job for which the veteran is being trained.

The subsistence allowance is not a dole to the veteran nor is it intended as a subsidy to the employer. The value of the program would be lost and its integrity discredited if it were used as a cheap labor scheme or if the period of subsidized training were prolonged unnecessarily or veterans were trained for nonexistent jobs. Safeguards have been set up in some States through the appointment of local advisory committees made up of representatives of management, labor, veterans, and education to review the programs proposed by employers and to serve as consultants to the veterans on the adequacy of the job training offered them.

All groups concerned with the employment and training of veterans, including State approving agencies, employer associations, labor organizations, and veterans' organizations have recognized the need for greater uniformity among the States in the approval of on-the-job training programs for veterans somewhat similar to standards applicable to the training of apprentices.

Apprenticeship is a form of training for which subsistence allowance may be payable. Standards to safeguard the welfare of apprentices are established by State and Federal apprenticeship agencies. These standards cover employment and training for recognized trades which require at least 4,000 hours of training through employment supplemented by 144 hours of related classroom instruction each year of the apprenticeship.

Additional standards are needed only for training jobs which are not apprenticeable but which have sufficient training content to warrant a veteran's utilizing his education or training entitlement. Many jobs based on customary training practices in various industries are so narrow in scope that they do not justify the use by the veteran of his training entitlement. This is not intended to disparage any job, but where the amount of training is slight, and there is a relatively small differential between the entrance wage and the rate paid a trained worker, there would be little, if any, advantage to veterans in the approval of such training programs.

Certain types of on-the-job training with related or technical training may be given in programs of vocational education conducted under Plans of State Boards for Vocational Education. Such programs may be used in implementing the training conducted under standards set forth in this document.

Acting upon the request of State approving agencies and the evident need for a common approach to standards for on-the-job training, the Retraining and Reemployment Administration appointed an Interagency Committee under its Order No. 4 to develop suggested standards for on-the-job training.

Definition

As used herein, "on-the-job training" means any form of training in a job in any industry or occupation which requires a minimum of 500 hours of training, work experience, and related or technical training to attain reasonable competency, and in which there is customarily a differential between the beginning wage and the wage paid a trained worker.

The Application for Approval of On-the-Job Training

An establishment desiring to undertake an on-the-job training program under Public Law 346 should be required to submit to the appropriate State approving agency a written application setting forth the course of training for each job for which a veteran is to be trained. The written application covering the training program should include the following items:

1. Title and description of the specific job objective for which the veteran is to be trained.
2. Length of the training period in hours.
3. Schedule listing various operations for major kinds of work or tasks to be learned and showing for each the job operations or work tasks to be performed, and the approximate length of time to be spent on each operation or task.
4. Wages or salary to be paid at the beginning of the training program, at each successive step in the program, and at the completion of training.
5. Wages or salary paid by the establishment to employees already trained in the kind of work for which the veteran is to be trained.
6. Number of hours of supplemental instruction required.

Standards for Approval of On-the-Job Training

The State approving agency should consider for approval only those establishments offering training programs which are submitted in conformity with the above specifications and should approve only those found upon investigation to have met or made provision for meeting the following criteria:

1. The training content of the program is adequate to qualify the veteran for appointment to the job for which he is to be trained.
2. There is reasonable certainty that the job for which the veteran is to be trained will be available to him at the end of the training period as is evidenced by such factors as the ratio of trainees, veteran and nonveteran, to trained workers.
3. The job is not in a standard wage classification, in which progression and appointment to the next higher classification are based upon such factors as length of service and normal turnover, and not upon skills learned through organized training on the job.
4. The wages to be paid the veteran for each successive period of training are not less than those customarily paid in the establishment and the community to a learner in the same job who is not a veteran, and are in conformity with State and Federal laws and applicable bargaining agreements.
5. The job customarily requires a period of training which justifies the setting up of a complete program of not less than 500 hours of training.
6. The length of the training period is no longer than that customarily required by the establishment and other establishments in the community to provide the trainee with the required skills, arrange for the acquiring of job knowledge, technical information, and other facts which the trainee will need to learn in order to become competent on the job for which he is being trained.
7. Provision is made for related instruction.
8. There is in the establishment adequate space, equipment, instructional material, and instructor personnel to provide satisfactory training on the job.
9. Adequate records are kept to show the progress made by the veteran toward his job objective.

10. Appropriate credit is given the veteran for previous job experience, whether in military service or elsewhere, his beginning wage adjusted to the level to which such credit advances him, and his training period shortened accordingly.
11. A copy of the training program as approved by the State agency is provided to the veteran by the employer.
12. Upon completion of the training, the veteran is given a certificate indicating the length and type of training provided and attesting to his competency in the job for which he was trained.
13. Employees of the establishment are advised of the training program.
14. The approving agency should have access to the establishment for the purpose of assisting in the development and improvement of the training program.

Certification Procedure

1. A certificate should be issued by the approving agency to the establishment indicating approval of the specific on-the-job training course, or courses, the maximum number of trainees for each of the approved on-the-job training courses, and indicating that the Veterans Administration is being notified of approval.
2. Copies of such certificate should be transmitted to all agencies involved in the training program.

Adopted on April 8, 1946, by the Interagency Committee for Development of Criteria and Standards for On-the-Job Training established pursuant to Retraining and Reemployment Administration Order No. 4.

Approved for transmittal to the Governors of all States and Territories.

Dated:
April 8, 1946.

G. B. ERSKINE
Major General, USMC
Administrator

GPO 16—48266-1

Reading

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
WASHINGTON, D.C.

No. 5 April 18, 1946

ON-THE-JOB TRAINING STANDARDS

14 POINTS

A set of minimum standards for non-agricultural job-training establishments was approved by Major General Graves B. Erskine, USMC, head of the Retraining and Reemployment Administration. This code is the result of work by the special Interagency Committee (see Bulletins 2 and 3) convoked by General Erskine under his Order #4, to work on basic qualifications of concerns interested in training war veterans on the job.

These criteria have been sent to all State and Territorial Governors and State approving agencies for adoption as minimum standards. "It is clearly recognized that State agencies have full responsibility for setting up their own standards," said General Erskine. "The suggested criteria, however, represent the thinking of various Federal agencies concerned with on-the-job training and it is hoped that the States will see fit to adopt all or part of these standards."

The Committee recommends that the State approving agency should consider for approval only those establishments offering training programs which are not only in conformity with regulations set down under Public Law 346 (G.I. Bill of Rights), but which also meet the following criteria:

1. The training content of the program is adequate to qualify the veteran for appointment to the job for which he is to be trained.

2. There is reasonable certainty that the job for which the veteran is to be trained will be available to him at the end of the training period as is evidenced by such factors as the ratio of trainees, veteran and non-veteran, to trained workers.

3. The job is not in a standard wage classification, in which progression and appointment to the next higher classification are based upon such factors as length of service and normal turnover, and not upon skills learned through organized training on the job.

8

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

NUMBER 6 APRIL 25, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

SURPLUS PROPERTY FOR SCHOOLS

BARRACKS, QUONSET HUTS

By RRA Order #5, a Federal interagency committee to assist State agencies and non-profit educational institutions in the acquisition of surplus Government materials and facilities for the expansion of schools and colleges was set up recently by Major General Graves B. Erskine, USMC, Head of the Retraining and Reemployment Administration.

"Hampered by wartime restrictions on construction materials and training equipment, our schools and colleges today are facing enormous difficulties in attempting to provide for the expanding enrollment of both veterans and non-veterans," explained General Erskine. "They must have quick access to additional buildings for instruction and living quarters and laboratory equipment and books.

"Now that the shooting war is over, we have a grave responsibility to see that those who won the war receive adequate training for keeping the peace. It is the purpose of this committee to help them get it by doing everything possible to provide facilities for it."

Under General Erskine's order, the committee will determine the needs for and availability of training facilities, equipment, and materials and make recommendations for the fastest possible disposition of available materials to educational institutions in accordance with their need.

Federal agencies participating on the committee under General Erskine's chairmanship include the Federal Security Agency, the War Assets Administration, the War Department, and the Navy Department. The Veterans Administration also is requested to designate a member of the committee.

* * * * * * *

NEW ADVANTAGES UNDER G.I. BILL

HOME STUDY

Veterans Administration announced on April 15 that it has negotiated contracts with 38 educational institutions throughout the country authorizing them to furnish correspondence and extension courses by mail to veterans eligible for educational benefits under veterans legislation. Courses offered by these schools cover virtually every

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 8 May 9, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

MIGRANT LABOR

RRA ORDER #6

Major General Graves B. Erskine, USMC, Administrator of RRA, has announced the establishment of a Federal Interagency Committee on Migrant Labor, under RRA Order No. 6.

The purpose of this Order is to work for the solution of the bad living and labor conditions which have traditionally hampered permanent migratory workers - irregular recruitment and employment, low wages and their attendant effects, child labor, lack of educational opportunity, poor health, and low living standards.

Migratory workers are needed in large numbers on mechanized farms and in industry during the peak seasons. When the peak has passed they, with their families, must move on to other areas in search of work. It is estimated that of the four or five million workers who leave their home States this year in search of work, two million will be permanent migratory workers.

Few State or Federal laws offer them protection. Communities seldom take an interest in these transcient peoples except to discourage their settling down within the city limits.

During the war when there were not enough of these workers to do the job, laborers from other countries were imported. Under international agreements, these workers were guaranteed minimum wages, some continuity of employment, standards of adequate housing, transportation, and health and medical service. RRA believes that these millions of workers, many of whom are veterans, should be assured of at least the minimum standards which foreign workers had in our country and should enjoy standards equal to those of workers in other occupations.

The Committee set up by Order No. 6 will review existing legal authority and administrative machinery of the various Government agencies concerned with the living and labor conditions of migrant workers in industry, transportation, and agriculture, to determine how these standards can be developed and improved. Consultations will be held with public and private agencies at Federal, State, and community

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

NO. 9 MAY 16, 1946. WASHINGTON, D.C.

RRA WORKING CONFERENCE

COMMUNITY PROBLEMS

A working conference for field representatives and headquarters staff of RRA was called by Major General Graves B. Erskine, USMC, RRA Administrator, to discuss the needs and requirements of Community Advisory Centers. A series of panel discussions featured RRA personnel and representatives of Federal agencies and private organizations concerned with the problems presented at the sessions, which took place from May 6 to May 15.

The RRA field men represented the community point of view, and on the basis of their knowledge of community problems they made recommendations for improvement of governmental and other services to communities.

Among those present were key men from Veterans' Administration, Department of Labor, Federal Security Agency, American Council on Education, CIO, AFL, War Assets Administration, Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion, American Red Cross, and the leading veterans' organizations.

** ** ** ** ** ** ** ** **

EMPLOYMENT UP

USES REPORTS

A recent report from the 1,700 local offices of the USES shows that total March placements were 17 percent better than February, while veteran job placement rose to a new postwar peak for any single month. USES warned, however, that the Nation faces a tremendous job placement problem over the next few months. About 2,700,000 persons, including former war workers, veterans and other job applicants, are listed by the Bureau of the Census as unemployed, another 1,300,000 veterans are home but not yet actively seeking employment, and another 2,000,000 veterans are due to return home by early summer.

Many Community Advisory Centers are participating actively in the USE Job Development Campaign, and traffic in USES offices during the month of March reached a new high with 14,500,000 personal calls being made for assistance.

Special consideration is being given to handicapped workers during the campaign, which has resulted in March placements of 14,500 workers with limited capacities. Disabled veterans and all other handicapped

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION

RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 10 May 23, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

GENERAL ERSKINE'S INTER-AGENCY GOVERNMENT COMMITTEE TO RECOMMEND THE ALLOCATION OF SMALL LOTS OF SURPLUS FABRICS, STORED IN GOVERNMENT WAREHOUSES, TO CLOTHING MANUFACTURERS FOR MAKING MEN'S SUITS.

Page 2

* * * * * *

FEDERAL-STATE ADMINISTERED CIVILIAN VOCATIONAL REHABILITATION PROGRAM ALSO GIVES AID TO DISABLED.

Pages 3, 4, 5

* * * * * *

VA'S FIRST OUTPATIENT REHABILITATION CLINIC IN NEW YORK CITY CARES FOR 500 VETERANS DAILY.

Pages 5, 6

* * * * * *

BILL GIVING JOB PRIORITY TO WAR VETERANS ON A SEVEN-YEAR AIRPORT CONSTRUCTION PROGRAM FOR THE U. S. AND TERRITORIES WAS ADOPTED BY CONGRESS AND SIGNED BY THE PRESIDENT.

Page 7

* * * * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
Airport Bill Passed - Job Priority	7
Civilian Clothes for Veterans - What Some Retail Stores are Doing	11
Clothing Issue Tackled - Committee Established	2
Housing Needs Surveyed - Cramped Conditions	10
It Was Done in a Month - Oklahoma City Center, Pix	15
Jobs for Wandering Veterans - Help Needed on Crops	9
News and Ideas of Interest to Centers -
College Housing - Princeton, N. J.	13
Job Clinic - Fort Worth, Tex.	13, 14
Backer: Scrap Paper - Cumberland Mills, Me.	14
Action Speeded - Los Angeles, Calif.	14
Women Veterans - New Haven, Conn.	14
Clubs Sent Circular - Los Angeles, Calif.	14
New York Action - Migrant Labor	8, 9
Reading List: Of Interest to Veterans and Others - Books, Pamphlets, Etc.	16
Red Cross Cooperation - Again Assured	12, 13
Request for More Information - By RRA	6
Service While You Wait - Model VA Clinic	5, 6
Set-Aside List - Surplus Priorities	11, 12
Veterans Are Civilians, Too - Aid for Disabled	3, 4, 5

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION

RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 11 May 31, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

SECRETARY OF WAR PATTERSON ASSURES GENERAL ERSKINE OF ARMY COOPERATION WITH LOCAL CENTERS.

p. 2

* * * * * *

PRESIDENT TRUMAN APPROVES ACT OF CONGRESS AUTHORIZING U. S. TRANSPORT AND INTERMENT OF SERVICEMEN WHO DIED ABROAD.

pp. 2, 3, 4, 5

* * * * * *

BUREAU OF LABOR STATISTICS SURVEY OF 300 FIRMS SHOWS THAT IN EFFICIENCY, ATTENDANCE, AVOIDANCE OF INJURY, AND LOW JOB TURNOVER - DISABLED WORKERS WERE EQUAL OR SUPERIOR TO NON-DISABLED GROUP.

pp. 5, 6

* * * * * *

VA MOVES TO SPEED UP CLEARANCE OF G.I. LOANS BY DESIGNATING BANKS AS "SUPERVISED LENDERS" AUTHORIZED TO MAKE LOANS WITHOUT PRIOR VA APPROVAL.

pp. 11, 12

* * * * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
Advisory Centers Boosted - By ANPA Bulletin	7, 8
Army Will Cooperate - With Local Centers	2
Community Advisory Center - Picture Story	13
Disposition of War Dead - Outlined Under Law	2, 3
. . . Priorities Governing Next of Kin	3, 4
. . . Burial Program Details	4, 5
Emergency Hospitalization for Service-Connected Disabilities - Authorized by VA	12
Legislation: Michigan	15, 16
Loan Guarantees Speeded - "Supervised Lenders"	11, 12
News and Ideas of Interest to Centers - Veterans' Institute - Marquette, Mich	12, 14
Housing Project - Greenwich, Conn	14
Summer School - Newark, N. J	14
Mobile Units - Northern Calif	14, 15
Counseling Program Maintained - New York City	15
Placement of Disabled - Shows Decline	5, 6
Publicity Action Needed - For Centers to Function at Best	9, 10, 11
Reading List: Of Interest to Veterans and Others - Books, Pamphlets, Etc	16
Reimbursement for Paid Schooling - Made by VA	6
Surplus Property Priority - Must be Certified	8
War Assets Administration Certifying Offices	8, 9

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 12 June 6, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

SUPREME COURT RULES THAT VETERANS DO NOT HAVE "SUPERSENIORITY" OVER CIVILIAN WORKERS.
Page 2

* * * * *

EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM FOR HOSPITALIZED VETERANS PLANNED BY VA WITH AID OF USAFI.
Pages 2, 3

* * * * *

VETERANS' ASSETS TO BE FEATURED ON NATIONWIDE RADIO PROGRAMS WEEK OF JUNE 10 TO JUNE 16.
Page 6

* * * * *

REEMPLOYMENT PROBLEMS OF WOMEN VETERANS AND FORMER WAR WORKERS DISCUSSED.
Pages 4, 5

* * * * *

CHART OUTLINES VETERANS' BENEFITS IN BRIEF.
Page 10

* * * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
Education for Hospitalized Veterans - VA Program	2
Military Training - Reservists	3
News and Ideas of Interest to Centers -
Publicity - Boston, Mass	12
Refresher Course - Cleveland, Ohio	12
Negro Center - Charlotte, N. C	12
Community Resources - St. Louis, Mo.	12
Radio Programs - Waterbury, Conn	13
Chinese Veterans - San Francisco, Calif	13
Financial Counseling - Hartford, Conn	13
Disabilities - Oklahoma City, Okla	13
On-the-Job Training - Tools	5
Quarterly Report - New York City	7
Reading List: Of Interest to Veterans and Others	14
Rubber Manufacturers Association - Veteran Reintegration Program	7
Superseniority - Supreme Court Decision	2
Unemployment and Reduced Wages - Former War Workers	4
Veterans' Assets on the Radio - June 10 to June 16	6
Veterans' Benefits - Chart	10, 11
Veterans' War Bonds - Where to Write	4
Women Veterans - Reemployment Problems	5

COMMUNITY ADVISORY CENTERS

A Preliminary Analysis of Trends and Activities

Retraining and Reemployment Administration
Department of Labor
Washington 25, D. C.

June 13, 1946

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
RETRAINING AND REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION BUILDING
WASHINGTON 25, D. C.

To Community Advisory Centers -

Numerous requests have been received from State and local officials, Advisory Center Directors, and community leaders for information as to trends in service being given to veterans and in the expansion of Community Advisory Centers to serve all citizens.

The Retraining and Reemployment Administration has not attempted to obtain regular, formal reports from all Advisory Centers. Centers, however, have cooperated by sending in copies of their regular reports and other materials which they issue from time to time. Through a sampling of those reports, it has been possible to make a preliminary analysis of trends and activities. This analysis is being forwarded for your information and any use you may see fit to make of it.

As set out above, it should be borne in mind that this material is based on a relatively small sampling and is not an exhaustive study. It is intended that a more complete study be made at a later date. In this connection, I shall be glad to have your comments and suggestions. It will be very helpful if all centers can send me copies of any monthly or quarterly reports which they make to provide material for a later and more complete analysis of trends in Community Advisory Centers.

I want to take this opportunity to express appreciation for the fine work being done by Community Advisory Centers and extend best wishes to all of you for success during the next fiscal year.

Sincerely,

G. B. ERSKINE
Major General, USMC
Administrator

COMMUNITY ADVISORY CENTERS

A Preliminary Analysis of Trends and Activities

I. Introduction

II. Summary of Conclusions

III. The Veteran Needs the Center

IV. The Veteran and his Needs

V. The Non-veteran Needs the Center

VI. The Future: Community Advisory Centers Look Ahead

I. INTRODUCTION

There are at present some 2,700 Community Advisory Centers in the United States which are aiding veterans and others in making post-war adjustments. With the progress in reconversion, and with military demobilization nearing an end, pertinent questions are being asked about the current problems and outlook of these centers:

> Is there at present a continuing need for the centers already established?
>
> Is there a need for more of such centers?
>
> What problems does the veteran bring to the center?
>
> Have veteran problems undergone any change?
>
> Should the centers established primarily for veterans extend their services to non-veterans?
>
> Is there likely to be a need for Community Advisory Centers in the future?

To throw light on these questions the Program Analysis Division of the Retraining and Reemployment Administration has made a preliminary cross section study covering a one percent sample of the centers. The quantitative estimates in the following pages are, of necessity, presented only as tentative estimates in their nation-wide application.

As more reports on the work of centers are received and can be studied, it is hoped that a new and revised edition of this preliminary study may be issued.

II. SUMMARY OF CONCLUSIONS

1. A continuing need exists for the Centers already established. Although January 1946 was the peak intake month for Centers, visits during April 1946 still exceeded those during October 1945 by 43 percent.

2. The veteran returns to the Center for additional assistance, particularly when plans fail to materialize. Approximately one-third of all visits are repeat visits, with 50 percent more repeat visits during April 1946 than during October 1945.

3. There is a need for additional Community Advisory Centers. The Centers with available tabulations have reported that from 12 percent to 58 percent of their clients were transients. In addition, the pent-up need for Centers finds striking expression in the large number of visits to recently organized Centers.

4. In recognition of the fact that veterans need assistance on a variety of problems, the Centers are so organized as to provide more than one service per veteran visit. That is why, on the average, services exceed visits by 40 percent.

5. The 30-odd types of problems concerning which veterans need assistance may be grouped according to six broad but meaningful objectives in order of their importance:

A. Earning a living
B. Establishing a home
C. Getting an education
D. Military benefits
E. Personal affairs
F. Special services (covering a wide variety of miscellaneous, non-advisory services)

6. Although the above problem pattern of veteran requests for assistance has not changed materially within each of the objectives (A-E), an increasing emphasis is developing on long-range questions requiring counseling techniques and competent advice, as against a decline in questions involving simple, "across-the-board" replies.

7. Centers report that their programs have been largely veteran programs. However, non-veteran problems are similar to veteran problems. A substantial proportion of the public school, high school, and college graduates need competent counseling to gear their educational plans to the realities of tomorrow's economics. More than a million diabled non-veterans require some form of counseling assistance. The families of veterans, the "too-old" age group, the psychological unemployed, those in need of psychiatric and medical aid: all these would benefit under a broad Community Advisory Center program.

The Community Advisory Center offers unique opportunities for assistance to non-veterans.

There is no stigma attached to going to an advisory center for assistance.

Utilizing the full resources of the community, the Advisory Center offers a service more complete than any group of agencies, working independently, can render. By coordinating assistance on the wide variety of non-veteran problems, the Community Advisory Center can extend a unifying force to the solution of non-veteran problems. More effective and economical use can be made of existing services by intelligent referral, thus eliminating delay and the "runaround".

8. The future need for Advisory Centers depends largely on five factors:

(1) The developing economic situation points to an increasing prosperity and a tightening labor market. The consequent decrease in "Earning a Living" problems at the centers may be offset in part by the longer periods of time devoted to those who will come to the centers because they cannot fit themselves into the available jobs.

(2) The continuing shortage of educational facilities may cause many veterans to reformulate their educational plans. "Getting an Education" visits will therefore become more numerous and involve longer interviews.

(3) "Establishing a Home" visits may decline about 25 percent by the end of 1946, if there is an appreciable easing of the housing shortage.

(4) The extension of the Selective Service Act will provide more veterans whose problems may necessitate the continuation of veteran services.

(5) Fundamentally, the continuation of Centers will depend on two decisions:

(a) The decision to transform more Centers from the purely informational to the advisory type.

(b) The extension of the services of Centers to non-veterans.

THE VETERAN NEEDS THE CENTER

. . . Right Now

III. THE VETERAN NEEDS THE CENTER

... RIGHT NOW

The continuing need for existing Centers can be immediately seen on the accompanying chart.

With January 1946 as the peak intake month, the volume of visits to Centers during April 1946 still exceeds October 1945 visits, the base month used in the study, by 43 percent.

This gain in volume of visits between October 1945 and April 1946 also indicates that many centers which have not increased their staffs to any extent, are now undermanned.

THE VETERAN NEEDS THE CENTER

. . . For Additional Assistance

III. THE VETERAN NEEDS THE CENTER

... FOR ADDITIONAL ASSISTANCE

To find their rightful places in a peacetime life, many veterans require competent assistance on more than one problem varying in importance and complexity. These problems are not "packaged." They appear at different times during the veteran's personal reconversion.

For example:

The Bangor-Brewer, Maine Center reports that helping the "psychological unemployables" involves a number of interviews.

The Los Angeles Center reports that at the end of March 1946 the number of veterans returning three or more times exceeded those making fewer calls.

The New York City Center reports that as veteran plans failed to materialize, repeat visits became more numerous. Veterans returned two and three times.

The Peoria, Illinois Center reports that its aptitude and interest tests average eight hours per veteran--a procedure that probably involves several visits.

The Charlotte, N. C. Center reports that a veteran may request assistance two, three, or more times, depending on his condition, his problem, and new developments from time to time as he gradually assumes civilian clothes.

At present, approximately one-third of all visits to veteran centers are repeat visits.

A time series of the volume of repeat visits in veteran centers reflects a 50 percent increase in such visits between October 1945 and April 1946.

THE VETERAN NEEDS THE CENTER
. . . Even with 75% of Demobilization Completed

Demobilization Rates and Visits to Veteran Centers
Oct. '45 - Apr. '46
Oct. '45 = 100

III. THE VETERAN NEEDS THE CENTER

... EVEN WITH 75% OF DEMOBILIZATION COMPLETED

Full demobilization is not an automatic sign that every veteran has been satisfactorily reintegrated. If anythin, problems have increased in number and complexity.

It has not been easy to get started earning a satisfactory living, or to obtain a job with a future. It has become more difficult to establish a home, to obtain competent educational advice, and to follow through on that advice. Out of such fertile troubles have grown personal and family difficulties.

That is why intelligent handling of veteran needs is a matter of current import. While the rate of demobilization during April 1946 is less than 40 percent of demobilization during October 1945, the volume of veteran visits to advisory centers for the same period is greater by 43 percent.

The New York City Center has reported, for example, that the number of New York City veterans demobilized during the first three months of 1946 represents a drop of 22 percent as compared to the previous quarter. The number of veterans, however, who came to the Center during this period increased 11 percent.

In New Orleans, Louisiana, the intake at the Center was greater than the number of discharges during March and April.

Similarly, at the Center in Oranges, N. J., for February and March visits exceeded discharges.

THE VETERAN NEEDS THE CENTER

. . . MORE OF THEM AND BETTER ONES

CENTERS: NOW AND TOTAL NEEDED

TRANSIENT CLIENTS AS PERCENT OF TOTAL CASELOAD

III. THE VETERAN NEEDS CENTERS

... MORE OF THEM AND BETTER ONES

There are approximately 2,700 veteran Centers throughout the land. Estimates indicate that probably an equal or greater number of additional Centers is needed.

One index of the need for more Centers is the number of transient veterans who write to and personally contact Centers.

For example:

For the year ended January 31, 1946, the Houston, Texas Center reported that 25 percent of its clients were from outside the community.

The Los Angeles, California Center reported that 58 percent of its clients were residents of other states.

The Peoria, Illinois Center reported that in April 1946 13 percent of its clients were from out of the city.

The New York City Center reported that of over 400 letters received per month, over one-third are from outside residents.

About 25 percent of the visits to the Des Moines, Iowa Center were from outside residents.

The Oranges, New Jersey Center has found that 12 percent of its clients were from surrounding communities.

There is a pent-up need on the part of veterans in communities not served by Centers for the services that a Center can render. This finds striking expression in the large number of visits to those Centers which have opened recently.

For example:

The Oklahoma City Center was organized May 19, 1946. During its first operating month 3,550 visits were registered--a substantial figure.

The Wood County Veterans Center of Parkersburg, West Virginia which was organized very recently, reports: "The immediate and voluminous response during the first days of service shows a tremendous need for this organization."

On June 10, 1946, in an address before the 31st annual convention of the Kiwanis International at Atlantic City, New Jersey General Omar N. Bradley, Federal Administrator of Veterans Affairs, stated that: "Today, two out of every five men you see are veterans. Three-fourths of them served in World War II. At the time of discharge, half of them had no jobs to get back to. A quarter had never worked...

"One and three quarters millions of veterans are drawing readjustment allowances as the result of their failure to find liveable jobs. By Fall, unless new jobs continue to be created, four million veterans might be looking for work...

"A quarter of a million student veterans will find no room in the first choice schools to which they apply...

"One year after their discharge, we find veterans and their families doubled up in the crowded homes of their parents...

"Immediate personal problems of veterans are as varied as the personal affairs of 12 million persons can be...

"Your only resort is to band together, one with another in the towns where you live. With existing community agencies already at your disposal, you can construct a reservoir for your community's helps.

In communities where outstanding help has been offered the veteran, we find it has best been accomplished through the creation of veterans' Advisory Centers. These Centers provide a clearing house for local services. They encourage government, local agencies, and citizens to pool their efforts in helping the veteran. They preclude the danger of hometown runarounds. Advisory Centers enable the community to do something realistic about its desire to help."

THE VETERAN NEEDS THE CENTER

. . . FOR CENTRALIZED and COORDINATED SERVICE

VISITS AND SERVICES

III. THE VETERAN NEEDS CENTERS

... FOR CENTRALIZED AND COORDINATED SERVICE

Since veterans require assistance on a large variety of problems, the Centers are generally so organized as to provide more than one service per veteran visit.

That is why, on the average, services to individuals exceed visits by 40 percent.

The program of coordinated community action represented by a truly community-backed Advisory Center eliminates the runaround by rendering maximum service with a minimum of visits and referrals.

OBJECT OF VISITS TO CENTER

I EARNING A LIVING

A Employment

Apprenticeship
OJT
SRA
Reemployment
Securing a Job

B Business

Business & Farm Loans
Other Business Assistance

II GETTING AN EDUCATION

Secondary Schools: General Education
Secondary Schools: Vocational & Trades
College and Universities
Other Adult Education

III ESTABLISHING A HOME

Home Loans
Housing: Room, Apt. or Home
Priorities Assistance

IV MILITARY BENEFITS

Claims & Pensions
Insurance
Other: VA Medical Care
Burial Allowances, etc.

V PERSONAL AFFAIRS

Personal & Family Problems
Financial Assistance, excluding Home and Business Loans Community Medical Care
Legal Aid

VI SPECIAL SERVICES

Income Tax Assistance
Surplus Property
Filing & Typing of Forms
Notarization & Photostat
Discharge Assistance
Allotment & Allowances
Mustering out Pay
Back Pay
Licenses
Rationing
Miscellaneous

TYPES OF SERVICES REQUESTED AT CENTER

1. Information
2. Testing
3. Counseling
4. Follow-thru assistance based on information, testing or counseling.
5. Referrals to other agencies

IV. THE VETERAN AND HIS NEEDS

... PROBLEMS THE VETERAN BRINGS TO THE CENTER

The survey shows more than 30 types of problems on which veterans need assistance. Obviously, only a Community Advisory Center specifically organized to do a job of informing, counseling and intelligent referral can satisfactorily follow through on such a broad front. Utilizing as it does the full resources of the community, including in some cases as many as 75 interested community groups, the Veterans' Advisory Center is a typically American approach to the solution of veterans' problems.

Veterans' problems may be grouped according to the following six broad but meaningful objectives:

A. Earning a living
B. Establishing a home
C. Getting an education
D. Military benefits
E. Personal affairs
F. Special services

The accompanying chart presents a detailed breakdown of these objectives.

PROBLEM PATTERN OF VETERANS REQUESTING ASSISTANCE
BY OBJECTIVE

	OCT. %	JAN. %	APR. %
EARNING A LIVING	29.7	25.4	30.7
ESTABLISHING A HOME	14.6	16.5	18.1
GETTING AN EDUCATION	12.5	15.4	13.5
MILITARY BENEFITS	13.4	11.8	8.1
PERSONAL AFFAIRS	6.2	5.4	5.8
SPECIAL SERVICES	23.6	25.5	23.8

CHANGING VOLUME OF SERVICES BY OBJECTIVE

	OCT. %	JAN. %	APR. %
EARNING A LIVING	100	136.8	163.6
ESTABLISHING A HOME	100	180.2	196.5
GETTING AN EDUCATION	100	197.8	171.7
MILITARY BENEFITS	100	140.3	96.2
PERSONAL AFFAIRS	100	137.7	146.6
SPECIAL SERVICES	100	171.9	158.9

IV. THE VETERAN AND HIS NEEDS

... A PATTERN OF REQUESTS FOR ASSISTANCE

In general, the problem pattern of requests for assistance as reflected in the services rendered by Centers has not changed materially since October 1945. Primarily, veterans are interested in earning a living. Second in importance is their desire to establish a home. Getting an education is third, military benefits fourth, and family problems fifth.

In addition, the veterans request, and the Centers furnish, a large variety of special services, including income tax assistance, photostating, filing of claims, assistance on mustering-out pay, back pay, discharge review, directional information, and general information: all of which together comprise about 25 percent of total requests for assistance.

BUT ...

The whole problem pattern is undergoing an internal, qualitative change. The emphasis has shifted from the simple informational type of request to those involving long range planning and the use of counseling techniques. For example, the question is not: "Where can I get a job?" It is "Where and how can I get a suitable job, a job with a future?"

The Bangor-Brewer, Maine Center reports that the type of request for information and service has changed somewhat from the type of request received at the Center in the beginning. In the spring and summer of 1945, the questions asked pertained mainly to information about the GI Bill of Rights. In the fall of 1945 and up to the present, the most important problems brought to the Center pertained to establishing a home, getting an education, and finding suitable employment. Many veterans are finding it difficult to convert skills learned in war time to peacetime jobs.

The Bridgeport, Connecticut Center feels that the veterans who have been demobilized since October have passed through a "decompression" period. Returning to the Center in increasing numbers, these veterans are now doing long-range planning for their economic future and are in need of informative counseling to help determine in what direction their abilities lie, as well as helpful assistance in establishing their planning objectives.

The Los Angeles Center reports that there has been a slight decline in services, principally of the short-term informational type. Veterans are now bringing in more intensive long-range problems for discussion. The decline in services has been offset by requests for types of services requiring more time and skill to handle.

The New York City Center reports that interviews have become longer, that the veteran has had to reformulate his plans, and that consequently more time is required of the interviewers.

V. THE NON-VETERAN NEEDS THE COMMUNITY ADVISORY CENTER

. . . RIGHT NOW

Although many Centers serve non-veterans, the number so served has been small. Up to the present, the Community Advisory Center program has been largely a veteran's program reflecting the feeling of most communities that veterans have suffered the sharpest dislocation during the war period.

However, the problems of many non-veterans are similar to those of the veteran. The non-veteran also has Earning-a-Living Problems, Educational Problems, Establishing-a-Home Problems, and Personal Problems. There are many programs and organizations dealing with these problems for all citizens that require coordination and a community-wide approach.

High school, and college students need competent counseling to aid them in gearing their educational plans to the realities of tomorrow's economics.

More than a million disabled non-veteran require some form of vocational and social counseling. The "too-old" age group in the labor force, the psychological unemployables, those in need of psychiatric care and medical aid: all of these would benefit from helpful community assistance.

The Community Advisory Center idea offers a unique opportunity for coordinating existing programs for all citizens and for insuring guidance and intelligent referral.

The Community Advisory Center is a place where a man or woman can go with dignity. There is no stigma attached to going to an advisory center for assistance. Utilizing, as it does the full resources of a community, the advisory center offers centralized assistance. It is important to have one place to go for competent advice, reliable information, and correct referrals. Assistance on a wide variety of non-veteran problems can be coordinated and improved through a Community Advisory Center, specifically organized for such a job, and receiving the united support and participation of all agencies, public and private.

The Baruch-Hancock Report proposed service to both veterans and non-veterans. Many cities have adapted the idea to their local needs. Consequently, the pattern of service for civilians varies considerably among Centers but wherever non-veterans are most successfully served it is significant that the bulk of community facilities capable of aiding the advisory program has been placed firmly and cooperatively behind the Center's planning and administrative functions.

... FURTHERMORE

This qualitative change in the problem pattern from the simple informational to the long-range planning type is accentuated by the increased volume of requests for these time-consuming services.

Earning-a-living services at Centers for April 1946 increased a substantial 64 percent since October 1945.

Establishing-a-home services increased by 97 percent for the same period.

Educational services as of April were still 71 percent greater than the October 1945 volume.

Personal affairs services increased by 47 percent over October 1945.

Special services were 59 percent greater in April.

Military claims services declined 4 percent below the October 1945 level.

VI. THE FUTURE

... COMMUNITY ADVISORY CENTERS LOOK AHEAD

The future need for Advisory Centers depends primarily on five factors:

1. The developing economic situation.
2. The rate at which educational facilities increase.
3. The rate at which housing facilities become available.
4. Provisions of the Selective Service Act.
5. Recognition of the need for broadening the intent of existing Centers and for formally soliciting non-veteran visits.

The developing economic situation.

Most indications point to a high level of employment throughout 1946 and at least the first half of 1947, creating a tightening labor market. The expansion of employment opportunities should result in a decreasing volume of Earning-a-living problems at Centers. Offsetting this in part will be the longer interviews involved, for the men and women who do come to the Center will be those who for one reason or another cannot fit themselves into available jobs.

The rate at which educational facilities increase.

The shortage of educational openings will probably continue through 1946 and 1947. Many veterans furthermore, have not as yet availed themselves of their educational opportunities. There is a shortage of vocational training opportunities. Educational plans will have to be reformulated, more exhaustive explorations of opportunities made. Consequently, not only will the volume of educational problems increase at the Centers, but the interviews will also lengthen.

The rate at which housing facilities expand.

The housing shortage should be relieved somewhat during the fall of 1946 and considerably more so during 1947. This relief may decrease the "Establishing-a-Home" problems at Centers to about three-fourths of their present volume by the end of 1946.

The Selective Service Act.

Renewal of the Selective Service Act will provide a steady source of veterans whose problems will have some bearing on the longevity of Community Advisory Centers. The question has been asked: Should not the future veterans receive the same assistance as the present ones? Certainly, the fact that these future veterans will require helpful assistance should be considered.

Recognition of the need for broadening the scope of Centers.

A two-fold development along parallel lines is taking place among Centers. The first involves the formal and informal transformation of Centers, as a result of the increasing volume of cases in need of counseling, from the purely Informational and Referral to the Advisory type.

The second development concerns the formal extension of the services of the veteran centers to the non-veteran. Does the value of the veteran centers to the non-veteran. Does the value of the Community Advisory Center end with the readjustment of the veteran? Can Community Advisory Centers make an important contribution in counseling young people and special problem groups which require continuing assistance? Doesn't the former war worker who left the community at the insistence of the Government to work in a war plant also deserve attention?

If the principle of coordinated community action represented by the Advisory Center idea is a sound procedure for rendering service to veterans, why not to all citizens? Might not an effective advisory service available to all citizens increase the productive capacity and earnings of the community as a whole? These are some of the questions being raised by thoughtful community leaders as the future of the Advisory Center program is under consideration.

It is hoped that the preliminary figures presented in this study, and others to follow, may provide some indication of trends which can be helpful to communities considering these problems.

HYPOTHETICAL INTAKE TREND AT VETERAN CENTERS THRU OCT. - '46

Indications are that the intake at veteran centers may decline seasonally during the summer months, and as a result of improving employment activities, until in August 1946 it may drop to about 110% of the October 1945 level. With the opening of the fall semester, the trend should reverse itself, and may reach about 130% of the October 1945 level, during October 1946. To partially offset this probable decline in number of cases during the summer months, interviews will become longer, more exhaustive and involve a greater use of counseling techniques.

RRA

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION

RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 13 June 13, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

GENERAL ERSKINE'S SPECIAL INTERAGENCY COMMITTEE ISSUES ADDITIONAL OJT STANDARDS FOR FARM OCCUPATIONS UNDER G.I. BILL.

pp. 2,3,4,5

* * * * * *

JOHN W. SNYDER SUBMITS REPORT ON THE VETERAN AND HIGHER EDUCATION TO PRESIDENT TRUMAN.

pp. 5,6,7,8

* * * * * *

VA URGES ALL VETERANS TO APPLY AT ONCE FOR CERTIFICATES OF ELIGIBILITY IF PLANNING TO ATTEND SCHOOL NEXT FALL UNDER THE G.I. BILL.

pp. 8,9

* * * * * *

SEARCH FOR MISSING WAR AND NAVY PERSONNEL CONTINUES - HOPE FOR FURTHER RESCUES IS DIM.

pp. 9,10

* * * * * *

WAA ANNOUNCES INAUGURATION OF NEW "SALES AT SITE" SYSTEM TO TAKE CARE OF ALL PRIORITY CLAIMANTS AND SMALL BUSINESSES.

pp. 10,11

* * * * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
Additional OJT Standards Issued -
For Farm Occupations	2
Criteria for Approval of Agricultural OJT	3,4,5
Army Captain Requests RRA's Advice -
On Establishing an Advisory Center	15
CIO Support Given -
To Non-Agricultural OJT Standards	5
Community Aid Stressed -
For VA Facilities	15
Continued Service Planned -
For Veteran and Non-Veteran	12
Legislation: Alaska -
Bonus for Veterans	16
News and Ideas of Interest to Centers -
Name in Neon	12
Service and Rehabilitation	14
Beaver County Strong	14
"Share Your Home"	14
Erskine Speaks in Denver	14
Picture	7
Picture Page -
Augusta, Georgia Center	13
Qualifications for Priorities -
Defined by CPA	11
Report on Veterans Education -
Submitted to President	5,6,7,8
Search for Missing Continues -
Although Hope is Dim	9
Surplus Disposal Plan -
Speeds Up Sales	10,11
VA Certification Needed -
Early Applications Urged	8, 9

RECOMMENDED MINIMUM CRITERIA FOR APPROVAL OF ON-THE-JOB TRAINING PROGRAM FOR VETERANS IN STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT AGENCIES

* * * * * * * *

ADOPTED JUNE 18, 1946

BY

INTERAGENCY COMMITTEE FOR DEVELOPMENT OF

CRITERIA AND STANDARDS FOR ON-THE-JOB TRAINING

Department of Labor

RETRAINING AND REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION

Washington 25, D. C.

Department of Labor
RETRAINING AND REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
Federal Trade Commission Building
Washington 25, D. C.

TO THE GOVERNORS OF ALL STATES AND TERRITORIES:

I am enclosing herewith the third in the series of recommended minimum criteria for approval of establishments offering on-the-job training for veterans. This particular set of criteria relates to on-the-job training of veterans in State and local Government agencies.

As you know from my letters of April 8 and June 10, 1946, forwarding the nonagricultural and agricultural criteria, this material has been formulated by an interagency committee representing the major Federal Government agencies concerned with on-the-job training. Following previous practice the committee has received the assistance and advice of interested nongovernmental organizations in developing the standards. In the case of the criteria for State and local governmental on-the-job training the following groups were consulted:

American Council on Education
American Federation of Labor
The American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees
The American Legion
American Municipal Association
American Veterans Committee
American Veterans of World War II
American Vocational Association
The Civil Service Assembly of the United States and Canada
Congress of Industrial Organizations
Council of Chief State School Officers
The Council of State Governments
Disabled American Veterans
The International City Managers Association
National Education Association
United Public Workers of America
The Veterans of Foreign Wars

I hope that your State approving agency will see fit to give such consideration to these criteria as may result in their adoption as a minimum basis for approving on-the-job training programs in State, municipal, and county governmental agencies. It seems to me that there are advantages for the veteran, the State, and the Federal Government in establishing a reasonable uniformity in the minimum requirements for State approval. In recommending such adoption, I recognize clearly that each State has the full right to make its own decisions as to the standards it will use. I further understand that in many instances the States have already established more exacting criteria which should, of course, be continued in effect if working satisfactorily.

I should be pleased to receive any suggestions you or your State approving agency may care to offer concerning these standards and their application.

Sincerely yours,

G. B. ERSKINE
Major General, USMC
Administrator

Enclosure

Department of Labor
RETRAINING AND REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
Washington 25, D. C.

RECOMMENDED MINIMUM CRITERIA FOR APPROVAL OF ON-THE-JOB TRAINING PROGRAM FOR VETERANS IN STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT AGENCIES

ENERAL STATEMENT

Public Law 346 (G.I. Bill of Rights) provides for on-the-job training, o assure economic security to veterans who want to learn a job that will increase their earning capacity and their opportunity for employment and advance-ent. Veterans who are selected for this training receive subsistence payments n addition to the wages or salary paid by the employing agency during the raining period. The maximum subsistence allowance under the law is $65 a onth for veterans without dependents, and $90 a month for those with dependents. The veteran's combined salary and allowance cannot exceed the salary ate established for experienced workers, in the job for which the veteran is eing trained.

The subsistence allowance is not a gratuity to the veteran, nor is it a ubsidy to the employer. The value of the program will be lost and its integrity ill be discredited if it is used as a cheap labor scheme, or if the period of raining is prolonged unnecessarily, or if the employing agency cannot provide easonable assurance that the veteran will get the job for which he is being rained upon completion of his training.

Apprenticeship is a recognized form of training for which subsistence allowance ay be payable. Standards to safeguard the welfare of apprentices are established y State and Federal apprenticeship agencies. Additional standards are needed, owever, to cover training for other jobs which have sufficient training content o make it worthwhile for a veteran to use his education or training entitlement nder the law. Some jobs are so narrow in scope or so highly specialized that they do not justify the use by the veteran of his training entitlement. Where the training is slight, and there is relatively little difference between the entrance salary and the salary paid to a trained worker, there is little, if any, advantage to the veteran in taking part in such a training program. For example, if there is only a ten-dollar-per-month difference between the pay rate of the trainee and the standard rate for an experienced worker, the veteran is not getting the full benefit from his training allotment.

An Interagency Committee for Development of Criteria and Standards for On-the-Job Training has been appointed by the Retraining and Reemployment Administration, Department of Labor, which is responsible for coordinating training activities of various Federal agencies. The following standards for on-the-job training of veterans in State and local Government jurisdictions have just been developed by that Committee. While these standards are advisory in nature, they are recommended for adoption by the State agency in each State that is designated as responsible for approving nonagricultural on-the-job training programs conducted for veterans by Government agencies.

DEFINITION

As used herein, "on-the-job training" means training conducted in a Government agency for any position for which at least three months of guided work experience, with such supplemental instruction as may be necessary, are required to insure reasonable competency, and in which there is a difference between the wage or salary paid to the trainee and that paid a trained worker. In instances where the time of the trainee is measured on an hourly basis, rather than a monthly basis, the minimum amount of time covered by the training program should not be less than 500 hours.

APPLICATION FOR APPROVAL OF ON-THE-JOB TRAINING

Any State or local Government agency desiring to undertake an on-the-job training program under Public Law 346 will be asked to submit to the designated

State approving agency within that State a written application setting forth the course of training for each kind of job for which a veteran is to be trained. Standard programs for identical jobs should be developed when possible. This application should include the following information:

1. Title and description of the specific job objective for which the veteran is to be trained.
2. A statement describing the qualifications that should be possessed by the veteran in order to be selected for training.
3. A statement of the monthly wage or salary (excluding overtime) payable to the trainee and the beginning monthly wage or salary (excluding overtime) paid to a trained worker in the position for which he is to be trained.
4. An outline of the training program as a whole, listing topics or subjects to be covered and number of days or weeks devoted to each.
5. Qualifications of instructors, including their ability to train.
6. Instructional materials to be used, such as manuals, textbooks, etc.
7. Instructional plan or methods to be followed, such as at-the-desk instruction, lectures, directed reading, conference, etc.
8. Facilities and equipment to be used in training.
9. A definite statement of the criteria which are to be used to determine when the trainees have reached satisfactory work standards.
10. A statement indicating whether there is reasonable expectation that the veteran who completes the prescribed on-the-job training program successfully will, on completion of this training, be employed in the kind of job for which he has been trained.
11. A statement that the employing agency will not effect a reduction in its normal expenditure for personal services as a result of the on-the-job training.

12. An agreement to report as required to the Veterans Administration.

STANDARDS FOR APPROVAL OF ON-THE-JOB TRAINING

On-the-job training programs should be considered for approval only if application is submitted in conformity with the above specifications, and if inquiry by the State-designated approving agency shows that they meet, or have made provisions for meeting, the following standards:

1. The program will fully qualify trainees to do the job for which the training is to be conducted and to meet the usual experience and training requirements for that job.
2. There is a reasonable certainty that the job for which the veteran is to be trained will be available to him within the State or local Government jurisdiction providing the training at the end of the training period. (The committee is convinced that the interests of both the veteran and the governmental agencies concerned are best served when the veteran is appointed through usual appointment procedures prior to being placed in training. For example, in the case of a Government jurisdiction that has a civil service law, the veteran should be selected and appointed to a training position under procedures required by such law before he is placed in training. In general, the trainee should be determined to be qualified for the full job, except for the deficiency in training.)
3. The salary or wage rate to be paid the veteran for the entire period of training or any part of the period of training is not less than that customarily paid to a non-veteran learner in the same job.
4. The position for which the training is to be conducted is one to which promotion is based upon skill and knowledge acquired through systematized and organized training rather than merely on such factors as seniority, length of service, normal job progression, etc. (Subsistence for veterans receiving on-the-job training is intended to be used in those situations where the employer has set up trainee positions that are recognized as being a preliminary step for advancement to the full-fledged position. However, there are a number of jobs where there is a normal progression from the junior to the senior rank, for example, and where preparation for promotion consists essentially of performing the duties of the lower level position. If there is no established trainee position at an intermediate rate of pay between the rate for the lower and higher level jobs, the subsistence feature of the on-the-job training program should not be applied in cases of training for the higher level job.)

5. The program will be completed in the shortest possible time consistent with thorough training, and the length of the training will not exceed that customarily required to provide the necessary skills, arrange for the acquiring of job knowledge, technical information, and other facts which the trainee will need to learn in order to become competent on the job for which he is to be trained.

6. The requirements of the position for which the training is to be conducted justify establishing a training program of at least three months except where the standard period of training is shortened, as provided in Item 9 below.

7. Adequate instructional and supervisory personnel and adequate and suitable equipment and materials are available. (The committee feels that mere "exposure" to the work, or casual, informal instruction by a supervisor from time to time do not constitute "adequate" instructional facilities within the meaning of this program.)

8. Adequate provision is made for check of the trainee's progress and for determining when he has attained his job objective.

9. Appropriate credit is given the veteran for previous related job experience, whether in military service or elsewhere, and his training period shortened accordingly.

10. Provision is made for obtaining support of the progress by the agency's employees.

11. Provision is made for acquainting the veteran trainee at the outset of his training with the special schedule of training he is expected to complete, and the standards that will be used by the employer in determining whether or not he completes his training successfully.

12. Provision is made for issuing to the veteran, upon satisfactory completion of training, a certificate attesting to his satisfactory completion of the training.

Adopted on June 18, 1946 by the Interagency Committee for Development of Criteria and Standards for On-the-Job Training established pursuant to Retraining and Reemployment Administration Order No. 4.

Approved for transmittal to the Governors of all States and Territories.

Dated: June 25, 1946

G. B. ERSKINE
Major General, USMC
Administrator

(RRA 46-183)

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 14 June 20, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

GENERAL BRADLEY URGES SETTING UP OF ADVISORY CENTERS AND RECOMMENDS COMMUNITIES ASK RRA FOR HELP.
p. 2

* * * * * *

RRA REORGANIZES ADVISORY CENTERS DIVISION INTO FIELD SERVICE BRANCH.
pp. 2,3

* * * * * *

NEW HIGH REACHED IN FARM SECURITY ADMINISTRATION LOANS TO VETERANS.
p. 4

* * * * * *

VETERANS COMMITTEE OF NATIONAL SOCIAL WELFARE ASSEMBLY IS MAKING STUDY OF METHODS OF SOLVING INDUSTRIAL WORKERS' PERSONAL PROBLEMS.
p. 10

* * * * * *

VA ARRANGES FOR COLLEGES TO GET MORE THAN A MILLION SURPLUS TEXTBOOKS.
p. 4

* * * * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
Babies Under Six Months -
Not to be Admitted to U. S.	7,8
Centers' Help Sought -
On Problem Procedure	10
Commercial Motor Boats -
G.I. Business Loans	5,6
Community Advisory Centers -
Urged by General Omar N. Bradley	2
Farm Loans -
For Veterans	4
Field Service Branch -
RRA Expands Field Activities	2,3
Flight Training Under G.I. Bill -
Rules and Regulations	9,10
Legislation: New York State -
Housing	14,15
New Businesses -
Show Veterans Are Venturesome	8,9
News and Ideas of Interest to Centers -
Business Backing	11
Loan Screening Board	11,12
10,000th Man	12
Expansion	13
Publicity	13
Community Referral Service	13,14
Reading List: Of Interest to Veterans and Others -
Books, Pamphlets, Etc	15
Subsistence Allowances Under G.I. Bill -
Not Considered Wages	6
Surplus Textbooks -
For Veteran-Students	4
U. S. Coast Guard Reserve -
To Get No G. I. Benefits	5

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING-REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 15 June 27, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

GENERAL ERSKINE APPOINTED EXPEDITER OF SURPLUS U.S. PROPERTY AND FACILITIES FOR EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS.
p. 2

* * * * * *

VETERANS MUST REGISTER IMMEDIATELY WITH PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT OFFICE WHEN UNEMPLOYED TO COLLECT SRA. PAYMENTS NOT RETROACTIVE.
p. 2

* * * * * *

GENERAL ERSKINE'S SPECIAL COMMITTEE TO MAKE POSSIBLE MANUFACTURE OF 1,000,000 MORE LOW-COST MEN'S SUITS AND OVERCOATS FOR VETERANS.
p. 3

* * * * * *

REPORT OF ATS, DEPARTMENT OF LABOR, SAYS STEPS ARE BEING TAKEN TO INCREASE NUMBER OF SKILLED WORKERS IN BUILDING TRADES TO AID NATIONAL HOUSING PROGRAM.
p. 4

* * * * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
Apprentice Training Program - Broadened	4
Arizona Sets Up Council - To Approve OJT Applications	3
Discharge Certificate Copies Accepted - By VA	10,11
D. C. Center - Picture	11
Handicapped Workers - Produce Efficiently	5,6
Legislation: New York State	15,16
Loyola University School of Law - Accepting Applications	4
News and Ideas of Interest to Centers	12,13,14,15
One Million More Men's Suits - For Veterans	3
On-the Job Training Works - In N. J. Firm	5
Priority Ratings on Tools - For Veteran Trainees	9,10
Readjustment Allowances - For Veterans	2
Reading List	16
Request for Information - By RRA	7 & 8
RRA Soon to Send Centers - WAA Publication on Vets Rights	5
State Scholarships - For Veterans	10
Surplus Goods Expediter - For Schools	2
Totally Blind Veteran - Doing a Creditable Job	10
VA Decentralizes NSLI - To 13 Branch Offices	7,8
Veterans Loan Authority - Organized in New Jersey	7

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING-REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 16 July 5, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

GENERAL ERSKINE'S INTER-AGENCY COMMITTEE DEVELOPS ON-THE-JOB TRAINING STANDARDS FOR STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENTS.
pp. 2,3,4,5

* * * * * *

"ONE-STOP" COMMUNITY ADVISORY CENTERS DEEMED ONE OF THE GREAT NEEDS OF RETURNING VETERANS BY COL. MENNINGER.
p. 5

* * * * * *

PRIVATE LIFE INSURANCE GUARANTEED BY U. S. MUST BE RESUMED BY VETS TWO YEARS FROM DISCHARGE.
p. 6

* * * * * *

DISABLED VETERAN PRAISES SERVICES RENDERED HIM BY VA REHABILITATION CENTER IN NEW YORK.
pp. 6,7

* * * * * *

VA TO SUPPLY HOME EQUIPMENT TO VETERAN-PATIENTS WITH SPINAL INJURIES WHEN DIS-CHARGED FROM HOSPITAL.
p. 8

* * * * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
Attention, Center Directors!	5
Form: To be Filled in by Centers	15
Legislation -
Hawaii	14,15
News and Ideas of Interest to Centers	12,13,14
"One-Stop" Community Advisory Centers Recommended -
By Colonel Menninger	5
On-the-Job Training Standards -
For State and Local Governments	2,3,4,5
Prosthetic Service Cards -
For Disabled Veterans	9,10
Reading List	16
Rest Camp for Veterans -
In New York State	11
RRA Field Representatives Meeting -
July 8-9 in Washington, D. C.	12
Testing Aids -
In Counseling, Placement, Etc.	7,8
Texas Committee -
Coordinates Veterans Affairs	8,9
Trained Staff Members -
For Centers	11,12
Traveling Forums -
On Veterans Affairs	12
VA Circulars -
Regulations, Procedures	11
VA Home Equipment -
For Spinal Cases	8
Veteran Approval of VA Clinic -
In New York	6,7
War Department Films Available -
For Showing at Centers	9
Warning to Veterans -
Taking On-the-Job Training	6

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 17 July 11, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

GENERAL ERSKINE REVIEWS RRA ACTIVITIES AT WASHINGTON MEETING OF FEDERAL GOVERNMENT AGENCY REPRESENTATIVES.
pp. 2,3

* * * * * *

RESPONSES SHOW THAT STATES WELCOME CRITERIA FOR ON-THE-JOB TRAINING COURSES RECOMMENDED BY GENERAL ERSKINE'S FEDERAL INTER-AGENCY COMMITTEE.
p. 4

* * * * * *

CONTINUED UPWARD TREND IN VETERANS' SELF-EMPLOYMENT ALLOWANCES REPORTED BY VA.
p. 5

* * * * * *

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE ANNOUNCES TIGHTENING OF REGULATIONS GIVING PREFERENCE TO VETERANS IN OBTAINING LICENSES TO EXPORT SCARCE COMMODITIES.
pp. 5,6

* * * * * *

CANADIAN VETERANS REAP BENEFITS OF CAREFULLY PREPARED POST-WAR PLANS, SAY RRA REPRESENTATIVES AFTER RECENT VISIT TO CANADA.
p. 8

* * * * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
Community Action Builds - Homes for Veterans	11,12,13
Dependent's Travel Refund - War Department Information	10
Federal Council of Churches - Supports Centers	11
General Erskine Discusses Vet Problems - With Visiting Community Officials	10
Housing for Veterans - In Schools and Colleges	9
Lecture at Columbia University - By Miss Stratton, July 8 to 26	7
News and Ideas of Interest to Centers -
Community Support - Scranton, Pa. Picture Page	14
Negro Service Officers - Florida	15
State Fair - Illinois	15
Open Monday Evening - Canton, Ohio	15
Information - Brooklyn, N. Y.	15
On-the-Job Training - With Relatives as Employers	13
Physicians Needed - By VA	9
Preference for Veterans - In Export Business	5,6
Radio Jobs - In Smaller Cities	6,7
Reading List	16
RRA Activities Reviewed - By General Erskine	2,3
Self-Employment Allowances - For Veterans	5
States Welcome Criteria - For On-Job Courses	4

U. S. Department of Labor
RETRAINING AND REEMPLOYMENT
ADMINISTRATION
Washington 25, D. C.

MISSION and FUNCTIONS of the Retraining and Reemployment Administration

This statement has been issued in response to numerous requests for information regarding the Retraining and Reemployment Administration (RRA). It includes a brief outline of the agency's mission, scope of authority, and methods of functioning at National, State, and local levels.

The Retraining and Reemployment Administration is vitally concerned with all human problems of reconversion. It is to the solution of these problems that its efforts are directed.

G. B. ERSKINE
Major General, USMC
Administrator
Retraining and Reemployment Administration.

July 15, 1946.

Mission

The Retraining and Reemployment Administration is the medium created by law to effect coordination during the reconversion period among the activities of those agencies of the Government charged with the functions of retraining, reemployment, vocational education, and vocational rehabilitation. The objective of its work is the reintegration into community life of all Americans whose lives have been disrupted by the war.

In terms of personnel, the Retraining and Reemployment Administration is one of the smallest of the Federal agencies. It maintains no field offices but offers consulting service to the States and communities through a small staff of field representatives.

Origin and Authority

The Retraining and Reemployment Administration was constituted first by Executive order in 1944 and later by law in title III of the War Mobilization and Reconversion Act of 1944. It was transferred to the Department of Labor by Executive order, September 19, 1945. The functions of the Retraining and Reemployment Administration are defined in title III as follows:

1. "To have general supervision and direction of the activities of all existing executive agencies (except the Veterans' Administration and the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs) authorized by law relating to retraining, reemployment, vocational education, and vocational rehabilitation for the purpose of coordinating such activities and eliminating overlapping functions of such agencies. To the extent necessary to achieve such purposes the Administrator shall have power to issue regulations in connection with the work of such executive agencies, but nothing in this title shall be deemed to confer any power or authority upon any such agency or authorize any activities by any such agency not authorized by provision of law other than this title, or to extend any existing power beyond the date upon which it would otherwise expire.

2. "To confer with existing State and local agencies and officials in charge of existing programs relating to retraining, reemployment, vocational education, and vocational rehabilitation for the purpose of coordinating the activities of existing Federal agencies with the activities of such State and local agencies.

3. "To the fullest extent practicable, the Administrator shall perform the duties imposed upon him through the facilities and personnel of other executive agencies."

4. The term "executive agency" is defined in title V of the War Mobilization and Reconversion Act as "any department, independent establishment, or agency in the executive branch of the Government, including any corporation wholly owned by the United States."

Interpretation of Terms and Functions

The work of retraining, reemployment, and vocational rehabilitation is directed toward a single goal: The maximum contribution toward the full development, conservation, and productivity of the human resources of the Nation.

1. Retraining is the development of the capacities of individuals for gainful employment and constructive citizenship.

2. Reemployment is the entrance into or return to gainful work commensurate with their skills and capacities of all persons in the labor force. It includes new employment and self-employment.

3. Vocational rehabilitation is the preparation for and placement in suitable remunerative employment of physically or mentally handicapped persons.

4. The coordinating function at the Federal level is interpreted to include the following steps:

   (a) A careful analysis of the legal responsibilities, activities, and current programs of those executive agencies of Government with which the Retraining and Reemployment Administration is concerned.

(b) An appraisal of these legal responsibilities, activities, and current programs in order to ascertain gaps as well as overlapping and duplication.

(c) Upon the basis of such analysis and appraisal, to assume leadership in reducing overlapping and in recommending new policies and programs when it is clear that they are needed.

5. The execution of this coordinating function may involve among other activities:

(a) Calling conferences of representatives of various Government and private agencies for a discussion and resolution of current problems.

(b) Appointing interagency committees to work on specific projects.

(c) Inquiring into and making recommendations on problems presented or assigned to the Retraining and Reemployment Administration for solution.

(d) Drafting proposed legislation.

(e) Supporting legislative proposals originating from other sources.

(f) Issuing regulations in connection with the activities of those executive agencies with which the Retraining and Reemployment Administration is concerned.

6. The coordinating function at the State level is interpreted to include:

(a) Analysis and appraisal of the regional and State activities and programs of those Federal agencies with which the Retraining and Reemployment Administration is concerned.

(b) Analysis and appraisal of State laws, regulations, and programs in the fields covered by the Retraining and Reemployment Administration.

(c) Upon the basis of such analysis and appraisal, to assume leadership in reducing overlapping between Federal and State activities and in recommending new programs at the State levels when it is clear that they are needed.

7. The execution of the coordinating function at the State level may involve, among other activities:

   (a) Calling conferences of various Federal, State, and private agencies for discussion and resolution of their current problems.

   (b) Making available to all States information concerning desirable legislation or effective programs on a State level in any of the fields of Retraining and Reemployment Administration interest.

   (c) Receiving from the States and interpreting to the Federal agencies suggestions as to how programs may operate more effectively at local levels.

8. Coordination at the local level may include:

   (a) Examining the effectiveness of local training, employment, and rehabilitation programs and recommending such constructive action as may be indicated to achieve maximum results.

   (b) Studying the working agreements and working relationships of Federal, State, and local agencies and recommending such steps as may be indicated to effect greater coordination and efficiency.

   (c) Stimulating local initiative, in cooperation with appropriate Federal, State, and private agencies, in the provision of a coordinated community program of service to veterans and others whose lives have been disrupted by the war.

U. S. GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE 16—48521-1

OCCUPATIONAL OUTLOOK INFORMATION

Prepared by

RETRAINING AND REEMPLOYMENT
ADMINISTRATION
U. S. Department of Labor
Washington 25, D. C.

Occupational Outlook Information Material Prepared by Federal Government Agencies

FOREWORD

This list of occupational outlook materials includes only Federal Government reports believed to have current value in connection with the RRA program. None of the publications of the non-Federal governmental agencies or private organizations are included in this list.

It is intended that the list might serve as a source of reference to those in local Community Advisory Centers and other agencies concerned with employment and training that are particularly concerned with counseling affairs.

Copies of materials issued by the United States Employment Service are generally available, for reference, at all local employment offices. Community agencies which wish to use these materials should consult the local USES office.

Two precautions must be exercised in the use of these publications. First, the prospects given therein are based upon a broad national evaluation, and, therefore, must be confirmed or adjusted in light of local conditions. Secondly, certain of the analyses were prepared and published before and during the war, and the conclusions may not be wholly pertinent at this time.

This material is made available in response to numerous requests from communities and interested persons.

Any organization wishing to duplicate this list in whole or in part may feel free to do so.

G. B. ERSKINE
Major General, USMC
Administrator

JULY 1946.

OCCUPATIONAL OUTLOOK INFORMATION

Department of Agriculture:

If You're Thinking of a Little Place in the Country.
Suggestions to Prospective Farmers and Sources of Information.
Farm Opportunities? Prospects, Problems, Policies. 1945.
Farm Opportunities in the United States, Outlook, Problems, Policies. 1945.
Agriculture in Alaska. 1945.
Farming Opportunities in the Midwest. Ext. Bulletin 325, 1946.
The Veteran and the Forest Service.
Farmers Look at Post-War Projects.
Job Opportunities from Rural Electrification. 1945.
Agriculture's Stake in Full Employment. Address by O. V. Wells, BAE, at Annual Outlook Conference.
Some Postwar Rural Trends in Kentucky, North Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, and West Virginia. Jan. 1946.
What It Takes to be a Farmer.
Part-Time Farming. Bulletin No. 1966.
Selecting a Farm.
Opportunities in American Agriculture.
The Farm as a Business.

Copies may be obtained from the Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C.

A kit, entitled "Some Facts About Farming," prepared by the Department of Agriculture, and made available at separation centers, hospitals and Veterans Administration offices for veterans, includes the following pamphlets, not all of which have occupational outlook information:

Shall I Be a Farmer? July 1944. AWI 105.
Getting Started in Farming. 1944. FB 1961.
About That Farm You're Going to Buy. May 1944. E 29.
Questions and Answers on Where and How To Get a Farm. 1945. AIS 19.
Electrified Farms for the G. I.'s.
Farm Sheep Raising for Beginners. FB 840.
Beef-Cattle Production in the Range Area. FB 1395.
Swine Production. FB 1437.
Farm Poultry Raising. FB 1524.
Beef Production on the Farm. FB 1592.
Dairy Farming for Beginners. FB 1610.
The Farm Garden. FB 1693.
Farm House Plans. FB 1738.
More Food Through Conservation Farming. FB 1909.
Practical Irrigation. FB 1922.
Part-Time Farming. FB 1966.
Living and Forest Lands. MP 388.

Copies may be obtained from the Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C.

The Department of Agriculture publishes Agricultural Situation monthly.

Department of Labor:

The Monthly Labor Review carries articles on occupational outlook in particular industries from time to time.

704044—46

Bureau of Labor Statistics

The following have recently been published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics:

Employment Opportunities for Diesel-Engine Mechanics, 1945, Bulletin 813.
Employment Opportunities for Welders, 1945, Bulletin 844.
Employment Outlook for Automobile Mechanics, 1945, Bulletin 845.
Trend of Employment in the Aluminum Products Industry, 1945.
Employment Opportunities in Aviation Occupations, Part I—Post-War Employment Outlook, Bulletin No. 837-1.
Employment Opportunities in Aviation Occupations, Part II—Duties, Qualifications, Earnings, and Working Conditions, Bulletin No. 837-2.
Probable Volume of Postwar Construction.

Copies are for sale by the Superintendent of Documents, Washington 25, D. C.

Occupational Outlook Division, Bureau of Labor Statistics

In cooperation with the Veterans' Administration, the Division has made preliminary studies of the employment outlook in 116 fields.

They are used in the Counseling and Advisement Centers of the Veterans Administration to which veterans eligible for training under Public Laws 16 and 346 may be referred.

Physicians.
Pharmacists.
Dentists.
Architects.
Chemists.
Veterinarians.
Accountants.
Nurses, trained (or registered)
Optometrists.
Airplane pilots.
Meteorologists.
Weather observers.
Radio operators—general statement.
Radio operators, broadcasting.
Radio operators, common carriers.
Flight radio operators.
Ground radio operators.
Radio operators, marine activities.
Navigators, air transportation.
Radio announcers.
Air-traffic control-tower operators.
Dispatchers, air transportation.
Medical laboratory technicians.
Medical X-ray technicians.
Occupational therapists.
Physical therapists.
Dental hygienists.
Medical record librarians.
Tool designers.
Bookkeepers.
Aviation stock and stores clerks.
Traffic jobs in air transportation.
Airplane hostesses.
Flight stewards.
Practical nurses.
Hospital attendants.
Painters, construction.
Bricklayers.
Plumbers.
Electricians, construction.
Carpenters.
Sheet-metal workers.
Paperhangers.
Blasters and powdermen.
Plasterers.
Chainmen, rodmen and axmen.
Machinists, all-around.
Tool and die makers.
Millwrights.
Inspectors, machinery parts.
Turret-lathe operators.
Lay-out men, machinery and parts production.
Set-up men (job setters).
Grinding machine operators.
Engine lathe operators.
Assemblers, bench (machinery manufacturing).
Assemblers, floor (machinery manufacturing).
Shaper operators.
Milling machine operators.
Patternmakers (wood or metal).
Metal molders, hand.
Molders, machine.
Coremakers, hand.
Coremakers, machine.
Chippers and grinders, foundry.
Foundry technicians.
Melters, foundry.
Welders, electric arc and oxyacetylene gas.
Welders, machine.
Acetylene burners (flame cutters).
Blacksmiths.
Riveters, pneumatic.

Drop-hammer operators.
Boilermakers.
Diesel mechanics.
Automobile mechanics.
Airplane mechanics.
Radio repairmen, community servicing.
Jewelry repairmen.
Dental mechanics.
Watchmakers (watch repairmen).
Electrical repairmen.
Flight engineer.
Industrial machinery repairmen.
Gunsmiths.
Typewriter servicemen.
Printing pressmen and assistants.
Offset pressmen.
Compositors and typesetters, hand.
Linotype operators.
Bookbinders.
Bindery workers.
Proofreaders.
Monotype keyboard operators.
Monotype caster operators.
Electrotypers and stereotypers.
Photoengravers.
Rotogravure photoengravers.
Lithographic artists and letterers.
Lithographic cameramen.
Lithographic platemakers.
Lithographic cutters.
Optical mechanics (opthalmic).
Optical workers, precision.
Painters, manufacturing.
Locomotive engineers, railroad.
Locomotive firemen, railroad.
Brakemen, railroad.
Conductor, railroad.
Baggagemen, railroad.
Hostlers, railroad.
Switchtenders, railroad.
Jewelry workers.
Watch and clock factory workers.
Plastics fabricating jobs.
Filling station attendants, managers, and owners.

Copies are available for examination at local offices of the Veterans Administration. Although the supply is limited, government officials may request copies from the Occupational Outlook Division, Bureau of Labor Statistics, Department of Labor, Washington 25, D. C.

Reports and Analysis Service, United States Employment Service

This Division has prepared basic statements, entitled "Labor Market Information, Industry Series," to which follow up supplements are made each month, on the following industries:

Air transportation.
Aluminum and magnesium.
Automotive, sales and service, retail.
Chemicals.
Coal mining, bituminous.
Construction.
Cotton textiles.
Department stores.
Glass.
Government, Federal.
Iron and steel, basic.
Iron and steel, foundries.
Logging camps and lumber mills.
Merchant marine.
Motion picture theaters.
Petroleum production and refining.
Plastic materials.
Plastic products.
Postal service.
Radio and radar equipment.
Railroad equipment.
Railroads.
Slaughtering and meat packing.
Street railway and motor bus transportation.
Synthetic rubber.
Tires and tubes, rubber.
Trucking.
Woolen and worsted textiles.

These reports are made available to counselors in the USES and to selected segments in the vocational counseling field and to government agencies. They may be obtained from the United States Employment Service, Department of Labor, Washington 25, D. C.

Division of Occupational Analysis, United States Employment Service

This Division makes analyses of jobs, naming, defining and classifying them, establishes occupational families, defines and classifies entry fields of work, determines physical demands of the job, makes industry composition studies; it also uses "Occupational Mobility" techniques whereby current employment statistics and estimates of future employment in a community or other subdivision may be reduced to meaningful occupational terms. The Division has compiled the Dictionary of Occupational Titles and Special Aids for Placing Military and Naval Personnel in Civilian Jobs which groups Army and Navy classifications under the civilian occupational title to aid in the placement of such personnel.

These publications are for sale at the office of the Superintendent of Documents, Washington 25, D. C., but are available for examination at the local offices of the United States Employment Service.

Women's Bureau

The following have been published giving the outlook for women in occupations in medical and other health services:

Physical Therapists, Bulletin 203, No. 1.
Occupational Therapists, Bulletin 203, No. 2.
Professional Nurses, Bulletin 203, No. 3.
Medical Laboratory Technicians, Bulletin 203, No. 4.
Practical Nurses and Hospital Attendants, Bulletin 203, No. 5.
Medical Record Librarians, Bulletin 203, No. 6.
Women Physicians, Bulletin 203, No. 7.
X-Ray Technicians, Bulletin 203, No. 8.
Women Dentists, Bulletin 203, No. 9.
Dental Hygienists, Bulletin 203, No. 10.
Physicians' and Dentists' Assistants, Bulletin 203, No. 11.

Other publications of the Women's Bureau are:

Employment Opportunities in Characteristic Industrial Occupations of Women, Bulletin 201.
The Industrial Nurse and the Woman Worker, Bulletin No. 19.
Post-War Employment Prospects for Women in the Hosiery Industry, Bulletin No. 835.

These publications are for sale at the office of the Superintendent of Documents, Washington 25, D. C.

Department of Commerce:

Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce

Establishing and Operating a Metal Working Shop.
Establishing and Operating a Shoe Repair Business.
Establishing and Operating a Small Sawmill.
Establishing and Operating a Grocery Store.
Establishing and Operating a Service Station.
Establishing and Operating a Real Estate and Insurance Brokerage Business.
Establishing and Operating a Painting and Decorating Contracting Business.
Establishing and Operating a Retail Bakery.
Establishing and Operating Your Own Business.
Establishing and Operating an Automobile Repair Business.
Establishing and Operating a Beauty Shop.
Establishing and Operating an Electrical Appliance and Radio Shop.
Establishing and Operating a Hardware Store.
Establishing and Operating an Apparel Store.
Establishing and Operating a Dry Cleaning Business.
Establishing and Operating a Heating and Plumbing Business.
Establishing and Operating a Laundry.
Establishing and Operating a Restaurant.
Establishing and Operating a Variety and General Merchandise Store.

These publications are for sale at the office of the Superintendent of Documents, Washington 25, D. C.

Entering the Cosmetic Industry.
Planning to Start a Small Mail Order Business.
Planning to Start a Drug Store Ownership.
Some Factors in Establishing Retail Paint, Glass and Wallpaper Stores.

Some Factors in Establishing and Operating a Retail Shoe Store.
Some Factors in Establishing an Electrical Appliance and Radio Sales and Service Business.
Some Factors in Establishing a Still Picture Photography Business.
The Potato Chip Industry.
Establishing and Operating Small Business in Aviation.
Establishing and Operating a Trucking Business.
Establishing a Hardware Store.
Establishing a Sporting Goods Store.
Establishing a Service Station.
Establishing a Dry Cleaning Business.
Establishing a Diaper Service.
Establishing a Laundry.
Establishing a Restaurant.
Establishing a Women's Apparel Store.
Establishing a Men's Clothing and Furnishings Store.
What It Takes to be a Retailer.
Veterans and Small Business. Reprint from Domestic Commerce, January 1946.

Copies of these publications may be obtained from the Inquiry Reference Service, Department of Commerce, Washington 25, D. C.

War Department:

The following occupational briefs were prepared by the National Roster of Scientific and Specialized Personnel, Department of Labor:

1. Accountant.
2. Advertising Man.
3. Agricultural scientist and biological scientist: General survey.
4. Animal husbandman, dairy husbandman and poultry husbandman.
5. Architect.
6. Bacteriologist.
7. Botanist, plant pathologist and plant physiologist.
8. Chemist.
9. Catholic clergyman.
10. Dentist.
11. Dietitian.
12. Economist.
13. Aeronautical engineer.
14. Automotive engineer.
15. Chemical engineer.
16. Civil engineer.
17. Electrical engineer.
18. Engineer: General survey.
19. Industrial engineer.
20. Mechanical engineer.
21. Metallurgical engineer.
22. Mining engineer.
23. Foreign language specialist.
24. Forester.
25. Geologist.
26. Geophysicist.
27. Horticulturist, agronomist and soil scientist.
28. Lawyer.
29. Librarian.
30. Medical technologist.
31. Meteorologist.
32. Musician.
33. Registered nurse.
34. Optometrist.
35. Personnel worker.
36. Pharmacist.
37. Physical education teacher.
38. Physician.
39. Physicist.
40. Protestant clergyman.
41. Psychiatrist.
42. Psychologist.
43. Rabbi.
44. Reporter and editor.
45. Social worker.
46. Sociologist.
47. Statistician.
48. High school teacher.
49. Vocational teacher.
50. Veterinarian.
51. Vocational counselor.
52. Writer.
53. Zoologist, entomologist and parasitologist.

The following occupational briefs were prepared by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, Department of Agriculture:

54. Berry farmer.
55. Corn-hog-cattle farmer.
56. Cotton farmer.
57. Dairy farmer.
58. Farmer: General survey.
59. Fruit farmer.
60. General farmer.
61. Livestock farmer.

62. Pecan, tung-nut, walnut and similar farmers.
63. Part-time farmer.
64. Poultry farmer.
65. Tobacco farmer.
66. Truck farmer.
67. Wheat farmer.
68. Specialty farmer.

The following occupational briefs were prepared by the Occupational Outlook Division, BLS, Department of Labor:

69. Airplane pilot.
70. Bricklayer, construction.
71. Diesel mechanic.
72. Machinist, all-around.
73. Offset pressman.
74. Painter, construction.
75. Painter, manufacturing.
76. Plumber, construction.
77. Radio operator.
78. Radio repairman.

The following occupational briefs were prepared by the Industrial Services Division, USES, Department of Labor:

79. Airplane mechanic.
80. Automobile mechanic.
81. Bookkeeper.
82. Carpenter.
83. Draftsman.
84. Linotype operator.
85. Hotel manager.
86. Photographer.
87. Radio announcer.
88. Stationary engineer.
89. Stenographer and secretary.
90. Clerk, material handling: Shipping. receiving and stock clerk.
91. Commercial artist.
92. Office-machine operator.
93. Salesman and salesperson.
94. Steam fitter.
95. Fireman (fire fighter).
96. Surveyor.
97. Theater manager, motion pictures.
98. Traffic manager.
100. Welder, hand.

The following brief was prepared by the Institute of Life Insurance:

99. Insurance agent, life.

Copies of all these briefs may be obtained from the office of the Superintendent of Documents, Washington 25, D. C., for five cents each. (Order by No. given in above list.)

Federal Security Agency:

United States Office of Education

Discovering Occupational Opportunities for Young Men, in Farming, V. D. Monograph No. 20.

Matching Men and Farms, V. D. Bulletin No. 229.

Occupational Information and Guidance Bibliography, 1937–38, V. D. Bulletin No. 212.

Copies may be obtained from the office of the Superintendent of Documents, Washington 25, D. C.

U. S. GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE: 1948

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 19 July 25, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

GENERAL ERSKINE'S REPORT URGES IMPROVED CONDITIONS FOR MIGRANT LABOR.
p. 2,3

* * * * * *

NEW EDUCATIONAL PLANS ACCOMODATE ADDITIONAL COLLEGE STUDENTS.
p. 3

* * * * * *

EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS ADVISED ON ACQUISITION OF SURPLUS VESSELS.
p. 4

* * * * * *

"VETERANS OPPORTUNITY WEEK" OBSERVED IN WEST VIRGINIA.
p. 6

* * * * * *

FBI CHIEF DENOUNCES SPOTLIGHTING VETERANS IN CRIME STORIES.
p. 6

* * * * * *

GENERAL ERSKINE ATTENDS TEXAS STATE MEETINGS ON VETERANS PROBLEMS.
p. 8

* * * * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
College Courses Extended To Increase Enrollment	3
Erskine Speaks in Texas On Veterans' Problems	8
Four Agencies Agree On Rehabilitation Work	9
Legislation Washington, D. C.	14
Michigan Subsistence Loans To Student Veterans	10
Migrant Labor Conditions Reported by Committee	2
National Radio Campaign Suggests Local Ideas	7
News and Ideas of Interest to Centers	11-13
OJT Standards Gaining Official Support	5
Opportunity Week Held In West Virginia	6
Reading List Books, Pamphlets, etc	15
Retired Pay Increased Too In Armed Forces	9
RRA Field Men Confer At Home Office	11
Ships for Student Housing Subject of Inquiries	4
VA Rulings of Interest to Centers	14
GI Women's Eligibility	14
Adjustment May be Needed	14
Veterans Defended By FBI Chief	6

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 20 August 1, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

ARMED FORCES LEAVE ACT STILL IN CONGRESS. WATCH BULLETIN FOR FURTHER DEVELOPMENTS.
p. 16

* * * * * *

LIBERALIZED NSI BILL AWAITS SIGNATURE OF PRESIDENT.
pp. 2,3

* * * * * *

WAR DEPARTMENT ISSUES LIST OF DONABLE MATERIALS FOR EDUCATIONAL PURPOSES IN RESPONSE TO A REQUEST FROM GENERAL ERSKINE.
pp. 3,4

* * * * * *

CPA ORDERS ACTION UPON REQUESTS FOR PRIORITIES FOR VETERAN EDUCATION PROGRAM WITHIN 48 HOURS.
pp. 5,6

* * * * * *

RRA ADMINISTRATOR MEETS WITH REPRESENTATIVES OF LABOR, INDUSTRY, AND VETERANS' ORGANIZATIONS TO DISCUSS JOB OUTLOOK OF VETERANS.
p. 7

* * * * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
Arkansas Welcomes Standards - For OJT Training	12
Bulletin Mailing Cut	12
CPA Favors Education - Priorities Expedited	5,6
Committee of Nine - Discusses Job Outlook	7
Discharge Review Available - Through Proper Procedure	13
Donable Materials Listed - For Educational Purposes	3,4
Fraternal Orders Helpful - In Work of Centers	10,11
News and Ideas of Interest to Centers -
State Laws in Digest	13,14
Compendium on Hand	14
Doctors Aid Center	14
C of C Gives Funds	14
Repeaters at Center	14
Merger Considered	15
108,000 Questions	15
Philadelphia Flourishes	15
Publicity Playlet	15
New Warning Issued - To Kin of Fliers	9,10
No Special Benefits - For Prisoners of War	9
NSI Bill Liberalized - Digest of Changes	2,3
Rehabilitation Program - Summed up for Year	8,9
Special Schooling Plan -
Tried in Oklahoma	11
Several Plans in New York	11,12
Courses for Deaf	12
Terminal Leave Pay Bill	16
WAA Report on Disposal of Trucks - For Month of June	6

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 21 August 8, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

TRUMAN ENDORSES COMMUNITY EFFORTS TOWARD ASSISTING VETERANS IN TRANSITION TO PROFITABLE PEACETIME LIFE.
p. 2

* * * * * *

STUDENT VETERANS MAY TAKE LEAVE FROM STUDIES ONLY UNDER PRESCRIBED CONDITIONS WITHOUT LOSING SUBSISTENCE.
pp. 2,3

* * * * * *

VETERANS GIVEN PREFERENCE IN OBTAINING FATS AND OILS FOR OWN BUSINESS NEEDS.
pp. 4,5

* * * * * *

MARYLAND'S JOB-TRAINING SYSTEM ENVISAGES CLEAR SAILING ON INSPECTIONS AFTER SEPTEMBER FIRST.
pp. 8,9

* * * * * *

WAR AMPUTEES CAN SAVE TIME IN GETTING NEW LIMBS IF ADVISED OF PROCEDURE FIRST.
p. 9,10

* * * * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
Truman Cites Advisory Centers - In Letter Given to Press	2
Vacations for Trainees - Explained Under Law	2,3
College Openings Listed	4
Subsistence Non-Taxable - In New York State	4
Fats and Oils Tagged - For Veterans' Business	4,5
Centers' Aid Suggested - In Housing Shortage	6,7
Furniture Dealers Interested - In Homes for Veterans	7
Home Loans Highest - Among Veterans	7,8
Must Heed Local Laws	8
OJT Approval System - Working in Maryland	8,9
Procedure for Amputees - In Getting New Limbs	9,10
Army Separation Schedule - Favors Fathers	10
Women Librarians Needed - For Service Overseas	10
Picture Page - Indianapolis Center	11
Home-Town Prescriptions - Available in 29 States	12
Nevada Situation Favorable - Veterans Problems Slight	12
Tip for Alien Veterans	13
Negro Educator Named - RRA Consultant	13
News and Ideas of Interest to Centers	13,14,15
VA Rulings of Interest to Centers	15
A City Responds	16

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 22 August 15, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN SIGNS ARMED FORCES LEAVE ACT AND OTHER LEGISLATION AFFECTING VETERANS.
pp. 2,3

* * * * * *

GENERAL ERSKINE ESTABLISHES INTERAGENCY COMMITTEE TO COORDINATE THE EMPLOYMENT OF VETERANS AND NON-VETERANS IN FEDERAL GOVERNMENT SERVICE.
p. 5

* * * * * *

REENLISTED VETERANS ARE ELIGIBLE TO RECEIVE MANY BENEFITS UNDER THE G.I. BILL, VA HAS ANNOUNCED.
pp. 5,6

* * * * * *

A QUARTER OF A MILLION DISABLED VETERANS ARE PRESENTLY UNEMPLOYED, SECRETARY OF LABOR TELLS CONVENTION OF AMERICAN LEGION IN D.C.
pp. 6,7

* * * * * *

GOVERNMENT PROVIDES EMERGENCY MATERNITY AND INFANT CARE WITHOUT COST TO WIVES OF ENLISTED MEN OR VETERANS OF THE FOUR LOWEST PAY GRADES.
p. 7

* * * * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
Armed Forces Leave Act of 1946 - Signed by President	2,3
Automobiles for Amputees - Authorized	3
Revision of Job-Training Provisions - Becomes Law	3,4
Other Legislation Signed - Affecting Veterans	4
RRA Administrator Establishes Coordinating Committee - On Federal Employment	5
Veterans' Benefits - For Reenlisted	5,6
Schwellenbach Addresses Convention - Of American Legion	6,7
Emergency Maternity and Infant Care - Provided by Government	7
Blind Typists	8
VA Expands Program - For Mentally Ill	8,9
Mayors' Emergency Housing Committees - Making Progress	9,10
Surplus Property Priority - Denied Brokers	10
Need for Center Survey - By RRA	10,11
Veterans' Subsistence - Fair Wages for Trainees	11,12
Radio Campaign	12
VA Rulings of Interest to Centers	12,13
More Aid for Centers - From USES	13
News and Ideas of Interest to Centers	13,14,15
Legislation: New Jersey	16
Accreditation	16

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION

RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 23 August 22, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

RRA ASKS GOVERNORS TO ENCOURAGE SUPPORT OF "NATIONAL EMPLOY THE PHYSICALLY HANDICAPPED WEEK" ON STATE AND LOCAL LEVELS.
pp. 2,3

* * * * * *

GENERAL ERSKINE ANNOUNCES UNIQUE PLAN SUBMITTED BY A N.Y. CITY MFG. CORP. WHICH WOULD MAKE A QUARTER MILLION LOW COST SUITS AND OVERCOATS AVAILABLE TO VETS.
p. 4

* * * * * *

PRESIDENT TRUMAN SIGNS ACT GIVING VA AUTHORITY TO EMPLOY RETIRED OFFICERS OF THE ARMED SERVICES.
pp. 5,6

* * * * * *

VA ISSUES CIRCULAR TO REGIONAL OFFICES GIVING COMPLETE INFORMATION ON THE COOPERATION ESTABLISHED WITH FEDERAL-STATE REHABILITATION AGENCIES.
pp. 6,7

* * * * * *

SIXTEEN-COUNTY AREA CONFERENCE TO DISCUSS ORGANIZATION AND OPERATION OF ADVISORY CENTERS HELD IN TEXAS.
p. 8

* * * * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
"Employ the Physically Handicapped" - Oct. 6-12	2,3
Payments for Veterans Living in Enemy-Occupied Countries - Now Approved	3
RRA Publications	3
Quarter Million Suits - For Veterans	4
Erskine Aids California Schools - Action Called Fastest	5
Employment of Retired Officers - By VA	5,6
Cooperation With Federal-State Rehabilitation Agencies - VA Circular No. 176	6,7
Sixteen-County Area Conference - In Port Arthur, Texas	8
Advice on Opening a Retail Apparel Store - From U.S. Dept. of Commerce	8
Working Conditions of Nurses - Being Surveyed	9
Temporary Junior Colleges - For Veterans	9
The Inter-Agency Council - Of Atlanta, Georgia	9,10
Cooperation Between Separation and Advisory Centers Praised - By War Secretary Patterson	10,11
Monthly Information Available - On Schools and Colleges	11,12
VA Rulings of Interest to Centers	12
Note to Advisory Centers	12
Picture Page - Los Angeles	13
News and Ideas of Interest to Centers	14,15
Legislation: Vocational Education Act of 1946	15,16
Reading List	16
Terminal Leave Forms	16

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 24 August 29, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS REGARDING TERMINAL LEAVE PAY FOR ENLISTED VETERANS.
pp. 2,3

* * * * * *

GENERAL ERSKINE PROMISES FULL COOPERATION OF RRA IN HELPING HANDICAPPED IN SPEECH BEFORE ANNUAL CONVENTION OF AFPH IN WASHINGTON.
p. 4

* * * * * *

AN OPEN LETTER TO STATE, COUNTY, AND COMMUNITY OFFICIALS REQUESTING SUPPORT OF HANDICAPPED PROGRAM.
p. 16

* * * * * *

GENERAL BRADLEY REPORTS ON PROGRESS MADE BY VA DURING HIS FIRST YEAR AS ADMINISTRATOR OF VETERANS AFFAIRS.
pp. 4,5,6,7

* * * * * *

NHA REPORTS THAT MAYORS' EMERGENCY HOUSING COMMITTEES ARE INCREASING AT RATE OF TWO EACH DAY; COMMUNITY ADVISORY CENTERS COOPERATING WITH THESE COMMITTEES.
pp. 7,8

* * * * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
Terminal Leave Pay Law - Brings Many Queries	2,3
Help Pledged to Handicapped - By General Erskine	4
General Bradley Reports - On First Year at VA	4,5,6,7
Mayors' Emergency Housing Committees - Approach 500 Mark	7,8
Counseling Manual	8
Council of Veterans Organizations - In Houston, Texas	9
Benefits to Veterans of Allied Countries Living in U. S.	9,10
Building	10,11
VA Circulars of Interest to Centers - Medical Program	11
County Service Officers Expand Activities - In Georgia	12
Aid for Centers	12
News and Ideas of Interest to Centers -
New Records	12,13
One Roof	13
Expenses Shared	13
New Center	13
Quarterly Report	14
Identification Cards Printed	14
Training for Negroes	14
Picture Page - Bristol, Connecticut	15
An Open Letter	16

JOURNAL of REHABILITATION

- The Amputee
- Human Interest
- Hearing Clinics
- The Disabled Negro
- Public Relations
- Applied Psychology
- Personnel Standards
- Coordinating Services

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 25 September 5, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

WORLD WAR II VETERANS ARE WASTING $90,000,000,000 BY ALLOWING THEIR NSI TO LAPSE, ACCORDING TO VA FIGURES.
pp. 2, 3

* * * * * *

DISABLED VETERANS TAKING OJT UNDER PL 16 ARE EXEMPT FROM THE NEW AMENDMENTS TO THE G.I. BILL OF RIGHTS. NEW CEILINGS APPLY ONLY TO PL 346.
p. 4

* * * * * *

WORLD WAR II AMPUTEES ELIGIBLE TO RECEIVE GOVERNMENT-FINANCED AUTOMOBILES MAY NOW APPLY FOR APPLICATION FORMS AT NEAREST VA REGIONAL OFFICE.
pp. 5,6

* * * * * *

GENERAL ERSKINE, IN A SERIES OF SPEAKING ENGAGEMENTS, URGES COMMUNITIES TO EXERT EVERY EFFORT TO HELP VETERANS RECONVERT TO CIVILIAN LIFE.
p. 7

* * * * * *

FHA ASKS REMODELING OF HOMES AND APARTMENTS AS A FASTER METHOD OF HELPING SOLVE THE HOUSING SHORTAGE.
pp. 13,14

* * * * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No
Veterans Wasting $90,000,000,000 - By Letting NSI Lapse	2,3
Disabled Exempt From OJT Ceilings - Public Law 16 Not Affected	4
Pamphlet Advises Schools - On How to Acquire Property	4
Autos for Amputees - Applications Now Ready	5,6
Openings in Army - For Special Assignments	6
Erskine Speaks in Oregon and Nevada - On Reconversion Problems	7
High School Diplomas - Without Further Study	7,8
Fee-Basis Dentistry - Arranged by VA	8
Lendable Films Listed - By VA Visual Aids	8,9
News and Ideas of Interest to Centers	10,11,12
Picture Page - Long Beach, Cal	11
Toward Less Confusion - Foresight in Forms	13
FHA Urges Remodeling - To Boost Living Units	13,14
States Proclaim NEPH Week - Promoting Jobs for Disabled	14,15
Unused Leave Pay Questions - Answered in Fact Sheet	15
VA Publications Restricted - To Own Personnel	16
Puerto Rico Program - Getting Under Way	16

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 26 September 12, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

AID OF LOCAL LEADERS TO SECURE MORE AND BETTER JOBS FOR HANDICAPPED URGED BY GENERAL ERSKINE.
pp. 2,3,4

* * * * * * * *

CAUTION IN UTILIZATION OF SERVICEMEN'S READJUSTMENT ALLOWANCES ADVOCATED BY RRA.
pp. 4,5

* * * * * * * *

ST. LOUIS SERVICE CENTER CONTINUES CONCERTED DRIVE AGAINST HOUSING SHORTAGE.
p. 6

* * * * * * * *

JOINT ACTION CREATES NEW INTERAGENCY COMMITTEE TO COORDINATE STATISTICAL SERVICES.
p. 8

* * * * * * * *

EDUCATOR POINTS OUT EXISTING FACILITIES FOR MORE STUDENTS IN TEACHERS COLLEGES.
pp. 10,11

* * * * * * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
Community Support Enlisted - In Jobs for Handicapped	2,3,4
SRA Figures Analyzed - Unwise Use of Payments is Deplored	4,5
All Out for Housing - At St. Louis Service Center	6
Housing Action Elsewhere - Communities Organizing	7
2,900 Units Available - Through WAA	7
National Construction Up - According to BLS	8
New Committee Ordered - To Coordinate Statistics	8,9
RRA Official Addresses Convention - In Portland	9,10
Teachers Colleges Have Openings - For More Students	10,11
Radio Campaign Reviewed	11
Service Officers Trained - By Course in College	11,12
Aid Urged in Burial - Of War Dead	12
State Publications	12
Chargeable Leave Clarified - In Filing Claims	13
News and Ideas of Interest to Centers -
Survey Wins Jobs	13
Advisory Panel Functions	13
Picture, Cincinnati, Ohio	14
Advisory Center Program Surveyed	14,15
Veterans Council Formed	15
Reading List	16

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 27 September 19,1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

pp. 3,4,16

* * * * * *

STUDENT AND TRAINEE CHECKS FACE INTERRUPTION UNLESS EARNINGS ARE REPORTED AS REQUIRED UNDER NEW LAW.
pp. 2,3

* * * * * *

SCARCITY OF FURNITURE LOOMS FOR THOSE STARTING NEW HOMES. IDEAS OFFERED FOR EASING PROBLEM.
p. 8

* * * * * *

SEVENTY-FIVE FIELD OFFICES OF COMMERCE DEPARTMENT OFFER COUNSEL FOR SMALL BUSINESS, BOTH NEW AND OLD.
pp. 12,13,14,15

* * * * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
Trainee Veterans Warned -
To Report Earnings Promptly.....	2,3
NEPH Week Literature -
Being Sent Out.....	3,4
Blind Veteran Gainfully Employed -
Does Work of Two Men.....	4
Bradley Appeals for Disabled.....	4
Table of Veterans In Training, PL 346 -
By Age, Race, and Sex.....	5
Veteran Unemployment -
Job Shifting Major Factor.....	5,6
New Jobs Opening Up.....	6
Small Lots of Surplus Goods -
For Veterans.....	6,7
WAC Accepting Officer Applications.....	7
Furniture Shortage to Affect Millions -
U.S. Chamber of Commerce Reports.....	8
Furniture Clinics.....	8,9
News and Ideas -
Mothers Aid in Housing.....	9
Veteran in a Hurry.....	9
Illinois Publicity-Minded.....	10
Michigan Convalescent School.....	10
Housing Reaches Peak in August.....	10
Picture Page -
Erie, Pennsylvania.....	11
Business Counsel Available -
From Commerce Department.....	12,13,14,15
By the President of the USA -
A Proclamation.....	16

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 28 September 26, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

ANALYSIS OF SRA SHOWS MANY CASES RECEIVE LONG-TIME AID.
p. 2

* * * *

U. S. GOVERNMENT HEADS IN HIRING PHYSICALLY HANDICAPPED.
p. 4

* * * *

LOW-COST CLOTHING SOLD TO VETERANS IN NEW YORK CITY.
pp. 8,9

* * * *

SUMMARY OF NEW LEGISLATION AFFECTING VETERANS.
pp. 11,12

* * * *

TERMINAL LEAVE INSTRUCTIONS FOR NAVY PERSONNEL.
pp. 15,16

* * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
Servicemen's Readjustment Allowance.....	2
Six-Point Program -
To Guide Labor and Management.....	3,4
Physically Handicapped Employed -
By Federal Government.....	4
Veterans' Amendment -
To Social Security Act.....	5
Wyatt Takes Drastic Action -
On Scarce Building Materials.....	6,7
Rental Housing Under Way.....	7
Advisory Centers Can Help Alleviate -
The Furniture Shortage.....	7
Veterans' Clothing Program -
Launched in New York.....	8
Picture Page.....	9
Veterans' Supplemental Applications For Surplus Property -
For Business Use.....	10
Interest Rates Reduced -
On NSLI Loans.....	10
VA Loan Guarantee Forecast -
In New York.....	10
Legislation: Summary of Laws Affecting Veterans -
Passed by Congress.....	11,12
Advice to Newspaper Editors.....	12
News and Ideas.....	13,14
National Guard Enlistments.....	14
Terminal Leave Instructions For Naval Personnel -
Many Forms Returned.....	15,16
Reading List.....	16

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 29 October 3, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

GENERAL ERSKINE REVIEWS THE "NEPH" WEEK ACTIVITIES AND FINDS NATION-WIDE OBSERVANCE AND COOPERATION.
pp. 2,3,4

* * * * * *

THE COAST GUARD NEEDS RECRUITS AND OUTLINES ITS PROGRAM.
pp. 5,6

* * * * * *

A MODEL "SECOND-INJURY FUND" ACT WITH QUALIFYING PROVISIONS IS SUGGESTED TO AID IN SETTING UP THIS TYPE OF LEGISLATION.
pp. 10,11,12,13

* * * * * *

VARIOUS FEDERAL GOVERNMENT AGENCIES ISSUE POLICY STATEMENTS ON HIRING THE PHYSICALLY HANDICAPPED.
pp. 14,15,16

* * * * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week a Success - Says General Erskine	2,3,4
Job Opportunities - In the Coast Guard	5,6
Emergency Colleges Open - To Veterans	6
Former WAVE Officer to Aid Women Veterans	7
Superseniority in Government Jobs - For World War II Veterans	7,8
Courses for Teachers of the Blind	8
Furniture Upholstering Classes - To Train Veterans	8
Employ the Physically Handicapped	9
"Second-Injury Fund" - Is Aid to Disabled	10,11,12,13
News and Ideas -
Community Backing - Kingsport, Tenn.	13
Center Publishes Statistics - Washington, D. C.	13
Demands for Service Increase - Hartford, Conn.	13
Job Hunting Techniques - Boston, Mass	13
Federal Agencies Hire the Handicapped - And Support "NEPH" Week	14,15,16

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 30 October 10, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

GENERAL ERSKINE ANNOUNCES 15 BASIC EMPLOYMENT PRINCIPLES EVOLVED BY LABOR, VETERANS, AND BUSINESS GROUPS.
pp. 4,5,6

* * * * * *

PROCEDURE FOR USING TERMINAL LEAVE FORMS FOR SURVIVORS AND GUARDIANS DESCRIBED.
pp. 7,8

* * * * * *

WOMEN VETERANS NEED HELP; THEY ARE ENCOUNTERING THE SAME READJUSTMENT PROBLEMS AS MEN.
pp. 9,10

* * * * * *

pp. 2,3

* * * * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
Continued Program for the Handicapped Needed - Says General Erskine	2
Hire the Handicapped, It's Good Business- Picture Page	3
Principles to Guide Employment of Veterans and Others - Suggested by RRA	4,5,6
Terminal Leave Forms Available - For Survivors and Guardians	7,8
Classes are Opened to Relieve the Clothing Shortage	8
Problems of Women Veterans - Need Attention	9,10
Schwellenbach Ends Segregation - In D. C. USES	10
Overpayments to Veterans Must be Refunded	11
State Conferences on Veterans Affairs - Southeastern States	11
Ten-State	11,12
Negro Consultants Appointed - By General Erskine	12
Surplus War Property Disposal - Program Streamlined	13
Prefabricated Housing - To Go On Sale	13,14
FHA Warns Veterans - Purchasing Lots for Homes	14
Small-Home Designs	14
Radio Plugs for Centers	14
News And Ideas	15
Report on Survey - Of Advisory Centers	16

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 31 October 17, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

CENTERS SHOULD WIDEN THEIR SCOPE BY HELPING PREVENT JUVENILE DELINQUENCY, SAYS GENERAL ERSKINE.
pp. 2,3

* * * * * *

NEWSPAPERS FEATURE VETERANS TRAINING PROGRAMS SHOWING GREAT SCOPE AND VARIETY OF CLASSES HELD.
p. 5

* * * * * *

WW I AND WW II VETERANS MAY OBTAIN MONTHLY PENSION OF $60 IF THEY BECOME PERMANENTLY AND TOTALLY DISABLED AFTER DISCHARGE.
p. 7

* * * * * *

RRA FIELD REPRESENTATIVES MEET TO DISCUSS ALL PHASES OF VETERANS PROBLEMS AND MAP PLANS FOR THE NEXT SIX MONTHS.
p. 8

* * * * * *

ALIEN VETERANS AND SERVICEMEN SHOULD TAKE ADVANTAGE OF STREAMLINED NATURALIZATION LAW BEFORE DECEMBER 31, 1946.
p. 11

* * * * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
Centers Can Help Solve Juvenile Delinquency - Says General Erskine	2,3
Hire the Handicapped - Its Good Business. Picture	3
Early Reports on "NEPH" Week - Are Enccuraging	4
Veterans Training Programs - Inspire Newspaper Publicity	5
Transportation for Disabled - Offered by Veterans Administration	6
College Enrollments Hit All-Time High - Over Entire Nation	6,7
Student Veterans Organize Messenger Service - To Supplement GI Allotments	7
Veterans Totally Disabled After Discharge - May Be Pensioned	7
RRA Field Representatives Meet - In Washington, D. C.	8
New Pattern to be Established - By Oklahoma Conference	9
State-Wide Conference to Develop Agency Cooperation - On Disabled Veteran Problems	9,10
Waiver of Disability Pensions - Not Binding	10
VA Accepts Photostats - For Pension Benefits	10
Naturalization Law For Veterans - Expires Dec. 31, 1946	11
Dry Cleaning Business A Good Prospect - For Veterans	11
Reconversion Progress - Bar Chart	12
Four Million Vets Desire Other Quarters - Census Bureau Reports	12,13
News and Ideas - Worcester, Mass., Pix.	14,15
Social Security Benefits - For Survivors of Veterans	16

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 32 October 24, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

OPA AND FHA LAUNCH NATION-WIDE ENFORCEMENT DRIVE AGAINST MALPRACTICES IN VETERANS' EMERGENCY HOUSING PROGRAM.
pp. 2,3

* * * * * *

DEPARTMENT OF INTERIOR ANNOUNCES AVAILABILITY OF PUBLIC LANDS SUITABLE FOR HOMESTEADING IN ALASKA.
p. 6

* * * * * *

RRA ACCOMPLISHMENTS IN PAST YEAR LISTED.
pp. 10,11

* * * * * *

WAR DEPARTMENT OPENS REGULAR ARMY TO 5,000 DISABLED VETERANS HAVING SPECIAL SKILLS.
p. 13

* * * * * *

VETERANS ARE WARNED THEY MUST GET VA APPROVAL FOR MEDICAL AND DENTAL CARE OR THEY WILL NOT BE REIMBURSED.
p. 16

* * * * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
Enforcement Program Launched - To Protect Veterans	2,3
NHA Wants Housing Information	4
Lumber Reclaimed by WAA - For Housing	4
Priority Racket Blocked - By CPA	5
Proficiency Requirements Reduced - For Honorable Discharge	5
Americans on the Move - Says Department of Commerce	6
Homestead Opportunities for Veterans - In Alaska	6
RRA Field Staff Meeting - Held in Washington	7
Veterans Officers Form Organization - At Conference in Boston	7
On-the-Job Training Statistics for Month of September - Released by VA	8
OJT Manual to be Issued	8
On-the-Job Training - Picture Page	9
Accomplishments of RRA - In the Past Year	10,11
Laws on State Departments of Veterans Affairs - In RRA Manual	11,12
Priorities for Educational Institutions - Accelerated	12,13
Army Will Recruit - Disabled Veterans	13
Guardians for Minor or Incompetent Beneficiaries - Appointed by VA	13
News and Ideas - Picture, Wichita, Kan.	14
VA Rehabilitation Programs - Need Volunteer Groups	15
Supplies Drugs	15
VA Must Approve - Medical Care	16

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING AND REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 33 October 31, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

AW - p. 12 Obtain

AMERICA'S FUTURE IS LINKED WITH THE FUTURE AND WELFARE OF ITS VETERANS, SAYS GENERAL ERSKINE.
pp. 4,5,6

* * * * * *

LARGE PERCENTAGE OF DISABLED VETERANS DEVELOP PERMANENT HANDICAPS BY NOT USING AVAILABLE REHABILITATION AGENCY FACILITIES.
p. 12

* * *
* * * * * *

SMALL PLANTS SHUTTING DOWN IN NEW YORK DUE TO SHORTAGES.
p. 8

* * * * * *

CONFERENCE OF STATE DIRECTORS OF VETERANS' AFFAIRS TO BE HELD IN D. C., NOVEMBER 13-15.
p. 10

* * * * * *

ELIGIBLE AMPUTEES RUSH FOR AUTOMOBILES PROVIDED BY CONGRESS, BUT ARE STOPPED BY SHORTAGES.
p. 13

* * * * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
RRA's 15 Employment Principles - Very Well Received	2,3
New Preferential Status Given Veterans - Purchasing Surplus Permanent Housing	3,4
Communities Urged to Provide Veterans - With "Greatest Possible Opportunities"	4,5,6
Limb Manufacturers Establish Group - To Develop Standards	7
General Erskine Praises Retailers	7
Veterans Borrow Under GI Bill - To Set Up Business	8
House Cleaning Service Set Up - By Former Marines	8
Small Plants Shut Down - In New York	8
Veterans Make Good With GI Loans - Picture Page	9
Conference of State Directors of Veterans' Affairs - Called by RRA	10
NEPH Week Placements Results - To Be Compiled	10,11
School Credit For Service Experience - Recommended by Educators	11,12
Study Says Veterans' Ignorance - Results in Permanent Handicaps	12
Automobiles for Amputees - In Demand	13
Staff of Four Handle $1,000,000 - For N. H. Veterans	13
News and Ideas - Mt. McGregor, N. Y., Picture Page	14,15
Reading List - Books, Pamphlets, Etc	16

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 34 November 7, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN DECLARES CONFERENCE OF STATE DIRECTORS IS OF UTMOST IMPORTANCE AT THIS TIME.
pp. 2,3

* * * * * *

WASHINGTON CLEARING HOUSE FINDS JOBS FOR PROFESSIONAL WORKERS WILLING TO MIGRATE.
p. 4

* * * * * *

RETAIL STORES ARE SELLING "TO VETERANS ONLY" -- LOW-COST SUITS AND TOPCOATS AVAILABLE THROUGH EFFORTS OF RRA COMMITTEE.
p. 7

* * * * * *

VETERANS MAY OBTAIN VOCATIONAL COUNSELING FREE OF CHARGE FROM VA.
p. 8

* * * * * *

DOMESTIC MIGRANT WORKERS LIVE UNDER WORSE CONDITIONS THAN IMPORTED FOREIGN WORKERS, SAYS MSGR. O'GRADY.
p. 11

* * * * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
National Authorities to Speak - At D. C. Meeting	2,3
Professional Jobs Processed - By National Clearing House	4
USES Transfer to States and Territories - Effective 11/16/46	5,6
Property Exemption for Veterans - In Connecticut	6
Veterans Should Invest Cautiously - SEC Warns	6
Veterans Getting Low-Cost Suits - Through Cooperating Efforts	7
Some Women's Colleges Not Eligible - For Top Surplus Priorities	7
Experts Available - To Counsel Veterans	8
Officers' Compensation Clarified	8
Vocational Guidance Tests - Picture Page	9
Council Acts as Arbitrator	10
Housing Problems the Same - In Connecticut and Hawaii	10,11
Dismal Living Conditions Described - Of Migrant Workers	11
New Labor Information Bulletin - Available to Centers	12
Mental Hygiene Survey Made - In Eastern State	12,13
SRA Payments Decline	13
Marital Problems Studied - By New York Centers	14
New York City Center - Picture	14
Veterans' "Time Table" Available - To Centers	15
News and Ideas	15,16

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 35 November 14, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

VETERANS AFFAIRS DIRECTORS CONSIDERING NATIONAL PROGRAM AT CONFERENCE IN WASHINGTON, D. C.
pp 2,3

* * * * * *

COMMUNITY ACTION DEVELOPING TO CURB NON-ESSENTIAL BUILDING IN FAVOR OF VETERANS' HOUSING.
pp. 3,4,5

* * * * * *

NEW FEDERAL AGENCY EXTENDING LOANS ON FAMILY-TYPE FARMS AFTER OTHER LENDERS DECLINE TO ADVANCE FUNDS.
6,7

* * * * * *

SECOND SURVEY OF PANEL CENTERS SHOWS CONTINUING RISE IN VISITS BY VETERANS SEEKING ASSISTANCE.
p. 16

* * * * * *

JOB-SEEKERS IN BUILDING TRADES URGED TO CONSULT WITH USES ON EXISTING AREA SHORTAGES.
p. 9,10

* * * * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
Community Organization Being Discussed - At D. C. Meeting	2,3
Housing Program Strengthened - By Community Action	3
"Fresno Plan" Model Ordinance - On Housing	4,5
Employment Policy Explained - By U. S. Railroad Retirement Board	5
Farm Loans Available - Under New Set-Up	6,8
Veterans Farm With Government Loans - Picture Page	7
Veterans Training Programs - Continue to Get Publicity	8,9
Building Trades Need Workers - According to USES	9,10
Education and Training Benefits Applied For - By Army of Veterans	10
Educational Benefits for New Army Enlistees - Explained By War Department	10
Bankers Urged to Assist - Community Information Centers	11
OJT Program	11
Remittances for Insurance Premiums	11
Standards for Employment - Of Women	12,13
War-Service Scholarships - For New York Veterans	13
Schools Expect Increased Enrollment - In Spring Semester	13
Classes to Teach Amputees - To Drive	14
Survey Conducted	14
Special Car Available to Centers	14
News and Ideas	14,15
Brattleboro, Vermont - Center Picture	15
Report on Second Survey - Of Advisory Centers	16

Bulletin

Conference Edition

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 36 November 21, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

State Problems Featured -
At Conference..... 2,3,4
'Still Enormous Task' -
Says Labor Secretary.... 5
Community Responsibility -
Stressed by Gen. Bradley 6
Coordination Stressed -
In Opening Remarks..... 7
Women Veterans -
Lack Recognition..... 8
Discussion Groups - Pix.... 9,12,13
Highlights of Conference -
Picture Pages..... 10,11
Discussion Group Resolutions
Approved In Final Session 13,14,15
Directors Form Association -
On National Basis..... 15
Federal-State Coordination -
Needed..... 16
VA Forms Needed -
To Apply Bonds To NSLI.... 16,17
Type of NSLI Payments -
Should Be Specified..... 17
Radio Plugs For "NEPH" Week.. 17
News and Ideas -
Community Service Provided 18
OJT Programs Re-examined.. 18
Mailings To County Officers 18
Text Book Shortage -
Lightened..... 19
Navy Tests -
Announced..... 19,20
Vocational Rehabilitation -
For the Deaf..... 20

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING-REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 37 November 29, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

STATES URGED TO MEET THEIR SHARE OF FUNDS FOR REHABILITATION.
p. 5

* * * *

EX-GI's MAY ATTEND SCHOOLS ABROAD WHEN REQUIREMENTS ARE MET.
pp. 9,10

* * * *

EDUCATIONAL STANDARDS SEEN IMPAIRED BY ACUTE SHORTAGE OF TEACHERS.
p. 11

* * * *

WAA INSTITUTES SCHEME TO HELP SMALL BUSINESS IN SALES OF SURPLUS.
p. 12

* * * *

NON-COMPLYING VETERANS URGED TO REPORT ON-THE-SIDE EARNINGS TO VA
p. 16

* * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
Communities Must Act - To Aid Veterans	2,3
Public Relations Discussed - At Directors' Conference	3
National Conference on Veterans Affairs - For Organizations	3,4
RRA Described - By Secretary Schwellenbach	4,5
OVR Sets New Goal - 150,000 Disabled in Jobs	5
Handicapped Worker Placements Increased - In October	6
OVR Film to Promote - Jobs for Disabled	7,8
'Automobiles for Amputees' Program - Rapidly Progressing	8
Foreign Schools - Attended by Veterans	9,10
GI's Good Students - Says Rutgers Dean	10
University Standards May Be Lowered - By Teacher Shortage	11
Educational and Training Benefits - Reach New High	11
Veterans Good Risks - Says VA	12
Army Accepting Ex-Officers - AUS Men May Join USA If They Hurry	13
SRA Allowances Drop - First Time in 8 Months	13,14
SRA Allowance May Be Denied - Veterans on Strike	14
News and Ideas	14,15
Los Angeles Center - Picture	15
Veterans Losing Out - By Failure to Report Earnings	16

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 39 December 12, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

NSWA CONFERENCE STUDIES VETERANS AFFAIRS ISSUES AS OUTLINED BY LEADERS.
pp. 2,3

* * * *

DISABLED VETERANS URGED TO FILE FOR COMPENSATION EARLY TO SPEED PAYMENTS.
p. 6

* * * *

NSLI POLICY-HOLDERS NOW MAY OBTAIN DISABILITY BENEFITS AT EXTRA COST.
p. 8

* * * *

TERMINAL LEAVE CLAIMS LAGGING WITH ONLY HALF OF EXPECTED TOTAL FILED.
pp. 9,10

* * * *

VETERANS' SET-ASIDES ON SURPLUS SHARPLY REDUCED; CLAIMS OUT-WEIGH GOODS.
pp. 13,14

* * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
Veterans Affairs Aired - At Welfare Conference	2,3
Rehabilitation Program Needs - Better Teamwork	4,6
St. Louis Veterans Service Center - Picture Page	5
Disabled Veterans May Accept Any Job - Without Loss	6
Initial Payments on Disability Claims Vary With Filing Date	6
Veterans May Obtain Orthopedic Shoes - From VA	7
"NEPH" Week - 1947	7
Total Disability Benefits - Offered Under NSLI	8
Veterans Should Designate Beneficiaries - In NSLI Policies	8,9
Dependents Benefit From NSLI Policies - Latest Statistics	9
Terminal Leave Claims - Invited By Navy	9,10
Functions of Civilian Physicians - In VA Program	10
Lawyers Not Eligible - For OJT	11
Veterans Groups Organize - Permanent Joint Council	11,12
AAF Wants Addresses - Of Former Personnel	12
Medals From Both World Wars Available - For Distribution	12,13
Coast Guard Lifts Age Limit - For Some Reenlistments	13
WAA Ending 'Set-Asides' - Due to Excessive Demands	13,14
Veterans' Housing	14,15
News and Ideas	15
Report on Third Survey - Of Advisory Centers	16

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 40 December 19, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

NEPH WEEK COOPERATING GROUPS FORM PERMANENT NATIONAL ORGANIZATION.
pp. 2,3

* * * *

WAR-BLINDED VETERANS GET SELECTED READERS TO AID IN PURSUIT OF EDUCATION.
pp. 4,5

* * * *

MONEY-LENDERS EXHORTED TO GUARD VETERANS' INTERESTS; 'JERRY-BUILDING' SCORED.
pp. 6,7

* * * *

SUBSISTENCE PAYEES URGED TO REPORT WAGES BY LETTER WHEN FORMS ARE UNAVAILABLE.
p. 14

* * * *

STATE BONUS LEGISLATION IS SUMMARIZED TO DATE; OTHER ACTS PENDING IN 18 CAPITOLS.
p. 16

* * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
Permanent Committee Formed - Constant Campaign Pledged	2,3
Impairment Held No Handicap - In Suitable Endeavor	4
Blind Veterans Get Readers - To Permit Schooling	4,5
1,400 Blinded Non-Veterans Benefited	5
Civil Service Pensions Rated - By Disabled Veterans	5
Surplus Hand-Tools - For OJT	5,6
Guidance Service Extended - To Non-Veterans By G.W.U	6
Lenders Warned Against Loans - On Inflated Property	6,7
'Jerry-Building' Scored - At W. Va. Meeting	7
Knock-Down War Structures - Utilized For Housing	8
G.I. Families Abroad Reduced - But Travel Is Speeded	8,10
Mead-Lanham Housing Program - Picture Page	9
Small Business Advice - Offered In Field	10,11
Claims Addresses Revised - By Armed Forces	12
Coast Guard Clarifies - Discharge Confusion	12
VA Circulars of Interest - Extended Training Under PL 16	13
Check-Up On SRA And Subsistence	13,14
Letters Okay For Income Reports - Official Forms Unnecessary	14
News and Ideas	14,15
State Bonus Legislation - Reported To Date	16

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 41 December 26, 1946 WASHINGTON, D.C.

HIGH CAMPUS BIRTHRATE REGARDED AS POTENTIAL HEALTH MENACE BY BROWN.
p. 3

* * * *

DIRECTOR OF D.C. CENTER SEEKING TO SALVAGE FUNDS VETERANS PAID TO REALTOR
p. 5

* * * *

COMMUNITY HOUSING EFFORT STRESSED UNDER NEW POLICY; CONTINUED CONTROLS CITED.
pp. 6,7

* * * *

SELECTIVE SERVICE CHIEF FAVORS STATE DEPOSITORIES FOR DRAFT BOARD RECORDS.
p. 13

* * * *

HOLIDAY GREETINGS.
pp. 2 & 16

* * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
President Sends Greetings - 'To Our Veterans'	2
Children On Campuses - Impose An Increasing Problem	3
Some Student Traveling Expenses Paid - By VA	4
College Degree In Radio Offered - To Veterans And Other Civilians	4
Fifty Ex-GI's Study in Palestine - Under Bill Of Rights	4
Capital Realtor Is Target - Of D.C. Center Action	5
Housing Laid To Communities - Under New Policy	6,7
Housing Priorities Valid - According To Agencies	7
Homestead Plots Available - To Veterans And Other Civilians	8
Action on Second-Injury Fund - Sought In Nebraska	8,9
Alabama Agencies Combine - For Aiding Handicapped	9
Counsel For Disabled - Set Up In Philadelphia	10
Requests Again Necessary - For Mailings To Army Overseas	10
Veterans' Readjustment Report - Released By War Department	11,12
SSS Concurs With States - On Request For Draft Records	13
News And Ideas	14,15
Birmingham, Alabama Community Service Center - Picture	15
To All Readers Of The RRA Bulletin - Greetings From General Erskine	16

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 43 January 9, 1947 WASHINGTON, D.C.

SYRACUSE SURVEY ON MEN'S SUITS INDICATES CONTINUED DEMAND FOR LOW-COST GARB.
p. 2

* * * *

SCHOOLS GIVEN EXTENSION OF FAVORED TREATMENT IN ACQUISITION OF SURPLUSES.
p. 3

* * * *

EDUCATION COUNCIL OUTLINES PROCEDURES FOR VETERANS IN SEEKING TRAINING CREDITS.
p. 3

* * * *

CREEDON CLARIFIES CONTROLS UNDER REVISED PROGRAM FOR VETERANS' EMERGENCY HOUSING
p. 5

* * * *

OTHER LEADING JOURNALISTS CONCUR WITH RESOLUTION ON MISUSE OF TERM "VETERAN"
p. 7

* * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
War Veterans Want More Suits - At Low Prices	2
Discount And Priority Program Continued - For Colleges	3
Accreditation Procedures For Veterans - Explained	3,4,5
New Housing Program Clarified - By Housing Expediter	5
Monthly Carrying Charge Reduced - To Stimulate Construction	6,7
Permits For Farm Construction Transferred To CPA And FHA	7
More Newsmen Agree - On Use Of "Veteran"	7,8
Job-Hunting Techniques Explained - In Job School	8,9,10
Picture Page	9
Next Of Kin Make Inquiries - Of Casualty Branch	10
Overseas Job Information - Compiled By USES	11
Public Health Fellowship Available - Apply By May 1	11
News And Ideas -
Texarkana, Texas	12
Red Bluff, California	12
Hamilton, Canada	12
Rahway, New Jersey	12

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 45 January 23, 1947 WASHINGTON, D.C.

file under new folder with this name RRM.

BETTER JOB PLACEMENTS FOR VETERANS ENVISIONED UNDER EXPANDED PROGRAM.
Page 2

* * * *

AMPUTEES AWARDED AUTOS OR TRACTORS HELD ALSO ENTITLED TO 'EQUIPMENT'.
Page 7

* * * *

D. C. HOME BUILDERS OFFER CUT-PRICE HOUSES TO 200 TO OFFSET LOST DEPOSITS.
Page 9

* * * *

VA DECISION HOLDS FEW BENEFITS AFFECTED BY CESSATION OF HOSTILITIES.
Page 12

* * * *

SERVICEMEN ARE INELIGIBLE FOR SOME PL 346 BENEFITS UNTIL TERMINAL LEAVE ENDS.
Page 13

* * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
Veterans Employment Service Explained - By Perry Faulkner	2
Handicapped Placements Off - Decline 29 Percent In Month	3
Parking Program for Disabled	3
Coast To Coast: Veterans Housing - Picture Page	4
Lost Leave-Pay Bonds - Can Be Replaced	5
Christmas Bonus Should Be Reported - Says VA	5
VA Circulars Of Interest	6
Amputee Vehicles Include 'Equipment' - Bradley Decides	7
VA Expands Services - Plastic Eyes, Noses, and Ears	8
Dental Bill Growing	8
'Iron Lungs' Boosted	8
D. C. Veterans Getting Houses - With Aid Of Center	9
Negro Job Situation - Analyzed By Service Officer	10
State Loans In California - Clarified	10
Only Disabled Veterans Allowed - In New Textile Enterprise	11
Ex-Marines Neglecting Pay - For Unused Leave	11
Few Benefits Affected - By U. S. President's Proclamation	12
Veterans Benefits Held Unavailable - While On Terminal Leave	13
News And Ideas	14
New Committee To Aid Handicapped - Being Organized	16

Bulletin

ISSUED BY DIVISION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION
RETRAINING and REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

No. 48 February 13, 1947 WASHINGTON, D.C.

ERSKINE REPORT RECOMMENDS CONTINUED COOPERATION OF ALL IN VETERANS' ASSISTANCE.
Page 2

* * * * * *

INCOME TAX INSTALLMENTS DUE MARCH 15 FOR BULK OF DISCHARGED WORLD WAR II VETERANS
Page 3

* * * * * *

'MUTUAL HOUSING' PROSPECTS OUTLINED IN NHA PAMPHLET CITING PITFALLS AND CHANCES.
Page 4

* * * * * *

WORLD WAR II VETERANS HAVE NEW CHANCE AT HOMESTEADING UNDER RECLAMATION PROGRAM.
Page 6

* * * * * *

ILLINOIS ALSO UNDERTAKING TO ASSURE WAR-DEAD NEXT OF KIN OF FULL ENTITLEMENTS.
Page 7

* * * * * *

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Item	Page No.
Continued Federal Help Urged - After Curb On RRA Service	2
Income Tax Installment Schedule - Expert Assistance Urged	3
Guide On Mutual Housing - Advises And Cautions Veterans	4
Veterans Buy Apartment Project - With Year To Organize Financing	4
Veterans' Housing Rights Still Enforced - According To OPA	5
Self-Help Stressed - In Rural Housing Program	5
Federal Register Available - With Official Information	6
Farm Land Opened For Homesteading - In Yakima, Washington	6
Next Of Kin Sought - By Illinois Commission	7
Disability Benefits Available - Under Certain Conditions	8
Driving Instructions For The Disabled - By Red Cross	8
By State Agency	9
Alabama Rehabilitation Program - Surveyed By RRA	10
Correspondence Courses For Prisoners - Under PL 346	11
Parents Assisting Veterans In School - May Claim An Added Tax Deduction	11
Streamlined Education Urged - To Fit Veterans Needs	11
New Program Of Public Education - Setup In New York State	12
News And Ideas	13
Cars For Amputees - Picture Page	14
Report On Fifth Panel Study - Of Advisory Centers	15
About NSLI	16

COMMUNITY ADVISORY CENTERS FACE THE FUTURE

RETRAINING AND REEMPLOYMENT ADMINISTRATION
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
WASHINGTON 25, D. C.

15-1733 Cover

THE

UNITED STATES HOUSING ACT OF 1937

AS AMENDED

National Housing Agency

Federal Public Housing Authority

Washington, D.C.

June 1, 1943

TABLE OF CONTENTS

	Page	Section
Declaration of policy	1	1
Definitions	2	2
Low-rent housing	2	2 (1)
Families of low income	2	2 (2)
Slum	2	2 (3)
Slum clearance	2	2 (4)
Development	2	2 (5)
Administration	3	2 (6)
Federal project	3	2 (7)
Acquisition cost	3	2 (8)
Nondwelling facilities	3	2 (9)
Going Federal rate of interest	3	2 (10)
Public Housing agency	3	2 (11)
State	3	2 (12)
Authority	3	2 (13)
United States Housing Authority:
Corporate agency	4	3 (a)
Administrator	4	3 (b), (c)
Personnel	5	4 (a)
Appointments subject to confirmation by Senate	5	4 (b)
Assistance of State and Federal officers and agencies	6	4 (c)
Utilization of voluntary services	6	4 (c)
Transfer of Federal interest in housing projects to Authority	6	4 (d)
Branch offices, hearings, and negotiations	6	5 (a)
Suits by or against the Authority	7	5 (b)
Seal	7	5 (c)
Franking privilege	7	5 (d)
Tax exemption of Authority and public housing agency obligations	7	5 (e)
Administrative expense authorization	7	6 (a)
Financial transactions	7	6 (a)
Contracts and purchases	8	6 (b)
Domestic-made materials	8	6 (c)
Presidential approval	8	6 (d)
Publication of information	9	7 (a)
Annual report to Congress	9	7 (b)
Power to issue rules and regulations	9	8
Loans for low-rent housing and slum-clearance projects	9	9

	Page	Section
Contributions in assistance of low rentals
Federal contributions	10	10 (a)
Local contributions	10	10 (a)
Equivalent elimination	10	10 (a)
Limitations on contributions	11	10 (b)
Reexamination of contributions contracts	11	10 (c)
Availability of funds	11	10 (d)
Contracts authorized	11	10 (e)
Limitation on aggregate contracts	11	10 (e)
Contributions as security for public housing agency loans	12	10 (f)
Capital grants in assistance of low rentals:
Federal grants	13	11 (a)
Equivalent elimination	13	11 (a)
Single project limitation	13	11 (b)
Availability of funds	13	11 (c)
Limitation on aggregate grants	13	11 (d)
Additional grant of relief funds for labor costs	13	11 (e)
Local grants	14	11 (f)
Disposal of Federal projects:
Purpose	14	12 (a)
Authorization	14	12 (b)
Sale to public housing agencies only	14	12 (c)
Eligibility for loans, contributions, and grants	14	12 (c)
Leases	14	12 (d)
Interim management	15	12 (e)
General powers of the Authority:
General	15	13 (a)
Foreclosure	15	13 (a)
Civil and criminal jurisdiction	15	13 (b)
Payments in lieu of taxes	15	13 (c)
Insurance	16	13 (d)
Sale or lease of nonproject property	16	13 (e)
Modification of contracts	16	14
Provisions for the assurance of low-rent character of projects	16	15
Breach of conditions against alienation of low-rent housing projects	16	15 (1)
Breach of conditions against alienation of slum-clearance projects	16	15 (2)
Reduction or termination of contributions	17	15 (3)

	Page	Section
General powers of the Authority--Continued:
Covenants	17	15 (4)
Limitations on costs	17	15 (5)
Labor provisions	18	16
Wages and bonds on Federal projects	18	16 (1)
Prevailing wage rates	18	16 (2)
Hours of work on Federal projects	18	16 (3)
Workmen's compensation	19	16 (4)
Kick-back statute	19	16 (5)
Contractors' reports to Secretary of Labor	19	16 (6)
Financial provisions:
Capital stock	19	17
Appropriation authorization	19	18
Allocation of other funds to Authority	19	19
Obligations issued by Authority	20	20
Terms and amount	20	20 (a)
Tax exemption	21	20 (b)
Guarantee by United States	21	20 (c)
Legal investments	22	20 (d)
Marketing	22	20 (e)
Deposit of funds of Authority	22	21 (a)
Federal Reserve banks as depositories	22	21 (b)
Authority as financial agent for the United States	22	21 (c)
Limitation on expenditure in any one State	22	21 (d)
Penalties:
Application of general statutes	23	22
False entries and reports	23	23
Defrauding the Authority	23	24
Concealment of interest	23	25
Use of words "United States Housing Authority"	23	26
Conflicting laws	23	27
Alley Dwelling Authority	24	28
Severability clause	24	29
Short title	24	30

THE UNITED STATES HOUSING ACT OF 1937, AS AMENDED

PUBLIC LAW 412 - 75TH CONGRESS[1]

CHAPTER 896 - 1ST SESSION

(S. 1685)
(50 Stat. 888)
(42 U.S.C. 1401)

AN ACT to provide financial assistance to the States and political subdivisions thereof for the elimination of unsafe and insanitary housing conditions, for the eradication of slums, for the provision of decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings for families of low income, and for the reduction of unemployment and the stimulation of business activity, to create a United States Housing Authority, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

DECLARATION OF POLICY

Section 1. It is hereby declared to be the policy of the United States to promote the general welfare of the Nation by employing its funds and credit, as provided in this Act, to assist the several States and their political subdivisions to alleviate present and recurring unemployment and to remedy the unsafe and insanitary housing conditions and the acute shortage of decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings for families of low income, in rural or urban communities, that are injurious to the health, safety, and morals of the citizens of the Nation.

---

1. As amended by Title VI of Public Resolution 122, 75th Congress (the United States Housing Act Amendments of 1938), approved June 21, 1938, 52 Stat. 820, and Public Law 288, 77th Congress, approved October 30, 1941, 55 Stat. 759.

DEFINITIONS

Sec. 2. When used in this Act--

(1) The term "low-rent housing" means decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings within the financial reach of families of low income, and developed and administered to promote serviceability, efficiency, economy, and stability, and embraces all necessary appurtenances thereto. The dwellings in low-rent housing as defined in this Act shall be available solely for families whose net income at the time of admission does not exceed five[2] times the rental (including the value or cost to them of heat, light, water, and cooking fuel) of the dwellings to be furnished such families, except that in the case of families with three or more minor dependents, such ratio shall not exceed six to one.

(2) The term "families of low income" means families who are in the lowest income group and who cannot afford to pay enough to cause private enterprise in their locality or metropolitan area to build an adequate supply of decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings for their use.

(3) The term "slum" means any area where dwellings predominate which, by reason of dilapidation, overcrowding, faulty arrangement or design, lack of ventilation, light or sanitation facilities, or any combination of these factors, are detrimental to safety, health, or morals.

(4) The term "slum clearance" means the demolition and removal of buildings from any slum area.

(5) The term "development" means any or all undertakings necessary for planning, financing (including payment of carrying charges), land acquisition, demolition, construction, or equipment, in connection with a low-rent-housing or slum-clearance project, but not beyond the point of physical completion. Construction activity in connection with a low-rent housing project may be confined to the reconstruction, remodeling, or repair of existing buildings.

---

2. So in original; should be five.

(6) The term "administration" means any or all undertakings necessary for management, operation, maintenance, or financing, in connection with a low-rent-housing or slum-clearance project, subsequent to physical completion.

(7) The term "Federal project" means any project owned or administered by the Authority.

(8) The term "acquisition cost" means the amount prudently required to be expended by a public housing agency in acquiring a low-rent-housing or slum-clearance project.

(9) The term "non-dwelling facilities" shall include site development, improvements and facilities located outside building walls (including streets, sidewalks, and sanitary, utility, and other facilities).

(10) The term "going Federal rate of interest" means, at any time, the annual rate of interest specified in the then most recently issued bonds of the Federal Government having a maturity of ten years or more.

(11) The term "public housing agency" means any State, county, municipality, or other governmental entity or public body (excluding the Authority), which is authorized to engage in the development or administration of low-rent-housing or slum clearance.[3]

(12) The term "state" includes the States of the Union, the District of Columbia, and the Territories, dependencies, and possessions of the United States.

(13) The term "Authority" means the United States Housing Authority created by section 3 of this Act.

---

3. Section 203 of the District of Columbia Alley Dwelling Act (Public Law 307, 73rd Congress, approved June 12, 1934, 48 Stat. 930, as amended by Public Law 733, 75th Congress, approved June 25, 1938, 52 Stat. 1186) provides that, for the purposes of Title II of said Act, the Alley Dwelling Authority shall be considered as a public housing agency within the meaning of, and to carry out the purposes of, the United States Housing Act of 1937.

UNITED STATES HOUSING AUTHORITY

Sec. 3. (a) There is hereby created in the Department of the Interior[4] and under the general supervision of the Secretary thereof a body corporate of perpetual duration to be known as the United States Housing Authority, which shall be an agency and instrumentality of the United States.

(b) The powers of the Authority shall be vested in and exercised by an Administrator,[5] who shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. The Administrator shall serve for a term of five years and shall be removable by the President upon notice and hearing for neglect of duty or malfeasance but for no other cause.

(c) The Administrator shall receive a salary of $10,000 a year, shall be eligible for reappointment, and shall not engage in any other business, vocation, or employment. Neither the Administrator nor any officer or employee of the Authority shall participate in any matter affecting his personal interests or the interest of any corporation, partnership, or association in which he is directly or indirectly interested.

---

4. Section 304 of Reorganization Plan Number I of 1939 provided that the United States Housing Authority and its functions should be administered by the United States Housing Administrator under the direction and supervision of the Federal Works Administrator and transferred to the Federal Works Administrator all functions of the Secretary of the Interior relating to the administration of the United States Housing Authority. See 4 Fed. Reg. 2727, 53 Stat. 1423. Paragraph 1(e) of Executive Order 9070, dated February 24, 1942, provides that the United States Housing Authority and its functions, powers, and duties, including those of the Administrator thereof, are, with certain other Federal agencies, consolidated into the National Housing Agency and shall be administered, as therein provided, under the direction and supervision of the National Housing Administrator.

5. Paragraph 3 of Executive Order 9070 provides, among other things, that the United States Housing Authority, and its functions, powers, and duties shall be administered as the Federal Public Housing Authority, one of the three main constituent units of the National Housing Agency, and that the Administrator of the United States Housing Authority shall serve as Federal Public Housing Commissioner.

Sec. 4. (a) The Administrator is authorized, subject to the civil-service laws and the Classification Act of 1923, as amended,[6] to appoint and fix the compensation of such employees as may be necessary for the proper performance of the duties of the Authority under this Act; except that without regard to the civil-service laws he may appoint such officers, attorneys and experts,[7] and such employees whose compensation is in excess of $1,980 per annum as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this Act.[8]

(b) Appointment to positions made under the provisions of this Act the annual salary of which is in excess of $7,500 per annum shall be subject to confirmation by the Senate.

---

6. 42 Stat. 1488, 5 U.S.C. 661.

7. See 5 U.S.C. 55, for compensation of certain experts. See 5 U.S.C. 314, for compensation of certain attorneys. See Public 880, 76th Congress, approved November 26, 1940, 54 Stat. 1211, and Executive Order 8743, dated April 23, 1941 as amended by Executive Order 9230, dated August 20, 1942, extending the competitive classified civil-service to attorneys among others.

8. See Executive Order 7916, dated June 24, 1938, extending the competitive classified civil-service and directing certain Federal agencies to establish divisions of personnel supervision and management, and Executive Order 7975A, dated September 16, 1938, naming the United States Housing Authority as one of the agencies required to comply with Executive Order 7916. See also Executive Order 9004, dated December 30, 1941, permitting the appointment, without examination, of one private secretary or confidential assistant to the United States Housing Administrator and permitting certain positions in the field service of the United States Housing Authority to be filled upon non-competitive examinations.

(c) The Administrator may accept and utilize such voluntary and uncompensated services and with the consent of the agency concerned may utilize such officers, employees, equipment, and information of any agency of the Federal, State, or local governments as he finds helpful in the performance of the duties of the Authority. In connection with the utilization of such services, the Authority may make reasonable payments for necessary traveling and other expenses.

(d) The President may at any time in his discretion transfer to the Authority any right, interest, or title held by any department or agency of the Federal Government in any housing or slum-clearance projects (constructed or in process of construction on the date of enactment of this Act), any assets, contracts, records, libraries, research materials, and other property held in connection with any such housing or slum-clearance projects or activities, any unexpended balance of funds allocated to such department or agency for the development, administration, or assistance of any housing or slum-clearance projects or activities, and any employees who have been engaged in work connected with housing or slum clearance. The Authority may continue any or all activities undertaken in connection with projects so transferred, subject to the provisions of this Act.[9]

Sec. 5. (a) The principal office of the Authority shall be in the District of Columbia, but it may establish branch offices or agencies in any State, and may exercise any of its powers at any place within the United States.

---

9. See Executive Order 7732, dated Oct. 27, 1937, Executive Order 7839, dated March 12, 1938, and Executive Order 7934, dated July 16, 1938, transferring certain Federal housing projects, funds and employees.

The Authority may, by one or more of its officers or employees or by such agents or agencies as it may designate, conduct hearings or negotiations at any place.

(b) The Authority shall sue and be sued in its own name, and shall be represented in all litigated matters by the Attorney General or such attorney or attorneys as he may designate.

(c) The Authority shall have an official seal, which shall be judicially noticed.

(d) The Authority shall be granted the free use of the mails in the same manner as the executive departments of the Government.

(e) The Authority, including but not limited to its franchise, capital, reserves, surplus, loans, income, assets, and property of any kind, shall be exempt from all taxation now or hereafter imposed by the United States or by any State, county, municipality or local taxing authority. Obligations, including interest thereon, issued by public housing agencies in connection with low-rent-housing or slum-clearance projects,[10] and the income derived by such agencies from such projects, shall be exempt from all taxation now or hereafter imposed by the United States.

Sec. 6. (a) The Authority may make such expenditures, subject to audit under the general law, for the acquisition and maintenance of adequate administrative agencies, offices, vehicles, furnishings, equipment, supplies, books, periodicals, printing and binding, for attendance at meetings, for any necessary traveling expenses within the United States, its Territories, dependencies, or possessions, and for such other expenses as may from time to time be found necessary for the proper administration of this Act. Such financial transactions of the Authority as the making of loans, annual contributions, and capital grants, and the acquisition, sale, exchange, lease, or other disposition of real and personal property, and vouchers approved by the Administrator in connection with such

---

10. See infra, footnote 24.

financial transactions, shall be final and conclusive upon all officers of the Government; except that all such financial transactions of the Authority shall be audited by the General Accounting Office at such times and in such manner as the Comptroller General of the United States may by regulation prescribe.[11]

(b) The provisions of section 3709 of the Revised Statutes (U.S.C., 1934 ed., title 41, sec. 5)[12] shall apply to all contracts of the Authority for services and to all of its purchases of supplies except when the aggregate amount involved is less than $300.

(c) The use of funds made available for the purposes of this Act shall be subject to the provisions of section 2 of title 3 of the Treasury and Post Office Appropriation Act for the fiscal year 1934 (47 Stat. 1489)[13] and to make such provisions effective every contract or agreement of any kind pursuant to this Act shall contain a provision identical to the one prescribed in section 3 of title 3 of such Act.

(d) No annual contribution, grant, or loan, and no contract for any annual contribution, grant, or loan, under this Act, shall be undertaken by the Authority except with the approval of the President.

---

11. See Public Law 723, 75th Congress, 52 Stat. 1114; Public Law 68, 76th Congress, 53 Stat. 685; Public Law 459, 76th Congress, 54 Stat. 111; Public Law 28, 77th Congress, 55 Stat. 92; and Public Law 630, 77th Congress, 56 Stat. 392, for annual authorizations for administrative expenses, and for provisions limiting expenditures for the several purposes enumerated in Section 6 (a). See Public Law 68, 76th Congress, 53 Stat. 685, for a provision that all necessary expenses in connection with the management and operation of projects transferred to the United States Housing Authority from the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works, may thereafter be considered as nonadministrative expenses and be paid from rents received from each transferred project.

12. R.S. 3709 requires advertising for supplies and services.

13. This provision requires the use of domestic-made materials.

Sec. 7. (a) The Authority may publish and disseminate information pertinent to the various aspects of housing.[14]

(b) In January of each year the Authority shall make an annual report to Congress of its operations and expenses, including loans, contributions, and grants made or contracted for, low-rent-housing and slum-clearance projects undertaken, and the assets and liabilities of the Authority. Such report shall include operating statements of all projects under the jurisdiction of or receiving the assistance of the Authority, including summaries of the incomes of occupants, sizes of families, rentals, and other related information.

Sec. 8. The Authority may from time to time make, amend, and rescind such rules and regulations as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this Act.

LOANS FOR LOW-RENT-HOUSING AND SLUM-CLEARANCE PROJECTS

Sec. 9. The Authority may make loans to public-housing agencies to assist the development, acquisition, or administration of low-rent-housing or slum-clearance projects by such agencies. Where capital grants are made pursuant to section 11 the total amount of such loans outstanding on any one project and in which the Authority participates shall not exceed the development or acquisition cost of such project less all such capital grants, but in no event shall said loans exceed 90 per centum of such cost. In the case of annual contributions in assistance of low rentals as provided in section 10 the total of such loans outstanding on any one project and in which the Authority participates shall not exceed 90 per centum of the development or acquisition cost of such project. Such loans shall bear interest at such rate not less than the going Federal rate at the time the loan is made, plus one-half of one per centum, shall be secured in such manner, and shall be repaid within such period not exceeding sixty years, as may be deemed advisable by the Authority.

---

14. See Public Law 723, 75th Congress, 52 Stat. 1114; Public Law 68, 76th Congress, 53 Stat. 685; Public Law 459, 76th Congress, 54 Stat. 111; Public Law 28, 77th Congress, 55 Stat. 92, and Public Law 630, 77th Congress, 56 Stat. 392, for provisions of appropriation acts limiting the amount of or prohibiting expenditures for informational service functions.

ANNUAL CONTRIBUTIONS IN ASSISTANCE OF LOW RENTALS

Sec. 10. (a) The Authority may make annual contributions to public housing agencies to assist in achieving and maintaining the low-rent character of their housing projects.[15] The annual contributions for any such project shall be fixed in uniform amounts, and shall be paid in such amounts over a fixed period of years. No part of such annual contributions by the Authority shall be made available for any project unless and until the State, city, county, or other political subdivision in which such project is situated shall contribute, in the form of cash or tax remissions, general or special, or tax exemptions, at least 20 per centum of the annual contributions herein provided. The Authority shall embody the provisions for such annual contributions in a contract guaranteeing their payment over such fixed periods: Provided, That no annual contributions shall be made, and the Authority shall enter into no contract guaranteeing any annual contribution in connection with the development of any low-rent-housing or slum-clearance project involving the construction of new dwellings, unless the project includes the elimination by demolition, condemnation, and effective closing, or the compulsory repair or improvement of unsafe or insanitary dwellings situated in the locality or metropolitan area, substantially equal in number to the number of newly constructed dwellings provided by the project; except that such elimination may, in the discretion of the Authority, be deferred in any locality or metropolitan area where the shortage of decent, safe, or sanitary housing available to families of low income is so acute as to force dangerous overcrowding of such families.

---

15. The Independent Offices Appropriation Acts for 1941, 1942 and 1943, provide that no part of the appropriations contained in those acts for the payment of annual contributions by the United States Housing Authority "shall be available for payment to any public-housing agency for expenditure in connection with any low-rent housing project, unless the public-housing agency shall have adopted regulations prohibiting as a tenant of any such project by rental or occupancy any person other than a citizen of the United States." Payments required on contracts entered into prior to April 18, 1940, are excepted from these provisions. See Public Law 459, 76th Congress, 54 Stat. 111; Public Law 28, 77th Congress, 55 Stat. 92; Public Law 630, 77th Congress, 56 Stat. 392.

(b) Annual contributions shall be strictly limited to the amounts and periods necessary, in the determination of the Authority, to assure the low-rent character of the housing projects involved. Toward this end the Authority may prescribe regulations fixing the maximum contributions available under different circumstances, giving consideration to cost, location size, rent-paying ability of prospective tenants, or other factors bearing upon the amounts and periods of assistance needed to achieve and maintain low rentals. Such regulations may provide for rates of contribution based upon development, acquisition or administration cost, number of dwelling units, number of persons housed, or other appropriate factors: Provided, That the fixed contribution payable annually under any contract shall in no case exceed a sum equal to the annual yield, at the going Federal rate of interest at the time such contract is made plus 1 per centum, upon the development or acquisition cost of the low-rent housing or slum-clearance project involved: And provided further, That all such annual contributions shall be used first to apply toward any payment of interest or principal on any loan due to the Authority from the public housing agency.

(c) In case any contract for annual contributions is made for a period exceeding twenty years, the Authority shall reserve the right to reexamine the status of the low-rent-housing project involved at the end of ten years and every five years thereafter; and, at the time of any such reexamination, the Authority may make such modification (subject to all the provisions of this section) in the fixed and uniform amounts of subsequent annual contributions payable under such contract as is warranted by changed conditions and as is consistent with maintaining the low-rent character of the housing project involved. In no case shall any contract for annual contributions be made for a period exceeding sixty years.

(d) All payments of annual contributions pursuant to this section shall be made out of any funds available to the Authority when such payments are due, except that its capital and its funds obtained through the issuances of obligations pursuant to section 20 (including repayments or other realizations of the principal of loans made out of such capital and funds) shall not be available for the payment of such annual contributions.

(e) The Authority is authorized, on and after the date of the enactment of this Act, to enter into contracts which provide for annual contributions aggregating not more than $28,000,000 per annum. Without further authorization from Congress, no new contracts for annual contributions beyond those herein authorized shall be entered into by the Authority.

The faith of the United States is solemnly pledged to the payment of all annual contributions contracted for pursuant to this section, and there is hereby authorized to be appropriated in each fiscal year, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the amounts necessary to provide for such payments.[16]

(f) Payments under annual contributions contracts shall be pledged as security for any loans obtained by a public-housing agency to assist the development of the housing project to which the annual contributions relate: Provided, That annual contributions shall be used first to apply toward the payment of interest or principal as same mature on any loan due to the Authority from the public-housing agency. The term "any loan due to the Authority" as used in this section shall mean any loan made by the Authority (including any bonds or other evidences of such loan which are resold by the Authority) to assist the development of the project to which the annual contributions relate.[17]

---

16. As amended by Section 601 of the United States Housing Act Amendments of 1938 (Title VI of Public Resolution 122, 75th Congress, 52 Stat. 820). Section 10 (e) originally read as follows: "(e) The Authority is authorized, on and after the date of the enactment of this Act, to enter into contracts which provide for annual contributions aggregating not more than $5,000,000 per annum, on or after July 1, 1938, to enter into additional such contracts which provide for annual contributions aggregating not more than $7,500,000 per annum, and on or after July 1, 1939, to enter into additional such contracts which provide for annual contributions aggregating not more than $7,500,000 per annum. Without further authorization from Congress, no new contracts for annual contributions beyond those herein authorized shall be entered into by the Authority. The faith of the United States is solemnly pledged to the payment of all annual contributions contracted for pursuant to this section, and there is hereby authorized to be appropriated in each fiscal year, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the amounts necessary to provide for such payments."

17. Section 10(f) was added by Section 601 of the United States Housing Act Amendments of 1938 (Title VI, Public Resolution 122, 75th Congress, 52 Stat. 820).

CAPITAL GRANTS IN ASSISTANCE OF LOW RENTALS

Sec. 11. (a) As an alternative method of assistance to that provided in section 10, when any public housing agency so requests and demonstrates to the satisfaction of the Authority that such alternative method is better suited to the purpose of achieving and maintaining low rentals and to the other purposes of this Act, capital grants may be made to such agency for such purposes. The capital grants thus made for any low-rent housing or slum-clearance project shall be paid in connection with its development or acquisition, and shall be strictly limited to the amounts necessary, in the determination of the Authority, to assure its low-rent character: Provided, however, That no capital grant shall be made for the development of any low-rent-housing or slum-clearance project involving the construction of new dwellings, unless the project includes the elimination by demolition, condemnation, and effective closing, or the compulsory repair or improvement of unsafe or insanitary dwellings situated in the locality or metropolitan area, substantially equal in number to the number of newly constructed dwelling units provided by the project; except that such elimination may, in the discretion of the Authority, be deferred in any locality or metropolitan area where the shortage of decent, safe, or sanitary housing available to families of low income is so acute as to force dangerous overcrowding of such families.

(b) Pursuant to subsection (a) of this section, the Authority may make a capital grant for any low-rent-housing or slum-clearance project, which shall in no case exceed 25 per centum of its development or acquisition cost.

(c) All payments of capital grants by the Authority pursuant to subsection (b) of this section shall be made out of any funds available to the Authority, except that its capital and its funds obtained through the issuance of obligations pursuant to section 20 (including repayments or other realizations of the principal of loans made out of such capital and funds) shall not be available for the payment of such capital grants.

(d) The Authority is authorized, on or after the date of the enactment of this Act to make capital grants (pursuant to subsection (b) of this section) aggregating not more than $10,000,000, on or after July 1, 1938, to make additional capital grants aggregating not more than $10,000,000, and on or after July 1, 1939, to make additional capital grants aggregating not more than $10,000,000. Without further authorization from Congress, no capital grants beyond those herein authorized shall be made by the Authority.

(e) To supplement any capital grant made by the Authority in connection with the development of any low-rent-housing or slum-clearance project, the President may allocate to the Authority, from any funds available for the relief of unemployment, an additional capital grant to be expended for payment of labor used in such development: Provided, That such additional capital grant shall not exceed 15 per centum of the development cost of the low-rent-housing or slum-clearance project involved.

(f) No capital grant pursuant to this section shall be made for any low-rent-housing or slum-clearance project unless the public housing agency receiving such capital grant shall also receive, from the State, political subdivision thereof, or otherwise, a contribution for such project (in the form of cash, land, or the value, capitalized at the going Federal rate of interest of community facilities or services for which a charge is usually made, or tax remissions or tax exemptions) in an amount not less than 20 per centum of its development or acquisition cost.

DISPOSAL OF FEDERAL PROJECTS

Sec. 12. (a) It is hereby declared to be the purpose of Congress to provide for the orderly disposal of any low-rent-housing projects hereafter transferred to or acquired by the Authority through the sale or leasing of such projects as hereinafter provided; and, in order to continue the relief of Nation-wide unemployment and in order to avoid waste pending such sale or lease, to provide for the completion and temporary administration of such projects by the Authority.

(b) As soon as practicable the Authority shall sell its Federal projects or divest itself of their management through leases.

(c) The Authority may sell a Federal project only to a public housing agency. Any such sale shall be for a consideration, in whatever form may be satisfactory to the Authority, equal at least to the amount which the Authority determines to be the fair value of the project for housing purposes of a low-rent character (making such adjustment as the Authority deems advisable for any annual contributions which may hereafter be given hereunder in aid of the project), less such allowance for depreciation as the Authority shall fix. Such project shall then become eligible for loans pursuant to section 9, and either annual contributions pursuant to section 10 or a capital grant pursuant to section 11. Any obligation of the purchaser accepted by the Authority as part of the consideration for the sale of such project shall be deemed a loan pursuant to section 9.

(d) The Authority may lease any Federal low-rent-housing project, in whole or in part, to a public housing agency. The lessee of any project, pursuant to this paragraph, shall assume and pay all management, operation, and maintenance costs, together with payments, if any, in lieu of taxes, and shall pay to the Authority such annual sums as the Authority shall determine are consistent with maintaining the low-rent character of such project. The provisions of section 321 of the Act of June 30, 1932 (U.S.C., 1934 edition, title 40, sec. 303 b),[18] shall not apply to any lease pursuant to this Act.

(e) In the administration of any Federal low-rent-housing project pending sale, or lease, the Authority shall fix the rentals at the amounts necessary to pay all management, operation, and maintenance costs, together with payments, if any, in lieu of taxes,[19] plus such additional amounts as the Authority shall determine are consistent with maintaining the low-rent character of such project.

GENERAL POWERS OF THE AUTHORITY

Sec. 13. (a) The Authority may foreclose on any property or commence any action to protect or enforce any right conferred upon it by any law, contract, or other agreement. The Authority may bid for and purchase at any foreclosure by any party or at any other sale, or otherwise acquire, and may administer, any low-rent-housing project which it previously owned or in connection with which it has made a loan pursuant to section 9, annual contributions pursuant to section 10, or capital grants pursuant to section 11.

(b) The acquisition by the Authority of any real property pursuant to this Act shall not deprive any State or political subdivision thereof of its civil and criminal jurisdiction in and over such property, or impair the civil rights under the State or local law of the inhabitants on such property; and, insofar as any such jurisdiction may have been taken away or any such rights impaired by reason of the acquisition of any property transferred to the Authority pursuant to section 4 (d), such jurisdiction and such rights are hereby fully restored.

(c) The Authority may enter into agreements to pay annual sums in lieu of taxes to any State or political subdivision thereof with respect to any real property owned by the Authority. The amount so paid for any year upon any such property shall

---

18. This statute provides that the United States shall lease property for a money consideration only.

19. See infra, sec. 13 (c), for provision in reference to payments in lieu of taxes.

not exceed the taxes that would be paid to the State or subdivision, as the case may be, upon such property if it were not exempt from taxation thereby.

(d) The Authority may procure insurance against any loss in connection with its property and other assets (including mortgages) in such amounts, and from such insurers, as it deems desirable.

(e) The Authority may sell or exchange at public or private sale, or lease, any real property (except low-rent-housing projects, the disposition of which is governed elsewhere in this Act) or personal property, and sell or exchange any securities or obligations, upon such terms as it may fix. The Authority may borrow on the security of any real or personal property owned by it, or on the security of the revenues to be derived therefrom, and may use the proceeds of such loans for the purposes of this Act.

Sec. 14. Subject to the specific limitations or standards in this Act governing the terms of sales, rentals, leases, loans, contracts for annual contributions, contracts for capital grants, or other agreements, the Authority may, whenever it deems it necessary or desirable in the fulfillment of the purposes of this Act, consent to the modification, with respect to rate of interest, time of payment of any installment of principal or interest, security, amount of annual contribution, or any other term, of any contract or agreement of any kind to which the Authority is a party or which has been transferred to it pursuant to this Act. Any rule of law contrary to this provision shall be deemed inapplicable.

Sec. 15. In order to insure that the low-rent character of housing projects will be preserved, and that the other purposes of this Act will be achieved, it is hereby provided that -

(1) When a loan is made pursuant to section 9 for a low-rent-housing project the Authority may retain the right, in the event of a substantial breach of the condition (which shall be embodied in the loan agreement) providing for the maintenance of the low-rent character of the housing project involved or in the event of the acquisition of such project by a third party in any manner including a bona-fide foreclosure under a mortgage or other lien held by a third party, to increase the interest payable thereafter on the balance of said loan then held by the Authority to a rate not in excess of the going Federal rate (at the time of such breach or acquisition) plus 2 per centum per annum or to declare the unpaid principal on said loan due forthwith.

(2) When a loan is made pursuant to section 9 for a slum-clearance project the Authority shall retain the right, in the event of the leasing or acquisition of such project by a third party in any manner including a bona-fide foreclosure under a mortgage or other lien held by a third party, to increase the interest payable thereafter on the balance of said loan then held by the Authority to a rate not in excess of the going Federal rate (at the time of such leasing or acquisition) plus 2 per centum per annum or to declare the unpaid principal on said loan due forthwith.

(3) When a contract for annual contributions is made pursuant to section 10, the Authority shall retain the right, in the event of a substantial breach of the condition (which shall be embodied in such contract) providing for the maintenance of the low-rent character of the housing project involved, to reduce or terminate the annual contributions payable under such contract. In the event of the acquisition of such project by a third party in any manner including a bona-fide foreclosure under a mortgage or other lien held by a third party, such annual contributions shall terminate.

(4) The Authority may also insert in any contract for loans, annual contributions, capital grants, sale, lease, mortgage, or any other agreement or instrument made pursuant to this Act, such other covenants, conditions, or provisions at[20] it may deem necessary in order to insure the low-rent character of the housing project involved: Provided, That any such contract for a substantial loan may contain a condition requiring the maintenance of an open space or playground in connection with the housing project involved if deemed necessary by the Authority for the safety or health of children.

(5) No contract for any loan, annual contribution, or capital grant made pursuant to this Act shall be entered into by the Authority with respect to any project hereafter initiated costing more than $4,000 per family-dwelling-unit or more than $1,000 per room (excluding land, demolition, and non-dwelling facilities); except that in any city the population of which exceeds 500,000 any such contract may be entered into with respect to a project hereafter initiated costing not to exceed $5,000 per family-dwelling-unit or not to exceed $1,250 per room (excluding land, demolition, and non-dwelling facilities), if in the opinion of the Authority such higher family-dwelling-unit cost or cost per room is justified by reason of higher costs of labor and materials and other construction costs. With respect to housing projects on which construction is hereafter initiated, the Authority shall make loans, grants, and

---

20. So in original; should be as.

annual contributions only for such low-rent-housing projects as it finds are to be undertaken in such a manner (a) that such projects will not be of elaborate or expensive design or materials, and economy will be promoted both in construction and administration, and (b) that the average construction cost of the dwelling units (excluding land, demolition, and non-dwelling facilities) in any such project is not greater than the average construction cost of dwelling units currently produced by private enterprise, in the locality or metropolitan area concerned, under the legal building requirements applicable to the proposed site, and under labor standards not lower than those prescribed in this Act.

Sec. 16. In order to protect labor standards--

(1) The provisions of the Act of August 30, 1935, entitled "An Act to amend the Act approved March 3, 1931, relating to the rate of wages for laborers and mechanics employed by contractors and subcontractors on public buildings" (49 Stat. 1011), and of the Act of August 24, 1935, entitled "An Act requiring contracts for the construction, alteration, and repair of any public building or public work of the United States to be accompanied by a performance bond protecting the United States and by an additional bond for the protection of persons furnishing material and labor for the construction, alteration, or repair of said public buildings or public work" (U.S.C., 1934 edition, Supp. II, title 40, secs. 270a to 270d, inclusive), shall apply to contracts in connection with the development or administration of Federal projects and the furnishing of materials and labor for such projects: Provided, That suits shall be brought in the name of the Authority and that the Authority shall itself perform the duties prescribed by section 3(a) of the Act of August 30, 1935, and section 3 of the Act of August 24, 1935.

(2) Any contract for loans, annual contributions, capital grants, sale, or lease pursuant to this Act shall contain a provision requiring that the wages or fees prevailing in the locality, as determined or adopted (subsequent to a determination under applicable State or local law) by the Authority, shall be paid to all architects, technical engineers, draftsmen, technicians, laborers, and mechanics employed in the development or administration of the low-rent housing or slum-clearance project involved; and the Authority may require certification as to compliance with the provisions of this paragraph prior to making any payment under such contract.

(3) The Act entitled "An Act limiting the hours of daily services of laborers and mechanics employed upon work done for the United States, or for any Territory, or for the District of Columbia, and for other purposes", as amended (37 Stat. 137), shall apply to contracts of the Authority for work in connection with the development and administration of Federal projects.

(4) The benefits of the Act entitled "An Act to provide compensation for employees of United States suffering injuries while in the performance of their duties, and for other purposes" (39 Stat. 742), shall extend to officers and employees of the Authority.

(5) The provisions of sections 1 and 2 of the Act of June 13, 1934 (U.S.C., 1934 edition, title 40, secs. 276b and 276c),[21] shall apply to any low-rent-housing or slum-clearance project financed in whole or in part with funds made available pursuant to this Act.

(6) Any contractor engaged on any project financed in whole or in part with funds made available pursuant to this Act shall report monthly to the Secretary of Labor, and shall cause all subcontractors to report in like manner (within five days after the close of each calendar month, on forms to be furnished by the United States Department of Labor), as to the number of persons on their respective pay rolls on the particular project, the aggregate amount of such pay rolls, the total man-hours worked, and itemized expenditures for materials. Any such contractor shall furnish to the Department of Labor the names and addresses of all subcontractors on the work at the earliest date practicable.

FINANCIAL PROVISIONS

Sec. 17. The Authority shall have a capital stock of $1,000,000, which shall be subscribed by the United States and paid by the Secretary of the Treasury out of any available funds.[22] Receipts for such payment shall be issued to the Secretary of the Treasury by the Authority and shall evidence the stock ownership of the United States of America.

Sec. 18. There is hereby authorized to be appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $26,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1938, of which $1,000,000 shall be available to pay the subscription to the capital stock of the Authority. Such sum, and all receipts and assets of the Authority, shall be available for the purposes of this Act ~~unitl~~ UNTIL expended.

Sec. 19. Any funds available under any Act of Congress for allocation for housing or slum clearance may, in the discretion of the President, be allocated to the Authority for the purposes of this Act.

---

21. The Kick-Back Statute.

22. This money was appropriated by Public Law 354, 75th Congress, approved August 25, 1937, 50 Stat. 755.

Sec. 20. (a) The Authority is authorized to issue obligations in the form of notes, bonds, or otherwise, which it may sell to obtain funds for the purposes of this Act. The Authority may issue such obligations in an amount not to exceed $800,000,000, exclusive of any obligations which may be issued for refunding purposes. Such obligations shall be in such forms and denominations, mature within such periods not exceeding sixty years from date of issue, bear such rates of interest not exceeding 4 per centum per annum, be subject to such terms and conditions, and be issued in such manner and sold at such prices as may be prescribed by the Authority with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury.[23]

---

23. As amended by Section 602 of the United States Housing Act Amendments of 1938 (Title VI of Public Resolution 122, 75th Congress, 52 Stat. 820) and Public Law 288, 77th Congress, 55 Stat. 759. Section 20(a) originally read as follows: "Sec. 20.(a) The Authority is authorized to issue obligations, in the form of notes, bonds, or otherwise, which it may sell to obtain funds for the purposes of this Act. The Authority may issue such obligations in an amount not to exceed $100,000,000 on or after the date of enactment of this Act, an additional amount not to exceed $200,000,000 on or after July 1, 1938, and an additional amount not to exceed $200,000,000 on or after July 1, 1939. Such obligations shall be in such forms and denominations, mature within such periods not exceeding sixty years from date of issue, bear such rates of interest not exceeding 4 per centum per annum, be subject to such terms and conditions, and be issued in such manner and sold at such prices as may be prescribed by the Authority, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury."
Section 602 of the United States Housing Act Amendments of 1938 amended the original Section 20(a) to read as follows: "Sec.20.(a) The Authority is authorized to issue obligations in the form of notes, bonds, or otherwise, which it may sell to obtain funds for the purposes of this Act. The Authority may issue such obligations in an amount not to exceed $800,000,000. Such obligations shall be in such forms and denominations, mature within such periods not exceeding sixty years from date of issue, bear such rates of interest not exceeding 4 per centum per annum, be subject to such terms and conditions, and be issued in such manner and sold at such prices as may be prescribed by the Authority with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury."

(b) Such obligations shall be exempt both as to principal and interest, from all taxation (except surtaxes, estate, inheritance, and gift taxes) now or hereafter imposed by the United States or by any State, county, municipality, or local taxing authority.[24]

(c) Such obligations shall be fully and unconditionally guaranteed upon their face by the United States as to the payment of both interest and principal, and, in the event that the Authority shall be unable to make any such payment upon demand when due, payments shall be made to the holder by the Secretary of the Treasury with money hereby authorized to be appropriated for such purpose out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated. To the extent of such payment the Secretary of the Treasury shall succeed to all the rights of the holder.

---

24. Section 4(a) of Public Law 7, 77th Congress, approved February 19, 1941, 55 Stat. 7, provides, among other things, that interest upon, and gain from the sale or other disposition of, obligations issued on or after March 1, 1941 by the United States or any agency or instrumentality thereof shall not have any exemption, as such, and loss from the sale or other disposition of such obligations shall not have any special treatment, as such, under the Federal Tax Acts then or thereafter enacted. Section 4(a) also provides: "For the purposes of this subsection a Territory, a possession of the United States, and the District of Columbia, and any political subdivision thereof, and any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing, shall not be considered as an agency or instrumentality of the United States. The Commissioner of Internal Revenue ruled in a letter dated December 2, 1942 that income from obligations of The Alley Dwelling Authority is exempt from Federal income tax.

(d) Such obligations shall be lawful investments and may be accepted as security for all fiduciary, trust, and public funds the investment or deposit of which shall be under the authority or control of the United States or any officer or agency thereof. The Secretary of the Treasury is likewise authorized to purchase any such obligations, and for such purchases he may use as a public-debt transaction the proceeds from the sale of any securities hereafter issued under the Second Liberty Bond Act, as amended, and the purposes for which securities may be issued under such Act, as amended, are extended to include any such purchases. The Secretary of the Treasury may at any time sell any of the obligations acquired by him pursuant to this section, and all redemptions, purchases, and sales by him of such obligations shall be treated as public-debt transactions of the United States.

(e) Such obligations may be marketed for the Authority at its request by the Secretary of the Treasury, utilizing all the facilities of the Treasury Department now authorized by law for the marketing of obligations of the United States.

Sec. 21. (a) Any money of the Authority not otherwise employed may be deposited, subject to check, with the Treasurer of the United States or in any Federal Reserve bank, or may be invested in obligations of the United States or used in the purchase or retirement or redemption of any obligations issued by the Authority.

(b) The Federal Reserve banks are authorized and directed to act as depositories, custodians, and fiscal agents for the Authority in the general exercise of its powers, and the Authority may reimburse any such bank for its services in such manner as may be agreed upon.

(c) The Authority may be employed as a financial agent of the Government. When designated by the Secretary of the Treasury, and subject to such regulations as he may prescribe, the Authority shall be a depository of public money, except receipts from customs.

(d) Not more than 10 per centum of the funds provided for in this Act, either in the form of a loan, grant, or annual contribution, shall be expended within any one State.

PENALTIES

Sec. 22. All general penal statutes relating to the larceny, embezzlement, or conversion or to the improper handling, retention, use, or disposal of public moneys or property of the United States shall apply to the moneys and property of the Authority and to moneys and properties of the United States entrusted to the Authority.[25]

Sec. 23. Any person who, with intent to defraud the Authority or to deceive any director, officer, or employee thereof or any officer or employee of the United States, makes any false entry in any book of the Authority or make[26] any false report or statement to or for the Authority shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both.

Sec. 24. Any person who shall receive any compensation, rebate, or reward, or shall enter into any conspiracy, collusion, or agreement, express or implied, with intent to defraud the Authority or with intent unlawfully to defeat its purposes, shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both.

Sec. 25. Any person who induces or influences the Authority to purchase or acquire any property or to enter into any contract and willfully fails to disclose any interest, legal or equitable, which he has in such property or in the property to which such contract relates, or any special benefit which he expects to receive as a result of such contract, shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both.

Sec. 26. No individual, association, partnership, or corporation shall use the words "United States Housing Authority," or any combination of these four words, as the name, or part thereof, under which he or it shall do business. Any such use shall constitute a misdemeanor and shall be punishable by a fine not exceeding $1,000.

Sec. 27. Wherever the application of the provisions of this Act conflicts with the application of the provisions of Public Numbered 837, approved June 29, 1936 (49 Stat. 2025), Public Numbered 845, approved June 29, 1936 (49 Stat. 2035), or any other Act of the United States dealing with housing or slum clearance, or any Executive order, regulation, or other order thereunder, the provisions of this Act shall prevail.

---

25. See Chapters 4 and 5, Title 18, United States Code.

26. So in original; should be makes.

Sec. 28. The President is hereby authorized to make available to The Alley Dwelling Authority, from any funds appropriated or otherwise provided to carry out the purposes of this Act, such sums as he deems necessary to carry out the purposes of the District of Columbia Alley Dwelling Act, approved June 12, 1934 (Public Numbered 307, Seventy-third Congress).[27] Such sums shall be deposited in the Conversion of Inhabited Alleys Fund and thereafter shall remain immediately available for the purposes of the District of Columbia Alley Dwelling Act.

Sec. 29. Notwithstanding any other evidences of the intention of Congress, it is hereby declared to be the controlling intent of Congress that if any provision of this Act, or the application thereof to any person or circumstance, is held invalid, the remainder of this Act, or the application of such provision to persons or circumstances other than those as to which it is held invalid, shall not be affected thereby.

Sec. 30. This Act may be cited as the "United States Housing Act of 1937."[28]

Approved, September 1, 1937.[29]

---

27. Public Law 307, 73rd Congress, approved June 12, 1934, 48 Stat. 930, 5 Code Dist. Col. (1940) 103.

28. The short title of Title VI, Public Resolution 122, 75th Congress, amending the United States Housing Act of 1937, is the "United States Housing Act Amendments of 1938".

29. The United States Housing Act Amendments of 1938 were approved June 21, 1938. Public Law 288, 77th Congress, amending Section 20 (a) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended, was approved October 30, 1941.

LOUDER

79TH CONGRESS
2D SESSION

S. 1592

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

APRIL 16, 1946

Referred to the Committee on Banking and Currency

AN ACT

To establish a national housing policy and provide for its execution.

1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representa-
2 tives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,
3 That this Act, divided into titles according to the following
4 Table of Contents, may be cited as the "General Housing
5 Act of 1946":

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Title I. National Housing Agency.
Title II. Research, market analysis, and local planning.
Title III. Amendments to existing aids to privately financed housing.
Title IV. Privately financed housing for families of lower income.
Title V. Direct private investment in housing for families of moderate income.
Title VI. Land assembly for participation by private enterprise in development or redevelopment programs.
Title VII. Aid to localities for low-rent housing.
Title VIII. Housing on farms and in rural areas.
Title IX. Disposition of permanent war housing and other federally owned housing with preference to servicemen and veterans.
Title X. Periodic inventory of housing needs and programs.
Title XI. Miscellaneous provisions.

[PUBLIC LAW 388—79TH CONGRESS]

[CHAPTER 268—2D SESSION]

[H. R. 4761]

AN ACT

To expedite the availability of housing for veterans of World War II by expediting the production and allocation of materials for housing purposes and by curbing excessive pricing of new housing, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Veterans' Emergency Housing Act of 1946".

SEC. 1. (a) The long-term housing shortage and the war have combined to create an unprecedented emergency shortage of housing, particularly for veterans of World War II and their families. This requires during the next two years a house-construction program larger than ever before. The first step toward such a program is to overcome the serious shortages and bottlenecks with respect to building materials, to expedite the production of such materials, to allocate them for house construction and other essential purposes, and to accelerate the production of houses with preferences for veterans of World War II and at sales prices or rentals within their means. To carry out this program, it is necessary to invest a housing expediter with adequate powers, including the power to issue policy directives. Accomplishment of these objectives will assist returning veterans to acquire housing at fair prices, stimulate industry and employment, prevent a post-emergency collapse of values in the housing field, and promote a swift and orderly transition to a peacetime economy.

(b) The provisions of this Act, and all regulations and orders issued thereunder, shall terminate on December 31, 1947, or upon the date specified in a concurrent resolution by the two Houses of the Congress, declaring that the provisions of the Act are no longer necessary to deal with the existing national emergency, whichever date is the earlier.

(c) The provisions of this Act shall be applicable to the United States, its Territories and possessions, and the District of Columbia.

SEC. 2. (a) There is hereby created an office to be known as Housing Expediter; and the President is authorized, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to appoint an existing official of the Government to serve as Housing Expediter, or to appoint the Housing Expediter either within any existing agency or as an independent officer of the Government. In the event of an appointment of an existing official, he is hereby authorized and permitted to continue in his present post while serving as Housing Expediter, except that he shall receive no additional compensation by reason of his appointment hereunder. If, however, such Housing Expediter is appointed within an existing agency of the Government, he shall receive compensation in compliance with the laws and regulations applicable to officers within such agency; if the Housing Expediter is appointed as an independent officer of the Government, he shall receive compensation at the rate of $12,000 per annum.

(b) The Housing Expediter, in addition to such other functions and powers as may be delegated to him by the President, is authorized to—

(1) formulate such plans and programs as are necessary to provide for an increased supply of housing accommodations of all kinds and, in particular, of homes available for sale or rental at moderate prices to veterans of World War II and their immediate families;

(2) issue such orders, regulations, or directives to other executive agencies (including the Office of Economic Stabilization and the Office of Price Administration) as may be necessary to provide for the exercise of their powers in a manner required by or consistent with the execution of the aforesaid plans and programs, and to coordinate the activities of such agencies directed to the execution of such plans and programs. Each executive agency shall carry out without delay the orders, regulations, or directives of the Housing Expediter, and shall, to the extent necessary, modify its operations and procedures from time to time to conform to the directions of the Housing Expediter;

(3) recommend to the President the enactment of such legislation as may be necessary to provide the authority to carry out such plans and programs as are not authorized under existing law;

(4) consult and cooperate with other agencies of the Federal Government, State and local governments, industries, labor, and other groups, both national and local, with respect to the problems created by the housing emergency and the steps which can be taken to remedy it.

(c) The executive agencies of the Government shall exercise their emergency powers and other powers for the purpose of aiding in the solution of the problems created by the existing housing emergency, the alleviation of which is vital to an orderly transition from war to peace.

(d) (1) All functions, powers, authority, or duties vested in the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion or the Director thereof by the War Mobilization and Reconversion Act of 1944 which are or may be necessary or suitable to enable the Housing Expediter to carry out the provisions of this Act and such plans and programs as such Housing Expediter may develop for the alleviation of the housing emergency, are hereby transferred to the Housing Expediter. The powers so transferred shall include the power to issue orders, regulations, or directives to other executive agencies with respect to the exercise by such agencies of their respective powers and authority.

(2) The powers so transferred shall continue during the period in which this Act is in effect, notwithstanding any other provision terminating such powers contained in the said War Mobilization and Reconversion Act of 1944.

SEC. 3. (a) Whenever in the judgment of the Expediter the sales prices of housing accommodations the construction of which is completed after the effective date of this Act have risen or threaten to rise to an extent or in a manner inconsistent with the purposes of this Act, he may by regulation or order establish maximum sales prices for such housing accommodations in accordance with the provisions of this Act. Any such regulation or order may be limited in its scope to such geographical area or areas and to such types or classifications of such housing accommodations as in the judgment of the Expediter may be necessary to effectuate the purposes of this Act. Before issuing any regulation or order under this section, the Expediter shall, so far as practicable, advise and consult with representative members of industries affected by such regulation or order, and he shall give consideration to their recommendations and to any recommendations which may be made by State and local officials concerned with housing conditions in any area affected by such regulation or order.

(b) Any regulation or order issued under the authority of this section with respect to housing accommodations the construction of which is completed after the effective date of this Act shall provide that no sale of any such housing accommodations shall take place until after the builder thereof has filed with the appropriate agency designated by the Expediter a description of such accommodations, including a statement of the proposed maximum sales price, and has received from such agency a certification that such price is reasonably related to the value of the accommodations to be sold, taking into consideration (1) reasonable construction costs not in excess of the legal maximum prices of the materials and services required for the construction, (2) the fair market value of the land (immediately prior to construction) and improvements sold with the housing accommodations, and (3) a margin of profit reflecting the generally prevailing profit margin upon comparable units during the calendar year 1941. Any prospective seller of such housing accommodations may apply for such certification at any time, including before the commencement of construction, during its progress, or after its completion. In any case where a certification of approval of a proposed maximum sales price has been issued prior to the completion of construction, the prospective seller may, at any time before the first sale, apply for such revision of the maximum sales price previously certified as may be justified by a showing of special circumstances arising during the course of construction and not reasonably to have been anticipated at the time of the issuance of the earlier certification. The first sale of housing accommodations the construction of which is completed after the effective date of this Act shall not be made at a price in excess of the maximum sales price certified under this subsection. The actual price at which any such housing accommodations is first sold, plus any increases authorized pursuant to subsection (c), shall be the maximum sales price for any subsequent sale of such housing accommodations.

(c) The Expediter shall by regulation or order provide for appropriate price increases for major structural changes or improvements, not including ordinary maintenance and repair, effected subsequent to the first sale after the effective date of this Act.

(d) The Expediter may promulgate such regulations as he deems necessary and proper to carry out any of the provisions of this Act and may exercise any power or authority conferred upon him by this Act through such department, agency, or officer as he shall direct. Any regulation or order under this Act may contain such classifications and differentiations and may provide for such adjustments and reasonable exceptions as in the judgment of the Expediter are necessary or proper in order to effectuate the purposes of this Act. The Expediter shall have power to forbid the exportation to any foreign country of any lumber or other materials which are needed for the housing program.

SEC. 4. (a) Whenever in the judgment of the Expediter there is a shortage in the supply of any materials or of any facilities suitable for the construction and/or completion of housing accommodations in rural and urban areas, and for the construction and repair of essential farm buildings, he may by regulation or order allocate, or establish priorities for the delivery of, such materials or facilities in such manner, upon such conditions, and to such extent as he deems necessary and appropriate in the public interest and to effectuate the purposes of this Act.

(b) In issuing any regulation or order allocating or establishing priorities for the delivery of any materials or facilities under this section, the Expediter shall give special consideration to (1) satisfying the housing requirements of veterans of World War II and their immediate families, (2) the need for the construction and repair of essential farm buildings, and (3) the general need for housing accommodations for sale or rent at moderate prices. In order to assure preference or priority of opportunity to such veterans or their families, the Expediter shall require that no housing assisted by allocations or priorities under this section shall be sold within 60 days after completion or rented within 30 days after completion for occupancy by persons other than such veterans or their families: Provided, That the Expediter by appropriate regulation may allow for hardship cases.

(c) The provisions of this section shall not be construed as in any way affecting the power of the President to assign priorities or to allocate any materials or facilities under the provisions of subsection (a) of section 2 of the Act of June 28, 1940, entitled "An Act to expedite national defense, and for other purposes" (50 U. S. C. 633), as amended.

SEC. 5. It shall be unlawful for any person to effect, either as principal or broker, a sale of any housing accommodations at a price in excess of the maximum sales price applicable to such sale under the provisions of this Act, or to solicit or attempt, offer, or agree to make any such sale. It shall be unlawful for any person to violate the terms of any regulation or order issued under the provisions of this Act. Notwithstanding any termination of this Act as contemplated in section 1 (b) hereinabove, the provisions of this Act, and of all regulations and orders issued thereunder, shall be treated as remaining in force, as to rights or liabilities incurred or offenses committed prior to such termination date, for the purpose of sustaining any proper suit, action, or prosecution with respect to any such right, liability, or offense.

SEC. 6. Any person who is aggrieved by any action taken pursuant to any regulation or order issued under the authority of this Act may petition the district court of the district in which he resides or has his place of business for a review of such action, and such district court shall have jurisdiction to enjoin or set aside, in whole or in part, such action or to dismiss the petition. No such action shall be enjoined or set aside, in whole or in part, unless the petitioner establishes to the satisfaction of the court that such action is not in accordance with law, is unsupported by competent, material, and substantial evidence, or is arbitrary or capricious.

SEC. 7. (a) Whenever in the judgment of the Expediter any person has engaged or is about to engage in any acts or practices which constitute or will constitute a violation of any provision of section 5 of this Act, he may make application to the appropriate court for an order enjoining such acts or practices, or for an order enforcing compliance with such provision, and upon a showing by the Expediter that such person has engaged or is about to engage in any such acts or practices a permanent or temporary injunction, restraining order, or other order, may be granted and if granted shall be granted without bond.

(b) Any person who willfully violates any provision of section 5 of this Act, and any person who knowingly makes any statement false in any material respect in any description or statement required to be filed under section 3, shall, upon conviction thereof, be subject to a fine of not more than $5,000, or to imprisonment for not more than one year, or to both such fine and imprisonment. Whenever the Expediter has reason to believe that any person is liable to punishment under this subsection, he may certify the facts to the Attorney General, who may, in his discretion, cause appropriate proceedings to be brought.

(c) The district courts shall have jurisdiction of criminal proceedings for violations of section 5 of this Act, and, concurrently with State and Territorial courts, of all other proceedings under this section. Such criminal proceedings may be brought in any district in which any part of any act or transaction constituting the violation occurred. Such other proceedings may be brought in any district in which any part of any act or transaction constituting the violation occurred, and may also be brought in the district in which the defendant resides or transacts business, and process in such cases may be served in any district wherein the defendant resides or transacts business or wherever the defendant may be found. Any such court shall advance on the docket and expedite the disposition of any criminal or other proceedings brought before it under this section. No costs shall be assessed against the Expediter or the United States Government in any proceeding under this Act.

(d) If any person selling housing accommodations violates a regulation or order prescribing a maximum selling price, the person who buys such housing accommodations may, within one year from the date of the occurrence of the violation, bring an action for the amount by which the consideration exceeded the maximum selling price, plus reasonable attorney's fees and costs as determined by the court.

SEC. 8. As used in this Act—

(a) The term "maximum sales price" means the maximum price for which any housing accommodations the construction of which is completed after the effective date of this Act may be sold and includes the total consideration which may be paid by the buyer for such housing accommodations with accompanying land and improvements, excluding only those incidental charges, such as brokerage fees or commissions or charges, which buyers or sellers of such housing accommodations customarily assume in the community where such accommodations are located and which actually have been incurred for services rendered at the buyer's or seller's request.

(b) The term "person" includes an individual, corporation, partnership, association, or any other organized group of any of the foregoing, or legal successor or representative of any of the foregoing.

(c) The term "district court" means any district court of the United States, and the United States court for any Territory or other place subject to the jurisdiction of the United States.

(d) The term "veterans of World War II" shall include persons who have served in the active military or naval forces of the United States on or after September 16, 1940, and prior to the termination of hostilities in World War II, and who have been discharged or released therefrom under conditions other than dishonorable, and persons serving in the military or naval forces of the United States requiring housing accommodations for their dependent families.

SEC. 9. There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions and purposes of this Act: Provided, however, That so much of the First Deficiency Appropriation Act, 1946 (Public Law Numbered 269, Seventy-ninth Congress, approved December 28, 1945), as reads "Provided, That none of the funds available under this head for administrative expenses shall be used in paying the salary of any person engaged in making or processing loans in excess of $500,000 to any State, any subdivision thereof, any municipality therein, or any public authority, for construction purposes, unless in pursuance of a specific authorization, except, however, that this provision shall not apply to any application or loan approved or made prior to December 15, 1945", shall not apply to loans made for construction, removal, or remodeling of housing by publicly supported educational institutions where made for the purposes of housing veterans enrolled and attending such institution.

SEC. 10. (a) Section 603 (a) of the National Housing Act, as amended, is hereby amended to read as follows:

"(a) In order to assist in relieving the acute shortage of housing which now exists and to increase the supply of housing accommodations available to veterans of World War II at prices within their reasonable ability to pay, the Administrator is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure as hereinafter provided any mortgage which is eligible for insurance as hereinafter provided, and, upon such terms as the Administrator may prescribe, to make commitments for the insuring of such mortgages prior to the date of their execution or disbursement thereon: Provided, That the aggregate amount of principal obligations of all mortgages insured under this title shall not exceed $2,800,000,000 except that with the approval of the President such aggregate amount may be increased to not to exceed $3,800,000,000: Provided further, That no mortgage shall be insured under this title after June 30, 1947, except (A) pursuant to a commitment to insure issued on or before June 30, 1947, or (B) a mortgage given to refinance an existing mortgage insured under this title and which does not exceed the original principal amount and unexpired term of such existing mortgage: And provided further, That the Administrator shall, in his discretion, have power to require the availability for rental purposes of properties covered by mortgages insured under this title, in such instances and for such periods of time as he may prescribe."

(b) Section 603 (b) (2) of the National Housing Act, as amended, is hereby amended to read as follows:

"(2) involve a principal obligation (including such initial service charges, appraisal, inspection, and other fees as the Administrator shall approve) in an amount not to exceed 90 per centum of the Administrator's estimate of the necessary current cost (including the land and such initial service charges and such appraisal, inspection, and other fees as the Administrator shall approve) of a property, urban, suburban, or rural, upon which there is located a dwelling designed principally for residential use for not more than four families in the aggregate, which is approved for mortgage insurance prior to the beginning of construction. The principal obligation of such mortgage shall in no event, however, exceed—

"(A) $5,400 if such dwelling is designed for a single-family residence, or

"(B) $7,500 if such dwelling is designed for a two-family residence, or

"(C) $9,500 if such dwelling is designed for a three-family residence, or

"(D) $12,000 if such dwelling is designed for a four-family residence:

Provided, That the Administrator may, if he finds that at any time or in any particular geographical area it is not feasible, within such limitations of maximum mortgage amounts, to construct dwellings without sacrifice of sound standards of construction, design, or livability, prescribe by regulation or otherwise higher maximum mortgage amounts not to exceed—

"(A) $8,100 if such dwelling is designed for a single-family residence, or

"(B) $12,500 if such dwelling is designed for a two-family residence, or

"(C) $15,750 if such dwelling is designed for a three-family residence, or

"(D) $18,000 if such dwelling is designed for a four-family residence."

(c) Section 603 (b) (5) of the National Housing Act, as amended, is hereby amended to read as follows:

"(5) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance) at not to exceed 4 per centum per annum on the amount of the principal obligation outstanding at any time."

(d) Section 603 (c) of the National Housing Act, as amended, is hereby amended (1) by striking out of the third sentence the word "emergency" and inserting in lieu thereof the words "shortage of housing", and (2) by striking out the last sentence thereof and inserting in lieu thereof the following sentence: "The Administrator shall prescribe such procedures as in his judgment are necessary to secure to veterans of World War II, and their immediate families, and to hardship cases as defined by the Administrator, preference or priority of opportunity to purchase or rent properties covered by mortgages insured under this title."

(e) Section 604 (b) of the National Housing Act, as amended, is hereby amended by striking out the words "appraised value of such property as determined by the Administrator" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "Administrator's estimate of the necessary current cost".

(f) Section 608 (b) of the National Housing Act, as amended, is hereby amended:

(1) by amending paragraph numbered (2) thereof to read as follows:

"(2) Preference or priority of opportunity in the occupancy of the mortgaged property for veterans of World War II and their immediate families, and for hardship cases as defined by the Administrator, shall be provided under such regulations and procedures as may be prescribed by the Administrator.";

(2) by amending paragraph (3) (C) to read as follows:

"(C) not to exceed $1,500 per room for such part of such property or project as may be attributable to dwelling use: Provided, That the Administrator may increase this amount to $1,800 where in his discretion cost levels so require."; and

(3) by striking out "reasonable replacement cost" and inserting in lieu thereof "necessary current cost".

(g) Section 608 (c) of the National Housing Act, as amended, is hereby amended by inserting in the third sentence before the semicolon at the end of clause (C), the following: "and any mortgage insurance premiums paid after default".

SEC. 11. (a) The last paragraph of section 2 (e) of the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, as amended (50 U. S. C. 902 (e)), shall not apply to subsidies, which the Reconstruction Finance Corporation may make hereunder, in the form of premium payments used only to the extent that the Housing Expediter (after considering all available means) finds them temporarily necessary to increase the supply of materials for the veterans' emergency housing program and for other construction, maintenance, and repair essential to the national well-being: Provided, That not more than $400,000,000 shall be used for such premium payments.

(b) The following standards shall be applied by the Housing Expediter to premium payments:

(1) Premium payments shall be used only temporarily and only with relation to additional units of production beyond that otherwise attainable (as determined by the Housing Expediter by general regulation for the industry involved), where such premium payments are necessary to stimulate such additional production with greater rapidity, economy, or certainty than other available methods.

(2) The value of the units of production to which premium payments are applied (A) in the case of any new producer (except of new type materials) shall not exceed 50 per centum of the value at the producers' level of the output of such producer, and (B) in the aggregate shall not exceed 30 per centum of the value at the producers' level of all materials needed for the veterans' emergency housing program and for other construction, maintenance, and repair essential to the national well-being. The average rate of premium payments shall not exceed 25 per centum of the value of the units of production to which they are applied.

(3) Premium payments shall wherever feasible be applied at a uniform rate within any industry requiring them, rather than at varying rates for each producer.

(4) The stimulation of necessary additional production by premium payments shall place emphasis upon avoiding either economic dislocations or adverse effects upon established business.

(5) New type materials to which premium payments are applied shall be tested for sound quality.

(c) Not more than $15,000,000 of the funds made available under this section may be used to the extent that other funds are unavailable for the construction of access roads to standing timber on lands owned by or under the jurisdiction of an agency of Government.

SEC. 12. (a) The powers vested in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation pursuant to clause (a) of section 5d (3) of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Act, as amended (15 U. S. C. 606b (3)), may be used to underwrite or guarantee markets for new type building materials and prefabricated houses, but only to the extent that the Housing Expediter finds this necessary to assure a sufficient supply for the veterans' emergency housing program: Provided, That the number of prefabricated houses covered by outstanding underwriting or guaranty (including such houses as may be held by the Housing Expediter) shall at no time during the program exceed two hundred thousand.

(b) The following standards shall be applied by the Housing Expediter to such underwriting or guaranty:

(1) To avoid impairment of established enterprises, new type materials and prefabricated houses shall be encouraged only to supplement such expanded production of conventional type materials and houses (with access to available materials) as can be achieved with sufficient rapidity and economy.

(2) There shall be reasonable prospect of either (A) full return to the Government of any funds involved in such underwriting or guaranty, or (B) net cost to the Government substantially lower than under any other available method of achieving the necessary expansion of production. Toward this end, the underwriting or guaranty of such materials or houses shall not be for more than 90 per centum of the producers' standard delivery price. The Housing Expediter shall maintain constant review of experience toward the objective that the total net costs to the Government shall in no event exceed 5 per centum of the total amount of underwriting or guaranty undertaken.

(3) There shall be clear evidence that the new type materials or prefabricated houses require underwriting or guaranty only temporarily until they attain general market acceptability.

(4) Emphasis shall be placed upon avoiding either economic dislocations or adverse effects upon established business.

(5) New type materials and prefabricated houses shall be tested for sound quality and (in the case of such houses) for durability, livability, and safety.

(6) Any underwriting or guaranty shall require adequate showing by the producer that he has sufficient working capital and experience, and that he can achieve the desired production on time under conditions satisfactory to the Housing Expediter.

SEC. 13. If any provision of this Act or the application of such provision to any person or circumstances shall be held invalid, the validity of the remainder of the Act and the applicability of such provision to other persons or circumstances shall not be affected thereby.

Approved May 22, 1946.

(1) When a man has adequate farm - secretarial loan 4% 33 years .

(2) When a man has potentially adequate farm, the first half of the principal repayments for each year and all interest may be forgiven for ten years.

(3) Repair loans up to a thousand dollars with the possibility of grants up to five hundred dollars. Where loan proceeds benefit two people or more, total loan may be up to two thousand dollars. These are "temporary" loans at four percent. Presumably, temporary loans mean life of the improvement. Presumably also, proceeds could be used only for structure lived in by humans or directly ancillary to human living; i.e., privies, food storage, cellars, possibly smokehouses - no barns.

In the eyes of the Census Bureau rural non-farm is place with less than 2500 people, and a farm is three acres or more or a place having agriculture production to the value of $250.00 or more per year.

In terms of the 1940 Census, rural non-farm houses come out as follows:

	A 11	Major Repair	Per Cent needing Major Repair
U.S.	8,066,837	1,636,491	21.4
North	4,269,655	779,418	19.2
South	2,664,771	673,537	26.6
West	1,132,491	183,500	17.1

RURAL HOUSING NOTES - BILOXI CONFERENCE SEPT. 26, 1946
National Association of Rural Housing

Hamilton said that in order to be ready for the expected program, the States should create by Januaryl, 1947, the regional Rural Housing A uthorities that will be needed. Some Washington official of NHA told me that he thought practically all Southern States now have rural housing laws that would gear into NHA'S program.

The former executive director of the Northeast Mississippi Housing Authority, Tupelo, is named Guy Mitchell.

The FPHA official in charge of rural housing is H. F. Davenport.

Hamilton announced that he had concluded that minimum rural housing standards must be as high as urban. Convention set up a committee to coordinate with urban housing people; i.e., with NAHO. Committee was Cotheran from South Carolina, C. C. Brown of Louisiana, and Dick McCloy of Arkansas. With the president, vice-president and general council making a total of six.

No word of praise in the whole meeting for FSA.

USDA field people were completely absent from the meeting. Only representative was Charlie Brannon's FO lawyer of solicitor's office, named Campbell.

The new bill on USDA side provides as follows:

establish rather than something that is. In other words, the farmer must go through local Housing Authority for a loan from either USDA or FPHA. The deed to one acre is in the new bill.

Most State laws call a city a place of five thousand or more. Thus for the purpose of regional (i.e., rural) Housing Authorities, in such States the Authorities could cover towns up to five thousand. Davenport modifies this by saying the "low incomers only, of course".

U.S. now contains 66 regional Housing Authorities suitable for rural housing , says Henry Davenport. These have built 515 houses of which 46 are rural non-farm.

GSM thinks rural housing in USA need a book - title, "Public Rural Housing in US".

GSM proposed language - "provide that such purchase credit shall not be allowed for any year in which a house (erected under proceeds of an FPHA loan) was occupied by a farm tenant, sharecropper, laborer, or other lessee".

To reactivate the regional Housing Authorities this could be used now, even under the old Act, to re-house veterans in small towns, and some at least of the

-3 Rural Housing

Under the new bill FPHA program is roughly as follows:

(1) 100% loans to local public housing agencies only. Forty-five years, interest 2% or going Federal rate.

(2) Subsidy is the annual contribution of FPHA to the local housing agency. Under Title 2 (rural) this subsidu will be the difference between the income and the expenditure of the local Housing Authority based on a pre-determined estimate with certain controls. One of these is through the cost limit by setting the amount the tenant will pay the sum sufficient to amortize the cost of the house without interest.

(3) No requirement of a local contribution to the local Housing A uthority.

(4) Equivalent demolition is gone.

(5) Option to purchase enjoyed by tenant with price reduced by amount the tenant has paid on the principal.

FPHA is authorized and directed to assist local authorities in getting housing for those USDA will not help. Local Housing Authority deals in all of USDA's loans plus FPHA'S - so says George Hamilton. I think that is something he hopes to local Housing Authorities already have old money allocated to them which could be used thusly. The new Act has a limit of twenty-five hundred for rural non-farm, but permits entry into rural places where mayors or other responsible officials petitioned to be in a regional Authority.

-6 Rural Housing

Treasury contains about $600.00 cash now. I gathered from what was said the dues come in in lumps from local Housing Authorities and may thus be indirectly Federal money.

The convention elected as its Board of Directors: From Georgia, Walter Harrison of Millen (said to be in the Legislature and one who always gets his bills through, and put through the Rural Housing Bill); from Louisiana, C. C. Brown of Baton Rouge; from Mississippi, W. A. Bell of Newton; from Arkansas, D. E. McCloy of Montecello; from South Carolina, S. M. Leaman of Cross Hill.

Persons from other Southern States not represented at the convention will be filled by mailed ballot.

Officers elected:
George Hamilton - President
Ray J. Cornay - Vice President
Mrs. Lucille M. Moore of Darlington, S. C. - Secretary
W. A. Bell - Treasurer
H. W. McMillan of Arkansas - General Counsel

PROGRAM
ANNUAL CONVENTION

•

National Association of Rural Housing

•

HOTEL BUENA VISTA
BILOXI, MISSISSIPPI

SEPTEMBER 26-27, 1946

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 26

9 to 10 a. m. ---------- Registration of Delegates

10:00 a. m. — Convention opened by Geo. B. Hamilton, President, NARH.

10:05 a. m. — Invocation by Rev. J. L. Neill, Superintendent Methodist Seashore District.

10:10 a. m. — Address of Welcome — Dr. L. O. Todd, Presiding. Hon. Thomas L. Bailey, Governor of Miss., Hon. Chester A. Delacruz, Mayor of Biloxi — Response, Hon. Ray J. Cornay, Vice-Pres., NARH.

11:15 a. m. ---------- Address of President of NARH

11:30 a. m. -- Appointment of Committees - Announcements

12:00 Noon ---------- Recess

12:30 p. m. — Luncheon, Geo. B. Hamilton, Presiding — Address, Hon. Jno. P. Broome, Regional Director, FPHA.

2:00 p. m. — Reconvene, Hon. H. W. McMillen, Gen. Counsel, NARH Presiding — Address on Legislation, Hon. Howard Campbell, Chief Farm Tenancy Division, Sol. Office. Dept. of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., Attorney of FPHA, Washington, D. C.

3:00 p. m. ---------- Convention Forum on Legislation

4:00 p. m. ---------- Adjourn

8:00 p. m. ------ Dutch Supper, W. A. Bell, Mississippi, host.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 27

10:00 a. m. — Reconvene — Hon. Homer H. Harris, Presiding, Address on Non-Farm Housing, Hon. Henry F. Davenport, Director Rural Housing FPHA, Washington, D. C.

10:45 a. m. ------ Convention Forum on Non-Farm Housing

12:00 Noon ---------- Recess

2:00 p. m. — Reconvene — Hon. S. M. Leaman, Presiding Address on Prefabrication, Harry H. Steidle, Mgr. Prefabricated Home Manufacturers Inst., Washington.

2:30 p. m. Convention Forum on Housing and Prefabrication

3:00 p. m. — Business session — Prest. Geo. B. Hamilton, Reports of Committees, Election of Officers.

4:00 P. M. ---------- Adjourn

8:30 p. m. — Annual Banquet, Geo. B. Hamilton, Toastmaster, Guest speaker, Jimmy Arrington, Editor-Mayor-Humorist.

Gen

October 3, 1946

Mr. James Maddox
Bureau of Agricultural Economics
U. S. Department of Agriculture
Washington, D. C.

Dear Jim:

Here is a puzzle too deep for me.

While I have not the bill before me, I understand that the rural housing clause of the Wagner-Ellender-Taft Bill, as that bill passed the Senate, among other things made it definite that the individual who arranges with the Housing Authority for a new house accrues for each annual payment an equivalent purchase credit, allowable when and if the individual exercises his option to purchase.

All sorts of provisions about income and possibilities of upping the annual payments to a sum larger than proportionate annual principal repay ent in case individual's income rises.

Option to purchase and purchase credit looks okay to me for owner-operator. But what about landlord farmer with five tenants, and so one new house for himself and five new houses for his tenants? If landlord by one device or another raises the farm rent of his tenants to cover the annual payment that the landlord must make on each of the five tenant houses, and then if at the end of say ten years, the landlord exercises his six options to purchase, is it fair? It looks to me as though the tenant will have paid out of his sweat, say, five hundred dollars on each tenant house, and the landlord will have paid out of the landlord's sweat (if he is owner-operator) five hundred dollars on the house the landlord lives in, but the landlord gets all six houses for a final payment of, say, fifteen hundred dollars apiece. It seems to me that the landlord has paid two thousand dollars for the house he lives in and is getting the other five at fifteen hundred apiece.

People with the landlord slant see no difference between a house and a tractor.

Also, there is the problem of probable depreciation of the houses five hundred dollars worth each.

But I feel sure the tenants will feel agrieved.

I think some, and perhaps all, of the present Rural Housing Authorities procedurally require landlords to sign agreements that landlords will not raise farm rents to cover cost of annual house payments by landlords. If such agreements were firm, would that cure it?

A sure stopper would be the insertion of a proviso in the bill that purchase credit should not be allowable for any year in which a house was occupied by a tenant, sharecropper, or person other than owner-operator of the farm.

Incidentally, the new dispensation drops the requirement that a one-acre corner lot be deeded to the local Housing Authority. The supposition is that a chattel mortgage on the house will secure the Housing Authority (fiction that the house is movable).

How about putting this problem through your person puzzle-solver and dropping me a line?

Possibly the problem would not arise at all, because the Secretary of Agriculture loans might be the only ones used for housing on sure-enough farms, including sharecrop farms. But I understand the local regional housing authority can do any housing for farms Agriculture doesn't think are either standard or enlargeable into standard farms.

Sincerely,

George S. Mitchell

GSM:w

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
WASHINGTON 25, D. C.

October 15, 1946

Mr. George S. Mitchell
Southern Regional Council, Inc.
63 Auburn Avenue, N.E.
Atlanta 3, Georgia

Dear George:

Thanks for your kind note of October 3rd about the rural housing meeting at Biloxi. I will welcome the opportunity to discuss this whole rural housing question with you and hope that you will be able to set aside some time during one of your future visits to Washington.

Unfortunately there are a number of obvious shortcomings in this rural section. They are the result of compromise, not so much between the several agencies interested in the national housing problem, as within the Department of Agriculture. I had a discussion of some of these points with Dillon Myer and Phil Glick last week.

It was Ray Smith to whom they referred. He furnished a lot of of support and good arguments for what I believe to be the correct point of view.

Kindest personal regards.

Sincerely yours,

Charles F. Brannan (R)

Assistant Secretary

FOR VICTORY BUY UNITED STATES WAR BONDS AND STAMPS

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

BUREAU OF AGRICULTURAL ECONOMICS

WASHINGTON, D.C.

October 16, 1946

Mr. George S. Mitchell
Southern Regional Council, Inc.
Atlanta 3, Georgia

Dear George:

In your letter of October 3, you began by saying, "Here is a puzzle too deep for me." In the next few paragraphs you properly solved the puzzle. Six or eight months ago when some of us were busily engaged in drafting the agricultural title of the housing bill which finally passed the Senate, we had to come to grips with the problem which you pose. In essence, it is a fairly simple problem: How can the government provide housing for southern tenants and share croppers without enriching the landlords and generally strengthening the plantation system? The answer is that it can't be done except by making those tenants and share croppers owner-operators. There are really some very tough decisions to make in connection with this problem. I am not satisfied with those which we did make in the Department here and which are inherent in the agricultural title of the bill. Nevertheless, I am, in general, better pleased with them than the approach being made by the housing people through the local housing authority mechanism. If the Government goes out to improve substandard housing through subsidies to local housing authorities, which in turn put houses where they are most needed, the inevitable result will be to improve the landlord's property, raise the tenant's rent, and, in general, strengthen the slowly decaying plantation system. But what shall we do? Is the only answer a procedure which allows tenant and share cropper to continue on with his impossible house while the neighboring small owner-operator gets a nice government subsidy for a decent place in which to live? I frankly admit that this problem has caused me more concern than most anything that I have run into in the last year or two.

The real answer, I am sure, is that rural housing and farm ownership be tied together in one program somewhat like the FSA Tenant Purchase Program. Therefore, we must balloon that approach just as big as possible in the name of housing. However, here you meet the old problems of high land values, shortage of funds, and all the other things which have kept that program small in scale of operations. Moreover, there ought to be some way of tying directly to the housing balloon and getting some benefit for tenants and share croppers out of it, even if land purchase can not always be tied together with housing. But just how to do it is the problem. About the best that I can bring myself to swallow are grants for temporary improvements and repairs, somewhat like the old FSA sanitary grants, thus giving the share cropper and tenant sanitary facilities, plus protection from the rain and snow, and yet not giving the landlord a new house. With such grants, I believe that it would be possible to get a concession from the landlord in the way of a garden, pasture for a cow, and perhaps no real increase in rent. It seems to me that we either have to be satisfied with some approach like that or be willing to fix up the landlord with free government money. I simply can't accept the latter. I would rather sit tight, particularly while there are good job opportunities in the cities, and put pressure on for making owner-operators out of tenants and share croppers, with the necessary subsidy in such a program to give them really decent housing.

The regular housing people, with their subsidies to local housing authorities, have more free dollars of aid to offer than anything that we have been able to get out of the Department of Agriculture. Hence, I hate like the devil to oppose their ideas. Yet I feel sure that their subsidies will not benefit the people for whom they are aimed in the South, and will give us good houses on small inadequate owner-operated farms throughout the country. Naturally, I want to do everything possible to get adequate family farms with decent houses on them, and it seems to me that that may be more important than getting decent houses, higher rents, and enriched landlords. Again though, I want to remind you that this is really a tough problem. I would like to have your reaction to it, and I would particularly like to know whether or not your man Hamilton in Georgia has done any real thinking about this question and where he stands on it. I get the impression that he wants everything turned over to the housing people and that they are ready, if not anxious, to go out and build houses almost indiscriminately for any and every farmer who needs one. I hope that you will do some kicking around in this field. There is a lot at stake in either direction the ball may be moved. I hate to see Congress take the housing people's point of view hook, line and sinker. At the same time, I would like to get much more out of the agricultural folks than has yet been possible.

With best personal regards, I am

Sincerely yours,

James G. Maddox
Special Assistant to the Chief

HOMES
PREFABRICATED HOME
MANUFACTURERS' INSTITUTE

San Francisco Charter
X

(Not printed at Government expense)

United States of America

Congressional Record

PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 79th CONGRESS, FIRST SESSION

San Francisco and Beyond

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

OF

HON. KARL E. MUNDT

OF SOUTH DAKOTA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, May 3, 1945

Mr. MUNDT. Mr. Speaker, under leave to extend my remarks in the RECORD, I include the following speech delivered by Clarence K. Streit in New York City on April 13, 1945:

A dictatorship can secretly prepare alternative plans in the field of foreign policy, and swiftly swing over from white to black. A democratic government, however, cannot fall back on any alternative plan, however sound, that does not have public opinion behind it. In a democracy, such planning must originate among the citizens themselves. We need to take this responsibility more seriously than ever now, if our democracy is to survive in this hair-trigger age.

We need, too, some basic truth to guide us in our search for peace in the confusions of these days—a compass to tell us whether we are really heading toward peace. Federal Union is here to supply the compass, the alternative, and the basic truth we need.

HOW EVERY NATION HAS MADE A LASTING PEACE

Some say there is no possibility of peace—that with human nature what it is we are bound to have conflict, fighting, war. I agree we are bound to have conflict and fighting; but I don't agree we are bound to have war.

Certainly, if anything is inherent in human nature, conflict is. It breaks out in the best circumstances. Boy meets girl, they fall in love, they marry, but even that does not keep them from fighting. Between friends, between businessmen, between employers and workers, between labor unions, between and within churches, there is any amount of conflict. This city is shot through with conflict and fighting, so is this State and this whole country—and yet we have peace within the United States.

If all the rest of the world were to sink, and only the United States remained, there would then be world peace. But that would also be true if all nations should be obliterated except England, or France, or Russia, or any one nation. Peace is not only possible; it is so possible that every nation on earth has proved capable of establishing enduring peace within a territory where before there was intermittent war.

How did they do it? Always and only by doing one simple thing—by changing the unit of society within that area from sovereign bodies politic, such as tribes, city states, principalities, to individual persons—by reducing the unit of human conflict from a mass-to-mass fight down to the conflict easiest to govern, a man-to-man affair.

For war is not a conflict between two men, it is a fight between sovereign states composed of masses of men. When you melt men together to form this body politic and that body politic, you do not eliminate the danger of conflict inherent in the nature of every individual man in them. You merely make it worse by putting it on a nation-to-nation basis. So long as your world is composed of sovereign states, as its predominant units, there is bound to be war, no matter how peace-loving they are at the start, or how strongly they are leagued together.

EVEN UNITED STATES LEAGUE FAILED

Common sense tells us this, and experience backs it up. Among all the 60 regions of the earth today in which enduring peace has been established, there is none where this was done by joining sovereign states together in a league as we are trying to do on a world scale at San Francisco.

Attempt after attempt has been made to secure peace by organizing sovereign states instead of men as units, and always the result has been failure. This method was tried by the little city republics of ancient Greece more than 2,000 years ago. Their leagues were stronger and more advanced than the one planned at San Francisco. Yet, they failed to secure peace even on that little peninsula.

If this method could work, it surely should have worked among our original States. They tried it under the most advantageous circumstances. The League of Friendship they set up under our Articles of Confederation during the war of independence was more advanced than the League of Nations. It had the improvements that many believe could suffice to make the United Nations league succeed.

In this early American league, each State had its own army, its own currency, its own tariffs, but the 13 States allowed the League of Friendship an international force—the Continental Army. Each State had an equal vote in the league, but the league could act by a majority of 9 States in many things, and the larger States had no special veto. This league was limited to only 13 States, whose people all spoke the same language, had the same Christian religion, the same economic system. All were democratic republics.

Yet, despite all these advantages, even this league failed. During its brief career there rose 11 territorial disputes among the 13 States, several of which threatened war. There were trade wars, boycotts. The league proved helpless and led to hard times, revolts, and dangers of war from outside. If a league could not work among these 13 peace-loving States, how can any reasonable person expect to gain peace merely by extending the same system to all the divergent nations of the world?

THE ESSENTIAL TRUTH OF FEDERAL UNION

The essential truth is plain: Insofar as the world is organized predominantly with sovereign bodies politic as the unit—whether they are called nations, states, city republics, tribes—the world is organized for war. So long as it is organized on this unit, so long as we seek to establish law in terms of states instead of persons, aggressor states, guilty nations, peace-loving nations, sovereign states—we cannot possibly eliminate either small wars or world wars, any more than we can eliminate theft, murder, or riots by organizing law with the individual person as unit. But where we do thus reduce inevitable human conflict to this individual unit, we do eliminate war. Insofar as we organize the world predominantly with the individual citizen as the unit, we shall get peace. There is the compass that Federal Union gives to guide you in these troubled days, the basic truth for which it stands.

HOW TO APPLY IT

How shall we transform the existing nation-to-nation relationship of war into the man-to-man relationship of peace?

It must be done either by force or by agreement. History tells us that nearly all the eras of peace we have in the world were formed by force—the stronger cave family conquering the others and building the tribe, the strong tribe conquering the others and building the city, state, or pretty kingdom, and so on up to the nations of today. The anarchy of sovereign bodies politic usually has been abolished by a conqueror—just as Hitler tried to abolish it—and we can be certain that if we fail to work this transformation by agreement, we shall soon be facing some new Hitler.

The outlook would be grim if there were no exception to the rule of force. But there are a few, and the most promising of all lies in our own history. When the league system failed the 13 States, they did not wait for war to engulf them. They sent their delegates to meet in convention in 1787. After long and arduous debates, they agreed on a constitution that shifted the basis of their organization from the 13 sovereign States to the sovereign citizens.

UNITED STATES CONSTITUTION POINTS WAY

It provided that the new United States Government should operate directly on the citizen unit, instead of on his State as a whole. It provided that the operations of this new Government should be determined and governed by the representatives of the citizens, chosen roughly on a basis of one citizen, one vote, instead of by the delegates of the State government, acting as a unit on the principle of one State, one vote. It provided, too, that the whole purpose of this new Government should be to secure the freedom and sovereignty and security of the citizens themselves, rather than the freedom and sovereignty of their State governments. You see, the Founding Fathers wrought an all-around transformation from the State to the person as unit.

To do this they had to solve two major problems that had hitherto baffled mankind, and seem to be baffling the nations today. One was the big State—little State problem. The big States feared the little States would dominate them if each State had an equal vote. The little States feared the more populous States would dominate them if representation were apportioned by population. The founding fathers solved it by giving the people of each State, small and large, equal representation in the Senate, and every citizen equal representation in the House.

The other problem rose from twin fears that the State governments might remain so powerful as to continue anarchy, and that the new inter-State government might be so strong as to be tyrannous. The founding fathers solved it by dividing the powers of government between the State governments on the one hand and the United States Government on the other. Where they all agreed the citizen would gain more by having the Union Government handle the job, they transferred that power from the States to it. Where they agreed the State could do the work better, they guaranteed that right to each State. In the end they shifted only 5 major powers from the States to the Union. But in so doing they abolished those 13 separate armies, currencies, and tariffs, set up 1 army, 1 currency, and 1 great free trading area under the Union, and gave the citizen of every State an additional citizenship, the one we all prize the most now, citizenship in the Union.

There in a nutshell is the Federal Union way to transform the relations between the people of sovereign nations from the State-to-State basis of war to the man-to-man basis of peace. Here in the United States we first proved that this difficult transformation could be wrought in peace, and that the Federal Union solution works.

WHAT OF SAN FRANCISCO?

How can we begin this transformation now between nations? It is only too clear that we cannot hope to begin it with all the United Nations at San Francisco. The plan that the great powers have already agreed to support there is based entirely on the state as unit. It does not transform, in the slightest degree, international relations from the nation-to-nation basis of war to the man-to-man basis that peace requires. It provides merely for another league of nations.

It is evident that only another league can come out of San Francisco. The basic problem there is to keep all the United Nations together. The larger the number and the more divergent the nations to be organized, the lower the common denominator must be. But this is no reason to reject this league as useless, or despair. We Federal Unionists hold that no matter how weak a league is organized at San Francisco, it should be supported, for any league is better than a return to isolationist diplomacy. Though it cannot possibly suffice to secure peace, it can help, and it can do much good.

We Federal Unionists have never believed the transformation from State to citizen that peace requires, could possibly begin among nations as divergent as the Big Three, let alone all the United Nations. We have always believed that it could begin only among a few nations, selected on the basis of common principle rather than of great armed power. Clearly the only governments that can be expected to consent freely to base their mutual relations on the citizen as unit are those in which the citizen already has the greatest power, those which not only operate down on the citizen but operate up from the citizen for his greater individual freedom, which aim to give him more power over government, and government less power over him—the nations, in short, that are most democratic in their principles and practice.

Federal Unionists have always recognized that the union of citizens which peace requires must first come up from the citizens themselves in those advanced democracies where they already are free enough to work for this, and in position to change the government's policy by changing the minds of the majority of their fellow citizens.

UNION WITHIN A LEAGUE

Consequently we Federal Unionists favor the common sense, two-basket, practical policy of combining league and union, organizing a union where we can and a league where we can't, uniting some of the democracies within the league of United Nations in a nuclear union that can grow gradually into a world federal democracy.

We Federal Unionists warmly support the efforts of the United States Government to organize all the United Nations in a new league. We deem it particularly important that this league should include such great countries as Soviet Russia and China, with whom we hope thereby to improve our present friendly relations. We are ready to bow to the practical necessity of weakening the league machinery in order to keep all the United Nations together in it.

But the more the new league is weakened the more we must insist on the need of supplementing and strengthening it, and providing an alternative for the unhappy event that the league should quickly fall.

By uniting the democracies within it in a federal union we do not only definitely begin the change-over from the nation-to-nation basis of war to the man-to-man basis that peace requires, but we vastly improve the possibility of keeping the world at peace during the transition period needed for the nuclear union to grow to universal union.

Experience in the Western Hemisphere has shown that peace can be preserved fairly well even in a weak league if that league includes a colossal federal democracy. And luckily it happens that a few of the democracies can, by union now, make democracy the same colossal power for peace in the world league that it is already in the inter-American league.

WHAT THE CITIZEN CAN AND CANNOT DO

None of us private citizens can hope to get any of the foreign governments at San Francisco to accept the stronger league we want. We must leave that to our delegation there, and remember that the only way it can get all those governments to agree on any league at all is by weakening rather than by strengthening it.

But any citizen can help strengthen that league by working to supplement it with an international union of citizens that does not require the consent of all those governments—that requires only the consent of the majority of citizens in a few of the democracies where the citizen is freest, and first of all the consent of our fellow citizens here in the United States.

To work for peace in this way would seem to be the major duty of the citizen, especially in the present interlude while he waits for the results of San Francisco to reach the Senate.

That is the duty that the citizens who form our association, Federal Union, Inc., are trying to do. For our association aims to educate people in these basic principles of peace, and have an alternative plan prepared that is founded on truth.

We answer your question, "To what does enrollment in Federal Union really commit me?" by saying: "Only to the purpose for which this Federal Union was incorporated as a nonprofit membership association, namely, to promote education in the basic principles of Federal Union as exemplified in the Constitution of the United States with a view to attaining world order by a Federal union of democratic peoples."

The sky is the limit to what you can do in the association, but by enrolling you are committed at bottom only to registering your name behind those principles and contributing at least $2 in dues to spread knowledge of them.

FEDERAL UNION PIONEERING

We realize that such educational work does not seem exciting to some people. They think it remote; they want something as immediate as the front page. They haven't time to ring their neighbor's doorbell—especially if they live in an apartment house—or send their old friends a book or pamphlet. They want the excitement of the final stages of a fight, the excitement of the band wagon.

But before they can climb aboard the band wagon some other people have got to provide the band wagon. There seems to be only one person in a hundred to whom this foundation work, this creative work, this pioneering work appeals more than does bandwagoneering. But there are such persons, and they are the ones we are seeking tonight, and every day.

Those who serve the truth of Federal Union must be prepared to serve it as did the men and women who got mankind to see every great truth that is common knowledge now. How can one expect to isolate and cure the germ of war except by the process by which the germ theory itself was established?

Surely everyone who knows in his heart a thing is true has the responsibility of helping spread that truth. Every one of us is benefited personally every day of our life by any number of truths that have come to our aid through men who first saw them boldly declaring them, and spreading them and staking even their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor—as Jefferson put it—to give these truths to the rest of us. What manner of man is he who will take all this truth from strangers, from men long since dead, and do nothing in his time to spread any truth to others, even to save his living friends and his own children?

There is no special virtue that I see in discovering a great truth by oneself—if that can really be—instead of from one's fellowmen. What good does it do for any man to discover any truth by himself if he cannot spread it to others? His truth lies dormant, until men who can spread knowledge and acceptance of it take it from him. There is as much merit in those who spread the truth, who make it known to the most of men, as in those who first stumble on it.

WHERE THE LIGHTS ARE STILL GOING OUT

In Federal Union you have in its early stage one of those great, world-changing truths whose rise forms the glory of our species. It is greater than the truth that germs invisible to the naked eye can cause disease—greater in this sense, at least: That it cures the worst of diseases, the one that the germ theory fails to reach, the one that makes men themselves the destroyers of men, turns man himself into a virus more hideous than any spirochete. This disease twice in 20 years has seized the whole species in its pestilential grip.

True, the lights are going on again all over Europe, but all over America now, in family after family, in heart after heart, the light is going out. They have already lost what was dearest to them in this war. And millions wait tonight in dread lest this fate be theirs, too. Let us remember that the joyful hour we dream of, when our boys come marching back victorious, will be the saddest of days for our brothers and our sisters whose boys will not return.

They need comfort, and surely the best comfort they can get is reason to hope that out of their sacrifice comes great and lasting good. On us, the living, rest the responsibility, whether the new chance these dead have given us shall be used to create something as great and enduring as the Americans of Jefferson's generation created, or whether our own dead shall have died merely to let us fritter and fumble and fool ourselves into a worse world war.

YOUR PRIVILEGE

You have the privilege of helping conquer this dread disease of war by enrolling behind this truth, the great truth of Federal Union.

Peace cannot possibly be had on a state-to-state basis; it can only be had by changing over to the free man-to-man basis that characterizes the American Federal Union. The sooner we each recognize this ourselves and get the majority to agree to begin this transformation, the sooner we shall have peace.

If you are not sure that this is true, you should study it more, and we have plenty of literature to help you. But there must be some of you who know in your heart that this is the truth. So long as you do not even acknowledge this truth by enrolling behind it, you are yourself holding back the spread of truth, blocking what your own conscience tells you is the road to peace.

If everyone listening to me, here in this hall and in the radio audience, who knows in his heart that this is the truth, would but act upon it now, would but sign his name to what he holds to be self-evident, would but tell the world by telling us, "I believe in the Federal Union principle and I will help spread its truth," how much more rapidly that truth would spread than if you stayed passive.

How easy it would be if only I could speak to you with the clarity of Thomas Jefferson, the logic of Alexander Hamilton, the authority of Abraham Lincoln.

If only I had the imagination of Dante to portray to you the hell toward which humanity is heading; the imagination of Shakespeare to bring before your eyes the unbelievably happy and abundant world we could enjoy through Federal Union. If only I had, just for tonight, the eloquence of the great Hebrew prophets to burn into your hearts this truth:

Beyond San Francisco lies chaos, slavery and war if you fail to work incessantly to supplement its league with Federal Union of the Free. But if you do achieve this there lies beyond San Francisco freedom, abundance, and peace such as man has never known.

If you can accept and act on that simple truth without needing a Jefferson to convince you, or a Hamilton, Lincoln, Dante, Shakespeare or Isaiah, well, then you have in your something better than the stuff that dreams are made on. You have in you the stuff that can turn dreams into reality.

645228—11756

U. S. GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE: 1945

THE UNITED NATIONS Charter ★ AS DECLARATION and as CONSTITUTION ★ ★

A LETTER TO THE PRESIDENT FROM EDWARD R. STETTINIUS, JR. CHAIRMAN OF THE UNITED STATES DELEGATION TO THE UNITED NATIONS CONFERENCE AT SAN FRANCISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA
JUNE 26, 1945

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

PUBLICATION 2355

CONFERENCE SERIES 72

Excerpt from a Report to the President on the Results of the San Francisco Conference, by the Chairman of the United States Delegation, the Secretary of State, June 26, 1945.

San Francisco, California
June 26, 1945

TO THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

Sir:

The United Nations Conference on International Organization met in San Francisco on the 25th day of April, 1945. At that time the war in Europe had lasted for more than five years; the war in the Pacific for more than three; the war in China for almost eight. Casualties of a million men, dead, wounded, captured, and missing had been suffered by the United States alone. The total military casualties of the nations which had fought the European war were estimated at some fourteen millions dead and forty-five millions wounded or captured without count of the civilian dead and maimed and missing—a multitude of men, women, and children greater than the whole number of inhabitants of many populous countries. The destruction among them all of houses and the furniture of houses, of factories, schools, shops, cities, churches, libraries, works of art, monuments of the past, reached inexpressible values. Of the destruction of other and less tangible things, it is not possible to speak in terms of cost—families scattered by the war, minds and spirits broken, work interrupted, years lost from the lives of a generation.

The Cost of Two World Wars

Thirty years before the San Francisco Conference was called, many of the nations represented there had fought another war of which the cost in destruction had been less only than that of the present conflict. Total military casualties in the war of 1914–1918 were estimated at thirty-seven million men. Counting enemy dead with the dead among the Allies, and civilian losses with military losses, over thirteen million human beings, together with a great part of the work they had accomplished and the possessions they owned, had been destroyed. Many of the nations represented at San Francisco had fought the second war still weakened by the wounds they suffered in the first. Many had lost the best of two succeeding generations of young men.

It was to prevent a third recurrence of this great disaster that the Conference of the United Nations was called in San Francisco according to the plans which Mr. Cordell Hull as Secretary of State had nurtured to fruition. The Conference had one purpose and one purpose only: to draft the charter of an international organization through which the nations of the world might work together in their common hope for peace. It was not a new or an untried endeavor. Again and again in the course of history men who have suffered war have tried to make an end of war. Twenty-six years before the San Francisco Conference met, the Conference at Paris, under the inspired and courageous leadership of Woodrow Wilson, wrote the Covenant of a League of Nations which many believed would serve to keep the peace. That labor did not gain the wide support it needed to succeed.

But the Conference at San Francisco, though it was called upon to undertake a task which no previous international conference or meeting had accomplished, met nevertheless with high hope for the work it had to do. It did not expect—certainly no member of the American Delegation expected—that a final and definitive solution of the problem of war would be evolved. Members of the Conference realized, from the first day, that an evil which had killed some forty million human beings, armed and unarmed, within the period of thirty years, and which, before that, had ravaged the world again and again, from the beginning of history, would not be eradicated by the mere act of writing a charter, however well designed.

The New Collaboration of States

Nevertheless, the Conference at San Francisco had behind it the demonstrated capacity of its members to work together to a degree rarely if ever before attained by sovereign nations. Not only in the prosecution of a war fought on four continents and the waters and islands of every ocean under conditions of the greatest danger and difficulty, but in the preparation for the termination of the war and, more particularly, in the preparation for the organization of the post-war world to keep the peace, the principal Allies had established a working and workable collaboration without precedent in the history of warfare. At Moscow in 1943, the United States, the United Kingdom and the Soviet Union and China had made a pledge which still endures, to continue their united action "for the organization and maintenance of peace and security". At Dumbarton Oaks, these four Allies had reached agreement upon proposals for a world security organization, and later at Yalta, the United States, the United Kingdom and the Soviet Union had further extended the area of their common understanding to which China gave her full adherence. These proposals, immediately published for the criticisms and comments of the people of all the United Nations, became the basis of the work at San Francisco.

Planning for Peace in Time of War

Furthermore, there was reason, in the nature of the San Francisco Conference itself, to hope that more could be accomplished there than had been possible at earlier meetings. The Conference called at San Francisco was not a peace-time conference summoned to debate the theory of international cooperation, or a post-war conference convened to agree upon a treaty. It was a war-time conference. Every nation represented at San Francisco was in a state of war when the Conference began. Many were engaged throughout the weeks of its deliberation in bitter and costly fighting. Not only the peoples of the United Nations but the more than sixty million men and women enlisted still in the armed forces of those nations regarded the Conference, and had a right to regard it, as a meeting of their representatives engaged upon a labor of immediate importance and concern to them. It was a peoples' conference and a soldiers' conference in the sense that it met under the eyes of the soldiers who fought this war and the peoples who endured it, as no previous conference to deal with peace and war had ever met. It was a conference, also, which met in a world which knew of its own knowledge that another war would be fought, if there were another war, with weapons capable of reaching every part of the earth—that similar weapons had indeed been brought to the point of use in the present conflict.

These facts exerted a compelling influence not only on the work of the Conference but on the Charter it evolved. It was the common and equal determination of all those who participated in its labors that the Conference must reach agreement: that a charter must be written. The possibility of failure was never at any time admitted. It was the determination of the delegates, also, that the Charter which the Conference produced should be a charter which would attempt to meet and to satisfy the concern and the anxiety of those who had suffered war and who knew at first hand the realities of violence. It would be a charter which would combine, with a declaration of united purpose to preserve the peace, a realistic and suitable machinery to give that purpose practical effect.

The Dual Nature of the Charter

The Charter drafted by the Conference at San Francisco is such a charter. Its outstanding characteristic and the key to its construction is its dual quality as declaration and as constitution. As declaration it constitutes a binding agreement by the signatory nations to work together for peaceful ends and to adhere to certain standards of international morality. As constitution it creates four overall instruments by which these ends may be achieved in practice and these standards actually maintained. The first function of the Charter is moral and idealistic: the second realistic and practical. Men and women who have lived through war are not ashamed, as other generations sometimes are, to declare the depth and the idealism of their attachment to the cause of peace. But neither are they ashamed to recognize the realities of force and power which war has forced them to see and to endure.

As declaration the Charter commits the United Nations to the maintenance of "international peace and security", to the development of "friendly relations among nations based on respect for the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples", and to the achievement of "international cooperation in solving international problems", together with the promotion and encouragement of "respect for human rights and for fundamental freedoms for all". More precisely, the United Nations agree to promote "higher standards of living, full employment, and conditions of economic and social progress and development; solutions of international economic, social, health, and related problems; and international cultural and educational cooperation; and universal respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language, or religion".

Further, in its capacity as declaration, the Charter states the principles which its Members accept as binding. "Sovereign equality" of the member states is declared to be the foundation of their association with each other. Fulfillment in good faith of the obligations of the member states is pledged "in order to ensure to all of them the rights and benefits resulting from membership" in the Organization. Members are to "settle their international disputes by peaceful means" and in such manner as not to endanger international peace and security, and justice. Members are to "refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any state, or in any other manner inconsistent with the Purposes of the United Nations". At the same time Members bind themselves to give the Organization "every assistance in any action it takes" in accordance with the Charter, and to "refrain from giving assistance to any state against which the United Nations is taking preventive or enforcement action".

Finally, the Charter as declaration binds those of its Members having responsibilities for administration of territories whose peoples have not yet attained the full measure of self-government, to recognize the principle "that the interests of the inhabitants of these territories are paramount" and to "accept as a sacred trust" the obligation to promote their well-being to the utmost.

These declarations of purposes and principles are notable in themselves. They state, without condition or qualification, a first and overriding purpose "to maintain international peace and security". International peace and security are the essential conditions of the world increasingly free from fear and free from want which President Roosevelt conceived as the great goal and final objective of the United Nations in this war and for the realization of which he and Cordell Hull worked unceasingly through twelve of the most decisive years of history.

But neither these declarations, nor those others which assert the intention of the United Nations to bring about the economic and social conditions essential to an enduring peace, or to promote respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms, would suffice, in and of themselves, to meet the evil of war and the fear of war which the Conference at San Francisco was called to consider. What was needed, as the Charter itself declares, was machinery to give effect to the purpose to maintain the peace—"effective collective measures for the prevention and removal of threats to the peace". What was needed, if the United Nations were really determined to have peace, was the means to peace—"to bring about by peaceful means . . . adjustment or settlement of international disputes".

Four Instruments Created

These means the Charter in its capacity as constitution undertakes to establish. It creates, in addition to its Secretariat and the Trusteeship Council with its specialized but vital functions, four principal overall instruments to arm its purposes and to accomplish its ends: an enforcement agency; a forum for discussion and debate; a social and economic institute through which the learning and the knowledge of the world may be brought to bear upon its common problems; an international court in which justiciable cases may be heard. The first is called the Security Council; the second, the General Assembly; the third, the Economic and Social Council; the fourth, the International Court of Justice. Their functions are the functions appropriate to their names.

The Security Council

It will be the duty of the Security Council, supported by the pledged participation, and backed by military contingents to be made available by the member states, to use its great prestige to bring about by peaceful means the adjustment or the settlement of international disputes. Should these means fail, it is its duty, as it has the power, to take whatever measures are necessary, including measures of force, to suppress acts of aggression or other breaches of the peace. It will be the duty of the Security Council, in other words, to make good the commitment of the United Nations to maintain international peace and security, turning that lofty purpose into practice. To that end the Council will be given the use and the support of diplomatic, economic and military tools and weapons in the control of the United Nations.

The General Assembly

It will be the responsibility of the General Assembly to discuss, debate, reveal, expose, lay open—to perform, that is to say, the healthful and ventilating functions of a free deliberative body, without the right or duty to enact or legislate. The General Assembly may take up any matter within the scope of the Charter or relating to the powers and functions of any organs provided in the Charter. It may discuss the maintenance of peace and security and make recommendations on that subject to the Security Council calling its attention to situations likely to endanger peace. It may initiate studies and make recommendations for the purpose of promoting international cooperation in the maintenance of peace and security. It is charged with the duty of assisting in the realization of human rights and fundamental freedoms and encouraging the development and codification of international law. It may debate any situation, regardless of origin, which it thinks likely to impair the general welfare, and recommend measures for its peaceful adjustment. It may receive and consider reports from the various organs of the United Nations, including the Security Council.

Stated in terms of the purposes and principles of the Charter, in other words, it is the function of the General Assembly, with its free discussion and its equal votes, to realize in fact the "sovereign equality" of the member states to which the United Nations are committed and to develop in practice the "friendly relations among nations based on respect for the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples" which the chapter on Purposes names as its second objective. Furthermore, it is the function of the Assembly to realize in its own deliberations the "international cooperation in the solution of international problems" which the Charter recites as one of its principal aims, and to employ the weapon of its public debates, and the prestige of its recommendations, to promote and encourage "respect for human rights and for fundamental freedoms".

The Economic and Social Council

The relation of the Economic and Social Council to the stated purposes of the United Nations is similarly direct and functional. The attainment of the ends which the United Nations lists among its Purposes in economic, social, health and other related fields, requires expert knowledge and careful study and the development of collaborative programs of action. The instrument devised by the Charter to that end is a Council in the economic and social field acting under the general responsibility of the Assembly and consisting of representatives of eighteen states.

The Economic and Social Council is empowered to make and initiate studies in its field, to frame reports and to make recommendations on its own initiative not only to the General Assembly, but to the Members of the Organization and to the specialized agencies in the fields of economics, health, culture, labor, trade, finance, human rights, and the like, which will be associated with the United Nations under the Council's coordination. Furthermore, the Council is authorized to call international conferences "on matters falling within its competence"; to prepare, for submission to the General Assembly, "draft conventions" in this field; "to perform services at the request of Members of the United Nations and at the request of specialized agencies"; and to obtain reports from the member states and from the specialized agencies on steps taken to give effect to its recommendations and those of the General Assembly. In a field of interest which concerns the peoples of the world as directly as the field of social and cultural and economic improvement, the power to study, report and recommend—the power to call conferences, prepare draft conventions and require reports of progress—is a power which can be counted on to go a long way toward translating humanitarian aspirations into human gains.

The International Court of Justice

The role of the International Court of Justice in the realization of the objectives of the Charter is obvious from the general nature of the Court. The purposes of the Charter include the adjustment or settlement of international disputes "in conformity with the principles of justice and international law". The International Court of Justice is the instrument of the United Nations to effect this purpose in the case of justiciable disputes referred to the Court by the parties. Where disputes are referred to the Court, or where member states accept the compulsory jurisdiction of the Court in certain categories of cases, its decisions are, of course, binding upon the parties. Moreover, under the Charter, all members of the United Nations undertake to comply with the decisions of the Court. Where a party to a case decided by the Court fails to comply with its decision, the matter may be brought to the attention of the Security Council for appropriate action.

These four overall instruments of international action constitute the principal means by which the Charter proposes to translate the world's hope for peace and security into the beginning of a world practice of peace and security. There are other instruments, adapted to other and more special ends. There is the Trusteeship Council, which will have the heavy responsibility of attaining in nonstrategic areas the objectives of the trusteeship system established by the Charter. There is the Secretariat which, as an international civil service responsible to the Organization alone, will constitute its staff. The Security Council, the General Assembly, the Economic and Social Council and the Court are, however, the principal tools through which, and by which, the general aims and purposes of the Charter would be carried out.

They are instruments admittedly of limited powers. The jurisdiction of the Court is not compulsory unless accepted as such by member states. The Assembly cannot legislate but merely discuss and recommend. The Security Council is obliged, when force is used, to act through military contingents supplied by the member states. Measured against the magnitude of the task to which the United Nations have committed themselves and considered in the light of the long history of previous failures in this undertaking, such limited instruments may seem inadequate to the labor to be done. They have, nevertheless, characteristics which justify a greater hope for their success than the extent of the powers delegated to them would imply. They have behind them the history of humanity's long effort to suppress, in other areas of life, disorder and anarchy and the rule of violence. These four instruments are, in effect, the four principal agencies through which mankind has achieved the establishment of order and security as between individuals and families and communities.

Four Instruments Developed Through the Ages

On the frontiers of democratic society—not least upon the American frontiers—the instruments of order have always been, in one form or another, an agency to enforce respect for law with moral and physical power to prevent and to suppress breaches of the peace; a court in which the differences and disagreements of the citizens could be heard and tried; and a meeting place where the moral sense of the community could be expressed and its judgments formed, whether as declarations of law or as declarations of opinion. To these three fundamental and essential instruments of order, time and the necessities of advancing civilization have added a fourth institution through which technical knowledge and accumulated experience can be brought to bear upon the social and economic problems of society—problems with which learning and science and experience can effectively deal.

These four fundamental instruments—the enforcement officer, the Court, the public meeting, and the center of science and of knowledge—are instruments to which free men are accustomed. They are instruments in the use of which self-governing men have become adept over many generations. They are instruments the efficacy of which has been demonstrated by the whole history of human civilization. Their establishment in the international world, though accompanied by limitations upon their scope, will not alter their quality nor diminish their prestige. To transplant vines and trees from familiar to unfamiliar environments, is necessarily to cut them back and prune them. To transplant social organisms from the world of individual and group relations to the world of international relations, is necessarily also to limit them and cut them back. Nevertheless, instruments of proven social value taken over from the domestic to the international world carry with them qualities of vigor and of fruitfulness which the limitations placed upon them by their new condition cannot kill. They have behind them an historical momentum and a demonstrated usefulness which mean far more, in terms of ultimate effectiveness, than the precise legal terms by which they are established in their new environment.

Adapting These Agencies to International Relations

Moreover, if the work of cutting back is done realistically, the chances of survival are increased. The four social instruments taken over by the United Nations have been adapted to the conditions of the actual world of international relationship with a realistic appreciation of the limiting factors to be faced. The Security Council is not the enforcement agency of a world state, since world opinion will not accept the surrender of sovereignty which the establishment of a world state would demand. The Security Council, therefore, depends upon the sovereign member states for the weapons both of persuasion and of force through which it will attempt to keep the peace. But its dependence upon the member states is realistically adapted to the situation of the member states. The Council is to use the power of the member states in accordance with the realities of the distribution of power. The voting procedure of the Security Council is expressive of the actualities of the possession and the exercise of power in the modern world. The five principal military powers of our time are made permanent members of the Council. Furthermore, in order that their possession of power and their use of power may be made to serve the purpose of peace, it is provided that they shall exercise their power only in agreement with each other and not in disagreement.

A similarly realistic acceptance of the facts of the actual world limits the General Assembly to discussion and deliberation without the power to legislate, since the power to legislate would necessarily encroach upon the sovereign independence of the member states. So too the Economic and Social Council has no power or right to interfere with the domestic affairs of the states composing the United Nations. And for the same reason the jurisdiction of the Court is limited. These adaptations to the realities of the existing situation in the contemporary world do not decrease, but on the contrary increase, the likelihood that the instruments borrowed by the Charter of the United Nations from the history of the ancient struggle for peace and order among individual men will serve their purpose in the newer struggle for peace and order among nations.

Upon the belief that the Charter as Constitution will furnish effective means for the realization of the purposes fixed by the Charter as Declaration; and upon the belief that the Charter as Declaration will set noble and enduring goals for the work of the Charter as Constitution, I base my firm conviction that the adoption of the Charter is in the best interests of the United States and of the world.

Beginning the Work of Peace

If we are earnestly determined, as I believe we are, that the innumerable dead of two great holocausts shall not have died in vain, we must act in concert with the other nations of the world to bring about the peace for which these dead gave up their lives. The Charter of the United Nations is the product of such concerted action. Its purpose is the maintenance of peace. It offers means for the achievement of that purpose. If the means are inadequate to the task they must perform, time will reveal their inadequacy as time will provide, also, the opportunity to amend them. The proposals of the Sponsoring Powers on which the Charter is based were published to the world six months before the Conference to consider them convened. In these six months the opinion of the world was brought to bear upon their elements. Subsequently, at the Conference itself, every word, every sentence, every paragraph of the Charter's text was examined and reconsidered by the representatives of fifty nations and much of it reworked. For the first time in the history of the world, the world's peoples directly, and through their governments, collaborated in the drafting of an international constitution. What has resulted is a human document with human imperfections but with human hopes and human victory as well. But whatever its present imperfections, the Charter of the United Nations, as it was written by the Conference of San Francisco, offers the world an instrument by which a real beginning may be made upon the work of peace. I most respectfully submit that neither we nor any other people can or should refuse participation in the common task.

EDWARD R. STETTINIUS, JR.

at ot er ch
he on.
ns
re eal ity ers rld onvas
at ery on-ch
the eir na-cu-
pes ent
vas
the be ub-
uld
.

San Fran

The United Nations Charter

By

HAROLD E. STASSEN

Delivered at a Public Meeting sponsored by 34 National Organizations in Washington, D. C., on July 5, 1945. Broadcast over the National Broadcasting Company.

Issued by

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION FOR THE UNITED NATIONS

45 East 65th Street New York 21, N. Y.

MEMBERS of the American delegation to the San Francisco Conference are now making their reports on the Charter of the United Nations. In order to provide an opportunity for Commander Harold E. Stassen to report publicly to the American people before returning to active duty in the Pacific, the following organizations sponsored a joint meeting, held in Washington, D. C., on July 5, 1945, at the Department of Commerce Auditorium:

American Association for the United Nations
American Association of University Women
American Council on Education
American Farm Bureau Federation
American Federation of Labor
American Jewish Committee
American Jewish Conference
American Legion
American Veterans Committee
Americans United for World Organization
Carnegie Endowment for International Peace
Church Peace Union
Commission to Study the Organization of Peace
Congress of Industrial Organizations
Council on Foreign Relations
Disabled American Veterans of the World War
Federal Council of Churches
Foreign Policy Association
Kiwanis International
Lions International
National Association for the Advancement of Colored People
National Association of Manufacturers
National Council of Farmer Cooperatives
National Education Association
National Farmers Union
National Foreign Trade Council
National Grange
National Lawyers Guild
National Peace Conference
Railway Labor Executives Association
United Nations Forum
United States Associates, International Chamber of Commerce
Veterans of Foreign Wars
Women's Action Committee for Victory and Lasting Peace

The text of Commander Stassen's address is printed herein.

THE UNITED NATIONS CHARTER

By HAROLD E. STASSEN

HAVING completed my assignment as a delegate, I will resume my naval duties within a few days.

But tonight, I speak to you as an individual citizen, and will frankly discuss the results of the San Francisco Conference and the future world policy of our United States.

History, of course, must be the real judge of the San Francisco Conference and of the United Nations Charter that was drafted there. But some things can and should be said now. It was a thrilling moment on the afternoon of June 23rd when the question was put to the steering committee as to the approval of the Charter as it then lay before them, the result of hours and days and weeks of discussion and dissension, of conference and of compromise, of translation and revision. It was late in the afternoon in room 223 of the Veterans' Building, where so many earnest discussions had taken place. The arguments over clauses had been carried right up to the hour immediately preceding this vote. Chairman Stettinius asked if there was any further discussion. There was no response. Then he said, "Those who approve of the Charter will raise their hands." The interpreter immediately re-stated the question in French, and down the long tables, the hands of the chairmen of delegations began to arise. The Secretaries quickly counted and turned to the Chairman and said, "With your vote, Sir, it's fifty votes, or unanimous!" Somehow, in the atmosphere of that room, as you looked from face to face, as you thought of the billion and a half of the world's peoples that were represented, of all colors, and of many races, tongues and creeds, as you realized that most of them had stood together through extremely difficult years of bitter fighting and suffering in the war, there was a definite inner feeling that the conference had been a real success; that this United Nations Charter might well become one of the truly great documents of all time.

As you read this Charter, and I sincerely commend its reading to every citizen of our country and to every boy and girl who looks forward to being a citizen, you will find that it sets forth in black and white, in five languages, in a curious blend of idealism and realism, the fervent hopes and aspirations of the two billion peoples of the world. The measure of its greatness may well be found, not so much in its immediate clauses, but in the fact that it has within it the room for growth and adjustment and change under future world transitions and experiences. It is drafted, not for a world standing still, but for a world that is dynamic and living. It provides the means for peaceful change with justice and without war. It has many open pathways for progress within its own broad terms.

It also provides for future revisionary conventions, which may be held after the millions of men who are now in the armed services have returned to their civilian occupations throughout the world and can take part in the deliberations of their countries.

The very opening words of the Charter are significant. They are "We, the peoples of the United Nations, determined to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war . . ." Contrast this with the opening words of the League of Nations Covenant: "The High Contracting Parties, in order to promote international cooperation," etc.

This Charter recognizes that if there is to be peace—a lasting peace—a just peace—then all the peoples of the world must have the hope of gradually improving their conditions while at peace. It recognizes indirectly that peace cannot endure where conditions of political, economic or social tyranny are widespread. Therefore it establishes for the first time in history a worldwide Economic and Social Council of eighteen members, elected by the General Assembly, and gives to them broad objectives and a wide field of activity, even though admittedly, very little direct power. Here will be an instrumentality for a continuing, constructive approach to the underlying causes of economic warfare and injustice which impede the progress and threaten the peace of men. If this Economic and Social Council has constructive and vigorous and far-sighted leadership—if its recommendations are sound and world public opinion is mobilized behind them—this section of the Charter will become one of the most important.

It can have a direct bearing on the jobs and the food and the shelter and the clothing and the literacy and the health and the happiness of the peoples of the United States of America, and of the world.

Another significant underlying principle will be found expressed most clearly in the chapters on the trusteeship of non-self-governing people. This is the principle that the whole world is entitled to know what is happening to the men and women and children in all parts of the world. The responsibilities of those more advanced states who are administering peoples who are not yet capable of governing themselves, are stated in very strong and direct terms, and a specific provision is included for reports to the world through the organization as to the general welfare of the people who live in these territories. In other words, just as we so correctly emphasized that all the people in the world must recognize that this is one world and must be concerned with what happens to other parts of the world, just so the world as a whole must be interested in and must be informed about what is happening to the various peoples of the world.

We recognize that this great principle, stated for the first time, will not be fully and suddenly realized, but this is a significant start. The United States should take the lead by sending to the new organization, within the limits of security considerations, full information as to the health and mortality and education and literacy and civil rights of all of the peoples that are now or hereafter come under its jurisdiction.

The United Nations Security Council is the body which will be looked to for the direct maintenance of peace and security. Its eleven members, which include the five major powers, China, France, Great Britain, Russia and the United States, and six others to be elected by the General Assembly, will have the primary responsibility for the maintenance of peace and security. It will have the right and the duty to step into serious disputes at an early stage. The measure of its success will be in accordance with the speed and decisiveness with which it intervenes early in the situations. When a dispute or situation arises, which threatens world peace, any seven of the eleven members may invite before the Security Council any of the parties to the dispute and any other interested states. Any seven of the members of the Security Council may place this dispute on their calendar for discussion with the interested parties, and for extensive hearings and consideration. Any seven members of the Security Council may decide to meet at the scene of a dispute. These actions are all under Articles 28 to 32, which are procedural articles of the Security Council, and no veto can be exercised. If after these discussions and consideration and hearings there is a desire to order an investigation to go more fully into the facts, the Security Council may order an investigation and in that decision, any member of the Security Council who is itself a party to the dispute cannot vote and must stand aside. The major powers who are not parties to the dispute, plus enough of the other members to make a total of at least seven, may order the investigation. Likewise, if it is desired that a recommendation of the terms of settlement should be made, any parties to the dispute who are members of the Security Council cannot vote and must stand aside. The other major powers, plus a sufficient number of the other members, to total at least seven, may recommend the terms of a settlement to the parties. At this point, the Security Council will, in effect, be passing judgment upon the merits of the dispute. It will be doing so without the vote of any party to the dispute, whether it be a major power or a minor power. Thus the full facts of the dispute can be brought before the world and the full moral force of the world and the full persuasive power of world public opinion will be brought to bear at an early stage.

If this is not enough, then the Security Council may begin to take measures to maintain or restore peace. These may include economic sanctions, or the actual application of military force. The members of the organization are to make agreements with the Security Council as to what forces they will hold available for these purposes. The decision to use force, either economic or military, requires the unanimous vote of the five major powers and at least two of the other six members of the Security Council. This, of course, means that if a major power acts arbitrarily and aggressively, contrary to the full force of world public opinion and contrary to its obligations under the Charter, then the Security Council itself will not be able to bring economic or military force to bear. This is in some ways a point at which the organization falls short, or a point of weakness. But in other ways, it is a realistic recognition of the situation that actually exists in the world. If such arbitrary and willful and illegal action is ever taken by a major power, then it will be a bad situation in the world—with—or without—a world organization. Furthermore, the Charter specifically provides in Article 51 that when an armed attack occurs, nothing in the Charter shall impair the right of individual or collective self-defense, so that the other nations of the world may then make their decisions as to the method by which they will restore international peace and justice.

This particular voting provision which was agreed upon at Yalta by President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill, and Marshal Stalin, and which is included in the final Charter, emphasizes the importance of joint agreement between the major powers of the world in the use of force if there is to be peace and security. It has been correctly called a right of veto on the part of each of the major powers. It can also correctly be called a rule of unanimity and it should be emphasized that it places a solemn duty upon each of the major powers to find the basis for a just agreement, consistent with the principles and obligations of the Charter.

The Charter's provisions for the General Assembly, which will be the world forum of the future, are complete and comprehensive, and establish this vital body with fifty seats, one for each member. It has the power to discuss and make recommendations on any international subject within the scope of the entire Charter.

The World Court section is likewise well drafted. It revises the old World Court statute and makes the new Court an integral part of the entire organization with 15 judges, not more than one from any one member.

The Trusteeship Council will have very significant responsibilities for dependent peoples. Its membership will be divided equally between members who are administering dependent peoples and others who are not administering dependent peoples. It should be noted that there is no veto in the General Assembly, or the Social and Economic Council, or the World Court, or the Trusteeship Council. These bodies all reach their decisions on either a majority or a two-thirds vote.

Taken as a whole, the Charter is a human document. It is a realistic document. It is not perfect. It has weaknesses. The voting procedure has two extremes varying from one equal vote for each member in the General Assembly, regardless of size or strength or population, to the veto requirement of the affirmative vote of each of the five major powers on nearly all important decisions in the Security Council. The jurisdiction of the very excellent World Court is still optional, and the states are not required to submit to it. The General Assembly and the Economic and Social Council can only recommend and they cannot directly legislate rules for world conduct. The organization will have no individual direct source of revenue or taxation and must rely on appropriations from its members. The Bill of Rights is not spelled out specifically in exact terms. The organization does not have an international police force of its own, but must rely upon the forces which the members are to agree to furnish. The mutual assistance treaties of Europe are not brought under the organization's jurisdiction to the desirable degree. The organization will not have direct jurisdiction over the airways of the future nor over the gateways to the seas.

But in each of these instances of what I term weaknesses, there is room for growth and development and correction of them at such time as their necessity is apparent provided that the American people, as expressed by two-thirds or more of the Senate, so decide, and provided that the governments of the other major powers, and of at least two-thirds of all of the members, join in the decision.

These weaknesses or shortcomings should not cause us to minimize the great measure of advance that has been made. It is not clear that of utmost importance is the fact that the organization, with these high goals and objectives to which all mankind subscribes, is actually being formed with such an overwhelming support. I do not believe that we should ever go beyond the point in our world policy to which at least two-thirds of our people are convinced we should go. This, of course, makes it all the more important that we talk frankly to the people about the world problems and about our viewpoints on them, so that they are in a position to form their opinions.

I should like to pay a special tribute tonight to those of the leadership of our country, including so many of the officers of the national organizations that are represented here tonight, and including many individuals in the Senate and the House and in public life, for the part they have played in the very thorough discussion of our participation in a world organization and in the formation of the plan for this Charter. This unusual discussion of high national policy, participated in so thoroughly by the American press and radio and movies, has brought us to the point where the country is united as never before on this issue.

Through the long difficult weeks of negotiation in San Francisco, the consulting groups that were represented there were very helpful and accomplished definite results. I also wish to express a very sincere word of appreciation of my fellow-members on the United States delegation, Mr. Hull, Senators Connally and Vandenberg, Representatives Bloom and Eaton and Dean Gildersleeve, and to the very able, determined Chairman, Mr. Stettinius. These members of the delegation frequently started discussion of a problem with each of them holding a different viewpoint. But by a constructive and thorough consideration, they reached in every instance unanimous decisions. In that process, they never yielded to anyone on any basic principle of this country. But they did seek the area of agreement with the other nations of the world. The result is the document that is now before the Senate. I have been very much encouraged by the reception that it has been accorded. It is very significant that not a single member of the United States Senate has thus far stated that he would vote against it. I hope that not only will the Charter obtain the necessary two-thirds ratification, but that in fact, without a single reservation, it will in the final vote receive the unanimous support of the United States Senate. This would have a tremendously important psychological effect throughout the world. The United States Senate was unanimous in its declaration of war. I hope it can be unanimous in its declaration for a just and lasting peace.

But when the Charter is ratified by the United States Senate, by the other four major powers, and by at least a majority of the other members, it is of terrific importance that the people of this country and of the world do not feel that they have thereby automatically insured future peace, or that they have ipso-facto solved the problems of tomorrow. Even at its greatest significance the Charter only establishes a framework, a machinery, a code. The success in obtaining the goal will depend upon the good faith and continued alert interest of the peoples of the world. No charter, and no machinery can overcome widespread bad faith or ill will or malice or complacency. That is why our adherence to the Charter is only one step in the whole field of our world policy.

We in the United States are now thoroughly and almost unanimously agreed that the walls of isolation are gone forever, that as that great American, Wendell Willkie, so vividly said, "This is One World," and that we should join in a United Nations organization dedicated to peace and progress.

But we have not yet thought through the manifold problems of the reorientation of our entire world policy that must result from these agreed facts. This thinking through and definite formulation of our future world policy is one of the most urgent tasks before our country. We must find in both broad and specific terms what our view is on the problems of world relationship. I do not claim to have the final answers, but to stimulate the discussion and search for the answer, I frankly present these as suggested broad principles of our world policy:

First—That we will follow through to complete, decisive victory over Japan, and to the re-establishment of peace and stability in the Pacific.

Second—That we not only ratify the United Nations Charter, but that we also give the new organization full support in all its activities and grant to our representative on the Security Council broad powers when he acts with the approval of the President.

Third—That we accept the responsibilities of participating in world leadership; that we develop an intelligent, informed, American viewpoint on major world problems, and that we mediate and work out solutions between contending viewpoints in the world.

Fourth—That we consider the future welfare and peace and happiness of the people of America as inseparably intertwined with the future welfare and peace and happiness of the men and women and children of the world.

Fifth—That we remain strong in our domestic economy, with sound liberal policies within an economic system of private capital and individual enterprise, and that we use this enormous productive capacity and the great reservoirs of capital and of credit and technical skill which that system gives to us, to contribute to the gradual advancement of the standards of living of the peoples of the world, not as recipients of charity, but as self-respecting men and women of dignity and of pride.

Sixth—That we enter into agreements for the use of our armed forces in support of the stability and security of the world through the United Nations organization, and to that same end, we remain strong on land and sea and in the air, and obtain complete authority for the necessary administration or use of essential bases and airfields throughout the Pacific, from Japan to the Indian Ocean, from the Coast of China to South America; and throughout the Atlantic, from North to South, from the Mediterranean to the Panama Canal.

Seventh—That those who are aggressors in this war shall be stripped of all means to make war and shall remain so stripped.

Eighth—That we believe that freedom of information through press and radio and school and forum, and freedom of worship, are vital factors in the peace and progress of the world; that we will seek constantly to increase the area of the world in which these freedoms are specifically recognized, and we will urge their ultimate specific inclusion as among the fundamental freedoms of the United Nations Charter.

Ninth—That we support the new World Court and at an early date accept its continuing obligatory jurisdiction over appropriate international legal questions of the United States of America.

Tenth—That we take the position that the world is entitled to know what is happening to dependent peoples; that we make appropriate reports of all peoples in our jurisdiction; that we expect similar reports to be made by others; and that we extend in a practical way a helping hand to these peoples in their struggle for progress.

Eleventh—That we are and propose to remain a democracy of free citizens, that we will explain our system to the world, but that we will leave it to the peoples of each nation to decide for themselves their own form of government so long as they do not trample on basic human rights or threaten the peace of the world or transgress upon their neighbors; that we will permit our own citizens to learn of any other form of government that they wish to study, but will not permit any other government to seek actively to undermine our own.

Twelfth—That through it all, we will constantly emphasize and recognize the basic dignity of man and his inalienable right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

The methods by which we seek to advance these principles of our world policy are almost as important as the principles themselves. It was my observation at San Francisco that the best results were obtained in our conferences with the other nations of the world when we were frank and friendly and firm. These should be the watchwords of our methods in our future dealings with the united nations of the world—be Frank and Friendly and Firm.

We should carefully analyze the economic, social and political basis on which we can expect to maintain continuing good relationships to each of the other United Nations and discuss these principles plainly with the other nations concerned, inviting at the same time their views of the basis for such long range friendship.

We should make it clear that friendship to each and every one of the United Nations does not mean that we will take a friendly attitude toward any of our own citizens who demonstrate a greater loyalty to some other country than they do to our own.

We should make it equally clear that those of our citizens who deliberately or carelessly repeat and publish half-truths and distortions which are calculated to injure our relations with any one of the United Nations are not serving the best interests of America.

The unfaithful sons and the common gossipmongers are both just as harmful to harmonious world relationships as they are harmful to harmonious family relationships.

As a democracy, our world policy should also be conducted with a maximum of direct information to the American people. In fact, our world policy can be successful only if the people are thoroughly informed and the reasons and difficulties are interpreted to them. This should be carried to the point that, except for military security, the American people should be promptly informed of every definite international proposal that is made by our government. Obviously, preliminary discussions and exploratory negotiations and studies will need to take place before a definite proposal can be made. But as soon as the stage is reached where a definite proposal of our government is to be made, it should be released to the press and the radio and given to the people of the country. This will mean frequently, of course, that our original proposal as announced will subsequently need to be changed or adjusted or modified to meet the other governments that are involved, or to meet new facts that were not taken into account in the original proposal. But I am confident that the American people will understand these things. They know that similar adjustments and compromises take place in everyday life and they will recognize the necessity of harmonious world relations.

There will, of course, be some disadvantages to this method of conducting our foreign affairs. At times it may handicap our negotiations. But in my judgment these disadvantages will not be as great as are the disadvantages of the other course of not informing the people. In fact, I would give a good portion of the credit for the successful conclusion of the San Francisco Conference to the fact that during the last half of the Conference, either through direct release or through their enterprising search for news, the press of America and of the world attained an unusual degree of accuracy and of promptness in reporting the course of deliberations and the result of conferences. I believe this also has a direct bearing upon the unusual support that is now present for the final result in the United States. This policy of keeping the people informed will, of course, mean an end to some of the old methods of devious diplomacy. It will mean that there cannot be international combinations of friends versus friends. There cannot be special blocs. There cannot be secret agreements. It means we must be open, strong, friendly, progressive and humble leaders among and toward the peoples of all the world.

Such a policy also emphasizes the responsibility of the press. If a free press is to be true to its own great privileges, it must exercise a high sense of responsibility and of self-discipline. It must use its own columns and its own headlines with careful thought as to their accuracy and their effect upon the welfare of the people of its country and of the world. Such self-discipline will assist in the spreading of free press throughout the world. Inaccurate scare headlines, false and twisted columns, are not the best salesmen of free press to other nations which are now considering their press policies. We can and do point out the overwhelming advantages, but self-discipline would make the salesmanship easier.

If we are to follow through on these broad principles of world policy, we will need to move promptly to formulate considered constructive viewpoints of this country upon the major problems of the world. This could best be done by the appointment by the President of bipartisan policy groups upon each of the major problems. These policy groups ought to include representation from the State Department, from both Republicans and Democrats in the Senate and in Congress, from the military and the veterans, and some of the other leaders of our citizenry, including representation from the economic groups of labor and management and agriculture. These special policy groups should begin promptly to study the respective problems assigned to them and seek to evolve a recommended viewpoint for the United States. Among the major world problems that urgently need this special extended and careful consideration are the Japanese surrender terms; the rebuilding of war-torn Europe; the Near East and the Arab Federation; the Dardanelles; world shipping after the war; post-war world aviation; China's future; India and her new Constitution; the Balkans; world trade with the British Empire; world trade with the Soviet Union; future development of the Pan-American Union; our economic relations with South America; human rights throughout the world; Africa's role in the world of tomorrow; and the long range administration of Germany.

These special policy groups would definitely not be administrative in their functioning. But they would be policy-recommending conferences and they would play a definite part in the development of informed public opinion and they would increase the prospect of intelligent governmental decisions when specific issues arose within the field of each of these major world-wide questions. If we fail to move forward upon these problems, we fail in the responsibility that is ours. We drift along. We leave vacuums that create confusion and distrust. This is a large order—yes—but not too large, and it is essential to the future well-being of the people of this country and of the world. Nothing less than this is worthy of this nation which opened its fields, its prairies and cities to the sons and daughters of all nations, and through the very rights and opportunities it gave them and the duties it placed upon them became the powerful leader that it is today.

I am so extremely desirous that we do proceed to study these problems because I am fundamentally convinced that if our policies are wise and if the American people understand what we are doing, we will be able to live at peace in a world at peace. With wisdom and foresight we will be able to live on friendly terms with all of the other United Nations of the world. This will particularly require an increased understanding between the major powers of the world. It will require an increased understanding between the peoples of each of them. Here again the press and the radio and the movies have a special responsibility. I hope that our newspapers and our radio and motion picture companies send increased numbers of correspondents and representatives throughout the world to learn of other peoples and their problems and their attitudes, and report back to the American people. I hope that other countries of the world will send representatives of their press and their radio and their movies to this country and to other parts of the world and report back to their people. I hope that there is increased travel of the peoples of all countries. I hope that there is an increased exchange of students between the institutions of higher learning from the various parts of the world. We must basically recognize that there is room in the world for all the peoples in it. There is need in the world for all the world's production, and new producers will mean new consumers.

I know that there will be cynics who will say that goals such as these discussed tonight cannot be realized. They will scoff at the very idea of the United States of America playing a role such as this in world affairs. But let us not forget that the real progress of the world has always come because some men have done what others said could not be done. We have won the European war and are on our way to victory over Japan because time and again men have accomplished the impossible. We must not forget that the cynics said that Stalingrad could not stand, but it did. The cynics said the Rhine could not be crossed, but it was. They said that with those small forces Guadalcanal could not be held, but it was. They said the RAF could not survive, but it did.

Back in 1787 when this country was being formed, an eminent spokesman, Josiah Tucker, said, "As to the future grandeur of America, and its being a rising empire under one head, whether republican or monarchical, it is one of the idlest and most visionary notions that ever was conceived even by writers of romance. The mutual antipathies and clashing interests of the Americans, their differences of governments, habitudes, and manners, indicate that they will have no centre of union and no common interest. They never can be united into one compact empire under any species of government whatever; a disunited people till the end of time, suspicious and distrustful of each other, they will be divided and sub-divided into little commonwealths or principalities, according to natural boundaries, by great bays of the sea, and by vast rivers, lakes, and ridges of mountains."

May the cynics of today who scoff at the United Nations be as wrong as this cynic of yesterday who scoffed at the United States.

And may these United States of America meet the challenge of a just peace as thoroughly and effectively as they met the challenge of war.

With all of our industrial and military strength today, peace loving nations do not fear us. Aggressors do. So must it ever be.

May this Nation, under God, with its precious freedom and liberty, recognize and strive mightily to fulfill its new responsibilities to mankind and its new opportunities for mankind.

FAO

FOOD AND AGRICULTURE ORGANIZATION OF THE UNITED NATIONS

CORNERSTONE FOR A HOUSE OF LIFE

(Prepared by The Atlanta Journal)

United Nations Charter

SAN FRANCISCO.—(AP)—The text of the final draft of the United Nations charter follows:

PREAMBLE

We the peoples of the United Nations, determined to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war, which twice in our lifetime has brought untold sorrow to mankind, and

To reaffirm faith in fundamental human rights, in the dignity and worth of the human person, in the equal rights of men and women and of nations large and small, and

To establish conditions under which justice and respect for law and the pledged word can be maintained, and

To promote social progress and better standards of life in larger freedom, and for these ends

To practice tolerance and live together in peace as good neighbors, and

To unite our strength to maintain international peace and security, by the acceptance of principles and the institution of methods to insure that armed force shall not be used, save in the common interest, and

To employ international means for the economic and social advancement of all peoples have resolved to combine our efforts to accomplish these aims.

Accordingly, our respective governments, through representatives assembled in the city of San Francisco, who have exhibited their full powers found to be in good and due form, have agreed to the present chapter of the United Nations and do hereby establish an international organization to be known as the United Nations.

CHAPTER I

Purposes and Principles

PURPOSES

ARTICLE 1

The purposes of the United Nations are:

1. To maintain international peace and security, and to that end: To take effective collective measures for the prevention and removal of threats to the peace and for the suppression of acts of aggression or other breaches of the peace, and to bring about by peaceful means, and in conformity with the principles of justice and international law, adjustment or settlement of international disputes or situations which might lead to a breach of the peace;

2. To develop friendly relations among nations based on respect for the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples, and to take other appropriate measures to strengthen universal peace;

3. To achieve international co-operation in solving international problems of an economic, social, cultural or humanitarian character, and in promoting and encouraging respect for human rights and for the fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language or religion; and

4. To be a center for harmonizing the actions of nations in the attainment of these common ends.

PRINCIPLES

ARTICLE 2

The organization and its members, in pursuit of the purposes stated in Article I, shall act in act in accordance with the following principles:

1. The organization is based on the principle of the sovereign equality of all its members.

2. All members, in order to ensure to all of them the rights and benefits resulting from membership, shall fulfill in good faith the obligations assumed by them in accordance with the present charter.

3. All members shall settle their international disputes by peaceful means in such a manner that international peace, and security, and justice, are not endangered.

4. All members shall refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any member or state, or in any other manner inconsistent with the purposes of the United Nations.

5. All members shall give the United Nations every assistance in any action it takes in accordance with the provisions of the present charter, and shall refrain from giving assistance to any state against which the United Nations is taking preventive or enforcement action.

6. The United Nations shall ensure that states not members act in accordance with these principles so far as may be necessary for the maintenance of international peace and security.

7. Nothing contained in the present charter shall authorize the United Nations to intervene in matters which are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of any state or shall require the members to submit such matters to settlement under the present charter; but this principle shall not prejudice the application of enforcement measures under Chapter VII.

CHAPTER II

limit the general scope of Article 10.

ARTICLE 13

1. The general assembly shall initiate studies and make recommendations for the purpose of:

(A.) Promoting international co-operation in the political field and encouraging the progressive development of international law and its codification;

(B.) Promoting international co-operation in the economic, social, cultural, educational and health fields and assisting in the realization of human rights and basic freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language or religion.

2. The further responsibilities, functions and powers of the general assembly with respect to matters mentioned in Paragraph B above are set forth in Chapters IX and X.

ARTICLE 14

Subject to the provisions of Article 12, the General Assembly may recommend measures for the peaceful adjustment of any situation, regardless of origin, which it deems likely to impair the general welfare or friendly relations among nations, including situations resulting from a violation of the provisions of the present charter setting forth the purposes and principles of the United Nations.

ARTICLE 15

1. The general assembly shall receive and consider annual and special reports from the Security Council; these reports shall include an account of the measures that the Security Council has adopted or applied to maintain international peace and security.

2. The general assembly shall receive and consider reports from the other bodies of the organization.

ARTICLE 16

The General Assembly shall perform such functions with respect to the International Trusteeship System as are assigned to it under Chapters XII and XIII, including the approval of the trusteeship agreements for areas not designated as strategic.

ARTICLE 17

1. The General Assembly shall consider and approve the budget of the organization.

2. The general assembly shall consider and approve any financial and budgetary arrangements with Specialized Agencies referred to in Article 57 and shall examine the administrative budgets of such Specialized Agencies with a view to making recommendations to the agencies concerned.

3. The expenses of the organization shall be borne by the members as apportioned by the General Assembly.

VOTING

ARTICLE 18

AMERICAN DELEGATION AT DAILY CONFERENCE—San Francisco.—Members of the United States delegation to the United Nations Security Conference meet for one of their daily conferences at their hotel headquarters. Left to right are Dean Virginia Gildersleeve, Representative Sol Bloom, Senator Tom Connally, Secretary of State Edward Stettinius Jr., who was chairman of the conference; Senator Arthur Vandenberg, Representative Charles Eaton and Commander Harold Stassen.—AP WIREPHOTO.

the election of the members of the Economic and Social Council, the election of the members of the United Nations which are to designate the members on the Trusteeship Council in accordance with the provisions of Article 86 (C), the admission of new members to the United Nations, the expulsion of members, the suspension of rights and privileges of members, questions relating to the operations of the trusteeship system, and budgetary questions. Decisions on other questions—including the determination of additional categories of questions to be decided by a two-thirds majority—shall be made by a majority of those present and voting.

ARTICLE 19

1. Each member of the United Nations shall have one vote in the General Assembly.

2. A member which is in arrears in the payments of its financial contributions to the organization shall have no vote if the amount of its arrears equals or exceeds the amount of the contributions due from it for the preceding two full years. The General Assembly may, nevertheless, permit such a member to vote if it is satisfied that the failure to pay is due to conditions beyond the control of the member.

PROCEDURE

ARTICLE 20

The General Assembly shall meet in regular annual sessions and in such special sessions as occasion may require. Special sessions shall be convoked by the secretary general at the request of the Security Council or of a majority of the members of the United Nations.

ARTICLE 21

consideration by the Security Council shall be invited to participate in the discussion relating to the dispute. The Security Council shall lay down such conditions as it may deem just for the participation of a state which is not a member of the United Nations.

CHAPTER VI

Pacific Settlement of Disputes

ARTICLE 33

1. The parties to any dispute, the continuance of which is likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security, shall, first of all, seek a solution by negotiation, inquiry, mediation, conciliation, arbitration, judicial settlement, resort to regional agencies or arrangements, or other peaceful means of their own choice.

2. The Security Council shall, when it deems necessary, call upon the parties to settle their dispute by such means.

ARTICLE 34

The Security Council may investigate any dispute, or any situation which might lead to international friction or give rise to a dispute, in order to determine whether its continuance is likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security.

ARTICLE 35

1. Any member of the United Nations may bring any dispute or any situation of the nature referred to in Article 24 to the attention of the Security Council, or of the General Assembly.

2. A state which is not a member of the United Nations may bring to the attention of the Security Council or of the General Assembly any dispute to which this article will be subject to the provisions of Articles 11 and 12.

ARTICLE 36

1. The Security Council may, at any stage of a dispute of the nature referred to in Article 33 or of a situation of like nature, recommend appropriate procedures or methods of adjustment.

2. The Security Council should take into consideration any procedures for the settlement of the dispute which have already been adopted by the parties.

3. In making recommendations under this article the Security Council should take into consideration that legal disputes should as a general rule be referred by the parties to the International Court of Justice in accordance with the provisions of the statute of the court.

ARTICLE 37

1. Should the parties to a dispute of the nature referred to in Article 33 fail to settle it by the means indicated in that article, they shall refer it to the Security Council.

2. If the Security Council deems that the continuance of the dispute is in fact likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security, it shall decide whether to take action under Article 36 or to recommend such terms of settlement as it may consider appropriate.

ARTICLE 38

sponsibilities requires the participation of that member in its work.

3. The Military Staff Committee shall be responsible under the Security Council for the strategic direction of any armed forces placed at the disposal of the Security Council. Questions relating to the command of such forces shall be dealt with subsequently.

4. The Military Staff Committee, with the authorization of the Security Council and after consultation with appropriate regional agencies, may establish regional subcommittees.

ARTICLE 48

1. The action required to carry out the decisions of the Security Council for the maintenance of international peace and security shall be taken by all the members of the United Nations or by some of them, as the Security Council may determine.

2. Such decisions shall be carried out by the members of the United Nations directly and through their action in the appropriate international agencies of which they are members.

ARTICLE 49

The members of the United Nations shall join in affording mutual assistance in carrying out the measures decided upon by the Security Council.

ARTICLE 50

If preventive or enforcement measures against any state are taken by the Security Council, any other state, whether a member of the United Nations or not, which finds itself confronted with special economic problems arising from the carrying out of those measures shall have the right to consult the Security Council with regard to a solution of those problems.

ARTICLE 51

Nothing in the present charter shall impair the inherent right of individual or collective self-defense if an armed attack occurs against a member of the organization, until the Security Council has taken the measures necessary to maintain international peace and security. Measures taken by members in the exercise of this right of self-defense shall be immediately reported to to the Security Council and shall not in any way affect the authority and responsibility of the Security Council under the present charter to take at any time such action as it may deem necesary in order to maintain or restore international peace and security.

CHAPTER VIII

Regional Arrangements

ARTICLE 52

1. Nothing in the present charter precludes the existence of regional arrangements or agencies for dealing with such matters relating to the maintenance of inter-where appropriate, utilize such arrangements or agencies for enforcement action under its authority. But no enforcement action shall be taken under regional arrangements or by regional agencies without the authorization of international law, adjustment or settlement of international disputes or situations which might lead to a breach of the peace;

2. To develop friendly relations among nations based on respect for the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples, and to take other appropriate measures to strengthen universal peace;

3. To achieve international co-operation in solving international problems of an economic, social, cultural or humanitarian character, and in promoting and encouraging respect for human rights and for the fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language or religion; and

4. To be a center for harmonizing the actions of nations in the attainment of these common ends.

PRINCIPLES

ARTICLE 2

The organization and its members, in pursuit of the purposes stated in Article I, shall act in act in accordance with the following principles:

1. The organization is based [illegible] the territorial integrity or political independence of any member or state, or in any other manner inconsistent with the purposes of the United Nations.

5. All members shall give the United Nations every assistance in any action it takes in accordance with the provisions of the present charter, and shall refrain from giving assistance to any state against which the United Nations is taking preventive or enforcement action.

6. The United Nations shall ensure that states not members act in accordance with these principles so far as may be necessary for the maintenance of international peace and security.

7. Nothing contained in the present charter shall authorize the United Nations to intervene in matters which are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of any state or shall require the members to submit such matters to settlement under the present charter; but this principle shall not prejudice the application of enforcement measures under Chapter VII.

CHAPTER II

Membership

ARTICLE 3

The original members of the United Nations shall be the states which, having participated in the United Nations Conference on international organization at San Francisco, or have previously signed the declaration of the United Nations of January 1, 1942, sign the present charter and ratify it in accordance with Article 110.

ARTICLE 4

1. Membership in the United Nations is open to all other peace-loving states which accept the obligations contained in the present charter and which, in the judgment of the organization, are able and willing to carry out these obligations.

2. The admission of any such state to membership in the United Nations will be effected by a decision of the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council.

ARTICLE 5

A member of the United Nations against which preventive or enforcement action has been taken by the Security Council may be suspended from the exercise of the rights and privileges of membership by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council. The exercise of these rights and privileges may be restored by the Security Council.

ARTICLE 6

A member of the United Nations which has persistently violated the principles contained in the present charter may be expelled from the organization by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council.

CHAPTER III

Organs

ARTICLE 7

1. There are established as the principal organs of the United Nations: A General Assembly, a Security Council, an Economic and Social Council, a Trusteeship Council, an International Court of Justice, and a Secretariat.

2. Such subsidiary organs as found necessary may be established in accordance with the present charter.

ARTICLE 8

The United Nations shall place no restrictions on the eligibility of men and women to participate in any capacity and under conditions of equality in the principal and subsidiary organs.

CHAPTER IV

The General Assembly

COMPOSITION

ARTICLE 9

The General Assembly shall consist of all the members of the United Nations. Each member shall have not more than five representatives in the General Assembly.

FUNCTIONS AND POWERS

ARTICLE 10

The General Assembly may discuss any questions or any matters within the scope of the present charter or relating to the powers and functions of any organs provided in the present charter, and, except as provided in Article 12 may make recommendations to the members of the United Nations or to the Security Council or both on any such questions or matters.

ARTICLE 11

1. While the Security Council is exercising in respect of any dispute or situation the functions assigned to it in the present charter, the General Assembly shall not make any recommendation with regard to that dispute or situation unless the Security Council so requests.

2. The secretary general, with the consent of the Security Council, shall notify the General Assembly at each session of any matters relative to the maintenance of international peace and security which are being dealt with by the Security Council and shall similarly notify the General Assembly, or the members of the United Nations if the General Assembly is not in session, immediately the Security Council ceases to deal with such matters.

ARTICLE 12

1. The General Assembly may consider the general principles of co-operation in the maintenance of international peace and security, including the principles governing disarmament and the regulations of armaments, and may make recommendations with regard to such principles to the members or to the security council or both.

2. The General Assembly may discuss any questions relating to the maintenance of international peace and security brought before it by any members of the United Nations, or by the Security Council, or by a non-member state in accordance with the provisions of Article 35, Paragraph 2, and, except as provided in Article 12, may make recommendations with regard to any such questions to the state or states concerned or to the Security Council or both. A question on which action is necessary shall be referred to the Security Council by the General Assembly either before or after discussion.

3. The General Assembly may call the attention of the Security Council to situations which are likely to endanger international peace and security.

4. The powers of the General Assembly set out in Paragraphs 1, 2 and 3 of this Article shall not [illegible] receive and consider reports from the other bodies of the organization.

ARTICLE 16

The General Assembly shall perform such functions with respect to the International Trusteeship System as are assigned to it under Chapters XII and XIII, including the approval of the trusteeship agreements for areas not designated as strategic.

ARTICLE 17

1. The General Assembly shall consider and approve the budget of the organization.

2. The general assembly shall consider and approve any financial and budgetary arrangements with Specialized Agencies referred to in Article 57 and shall examine the administrative budgets of such Specialized Agencies with a view to making recommendations to the agencies concerned.

3. The expenses of the organization shall be borne by the members as apportioned by the General Assembly.

VOTING

ARTICLE 18

Decisions of the General Assembly on important questions shall be made by a two thirds majority of those present and voting. These questions shall include: Recommendations with respect to the maintenance of international peace and security, the election of the nonpermanent members of the Security Council, [illegible] cided by a two-thirds majority—shall be made by a majority of those present and voting.

ARTICLE 19

1. Each member of the United Nations shall have one vote in the General Assembly.

2. A member which is in arrears in the payments of its financial contributions to the organization shall have no vote if the amount of its arrears equals or exceeds the amount of the contributions due from it for the preceding two full years. The General Assembly may, nevertheless, permit such a member to vote if it is satisfied that the failure to pay is due to conditions beyond the control of the member.

PROCEDURE

ARTICLE 20

The General Assembly shall meet in regular annual sessions and in such special sessions as occasion may require. Special sessions shall be convoked by the secretary general at the request of the Security Council or of a majority of the members of the United Nations.

ARTICLE 21

The General Assembly shall adopt its own rules of procedure. It shall elect its president for each session.

ARTICLE 22

The General Assembly may establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary for the performance of its functions.

CHAPTER V

The Security Council

COMPOSITION

ARTICLE 23

1. The Security Council shall consist of eleven members of the United Nations. The United States of America, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the Republic of China, and France shall be permanent members of the Security Council. The General Assembly shall elect six other members of the United Nations to be non-permanent members of the Security Council, due regard being specially paid, in the first instance to the contribution of members of the United Nations to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the organization, and also to equitable geographical distribution.

2. The non-permanent members of the Security Council shall be elected for a term of two years. In the first election of the non-permanent members, however, three shall be chosen for a term of one year. A retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election.

3. Each member of the Security Council shall have one representative.

PRIMARY RESPONSIBILITY

ARTICLE 24

1. In order to ensure prompt and effective action by the United Nations, its members confer on the Security Council primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security, and agree that in carrying out its duties under this responsibility the Security Council acts on their behalf.

2. In discharging these duties the Security Council shall act in accordance with the purposes and principles of the United Nations. The specific powers granted to the Security Council for the discharge of these duties are laid down in Chapters VI, VII, VIII and XII.

3. The Security Council shall submit annual and, when necessary, special reports to the General Assembly for its consideration.

ARTICLE 25

The members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the provisions of the present charter.

ARTICLE 26

In order to promote the establishment and maintenance of international peace and security with the least diversion for armaments of the world's human and economic resources, the Security Council shall be responsible for formulating, with the assistance of the Military Staff Committee, plans to be submitted to the members of the United Nations for the establishment of a system for the regulation of armaments.

ARTICLE 27

Each member of the Security Council shall have one vote.

Decisions of the Security Council on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of seven members.

Decisions of the Security Council on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of seven members including the concurring votes of the permanent members; provided that, in decisions under Chapter VI and under Paragraph 3 of Article 52, a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting.

PRECEDURE

ARTICLE 28

1. The Security Council shall be so organized as to be able to function continuously. Each member of the Security Council shall for this purpose be represented at all times at the seat of the organization.

2. The Security Council shall hold periodic meetings at which each of its members may, if it so desires, be represented by a member of the government or by some other specially designated representative.

3. The Security Council may hold meetings at such places other than the seat of the organization as in its judgment may best facilitate its work.

ARTICLE 29

The Security Council may establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary for the performance of its functions.

ARTICLE 30

The Security Council shall adopt its own rules of procedure, including the method of selecting its president.

ARTICLE 31

Any member of the United Nations may participate in the discussion of any question brought before the Security Council whenever the latter considers that the interests of that member are specially affected.

ARTICLE 32

Any member of the United Nations which is not a member of the Security Council or any state not a member of the United Nations, if it is a party to a dispute under [illegible] to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security, shall, first of all, seek a solution by negotiation, inquiry, mediation, conciliation, arbitration, judicial settlement, resort to regional agencies or arrangements, or other peaceful means of their own choice.

2. The Security Council shall, when it deems necessary, call upon the parties to settle their dispute by such means.

ARTICLE 34

The Security Council may investigate any dispute, or any situation which might lead to international friction or give rise to a dispute, in order to determine whether its continuance is likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security.

ARTICLE 35

1. Any member of the United Nations may bring any dispute or any situation of the nature referred to in Article 24 to the attention of the Security Council, or of the General Assembly.

2. A state which is not a member of the United Nations may bring to the attention of the Security Council or of the General Assembly any dispute to which it is a party, if it accepts in advance, for the purposes of the dispute, the obligations of pacific settlement provided in the present charter.

3. The proceedings of the General Assembly in respect of matters brought to its attention under [illegible] mend appropriate procedures or methods of adjustment.

2. The Security Council should take into consideration any procedures for the settlement of the dispute which have already been adopted by the parties.

3. In making recommendations under this article the Security Council should take into consideration that legal disputes should as a general rule be referred by the parties to the International Court of Justice in accordance with the provisions of the statute of the court.

ARTICLE 37

1. Should the parties to a dispute of the nature referred to in Article 33 fail to settle it by the means indicated in that article, they shall refer it to the Security Council.

2. If the Security Council deems that the continuance of the dispute is in fact likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security, it shall decide whether to take action under Article 36 or to recommend such terms of settlement as it may consider appropriate.

ARTICLE 38

Without prejudice to the provisions of Articles 33-37 of this chapter, the Security Council may, if all the parties to any dispute so request, make recommendations to the parties with a view to a peaceful settlement of the dispute.

CHAPTER VII

Action With Respect to Threats to the Peace, Breaches of the Peace and Acts of Aggression

ARTICLE 39

The Security Council shall determine the existence of any threat to the peace, breach of the peace, or act of aggression and shall make recommendations, or decide what measures shall be taken in accordance with the provisions of Articles 41 and 42, to maintain or restore international peace and security.

ARTICLE 40

In order to prevent an aggravation of the situation, the Security Council may, before making the recommendations or deciding upon the measures provided for in Article 41, call upon the parties concerned to comply with such provisional measures as it deems necessary or desirable. Such provisional measures shall be without prejudice to the rights, claims or position of the parties concerned. The Security Council shall duly take account of failure to comply with such provisional measures.

ARTICLE 41

The Security Council may decide what measures not involving the use of armed force are to be employed to give effect to its decisions, and it may call upon members of the United Nations to apply such measures. These may include complete or partial interruptions of economic relations and of rail, sea, air, postal, telegraphic, radio, and other means of communication, and the severance of diplomatic relations.

ARTICLE 42

Should the Security Council consider that measures provided for in Article 41 would be inadequate or have proved to be inadequate, it may take such action by air, sea or land forces as may be necessary to maintain or restore international peace and security. Such action may include demonstrations, blockade and other operations by air, sea or land forces of members of the United Nations.

ARTICLE 43

1. All members of the United Nations, in order to contribute to the maintenance of international peace and security, undertake to make available to the Security Council, on its call and in accordance with a special agreement or agreements, armed forces, assistance, and facilities, including rights of passage, necessary for the purpose of maintaining international peace and security.

2. Such agreement or agreements shall govern the numbers and types of forces, their degree of readiness and general location, and the nature of the facilities and assistance to be provided.

3. The agreement or agreements shall be negotiated as soon as possible on the initiative of the Security Council. They shall be concluded between the Security Council and member states or between the Security Council and groups of member states and shall be subject to ratification by the signatory states in accordance with their constitutional processes.

ARTICLE 44

When the Security Council has decided to use force it shall, before calling upon a member not represented on it to provide armed forces in fulfillment of the oblizations assumed under Article 43, invite that member, if the member so desires, to participate in the decisions of the Security Council concerning the employment of contigents of that member's armed forces.

ARTICLE 45

In order to enable the United Nations to take urgent military measures, members shall hold immediately available national air force contingents for combined international enforcement action. The strength and degree of readiness of these contingents and plans for their combined action shall be determined, within the limits laid down in the special agreement or agreements referred to in Article 43, by the Security Council with the assistance of the Military Staff Committee.

ARTICLE 46

Plans for the application of armed force shall be made by the Security Council with the assistance of the Military Staff Committee.

ARTICLE 47

1. There shall be established a Military Staff Committee to advise and assist the Security Council on all questions relating to the Security Council's military requirements for the mainitenance of international peace and security, the employment and command of forces placed at its disposal, the regulation of armaments, and possible disarmament.

2. The Military Staff Committees shall consist of the chiefs of staff of the permanent members of the Security Council or their representatives. Any member of the United Nations not permanently represented on the committee shall be invited by the committee to be associated with it when the efficient discharge of the committee's re- [illegible] sultation with appropriate regional agencies, may establish regional subcommittees.

ARTICLE 48

1. The action required to carry out the decisions of the Security Council for the maintenance of international peace and security shall be taken by all the members of the United Nations or by some of them, as the Security Council may determine.

2. Such decisions shall be carried out by the members of the United Nations directly and through their action in the appropriate international agencies of which they are members.

ARTICLE 49

The members of the United Nations shall join in affording mutual assistance in carrying out the [illegible] lems.

ARTICLE 51

Nothing in the present charter shall impair the inherent right of individual or collective self-defense if an armed attack occurs against a member of the organization, until the Security Council has taken the measures necessary to maintain international peace and security. Measures taken by members in the exercise of this right of self-defense shall be immediately reported to to the Security Council and shall not in any way affect the authority and responsibility of the Security Council under the present charter to take at any time such action as it may deem necesary in order to maintain or restore international peace and security.

CHAPTER VIII

Regional Arrangements

ARTICLE 52

1. Nothing in the present charter precludes the existence of regional arrangements or agencies for dealing with such matters relating to the maintenance of international peace and security as an appropriate for regional action, provided that such arrangements or agencies and their activities are consistent with the purposes and principles of the organization.

2. The members of the United Nations entering into such arrangements or constituting such agencies shall make every effort to achieve peaceful settlement of local disputes through such regional arrangements or by such regional agencies before referring them to the Security Council.

3. The Security Council should encourage the development of peaceful settlement of local disputes through such regional arrangements or by such regional agencies either on the initiative of the states concerned or by reference from the Security Council.

4. This article in no way impairs the application of Articles 33 and 34.

ARTICLE 53

1. The Security Council shall, where appropriate, utilize such arrangements or agencies for enforcement action under its authority. But no enforcement action shall be taken under regional arrangements or by regional agencies without the authorization of the Security Council, with the exception of measures against any enemy state, as described below, provided for pursuant to Article 107, or in regional arrangements directed against renewal of aggressive policy on the part of any such state, until such time as the organization may, on request of the governments concerned, be charged with the responsibility for preventing further aggression by such a state.

2. The term "enemy state" as used in paragraph 1 of this article applies to any state which during the Second World War has been an enemy of any signatory of the present charter.

ARTICLE 54

The Security Council shall at all times be kept fully informed of activities undertaken or in contemplation under regional arrangements or by regional agencies for the maintenance of international peace and security.

CHAPTER IX

International Economic and Social Co-operation

ARTICLE 55

With a view to the creation of conditions of stability and well-being which are necessary for peaceful and friendly relations among nations based on respect for the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples, the United Nations shall promote:

(A) Higher standards of living, full employment, and conditions of economic and social progress and development;

(B) Solutions of international economic, social, health and related problems; and international cultural and educational co-operation and

(C) Universal respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language or religion.

ARTICLE 56

All members pledge themselves to take joint and separate action in co-operation with the organization for the achievement of the purposes set forth in Article 55.

ARTICLE 57

1. The various Specialized Agencies established by intergovernmental agreement, and having wide international responsibilities as defined in their basic instruments in economic, social, cultural, educational, health and related fields, shall be brought into relationship with the United Nations in accordance with the provisions of Article 63.

2. Specialized Agencies thus brought into relatronship with the organization are hereinafter referred to as "the specialized agencies."

ARTICLE 58

The organization shall make recommendations for the co-ordination of the policies and activities of the Specialized Agencies.

ARTICLE 59

The organization shall, where appropriate, initiate negotiations among the states concerned for the creation of any new Specialized Agency required for the accomplishment of the purposes set forth in Article 55.

ARTICLE 60

Responsibility for the discharge of the organization's functions set forth in this chapter shall be vested in the General Assembly and, under the authority of the General Assembly, in the economic and social council, which shall have for this purpose the powers set forth in Chapter X.

CHAPTER X

Economic and Social Council

COMPOSITION

ARTICLE 61

1. The Economic and Social Council shall consist of 18 members of the United Nations elected by the General Assembly. Each member of the Economic and Social Council shall have one representative.

2. Subject to the provisions of paragraph 3, six members of the Economic and Social Council shall be elected each year for a term of three years. A retiring member shall be eligible for immediate re-eltction.

3. At the first election, 18 members of the Economic and Social Council shall be chosen. The term of office of six members so chosen shall expire at the end of one year, and of si xother members at the end of two years, in accordance with arrangements made by the General Assembly.

Turn to Next Page

UNITED NATIONS CHARTER

Continued from Preceding Page

FUNCTIONS AND POWERS

ARTICLE 62

1. The Economic and Social Council may make or initiate studies and reports with respect to international economic, social, cultural, educational, health, and related matters and may make recommendations with respect to any such matters to the General Assembly, to the members of the United Nations, and to the specialized agencies concerned.

2. It may make recommendations for the purpose of promoting respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms.

3. It may prepare draft conventions for submission to the General Assembly, with respect to matters falling within its competence.

4. It may call, in accordance with the rules prescribed by the United Nations, international conferences on matters falling within its competence.

ARTICLE 63

1. The Economic and Social Council may enter into an agreement, approved by the General Assembly, with any of the agencies referred to in Article 57, defining the terms on which the agency concerned shall be brought into relationship with the United Nations.

2. It may co-ordinate the activities of the specialized agencies through consultation with and recommendations to such agencies and through recommendations to the General Assembly, and to the members of the United Nations.

ARTICLE 64

1. The Economic and Social Council is authorized to take appropriate steps to obtain regular reports from the Specialized Agencies. It is authorized to make arrangements with the members of the United Nations and with the Specialized Agencies to obtain reports on the steps taken to give effect to its own recommendations and falling within its competence which are made by the General Assembly.

2. It may communicate its observancce on these reports to the General Assembly.

ARTICLE 65

The Economic and Social Council may furnish information to the Security Council and shall assist the Security Council upon its request.

ARTICLE 66

1. The Economic and Social Council shall perform such functions as falls within its competence in connection with the carrying out of the recommendations of the General Assembly.

2. It may, with the approval of the General Assembly, perform services at the request of the members of the United Nations and at the request of the Specialized Agencies.

3. It may perform such other functions as are specified elsewhere in the present charter and such functions as may be assigned to it by the General Assembly.

VOTING

ARTICLE 67

1. Each member of the Economic and Social Council shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the Economic and Social Council shall be taken by a majority of the members present and voting.

PROCEDURE

ARTICLE 68

The Economic and Social Council shall set up commissions in economic and social fields and for the promotion of human rights, and such other commissions as may be required for the performance of its functions.

ARTICLE 69

The Economic and Social Council shall invite any member of the United Nations to participate, without vote, in its deliberations on any matter of particular concern to that member.

ARTICLE 70

The Economic and Social Council may make arrangements for representatives of the specialized agencies to participate, without vote, in its deliberations and in those of the commissions established by it, and for its representatives to participate in the deliberations of the specialized agencies.

ARTICLE 71

The Economic and Social Council may make suitable arrangements for consultation with non-governmental organizations which are concerned with matters within its competence. Such arrangements may be made with international organizations and, where appropriate, with national organizations after consultation with the member concerned.

ARTICLE 72

1. The Economic and Social Council shall adopt its own rules of procedure, including the method of selecting its president.

2. The Economic and Social Council shall meet as required in accordance with its rules, which shall include provision for the convening of meetings on request of a majority of its members.

CHAPTER XI

Policy Regarding Non-Self-Governing Territories

(C) To further international peace and security;

(D) To promote constructive measures of development, to encourage research, and to co-oper-

WHERE UNITED NATIONS FLEW THEIR FLAGS—San Francisco, As the United Nations Security Conference came to a close the flags of the nations meeting there flew in the court between the opera house (right) and the Veterans Building, scene of sessions.

mandated and other territories under the trusteeship system as may be concluded in accordance with the provisions of this chapter.

ARTICLE 81

The trusteeship agreement shall in each case include the terms under which the trust territory will be administered and designate the authority which shall excercise the administration of the trust territroy. Such authority, hereafter called the Administering Authority, may be one or more states or the United Nations itself.

ARTICLE 82

There may be designated, in any trusteeship agreement, a strategic area or areas which may include part or all of the trust territory to which the agreement applies, without prejudice to any special agreement or agreements made under Article 43.

ARTICLE 83

1. All functions of the United Nations relating to strategic areas, including the approval of the terms of the trusteeship agreements and of their alteration or out prejudice to security considerations, avail itself of the assistance of the Trusteeship Council to perform those functions of the United Nations under the Trusteeship System relating to political, economic, social and educational matters in the strategic areas.

ARTICLE 84

It shall be the duty of the Administering Authority to ensure that the trust territory shall play its part in the maintenance of international peace and security. To this end the Administering Authority may make use of volunteer forces, facilities, and assistance from the trust territory in carrying out the obligations untertaken by the Administering Authority, as well as for local defense and the maintenance of law and order within the trust territory.

ARTICLE 85

1. The functions of the United Nations with regard to trusteeship agreements for all areas not designated as strategic, including the approval of the terms of the trusteeship agreements and of or which may be concluded in the future.

ARTICLE 96

1. The General Assembly or the Security Council may request the International Court of Justice to give an advisory opinion on any legal question.

2. Other organs of the United Nations and Specialized Agencies brought into relationship with it, which may at any time be so authorized by the General Assembly, may also request advisory opinions of the court on legal questions arising within the scope of their activities.

CHAPTER XV

The Secretariat

ARTICLE 97

There shall be a Secretariat comprising a secretary-general and such staff as the organization may require. The secretary-general shall be appointed by the General Assembly on the recommendation of the Security Council. He shall be the chief administrative officer of the organization.

ARTICLE 98

The secretary-general shall act in that capacity in all meetings of the General Assembly, of the Security Council, of the Economic and Social Council and of the the staffs shall be responsible only to the organization. They shall not seek or receive instructions from any government or from any other authority external to the organization. They shall refrain from any action which might reflect on their position as international officials.

2. Each member of the organization undertakes to respect the exclusively international character of the responsibilities of the secretary-general and the staff and not to seek to influence them in the discharge of their responsibilities.

ARTICLE 101

1. The staff shall be appointed by the secretary-general under been held before the tenth annual session of the General Assembly following the entry into force of the present charter, the proposal to call such a conference shall be placed on the agenda of that session of the General Assembly, and the conference shall be held if so decided by a majority vote of the members of the General Assembly and by a vote of any seven members of the Security Council.

CHAPTER XIX

Ratification and Signature

ARTICLE 110

1. The present charter shall be ratified by the signatory states in accordance with their respective constitutional processes.

2. Ratification shall be deposited with the Government of the United States of America, which shall notify all the signatory states of each deposit as well as the secretary general of the organization when he has been elected.

3. The present charter shall come into force upon the deposit and to the members of the United Nations.

WHERE UNITED NATIONS FLEW THEIR FLAGS—San Francisco, As the United Nations Security Conference came to a close the flags of the nations meeting there flew in the court between the opera house (right) and the Veterans Building, scene of sessions.

ARTICLE 64

1. The Economic and Social Council is authorized to take appropriate steps to obtain regular reports from the Specialized Agencies. It is authorized to make arrangements with the members of the United Nations and with the Specialized Agencies to obtain reports on the steps taken to give effect to its own recommendations and falling within its competence which are made by the General Assembly.

2. It may communicate its observancce on these reports to the General Assembly.

ARTICLE 65

The Economic and Social Council may furnish information to the Security Council and shall assist the Security Council upon its request.

ARTICLE 66

1. The Economic and Social Council shall perform such functions, in its deliberations and in those of the commissions established by it, and for its representatives to participate in the deliberations of the specialized agencies.

ARTICLE 71

The Economic and Social Council may make suitable arrangements for consultation with non-governmental organizations which are concerned with matters within its competence. Such arrangements may be made with international organizations and, where appropriate, with national organizations after consultation with the member concerned.

ARTICLE 72

1. The Economic and Social Council shall adopt its own rules of procedure, including the method of selecting its president.

2. The Economic and Social Council shall meet as required in accordance with its rules, which shall include provision for the convening of meetings on request of a majority of its members.

CHAPTER XI

Policy Regarding Non-Self-Governing Territories

ARTICLE 73

Members of the United Nations which have or assume responsibilities for the administration of territories whose peoples have not yet attained a full measure of self-government recognize the principle that the interests of the inhabitants of these territories are paramount, and accept as a sacred trust the obligation to promote to the utmost, within the system of international peace and security established by the present charter, the well-being of the inhabitants of these territories, and

(A) To ensure, with due respect for the culture of the peoples concerned, their political, economic, social and educational advancement, their just treatment and their protection against abuses;

(B) To develop self-government, to take due account of the political aspirations of the peoples, and to assist them in the progressive development of their free political institutions, according to the particular circumstances of each territory and its peoples and their varying stages of advancement;

(C) To further international peace and security;

(D) To promote constructive measures of development, to encourage research, and to co-operate with one another and with appropriate international bodies with a view to the practical achievement of the social, economic and scientific purposes set forth in this paragraph; and

(E) To transmit regularly to the secretary-general for information purposes, subject to such limitation as security and constitutional considerations may require, statistical and other information of a technical nature relating to economic, social and educational conditions in the territories for which they are respectively responsible other than those territories to which Chapters XII and XIII of the present charter apply.

ARTICLE 74

Members of the United Nations agree that their policy in respect of the territories, to which this chapter applies, no less than in respect of their metropolitan areas, must be based on the general principle of good-neighborliness, due account being taken of the interests and well-being of the rest of the world, in social, economic and commercial matters.

CHAPTER XII

International Trusteeship System

ARTICLE 75

The United Nations shall establish under its authority an International Trusteeship System for the administration and supervision of such territories as may be placed thereunder by subsequent individual agreements. These territories are hereafter referred to as trust territories.

ARTICLE 76

The basic objectives of the Trusteeship System in acordance with the purposes of the United Nations laid down in Article I of the present charter, shall be:

(A) To further international peace and security;

(B) To promote the political, economic, social and educational advancement of the inhabitants of the trust territories, and their progressive development toward self-government or independence as may be appropriate to the particular circumstances of each territory and its peoples and the freely-expressed wishes of the peoples concerned, and as may be provided by the terms of each trusteeship agreement;

(C) To encourage respect for human rights and for fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language or religion, and to encourage recognition of the interdependence of the peoples of the world; and

(D) To ensure equal treatment in social, economic and commercial matters for all members of the United Nations and their nationals, and also equal treatment for the latter in the administration of justice, without prejudice to the attainment of the foregoing objectives, and subject to the provisions of Article 80.

ARTICLE 77

1. The trusteeship system shall apply to such territories in the following categories as may be placed thereunder by means of trusteeship agreements: (A) Territories now held under mandate; (B) territories which may be detached from enemy states as a result of the Second World War, and (C) territories voluntarily placed under the system by states responsible for their administration.

2. It will be a matter for subsequent agreement which territories in the foregoing categories will be brought under the trusteeship system and upon what terms.

ARTICLE 78

The trusteeship system shall not apply to territories which have become members of the United Nations, relationship among which should be based on respect for the principle of sovereign equality.

ARTICLE 79

The terms of trusteeship for each territory to be placed under the trusteeship system, including any alteration or amendment, shall be agreed upon by the states directly concerned including the mandatory power in the case of territories held under mandate by a member of the United Nations, and shall be approved as provided for in Articles 83 and 85.

ARTICLE 80

1. Except as may be agreed upon in individual trusteeships agreements, made in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, placing each territory under the trusteeship system, and until such agreements have been concluded, nothing in this chapter shall be construed in or of itself to alter in any manner the rights whatsoever of any states or any peoples or the terms of existing international instruments to which members may respectively be parties.

2. Paragraph 1 of this article shall not be interpreted as giving grounds for delay or postponement of the negotiation and conclusion of such agreements for placing mandated and other territories under the trusteeship system as may be concluded in accordance with the provisions of this chapter.

ARTICLE 81

The trusteeship agreement shall in each case include the terms under which the trust territory will be administered and designate the authority which shall excercise the administration of the trust territroy. Such authority, hereafter called the Administering Authority, may be one or more states or the United Nations itself.

ARTICLE 82

There may be designated, in any trusteeship agreement, a strategic area or areas which may include part or all of the trust territory to which the agreement applies, without prejudice to any special agreement or agreements made under Article 43.

ARTICLE 83

1. All functions of the United Nations relating to strategic areas, including the approval of the terms of the trusteeship agreements and of their alteration or amendment, shall be exercised by the Security Council.

2. The basic objectives set forth in Article 76 shall be applicable to the people of each strategic area.

3. The Security Council shall, subject to the provisions of the trusteeship agreements and without prejudice to security considerations, avail itself of the assistance of the Trusteeship Council to perform those functions of the United Nations under the Trusteeship System relating to political, economic, social and educational matters in the strategic areas.

ARTICLE 84

It shall be the duty of the Administering Authority to ensure that the trust territory shall play its part in the maintenance of international peace and security. To this end the Administering Authority may make use of volunteer forces, facilities, and assistance from the trust territory in carrying out the obligations untertaken by the Administering Authority, as well as for local defense and the maintenance of law and order within the trust territory.

ARTICLE 85

1. The functions of the United Nations with regard to trusteeship agreements for all areas not designated as strategic, including the approval of the terms of the trusteeship agreements and of their alteration or amendment, shall be exercised by the General Assembly.

2. The Trusteeship Council, under the authority of the General Assembly, shall assist the General Assembly in carrying out these functions.

CHAPTER XIII

The Trusteeship Council

COMPOSITION

ARTICLE 86

The Trusteeship Council shall consist of specially qualified representatives designated as follows: (a) One each by the members of the United Nations administering trust territories; (b) one each by such of the members mentioned by name in Article 23 as are not administering trust territories; and (c) one each by as many other members of the United Nations elected for three-year terms by the General Assembly as may be necessary to ensure that the total number of representatives is equally divided between administering and non-administering members of the United Nations.

FUNCTIONS AND POWERS

ARTICLE 87

The Trusteeship Council, in carrying out its functions as authorized by the General Assembly, may: (a) Consider reports submitted by the Administering Authority; (b) accept petitions and examine them in consultation with the Administering Authority; (c) provide for periodic visits to the respective trust territories at times agreed upon with the administering authority; and (d) take these and other actions in conformity with the trusteeship agreements.

ARTICLE 88

The Trusteeship Council shall formulate a questionnaire on the political, economic, social, and educational advancement of the inhabitants of each trust territory, and the Administering Authority for each trust territory within the competence of the General Assembly shall make an annual report to the General Assembly upon the basis of such questionnaire.

VOTING

ARTICLE 89

1. Each member of the Trusteeship Council shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the Trusteeship Council shall be taken by a majority of the members present and voting.

PROCEDURE

ARTICLE 90

1. The Trusteeship Council shall adopt its own rules of procedure, including the method of selecting its president.

2. The Trusteeship Council shall meet as required in accordance with its rules, which shall include provisions for the convening of meetings on the request of a majority of its members.

ARTICLE 91

The Trusteeship Council shall, when appropriate, avail itself of the assistance of the Economic and Social Council, and of the specialized agencies in regard to matters with which they are respectively concerned.

CHAPTER XIV

The International Court of Justice

ARTICLE 92

The International Court of Justice shall be the principal judicial organ of the United Nations.

Made in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, placing each territory under the trusteeship system, and until such agreements have been concluded, nothing in this chapter shall be construed in or of itself to alter in any manner the rights whatsoever of any states or any peoples or the terms of existing international instruments to which members may respectively be parties.

2. Paragraph 1 of this article shall not be interpreted as giving grounds for delay or postponement of the negotiation and conclusion of such agreements for placing mandated and other territories under the trusteeship system as may be concluded in accordance with the provisions of this chapter.

ARTICLE 93

1. All members of the United Nations are ipso facto parties to the statute of the International Court of Justice.

2. A state which is not a member of the United Nations may become party to the statute of the International Court of Justice on conditions to be determined in each case by the General Assembly upon recommendation of the Security Council.

ARTICLE 94

1. Each member of the United Nations undertakes to comply with the decision of the International Court of Justice in any case to which it is a party.

2. If any party to a case fails to perform the obligations incumbent upon it under a judgment rendered by the court, the other party may have recourse to the Security Council, which may, if it deems it necessary, make recommendations or decide upon measures to be taken to give effect to the judgment.

ARTICLE 95

Nothing in the present charter shall prevent members of the United Nations from entrusting the solution of their differences to other tribunals by virture of agreements already in excistence or which may be concluded in the future.

ARTICLE 96

1. The General Assembly or the Security Council may request the International Court of Justice to give an advisory opinion on any legal question.

2. Other organs of the United Nations and Specialized Agencies brought into relationship with it, which may at any time be so authorized by the General Assembly, may also request advisory opinions of the court on legal questions arising within the scope of their activities.

CHAPTER XV

The Secretariat

ARTICLE 97

There shall be a Secretariat comprising a secretary-general and such staff as the organization may require. The secretary-general shall be appointed by the General Assembly on the recommendation of the Security Council. He shall be the chief administrative officer of the organization.

ARTICLE 98

The secretary-general shall act in that capacity in all meetings of the General Assembly, of the Security Council, of the Economic and Social Council and of the Trusteeship Council, and shall perform such other functions as are entrusted to him by these organs. The secretary-general shall make an annual report to the General Assembly on the work of the organization.

ARTICLE 99

The secretary-general may bring to the attention of the Security Council any matter which in his opinion might threaten international peace and security.

ARTICLE 100

1. In the performance of their duties the secretary-general and the staffs shall be responsible only to the organization. They shall not seek or receive instructions from any government or from any other authority external to the organization. They shall refrain from any action which might reflect on their position as international officials.

2. Each member of the organization undertakes to respect the exclusively international character of the responsibilities of the secretary-general and the staff and not to seek to influence them in the discharge of their responsibilities.

ARTICLE 101

1. The staff shall be appointed by the secretary-general under regulations established by the General Assembly.

2. Appropriate staffs shall be permanently assigned to the Economic and Social Council, the Trusteeship Council, and, as required to other organs of the United Nations.

3. The paramount consideration in the employment of the staff and in the determination of the conditions of service shall be the necessity of securing the highest standards of efficiency, competence and integrity. Due regard shall be paid to the importance of recruiting the staff on as wide a geographical basis as possible.

CHAPTER XVI

Miscellaneous Provisions

ARTICLE 102

1. Every treaty and every international agreement entered into by any member of the United Nations after the present charter comes into force shall as soon as possible be registered with the Secretariat and published by it.

2. No party to any such treaty or international agreement which has not been registered in accordance with the provisions of Paragraph 1 of this article may invoke that treaty or agreement before any organ of the United Nations.

ARTICLE 103

In the event of a conflict between the obligations of the members of the United Nations under the present charter and any other international obligations to which they are subject, their obligations under the present charter shall prevail.

ARTICLE 104

The organization shall enjoy in the territory of each of its members such legal capacity as may be necessary for the exercise of its functions and the fulfillment of its purposes.

ARTICLE 105

1. The organization shall enjoy in the territory of each of its members such privileges and immunities as are necessary for the fulfillment of its purposes.

2. Representatives of the members of the organization and officials of the organization shall similarly enjoy such privileges and immunities as are necessary for the independent exercise of their functions in connection with the organization.

3. The General Assembly may make recommendations with a view to determining the details of the application of Paragraphs 1 and 2 of this article or may propose conventions to the members for this purpose.

CHAPTER XVII

Transitional Security Arrangements

ARTICLE 106

Pending the coming into force of such special agreements referred to in Article 43 as in the opinion of the Security Council enable it to begin the exercise of its responsibilities under Article 46, the parties to the four-nation declaration, signed at Moscow, October 30, 1943, and France, shall, in accordance with the provisions of Paragraph 5 of that declaration, consult with one another and as occasion arises with other members of the organization with a view to such joint action on behalf of the organization as may be necessary for the purpose of maintaining international peace and security.

ARTICLE 107

Nothing in the present charter shall invalidate or preclude action in relation to any state which during the Second World War has been an enemy of any signatory to the present charter, taken or authorized as a result of that war by the governments having responsibility for such action.

CHAPTER XVIII

Amendments

ARTICLE 108

Amendments to the present charter shall come into force for all members of the organization when they have been adopted by a vote of two-thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two thirds of the members of the organization, including all the permanent members of the Security Council.

ARTICLE 109

1. A general conference of the members of the United Nations for the purpose of reviewing the present charter may be held at a date and place to be fixed by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly and by a vote of any seven members of the Security Council. Each member shall have one vote in the conference.

2. Any modification of the present charter recommended by a two-thirds vote of the conference shall take effect when ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two-thirds of the members of the organization including all the permanent members of the Security Council.

3. If such a conference has not been held before the tenth annual session of the General Assembly following the entry into force of the present charter, the proposal to call such a conference shall be placed on the agenda of that session of the General Assembly, and the conference shall be held if so decided by a majority vote of the members of the General Assembly and by a vote of any seven members of the Security Council.

CHAPTER XIX

Ratification and Signature

ARTICLE 110

1. The present charter shall be ratified by the signatory states in accordance with their respective constitutional processes.

2. Ratification shall be deposited with the Government of the United States of America, which shall notify all the signatory states of each deposit as well as the secretary general of the organization when he has been elected.

3. The present charter shall come into force upon the deposit of ratifications by the United States of America, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the Republic of China, and France, and by a majority of the other signatory states. A protocol of such deposit shall be drawn up by the Government of the United States of America which shall communicate copies thereof to all the signatory states.

4. The states signatory to the present charter which ratify it after it has come into force will become members of the United Nations on the date of the deposit of their respective ratifications.

ARTICLE 111

The present charter, of which the Chinese, English, French, Russian and Spanish texts are equally authentic, shall remain deposited in the archieves of the Government of the United States of America. Duly certified copies thereof shall be transmitted by that government to the governments of the other signatory states.

In faith whereof the representatives of the United Nations have signed the present charter.

Done at the city of San Francison the twenty-sixth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and forty-five.

(Signatures to be appended here.)

Reemployment Statistics Bulletin No. 1

SELECTIVE SERVICE AND VETERAN REEMPLOYMENT

A General Analysis of the Problem of Reestablishment in Civilian Life of Personnel Separated from the Armed Forces

105.W.
2

National Headquarters
Selective Service System
Washington, D. C.

July 1, 1944

REEMPLOYMENT STATISTICS BULLETIN No. 2

THE SERVICEMAN AND THE VETERAN

An Analysis of Characteristics of Servicemen at Time of Entry and Time of Discharge, and of the Employment of Veterans
After Discharge

National Headquarters
Selective Service System
Washington, D.C.

July 1, 1946

FUTURE RELEASE
PLEASE NOTE DATE

356

WAR DEPARTMENT
Bureau of Public Relations
NEWS DIVISION
Washington, D. C.

FOR RELEASE MONDAY, JANUARY 22, 1945

* * * *

were two Quartermaster dumps, located near Trevieres and Isigny, moved two sections near these dumps.

Loaned to the First Army by Advance Section, Communications Zone, the 1235th was, until July 27, the only fire-fighting unit with that Army. The platoon furnished fire protection for Army installations and the Army Area. During this period the unit made inspections of Army installations, and aided in procuring the proper first aid equipment and setting up fire points. Fire-fighting classes were held for those units and installations that were able to obtain fire pumper trailers.

Finding that the class 325 fire trucks were far superior to the fire pumper trailers, because they carried a supply of water, the 1235th convinced the Army Engineers to authorize three more fire trucks for each platoon, which they did.

All the way across France and Belgium, the men of this unit have fought fires of all descriptions, including ammunition, gasoline, vehicle, and plane fires. Prior to returning to the Advance Section, Communications Zone, on October 10, 1944, the depleted ranks of the unit were filled by members of the 1219th Engineer Fire Fighting Platoon.

Vital stores in numerous cities in France and Belgium were protected by sections of the 1235th.

Joining the 95th and 390th in Valognes on July 2, 1944, the 365th Engineer Regiment (General Service) lost no time in catching up with the fast pace set by their predecessors. Repairing of roads and operation of quarries near Trevieres were the first missions performed by this unit. Mines located in fields south of Carentan were removed by the second platoon of Company D. Lieutenant Redford L. Rodgers was the officer in charge of this project.

In the construction of the 2nd, 25th and 56th General Hospitals, 264 pyramidal tents, 305 squad tents, 263 hospital ward tents, 23 storage tents, and 37 smaller wall tents were erected. A total of 892 tents in all were erected by the 365th near Lison. Other figures compiled by the regiment to show the immensity of the project are as follows:

Concrete floors were poured for 802 tents. Two and one-half ton trucks were used to carry 1,820 loads of sand and 1,235 loads of gravel. Road systems, electric wiring, water lines, plus drainage and sewage lines were installed as necessary. Effective man-hours on the three-hospital project totalled 236,000.

Leaving small forces behind to attend to final details, the unit moved out to take over its next assignments. This included the repairing of the "Red Ball" Highway and construction of a prisoner of war enclosure. The companies were given sections of the highway passing through the towns of Vire, Eccouches, Laigle, Houdun, Fontainebleau, La Loupe, Mortain, Flers, and Argentan.

While one battalion continued with the maintenance of the Red Ball Highway, another was charged with the repair of the railroads from Argentan to Houdun, in addition to repairing and replacing highway and railroad bridges near Chartres.

On the 30th of September, the regiment celebrated its second anniversary at La Bardelle, France. It was activated at Camp Campbell, Kentucky, on September 30, 1942.

When they rescued an English pilot from his Spitfire which landed in a mined field near Catz, the 375th Engineer Regiment (General Service) had only been in France two days, having landed August 3, 1944. To get to the plane, an area approximately 30 feet wide and 1,000 feet long had to be cleared of mines and booby-trapped 500-pound naval shells. This was accomplished without a mishap.

The reconstruction of bridges and reconditioning of roads south of Carentan was the regiment's first assignment. Emergency orders were received to reconstruct a railroad running from Fougeres to Le Mans. Returning to the original assignment, the 375th continued constructing a road near St. John de Day over marshy land. Twelve-inch logs and rock-fill were used on this project, which was travelled over by tanks en route to artillery testing grounds near Les Veys.

MORE

Both the 417th and 412th Engineer Dump Truck Companies arrived on the Continent to be split up among various engineer regiments. The 417th, arriving on July 1, 1944, a month before the 412th, was attached to the 347th Engineer Regiment (General Service) at St. Lo. From St. Lo they moved on to the La Haye Pesnel, Flers, Juvisy, and Bar le Duc.

Not at all unlike the 1235th, the 1232nd and 1233rd Engineer Fire Fighting Platoons, although arriving much later, joined immediately in the activities begun by the veteran unit. Fire protection for a package dump near Le Mans, and other installations including hospital buildings, were furnished jointly by the two platoons.

As in the case of the 390th and 95th, sniping and sometimes actual contact with the enemy resulted in casualties among the engineers. Artillery fire and strafing hampered the progress of the men on certain projects in the Cherbourg area, but their missions were always completed on time.

Considerable ingenuity was exercised in the use of salvaged and abandoned enemy equipment by all these engineer groups. Many of the steel beams found locally or removed from demolished structures were found to be bent or damaged. An extensive use of welding to replace damaged sections, so as to permit further use, was carried on. This held true particularly in the repair of watering facilities and damaged machinery.

In addition to their own organizational equipment, the regiments have at times used the following: D-8 Caterpillar tractors with angle-dozers, D-7 and 6 of the same type tractor, 12 and 8-yard Le Tourneau scrapers, motorized cranes of three-fourth yard capacity, 20-ton Le Tourneau tractor cranes, portable rock crushers, portable electric welding sets and 3/4-yard shovels.

* * * * * * * *

29TH SIGNAL FIRST NEGRO
WIRE UNIT ON GERMAN SOIL

WITH U.S. SUPPLY FORCES IN FRANCE---"Leap-frogging" from the Normandy beachhead through France and Belgium, Company B of the 29th Signal Construction Battalion, has been stringing copper strands of telephone and telegraph wire over German soil. This unit is the first Negro signal group to work in Germany.

Following two armies across the Continent, the 29th Signal assigned to the Advance Section, Communication Zone, crossed the border on the Saarbrucken front. Company B, working in close cooperation with Company A, set up its quarters on the enemy's home ground several weeks ago.

When questioned concerning the extremely low casualties in the Company, Captain William D. Carswell, of Waycrosse, Georgia, said, "The men are good soldiers as well as good workers. Our mine detector crews have the respect of all the men, and if it were not for them I'd hate to see what would happen in some of the fields we have to go through."

Most of the work on this particular section of the line, that extends far back as Nancy, is done under adverse conditions due to the unfavorable terrain. Crews have to carry the heavy 20 and 30-foot poles cross-country where the line trucks cannot travel over the muddy soil. Six-foot holes have to be dug with spoon shovels by hand, since the earthborer blades will not grab the sandy earth and carry it clear of the hole.

* * * * * * * *

HERO FLIES 123 MISSIONS;
HOME WITH D.F.C., AIR MEDAL

MIAMI, FLORIDA---Proud possessor of the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal, the latter with three oak leaf clusters, Captain Albert H. Manning, Jr.,

MORE

27-year-old veteran P-51 pilot, returned recently from overseas on one of the Air Transport Command's transocean planes which landed at Miami Army Air Field.

Son of Albert H. Manning, Sr., of 1734 Howard Street, Hartsville, South Carolina, Captain Manning was overseas for about 14 months as a member of the 99th Fighter Squadron, the first all-Negro unit to go into flying combat.

He returned to the States with a brilliant record as a Mustang pilot, being credited with shooting down one enemy plane in the air and destroying ten on the ground. In all, he flew 123 missions for a total of 335 air combat hours. He participated in a variety of missions, some of them of exceptional importance to the success of subsequent ground operations.

For example, prior to the Allied invasion of southern France it was of the utmost importance that all possible types of enemy communication and detection be knocked out. Just before this D-Day, Captain Manning participated in a mission assigned to knock out certain emeny radar stations in southern France.

"There were eight to be destroyed and that's what we got," he explained upon his arrival here.

Captain Manning also took part in several raids on the Ploesti oil fields, on enemy targets in the Vienna, Munich and Blechammer areas, and helped make it "hot" for the Germans when they evacuated Greece. On other missions, he worked with his squadron in close support of ground operations for the United States 5th and British 8th Armies.

His wife, Mrs. Maxie B. Manning, resides at 269 Cemetery Street, Spartanburg, South Carolina.

* * * * * * * *

FRONT-LINE VETS RECOVER FROM WOUNDS IN BRITAIN

HEADQUARTERS, UNITED KINGDOM BASE, ENGLAND---Wounded in action on the Continent, a supply sergeant of a Negro tank battalion and a driver in an engineer unit are recovering at United States Army hospitals in England.

Hit in the right leg by a sniper's bullet as he stepped out of his truck after hauling a load of rations to a front-line battalion, Staff Sergeant Samuel F. Saunders, 28, of Elizabeth, Pennsylvania, is convalescing at the 91st General Hospital. He has been awarded the Purple Heart.

Supply sergeant for the 761st Tank Battalion, Sergeant Saunders was hit while his outfit was attacking several small towns between Metz and Nancy. Taken to an aid station, he was treated and evacuated to England by plane.

Before he entered the Army in September 1941, Sergeant Saunders was an employee of a grocery store chain. His step-mother, Mrs. Inez Saunders, lives in Elizabeth. His brother, Richard L., is in the Navy.

Private Leroy Johnson, 31, a truck-driver of 61 Howard Street, S.E., Atlanta, Georgia, is recovering at a station hospital from back injuries received when an 88-mm shell blew up his supply truck while lurching through an enemy-shelled area on the front in France.

The blast hurled him out of his vehicle. When he regained consciousness he was being given medical attention.

The engineer is now being given a course of exercises and training at this station hospital along with men who are similarly wounded. "This training," explained Major Frederick P. Berlin of Wapakoneta, Ohio, "is like a school, as it puts men with the same handicaps in the same groups so they can progress together toward complete health."

MORE

Private Johnson is married to Mrs. Emma Johnson, who lives at 22-15 11th Avenue, North Birmingham, Alabama. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mead Johnson, are living at the Howard Street address in Atlanta.

* * * * * * * *

MILLION TRUCK MILES
IN 18 MONTHS QM MARK

HEADQUARTERS, 13TH ARMY AIR FORCES, SOUTHWEST PACIFIC---Wheels on the trucks of a Negro Quartermaster company of the 13th AAF ground out over 1,000,000 miles without a major accident in 18 months of operation overseas, it was announced today.

The trucks in this outfit, driven, serviced and maintained entirely by Negro enlisted men, have hauled everything from bombs to casualties. The neatly labeled jobs allotted to truck companies in the U.S. don't always cover the emergencies that arise in combat. Unusual assignments are run-of-the-mill for this quartermaster unit, for the 13th AAF's sweep from the Battle of Guadalcanal to the Philippines in less than two years has required superhuman tasks from its supporting ground personnel.

It hasn't been an exciting 1,000,000 miles--exciting in the way a P-38 pilot knows the word. But the drivers of this company, when pressed, will modestly admit some of their number have had occasions to show the stuff of which truck heroes are made.

Old timers in the outfit will tell you most of their spare parts were raised in foxholes. In the early days, when the Japs were still attempting desperately to drive American forces from the truck company's home island, the sky was dotted with Zeros nearly every day. When an alert sounded, the men dived for foxholes. With them went some of the precious parts they had snatched up at the first sound of a siren, which were too valuable to leave exposed to falling bombs.

The repair and maintenance battle never ends. The rain, glue-like mud, jagged coral particles, and rot and rust haunt the dreams of the truckmaster, First Sergeant John A. Angrum, 940 East 43rd Place, Los Angeles, California, and his assistants, Staff Sergeant Edward Gordon, 625 Mercer Street, Savannah, Georgia, and Staff Sergeant Arthur A. Hourtman, 2268 East Jay Street, Detroit, Michigan. Brake drums, for example, are often found to be packed with silt when the big wheels are removed.

Yank ingenuity which has been so prominent in this war had quite a hand in keeping these olive drab vehicles on the roads overseas. Members of the company, acting on the plans of Sergeants Gordon and Hourtman, built a truck-washing trailer from salvaged equipment. The ambitious maintenance crew salvaged a motor from a wrecked jeep, fixed up a rotary pump, procured a universal joint, a hose and a regular fire hose nozzle. The result: A combination washing trailer and emergency fire-fighting unit!

Another neat trick helped relieve the strain of the tightly-stretched Pacific supply lines. One nightmarish day, 20 of the badly-needed trucks were idle for lack of brake linings. It was urgent that they get back on the road and keep precious supplies moving up to scattered air force units. Two enlisted men came through with a solution--a home-made, but effective substitute for brake linings. They stripped machine belts into proper lengths, adjusted them, and the trucks once more rolled off airstrips of the "Fightin' 13th."

The mechanical wizards who solved this crisis were Technician Fifth Grade Louis Stewart, Richmond, Virginia, and Technician Fifth Grade Choice Williams, Miami, Florida.

Other men in the outfit who have helped greatly in establishing its top-flight rank among QM companies overseas are:

MORE

Sergeant William H. Georgie, 121 21st Avenue, North, Seattle, Washington, assistant motor sergeant.

Sergeant Leslie L. Cephus, 2506 Clarendon Avenue, Bessemer, Alabama, platoon sergeant.

Technician Fifth Grade Booker T. Wiggins, 409 East Berinard Street, Pensacola, Florida.

The men in the truck company have fewer nightmares, now. With the 13th AAF assaulting the Japs in the Philippines, in Borneo, and the Dutch East Indies, supply lines have been strengthened and expanded. The days when the Allies fought a desperate war against overwhelming odds are over, and the 13th's bombers and fighters have gone on from Guadalcanal to neutralize the Solomons, Bougainville, Rabaul, Kavieng, Truk, Yap, Palau, the Schouten Islands, the great oil base at Balikpapan, Borneo, the Halmaheras, the Celebes, and more recently, the southern Philippines.

Drivers and mechanics in the company are pround of the part they have played in the "Fightin' 13th's" advance. They look forward now to the day when traffic cops and women drivers will be all a truck driver has to worry about.

* * * * * * * *

FIRE FIGHTERS PROTECT VITAL PROPERTY OVERSEAS

HEADQUARTERS, EUROPEAN THEATER OF OPERATIONS, FRANCE---The 1229th Engineer Fire-Fighting Platoon (Negro) is among units of the United States Army protecting vital property overseas. Like other fire-fighters, they are subject to call at any hour, day or night. Their job may take them into a civilian building in a liberated town or city or it may hurry them into the countryside to protect an Army installation which is threatened.

Since July 25, 1944, First Lieutenant Clyde K. Harris, 2501 Van Buren Street, Amarillo, Texas, and his group of less than 30 men, all Negroes, have operated behind advancing front-line troops. They set up in Valognes, San Saveur, La Haye Pesnel, Villadieu, Des Poels, Allencon, Domfront and Le Mans.

Wherever there has been a fire of any nature or size, within their area, they have been on the spot. During the construction of the pipeline from the beaches eastward toward Germany, a constant fire patrol was maintained to guard the precious supply of fuel which was being pumped to the armored forces out ahead.

At times, members of this group have travelled as far as 70 miles to put under control blazes which might have proved disastrous.

Recently, when a serious fire broke out in a large French town, Lieutenant Harris and his men were on hand, utilizing modern American fire-fighting equipment as aides to the local French fire department.

All of the men received specialized training in Army fire fighting schools before they were shipped overseas. Says Lieutenant Harris, "they are experts in every sense of the word."

They are:

ALABAMA: Birmingham--Cpl. Pete Young, 2805 North 29th St.; Dothan--Pvt. Willie C. Bamble, 804 South Atlanta St.; Pvt. Willie C. Baker, 307 Stephenson St.

FLORIDA: Ocala--Cpl. Reuben S. Mitchell, 110 South Lime St.

GEORGIA: Athens--Cpl. Joseph Foote, Route 2; Hartwell--Pvt. Elmo Turner, Route 3; Atlanta--Pvt. Clinton Worthy, 134 Jackson St.

MORE

LOUISIANA: Shreveport--Corporal Esperand Evans, 2001 Freewater St.

MISSISSIPPI: Buena Vista--Sgt. Fernandus Neal; Coffeeville--Pvt. David C. Honis, Route 1; Gautier--Cpl. Albert E. Harris, Box 36; Hattiesburg--Cpl. Armstrong C. Ryan, Route 6; Iverness--Pvt. Cleveland Harris, Box 241.

NEW YORK: New York--Sgt. Kenneth C. Chambers, 22 Convent Ave.

NORTH CAROLINA: Burlington--Pvt. Eddie L. Enoch, Route 2; Henderson--Sgt. Thomas M. Sloan, 822 Park Drive.

PENNSYLVANIA: Morton--Cpl. William R. Green, Box 122; Philadelphia--Cpl. George C. Allen, 5714 Ludlow St.

SOUTH CAROLINA: Columbia--Staff Sgt. Julian Gaines, 1240 Branwell St.

TENNESSEE: Cardova--Cpl. Frazier Gant, Route 1; Ridgley--Cpl. Robert L. Whitelow, Box 51.

TEXAS: Amarillo--1st Lt. Clyde K. Harris, 2501 Van Buren St.; Brookshire--Cpl. George E. Allen; Call--Cpl. Walter Cummings, Box 64; Houston--Cpl. Wilson Thompson, 1914 Napoleon St.

VIRGINIA: Suffolk--Sgt. George M. Perkins, 206 Beech St.

* * * * * * * *

NEGRO SOLDIERS STUDY
IN TIME OFF IN FRANCE

HEADQUARTERS, COMMUNICATION ZONE, EUROPEAN THEATER OF OPERATIONS---Subscribing to the theory of one of their instructors that "good soldiers must prepare to become even better citizens," a large majority of the Negro troops of the 260th Quartermaster Battalion, in France, are spending many of their duty-free hours in class-room work here.

The spare-time education plan was suggested by the executive officer of the battalion, Captain Joseph G. Ryan (white) of Chicago, Illinois, and was immediately accepted with enthusiasm by the men.

Among the basic subjects taught in the GI class room are history, arithmetic, science and English composition. Other subjects include music and physical education.

The faculty members who likewise contribute their own off-duty time to the project are Technical Sergeant B. Cortez Tipton, husband of Mrs. Beulah J. Tipton, Route 2, East Chattanooga, Tennessee, and Sergeant Simon C. Clement, brother of Mrs. Carrie Wright, 1301 G Street, Brunswick, Georgia.

Before entering the service, Sergeant Tipton was a teacher in Booker T. Washington High School and a social worker in Chattanooga as well as a member of the Chattanooga-Hamilton County Interracial Commission. Sergeant Clements was a teacher of music in the public schools and a civic worker in Brunswick.

* * * * * * * *

ALL-NEGRO SOLDIER SHOW PLAYS
FIRST ARMY REST CAMP IN BELGIUM

HEADQUARTERS, U.S. FIRST ARMY, FRANCE---About the first Continental All-Negro soldier musical revue was held recently before a capacity crowd of nearly 2,000 front-line troops from a First Army rest camp in Belgium.

"Shades of Boogie Woogie" is the title given the show by the men of the 999th Quartermaster Collecting Company, who make up the cast. Originated in England, while the company was stationed there prior to D-Day under Captain Chardlow J. Hansen, of Galesburg, Illinois, the troupe has played to some 20,000 soldiers and English civilians.

MORE

Scripts, songs, arrangements, even the costumes have been the product of the ingenious GIs. Their production manager, Sergeant Leon Rozene, 108 Garfield Avenue, Bridgeport, Connecticut, a Special Service soldier, has been with them since the English production.

Spark-plugging the show is a musical pair, Corporal Alvin Chamblee, 5720 South Park, Chicago, Illinois, and Corporal Gilberg M. Blacken, 817 Avenue A, Norfolk, Virginia. Corporal Chamblee is director of the show, and is responsible for writing its score. His co-partner, Corporal Blacken, has done original musical compositions for the revue, along with assisting in the direction.

Corporal Cahmblee even joins up with a trio in a number entitled "The Four Lords of Rhythm," one of the most popular hits in the musical. Other members of the "Lords" are Private First Class Earl L. Garnet, Jr., 2011 Park Avenue, Kansas City, Missouri, Private Joseph N. Hardin, 1121 W. Nichols Street, Springfield, Missouri, and Private Israel Owens, 4671 Evans Street, St. Louis, Missouri.

Master of Ceremonies for the show is capable Private Carlyle W. May, 6363 Begole Street, Detroit, Michigan.

Other members of the cast are as follows: Comedians, Sergeant Milton R. Frazier, 3940 Burkett Street, Houston, Texas, and Corporal Reuben Cole, 525 Manhattan Avenue, New York City; pianists, Sergeant Calvin Rivers, Pittsburg, Texas, and Corporal Blacken; dancers, Corporal Tony Fanishia, 133-16 129th Street, S. Ozone Park, Long Island, New York, and Corporal Phil Rindone, 108 37th Avenue, Carona, New York.

Chorus--(acting the parts of both men and women) Sergeant Earl E. Smith, 2822 R Avenue, Omaha, Nebraska, Corporal Willie R. James, 504 Nackusa Avenue, Dixan, Illinois, Corporal Edward Peterson, 1727 Rise Street, Hartsville, South Carolina, Private First Class Harold G. Ridge, 120 E. Summer Street, Monsae City, Missouri, and Private Carlyle May.

Stage Managers--Private First Class Harold E. Holliday, 906 E. 16th Street, Kansas City, Missouri, Private First Class Roscoe Hunn, Jr., 220 North 10th Street, St. Charles, Missouri, and Private First Class Stanley Coleman, 9334 S. Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

Members of the orchestra include: Private First Class Edwin Jackson, 417 Broad Street, Georgetown, South Carolina, (leader) Master Sergeant Andrew J. Stovall, Atlanta, Georgia, Private Norman Williams, 71 Branch Village, Camden, New Jersey, and Private First Class Joe Turner, 330 North 3rd Street, Steubenville, Ohio.

* * * * * * * *

SMOKE COMPANY STANDS VIGIL
OVER VITAL PORT IN BELGIUM

WITH U.S. FORCES IN BELGIUM---Veteran of operations against German air raids in England, and the port of Cherbourg in France, the 82nd Chemical Smoke Generating Company now serves as a vital link in the antiaircraft defenses of an important Belgian port.

The port, through which a port organization of the U.S. Army Transportation Corps is forwarding supplies and war material to the advancing Allied Armies, is one of the largest under Allied control.

The 82nd's activities are coordinated with British and American antiaircraft artillery and air force squadrons. Equipped with mobile generators and stationary "quick cover" circuit smoke pots, men of the 82nd can send up dense clouds of artificial fog to protect the vast dock areas in case of air attack.

MORE

Not only is the unit equipped with its own motor transport and radio and telephone communication system, but it also operates a meteorology station to obtain local weather and wind data for computation in weather forecasts. Captain Ralph J. Smith, Camden, Alabama, the unit commander, is proud of the outfit's record in being able to operate within five to seven minutes after an alert.

"The only time they can relax a bit is when there is natural fog over the city," he commented.

Members of the unit are:

ALABAMA: Brewton--Pfc. Ennis Smith, son of Mrs. Gussie Smith, Route 2, Box 160; Camden--Captain Ralph J. Smith, Company Commander, son of Mrs. Mayme L. Smith, P.O. Box 104; Plateau--Pfc. Robert J. Floyd, son of Mrs. Ora Floyd; Prattville--Pvt. Thomas Long, husband of Mrs. Louise Long, 310 Wilkinson St.; Sheffield--Pfc. Earl Robinson, son of Mrs. Annie Robinson, Route 1; Talladega--Pvt. Samuel Tanner, nephew of Mrs. Missie Headen, 510 Coosa St.; Thomasville--Pvt. Louis T. Bettis, son of Mr. Lee Augustus Bettis, 104 Queen Street, Pritchard, Ala.; Troy--Pfc. David Gibson, son of Mrs. Callie Gibson, Route 3, Box 109; Underwood--Pvt. Roosevelt Lacey, son of Mr. Mose Lacey, Route 1, Grindstone, Pa.; Vernon--Pfc. Grady Rogers, son of Mrs. Ida Rogers, Route 1, Box 57.

ARIZONA: Williams--Cpl. Francis L. Robbs, son of Mrs. Lucille Phillips, 1724 22nd St., Santa Monica, Cal.

ARKANSAS: Pine Bluff--Pvt. Hugh L. Jackson, son of Mrs. Susie Jackson, Route 6, Box 83; Stephens--Pfc. Joseph Edwards, son of Mrs. Lizzie Edwards, Route 1, Box 23.

CALIFORNIA: El Centro--Pvt. Leardry L. Montague, son of Mrs. Mozella Mantague, 431 South 2nd St.

CONNECTICUT: Ansonia--Cpl. Jessie Snipes, son of Mrs. Fannie Snipes, 45 Broad St.; Portland--Pvt. William L. Pope, son of Mrs. Evelyn Pope, 9 Bank St.; Waterbury--Cpl. Raymond J. Alford, son of Mrs. Hattie Williams, 23 Hopkins St.; Pvt. Earl R. Reddick, son of Mrs. Annie Reddick, 171 Bishop St.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA: Washington--Sgt. Wayland D. McClellan, son of Mrs. Mattie H. McClellan, Butler College, Tyler, Texas; Pvt. Henry E. Wright, brother of Mrs. Edna Coleman, 2033 5th St., N.W.

FLORIDA: Campbellton--Pfc. Ira Daniels, Jr., son of Mrs. Rachael Daniels, Route 1, Box 1; Concord--Pfc. Andrew J. Youmus, son of Mrs. Queen Ann Youmus, General Delivery; Jacksonville--Sgt. Robert L. Wilkins, son of Mr. McKenzie Wilkins, 1205 W. 9th St.; Key West--Cpl. Theodore T. Sands, brother of Miss Winifred Sands, 324 Division St.; Lulu--Pfc. Daniel A. Young, son of Mrs. Anna L. Young, Lake Butler, Fla.

GEORGIA: Atlanta--Pvt. Johnnie R. Baldwin, son of Mrs. Carrie Moreland, 590 Bedord Pl.; Pvt. Jabus Booker, brother of Mrs. Matilda Wright, Route 3, Box 85, Thomason, Georgia; Pfc. Warren T. Whitehead, son of Mrs. Mamie Whitehead, 247 Clifton Pl.; Barnesville--Pvt. Clarence W. Bush, son of Mrs. Lillian R. Bush, Route 3, Box 15; Dorchester--Pvt. James W. Frasier, son of Mr. I.S. Frasier, General Delivery; Gordon--Pfc. Frank Burney, Jr., son of Mrs. Eva Burney, General Delivery; Hogansville--Pfc. Render H. Allison, son of Mrs. Letha Allison, Route 1, Box 133; Pvt. Joe F. Dallas, brother of Mrs. Judar Thrash, General Delivery; Jackson--Pvt. Homer C. Robinson, son of Mrs. Vennie Robinson, 39 Magum St., Atlanta, Ga.

MORE

ILLINOIS: Chicago--Sgt. Lieber J. Benford, son of Mrs. Georgia Benford, Route 4, Box 207, Muskoges, Okla.

INDIANA: E. Chicago--Pvt. David J. Young, son of Mrs. Letha Young, Hickman, Ky.

LOUISIANA: New Orleans--Pvt. Augustus Johnson, son of Mrs. Cecile Lewis, 4321 N. Galuez St.; Pvt. Junous McKenzie, son of Mrs. Emma McKenzie, 2100 Bienville St.

MARYLAND: Baltimore--Cpl. William F. Fallon, son of Mr. William Fallon, Cardale, Pa.; Cpl. Roland H. Ganges, son of Mr. Roland Ganges, 124 N. Punch St., Philadelphia, Pa.; Sgt. Clyde A. Mitchell, son of Mr. Lloyd Mitchell, Rehobeth Church, Va.; Cpl. Warner L. Standley, son of Mr. Garlet Standley, Berlin, Md.; Eastport--Cpl. James A. Kirby, son of Mrs. Anna Kirby, 411 Chester Ave.

MASSACHUSETTS: Boston--Pfc. Joseph D. Franklin, son of Mrs. Mattie Lee Franklin, 365 Massachusetts Ave.; Pvt. Earl B. Jenkins, son of Mrs. Roberta Jenkins, Gatesville, N.C.; Roxbury--Pfc. Gladstone N. Boyce, son of Mrs. Agatha Boyce, 1 Humbolt Terr.; Pvt. Arnold J. Leonard, son of Mr. Robert Leonard, 44 Cabot St.

MICHIGAN: Detroit--Pfc. James Buskin, son of Mrs. Luella Mason, 403 Jefferson St., Laurel, Miss.; Pvt. Walter E. Hoosier, son of Mrs. Etta Mae Hoosier, 4162 Brush St.

MISSISSIPPI: Cleveland--Pvt. Johnie Anderson, son of Mrs. Alfonza A. Blackburn, Route 1, Box 160.; Columbia--Pvt. Iddo Brent, Jr., son of Mrs. Lillie T. Brent, Route 2, Box 193, Crystal Springs; Pvt. Johnie Hartzog, son of Mrs. Maggie D. Hartzog, Route 3, New Hebron; Louisville--First Sgt. Arthur O. Glass, son of Mrs. Mary Glass, Route 3, Box 7; Magnolia--Pvt. William T. Hayes, brother of Mr. Woodrow Hayes; Meridian--Pvt. Ernest Christon, son of Mr. Bob Christon, 1104 6th St.; Newton--Cpl. Cromwell Chapman, son of Mrs. Hanna C. Chapman, Route 2, Box 83A; Pauling--Pfc. Dock Moore, brother of Mrs. Mamie M. Cotton, Lake Como; Shaw--Staff Sgt. McKinley Lyes, son of Mrs. Alice G. Lyes, 514 Lee St., Cleveland; Taylor--Pvt. James E. Martin, son of Mrs. Bertha J. Martin, Route 2, Box 39.

MISSOURI: Columbia--Sgt. Frank E. Williams, son of Mrs. Ella V. Perkins, 503 N. 5th St.; St. Louis--Pvt. Layton P. Wright, brother of Mr. James Wright, Gilliam; NEBRASKA: Omaha--Pfc. Oscar C. Burlison, son of Mrs. Hazel L. Burlison, 2526 Jefferson St.

NEW JERSEY: Newark--Cpl. Lewis Bowens, son of Mrs. Ella Bowens, 1023 Hampton Springs St., Perry, Fla.; Cpl. John Landrum, brother of Mr. James Landrum, 19 Ward St.

NEW YORK: Bronx--Pvt. Clifford M. Cooke, son of Mrs. Juanita Cooke, 875 E. 163rd St.; Brooklyn--Cpl. George Ellis, son of Mrs. Ammie Murray, 280 Putnam Ave.; Pfc. Ernest A. Redman, son of Mr. Sehon Redman, 52 Lefferts Pl.; Pvt. Aubrey H. Welsh, son of Mrs. Elma Welsh, 30 Irving Pl.; Jamestown--Staff Sgt. Charles J. Herald, son of Mrs. Myrtle Herald, Duke Center, Pa.; New York City--Pfc. William J. Haynes, son of Mrs. Carrie Haynes, 246 W. 137th St.; Cpl. Richard F. Minor, brother of Miss Margaret Minor, 568 E. 166th St.; Cpl. Johnnie E. Shipp, son of Mrs. Alice Shipp, 409 Orange St., Shelby, N.C. Pvt. Archie L. Storms, 210 W. 133rd St.; Nyack--Staff Sgt. William E. Knight, son of Mrs. Babesis Knight, 109 Burd St.; So. Plymouth--Cpl. Charles R. George, son of Mrs. Phoebe George.

NORTH CAROLINA: Kings Mountain--Pfc. Otto W. Briggs, son of Mrs. Etta A. Briggs, 105 Cansler St.; Navassa--Pvt. Johnnie L. Andrews, son of Mrs. Rosa M. Andrews; Pittsboro--Pvt. James J. Baldwin, son of Mrs. Berta B. Baldwin, Route 2; Robersonville--Pvt. Booker T. Crandall, son of Mrs. Bettie Crandall,

MORE

Route 1; Roper--Pvt. Phillip L. Cox, son of Mrs. Betty E. Cox; Spring Hope--Cpl. Duward D. Wilkins, son of Mrs. Lillie P. Wilkins, Route 2; Tryon--Pfc. William Owens, son of Mrs. Bertie G. Owens, 411 S. Church St., Hendersonville, N.C.; Wadesboro--Pfc. Willie F. Lennon, son of Mrs. Estella B. Lennon, Route 1, Box 98.

OHIO: Cleveland--Sgt. Alphonso Williams, brother of Mrs. Clementine Hackett, 3272 E. 118th St.

PENNSYLVANIA: Homstead--Pvt. James R. Eubanks, son of Mr. John Eubanks, 318 Sixth Ave.; Philadelphia--Cpl. Vincent E. Maxwell, son of Mr. Junius B. Maxwell, King St., Detroit, Mich.; Pittsburgh--Pfc. George H. Hall, son of Mrs. Mary Hall, 3378 Milwaukee St.; Sgt. William Thompson, son of Mrs. Stella Thompson, 380 Independence St.

RHODE ISLAND: Newton--Cpl. Gregory P. Moreino, son of Mrs. Joanna B. Moreino, 47 Kingston Ave.; Providence--Cpl. Leonard A. Blunt, brother of Mr. Carleton H. Blunt, 52 Lester St.; Cpl. Joseph G. Britte, son of Mr. John Britte, 49 Creary St.; Pfc. Howard B. Brown, Jr., son of Mr. Howard B. Brown, 171 Howell St.; Pfc. Joseph L. Cardoso, son of Mrs. Eliza Cardoso, 481 Washington St.

SOUTH CAROLINA: Columbia--Cpl. Thomas Dargan Jr., son of Mrs. Annie C. Dargan, 1413 Oak St.; Pvt. Robert Young, Jr., son of Mrs. Hattie E. Young, Allen-Benedict Cts.; Enoree--Pfc. Havard Briggs, son of Mrs. Ethel Briggs, Route 2, Box 23; Ladies Island--Pfc. Lawrence Middleton, son of Mrs. Viola M. Cuspord, Sheldon; Rockhill--Sgt. Wilson M. Izzard, brother of Mrs. Mary Kennedy, 356 Pond St.; Seneca--Pfc. John H. Lewis, son of Mrs. Edna Lewis.

TENNESSEE: Chattanooga--Pvt. James R. Sims, son of Mrs. Emma M. Finnell, 1025 Grove St.; Clarksville--Pvt. Robert L. Peacher, son of Mrs. Georgia B. Peacher, 408 Kellogg St.; Grand Junction--Pfc. Nathaniel Buggs, son of Mrs. Goldie Buggs, Route 2, Box 813; Knoxville--Pfc. Stinson A. Evans, son of Mrs. Eunice C. Evans, 1708 College St.; Nashville--Cpl. John F. Lewis, son of Mr. Lynn Lewis, 1301 Edgehill Ave.; Pvt. Roy T. Smith, son of Mrs. Fannie P. Smith, General Delivery, Tron City; Niota--Pfc. Archie L. Moore, son of Mrs. Susie Moore, Route 2, Box 24.

TEXAS: Daingerfield--Pvt. Jodie P. Holloman, son of Mrs. Nora Holloman, Route 1, Box 200; Navosota--Pfc. Jessie James, Jr., son of Mr. Jessie James, Route 1, Box 125; San Marcos--Pvt. Robert Moore, Jr., son of Mrs. Stella J. Moore, 504 Valley St.; Teague--Pvt. Elihue B. Rice, son of Mrs. Lola Waters, Route 2, Box 51.

VIRGINIA: Alexandria--Sgt. George H. McKnight, son of Mrs. Georgianna Wilson, 1725 N. 25th St., Philadelphia, Pa.; Buena Vista--Pvt. James E. Sandidge, son of Mrs. Lou Bell Bocker, Post Office; Crewe--Private Robert L. Williams, son of Mrs. Emma Williams, R.F.D. 2, Box 59; Amherst--Pfc. Voyed D. Jordan, son of Mrs. Clara Jordan, Route 3, Box 125; New River--Pfc. Elmore Minter, son of Mrs. Nannie Minter, Box 94; Norfolk--Pfc. Louis O. Bell, son of Mrs. Roberta B. Hollingsworth, 418 Walker Ave.; Pfc. James H. Bens, grandson of Mrs. Senoras B. Jordan, 1044 E. Princess Anne Rd.; Pvt. William L. Cooper, son of Mrs. Gertrude Cooper, 1345 Church St.; Pvt. James R. Edwards, son of Mr. David R. Edwards, Route 1, Freeman; Pfc. William Isaac, Jr., son of Mr. William Isaac, Sr., 850 "A" Arc; Naola--Pfc. Andrew P. Coleman, son of Mrs. Sallie Coleman, Post Office; Petersburg--Cpl. Percy Everson, son of Mrs. Caddie Everson, Route 1, Waverly; Portsmouth--Cpl. Robert D. Johnson, son of Mrs. Maggie Johnson, 522 Linsey Ave.; Pfc. John H. Savage, brother of Mrs. Gracie S. Hunt, 680 Fayette St.; Richmond--Staff Sgt. Roland Baylor, nephew of Mrs. Dora Christian, 909 McDonough St., Baltimore, Md.; Staff Sgt. Otto E. Lewis, son of Mrs. Floyd Lewis, 302 W. Marshall St.; Sutherland--Pvt. Isaac A. Roberts, brother of Mr. Marsh Roberts, Route 1, Box 3.

WASHINGTON: Spokane--Sgt. Cloirton H. Lee, son of Mr. Jacob H. Lee, 3918 North Madison.

END

DISTRIBUTION: Ad.
1-15-45.

25-19687-600

FUTURE RELEASE
PLEASE NOTE DATE

317

WAR DEPARTMENT
Bureau of Public Relations
NEWS DIVISION
Washington, D. C.

FOR RELEASE MONDAY, JANUARY 29, 1945

* *
* NOTE TO EDITORS: The following material originates with the Public *
* Relations Officers of United States Army camps, posts, stations and Theaters *
* of War. It concerns the activities of Negro soldiers. The date of release *
* appears above. Similar informative releases will be sent to you weekly. *
* *

NEGRO ARTILLERYMEN STUCK TO GUNS
AS NAZI SHELLS RAINED ON BASTOGNE

WITH U.S. FORCES IN FRANCE---So close to German infantry that mortar bombs fell on them "like rain," men of the 969th Field Artillery Battalion, a Negro 155-mm howitzer outfit, stuck to their guns and fired all around the compass during the defense of encircled Bastogne.

The battalion, which landed in France last July, was attached to the 28th Infantry Division at the time of the German attack.

On the morning of December 17, the battalion was informed by its forward observer that the Germans were moving in to attack. There was heavy artillery fire. "Then," said Captain William J. Wood, Communications Officer, of Wichita Falls, Texas, "our communications went out. Jerry artillery knocked out damn near all communications in the whole sector. He seemed to know the location of every switchboard."

Unaware of the situation, the battalion moved back toward La Roche, where it was attached to an artillery group and ordered toward Neufchateau. Enemy tanks and infantry attacked from the east and south. Twice the battalion went into firing position to repel threats to the column.

Made Jerry Keep His Distance

Mortar fire and enemy artillery grew heavy. Other battalions in the artillery were knocked out. Under direction of the 101st Airborne Division, the 969th moved to Villeroux, where it set up its guns. Enemy tanks and infantry approached. With the help of a few scattered tanks and a handful of infantry, the 969th made Jerry keep his distance.

At one time the enemy was so close that the battalion commander ordered all classified material destroyed.

Enemy mortar fire grew even more intense. Small arms fire rained on the gun positions. Individual exploits were many. The battalion medics evacuated both German and American wounded under Jerry rifle fire. When the battalion aid station was destroyed by mortar fire, the aid men succeeded in rescuing all except the hopelessly wounded.

Corporal Mitchell Miles, of Chielton Street, Montgomery, Alabama, will never forget Villeroux. Standing beside his loaded truck, he narrowly escaped being killed by three mortar shells which exploded on the truck and set it on fire. Miles ran to a weapons carrie some distance away, brought it back, and while under heavy small arms fire, disengaged a loaded trailer from the burning kitchen truck and drove away.

It was well that he did. The contents of the trailer were badly needed by the artillerymen, who lived for several days afterwards on one third of a K-ration per man per day.

MORE

Many Individual Exploits

The list of individual exploits is a long one. First Sergeant Mayo Crook, 510 E. Colorado Street, Hammond, Louisiana, did the work of ten men, his officers reported. He helped evacuate the wounded, destroyed classified material, rescued vehicles, and finally was cut off from his outfit by enemy fire, having to find his way out of town himself. He rejoined the battalion hours later.

Enemy pressure increased and casualties became heavier.

All except the actual cannoneers fought infantry fashion, and even succeeded in taking 30 to 40 prisoners.

At last the battalion commander decided that the position at Villeroux was untenable. The batteries displaced to near Senonchamps. As the outfit began to pull out, one of the radio trucks was disabled by mortar fire. Through a hail of small arms fire, Sergeant Donald Corzo, Hodeenfield, New Jersey, went to the truck and destroyed all the signal equipment to prevent its falling into Jerry hands.

At Senonchamps the battalion prepared for a last stand. Because of casualties, all gun crews were reduced to the minimum. By this time it was obvious that the enemy was on all sides.

Fired in All Directions

The battalion guns were set up to fire all around the circle. "We made two-gun platoons," explained Major James W. Melville, Operations Officer, of Broken Bow, Nebraska, "and fired in all directions. We had targets everywhere--would have fired more ammunition than we'd used at Brest--if we'd had the stuff."

The guns were firing at ranges of 1200 to 1500 yards--guns which normally have a range of 12,000 to 15,000 yards. The enemy was that close. "We took everything the Germans had to throw," said Staff Sergeant Lloyd Wilkinson, of 363 Baimbridge Street, Brooklyn, New York, "tanks, mortars, small arms fire. That mortar fire was like hail. I never though that a 155 howitzer outfit would get that close to mortar fire. I don't know what we'd have done if it hadn't been for the help we got from that airborne infantry outfit. They're hot stuff; best outfit I know." A nondescript dog found shivering near the battalion CP was one factor which helped keep the men's spirits up. "Kaput," as he was christened, adopted the battalion at first sight. He is now the official battalion mascot.

But while "Kaput" did his level best to keep morale up, constant Jerry pressure, combined with three terrific air bombardments--one on Christmas Eve--put the mettle of the battery to a severe test. It was hazardous to survey in the gun positions. On one occasion when Jerry machine-gun fire penned down the survey section, Staff Sergeant Harry Quintyne, 295 W. 150th Street, New York City, crawled back, got a machine gun, destroyed one Kraut machine gun, and effectively pinned down the other until the survey was completed.

Destroys Guns, Takes Prisoners

On another occasion, Sergeant Fred Colman, Messina, Georgia, out of patience with an irritating Jerry machine gun, crawled out with one infantryman, destroyed the gun, and brought back five prisoners.

"The German fire was constant," said Captain R.C. Coddington, S-2, of Sparta, Wisconsin. "There was even a sniper whose special job seemed to be to try to pot one of us when we went to the latrine."

Ammunition was a serious problem. Finally only clearly observed targets were fired upon, and one gun was used in place of a battery. And still German pressure increased. The trapped soldiers, infantry and artillery, fought on stubbornly.

MORE

Then the tide turned. C-47s appeared, dropping supplies of food and ammunition. The battalion displaced again, this time to the outskirts of Bastogne, to be in a position closer to the infantry. And then one morning, several days after Christmas, the battalion commander went to the 101st Airborne Division CP and found several of the Fourth Armored Division tanks there. The German ring had been broken, and broken by an outfit with whom the 969th had fought in the breakthrough across France.

The battalion, with its complement of white officers and Negro enlisted men, hit the Normandy beach on July 9 as part of VIII Corps artillery. Commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Herbert D. Barnes of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, it supported the Eighth Infantry Division around La Haye du Puits, helped the Fourth Armored Division in the breakthrough near Rennes, then fired in support of the Eighth Division on the Brest Peninsula.

* * * * * * * *

CITE PERFORMANCE OF NEGRO
TROOPS DURING GERMAN DRIVE

HEADQUARTERS, EUROPEAN THEATER OF OPERATIONS, France---Although forced to evacuate stores of ammunition, tanks, guns and trucks during the recent German drive through Belgium, Ordnance troops assigned to the First U.S. Army managed to save all but a small quantity of tank tracks and 2,000 tons of ammunition of standard American calibre which will do the Germans little or no good.

In a three-day period, 3,500 Negro troops of the 71st Ordnance Group performed something in the way of a miracle when they evacuated three ammunition supply points under fire, set up two new ones, reduced an Army ammunition depot to supply-point size, set up a supply point to serve a corps, while at the same time issuing 3,000 tons of ammunition a day to the fighting troops.

With other units of the Ordnance they operated under orders to "evacuate, but stay in business" issued by Colonel J.B. Medaris, Cincinnati, Ohio, First Army Ordnance Officer. The 71st was a part of the total of 15,000 troops who moved nearly every piece of equipment in Ordnance depots from the path of the advancing Germans, but not out of reach of the American troops who first slowed and then stopped the drive that had been designed to capture or seal off these and other supply points.

Within several days the entire depot had been moved to another location 50 miles away and the only items lost were the tank tracks.

"They evacuated, yet they stayed in business and kept the troops well supplied and kept up the repair work too," Colonel Medaris said. "And our casualties were very light."

* * * * * * * *

NEGRO, WHITE MP TEAM SMASHES
CHERBOURG BLACK MARKET RING

CHERBOURG, France---Members of a provisional detachment of Negro Military Police, patrolling the huge harbors of Cherbourg along with veteran white soldiers of the GI gendarmerie, discovered and later smashed a black market ring here on the first night of operations, it was announced today.

The detachment is formed largely from Negro port battalions, quartermaster and amphibious truck companies.

Private First Class Wilson Forbes, 1109 East Earle Street, Waco, Texas, and his patrol mate, Private First Class Harry Werner (white) of 6155 Pershing Street, St. Louis, Missouri, detected suspicious activity in a side street here where headquarters of a small-time black market gang were set up. Working closely with French police, the two MPs kept a close vigil of the neighborhood until the time was ripe for a full-scale raid.

MORE

Resultant arrests were numerous and a considerable swag of looted American Army supplies was recovered.

The Military Police Commanding Officer here praised both men, stating, "Despite the fact that both Pfc. Werner and Pfc. Forbes were but recently assigned to Military Police duty, they handled the situation in an efficient and thorough manner and are to be highly commended for their alertness and efficiency."

It has been found that patrol is more effective when Negro and white MPs are paired off together. "The whole task of patrolling is aided by this system, which was previously used in England," stated Captain Arnold S. Kemp (white), 111 Cochren Place, Valley Stream, New York City. "The men work together easily and their job of enforcement is made a lot simpler."

Members of the Negro detachment are: (Officers)--Lt. William R. Oliver, 64 Grove St., Meriden, Conn.; Lt. Frank T. Lyerson, 1513 Goode St., St. Louis, Mo.; W/O. Nathan H. Davis, 2107 N. 5th St., Milwaukee, Wis.

(Enlisted men)--ARKANSAS: Manderville--Pvt. Andrew Dansby; Texarkana--Pvt. Rodney C. Bennett, 703 Ash St.

CALIFORNIA: San Francisco--Pvt. John Brooks, 2731 Pine St.; Pasadena--Pvt. Paul E. Harris, 1241 Glenn Ave.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA: Washington--Pvt. Robert H. Smith, 1304 22nd St.,N.W.

FLORIDA: Ocala--Sgt. Clarence C. Fears.

INDIANA: Indianapolis--Pvt. Roosevelt H. Caldwell, 1325 S. Pershing St.

KANSAS: Topeka--Pfc. Thomas L. Buggs, 412 N. Chandler St.

KENTUCKY: Newport--Pvt. James H. Smith, 324 Columbia St.

LOUISIANA: Mansfield--Pvt. Dennis M. Carter, Route 3, Box 170; New Orleans--Pvt. Lewis Franklin, 433 Newton St.; Pvt. Rod Lathan, 2822 Washington Ave.

MARYLAND: Baltimore--Pfc. William O. Chase, 1302 Fremont St.

MISSISSIPPI: Greenville--Pvt. Cassie Murphy, 908 Harvey St.; Greenwood--Cpl. Ditto Howard, 708 Fulton St.

MISSOURI: St. Louis--Pvt. Edward Marshall, 4318 W. Bell St.; Pvt. George W. France, 3109 Vine Grove Ave.; Pvt. Warren H. Crawford, 2211 Market St.

NEW JERSEY: Belmar--Pvt. Julius P. Brumfield, 406½ 9th Ave.; Jericho--Pfc. George Evans, Male Ave.; Newark--Pvt. Robert Monroe, 610 N. 4th St.

NEW YORK: Brooklyn--Cpl. Freeman D. Mason, 557 Franklin Ave.; Pvt. Charles M. Forbes, 300 Patchen Ave.; Pfc. Howard Smith, 1745 Prospect Pl.; New York City--Pvt. James F. Norton, Jr., 1390 Clinton Ave.; Yonkers--Pvt. Abram R. Walker, 123½ Waverly St.

NORTH CAROLINA: Durham--Pfc. Cornell Crawford, 913 Sparkman Alley; Larksville--Cpl. Edward L. Miller, 514 Henry St.; Raleigh--Pvt. Willie L. Miller, 18 Franklin Terrace.

OHIO: Akron--Cpl. William C. Sales, 389 Albert Pl.; Columbus--Pfc. William E. Hurt, 498½ E. Mound St.; Springfield--Pvt. Irvin Gentry, 311 Raffensperger St.

OKLAHOMA: Okmulgee--Pvt. Henry Hicks, Jr., Route 1, Box 166A.

PENNSYLVANIA: Philadelphia--Sgt. James H. Peddy, 1542 N. 11th St.; Pittsburgh--Pvt. Paul Ray Smith, 7117 Hermitage St.; Swissville--Pvt. Donald Burrell, 7419 Callie St.

MORE

SOUTH CAROLINA: Bucksport--Pfc. John H. Wallace, Box 1; Charleston--Pfc. Joe Williams, Route 2, Box 28A, Jokks Island; Columbia--Pvt. Harold Gelzer, 1016 Harden St.; North Charleston--Pfc. Charlie Wigfall, Route 6, Box 131, Navy Yard.

TEXAS: Henderson--Pvt. Clinton Brown, Route 1; Otasca--Pfc. Wilson Forbes.

VIRGINIA: Portsmouth--Pvt. Samuel J. Hunt, 714 Pine St.; Richmond--Pvt. Edward H. Harris, 1827 Thomas St.

* * * * * * * *

TWO NEGRO GI'S WOUNDED IN TANK
BATTLES RECOVERING IN ENGLAND

WITH U.S. TROOPS IN THE UNITED KINGDOM---Recovering at hospitals in England from wounds received in battle are two members of the first Negro tank battalion to see action in the European Theater of Operations.

Wounded in the left leg by German artillery shrapnel as his tank column was ambushed during the drive on Honskirch, Germany, Sergeant Carson D. Mascoll, 25, of 217 South Franklin Street, Hempstead, Long Island, New York, is recovering at the 162nd United States Army General Hospital.

Sergeant Mascoll was helped by members of another tank crew from his blazing vehicle after it had been hit by an artillery shell fired from a German position in the woods.

"I was tank commander, but was acting as loader in the lead tank of the 105s," the New York sergeant said, "and we were proceeding along the road to Honskirch when suddenly the entire column was blasted by a hail of shells."

When the intense and sudden barrage halted, the wounded sergeant limped back along the road until he found refuge in an abandoned house. Here he was treated later by medics and taken to the battalion aid station. He was operated upon for the removal of shell fragments and was given a plasma transfusion and penicillin injections at an evacuation hospital. He was later flown to England.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Claudius A. Mascoll of the Franklin Street address, he had finished his second year of pre-law at St. John's University in Brooklyn at the time of his entrance into the Army in June 1942. He received his training at Fort Knox, Kentucky.

In an effort to leave his disabled tank after it had been stopped by a direct hit from an 88-mm gun, Private Evert Robinson, 29, of 1116 North Second Street, East St. Louis, Illinois, was hit by shell fragments as he climbed out the smoking turret. He is now recovering at the United States Army 185th General Hospital.

"Three of our Shermans were fighting their way through the streets of a small French town," said Private Robinson, gunner of his tank. "The rest of our battalion was covering the town from positions on a hill."

"Jerry suddenly zeroed-in the hill and the 88s came over. The first shell fell short and the next one scored a direct hit on my tank. I was climbing out of the turret when the third shell hit and flying fragments caught me in the arm."

Private Robinson entered the Army in May 1942, and received his training at Fort Knox, Kentucky. His wife, Mrs. Esther Robinson, and son, Tyronne, live at the North Second Street address. He is the son of Mr. Ray Robinson of Moro, Arkansas.

Both Hopkins and Mascoll have been awarded the Purple Heart.

* * * * * * * *

MORE

CAR COMPANY DRIVER
SURVIVES BUZZ-BOMB

WITH U.S. SUPPLY FORCES IN BELGIUM---Thrown clear of his vehicle and showered with debris, Private First Class R.C. Henderson, 2877 Imperial Avenue, San Diego, California, of the 524 Quartermaster Car Company, Advance Section, Communications Zone, suffered no ill effects when a buzz-bomb landed near his vehicle recently.

Henderson was driving for three enlisted men of the Engineer Section of the Advance Section, Communications Zone, when he observed the missile falling. The three occupants with the driver experienced similar concussions, but none was injured seriously enough to warrant medical aid.

Chalking this up as just another experience in his daily routine, Henderson recalls the strafings and sniper activities he's undergone while driving for the Inspector General's office.

Henderson entered the Army at Ft. Sam Houston, Texas, June 26, 1942. He was a former saw mill employee and singing instructor. The Brisby Chapel Quartet, Harmonize, and Sunset Six, were some of the choral groups organized by Henderson in the southwestern section of the United States.

* * * * * * * *

NEGRO GI WINS MEDAL FOR HEROIC RESCUE IN FRANCE

WITH THE 535th PORT COMPANY, France---Risking his life to save a soldier who tumbled into the icy waters of this port city's outer harbor from aboard the first troop transport to arrive here, a Negro private, Hamilton Allen, Jr., 23, Box 15A, Cypress, Texas, has been awarded the Soldier's Medal for heroism.

Presented to him before a full company formation by Colonel August H. Schroeder, Port Commander, the Soldier's Medal is given for heroism in operations not involving the enemy.

Working as a stevedore aboard the transport, Private Allen swung into action the minute the "man overboard" cry sounded. A soldier, weighted down with a full field pack, had slipped between the big vessel and unloading barges. Private Allen shinnied down a rope into the water, seized the man, and hauled him up to safety. In the water, both rescuer and victim were in deadly peril, since a slight roll in the sea would have sent the barge crashing against the transport's hull, crushing them both.

"We are proud of Private Allen's prompt and courageous action," said his Battalion Commanding Officer, Lieutenant Colonel Frank I. Kiefer, of Bay St. Louis, Mississippi. "His initiative and resourcefulness reflect credit upon himself, his battalion, and the United States Army."

At the Medal ceremony, the Texas soldier's Company paraded in his honor, and a large military band played, the Stars and Stripes snapping in a stiff breeze before the procession.

Before entering the service, Private Allen was employed in dairy and farming work. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Allen, Sr., reside at Cypress, Texas.

* * * * * * * *

SHELLS WRECK JEEP TWICE;
SIGNAL DRIVER ESCAPES INJURY

WITH U.S. SUPPLY FORCES IN BELGIUM---While in St. Lo during a heavy shelling by the enemy, Private Jesse L. Sanford, Tuskegee, Alabama, member of the 41st Signal Construction Battalion, escaped injury when a shell landed a few feet in front of his jeep.

MORE

Sanford, on detached service with the Signal Section of the Advance Section, Communications Zone, recently experienced a similar incident at the front. In both incidents the vehicle was wrecked, but Sanford and his passengers managed somehow to escape uninjured.

He was inducted at Ft. Benning, Georgia, February 17, 1943. A chauffeur in civilian life, Sanford was a member of the glee club at the Cotton Valley School. He is the son of Mrs. Lucy Sanford, of Tuskegee.

* * * * * * * *

WALLA WALLA AAF WACS ASSIST
B-24 CREWS IN TRAINING POST

WALLA WALLA ARMY AIR FIELD, Washington---This Air Field is proud of the work being done by members of its Negro Women's Army Corps squadron under the command of Lieutenant Blanche L. Scott. Since May 1, 1944, when the squadron was organized here under the Fourth Air Force, these women have been doing jobs necessary to the training of B-24 Liberator bomber crews. All have come here from WAC training centers.

Members of this squadron are serving as stenographers, clerks, welders, medical and surgical assistants, nurses' aides, dental hygienists, mechanics, chaplain's assistants and journalists. A brief trip about the base would show these women serving in base operations, aircraft maintenance, flying and ground training, base shops, mess division, quartermaster supply, station hospital, base photo laboratory, physical training, base newspaper--in fact, in just about every department on this field.

Proud to be members of the Women's Army Corps, they are working in their duty assignments so efficiently that section heads throughout the field have commended them.

Many are continuing in the field of work in which they had training and experience in civilian life; others are receiving training in work new to them, which they plan to follow when victory is won.

Private Vera A. Burll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar P. Burll, of 321 St. Nicholas Avenue, New York City, is typical of the Negro WACs. She is assigned at this Fourth Air Force base as a clerk typist at combat crew headquarters. She enlisted in the WAC March 16, 1944 and received her basic training at the First Women's Army Corps Training Center, Fort Des Moines, Iowa.

Private Mary Crawford, of Newport Road, Marshallton, Delaware, also is classified as a clerk typist, in which work she assists in preparing correspondence and officers' pay accounts. A student at Dover State College, Dover, Delaware, for one year, she enlisted in the WAC at Wilmington, Delaware, in May 1944. She was assigned to this base from Fort Des Moines.

* * * * * * * *

BAKERY COMPANY SETS BREAD
PRODUCTION RECORD IN FRANCE

WITH U.S. SUPPLY FORCES IN FRANCE---The 3033rd Quartermaster Bakery Company, a Negro unit now supplying bread to the troops of the Oise Section of France, topped all U.S. Army bread production records in the European Theater of Operations in the period from July 15 to September 30, 1944. During that time the unit produced 1,495,746 pounds of bread.

Mounted on trailers, the bakery is entirely mobile. The ovens have a baking capacity of 288 loaves and are heated by Diesel fuel. Production is on a 24-hour-a-day basis, and the company operates in two shifts. The net production is approximately 15,000 pounds of bread per shift.

MORE

The Bronze Star Medal has been awarded the men of the 3033rd for "bravery and efficiency of work" while on the Normandy beachhead. They landed and set up for operations shortly after D-Day. Interruptions were frequent during the early stages of the battle of France, necessitating hasty exits from the trailers to foxholes, where they beat off German attacks with small arms fire.

When the GI bakers operated in England, they were located in a section of Southern England known as "Robot Alley," so-called because the German flying bombs passed over that area on the way to London.

Among the other accomplishments of the unit is the setting up of the first French civilian bakery. Captured German equipment was used.

Members of the unit include First Sergeant Royal J. Nickens, of 3830 North Sydenham Street, North Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, who conducts a weekly Vesper service for the men on Sunday nights, and Sergeant Wendell G. Reynolds of 416 St. Nicholas Avenue, New York City, a section supervisor.

* * * * * * * *

NEGRO GI'S DIRECT LOADING
OF 'AIRBORNE' AMMUNITION

WITH THE 647th ORDNANCE AMMUNITION COMPANY, France---"More ammunition!"... Down from the Belgian battle ground and across the snow crusted hollows of the Saar and Ruhr valleys comes that persistent plea of combat soldiers.

And part of the answer is by way of giant C-47 air transports, whose loading here is supervised by this expert unit of Negro ammunition handlers.

"So long as the Joes at the front need it, we'll break our necks loading the stuff," says Staff Sergeant Roy J. Evans, 872 East 50th Street, Los Angeles, California.

Specially trained for their dangerous and painstaking task, these men arrived in France shortly after the invasion and have helped supply ammunition for the Armies in each of our offensives. They have sent ammunition hurtling to the front by truck, train, and air transport.

During the Brest siege, the unit was charged with filling the ammunition needs of the fighting 8th Corps, which finally cleared that important port city. Red Ball Express train-truck convoys have poured from the giant dump where the men work.

Work 17-Hours

"Some of our non-commissioned officers have been putting in 17-hour days for months," reports Second Lieutenant R. D. Worthen, Information Service Officer.

Throughout the early phases of our Normandy struggle, the dump was frequently alerted for air attack. "If a bomb had landed anywhere around us," reports Technical Sergeant Harry T. Johnson, Box 338, Avon, New York, "we would have been blown sky high."

Responsible for the entire operation of the vast dump here, the Company boasts expert privates who are assigned to supervising the work of French civilians. As the increasing demand for ammunition of all kinds sends the scale of operation higher each week, the unit is charged with added responsibilities. For instance, they have doubled as a fire-fighting crew when flames shot up from a gasoline pipe line near the dump. While fighting the blaze, the men also managed to remove several tons of ammunition from the danger zone.

Revolutionizing the "book systems" of ammunition loading, a suggestion of Master Sergeant John E. Fredie, 1291 Bergen Street, Brooklyn, New York, led to the establishment of an "off loading" place in the dead center of the town square of a local French village, a central location that reduced traffic along back roads to the dump sight.

MORE

Then "General Mud" started his campaign. At first a few rains, then a steady downpour. The French fields became a sloppy swamp and soon a stack of ammunition in the middle of a pasture seemed miles away. Trucks bogged down and all operations were slowed.

One of the men had an idea. Veteran of the Alcan Highway construction, he offered to plot a dry roadside through the morass if given the bulldozer to do it with. Soon there was a roadside where experts said a roadside was impossible. The ammunition moved again.

"It's a tough job, but it's ours and we'll stick at it until we're doing KP in Berlin," said Private George W. Gamble, 2115 Ellis Street, Brunswick, Georgia.

Enlisted members of the 647th Ordnance Ammunition Company are as follows:

ALABAMA: Pineapple--Pvt. Oliver G. Hinds, Route 2, Box 23; Repton--Pvt. Allen Coleman.

ARKANSAS: Hot Springs--Pfc. Alonzo Jones, 141½ West Lane.

CALIFORNIA: Los Angeles--Staff Sgt. Roy J. Evans, 872 East 50th St.; Pfc. Henry Gibson, 1526½ East 52nd St.; San Diego--Cpl. Johnnie Tucker, 2020 Franklin Ave.

FLORIDA: Dania--Pfc. Grover Gilliam, Box 771; McDavid--Pvt. Roy Carter, Route 5, Box 100.

GEORGIA: Brunswick--Pvt. George W. Gamble, 2115 Ellis St.; Newman--Pvt. Edward Smith, 8 Smith St.

ILLINOIS: Chicago--Pvt. Oscar L. Clay, Jr., 6231 South Parkway; Pfc. George W. Hopson, 402 West 14th St.; Pvt. William E. Moore, 1223 South Blue Island Ave.

KENTUCKY: Lexington--Tech. Sgt. Henry S. Riley, 522 West 5th St.

LOUISIANA: Baton Rouge--Pfc. Charlie Follins, 1632 Blanche Courts; New Orleans--Pvt. Emile Williams, 2114 St. Andrews St.

MARYLAND: Texas--Cpl. Elwood H. Smith.

MICHIGAN: Flint--Pvt. William Skelton, 1237 Garfield.

MISSISSIPPI: Columbus--Cpl. Albert Thomas, 2404 Bell Ave.; Corinth--Tech. Sgt. Jerry E. Webb, 1109 Meiggs St.; Greenwood--Pfc. Charles Redditt, 707 Ave. J; Lawrence--Sgt. Frank W. Gambrell, Route 1, Box 13E; Meridian--Pvt. Walter B. Thomas, 128 31st Ave.; Picayune--Sgt. Marshall Avery, Route 2, Box 96; Shore--Pvt. Willie McCray, Jr., Route 1, c/o Carr Stores.

MISSOURI: St. Louis--Pvt. Luster Blackman, 3000 Vinegrove St.

NEW JERSEY: Atlantic City--Pvt. Gerald O. Gittens, 105 Briddel Terrace; Haddenfield--Pvt. James E. Armstead, 230 Douglas Ave.; Newark--Pvt. Timothy B. Bell, 2515 8th Ave.; Sewell--Pvt. George Bailey, Mail Ave.; Trenton--Pvt. Elwood White, 121 N. Clinton St.

NEW YORK: Albany--Pfc. Raymond Jordan, 49 Market St.; Avon--Tech. Sgt. Harry T. Johnson, P.O. Box 388; Bridgehampton--Pvt. Clarence G. Marshall, Box 323; Bronx--Staff Sgt. Howard St. C. Crosby, 1226 Boston Rd.; Pvt. Sidney Phillips, 775 Jennings St.; Sgt. Mike Sasportas, 3718 Third Ave.; Staff Sgt. Benjamin S. Smith, 872 Trinity Ave.; Brooklyn--Staff Sgt. Vernon Q. Agard, 444 Putnam Ave.; Sgt. Eddie J. Anderson, 1473 Pacific St.; Pvt. Wilfred H. Armstead, 458 Madison St.; Pvt. Therman Bowers, 433 Jefferson Ave.; Cpl. William

MORE

R. Bracey, 2118 Dean St.; Pvt. Milton L. Bryan, 299 Ashford St.; Pvt. George Davis, 1229 Union St.; Cpl. Owen Dick, 1525 Pacific St.; Cpl. Lawrence F. Erwin, 1354 Fulton St.; Cpl. William Z. Flowers, 527A Hancock St.; Pfc. Clairmont A. Ford, 25 Brevoort Pl.; Pvt. Lawrence A. Ford, 439 Jefferson Ave.; Pfc. Joseph Ford, 1833 Fulton St.; Sgt. Robert S. Foster, 188 Hancock St.; Cpl. Ernest H. Franks, 285 Quincy St.; Master Sgt. John E. Fredia, 1291 Bergen St.; Pfc. Ellsworth Garrison, 680 Broadway; Pvt. William H. Hall, 440 Classon Ave.; Pfc. Thomas Hampton, 289 Jefferson Ave.; Cpl. Louis T. Hinds, 1393 Fulton St.; Cpl. Robert Hoyle, 969 St. Marks Ave.; Pvt. Alfonso R. Hunter, 252 Madison Ave.; Sgt. Cleveland Kirkpatrick, 421 Halsey St.; Cpl. Bernard Knight, 41 Watkins St.; Pvt. Lorenzo Mitchell, 82 Somers St.; Cpl. Samuel W. Pigler, 1164 Pacific St.; Pvt. James D. Rhone, 969 St. Marks Ave.; Cpl. John W. Richardson, 103 Macon St.; Pvt. Harry C. Shorts, 950 St. Marks Ave.; Pvt. Henry G. Simpson, 17 Spencer Pl.; Pfc. Bennie L. Stevens, 334 Bergen St.; Sgt. Lloyd Stewart, 548 Rockaway Ave.; Pvt. Chester C. Thomas, 583 Warren St.; Cpl. James Thomas, 410A Hancock St.; Pfc. Caeser P. Walker, 371 Madison St.; Pfc. David E. Williams, 336 Jefferson Ave.; Pfc. Edward Williams, 801 East 10th St.; Pfc. Edward Z. Wilson, 1391 Dean St.; Cedarhurst--Pvt. Wilmer Harrison, 471 Willow Ave.; Chatham--Pfc. King Johnson, Box 293; Hempstead--Pvt. Martin L. Donaldson, 107 Laurel Ave.; Pvt. Martin J. James, 5 Riverside Drive; Huntington--Cpl. William L. Johnson, 985 New York Ave.; Inwood--Pfc. Mose Hudson, 10 Alvin Pl.; Jamaica--Cpl. Jerome H. Darby, 159-07 109 Ave.; Pvt. John Freeman, 110-03 New York Blvd.; Pvt. Albert C. Green, 153-48 113 Ave.; Pfc. Fred C. Hewlett, 145-08 105th Ave.; Pfc. Howard E. Pittman, 111-39 158th St.; Pfc. James Williams, 108-26 Union Hall St.; Mount Vernon--Pfc. Alex Major, 60 Gramatan Ave.; Pfc. Arthur Williams, 229 South 6th St.; New Rochelle--Pvt. Huntley Williams, 166 Hoguenot St.; New York--Cpl. Hercules Amaker, 160 West 119 St.; Pfc. Tom Boyd, Jr., 16 Morningside Ave.; Pvt. Harold Brown, 427 West St.; Pvt. Charles Bryan, 17 West 137th St.; Cpl. Silvester Butts, 157 West 122nd St.; Cpl. Carl L. Deane, 522 West 146th St.; Pfc. David Easley, 211 West 140th St.; Pvt. Leon L. Elston, 55 West 137th St.; Pfc. George W. Evans, 208 West 141st St.; Pvt. Mallie Evans, 253 West 116th St.; Sgt. Walter C. Ferris, 1450 5th Ave.; Pfc. James I, Fitzgerald, 356 West 146th St.; Cpl. William Frazier, 234 West 142nd St.; Pfc. Anzy Henderson, 63 West 143rd St.; Pvt. Paul Holiman, 479 West 146th St.; Pvt. Lewis W. Jordan, 475 West 146th St.; Pfc. Ruben Patterson, 409 West 129th St.; Pfc. Preston L. Phillips, 60 East 118th St.; Pfc. Obdulio Quinones, 56 East 107th St.; Pfc. William A. Rich, 321 St. Nicholas Ave.; Pvt. Leroy Robinson, 2903 8th Ave.; Pvt. James C. Robbins, 456 West 145th St.; Pvt. Augustine Senhouse, 245 West 132nd St.; Cpl. Thomas L. Sawyer, 95 West 119th St.; Cpl. Walter Starke, 131 Edgecombe Ave.; Sgt. Laska F. Strachan, 54 West 140th St.; Pvt. Maxwell A. Thompson, 267 West 144th St.; Pvt. Richard E. Thornley, 90 Edgecomb Ave.; Pvt. Willie H. Thrower, 612 St. Nicholas Ave.; Pfc. Robert H. Ward, 2380 8th Ave.; Cpl. William H. Warnick, 40 Hamilton Terrace; Pfc. Eric Wharton, 6 Hamilton Terrace; Pfc. Lafayette Williams, 352 West 124th St.; Pvt. Donald E. Woodland, 2078 8th Ave.; Pfc. Horace Wortham, 440 Manhattan Ave.; Port Chester--Pfc. Michael Anjos, 65 Lake St.; Poughkeepsie--Cpl. Thomas D. Green, 46 Albany St.; Sgt. Amos Howard, 51 Union St.; Richmond--Cpl. Lewis K, Hatchett, 798 Richmond Terrace; Sgt. Leonard F. Murphy, 117 North Burgher Ave.; Pvt. Lawrence T. Valentine, 23 Brooks St.; Rome--Pfc. Frederick Watson, 624; Woodland Ave.; Tuckahoe--Pvt. Joseph Venable, 41 Chestnut St.; Utica--Pvt. Sanford Favors, 527 Elizabeth St.; White Plains--Staff Sgt. William W. Fisher, Jr., 282 Brookfield St.; Pvt. Tillman Harrison, 29 Tarrytown Rd.; Pfc. Marshall Lee, 66 West Morland Ave.; Cpl. Ernest Ward, 79 Grove St.; Pvt. Lawrence C. Valentine, 180 Warren Ave.; Yonkers--Pfc. Daniel Venable, 15 Dunbar St.:

NORTH CAROLINA: Clinton--Pfc. John J. Tew, 126 Lisloon St.; Edenton--Pvt. Melvin Littlejohn, Route 2, Box 192; Garland--Staff Sgt. James L. Allen, Box 164; Green City--Sgt. Seanus F. Edwards, Route 2, Snow Hill; Greenville--Pvt. Charles W. Brown, 101 Maloy St.; High Point--Pvt. Jethro J. Monroe, 1333 East Washington St.; Wilsons Mills--Pfc. Young Vinson.

OHIO: Dayton--First Sgt. Paul N. Morrow, 936 Iola St.

OKLAHOMA: Muskogee--Pvt. Arthur L. Kendrick, 908 South 20th St.; Tulsa--Pfc. Joseph Bailey, 302 North Frankfort.

MORE

PENNSYLVANIA: Chester--Pfc. Henry Lane, 1700 West 3rd St.; Philadelphia--Cpl. Victor G. Harrison, 2020 Fernon St.; Pittsburgh--Tech. Sgt. Fletcher Davis, 2914 Pennsylvania Ave.; Washington--Pvt. Robert L. Keene, 945 Arch St.

TENNESSEE: Jackson--Cpl. Sam Trice, Jr., 243 Virginia St.; Johnson City--Sgt. James L. Davis, 131 Elmo St.; Knoxville--Sgt. David Smith, 2309 Alvin St.; Pvt. Lawrence Summey, 300 North University Ave.; Memphis--Tech. Sgt. Ural B. Adams, 1215 Canada St.; Nashville--Staff Sgt. Herschell Black, 620 North Third St.; Petersburg--Pvt. Bailey Fishback.

TEXAS: New Boston--Pvt. Felix Williams.

VIRGINIA: Drakes Branch--Pvt. Charlie A. Andrews; Natural Bridge--Sgt. James E. Sadler, Route 1; Newport News--Cpl. Homer P. Brown, 1041 36th St.; Pvt. Alfonso Spivey, 1141 32nd St.; Richmond--Tech. Sgt. Walter J. Thompson, 4526 35½ St.

WASHINGTON: Seattle--Staff Sgt. Clem L. Gallerson, 114 24th North.

WEST VIRGINIA: Huntington--Pvt. Wallace Burnette, 1633½ Tenth Ave.

END

DISTRIBUTION: Ad.
1-23-45.

25-20845-600

FUTURE RELEASE
PLEASE NOTE DATE

516

WAR DEPARTMENT
Bureau of Public Relations
NEWS DIVISION
Washington, D. C.

FOR RELEASE MONDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 1945

* * * *

Amid the whizzing bullets, Corporal Thompson fought a fire in one of the freight cars, in a vain effort to rescue three men who had been trapped. By the time he extinguished the flames it was too late, for the men had died from bullet wounds.

Removing the bodies of the dead men from the charred remains of the car, Corporal Thompson then went about removing gas and oil from the other cars in the 15-car train.

"There were no signs of disorder or panic among the men as they left the train and sought cover on terrain that had very little protection to offer," said Second Lieutenant Ernest W. Anderson, of Corydon, Indiana.

Lieutenant Anderson was mentioned by most of the men as having been responsible for the small amount of victims among the 206 enlisted men on the train. In relating the role played by the lieutenant that night, Staff Sergeant Carl Haines, 1202 West Oak Street, Louisville, Kentucky, said:

"Apparently Lieutenant Anderson must have been asleep, because when I first saw him he was coming down the train to where the car was burning, very scantily clad. It was cold, snow was on the ground, but he was among the men offering assistance where he could, and directing others to a wood almost a mile from the railroad track. During all this, the plane attacked twice more."

Haines, modest of his own display of courage, was cited by his comrades for failing to leave the scene until all others had been removed. He assisted with the wounded, and made frequent trips to the train to procure bandages and blankets for the men.

According to Second Lieutenant Joseph P. O'Neill, 4706 Greene Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, "It was remarkable how the wounded men behaved. Some of them had pretty nasty looking wounds, but they did not cry out or whimper. They just lay where they were and waited patiently until aid reached them. Those who were able to, assisted others unable to help themselves."

The night before, enemy planes, after firing several bursts at the train, were driven off by antiaircraft gunners. While in one city, where the train had stopped for rations, the company, assigned to Advance Section, Communications Zone, was forced to abandon the train for an air-raid shelter.

Recipients of two letters of commendation for operations in England and on the beach, members of the outfit proudly wear a Sea Horse insignia, awarded them for their outstanding work at Omaha Beach, where their unit designation is inscribed on a monument. At that time they were assisting the 6th Engineer Special Brigade in amphibious operations. The men also were guards over captured Germans working on the Red Ball highway.

* * * * * * * *

DOOMED NAZI PILOT STILL OUT OF RANGE AT 560 M.P.H.

AAF REDISTRIBUTION STATION NO. 1, ATLANTIC CITY, New Jersey---He's pretty tall--six feet two--to be a fighter pilot, and while he was telling about his experience in Italy as a member of the famed 99th Fighter Squadron his voice was so soft it was almost inaudible.

Only once did Lieutenant Richard W. Hall, of 512 Mercer Avenue, Albany, Georgia, speak at all sharply, and even then the note was more of disappointment than of anger. "Yes, I finally got one of them. But I ran him into the ground without firing a shot. I caught him tailing my flight leader and then he saw me and dove straight down from 22,000 feet. I tried to catch up with him--last time I looked at my air-speed indicator it read 560--but he was still out of range when he struck."

MORE

The 24-year-old Negro flier flew 78 short-range and 33 long-range missions during his year of duty in the Mediterranean. Most of the time he piloted a Mustang fighter and he regards the P-51 highly. "It's the best plane of all," he said.

Lieutenant Hall should know because he's been flying ever since his student days at Hampton Institute in 1940, when he got his private pilot's license flying a Piper Cub.

The husband of Mrs. Irma L. Hall, 1325 Prospect Avenue, Bronx, New York, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hall, of Albany, Lieutenant Hall wears the European campaign ribbon with three battle stars and the Air Medal with three Oak Leaf clusters.

* * * * * * * *

VETERAN OF ARGONNE
CONFIDENT OF VICTORY

WITH THE 3185th QUARTERMASTER SERVICE COMPANY IN FRANCE---Forty-two-year-old Private M. Johnson, 23 Avon Place, Newark, New Jersey, fought through the Argonne Forest in a trench motar section of the fighting 92nd Division during the last war, and today has returned to join another drive against his old enemies.

An assistant to the first sergeant of this vital supply unit, Private Johnson recalls the bitter struggle of a quarter century ago. "We've got to win the thing good and proper this time," he points out.

A participant in the battle which broke the Hindenburg lines, the New Jersey soldier said he would like to see its successor. "I think we'll crack the Siegfried the same way we did the Hindenburg--wide open," he said.

Important mission assigned to his present outfit is the operation of a giant Quartermaster depot.

* * * * * * * *

FOUR HOME AFTER DUTY
IN AFRICA, MIDDLE EAST

MIAMI ARMY AIR FIELD, Miami, Florida---Four Negro fighting men, en route to their homes after months of overseas service in the Middle East and African theaters, are clearing AAF Air Transport Command's Miami Army Air Field following an ocean-crossing hop to the United States aboard a huge ATC transport plane.

They are Technician Fourth Grade Earl Giles, 34, son of Mrs. Christina Giles, 517 N. Bruce Street, Baltimore, Maryland, overseas 24 months; Technician Fifth Grade Frank H. Mansaw, 20, whose parents live at 900 Walker Street, Kansas City, Kansas, and his wife at 2606 North 5th Street, 17 months; Corporal Johnny Porter, 29, of Gilbert, Louisiana, 23 months; Corporal Theodore H. Austin, 25, son of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Austin, 1303 Manning Avenue, Columbia, South Carolina, and whose wife lives at 2407 Green Street, 18 months overseas.

Technician Fourth Grade Giles was assigned to an ordnance outfit, the other three to medical units.

* * * * * * * *

LEDO ROAD HAS UNIQUE
JUNGLE MOTOR HOSPITAL

ALONG THE LEDO ROAD---Today the world's most unusual super-service station operates along the Ledo Road, American-built highway between India and Burma. No neon lights or brightly colored signs clamor for patronage nor do white-coated attendants hover about.

MORE

Rude, "bulldozered" driveways lead to this jungle garage squatting in the shadows of the Patkai Hills of upper Assam, where open-sided bamboo sheds house an impressive array of both modern and ingeniously improvised equipment. Beneath these tall shelters, roofed with jeng leaves from the nearby wilderness, American Negro soldiers and native Indian workers are keeping a never-ending stream of Uncle Sam's trucks rolling to the Burma front with vital war supplies

Nowhere else does the Army run a localized maintenance system on such a large scale. It is in fact an innovation, an example of American initiative and resourcefulness resulting from exceptional circumstances and conditions. It grew out of a need to lick, and to lick immediately, a motor maintenance problem which is the hardest, toughest, most heart-breaking in the world.

Brigadier General Lewis A. Pick, Base Commander in the India-Burma Theater and himself a "producer of miracles," called upon his Ordnance Officer to produce a maintenance miracle. Lieutenant Colonel A.A. Kaufman, a hard-hitting Texan, knew what the General meant. A firm believer in the Army's time-tried "echelon" system of maintenance, he swiftly set about making it work under almost unbelievable conditions.

Motor experts who have been over the Ledo Road agree that it is one of the most gruelling motor thoroughfares on earth. Winding and twisting and dipping over the forbidding peaks and through the desolate valleys of the Assam-Burma region, its countless sharp curves, its terrifically steep grades, and its abrasive dust take a deadly toll.

Grit, stones, mud, gravel, and rutty, bumpy road surfaces tear and slash cruelly at tires and breaks. Heavy loads and constant pounding vibrate and loosen motors and housings, particularly on the fast, flat runs in the Hukawng and Mogaung Valleys, and in the torrential cloudbursts, common in the long monsoon seasons, clutch housings, throw-out bearings, and brake linings become thoroughly saturated and subject to quick deterioration.

Colonel Kaufman planned something similar to a mass-production assembly line whereby each vehicle could enter a shop, roadworn and dirty, and emerge completely washed, checked, serviced, and repaired.

Covering an area of five jungle-cleared acres, this shop consists of a series of bamboo structures set in a square pattern around a parking lot, which is capable of holding 300 trucks. Designed to support a vehicle population of 1,000, it can, on a twenty-hour operational basis, clear up to 300 vehicles. It is operated by 110 U.S. Army soldiers, 140 Indian mechanics and laborers, and a transportation service staff of five officers, headed by Major R.J. Keefer.

* * * * * * * *

DRIVERS VOLUNTEER FOR "MERCY" MISSION

WITH THE ADVANCE U.S. SUPPLY FORCES IN BELGIUM---When defenseless medical personnel and patients of the 130th General Hospital had to be evacuated recently from the flaming path of von Rundstedts' offensive, volunteer Negro truck and jeep drivers of the 524th Quartermaster Car Company helped to accomplish the job without loss of personnel or vehicles.

The drivers were not combat trained troops, yet, after their commander, Captain Irvine Blum of Baltimore, Maryland, explained the dangers involved, there were twice the number of volunteers needed.

On the signal from the captain, the "mercy" convoy passed through the gates of their billeting area into the dark night, as hostile planes flew overhead. Leading the procession to its destination close to the front, the captain was forced to make detours over shell-pocked roads under extreme blackout conditions.

MORE

"That sure was some night," explained Corporal Charlie White, 91 Beale Street, Memphis, Tennessee. "It was pitch dark and the roads were pretty well messed up,"

"The captain and first sergeant dispatched the vehicles back, as quick as they were loaded," said Private Grady C. Smith, of Oak Grove, Louisiana. "You could hear the big guns and see the flashes when they fired close by."

"Because of the darkness it was difficult to see what was happening," commented Corporal Robert G. Brown, 1021 30th Street, Washington, D.C., "but somehow I managed to maneuver through the heavy tank traffic and get back alright."

After the last vehicle was unloaded safely, miles from the former hospital site, it was three o'clock in the morning before the last driver returned, cold and hungry, to the company.

* * * * * * * *

NEGRO SOLDIERS PROTECT LARGEST DEPOT IN FRANCE

WITH U.S. SUPPLY FORCES IN FRANCE---A Negro Quartermaster unit, the 3241st Service Company, has been assigned the important job of guarding the largest American supply depot in France.

Sprawling over hundreds of acres of land and comprising thousands of square feet of floor space, the depot is a monument to American production and transportation, and a tremendously impressive example of the scale of warfare waged in Western Europe.

Twenty-four hours a day, trains and truck convoys roll in and out on the vast network of sidings and roads linking the depot's many warehouses with main line arteries of transportation.

The supplies arrive direct from the Channel ports and beaches. They go out direct to distribution points--in some cases, for Communications Zone troops a scant few miles away--in other cases, for front line troops many miles away.

Charged with the task of guarding this important depot is Lieutenant Leonard W. Cobbs, 229 Cornell Avenue, Drexel, Dayton, Ohio.

* * * * * * * *

NEGRO FIRE FIGHTERS
DOUBLE AS INSTRUCTORS

WITH ADVANCE U.S. SUPPLY FORCES IN BELGIUM---Doubling their duties of fighting fires, members of the 1233rd Engineer Fire Fighting Company also act as instructors in fire control at various military installations.

The first Negro unit of this type, assigned to Brigadier General Ewart G. Plank's Advance Section, Communications Zone, the outfit, while in England, extinguished a fire in the largest depot in the European Theater of Operations. In less than two hours the 1233rd had the fire under control, saving valuable invasion supplies.

Modern methods of combating fires such as using fog and foam have aided the unit to an extent where ammunition and gasoline fires can be brought under control with the minimum of danger to the men.

Whenever possible the Company obtains various fire fighting apparatus for the civilian firemen. In many instances since their arrival on the Continent in August, the GI firemen have fought civilian fires. The reason, as it was explained, was that the local firemen were short of equipment and in some cases the fires were near military areas.

MORE

Standard equipment used by the Army firemen on the company's two fire trucks and six 6x6 trucks, with trailer-pumpers, had to be altered before they would work on the water hydrants in the local towns and villages.

Fires started by bombings and sabotage have been the greatest concern of the outfit on the Continent. They spent Christmas Day and night battling a fire that resulted from enemy activity.

Sergeant Joseph C. Firmino is a section chief with the unit. His wife, Mary, lives at 476 Purchase Street, New Bedford, Massachusetts. He entered the Army September 10, 1943 at Fort Devens, Massachusetts. As a civilian, Firmino was employed at the Quonsett Rhode Island Naval Base as a hoist operator.

Corporal William DeLuze, a former aviation mechanic at the Quonsett Rhode Island Naval Base, was inducted into the Army September 7, 1943, at Fort Devens. His wife, Ethel, lives at 1896 West Shore Road, Warwick, Rhode Island.

Fire chief, Staff Sergeant Isadore Olivera, 320 South Second Street, New Bedford, Massachusetts, before his induction at Fort Devens, September 10, 1943, was a soloist with his own band. The chief's wife, Catherine, lives at the South Second Street address.

Sergeant Julius C. Morrison, 1081 Tremont Street, Boston, Massachusetts, is a section chief and gas non-com. Morrison recently was overcome by smoke while fighting a fire in a hospital. He entered the service at Fort Devens, September 7, 1943. A former student at Allen University, Columbia, South Carolina, Sergeant Morrison was employed by the Boston Elevated Railroad.

* * * * * * * *

ORDNANCE SERGEANT
AWARDED BRONZE STAR

WITH U.S. FORCES IN FRANCE---For "exceptionally meritorious conduct in face of enemy action," Technical Sergeant Harold F. Jackson, 812-A West Walnut Street, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, has been awarded the Bronze Star.

He is a member of the 57th Ammunition Company, an all-Negro Ordnance unit which was forced to clear an area of Germans before they could set up an ammunition dump near the Belgian border, last September.

Turning infantrymen when they had received word that a German patrol had control of the area they were planning to use, the Ordnance men quickly organized three squads and advanced on the enemy.

Surrounding them in an old barn, the Yanks were met with small arms fire. The men of the ammo company, having only rifles and grenades, could not blast the barn as combat men do. Sergeant Jackson crawled under fire to a vantage point and threw an incendiary grenade into the barn. The ensuing fire forced the Nazis out, where they were picked off, one by one, as they emerged.

* * * * * * * *

A CHURCH IS WHEREVER MEN MEET TO WORSHIP

WITH U.S. FORCES IN FRANCE---A church is wherever people meet to worship God, whether it be a railway station platform or an abandoned German bar-room. Chaplain Vern D. Livengood, husband of Mrs. Vern D. Livengood, 1301 Menor Street, Winfield, Kansas, affirms this fact with his own experiences gained while conducting Army religious services overseas.

Assigned to the 360th Engineer Regiment 2½ years ago at the time of its activation in the States, Chaplain Livengood has taken care of the religious needs of his men in several countries, under all kinds of unusual circumstances.

MORE

Since his regiment left the States, it has been on the move constantly through England, Wales, and France. Movements have been made so often during the nineteen months that the 360th Engineers have been on foreign service, that the men have never had time to build a chapel.

Often the duties of Chaplain Livengood's engineers have scattered the regiment all over the English and French countrysides. When such dispersals are made, it is up to the chaplain to revert to early American custom and ride the circuit. He does this in a jeep, driving for miles every Sunday to hold as many as four or five services.

Circuit travel has always required quick improvisations. Usually the chaplain gathers his soldiers into the nearest available room, or under the shadiest grove of trees. The meeting around the altar which follows, and its spirit, constitute the "church."

And so a church is made of a mess tent, a recreation hall, a hospital ward, a wood of pines, a sweep of grass by the hedgerows. These are the places where the chaplain and his small altar construct a temporary house of God.

Sometimes, even when the men of the regiment are all together in one area, the chaplain has to make improvisations. Usually when they are not separated, the men are engaged in an important task that gives them little time to themselves. Such was the situation when the regiment first arrived in England. The men were working night and day to construct a tremendous supply depot in eastern England. It was at that point that Chaplain Livengood decided to take the church right to the men--right to the job that they were doing. Each Sunday morning he set up church in a Romney hut right in the middle of the partially constructed depot.

Men gathered together in the chaplain's hut--came from similar huts that they were erecting as warehouses all over the dump--and stood before the altar with the dirt, and grease, and paint of "the job" still on them. Outside the unceasing noise of bulldozers, air-compressors, and shuttling railroad cars competed with the message of God, but could not drown it out.

As autumn deepened into a murky English winter, the great open warehouse became a mammoth refrigerator. The men stood around or sat on boxes, wrapped in mackinaws. The chaplain wore overcoat, boots and gloves.

At the organ sat the Chaplain's accompanist, dressed like the chaplain, except for gloves. He played the prelude, then as the opening prayer was said, he pulled out his cigarette-lighter, and warmed his hands in preparation for the first hymn.

One bitter, rainy English Sunday, the men gathered at their warehouse for services, only to learn that the key had been misplaced. Accordingly they voted to hold the service right at the door, gathered around Chaplain Livengood listened to his services, and sang hymns from books that they protected under their coats.

As soon as the supply depot was completed, the regiment started to move from place to place. Temporary chapels were set up in an empty barracks in Cheshire, a camp theater at Cardiff, open fields on the downs of the Salisbury Plains, and a pre-fabricated hut on the side of a Welsh mountain.

Then came D-Day in northern France. The 360th Engineer Regiment followed invasion troops into Normandy, lived in foxholes, and later pup-tents. Chaplai Livengood held his services in the open with a table for an altar, the hedgerows for a wall, the grass for seats, and the troubled blue sky for a roof. On the altar was a large bunch of multi-colored dahlias, presented to the regiment as a token of thanks from townspeople, grateful for their deliverance from the Germans.

When the combat troops moved inland on the Normandy peninsula, the regiment moved forward. After each movement, Chaplain Livengood found a new chapel for his congregation. Once they had the dining room of an old grey-stone Norman chateau that crowned a high hill over-looking the Atlantic Ocean. During services the men could look across the bay to Mont St. Michel, a cathedral town of medieval architecture.

MORE

Another move, and the church was set up in the railway station of St. Brieuc. On Sunday mornings the men would creep out of side-tracked railway coaches that they used as billets. On the station platform they would say their prayers and sing their hymns, to the bewilderment of villagers who later realized that Americans, like themselves, believe in exercising their right of worship, irrespective of circumstances or environment.

With further battle progress of infantry troops during July, the regiment was able to move up to St. Servan, next door to ravaged St. Malo, and the famous Citadel which the Germans turned into a stronghold. Here, in an abandoned German camp theater, with the "boom-boom" of heavy artillery in their ears, the men listened to sermons, performed their ceremonies, and looked curiously at shell-holes in the wall.

On the next important move, the engineer worshippers founded their church in a bar-room in Brest. The bar was part of a large hospital, that the Germans had turned into a hotel for members of their submarine fleet. It was also the least damaged room in a town that had become rubble while the Germans tried to hold it.

By the time the battle of Brittany was completed, there was a job for the 360th Engineers in southern France. Here the regiment split up once again. Three companies in a pup-tent bivouac area under a grove of olive trees, attended Chaplain Livengood's sermons on a grey hillside among the scrubby trees.

At the same time, another company situated miles away on a farm, awaited the chaplain. After his arrival they repaired to a sheep-fold in an old barn; appropriately read: "The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want...."

Each week for over a year and a half, Chaplain Livengood has met the harsh realities of this war in order to successfully minister to his soldier congregation; he has also lived with a dream of the day when he will once again minister to a congregation in the same place, and at the same time every Sunday.

* * * * * * * *

GRID GAME PROCEEDS
GIVEN TWO BOYS CLUBS

FORT HUACHUCA, Arizona---Colonel Edwin N. Hardy, Cavalry, Post Commander, on January 23 signed and mailed two checks in the amounts of $383 each to the Savannah (Negro) Boys Club, Savannah, Georgia, and to Father Flannigan at Boys Town, Nebraska. These funds represent the proceeds of the Copper Bowl football game played at Douglas, Arizona, on Christmas Eve between Fort Huachuca's post team and Colonel Edward O. Gourdin's 372nd Infantry team. The final score: 12 to 6 in favor of the post team.

* * * * * * * *

NONE IN AIR, SO MUSTANG PILOT
ERASED NAZI PLANES ON GROUND

AAF REDISTRIBUTION STATION NO. 1, ATLANTIC CITY, New Jersey---Destroying enemy aircraft on the ground was the specialty of First Lieutenant Edward N. Smith, Negro fighter pilot, of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. He never met a German plane in the air, but during his 111 combat missions in the European Theater of War, he chalked up a total of 15 Nazi fighters ruined before they had a chance to take off.

Nine of this total were taken care of on the same mission, a fighter sweep over Hungary.

MORE

"We sneaked in on a German airfield," Smith said, "and our group got credit for erasing 83 fighter planes before they could take to the air."

Lieutenant Smith flew most of his sorties escorting 15th Air Force heavy bombers on raids over enemy territory. It was on one of these escort missions that he had his closest call with enemy fire.

"Coming back from a demolition job in South Germany," the former Temple University student recalls, "we left the bombers over Lake Balaton, Hungary, as per orders. Starting out to patrol, our squadron leader noticed a Nazi airfield directly below us and decided it would be a good idea to go down and give them a fast strafing.

"We dropped out of the clouds and ran into a terrific antiaircraft barrage. About 25 chuncks of steel tore into my plane. One piece of flak went into my engine, missing the cooling jacket by about half an inch. There were flak holes in both of my wings. By the time I got in, did my work and got out, my fighter looked like a sieve.

Lieutenant Smith, who wears the Air Medal with three Oak Leaf clusters, is now awaiting his next Air Force assignment at the AAF Redistribution Station No. 1 here. His mother, Mrs. Esther Smith, and his wife, Dorothy, live at 1168 South Thirteenth Street, Philadelphia.

* * * * * * * *

"ARMY HOUR" FEBRUARY 11
TO FEATURE NEGRO SOLDIERS

WASHINGTON, D.C.---Negro soldiers of the 92nd Infantry Division which is fighting in Italy, together with Negro returnees from the Southwest Pacific, will be featured om "The Army Hour," weekly NBC broadcast scheduled for February 11, 1945, at 3:30 P.M. (E.W.T.)

Master Sergeant Kermit E. Gantt, San Francisco, California, and Sergeant Gailliard Cooper, Los Angeles, both veterans of the Southwest Pacific campaign, will be interviewed from Fort Huachuca, Arizona, where they are assigned to Special Service Unit 1922. The glee club of the 372nd Infantry Regiment, commanded by Colonel Edward O. Gourdin, also will be heard from Fort Huachuca.

* * * * * * * *

SMOKE COMPANY HELPS GUARD
IMPORTANT PORT IN BELGIUM

WITH U.S. ARMY FORCES IN BELGIUM---Veteran of operations against German air raids in Great Britain and the French port of Cherbourg, the 87th Chemical Smoke Generating Company now serves as a vital link in the antiaircraft defenses of an important Belgian port.

The port, through which a Port organization of the U.S. Army Transportation Corps is forwarding supplies and war material to the advancing Allied armies, is one of the largest under Allied control, thus necessitating an extensive anti aircraft defense system.

The 87th's activities are coordinated with British and American antiaircraft artillery and air force squadrons. Equipped with mobile generators and stationary "quick cover" circuit smoke pots, men of the 87th can send up dense clouds of artificial fog to protect the vast dock areas in case of air attack.

Not only is the unit equipped with its own motor transport and radio and telephone communication systems, but it also operates a meterology station to obtain local weather and wind data. Men of the outfit can operate within five to seven minutes after an alert. Their only relaxation comes when natural fog hangs over the city.

MORE

Members of the unit are:

ALABAMA: Birmingham--Pvt. Albert J. Isaac, 617 S. 7th St.; Florence--2nd Lieut. William R. Clarke, 509 E. Alabama Street; Leeds--Pvt. Sammie Lang, Jr., Route 1; Ward--Pvt. James E. Littlepage, Route 1; Selma--Pvt. Agee L. Goins, Jr., 1927 First Avenue.

CALIFORNIA: Los Angeles--Cpl. William Gordon, 2836 Glossell St.; Berkley-2nd. Lieut. Robert H. Walker, 2211 Catalana St.

CONNECTICUT: Hartford--Pvt. James H. Moore, 224 Bellevue St.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA: Washington--1st Lieut. Joseph L. Davis, 2352 6th St. N.W.; Cpl. Charles Cotton, 1747 V St., N.W.

FLORIDA: Jacksonville--Pvt. Wright C. Carter, Route 2, Box 722; Pensacola--Tech. Sgt. Edwin Dean, 1604 Gullmarde St.; 1st Lieut. Otis T. Harris, 1819 N. 8th Ave.; Miami--Pfc. Howard L. Gleaton, 1350½ NW First Court; Petersburg--Pfc. Lynwood Holmes, 2320 7th Ave., S.; High Springs--Pfc. Arthur R. Simmons, General Delivery; Cottondale--Pvt. Lemon C. Smith, Jr., Box 161; Sanford--Pfc. Willie Turner, Route 2, Box 330.

GEORGIA: Appling--Pvt. Tillman O'Bryant, Route 1, Box 96; Atlanta--Sgt. Marcels Brown, 499 Hytowell St.; Egan--Pvt. James Dewberry, 25 Martell Village; Griffin--Pvt. Charles Favors, Route 3, Boyd Row; Calhoun--Pvt. Gilbert Hunt, 209 Neal St.; Fayetteville--Pfc. Albert Miller, Route 3; Madison--Pvt. Robert W. Moore, P.O. Box 402; La Grange--Pvt. Willie B. Thornton 209 Cedar St.;

ILLINOIS: Chicago--Pfc. Lige M. Martin, 4240 S. Prairie Ave.; Pvt. Eugene Page, 309 E. 54th St.

LOUISIANA: Clayton--Cpl. Percy R. Gardner, General Delivery; New Orleans--Pvt. Nathaniel Dowl, 2213 Philip St.; Staff Sgt. Hilliard Harrison, Jr. 3208 Melphonene St.; Sondheimer--Cpl. Freeman Morris, General Delivery.

MASSACHUSETTS: Cambridge--Pvt. William G. Ford, 25 Pleasant St.

MICHIGAN: Detroit--2nd Lieut. Henry E. Anderson, 1714 McDougall St.; Pvt. Edward W. Gorman, 572 Alger St.; Cpl. Glennie R. Jones, 4264 St. Antoine St.; Pvt. James McClinton, 3455 Chape Pl.

MISSISSIPPI: Hattiesburg--Pvt. Henry Anderson, 22 Curie St.; Sgt. James Gladney, 313 Cypress St.; Pvt. Jimmie Jones, 21st Section, Tuscan St.; Pfc. B.W. McGill, 207 Clark St.; Sgt. Charley R. Thigpen, 414 Frederick St.; Stugis--Cpl. John H. Barron, Route 1, Box 139; Barlow--Pvt. James O. Bither, Route 1, Box 72; Laural--Pvt. George Boykin, Route 2; Sgt. Fred Spells, 230 N. Farish St.; Crystal Springs--Pfc. Tommie Burks, Route 1, Box 218; Pvt. A.D. Willis, Route 1; Leland--Pvt. Robert Clay, Box 421; Pvt. John M. Morgan, Route 1, Box 121; Pvt. Wesley Simmons, Route 2; Pvt. William Walker, Route 1; Pfc. Isa Wilson, Route 1; Hazelhurst--Pvt. Robert Cotton, 38 Massengill St.; Pfc. Willie J. Ellis, Route 4; Cpl. J.C. Henley, Route 2; Cpl. Hester Sumrell, Route 1, Box 50; Pvt. James L. Wallace, Route 3; Starksville--Pvt. Jessie Collins, Route 1, Box 2; Pfc. George Field, Route 2, Box 95; Canton--Pfc. King H. Crisler, 207 E. Academy St.; Cpl. Burnette Defrantz, 303 Adams St.; Sgt. Leonell W. Ellis, 241 E. Academy St.; Cpl. James Johnson, Route 1, Box 217; Cpl. Tommie Johnson, 238 E. Academy St.; Pvt. Dewey H. Nash, Jr., Route 1, Box 24; Cpl. David Winfield, Jr., Route 1, Box 280; Jackson--Pvt. Andrew Davis, 936 Salem Ave.; Cpl. Marvin A. Hicks, 216 E. Fortification St.; Sgt. Thaddeus C. Jones, 1034 West Pearl St.; Cpl. James P. Marshall, 1017 Hickory St.; Pvt. Rufus Mitchell, Route 3, Box 78;

Holly Springs--Cpl. Lawrence W. Dowsing, Box 696; Clarksdale--Pvt. Leon Drummond; 501 Grant St.; Vicksburg--Pfc. Ernest Ellis, 1807 Courts St.; Biloxi--Pfc. B.C. Efans, Route 1, Box 24; Sessums--Pfc. Willie E. Fox, General

MORE

Delivery; Greenwood--Pfc. Ruben B. Gardner, 506 Avenue K; Cpl. James Goodman, 308 Palage St.; McLeod--Pfc. Sam Gilkey, Jr., General Delivery; Flora--Pfc. George Gooden, General Delivery; Cpl. Willie S. McLaurin, General Delivery; Conway--Pvt. Leroy Hannah, General Delivery; Greenville--Pfc. Percy A. Harris, 1108 Hernando St.; Pvt. Jake Parks, Route 2, Box 115; Logtown--Pvt. Frank Jones, General Delivery; Pickens--Pfc. Dan Manning, Jr., Route 2, Box 20; Louisville--Sgt. Sherman Miller, Box 21; Macon--Pvt. Forest McCarter, General Delivery; Tougaloo--Cpl. Luther C. Patton, General Delivery; Longswitch--Pfc. J.B. Pierson, General Delivery; Brookhaven--Pfc. Eddie Robinson, 121 Warren Ave.; Pvt. Augustine Slater, Route 4, Box 234; Georgetown--Cpl. Charlie Sandifer, Jr., Route 1, Box 129; Pvt. Dewitte Showers, General Delivery; Glendora--Cpl. Leroy Scurlock, General Delivery; Arcola--Pfc. Allen Shepherd, General Delivery; Clinton--Pvt. Louis Simmons, General Delivery; Morgan City--Cpl. Shach Smith, General Delivery; Bouge Chitto--Pvt. Benjamin F. Smith, Route 2, Box 69; Stoneville--Pfc. Johnnie Smith, General Delivery; McComb--Staff Sgt. Joseph P. Spencer, 114 St. Augustine St.; Hollyknowe--Pvt. J.D. Waddell, General Delivery; Lexington--Cpl. Albert H. West, Route 1, Box 91; Tralake--Pvt. Sam White, Jr., General Delivery; Shelby--Sgt. Shelby J. Wilson, P.O. Box 498.

NEW JERSEY: Bridgetown--Pvt. David T. Casper, 110 Spruce St.

NEW YORK: Brooklyn--First Sgt. Bertram J. Nicholls, 747 Macon St.; Pvt. Frederick Taylor, 210 N.W. 153rd St.

NORTH CAROLINA: Garner--Pvt. Rufus D. Avery, General Delivery; Tarboro--Pfc. Eddie Coefield, Route 1, Box 76; Hallsbora--Staff Sgt. John C. Evans, Route 1, Box 4; Wukulla--Pfc. John W. Ferguson, General Delivery; Warsaw--Pfc. Charlie Fredericks, Jr., RFD 1, Box 57; Henderson--Pfc. Thomas Henderson, Route 3, Box 58; Chadbourn--Pvt. George W. Mercer, General Delivery; Pleasant Hill--Pvt. Ernest H. Robinson, Route 1, Box 40; Charlotte--Pvt. William Smith, Route 4; Shelby--Pvt. Talmage Williamson, Route 2; Maxton--Pfc. Hairlee Wilkerson, Route 1, Box 17.

OHIO: Toledo--Cpl. Armand Hocker, 644 Palmwood Ave.; Sandusky--Cpl. John I. Orr, 112 Homestead St.

PENNSYLVANIA: Pittsburgh--Sgt. Cornelius West, 3337 Milwauke St.

SOUTH CAROLINA: Columbia--Pfc. Abraham L. Boyles, Jr., Winter Park, Route 1; Charleston--Pvt. Clarence White, 165 Coming St.

TENNESSEE: Memphis--Cpl. Clifton J. Gaston, 250-D Ayers St.; Pfc. Charles W. Hendricks, 486 N. 4th St.; Pfc. Clifford R. Mays, 177 Kirt Ave.; Pvt. Thomas White, 364 Crematory St.; Knoxville--Staff Sgt. Cecil H. Gross, 1340 Carson St.; Cpl. Fred E. Singleton, 108 Court D Austin Holmes; Somerville--Pfc. Willie P. Polk, Route 4, Box 56-A.

* * * * * * * *

NEGRO NURSES ATTEND U.S.
TROOPS IN UNITED KINGDOM

WITH U.S. TROOPS IN THE UNITED KINGDOM---The sixty-three Negro officers of the Army Nurse Corps, now attending United States troops in one of the oldest American hospitals in the United Kingdom, are serving with distinction, Brigadier General Benjamin O. Davis, ranking Negro officer, informed the War Department today.

Prisoners of war, formerly treated at the hospital, have been transferred to other installations, the General revealed. Captain Mary L. Petty has been assigned as Chief Nurse of this contingent.

END

DISTRIBUTION: Ad.
1-30-45

25-21936-600

FUTURE RELEASE

PLEASE NOTE DATE

pp 4 & 6

WAR DEPARTMENT
Bureau of Public Relations
NEWS DIVISION
Washington, D. C.

FOR RELEASE MONDAY, FEBRUARY 12, 1945

* * * *

FIRST LIEUTENANT ARCILCUS E. JACKSON, 35, of 745 Macon Street, Brooklyn, New York; first saw action November 3 at Pisa and wounded November 20 by artillery fragments; wears Purple Heart, Combat Infantryman Badge and theater ribbon; transferred to Woodrow Wilson General Hospital.

PRIVATE FIRST CLASS LEO WATSON, 24, of Kershaw, South Carolina; first saw action in November and was wounded while attacking enemy lines; transferred to Kennedy General Hospital.

PRIVATE FIRST CLASS KENNETH E. LAYNE, 31, of 133 Jefferson Avenue, Brooklyn, New York; wounded November 26 between Lucca and Bologna when his anti-tank gun drew fire from German .88; transferred to Cushing General Hospital, Framingham, Massachusetts.

PRIVATE FIRST CLASS LAWRENCE CHAPMAN, 26, of West B Street, Easley, South Carolina; first saw action along Arno River on August 15 and was wounded October 16 near Mt. Belvidere when enemy patrol attacked his party; transferred to Woodrow Wilson General Hospital.

PRIVATE FIRST CLASS CLIFTON TRAYLOR, 28, of 1922 East 103rd Street, Los Angeles, California; first saw action in August near Lucca and wounded October 4 while attacking a hill; transferred to Woodrow Wilson General Hospital.

PRIVATE FIRST CLASS RAY PENN, 19, of Rome, Georgia; entered line of combat in August, wounded October 26 by fragments from mortar shell; transferred to Oliver General Hospital.

PRIVATE FIRST CLASS ISAAC JEMISON, 27, of 1508 Cedar Street, Chattanooga, Tennessee; entered combat October 31 above Leghorn and was wounded November 27 by machinegun fire; transferred to Kennedy General Hospital.

PRIVATE FLANDER McELWAY, 22, of Crampron, Arkansas; first saw action in October and was wounded north of Lucca November 8 while returning from checking artillery communication lines; transferred to Kennedy General Hospital.

FIRST SERGEANT JACK A. ELLIS, 29, of 245 Dunbar Street, Dayton, Ohio; first saw action August 26 along Arno River; his regiment broke the Gothic Line and was the first to reach Lucca; wounded by .88 fragments at Guggio just beyond Mt. Belvidere while on patrol; transferred to Kennedy General Hospital.

SERGEANT FREDERICK D. THORNTON, 27, of Coaldale, West Virginia; first saw action near Lima di Sota and was wounded on November 18, near Bologna, while attacking enemy positions; transferred to Ashford General Hospital, White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia.

PRIVATE FIRST CLASS WILLIAM D. HENING, 22, of Luxora, Arkansas; entered combat late in October, was wounded November 26 by artillery shell fragments; transferred to William Beaumont General Hospital, Ft. Bliss, Texas.

STAFF SERGEANT FORREST G. MANNING, 24, of San Marcus, Texas; first saw action in Arno River sector, wounded October 7 by enemy heavy artillery fire near Cerezzio; transferred to Hammond General Hospital, Modesto, California.

PRIVATE FIRST CLASS TRAVIS L. JOHNSON, 24, of 712 - 41st Street, Newsome Park, Newport News, Virginia; entered combat August 24 and wounded same day near Pisa; transferred to Woodrow Wilson General Hospital.

PRIVATE FIRST CLASS ELZIE TIMMONS, 24, of Route 1, Ellabelle, Georgia; first saw action in the Arno River sector, wounded October 6 while attacking machinegun nest on hill near Leghorn; transferred to LaGarde General Hospital, New Orleans, Louisiana.

PRIVATE LEROY COX, 22, of Cortelyou, Alabama; entered front lines October 10, wounded November 9 while attacking the enemy; transferred to Oliver General Hospital.

* * * * * * * * *

MORE

REGIMENT IN 93rd DIVISION
AWARDS COMBAT BADGE TO 145

WITH THE 93rd INFANTRY DIVISION IN NEW GUINEA---In recognition of their exemplary conduct in action against the enemy in the Southwest Pacific, thirty-three officers and 112 enlisted men of a regiment of the 93rd Infantry Division have been awarded the Combat Infantryman Badge, the War Department learned today.

Thirty-two officers and 623 enlisted men of the same unit have been awarded the Expert Infantryman Badge.

For meritorious service in military operations against the Japanese, three enlisted men have been awarded the Bronze Star: First Sergeant Thomas E. Wyatt, 814 Andrews Street, Houston, Texas; Master Sergeant Joe E. Williamson, 33 Double Rack Road, San Francisco, California, and Master Sergeant Jackson Benjamin, brother of Mrs. Mattie Henry, 4365½ Avalon Boulevard, Los Angeles, California.

Officers and men of the infantry who attain established proficiency standards or whose action in combat is rated satisfactory are eligible for the Expert Infantryman Badge. The Combat Infantryman Badge is reserved for those whose conduct in combat is exemplary or whose combat action occurs in a major operation.

* * * * * * * *

NAZI AGENTS ROUNDED UP
BY NEGRO QUARTERMASTERS

WITH U.S. SUPPLY FORCES IN BELGIUM---When Hitler's armies made a desperate effort to break the death-hold applied by the Allies and failed, they left in their wake agents to carry on their schemes of destruction.

These men who were left behind met with no greater success, thanks to the constant vigil of members of the 4198th Quartermaster Service Company, assigned to the Advance Section, Communications Zone. Before and since the German counter-attack, men of this unit have been apprehending German agents disguised as civilians, local police, Allied soldiers, and refugees.

"Since the men caught the first Germans, it seems as though every civilian, male or female, caught near the depots or railheads operated by this company, is subjected to a thorough examination," explained First Sergeant Fred L. Russell, of 2316 Vine Street, Kansas City, Missouri.

"Of course it annoys the local people at times, but now and then the men will catch a German, in their self-styled "drag net." Then, too, one can't be too careful around those places the boys guard. That stuff's for up front, and it's their duty to see that it gets there. I can feel pretty safe in saying that they will."

Since arriving on the Continent, the 4198th's duties have been operating railheads and depots. When the now famous "Red Ball Highway" was operating, the company guarded German prisoners of war, used to maintain and repair the "life-line" of two armies.

In the United States at Fort Devens, Massachusetts, where it was activated, the company assisted in amphibious operations at the Wood Island and Breakheart Reservations.

* * * * * * * *

ENGINEER PONTON COMPANY
SMASHES BRITISH RECORD

UNITED KINGDOM BASE, ENGLAND---A Negro engineer light ponton company recently topped a four-year British record by 47 manhours, when 180 soldiers constructed a 306-foot 12-ton Bailey bridge over the fast Mersey river in northern England in 123 minutes.

MORE

The outfit, working in pouring rain, erected a longer span in less time with less men than a special bridge outfit of the British Army. They also eclipsed a record set by a Canadian Army bridge company.

"The will to work and proper organization is how we broke that record," said First Lieutenant George B. Lotridge, 2108 Roosevelt Road, Augusta, Georgia, commanding officer. "However the leadership of construction foreman, Master Sergeant John A. Harrison of Johnston, South Carolina, is an equally important factor."

Erection of this all-steel floating or fixed bridge requires teamwork and specialized training. Panel crews are trained to carry their prefabricated 600-pound sections to the right spot at the right time. Transoms, large steel girders, are fitted into place to keep the bridge sides upright. Stringers and curbing are laid to keep the flooring down. The engineers transport the sections to the site and maintain the bridge after construction.

Activated in July, 1943, at Camp Hood, Texas, as a Treadway Bridge company (steel, mechanically constructed bridges, used by tanks and armoured vehicles), the unit was reorganized and designated as a light ponton bridge company and began training at Camp Swift, Texas.

During the Louisiana maneuvers, the company received its first field experience and commendation for erecting assault and treadway bridges for the 92nd Division.

Following the maneuvers, the Engineers served as demonstration troops at Fort Benning, Georgia, in July, 1944. There they bridged the Chattahouchee River with a 270-foot floating span in 27 minutes. The Commanding General of the Infantry School gave the unit another commendation. The Southern Marine Association awarded the company a citation for helping recover several drowned persons.

Next, the engineers went to Fort Jackson, South Carolina, where they received their first training in constructing Bailey bridges. From there they left for England.

Prominent members of this unit include Sergeant Houston Johnson of 1013 14th St., Portsmouth, Ohio, a former Golden Gloves boxing champion and Sergeant Leon Wilburn, Florenceville, Florida; Private Vernon Mitchell, 815 Burchann Street., Richmond, Virginia; Corporal Ernest W. Patterson, 1810 Vermont Avenue., N.W., Washington, D.C., and Staff Sergeant Merrial Moody of 740 Sixth Avenue, Columbus, Georgia, members of a radio quartet.

A British citizen, Private Louis A. Morris, of Nassau, British West Indies scheduled to receive his final naturalization papers soon, also is a member of the company.

* * * * * * * *

CHEMICAL PROCESSING UNIT IS HONORED WITH PLAQUE

WITH U.S. ARMY FORCES IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC---In a special ceremony at a base somewhere in the South Pacific, a Negro Chemical Processing Company was awarded the coveted Meritorious Service Unit Plaque. This award was made by the Commanding General of this island base by the direction of the President.

The citation reads: "By direction of the President.... a Meritorious Service Unit Plaque is awarded by the Commanding General, Headquarters, Island Command, to the -- Chemical Processing Company for superior performance of duty, and the achievement and maintenance of a high standard of military and professional proficiency."

While the exact nature of the mission of this highly technical outfit is a military secret, it may be said that these men are among the select group of Army personnel who are applying chemistry to the science of war. They come from all walks of life. There are chemists, teachers, a lawyer, students, mechanics, farmers, and unskilled workers of various sorts.

MORE

SOUTHERN PRESS CLIPPING BUREAU
ATLANTA, GEORGIA
CLIPPING BUREAU 1895
58
ORDER NUMBER
This Clipping from

Miami Fla. Herald
February 26, 1945

Florida's Most Complete Newsp

110

Negro Role In Legion Under Study

Fifth District Unit Appointed Here

A study of the place of returning negro veterans in American Legion affairs was urged Sunday by Fifth district Legionnaires concluding a two-day conference here.

They adopted a resolution asking State Commander Joe Frank of Miami to appoint a committee to study the matter and make recommendations at the state convention later this year.

Legion officials said that in the North negro veterans have been admitted to membership in some regular posts.

In Southern cities, the Legion has set up and sponsored posts of Colored Veterans of the World War.

The 269 registered delegates from 11 south Florida counties elected as new Fifth district commander Al Mills, past commander of Arthur Sawyer post No. 28, Key West. He was unopposed.

The current ban on conventions led the ODT to refuse to approve the proposed state conclave in West Palm Beach on April 18-21, Department Adjutant Reid Mann of Palatka reported.

Named as district executive committeemen at the conference Sunday were Ed Deering, Coral Gables; Carl Clausen, Lake Worth, and Mrs. Persis Stanley, Poinsettia post No. 113, Miami. With Mills, they will take office at the state convention.

Elected as national delegates were Ed Westfall, Pete Hiatt, Eddy Humer, Harvey Payne and H. Frost Bailey, all of Miami, and Jack Schoenwald, Coral Gables. Alternates are Nat Pratt, Coconut Grove; Tom Shuler, Hollywood; H. J. Melloy, Miami; E. Rogero, North Miami; Al Horstman, Lake Worth, and Jay Pridham, West Palm Beach.

Many outstanding colleges and universities are represented, some of them as follows: Tuskegee Institute, First Lieutenant Nathaniel S. Colley, commanding officer; University of Chicago, First Lieutenant William I. Hatchett, Jr., executive officer; West Virginia State College, Second Lieutenant Charles A. Belt, supply officer; Ohio State University, Second Lieutenant Harold C. Green, mess officer; Jackson College, First Sergeant Leepoyer P. Haynes; Livingston College, Staff Sergeant Leroy E. Borden and Preston Ormond; Knoxville College, Staff Sergeant Harold O. Glover; Winston-Salem Teachers College, Sergeant Ezekiel Ancrum; Bishop College, Sergeant Harvey Chambers; Rust College, Sergeant William McIntosh; Virginia Union University, Sergeant Philip E. Pannel; Benedict College, Corporal David H. Atkinson; Wilberforce University, Corporal Theodore Bryant; Johnson C. Smith University, Corporals William N. Dansby and James Ridley; Lane College, Corporal Frederick D. Harrison; University of Pittsburgh, Corporal Frank M. Thompson; Kansas State College, Private First Class Warren Henderson; Duluth Junior College, Private First Class Roscoe C. Thomas; Morehouse College, Private First Class Johnnie P. Jones.

* * * * * * * *

THREE DECORATED FOR RESCUE ON AIR FIELD

SAN BERNARDINO, CALIFORNIA---First Sergeant John S. Beverly of Des Moines, Iowa, and Corporal Edward L. Johnson of Elkhorn, West Virginia, were decorated with the Soldier's Medal at an impressive retreat ceremony on the flight line of the San Bernardino Air Technical Service Command recently.

In presenting the decorations, Colonel William Turnbull, Commanding Officer, cited the soldiers for heroism in assisting in the removal of a disabled pilot from a burning airplane at the risk of their own lives at the San Bernardino Army Air Field.

First Lieutenant Gordon C. Burket of Chicago also was given the Soldier's Medal for participating in the rescue.

Sergeant Beverly was inducted at Des Moines on July 1, 1942, and proceeded to the reception center at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. After being stationed at Minter Field, California, he was assigned to San Bernardino. He is now first sergeant of the 4908th Army Air Force Base Unit.

Corporal Johnson, also a member of the 4908th, was inducted at Welch, West Virginia, on November 27, 1942, and proceeded to Fort Thomas, Kentucky. After being stationed at Camp Rucker, Alabama, Selfridge Field, Michigan and an Air Force Specialized Depot at Maywood, California, he was assigned to San Bernardino.

* * * * * * * *

PILOT DOWNS NAZI PLANE,
STRAFES TRAIN ALL IN DAY

ATLANTIC CITY, NEW JERSEY---The three Focke-Wulfs were looking for stragglers among the formation of Liberators that had bombed the Paradice airdrome in Austria. Captain Charles E. McGee and three other pilots of the 332nd Fighter Group of escorting Negro pilots rolled their P-51 Mustangs over and down on the enemy.

"The FW that I picked scrambled for the deck," recalled the Champaign, Ill. pilot at the Army Air Forces Redistribution Station here. "We started the chase at 26,000 feet and I was hitting 550 miles per by the time we reached 12,000 feet. I gained only enough to turn loose two short bursts."

It was not until the two planes reached tree top level that Captain McGee gained on the Focke-Wulf and matched evasive tactic for tactic with the wily Nazi pilot.

"At 300 feet I turned loose a long burst and saw parts of his plane fly off before he crashed into a wooded area," said the Champaign pilot.

MORE

Circling to higher altitude Captain McGee spotted a 30-car freight train and again hit the deck.

"I strafed it once but couldn't stay around long enough to see how much damage I had caused. I was too low on gas."

The Champaign pilot is the son of Chaplain Lewis A. McGee who is serving with the Ground forces in Belgium.

His wife, Frances E. McGee lives at 607 North Hickory Street, Champaign. Entering the service in November, 1942 he was sent overseas in January, 1944 where he was awarded the Air Medal with five Oak Leaf Clusters and the European theater ribbon with two stars.

The captain completed 82 missions, flying 39 of them with the 12th Air Force in Airacobras and completing 54 with the 15th Air Force in Thunderbolts and Mustangs.

* * * * * * * *

TANKMAN HIT AT STRASBOURG
READY TO RETURN TO DUTY

THE 827th U.S. CONVALESCENT CENTER, ENGLAND---Private William E. Anderson, Jr., 33, of Branchville, Virginia, a tankman who was wounded by German 88-mm shell fragments during an attack on enemy positions at Strasbourg, France, has fully recovered and is taking military and physical training at this Army reconditioning center in England.

A member of the 761st Tank Battalion composed exclusively of Negro personnel, Anderson is proud of his unit which has received high commendations for its exploits in combat.

"They are a swell bunch of fighters," said Anderson, who is an automatic rifleman.

"We had fought our way beyond Strasbourg, and our tanks were supporting the infantry. Our forward elements had smashed into a forest, when the Jerries threw in a barrage of 88's and mortars. I dismounted and tried to make my way to the edge of the forest to cover a mortar section with automatic rifle fire. I used whatever cover I could find, but a shell burst near me and I was hit by fragments."

Anderson has been awarded the Purple Heart. His brother, Sergeant Fred C. Anderson, served with a port battalion in the South Pacific before he was wounded. He is at present in the United States.

Mr. William E. Anderson, Private Anderson's father, lives at Branchville.

* * * * * * * *

EXPERT NEGRO MEDICS
HANDLE ETO EVACUEES

WITH THE 711th MEDICAL SANITATION COMPANY, FRANCE---Virtually all American sick and wounded to be evacuated from the Continent to England are carried part of the way by the expert Medical Corps soldiers of this Negro unit.

For months these carefully trained medical technicians have supervised moving of all patients from hospital trains to hospital ships at a giant port of liberated France. Only company of its kind on the Continent, its speed and efficiency have brought repeated praise from train and ship commanders.

The faster unloading is done here, the sooner battle casualties receive full hospitalization in England. Recently litter bearers stripped a train of 264 patients, and loaded them carefully aboard ship in 45 minutes. Only 55 strong, they once filled two hospital ships, each bearing between five and six hundred patients, in three hours.

MORE

"Moving the wounded is a precise and difficult art," stated the company commander, Captain Louis L. Mollinary, 1316 East Nevada Street, El Paso, Texas, "but our men are past masters at it."

"We receive many commendations because of speed and efficiency, but most of all, medical officers are impressed with the gentleness of our men in handling their sick and wounded comrades.

"Parents, wives, and families of hospitalized soldiers would be greatly heartened to see it."

These medical soldiers have received thorough instruction in first aid. They are able to treat all minor wounds, including those caused by gunshot. In cases of shock, which can cause sudden death, they are especially adept.

In rushing battle-front wounded from hospital trains to shipboard, the men are charged with an important medical task. "In the case of many injuries, men can be killed by improper lifting," emphasized Sergeant Robert Jordan, 207 Garfield Street, Kansas City, Kansas.

"There are many little things which come only with practice. For instance, men carrying wounded must be careful to walk out of step and in a certain rhythm. Otherwise the stretcher sways. The wounded must always be carried feet first, except when going up a hill."

"No matter how painful it is to the wounded," said First Sergeant Eugene Bowman, 639 Adams Street, Steubenville, Ohio, "we never hear them complain. If anybody wants to know about the spirit of the American soldier, he can get an answer from any of us."

No soldiers anywhere can boast a tougher working schedule than this unit. They are on the alert 24 hours a day. There is no telling when hospital trains or ships may arrive here. The men must be ready to swing into action at a moment'a notice. "It's a tough deal," said Captain Mollinary, " but I've never heard a complaint. Our men know what their work means."

There are no venereal cases in the company, and there hasn't been an AWOL in well over a year. The bulk of the men carry "sanitary technician" ratings.

"Most of the sick and wounded soldiers we handle come to us directly from the front," stated Staff Sergeant Milton R. Branch, Kimball, West Virginia. "They are the guys who are paying for victory the hard way. It's a pleasure being able to help them. Every man in the company feels the same way about it."

The company roster by States follows:

ALABAMA: Alexander City--Pvt. James Wychoff, Route 4, Box 78; Birmingham--Pvt. Sterling Pennick, Jr., 2015 Avenue P; Pvt. James H. Tarver, 505 S. 26th St.; Carrollton--Cpl. Jesse Watts, General Delivery; Forman--Sgt. James Askew, General Delivery; Mobile--Tech. 5th Gr. Arthur Lewis, 5-251 Orange Court Grove; Phenix City--Pfc. Charles Alexander, Route 2, Box 266½.

CALIFORNIA: Los Angeles--Pvt. Lee Coleman, 5501 Morgan Ave.

CONNECTICUT: Ansonia--Tech. 4th Gr. William W. Parks, 255 N. State St.; Ridgefield--Pfc. Clyde McCaslin, Main St.; Stamford--Cpl. Oakley E. Gibbs, 28 Vista St.

DELAWARE: Georgetown--Pfc. Vernon M. Tunnell; Selbyville--Pvt. Oliver D. Williams, General Delivery.

FLORIDA: Fort Pierce--Staff Sgt. Stephen Bacon, General Delivery; Tampa--Pvt. Willie J. Robinson, 1007 8th St.

GEORGIA: Atlanta--Pvt. Arbie Haney, 198 Chestnut St.; Pvt. Clarence Holloway, 1413 Bridge Ave., S.W.; Sgt. Dock L. Scott, 642 McGruder St.; Augusta--Pfc. Roger

MORE

Green, 16 Sherman St.; Pfc. Jessie J. Parks, 1241 Floyd St.; Brunswick--Pvt. Luther H. Harris, 1607 Norwich Lane; Columbus--Pfc. Willie Patrick, 823 Washington St.; Crawfordville--Cpl. Joe Hill, General Delivery; Culloden--Pfc. Sargus Heuston, Route 2; Elberton--Pvt. Olin Rucker, Route 4, Box 9; Macon--Tech. 4th Gr. Thomas E. Goodwin, 75 Brooklyn Ave.; Savannah--Pvt. Henry Crawford, Jr., 525 W. Huntington St.; Statesboro--Pvt. Sam Andrews; Vidalia--Tech. 4th Gr. Theodore R. Gillis, Route 2, Box 89.

ILLINOIS: Chicago--Pvt. James Burns, 4753 S. Vincennes Ave.

KANSAS: Kansas City--Sgt. Robert H. Jordan, 207 Garfield St.

KENTUCKY: Mount Sterling--Pvt. Sherman Garrett, 125 Estill Ave.; Owensboro--1st Lieut. Barrett H. Phillips, 1405 W. 2nd St.; Paris-- Pfc. William Brent, Jr., 507 Higgins St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Asa Parrish, 13 Upper St.; Mt. Sterling--Pvt. Eugene J. Morris, 3 Lincoln St.

LOUISIANA: Baker--Pvt. Henry King, Jr., Route 1, Box 206; Baton Rouge--Tech. 4th Gr. Claude Humbles, 1136 Julia St.; Pfc. Joseph E. Jennings, 1435 So. 13th St.; Bossier City--Pvt. Henry Lilly, 705 Hamilton St.; Boyce--Pfc. Lonzo Himes, Jr.; Campti--Pvt. Anderson Kemp; Carville--Pvt. Nick Hall, Jr.; New Orleans--Pfc. Oscar O. Dordain, 3650 Touro St.; Pfc. Herbert Holmes, 825 N. Roman St.; Pfc. Benjamin Williams, Route 1, Box 652; Oakdale--Pvt. Curley L. Hollins; Shreveport--Pfc. Jim Louis, 927 Caddo St.; St. James--Pvt. Willie Hensley, Post Office; Zachary--Pvt. Jose Horton, Jr., Route 1, Box 28.

MASSACHUSETTS: Cambridge--Pfc. Samuel A. Weems, 14 Hubbard Ave.; New Bedford--Tech. 5th Gr. James Freeman, 141 Acushnet Ave.

MISSISSIPPI: Amory--Pvt. Agustus Dilworth, RFD 1; Coffeeville--Pvt. Fred H. Winters, Route 3; Magnolia--Pvt. Joe D. Smith, Route 4, Box 78; Meridian--Pvt. Walker Hill, 1812 10th Ave.; Potts Camp--Pfc. Lester Dean, Route 2, Box 66; Shuqulak--Pvt. Jim Allen, Route 1; New Albany--Pvt. Scott Starks, Jr., RFD 1.

NORTH CAROLINA: Burlington--Pvt. Robert Wilson, Route 3, Box 93; Charlotte--Tech. 5th Gr. Walter Strong, Jr., Hoskins, Post Office; Concord--Pfc. Willie Ross, Route 2, Box 602; Durham--Pvt. Joseph W. Amos, 803 Mathew St.; Sgt. Benjamin H. McClary, 1023 Cornell St.; Elizabeth City--Pvt. Washington Stepney, Route 2, Box 103; Pfc. James W. Whitehurst, 206 Lane Ave.; Enfield--Pvt. Frank Taylor, Jr., Post Office; Henderson--Pvt. Gilbert A. Jones, Route 3; Grifton--Tech. 5th Gr. James C. Rountree, Route 2, Box 439; Kannapolis--Pvt. Henry J. Robinson, General Delivery; Leaksville--Pvt. James W. Thompson, Route 1, Box 24; Maxton--Cpl. William R. Thomas, Box 372; Method--Pvt. Lonnie Rogers, Jr.; Morven--Pfc. David Streater; Pfc. Henry Vaughan; Murfreesboro--Pfc. Joel W. Jenkins, Route 1; Raleigh--Pfc. Enoch E. Scarborough, Route 5, Box 211; Roanoke Rapids--Pfc. Frank J. Underdue, Route 1, Box 370; Roxboro--Tech. 5th Gr. Walter E. Yancey, Route 2, Box 79.

NEW JERSEY: Camden--Pfc. Elmer C. Wilson, 1212 S. 8th St.; Madison--Pvt. Earl C. Williams, 5 Pierson Lane; Newark--Pvt. Joseph W. Lockhart, 195 Norfolk St.

NEW YORK: New York City--Tech. 5th Gr. Eddie Jackson, 217 W. 60th St.; 1st Lieut. Allan K. Dimon, Box 22, Van Etten.

OHIO: Akron--Tech. 5th Gr. Mathew M. Knott, 825 Bellows St.; Coolville--Tech. 5th Gr. Frank O. Harvey; Columbus--Pfc. Wallace B. Parker, 925 E. Long St.; Cleveland--Pfc. Jesse Harvey, 2362 E. 46th St.; Cutler--Pfc. Conrad M. Hill; London--Tech. 5th Gr. Robert R. Wilson, 31 Stewart Ave.; Steubenville--1st Sgt. Eugene M. Bowman, Jr., 639 Adams St.; Washington Court House--Pvt. Leonard C. Gray, 819 E. Paint St.

PENNSYLVANIA: Philadelphia--Staff Sgt. William R. Bantom, 1920 W. Fountain St.; Pvt. Alexander D. Burrell, 1240 N. 11th St.

SOUTH CAROLINA: Great Falls--Pvt. Derry Allen, Jr., Route 1, Box 24.

MORE

TENNESSEE: Chattanooga--Pvt. Robert Allen, 1200 Spears Ave.; Tech. 5th Gr. Eddie Eubanks, 323 E. 23rd St.; Jefferson City--Tech. 5th Gr. Shelby E. Wilkerson. 229 Ingram St.; Knoxville--Tech. 5th Gr. Julius Williams, 321 E. Ohio Ave.; Mt. Pleasant--Pfc. Joe L. McGloffin, 113 Merchant St.; Nashville--Tech. 4th Gr. Eugene Davis, 138 Fairfield St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Henry T. Eason, 643 Allison St.; Pfc. Willie L. Thomas, 1808 4th Ave. South; Trezevant--Pvt. Cornelius T. Howard, Route 1, Box 95.

TEXAS: Dallas--Staff Sgt. Jesse C. Butler, 3729 S. Central; Tech. 5th Gr. Leon Braswell, Sr., 817 Good St.; El Paso--Capt. Louis L. Mollinary, 1316 E. Nevada St.

WEST VIRGINIA: Martinsville--Pvt. Howard Dillard, Route 1, Box 32; Welch--Staff Sgt. Milton H. Branch, Box 861; Pvt. Stanley L. Tucker, 105 Beech St.

* * * * * * * *

ENGINEERS RESTORE PORT'S
RAIL LINES AND BRIDGES

WITH U.S. SUPPLY FORCES IN FRANCE---Members of the 392nd Engineer General Service Regiment, now working on bombed and shelled railway tracks and bridges in and around a channel port, are materially aiding in the rehabilitation of the city while readying trackage for the transport of materials of war, Headquarters, European Theater of Operations announced today.

Coming into France shortly after D-Day, they already have an intinerary that looks like a list of important towns taken from the Germans. It includes, among others, such places as Valognes, St. Lo, Avranches, Chartres, Dreux, Versailles, and Laon - the last only a few miles from the Belgian frontier.

Long-time specialists in the field of track and bridge reconstruction, this Negro regiment has followed in the footsteps of both American and British armies, sometimes working within range of enemy artillery. Recently they returned from an assignment that involved track grading for the transport of essential goods to British forward troops, who were engaged in the advance toward the northwest Reich.

Equipment handled by members of 392nd Engineers ranges from giant graders weighing more than one ton, to pencils.. Many of the men have had previous experience on the railroads, which they utilize to the best advantage as each assignment is tackled.

The city's yards, road-beds, and bridges, having been exposed to enemy fire and demolitions, as well as Allied fire and bombardment, presented just about everything in the book in the way of railroad repair problems, but the complete job was turned over to the Transportation Corps, ready for use, only a few days after beach-unloading had begun.

Members of the regiment are:

ALABAMA: Birmingham--Capt. William L. Cash, 619 15th St.; Brundidge--Pfc. John R. Smith, Route 2, Box 4; Dothan--Pvt. Everett V. Grimsley, Route 4, Box 49; Mobile--Staff Sgt. Charles S. Goodman, 363 Marmotte St.; Montgomery--Sgt. Stanley S. Lover, 401 Westcott St.; Tuskegee--Master Sgt. Henry R. Partridge, Tuskegee Institute.

ARKANSAS: England--Sgt. Leon Dodson, Route 2, Box 107; North Little Rock--Sgt. Robert Butler, 2715 Arkansas Ave.; Scott--Pfc. Roosevelt Smith, Route 1, Box 244.

CALIFORNIA: Pasadena--Cpl. James A. Duncan, Jr., 950 Morton Ave.

COLORADO: Denver--Cpl. Tommy Walker, 607 26th St.

DELAWARE: Frankford--Sgt. Eben A. Short; Wilmington--Pfc. John W. Butler, 10 West 13th St.

MORE

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA: Washington--Sgt. Hansford Harrison, 1000 4th St., S.E.

FLORIDA: Cassa--Pvt. Walter B. Brown; Goulds--Cpl. Eugene Bryant; Havana--Sgt. Joseph M. Bradley, Box 118; High Springs-- Cpl. Rodolphus Mills, Route A, Box 98; Homestead--Pvt. George N. Gibbs; Jupiter--Staff Sgt. Willie Bush, Jr.; Key West--Pvt. Charles W. Dean, 312 Virginia St.; Pfc. Eugene R. Roberts; Miami--Pvt. Benjamin F. Harry, 1216 NW 3rd Ave.; Pvt. Frank E. Jones, 1540½ NW 1st Ave.; Cpl. Elmore Ross, 321 NW 15th St.; Palatka--Pvt. Henry M. Zanders, 621 N. 10th St.; Sanford--Pvt. Leroy Mack; Cpl. Lonnie Mulberry; Tampa--Pvt. Alfred Sheppard, 1022 Yukon St.; West Palm Beach--Pvt. Pasco V. Reynolds, 915 6th St.

GEORGIA: Atlanta--Sgt. Grant Brown, 500 W. Mitchell; Pvt. Nathaniel Davenport, 507 University Ave.; Cpl. Leroy W. Drake, 957 Ashby Circle; Staff Sgt. John Q. Morris, 597 Curry Place; Dieffee--Staff Sgt. James E. Forehand, Jr.; Fitzgerald--Pvt. Zedekiah Wallace, 616 S. Monitor Drive; Lake Park--Cpl. Sherman E. Felder, Jr., Route 2, Box 123; White Oak--Cpl. Robert Roche, Route 1, Box 39A.

ILLINOIS: Chicago--Pfc. Charles R. Blue, 5439 S. Federal St.; Cpl. Homer Cloud, 124 Mozart St.; Sergeant Henry F. Collins, Jr., 6640 Vernon Ave.; Tech. Sgt. Oscar B. De Priest, 6315 Champlain Ave.; Pvt. William E. Dyson, 5361 Federal St.; Tech. Sgt. William A. Fogler, 3757 Indiana Ave.; Pvt. Benjamin F. Houston, 5233 S. Calumet Ave. Sgt. Hoover J. Jones, 6733 S. Evans Ave.; Pfc. Hubert King, 3927 Giles Ave.; Sgt. Irvin F. Lytle, 60 E. 36th Place; Pvt. Herman Nelson, 753 Oakwood Blvd.; Pvt. Ozzie Potts, 4136 Calumet Ave.; Pfc. Leroy Taylor, 4361 Calumet Ave.: Pfc. James Terry, 6244 S. Michigan Ave.; Cpl. Kenneth W. Titus, 227 E. 48th St.; Tech. Sgt. Clarke Trevan, 6343 Rhodes Ave.; Pfc. Marion L. White, 3011 Ellis Ave.; Pfc. Percy Williams, 3106 S. Parkway.

INDIANA: Elkhart--Pfc. Howard A. Stewart, 1400 S. 6th St.; Evansville--Pvt. Fred W. Hite, 1831 S. Governor St.; Pvt. David H. Holmes, 452 8th St.; Gary--Lieut. Donald K. Stimson, 4481 Jackson St.; Indianapolis--Sgt. Booker T. Howard, 424 Bright St.

IOWA: Des Moines--Sgt. Eugene Ellis, 919 School St.; Sioux City--Cpl. Clarence A. Nunn, 1722 E. 5th St.

KANSAS: Atchison--Staff Sgt. Elvin Jackson, 101 Larmie Ave.; Osawtome--Cpl. Jackson A. McKissick.

KENTUCKY: Henderson--Cpl. James R. Fellows, Route 2; Mayfield--Cpl. Harry A. England, 511 E. Water St.

LOUISIANA: Grambling--Pfc. Purcie Giles, General Delivery; Jennings--Sgt. Henry L. Guidry; Lafayette--Tech. Sgt. Raphael P. Lawrence, 202 St. John St.; Minden--Pvt. Willie J. Frazier; Sgt. Ora D. Mims; Monroe--Pvt. James D. Washington; New Orleans--Cpl. Willie E. Verdin, 1264 Galvez; Schriever--Cpl. Chester A. Adams, Box 33; Shreveport--Pvt. Clarence Winfield, 1725 Garden St.

MARYLAND: Frederick--1st Sgt. John W. Lee, 186 W. All Saints St.

MICHIGAN: Detroit--Lieut. Richard S. Bralver, 960 Dexter Blvd; Tech. Sgt. James Davis, Jr., 1006 E. Ferry; Master Sgt. Charles W. Walker, 11568 Cameron; Pvt. Walter Walker, 1563 E. Canfield; Cpl. Tinnie J. Ware, 1361 Superior; Grand Rapids--Pfc. Austin Taylor, 136 Franklin St.; Marcellus--Pfc. Ernest Stewart.

MINNESOTA: Minneapolis--Lieut. Howard H. Wallentine, 2530 Garfield Ave.

MISSISSIPPI: Canton--Sgt. Claude L. Tanner, 241 W. Peace St.; Sgt. Emmett Wright; Crystal Springs--Pvt. Beverly V. Dennis, Jr., 208 Ocean St.; Duncan--Pfc. William Easton; Greenwood--Pvt. Howard Baldwin, Route 3, Box 13; Heidelberg--Pfc. Winston Heard; Itta Bena--Pfc. Willie J. Brown, Route 1, Box 210A; Philadelphia--Pfc. Matthew Houston; West--Cpl. James E. Carter, Route 2, Box 23;

MISSOURI St. Louis--Staff Sgt. Roy A. Nickens, 2914 Delmar.

NEW JERSEY: Bergenfield--Lieut. William J. Filas, 86 N. Stroughton St.: Newark--Cpl. Charlie W. Cherry, 154 Canada St.

MORE

NEW YORK: New York City--Sgt. Louis P. Angel, 356 W. 110th St.; Master Sgt. John H. Le Bourveau, 300 W. 154th St.; Pfc. Calvin Carter, 28 W. 140th St.; Pvt. Beauford Small; Tuckahoe--Pfc. George H. Clark, 5 Underhill St.

NORTH CAROLINA: Albemarle--Staff Sgt. Arthur C. Wall, General Delivery; Asheville--Cpl. Willie Price, 18 Ralph St.; Durham--Cpl. Frank H. Alston, 1003 Williard St.; Elizabethtown--Pfc. George W. Sanders, Route 1, Box 158; Faison--Pfc. Robert L. Faison, Route 2, Box 105; Garner--Sgt. Fulton Laws, Box 121; Gastonia--Pfc. James M. Baxter, 106 Lincoln St.; Jamesville--Pfc. Grover A. James, RFD, Box 40; Lexington--Staff Sgt. Samuel F. Young, 207 Pine St.; Roanoke Rapids--Sgt. McDonald Martin, Route 1, Box 182; Rowland--Pvt. James D. Douglass, General Delivery; Spring Hope--Pvt. Nethem Davis, Route 2; Statesville--Pvt. Sam Scott, Route 1, Box 12-A.

OHIO: Bellevue--Captain Wilbur M. LaSalle, 421 Poplar St.; Cleveland--Cpl. Frank E. Reynolds, 406 Pritchard St.; Staff Sgt. Hosea Thorpe.

OKLAHOMA: Jones--Cpl. Floyd Crane, Box 114B, Route 1.

PENNSYLVANIA: Beaver Falls--Sgt. Jack Bady, General Delivery: Lancaster--1st Lieut. Lloyd H. Slover, 429 E. Grant St.: Philadelphia--Lieut. William C. Carson, 1415 Surrey Lane; Pfc. Warren J. Diggs, 2134 Titan St.; Pittsburgh--Cpl. James D. Smith, 709 Webster Terrace.

SOUTH CAROLINA: Abbeville--Pfc. Robert H. Gray, Route 3; Bowman--Cpl. O.Z. Brandyburgh, Route 1, Box 60; Orangeburgh--Staff Sgt. Abraham Scott, 68 Seaboard Ave.; Rock Hill--Pvt. Cluster Cunningham, 126 S. Wilson St.; Spartanburgh--Pvt. Herbert Finger,; Swansea--Cpl. Willie E. Sullivan, General Delivery.

TENNESSEE: Brownsville--Master Sgt. Eldred M. Currie, 403 Margin St.; Memphis--Pfc. Thomas E. Webb, 800 Michigan; Nashville--Master Sgt. William J. Buford, 920 6th Ave.; Pvt. James E. Galloway, 3208 Torbitt St.; Pulaski--Pvt. James R. Marsh, General Delivery; Ripley--Pvt. Dorsey Townsend, General Delivery; Victoria--Cpl. Ray Stewart, General Delivery.

TEXAS: Austin--Pfc. Gilbert Bailey, 1510 E. 12th St.; Bastrop--Cpl. Jesse Miller, Route 1; Bryan--Cpl. Roosevelt Carrie, RFD 1, Box 133; Houston--Pfc. Isaiah W. Carter, 2504 Frances; Capt. Reese A. Wolfe, 2424 Calumet St.; Jefferson--Pvt. Otis Smith, General Delivery; Patroon--Sgt. Percy Bell, General Delivery; Plan Chard--Pvt. Samuel Wiley, General Delivery.

VIRGINIA: Farmville--Pvt. Joseph Paige, 801 Ely St.

WASHINGTON: Spokane--Lieut. Michael E. Collier, E. 2909 Joseph Ave.

* * * * * * * *

RECENTLY COMMISSIONED NAVIGATION OFFICERS AT HONDO FIELD, TEXAS

HONDO ARMY AIR FIELD, Hondo, Texas---The following Negro cadets received silver navigator's wings and commissions as second lieutenants or flight officers, Air Corps, during graduation ceremonies held here February 3, 1945:

SECOND LIEUTENANTS

Robert C. Bailey, 444 South Central Avenue, Columbus, Ohio
Edward W. Dunklin, 4640 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois
James Fears, Jr., 4839 Vinewood Avenue, Detroit, Michigan
Paul L. Ford, 544 East 40th Street, Chicago, Illinois
Webster G. Guiar, 1630 East 111th Place, Los Angeles, California
Emerson L. Jones, Box 295, Baldwin, Michigan
Harry E. Lanauze, 1923 11th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C.
Gilbert B. Langford, 546 West 28th Street, Indianapolis, Indiana
Frederick N. Lawrence, 176 Albany Avenue, Brooklyn, New York
Paul D. Lehman, 354 East Jefferson Boulevard, Los Angeles, California

MORE

Cary B. Lewis, Jr., 4926 Washington Park Court, Chicago, Illinois
William C. Loving, 5327 Indiana Avenue Avenue, Chicago, Illinois
Luther E. McIlwain, 1108 Queen Street, Columbia, South Carolina
John D. Quick, Jr., 37 Quincy Place, N.E., Washington, D.C.
Connol J. Reid, 230 North 12th Street, Connellsville, Pennsylvania
John H. Rosemond, Jr., 1442 Florida Avenue, Jacksonville, Florida
Dickerson C. Terry, 11627 Bandera Avenue, Los Angeles, California
Louis Young, 9724 Delmar, Detroit, Michigan

FLIGHT OFFICERS

Sherman Anthony, Jr., 163 Pearl Street, Elizabeth, New Jersey
Donald J. Bowdoin, 1120 South Serrano, Los Angeles, California
Chester E. Eddington, 818 13th Street, N.E., Washington, D.C.
Arthur R. Flowers, 2463 Saratoga Avenue, Memphis, Tennessee
Philip P. Harris, 86 South Van Buren Street, Batavia, Illinois
James H. Stoute, 103 West 141st Street, New York, New York
Charles G. Walker, II, 2216 Eleventh Street, N.W. Washington, D.C.
Arnold J.R. Wallace, 49 Saint Nicholas Terrace, New York, New York

END

DISTRIBUTION: Ad.
2-7-45

25-23412-600

FUTURE RELEASE

PLEASE NOTE DATE

WAR DEPARTMENT
Bureau of Public Relations
PRESS BRANCH
Tel. - RE 6700
Brs. 3425 and 4860

Court No 9
WAC from South

February 13, 1945

IMMEDIATE RELEASE

738 NEGRO WACS ARRIVE IN ENGLAND; GREETED BY GENERALS LEE AND DAVIS

HEADQUARTERS, UNITED KINGDOM BASE, England---The arrival in England on February 12 of 738 Negro members of the Women's Army Corps, the first such contingent to be assigned to an overseas station, was announced today by the War Department. Twenty-three Negro officers accompanied them.

These capable Wacs, who augment the more than 300,000 male members of their race in the European Theater of Operations, comprise the first United States Army postal unit composed entirely of women to be sent overseas.

Lieutenant General John C.H. Lee, Commanding General of the Communications Zone, ETO, and supply officer to General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, greeted them at their debarkation point near Birmingham, where a Scot band bagpiped them to their train.

Representing nearly every state in the Union, with 85 per cent of them either ex-school teachers or holders of college degrees, the women also were welcomed by Brigadier General Benjamin O. Davis, Inspector General's Office, ETO, and by Chaplain (Captain) Beverly Ward, 1112 North 13th Street, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. An American band serenaded them as they marched into waiting buses at their destination.

The youngest member of the group is Private Hilda E. Wood, 5430 Summer Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, who will observe her twenty-first birthday on February 15, while Sergeant Erma Lee Fifer, 51, 4014 Dearborn Street, Chicago, Illinois, the oldest, joined up because her eight-year-old grandson, Jerome, wanted one member of the family represented in the Armed Forces. The grandmother claims she goes in "just under the wire."

With two sons serving in the Pacific theater, Private Mary Fairweather, 940 St. Nicholas Avenue, New York City, a comely widow of 48, joined the Colors, she says, to make it a solid family affair. Her son, Elwyn, 26 a lieutenant in the Army, was headed for the South Pacific when she left the U.S. for England. Another son, Arthur, 21, has served with the Marines at a Pacific post for two years.

Following is a list of the officers:

Major Charity Adams, 2113 Lady Street, Columbia, South Carolina
Captain Mildred Davenport Carter, 522 Columbus Avenue, Boston, Massachusetts
Captain Vera A. Harrison, 1266 Lane Street, Hamilton, Ohio
First Lieutenant Violet W. Hill, 3104 Lucas Avenue, St. Louis, Missouri
First Lieutenant Mildred Virginia Dupee, 7273 American Avenue, Detroit, Michigan
First Lieutenant Bernice Gaines Henderson, 520 E. Market Street, Xenia, Ohio
First Lieutenant Margaret Ellen Barnes, 221 N. Main Street, Oberlin, Ohio
First Lieutenant Catherine G. Landry, 629 N. Tonti Street, New Orleans, Louisiana
First Lieutenant Blanche L. Scott, 2231 Ontario Road, N.W., Washington, D.C.
First Lieutenant Dorothy H. Scott, 1218 W. 11th Street, Alton, Illinois
Second Lieutenant Gussye Delores Stewart, 5940 S. Parkway, Chicago, Illinois
Second Lieutenant Alice E. Edwards, 3023 Alhambra Avenue, Los Angeles, California
Second Lieutenant Vivian N. Elzie, 12 Asbury Avenue, Crisfield, Maryland
Second Lieutenant Aubrey Annette Stokes, Gloucester, Virginia
Second Lieutenant Hazel Evelyn Craddock, 1263 E. 17th Street, Court, Des Moines, Iowa

MORE

Second Lieutenant ElFreda St. Anne LeBeau, 927 Kerlerec Street, New Orleans, Louisiana

Second Lieutenant Frances E. Flatts, 506 W. 150th Street, New York, New York

Second Lieutenant Bertie Marie Edwards, 43 Robert Street, Danville, Virginia

Names of enlisted members of the contingent by states follow:

ALABAMA: Birmingham--Pfc. Willie Mae House, 1217 - 1st Ave., West; Pvt. Mary Louise Walthall, 1812 Center St.,South; Tech. 5th Gr. Christel Stocks George, 313 - 1st, S. West; Pvt. Eva Edwards, 2022 - 10th Way; Pfc. Dorothy Elizabeth Brown, 511 - 1st St., North; Pvt. Minnie Bell Quarles, 103 - 8th Ave., West; Mobile--Pfc. Elizabeth Mary Davis, 1325 Adams St.; Pvt. Irene Robinson Greene, 968 Gorgas St.; Pvt. Willie Lee Coleman, 555 S. Conception St.; Tech. 4th Gr. Mercelene Lettice Fairgood, 970 Gorgas St.; Pvt. Dolores Hall Smith, 1305½ St. Mentor St.; Prairie--Pfc. Hattie Irene Steele; Muskogee--Pvt. Izona Brown, 228 N. 2nd St.; Montgomery--Tech. 5th Gr. Mary Frances Smith, 1020 S. Holt St.; Pfc. Mary Rose Munice, 253 Cleveland, Court; Florence--Tech. 5th Gr. Jeanetta Lucile Moorehead, 739 Long Lane St.; Tuskegee Institute--Pvt. Lillian Irma Battle, Box 739; Dixiana--Tech. 4th Gr. Addie Lee Campbell, General Delivery; Bessemer--Pvt. Felicia LaVon Johnson, Route 2, Box 267; Alexander City--Pvt. Ophelia D. Thomas; Montevallo--Pfc. Susie Irma Middlebrook; Decatur--Pfc. Tessie Mae Seymour, Route 1, Box 16; Selma--Pfc. Margaret Lydia Young.

ARKANSAS: Little Rock--Pfc. Cora Lee Richardson, 700 Peech St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Bessie M. Willis, 1122 Izard St.; Magnolia--Pfc. Terrine Delores Presley, Route 5, Box 11; Hot Springs--Tech. 5th Gr. Emma Jean Jacobs, 426 Pleasant St.; Paraloma--Pfc. Mattie L. Griffin; Osceola--Cpl. Virgie L. Caywood, Route 1, Box 251; ElDowdo--Pvt. Ruby Lee Ward; Roland--Pvt. Ella Mae Davis; Crossett--Tech. 5th Gr. Vernice Eloweiss Evans, 451-c 4th St.; Trumann--Pvt. Rose Marie Anderson, Route 2; Cleveland--Pvt. Eateel Bernice Williams, Star Route; Osceola--Pvt. Anna M. Wilson, 604 Johnson St.; Wynne--Pvt. Evelyn M. Young, 403 Ahorn St.; Van Buren--Pvt. Rebecca Odella Glass, Route, Box 102; Chidester--Pfc. Lynia Earnestine Tate, Route 1, Box 64.

ARIZONA: Nogales--Pvt. Lydia Esther Thornton, 314 Beck St.

CALIFORNIA: Los Angeles--Pvt. Jessie Bowie Hall, 921 1/4 E. Jefferson Blvd.; Tech. 4th Gr. Mattie Mae Moorehead, 1783 W. 35th St.; Pvt. Gladys L. Collier, 2215 E. Century Blvd.; Pvt. LaMonthal Laffettee Williams, 129 N. Bonnie Brae; Tech. 5th Gr. Viola Evelina Suarez, 1593 W. 36th St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Ora Elizabeth Bragg, 945 E. 22nd St.; Pvt. Frances Anna Foster, 1308 Newton St.; Pfc. Polly Clay Frazier, 1373 E. 48th Place; Stockton--Pvt. Dorothy Ella Daniels, 130 W. Market St.; San Francisco--Pvt. Thelma Pearlie Johnson, 1477 Geary St.; Monterey--Pfc. Bette Elizabeth McDonald, Route 1, Box 215; Bakersfield--Sgt. Dorothy B. Tabb, 1015 Adelante Circle.

COLORADO: Denver--Pvt. Jessie G. Hudson, 2238 Washington St.; Pfc. Beula Tee Fant, 2343 Williams St.; Pueblo--Pvt. Erma Pauline Brady, 1601 Brown Ave.

CONNECTICUT: Bridgeport--Sgt. Dolores Mercedes Browne, 201 Hewitt St.; Bloomfield--Pfc. Marian Sarah Jackson, 29 Gilbert Ave.; Hartford--Pvt. Mary J. Barlow, 349 Bellevue St.; New London--Pfc. Burnardine E. Fraser, 8 School House Lane; New Haven--Pvt. Margaret Powell, 9 Cleveland Road; Pfc. Elizabeth M. McNair, 48 Gregory St.; Pfc. Audrey Elizabeth Harris, 763 George St.; Norwichtown--Pfc. Anna M. Tarryk, R.F.D. 8; Stanford--Pvt. Margaret Beatrice Janer, 36 Waverly Place.

DELAWARE: Marshallton--Pvt. Mary Crawford; Wilmington--Pvt. Evelina Rachel Gryfin, 517 Sherman St.; Cpl. Edith Marguerete Carter, 1627 W. 8th St.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA: Washington--Pvt. Thelma Claire Lofty, 1418 W St.,N.W.; Pvt. Lucille Virginia Mae Johnson, 4335 Polk St., N.E.; Sgt. Gertrude Virginia Hall, 107 E Street, S.E.; Pvt. Jessie Mae Bridgers, 1340 T St., N.W.; Pfc. Alva C. Truatt, 813 - 21st St., N.W.; Pvt. Deloris Louise Ruddock, 1338 T St., N.W.; Pfc. Hylda M. Miller, 3113 - 13th St., N.E.; Pvt. Marie A. McKinney, 467 I St., N.W.; Pvt. Eleanor Wyetta Gibson, 1828 Capitol Ave. Pfc. Margaret Perkins

MORE

Simmons, 1459 S St., N.W.; Pfc. Hattie Mae Lee, 1858 Kendall St., N.E.: Pvt. Constance Elaine Webb, 1103 Eastern Ave., N.E.; Pvt. Doris Madeline Ware, 1201 G St., N.E.; Pvt. Genevieve Marshall, 1822 I St., N.E.; Pfc. Lillie Beatrice Harrison, 3310 New Hampshire Ave., N.W.; Pvt. Sarah Belle Gary, 2301 - H St.; Pfc. Olive Kathryn Dedeaux, 529 Gresham Place, N.W.; Cpl. Susan V. Crabtree, 502 - 24th St. N.E.; Pvt. Sarah Belle Gary, 2301 - H St., N.W.; Pvt. Constance Arnhold Wardell, 604 Harvard St. N.W.; Cpl. Christina Stone, 911 - 22nd St. N.W.; Pvt. Arleatha Silver Battle, 1859 - 3rd St., N.W.; Pfc. Edith Marie Ellison, 509 T St., N.W.; Cpl. Irma Lucille Campbell, 2011 Benning Road, N.E.; Pvt. Vertile Jessie Mae Williams, 1311 S. Capital St., S.W.; Pvt. Emma E. Johnson, 1106 Columbia Road, N.W.; Pfc. Alice Lillian Dixon, 4001 Blaine St., N.E.; Pvt. Dona Mary Primus, 424 Oklahoma Ave. N.E.; Pfc. Elvie Louise Holder, 1729 - 12th St. N.W.; Sgt. Cecelia Hare Kelly, 2219 F St., N.W.

FLORIDA: Sanford--Tech. 5th Gr. Edna Cross Burton, 900 Locust Ave.; Pensacola--Pfc. Beatrice Casey, 2005 N. 6th Ave.; Miami--Sgt. Gladys Selucia Clayton, 2863 N.W. 47th St.; Gainesville--Pvt. Thelma Ann Duncan, 1144 Brown St.; Goulds--Pvt. Ruby Leania Everett, Box 974; Tampa--Pvt. Jennie Lee Fayson, 912 Union St.; Titusville--Cpl. Jessie Lee Godboldte, 308 South St.; Homestead--Pvt. Florida Belle Jackson, General Delivery; Miami--Pfc. Elizabeth Ola Lamb, 246 N.W. 20th St.; Palotka--Staff Sgt. Fannie Boyd Little, 924 Reid St.; West Palm Beach--Pvt. Josie Mae Loine, 1022 State St.; Miami--Staff Sgt. Elaine O. Smith, 341 N.W. 10th St.; Cpl. Marion Mackey, 444 N.W. 16th St.; Daytona Beach--Pvt. Erma Louise Rodrigner, 707 Cedar St.; Tarpon Springs--Cpl. Dannie M. Singleton, 442 Wall St.; St. Augustine--Pvt. Geneva Iona Smith, 108 Evergreen Ave.; Jacksonville--Pfc. Florita Davis Smith, 1220 Cleveland St.; Monticello--Tech. 5th Gr. Essie M. Watts, Box 432; Jacksonville--Pfc. Ethel Mae Wingo, 1824 Davis St.

GEORGIA: Savannah--Pvt. Sylvia Ethel Armstrong, R.F.D. 4, Box 14; Pvt. Wilma Evonne Barnes, 766 Yamacrow Village; Pfc. Herlene Roberta Bradsher, 801 W. 52nd St.; Wrens--Pfc. Susie P. Brown; Dublin--Pvt. Eugenia Anjoline Brown, 612 W. Mary St.; Atlanta--Pvt. Clara Emma Wilson, 629 Arrowood St. S.W.: Tech. 5th Gr. Leola L. Wheat, 26 Rawson St. S.E.; Pfc. Bessie Gladys Turner, 968 Ashby Circle, N.W.; Pvt. Beulah Helen Patten, 289 Newport St.; Pvt. Sadie Huff, 15 Fort St., S. E.; Cpl. Florine J. Hill, 951 Camille St. S.W.; Tech. 5th Gr. Nellie R. Harmon, 267 Brown St. S.W.; Pfc. Mary F. Dairs, 204 Linden Ave., N.E.; Pvt. Lola Bernice Davis, 592 Piedmont Ave.; Sgt. Gladys Lenyer Brumfield, 71 Brown Ave.; Augusta--Pvt. Ardella Cody Pitts, 705 Hopkins St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Essie Dell O'Bryant, 2537 Mt. Auburn Ave.; Pfc. Julia Catherine Harris, 1635 McCauley St.; Savannah--Pfc. Annie Mae Mason, 543 Yamcrow Village; Pfc. Vernelle Al Hannah, 1010 Gurnnett St.; Shiloh--Pvt. Annie Olivie Crawl, Route 1, Box 11; Columbus--Pfc. Jessie Kate Faulk, 514 - 8th St.; Newman--Pvt. Phyletus Clyde Greene, 64 Lovelace St.; Waycross--Cpl. Martha Lorraine Goddard, 926 Rosebud St.; Cartersville--Sgt. Marian Sidney Goode, 110 Carter St. Macon--Staff Sgt. Marseleana Rebecca Goodwin, 235 - 5th Ave.; Moultrie--Pvt. Willie Belle Irvin, 617 - 3rd St. N.W.; Rome--Pvt. Sarah F. Morgan , 84 Flannery St.; Brunswick--Cpl. Elouise Algatia Pinkney, 2102 Cleburne St.; Lyerly--Pfc. Elouise Hudgins Rice, R.F.D. 1, Box 85; Macon--Tech. 5th Gr. Henrie Mae Smith, 122 Rockhille Lane; Smithville--Pvt. Ozie Bell Smothers, Route 2, Box 5; Forsyth--Pvt. Mwybelle R. Tanner, Route 4, Box 48; Hillsboro--Pfc. Lilla Clara Waters, Route 1, Box 12; Marietta--Pvt. Lettie Roberta Williams, 507 Leucon St.

ILLINOIS: East St. Louis--Pfc. Willa Mae Perkins, 23 N. 24th St.; Peoria--Tech. 5th Gr. Loraine Hinton, 916 Monson St.; Quincy--Tech. 4th Gr. Creadell Johnette Haley, 916 Oak St.; La Grange--Pvt. Mary Jane Smith, 324 E. Franklin St.; Paris--Pfc. Florence Lucille Radcliff, 404 W. Van Buren St.; Danville--Tech. 5th Gr. Gloria Hermoline Carr, 513 W. English St.; Pvt. Evelyn McDougal, 412 Junction Ave.; Pvt. Willeen S. Fly, 802 E. Johnson St.; Chicago--Pfc. Rlla Kelley Armstrong, 5941 Indiana Ave.; Pfc. Johnnie M. Barton, 35 W. 59th St.; Pvt. Mamie Lee Beard, 4535 Vincennes Ave.; Pfc. Geraldine Beaumont, 4717 Calumet Ave.; Tech. 5th Gr. Betty F. Bowen, 5736 S. Parkway; Pvt. Lila Virginia Bush, 41 E. 55th St.; Pvt. Pinkie Collier, 3551 Ellis Ave.; Pfc. Arjean B. Conner, 2939 Fulton St.; Pfc. Anna Mae Couch, 373 W. Oak St.: Pvt. Ruthanna Cummings, 4926 Champlain Ave.; Tech. 4th Gr. Mamie Ann Doss, 224 E. 60th St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Evelyn Eilared, 1145 Lurabee St.; Pvt. Helen Navalee English, 5615 Calumet Ave.; Sgt. Erma Lee Fifer, 4014 S. Dearborn St.; Pfc. Jacqulyn Fuller, 135 N. Campbell Ave.: Pfc. Vincna Fuller, 135 N. Campbell Ave.: Tech. 5th Gr. Cecilia Delphine Goldsby, 5363 Dearborn St.; Pfc. Callie Nichols Grant, 8938 Green Bay Ave.; Pvt. Rhoda Phibbs, 3004 S. Ellis Ave.; Pvt. Annie L. Grimes, 3402 Giles Ave.; Pfc. Margaret Ethelyn Hampton, 6004 S. State St.; Pvt. Marian Uny Horace, 632 Oakwood Blvd.; Sgt. Mattie Laura Jackson, 356 E. 59th St.; Pfc. Ruth Sarver Jacobs, 515 E. 61st St.; Pfc. Juanita Rose Lane, 9215 S. Michigan Ave.; Pvt. Ruth Ellen Lewis, 6753 Evans Ave.; Pvt. Leatrice Lowe, 5409 S. Michigan Ave.; Cpl. Eddye G. Maddox, 6012 S. Parkway Ave.; Pvt. Rosa Lee Marsaw, 6029 Rhodes Ave.; Pvt. Mary Jean McBride, 4329 S. Michigan Ave.,; Pvt. DeLois George Miller, 312 E. 49th St.; Pfc. Lethelma Moore, 6135 Calumet Ave.; Pfc. Helen Marie Norris, 5912 S. Parkway; Pfc. Yhelma Lee O'Kelly, 2937 Wentworth Ave.; Pvt. Sarah Antoinette Parker, 5606 Wabash Ave.; Tech. 5th Gr. Elizabeth M. Patterson, 5247 Michigan Ave.; Tech. 4th Gr. Lucia M. Pitts, 5156 Michigan Ave.; Pvt. Maude Virginia Porter, 6312 Rhodes Ave.; Pvt. Margaret Glenn Sales, 5240 S. Wabash Ave.; Pfc. Edna P. Samples, 6830 Langley Ave.; Pfc. Sammye Lee Trail, 6040 S. Parkway; Pvt. Lois M. Washington, 3714 Vincennes Ave.; Pfc. Willie M. Whiting, 4848 S. Dearborn St.; Pvt. Mildred J. Wilson, 5138 S. Parkway; Pvt. Grace Vairin, 221 E. 50th St.; Pvt. Johnnie E. Yerger, 632 Oakwood Blvd.

MORE

INDIANA: Evansville--Pfc. Cordelia Lucille Tolliver, Route 2, Box 136; Pvt. Lulu M. Edmonson, 524 S. Governor; Gary--Pvt. Josephine Machlin. 2564 Mass St.; Cpl. Bennye Barbara Daniels, 1241 W. 17th Ave.; Indianapolis--Cpl. Clara.Marie Webb, 209 West 12th St.; Pvt. Hazel D. Moore, 618 W. 29th St.; Pvt. Mary L. Whiting, 705 N. Senate Ave.; Cpl. Blanche Wilhelmina Dogan, 2001 N. Talbot St.; Pvt. Bridget V. Bevens, 921 W. 28th St.; E. Chicago--Pvt. Alvie Tirie Hunter, 3825 Carey St.; Terre Haute--Pvt. Doris M. Maxwell, 1300 S. 13th St.; Ft. Wayne--Pvt. Dolly B. Woods, 1319 S. Barr.

IOWA: Council Bluffs--Pfc. Geraldine Lunice Herndon, 1901 - 8th Ave.

KANSAS: Kansas City--Tech. 5th Gr. Hazel Leona Washington, 2718 Douglass St.; Pvt. Bernice Nelly Underwood, 1201 Barnett Ave.; Sgt. Bettie Jeanne Smith, 2054 Hallock St.; Pfc. Rosalie Adelaide Simmons, 1226 Everett Ave.; Pfc. Bettie M. Albert, 1212 N. 31st St.; Larned--Pvt. Dollie Elizabeth Jackson, 414 Johnson Ave.; Chetopa--Pvt. Mintha Jones, Box 81; Hutchinson--Pvt. Lavinia Cleora Lowery, 618 E. 2nd St.; Topeka--Pfc. Euilena O'Dell, 3428 Indiana Ave.; El Dorado--Tech. 5th Gr. Golda Lee Patton, 809 N. Oak St.; Lawrence--Pvt. Alonda Rose Topp, 712 Missouri St.; Manhattan--Pvt. Cecilione Wilson, Route 3.

KENTUCKY: Louisville--Pfc. Adele Ricketts, 950 S. 15th St.; Cpl. Ruth Henrielle Hammond, 2228 W. Madison St.; Pvt. Effie Chambers, 631 S. 26th St.; Pfc. Emma H. Brock, 3807 Bohne Ave.; Tech. 5th Gr. Henrietta G. Adams, 1350 S. 12th St.; Lexington--Pvt. Julia M. Jackson, 563 Maryland Ave.; Pvt. Venus B. Cox, 566 Goodloe St.; Bardstown--Pfc. Minnie Grace Cross, Route 1; Richmond--Cpl. Jennetta S. Blythe, 311 B St.; Corbin--Cpl. Alberta Coleman, 110 S. Laurel St.; Lewisburg--Tech. 4th Gr. Marilyn E. Gill, Route 1, Box 118; Tribbey--Staff Sgt. Norene Harris; Owensboro--Pfc. Vivian G. Hayden, 2326 W. 9th St.; McAndrews--Pfc. Sara Elizabeth Longmire; Henderson--Pfc. Carrie Ethel Nelson, 248 W. Alves St.; Pvt.Grant Esther Marshall, 213 S. Julia St.; Erlanger--Pvt. Evelyn Eva Miller, 32 Spring St.; Pvt. Nettie Mae Saunders.

LOUISIANA: Washington--Tech. 5th Gr. Annie Mae Lawson, Box 245; Chestnut--Cpl. Willie Mae Jewett, Route 2, Box 13; Franklin--Pfc. Marion Mildred Moore, 102 Isabella St.; Franklinton--Pvt. Lucille Muril Jones; Franklin--Pfc. Almeta Phelice Morrison, 405 Hanson Ave.; Pioneer--Pfc. Normal Niblet; Baton Rouge--Cpl. Theresa Mae Bell, 208 N. 26th St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Shirley Hertiesine Weareye, 624 S. 16th St.; Jeanerette--Tech. 5th Gr. Martha Lee Johnson, Cypermont St.; Couchatte--Sgt. Widdie Mae Duncan, Route 4, Box 255; Church Point--Tech. 5th Gr. Daro Charlot ; Farmerville--Pfc. Annie L. Moses; Shreveport--Pvt. Luchertha M. Alexander, 1818 St. Paul St.; Marrero--Tech. 4th Gr. Annetta A. Baptiste, 1113 Ames Blvd.; South Mansfield--Pvt. Gladys B. O'Giluie, Box 131; New Orleans-Pvt. Maggie Antoinette Chestang, 2330 Philip St.; Pfc. Althea Veronica Dunn, 3930 Gibson St.; Pvt. Margaret G. Ellis, 2526 Jona St.; Pfc. Mary McClain, 3119 College Court; Cpl. Charlotte M. Mc Cullum, 689 N. Tonti St.; Cpl. Frances Elizabeth Pickett, 1234 S. Talvez St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Annette W. Simmons, 1605 Dumaine St.; Pfc. Malinda Ann Washington, 4715 Camp St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Velma Lawhain White, 4625 Allen St.; Pfc. Menthee Robbie Talbert, 552 S. Roman St.

MARYLAND: St. Mary's Co.--Pvt. Agnes E. Barnes, Chaptico Post office; Cambridge--Cpl. Mary Rebecca Jackson, 234 Pine St.; Centreville--Pvt. Eleanor

MORE

Ann Wilson, Route 3, Box 160; Brooklyn--Pfc. Emily Olivia Noisette, Route 9, Box 460; Fruitland--Pvt. Lucy Geraldine Pollitt, Box 4; Baltimore--Pvt. Laura Mae Jones, 1521 Vine St.; Pfc. Vashti Murphy Matthews, 2406 Overland Ave. (Morgan Park); Pvt. Annie Beulah Moore, 408 Laurner St.; Cumberland--Pvt. Mary Catherine Nailor, 8 Cherry Place; Baltimore--Pvt. Thelma Alice Parker, 313 N. Stricker St.; Pfc. Ethel Brooks Philyan, 2329 Madison Ave.; Pvt. Gloria A. Sydnor, 2220 Druid Hill Ave.; Pvt. Gloria Phenryne Taylor, 509 Baker St.; Pvt. Grace Margaret Whyte, 625 Carrollton Ave.; Sgt. Vivian Winifred Young, 2135 McCulloh St.

MASSACHUSETTS: Amherst--Pfc. Laura Amelia Bias, 39 Hazel Ave.; Cambridge--Tech. 5th Gr. Beverly Winifred Carrington, 42 Howard St.; Boston--Pfc. Enid Ernestine Clark, 22 Davenport St.; Pfc. Dorothy Smith Dailey, 11 Carlisle St.; Chelsea--Cpl. Constance Muriel Elizabeth Hermandez, 92.- 4th St.; Springfield--Pvt. Cora Lee Hurston, 715 Union St.; Pittsfield--Tech. 5th Gr. Mary Elizabeth Moody. Graylock Road; Boston--Pvt. Eloise B. McNeeley, 22 Concord Square; Cambridge--Pfc. Elsie J. Oliver, 312 Concord Ave.

MICHIGAN: Hamtramck--Tech. 5th Gr. Leyonia Woodward, 11408 Grand Haven; Flint--Pvt. Maude Taylor, 907 Dartmouth St.; Detroit--Tech. 4th Gr. Ruth Verena Wade, 4609 Bangor St.; Pvt. Lucy June Ussery, 3147 Pennsylvania Ave.; Pfc. Gladys Odessa Thomas, 2157 St. Joseph; Pvt. Bettye Jean Richardson, 2038 McDougall Ave.; Pvt. Celestine Mathis, 222 Garfield St.; Pvt. Adella King, 640 E. Hancock St.; Cpl. Madelyn Lou Hudgins, 17820 Mitchell St.; Pvt. Bernice Hester, 3503 St. Antoine St.; Pvt. Maetoris Hairston, 4649 Brush St.; Pfc. Philista Johnson, 2998 E. Macomb; Pvt. Annie K. Grinter, 77 E. Caufield St.; Pvt. Rosetta Gaines, 290 Tronsworth Ave.; Pvt. Arthurine Collins, 15581 - 12th St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Annie Lee Praceful, 634 Holbrook.

MINNESOTA: Minneapolis--Pfc. Bernice Eunice Huggar, 2224 Washington Ave.,N.; Cpl. Virginia Marcelline Lane, 722 Tremont Ave.,N.; St. Paul--Sgt. Vernie Mae Smith, 486 Larpenteur Ave., W.; Minneapolis--Pvt. Ednora Alta Wallace, 2837 14th Ave.

MISSISSIPPI: Hub--Pvt. Leona Abram, Route 1, Box 100; Natchez--Pfc. Louise Rita Bruce, 302 Orleans St.; Vicksburg--Pvt. Lola Irene Cliggett, 1705 Openwood St.; Mt. Oline--Pfc. Sophia E. Easterlings, Route 2, Box 48; Magnolia--Pfc. Edna Allyne Fletcher, Box 423; Nettleton--Tech. 5th Gr. Bessie Alice Foster, Route 1, Box 130; Laurel--Cpl. Flora Grace, 623 S. 5th Ave.; Moss Point--Pvt. Isabel J. Griffin, 806 Mayo St.; Learned--Pvt. Adlease Harding, Route 1, Box 162; Jackson--Pfc. Mable Lucille Haskin, 513 Lemly St.; Greenwood--Pvt. Olivia Johnson, 517 Rear Ave. F; Tech. 5th Gr. Mildred Fredonia Montgomery, 505 Ave. G; Meridian--Pfc. Annie Lee Wimberty, 10th Ave, Route 4; Tech. 4th Gr. Minnie Pearl Lockey, 10th Ave., Route 4; Ocean Springs--Tech. 5th Gr. Doris Louise Paige, 107 Handy Ave.; Ofahoma--Sgt. Annie Proctor Reed, General Delivery; Madison Station--Pfc. Girtie Marie Saddler, Route 1, Box 24; Pinola--Pfc. Minnie Smith Sibbie.

MISSOURI: Kansas City--Tech. 5th Gr. Dorothy Cox, 2532 Highland Ave.; Salisbury--Pvt. Georgia Ella Kitchen, 315 E. 1st St.; St. Louis--Cpl. Pearline McKell, 4577 Cote Brilliante; Tech. 4th Gr. Florence Verbiban Scales, 2643-a Bernard St.; Pfc. Helen Sheron Simmons, 722 Newstead Ave.; Tech. 4th Gr. Odessa Taylor, 4564 Enright Ave.; St. Joseph--Tech. 5th Gr. Georgia Evan. Tivis, 408 S. 16th St.; Jefferson City--Tech. 5th Gr. Theada G. Weddle, 1020 E. Atchison St.; Sedalia--Pfc. Hazel E. Threadgill, 221 E. Johnson; Pfc. Anna M. Jackson, 104 W. Johnson St.

MONTANA: Butte--Pvt. Genevieve H. Williamson, 341 E. Galena.

NEVADA: Beatrice--Cpl. Mable Virginia Nevels, 614 S. 9th St.; Omaha--Cpl. Alberta Ora Bradley, 2817 R Ave.

NEW HAMPSHIRE: Portsmouth--Pvt. Doris Moore, 41 Pickering St.

NEW JERSEY: Passaic--Pvt. Bernice S. Axam, 96 Central Ave.; Elizabeth--Pfc. Velma Jerome Arkward, 61 Butler St.; Pfc. Gladys Beatrice Avant, 1091 William St.; Palmyra--Pvt. Dorothy Dale Birkhead, 413 Race St.; Cape May--Pvt. Willamae Boatright, 404 - 4th Ave. W.; Bayonne--Sgt. Lillian A. Butterfield, 514 Boulevard; East Orange--Pfc. Gladys Eva Debman, 36 N. Oraton Parkway; Woodbridge--Cpl. Daisy Bell Dinkins, 100 New St.; Boselle--Pvt. Sylvia Gillis,

MORE

241 E. 9th Ave.; Linden--Pfc. Hester Givens, 1228 St. Georges Ave.; Neptune--Pvt. Ada W. Holley, 1916 Banks Ave.; Plainfield--Pvt. Johnita Alyse Johnson, 640 W. 3rd St.; Paterson--Cpl. Willene Johnson, 19Godwin Ave.; East Riverton--Pvt. Dolores M. Johnson, 308 Union Landing Road; Newark--Pvt. Doretha Miller, 34 Boyd St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Georgiana Morton, 44 Somerset St.; Tech. 4th Gr. Edith Marguerite Linzey, 713 S. 11th St.; Englewood--Pvt. Caroline Elizabeth Smith, 125 - 1st St.; Canden--Pvt. Catherine E. Turner, 724 Walnut St.; Allentown--Pvt. Marion Van Orkey; Lawnside--Pvt. Breda Violet Williams; Jersey City--Pfc. Vermell Elmira McMillan, 114 Grant Ave.; Pfc. Beatrice Riley Withers, 622 Bramhall Ave.; Asbury Park--Cpl. Lauretta Wray, 305 A.P. Village.

NEW YORK: Staten Island--Pfc. Harriett Elaine Douglas, 141 Richmond St.; Buffalo--Tech. 4th Gr. Evelyn Clarisse Martin, 125 Woodlawn Ave.; Pfc. Lillian Viola Showell, 356 Woodlawn Ave.; Corona, Long Island--Pfc. Lillian Vera Jones, 32-17-108th St.; Corona--Pfc. Mary Elizabeth Greene, 34-58 - 110th St.; White Plains--Pfc. Evelyn Reed, 8 Elm St.; Corona--Cpl. Marjorie Brown, 104-04 - 3rd Ave.; Tuckahoe--Pvt. Dorothy Elizabeth Lounds, 20 Circuit Ave.; Jamaica--Pvt. Edith Jane Armistead, 109-01 - 169th Place; Salt Point--Cpl. Doris Elnora Braddock; Annapolis--Cpl. Ada Louise Jennings, Bay Ridge; Utica--Sgt. Mary Aleese Ebo, 507 Jay St.; Flushing--Pvt. William Henrietta Lee, 33-11 Prince St.; Hillburn--Pfc. Norma DeFreese Moore, Reservoir Road; Port Washington, Long Island, Pfc. Evelyn Bernice Lozi, 119 Harbor Road; Brooklyn--Pfc. Margaret Francis Anderson, 516 Greene Ave.; Pvt. Joyce G. Anderson, 355 Quincy St.; Cpl. Bernice A. Augustine, 122 Macon St.; Pfc. Phyllis Louise Branch, 169 S. Elliott Place; Pfc. Lillian Cabbell, 205 Hancock St.; Pvt. Pearl Ethlene Cumberbatch, 40 McDonough St.; Pfc. Ruth Elizabeth Daniel, 244 Gates Ave.; Pvt. Lular P. Downing, 2136-a Atlantic Ave.; Bronx--Pvt. Ermantrude Finch, 1410 Prospect Ave.; Pfc. Evelyn Louise Fray, 783 Marcy Ave.; Tech. 3rd Gr. Mattie E. Garrett, 392 Jefferson Ave.; Pvt. Elverna E. Isaac, 738 Lafayette Ave.; Pvt. Sybil Muriel King, 1350 Bergen St.; Pvt. Josephine Powell, 496 Classon Ave.; Tech. 5th Gr. Velma Ann Riddick, 927 Jefferson Ave.; Cpl. Callie Katrina Smith, 2 Verona Place; Tech. 5th Gr. Fannie Louise Talbert, 505 Throop Ave.; Sgt. Pernice Thomas, 326 Greene Ave.; Pfc. Helen M. Wood, 522-a MacDonough St.

New York--Pfc. Margie L. Amis, 50 W. 120th St.; Pfc. Mary Hortensa Bankston, 307 W. 148th St.; Pvt. Dorothy Agnes Bartlett, 137 W. 137th St.; Pvt. Virginia A. Blake, 1851 - 7th Ave.; Tech. 5th Gr. Adelina Harris Bell, 509 W. 146th St.; Pvt. Clarice E. Blackett, 160 W. 141st St.; Cpl. Theodora D. Bryant, 1842 Paulding Ave.; Yonkers--Pvt. Gladys Schuster Carter, 38 Dunbar St.; New York--Pvt. Carmew Ismary Hyacinth Colliers, 631 E. 168th St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Madeline A. Coleman, 32 St. Nicholas Place; Pfc. Marcella Lee Canty, 30 W. 138th St.; Sgt. Cleopatra Vivian Daniels, 34 St. Nicholas Place; Pvt. Gwendolyn Clark Deane, 520 Tintion Ave.; Pvt. Emma Scott De Freese, 363 Edgecomb Ave.; Pfc. Harriett Elaine Douglas, 141 Richmond St.; Pvt. Izetta M. Douglas, 540 Manhattan Ave.; Pvt. Amy Mary Fairweather, 940 St. Nicholas Ave.; Pvt. Dorothy Gloria Young, 262 W. 127th St.; Pvt. Norma L. Watts, 165 Manhattan Ave.; Tech. 5th Gr. Mary Elizabeth Walker, 1391 Clinton Ave.; Pvt. Nespa Victoria Tankard, 509 W. 159th St.; Pfc. Blanche V. Swantner, 26 Mt. Morris Park, W.; Pvt. Rose Stone, 300 Manhattan Ave.; Tech. 5th Gr. Doris Elizabeth Stwart, 259 West 152nd St.; Pvt. Benita Franklin Schuster, 426 W. 147th St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Edna Bernice Sanders, 515 W. 151st St.; Staff Sgt. Gertrude Louise Rose, 1077 Boston Road; Cpl. Louise Almenta Reid, 2186 - 5th Ave.; Pfc. Marie Birdell Gillisslee, 595 E. 167th St.; Pfc. Bernice M. Grant, 346 Lenox Ave.; Pfc. Dolly Floyd Hall, 510 W. 124th St.; Cpl. Louise Susan Heyward, 2209 - 7th Ave.; Pvt. Indiana Hunt, 50 Convent Ave.; Pvt. Ruth Elmah James, 240 W. 111th St.; Pfc. Evangeline Gertrude Jeffrey, 15 W. 123rd St.; Pfc. Aleese E. Johnson, 262 W. 123rd St.; Pvt. Lauretta Johnson, 238 W. 136th St.; Pvt. Louise Bromfield Jones, 820 Morningside Ave.; Tech. 4th Gr. Ethel Christina Loving, 92 Morningside Ave.; Pvt. Ruth Michael Mays, 117-125 W. 141st St.; Pfc. Emily Cynthia Mays, 2257 7th Ave.; Tech. 5th Gr. Geneva McRae, 270 W. 115th St.; Pfc. Beatrice Rosetta Morris, 139 W. 121st St.; Cpl. Lucie C. Owens, 961 St. Nicholas Ave.; Pfc. Earlene June Reeves, 254 W. 154th St.; Bronx--Pvt. Edna Tookie, 1209 Washington Ave.; Tech. 5th Gr. Beulah E. Robinson, 859 Home St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Myrtle A. Rhoden, 1370 Boston Road; Pvt. Rebecca Beatrice Ferguson, 754 E. 169th St.; Pvt. Crescencia Garcia, 956 Stebbins Ave.; Pfc. Theodora Porcher Palmer, 811 E. 168th St.

MORE

NORTH CAROLINA: New Bern--Pvt. Emma L.M. Jenkins, 38 End St.; Tarboro--Pvt. Nannie Pearl Jones, 506 E. St. James St.; High Point--Sgt. Anne Leach Johnson, 205 Underhill Ave.; Statesville--Pvt. Virginia Louise Glenn, Box 505; Weldon--Pfc. Vemise C. Hayes, Box 188; Elkin--Pfc. Elizabeth B. Barker: Goldsboro--Cpl. Esther DeLois Hall, 609 Poplar St.; [illegible] Cofield--Pvt. Fannie Clarine Smith, Route 1, Box 45; Uree--Tech. 5th Gr. Lottie S. Mills, Ridgewood Farm, Route 1, Box M-63; Stantonsburg--Pfc. Artelza Whitley, Box 155; Battleboro--Pvt. Odessa Alice Brake, Route 2, Box 59 A; Concord--Pvt. Frances Myrtle Gray, 417 Lincoln St.; Weldon--Pfc. Effie Clark Sutton, Box 444; Durham--Tech. 4th Gr. Maggie Ada Latta, 304 E. Peidmont Ave.; Wilson--Pfc. Sarah G. Taylor, 536 E. Nash St.; Winston Salem--Pfc. Lucile M. Houston, 1303 Excelsior St.; Raleigh--Tech. 5th Gr. Millie L. Dunn, 521 S. Bloodworth St.; Pvt. Catherine Rosander Hinton, R.F.D. 6, Box 46; Charlotte--Pfc. Ruth Lillian Gaddy, 2304 Davis St.; Rockingham--Pvt. Theopia Louise Ledbetter, 309 S. Stewart St.; Warrenton--Pfc. Sallie B. Alexander, Route 1, Box 106.

OHIO: Youngstown--Tech. 5th Gr. Ruth Lucille Lottier, 1415 Overland Ave.; [illegible] Freemont--Pfc. Vivian Mae Brown, 306 N. 5th St.; Canton--Cpl. Elizabeth Joyce DeWitt, 509 Savannah Ave.; Middletown--Pfc. Mildred Rebecca Gates, 608 - 18th St.; Warren--Pvt. Claudia Drucilla Braxton, 145 Albert St., N.E.; Pique--Cpl. Ruth Elizabeth Jefferson, 1001 Camp St.; Sandusky--Pvt. Pearl L. Bennett, 1928 E. 5th St.; Dayton--Pvt. Carroll M. Edwards, 1326 Home Ave.; Akron--Pvt. Dorothy Queen, 823 Rhodes Ave.; Toledo--Pvt. Dorothy M. Gatliff, 1008 Ewing St.; Pvt. Eunice Lee Johnson, 804 Palmwood Ave.; Massilon--Pvt. Doris Josephine Smith, 1620 Arapahoe Road, S.E.; Addyston--Tech. 5th Gr. Gertrude Elizabeth Cruse, 309 Sekitan Ave.; Cincinnati--Pfc. Mary Elizabeth Rozier, 826 Findley St.; Tech. 4th Gr. Bessie Lee Robinson, 3070 Gilbert Ave.; Pfc. Duiay Mae Prestwood, 1155 Sherman Ave.; Pfc. Effie Vena Dawson, 612 Clark St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Mary Margaret Daniels, 821 Wade St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Novella Auls, 421 Armory Ave.;

Cleveland--Sgt. Ruth L. Wyatt, 10716 Pasadena; Pfc. Alberta Dorothy Washington, 2350 E. 93rd St.; Pvt. Laura Frazier Warder, 7904 Cedar St.; Pvt. Louise Rachel Usher, 2542 E. 51st St.; Pfc. Dorothy Eugenia Turner, 2399 E. 40th St.; Pfc. Virginia Ann Singleton, 4440 Kennard Court; Sgt. Bernyce Quinette Scott, 2166 E. 71st St.; Pvt. Tommie Lon Rockard, 2436 E . 83rd St.; Pvt. Moniesah Petway, 4927 Central Ave.; Pfc. Hazel Norman, 2653 E. 65th St.; Tech. 4th Gr. Alma Gladys Minter, 2713 E. 62nd St.; T-5. Catherine Caroline Johnson, 2565 E. 38th St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Velma Paulene Hayes, 2199 E. 83rd St.; Pfc. Vivian Fitzsimmons, 2197 E. 87th St.; Pvt. Anna L. Bybee, 9012 Blaine Ave.; Pfc. Hettie Boyce, 2340 E. 90th St.; Columbus--Pvt. Bertha Mae Solomon, 829 Buckingham; Pvt. Darnela Bernice Smith, 646 Mt. Vernon Ave.; Tech. 5th Gr. Hazel Marie Russell, 222½ N. 20th St.; Pfc. Dorothy Mae Ringer, 370 Hosack St.; Pvt. Tommie Mae Johnson, 452 Hamilton Ave.; Pvt. Maxine Amelia Crockett, 231 N. 22nd St. Pvt. Katherine Secina Metoyer, 416 Hamilton Ave.

OKLAHOMA: Wagoner--Pvt. Blanche Albretton, Route 1, Sta. E.; Muskogee--Pvt. Izone Brown, 228 N. 2nd St.; Oklahoma City--Pvt. Mabel F. Sneed, 1117 N.E. 4th St.; Hugo--Pvt. Irene Morrow, Route 2; Ardmore--Pfc. Maggie M. McClenton, 812 E. Main St.; Payson--Pfc. Theodosia Erenstine Lee, Route 1, Box 67; Oklahoma City--Staff Sgt. Birdie Tillman, 2508 N.E. 13th St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Leona Mae Ziegler, 1217 N.E. 9th St.; Pvt. Leatha Mae Loggins, 1741 N.E. 7th St.; Pfc. Opal Doris Brown, 508 N. Laird St.; Pfc. Elizabeth Jean Colbert, 729 E. 3rd St.; McAlester--Cpl. Jewell Lorraine Jackson, Route 5; Eufaula--Pvt. Guthrie H. Rowland, 404 E St.; Tulsa--Pvt. Trenna J. Stokenberry, 610 E. Latimer Court; Pvt. Anjenettie Smith, Route 2; Colbert--Tech. 5th Gr. Allie E. Williams, Box 322.

PENNSYLVANIA: Harrisburg--Pfc. Naomi Davenport, 1230 N. 7th St.; Pfc. Grace Elizabeth Lucas, 320 Muench St.; Pvt. Willma H. Lucas, 320 Muench St.; Pvt. Elizabeth Moraney, 618 Broad St.; Pvt. Ruby Mae Wilson, 15 S. 16th St.; West Chester--Pvt. Margoit Michiele Townsend, 113 E. Miner St.; Reading--Pvt. Phyllis Gray Long, 133 Mulberry St.; Clairton--Pfc. Bernice F. Lewis, Blair Heights; Donora--Pvt. Catherine Jane Crump, 1059 Macelda Ave.; Chester--Pvt. Isofine Jacobs, 1322 W. Front St.; Pvt. Carolyn Morse Berry, 123 Edward St.; Jeannette--Pfc. Julia McNeal, 133 Highland Ave.; Lancaster--Pvt. Catherine Wright, 534 E. Fulton St.; West Chester--Pvt. Margret M. Townsend, 113 R. Miner St.; Willow Grove--Tech. 5th Gr. Elaine Viola Jones, 230 Glendale Ave.

MORE

Johnstown--Pfc. Ophelia Mae Ewings, 20 Rear Main St.; Danby--Sgt. Rhoda A. Daniel, 210 N. 10th St.; Moylan--Pvt. Eleanor Frances Sullivan, 708 Forrest St.; Bethlehem--Pvt. Alice Hester Smith, 638 Jisehke St.; Sewickley--Tech. 5th Gr. Helen Vivien Gould, 922 Crescent Ave.; Washington--Cpl. Helen DeVon Stribbling, 241 Burton Ave.; Homestead--Pvt. Adele Evans, 530 Heisel St.; Bridgeville--Pvt. Freda Mae Dean, McLaughlin Road; Tituaville--Pfc. Vyvyonne Elmore Bugg, 103 Centre St.; Belle Vernon--Pvt. Pebe C. Johnson, 513 Bluff St.; Hollidaysburg--Pfc. Elsie Alverna Dannals, Roselawn; Pittsburgh--Tech. 5th Gr. Dorothy Elizabeth Williams, 1319 Valley Rue St.; Pvt. Cornelia Dolores Warfield, 1401 Wylie Ave.; Pfc. Dorothy Cupton Reid, 6631 Kelly St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Mary Priscilla Monroe, 111 Chalfont St.; Pfc. Frances C. Jordan, 2064 Bently Drive; Pvt. Ruth Naomi Dean, 2279 Pedford Ave.; Pvt. Frances Crews, 9 Jacobus Way; Pfc. Alice Serena Charles, 2191 Elmore Square; Philadelphia--Cpl. Lucile McGhee Brooks, 1733 W. Montgomery Ave.; Cpl. Lena D. Bell, 1533 N. 18th St.; Pvt. Edna Bastin, 9 S. Yewdell St. W.; Tech. Sgt. Mary E. Baster, 2344 W. Turner St.; Pvt. Louisa Balls, 2713 N. 2nd St.; Cpl. Love Peace Anderson, 2507 N. 23rd St.; Pfc. Mary A. Artist, 2017 Titan St.

Philadelphia--Sgt. Stella E. Patilla, 3938 Aspen St.; Pvt. Berenice E. Massett, 2152 N. Lambert St.; Sgt. Catherine Alin King, 1350 S. Bouvier St.; Pfc. Evelyn C. LeSueuer, 3854 Folsom St.; Pfc. Hessie Johnson, 5519 Wyalusing Ave.; Pvt. Willie Marie Jackson, 2339 Wilder St.; Sgt. Rosa Mae Harris, 5015 Arch St.; Pfc. Marian Rosalie Grundy, 5932 Spring St.; Pvt. Hilda Parthenia Griggs, 2115 N. 29th St.; Pvt. Thelma Vivian Green, 1230 Montrose St.; Sgt. Dolores C. Gray, 1831 W. Sharswood St.; Pvt. Alice Olivia Ford, 1847 N. Marvine St.; Pvt. Alvia Ferguson, 1328 S. Lambert St.; Pfc. Marian M. Elzie, 1719 Jefferson St.; Pfc. Addie Mae Demby, 1847 N. 19th St.; Pvt. Ursula Virginia Davis, 1624 N. Park Ave.; Pfc. Violet Dabney, 1525 Carpenter St.; Pfc. Elizabeth H. Cornwell, 596 Summer St.; Pvt. Florence A. Collins, 7209 Wissinomiry St.; Pvt. Charlotte Galloway Cartwright, 4006 Baring St.; Pvt. Gladys Williams Brown, 237 N. Ruby St.; Pvt. Mary Purnell Young, 1631 N. 17th St.; Pfc. Hilda E. Wood, 5430 Summer St.; Pfc. Rmma Brown Wilson, 1903 Webster St.; Pvt. Alberta Bell Willis, 1229 N. 56th St.; Pvt. Harriet Elizabeth Warfield, 322 N. Wilton St.; Pvt. Dora Mae Williams, 5444 W. Girard Ave.; Pfc. Sarah Lee Tabb, 3722 N. Sydenham St.; Pfc. Janyce L. Stovall, 2214 N. 19th St.; Pvt. Naomi Virginia Stewart, 2556 W. Page St.; Pfc. Aleese Juanita Robinson, 1218 N. 15th St.; Pfc. Juanita Gertrude Rodgers, 1516 Lombard St.; Pfc. Thelma Elizabeth Purdy, 218 N. 56th St.; Pvt. Helen Lee Pinkett, 650 N. 43rd St.; Cpl. Alma Majorie Philpot, 123 N. Conestoga St.; Pvt. Lillie Perry, 1708 W. Atlantic St.

RHODE ISLAND: Providence--Pvt. Annie Mae Ruse, 160 Cronston St.

SOUTH CAROLINA: Darlington--Pfc. Alva B. Bacote, Route 3, Box 25; Mullins--Pvt. Lucile M. Balloon, Route 2, Box 101-a; Anderson--Pvt. Wilhelmia Lorenza Holmes, 223 Ouany St.; Hartsville--Pfc. Hazel Stanford Jackson, 1731 Rice St.; Trenton--Pfc. Novella Ernestine Jackson, Route 1, Box 117½; Kingstree--Sgt. Vivian Alice Nazyck, 118 Nesmith St.; Saluda--Pvt. Carolyn Blondell Poole, General Delivery; Charleston--Pfc. Ermane Elizabeth Taylor, 1-G Calhoun St.; Anderson--Cpl. Jennie Ruth Turner, Route 1.

TENNESSEE: Mason--Tech. 5th Gr. Luvenia Allen, Box 153; Gallatin--Pfc. Myrtle Baker, 310 Bledsoe St.; Milan--Pfc. Crinia Mae Barksdale, Route 4; Knoxville--Pvt. Ruth Elizabeth Boggues, 421 Cansler St.; Memphis--Pvt. Cova DeVerne Madison, 502 N. Manassas St.; Pfc. Mary L. Ross, 397-c Lauderdale St.; Pfc. Annie E. Burrell, 1780 Harrison St.; Pfc. Cleopatra Evans, 743 Alston Ave.; Paris--Pvt. Lima Justine Howard, 400 Jones St.; Nashville--Pvt. Ilda R. League, 1019 - 15th Ave., S.; Pvt. Mary Margurite Martin, 904 Ireland St.; Pvt. Gladys Sylvertla Dailey, 1223 - 15th Ave., S.

TEXAS: Corpus Christi--Pfc. Hazel Allen, 1424 San Pedro St.; Pvt. Bessie Booker, 1403 Ramerez St.; Arthur City--Pvt. Erma Pauline Boyd; Beaumont--Tech. 5th Gr. Ruth Verjil Brown, 2886 Willard St.; Wichita Falls--Pfc. Freddie William Williams Chinn, 1219 Tulip St.; Fort Worth--Tech. 5th Gr. Florence Marie Cole, 704 S. Calhoun St.; Galveston--Pfc. Marguerite J. Ellis, 1201 Ave. K; Waco--Staff Sgt. Jaunita Goodloe, 1621 South Sts; Athens--Pfc. Mary Louise Hill, 510 Faulk St.; Beaumont--Tech. Sgt. Ruby M. O'Brien, 1630 Port St.; Pfc. Ella Mae Jackson, 2605 Houston Ave.; Berclair--Pfc. Essie Oralea O'Riley, Box 686; Dallas--Pvt. Martha Anna McKnight, 4300 University Boulevard; Pfc. Maggie Mae McClenton, 3421 State St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Ernestine Elizabeth Hughes, 2509 Bryan St.; Denison--Pvt. Mildred Elizabeth Peterson, 517 W. Washington St.; Fort Worth--Pfc. Helen B. Minor, 5801 Goodman St.; Sgt. Lucille Lewis, 1520 E. 19th St.; Galveston--Pfc. Pauline Lewis Hopkins, 5128 Ave. M.; Greenville--Pfc. Catherine Lee, Route 1; Hankamer--Pfc. Winnie B. Richardson; General Delivery; Hempstead--Cpl. Johnnie Mae Walton, Box 436; Pvt. Eddie T. Richards, Box 432; Houston--Pfc. Ophalia Mills, Bellaire; Tech. 4th Gr. Rose Stuart, 1303 Bayor St.; Pfc. Erma L. Smith, 3815 Cobb St.; Cpl. Florida Elizabeth Robey, 3420 Delano St.; Pvt. Essie Lee Penn, 1613 Benson St.; Cpl. Dorothy Lee Howard, 240 Live Oak St.; Longview--Pfc. Mildred Lois Hooper, P.O. Box 1403; Marshall--Pvt. Millie Mary Taylor, 204 Nolan St.; Naples--Pvt. Minerva Loraine Kevernal, Box 197; Port Arthur--Pfc. Kate Pate, 937 Titsingh Ave.; Taylor--Pfc. Myrtle Elizabeth Wright, 407 S. Elliott St.; Timpson--Tech. 5th Gr. Mablyne Ortiz, Route 3, Box 5; Pfc. Onnie Lois Roberts, Route 1, Box 7; Wichita Falls--Sgt. Ruby Lee McCluing, 607 Roosevelt St; Beaumont--Pvt. Mable Jeannette Zenon, 1151 Maple St.

MORE

VIRGINIA: Alexandria--Cpl. Gertrude Sessoms, 619 N. Henry St.; Amonate--Tech. 5th Gr. Marie M. Hairston, Box 21; Arlington--Pfc. Edith F. Gaskill, 3520 S. 24th St.; Sgt. Catherine G. Brown, 2028 N. Edison St.; Bristol--Pfc. Dorothy Mae Jackson, 705 Ann St.; South Boston--Pvt. Frances Chappell, 303 Ferry St.; Capahosic--Cpl. Jennie Dee Moton, Gloucester County; Charlottesville--Tech. 5th Gr. Frances Gertrude Jefferson, 202 Run St.; Cullen--Pfc. Mamie Lessie Lewis, R.F.D. 1, Box 63; Dahlgreen--Pvt. Romay C. Johnson; Danville--Tech. 5th Gr. Mary Nannie Medley, Route 7; Floyd--Tech. 5th Gr. Amelia Akers, Box 144; Hampton--Pfc. Kitty Cornelia Bowden, 233 Liberty St.; Hanover--Pvt. Mary Minkins Coleman, Hanover Industrial Schools for Boys; Hollins--Tech. 5th Gr. Helen R. Holmes, Route 1, Box 104; Hornsbyville--Pfc. Margaret Francis Barbour, R.F.D. 173, Box 5; Lexington--Pvt. Annie Lucille Pleasants, 117 Preston St.; Pvt. Louise V. Ross, 309 Massie St.; Norfolk--Cpl. Ruth V. Reddick, 960 Goff St.; Cpl. Elizabeth Christina Moore, 1845 O'Keefe St.; Sgt. Marian Elizabeth Lawrence, 860 Lexington St.; Pfc. Helen Ernestine Henderson, 910 Norchester St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Dorothy Mayfield Hutchins, 1035 Chapel St.; Pfc. Lillie G. Bratcher. 1307 Wilson Rd.; Orange--Pvt. Phyllis Inez Galloway, Route 1, Box 90; Petersburg--Sgt. Louise Tyler Penny, 328 Lavender Lane; Pvt. Anne B. Garrison, 1210 S. James St.

Portsmouth--Pvt. Leona Virginia Jones, R.F.D. 3, Box 436; Suffolk--Pfc. Grace Lee Ruffin, Route 2, Box 134; Pfc. Rosa Gertrude Diggs, Route 2, Box 177; Richmond--Pvt. Antoinette Lillian Scott, 100 E. Baker St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Katherine Lee, 207 W. Home St.; Cpl. Martha A. Drummond, 706 N. Price St.; Pvt. Ernestine Ada Allen, 718 N. Second St.; Sgt. Marcell Booker Wilson, 1905 Parkwood Ave.; Pvt. Eula Gray Davis, 1000 W. Clay St.; South Richmond--Pfc. Dorothy Elizabeth Allen, Route 9, Box 233; Staunton--Cpl. Irene V. Carr, 505 Goack St.; Winchester--Pfc. Annie Turner Finley, 17 E. Hart St.; Victoria--Cpl. Hazel C. Jennings, R.F.D. 1, Box 22; Wytheville--Tech. 4th Gr. Alice Mae Allison, 530 E. Washington St.

WEST VIRGINIA: Bluefield--Pfc. Virginia Powell Watkins, 142 Clifford St.; Sgt. Sallie M. Smith, 208 Park St.; Tech. 4th Gr. Albert Myke Smith, 413 N. Powell St.; Pfc. Anlethea Mollie Cawthorne, 448 Bird Lane St.; Berboursville--Pvt. Mamie Gammon, Route 1, Box 217; Crumpler--Tech. Sgt. Leroh N. Saunders, Box 18; Gary--Pvt. Clara Belle Simon, Box 508; Handley--Pfc. Lucille A. Poindexter, Box 41; Institute--Pfc. Esther R. Wells; Pvt. Jane Elizabeth Ferguson; Kimball--Tech. 5th Gr. Lelia Mae Watkins; Pvt. Phoebe Elaine Miller, Box 336; Sutton--Pvt. Frances Martin, Box 104; Tech. 5th Gr. Jeanette Belle Martin, Box 104; Ward--Cpl. Lovener F. Ford, Kanawha County; Wheeling--Pvt. Dorothy Delilah Jackson, 139 Springdale Ave.

WISCONSIN: Milwaukee--Tech. 4th Gr. Evelyn Ross, 3340 N. Stevenson St.; Sgt. Alice G. Woodson, 2040 N. 7th St.

The unit, known as RT-510-c arrived at Camp Shanks, New York, January 29, 1945, under the temporary command of Captain Mildred E. Carter, 522 Columbus Avenue, Boston, Massachusetts. The actual commanding officer of the organization

MORE

Major Charity Adams, of Columbia, South Carolina, preceded her charges overseas, accompanied by Captain Abbey Campbell, Tuskegee, Alabama, executive officer of the unit. Almost as soon as they arrived, the processing began.

Company commanders were: Company A, Captain Mary F. Kearney, 406 Newfield Avenue, Bridgeport, Connecticut, Company B, First Lieutenant Dorothy H. Scott, 1218 Wills Street, Alton, Illinois, Company C, Captain Vera Harrison, 1266 Lane Street, Hamilton, Ohio and Company D, First Lieutenant Violet W. Hill, 3104 Lucas Avenue, St. Louis, Missouri.

Convoy officers for the shipment were Major Virginia G. Hurley, Office of the Chief of Staff, Washington, D.C., Captain Ellen B. Hayes, 115 Halsted Street, East Orange, New Jersey, and Captain Mary E. Miller, 1729 K Street, Lincoln, Nebraska.

Other officers accompanying the shipment were First Lieutenants Corrie S. Sherard, 542 W. Fair Street, Atlanta, Georgia, Ella B. Tatum, 722 Raymond Street, El Dorado, Arkansas, and Vashti B. Tonkins, Box 413, Ashland, Virginia; and Second Lieutenants Calonia V. Powell, 2208 Bastrop Street, Houston, Texas, and Mercedes A. Jordan, 50 Grant Court, Long Branch, New Jersey.

END

Distribution: Ad.
2-13-45.

25-24948-600

FUTURE RELEASE

PLEASE NOTE DATE

WAR DEPARTMENT
Bureau of Public Relations
NEWS DIVISION
Washington, D.C.

FOR RELEASE MONDAY, FEBRUARY 19, 1945

* * * *

this one hundred-bed hospital, opened two days before Christmas, is now offering the most complete medical service of any station hospital in Burma.

Chosen to command this unusual organization, the second of its type to be sent overseas, was tall, affable Major Wilbur H. Strickland, a graduate of Lincoln University, Oxford, Pennsylvania, and the Howard University College of Medicine, Washington, D.C. Prior to his entry into the Army in 1942, Major Strickland practiced in Philadelphia, specializing in internal medicine, and was an attending physician at the Mercy and Douglas hospitals in that city. He was one of the original staff members of the first all-Negro hospital in the Army established at Fort Huachuca, Arizona, and was assistant chief of medicine at that hospital at the time of his assignment to activate and command this new hospital.

Activated in August 1943, the organization trained as a unit for one year before leaving the States for the Burma-India theater. The location assigned the hospital was an abandoned Quartermaster road station. Arriving in October of last year, the entire staff, doctors, nurses, technicians and cooks rolled up their sleeves and set to work. Deep drainage ditches were dug to carry off the expected heavy monsoon waters; barracks and wards were constructed with the help of native labor; surplus invasion pipe was salvaged from the pipe line and pressed into use to supply the hospital with water; many of the existing bashas were rebuilt and others condemned and burned.

Out of the ashes grew a station hospital that has no equal in Burma, and one that is a tribute and a credit to the perseverance and ingenuity of these courageous men and women.

Modest Major Strickland asserts: "We are not an unusual organization; we are just another average group of well trained American citizens who all happen to be colored. We are ready and able to do anything that comes within the scope of that training. To the majority of our personnel the inauguration of this hospital represents the fulfillment of an ideal; an ideal that allows free men the opportunity to pursue their chosen occupations, regardless of race or creed. We are proud to have been chosen to serve our country in the capacities for which our training and talents best fit us."

Interesting to note is the fact that the pay allotment rate of this organization for savings and War Bonds averages over seventy-five per cent of their wages. Also a large percentage of the personnel have enrolled in the courses offered by the Armed Forces Institute.

Out of this hospital has grown still another hospital. Utilizing the personnel of this unit as a cadre, the other hospital has been activated and is now attached to Major Strickland's unit while awaiting orders to move on and install their own unit. The chief surgeon, capable and experienced Captain Robert S. Wilkinson, nationally known surgeon, whose contributions to outstanding surgical journals are quoted in Military Surgical Manuals, was picked to head this new unit. Former associated visiting surgeon for the Harlem Valley State Hospital and consulting surgeon for the Harlem Hospital, Captain Wilkinson was a member of Phi Beta Kappa fraternity at Dartmouth College before entering Harvard Medical College.

Although the majority of the troops building and maintaining this toughest of all highways are Negroes, the patients cared for are of a mixed variety. White and Negro patients are treated alike by these highly skilled doctors and nurses.

* * * * * * * *

99th's GIFT TO BOOST
INTERRACIAL GOODWILL

DETROIT, MICHIGAN---Establishment of a fund to provide for an annual award to the person or persons contributing the most toward interracial goodwill was announced February 9, by Truman K. Gibson, Jr., Civilian Aide to the Honorable Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War. Mr. Gibson said that Mr. Shelton Tappes, recording secretary of Ford Local No. 600, United Automobile Workers of America, an affiliate of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, has been selected as an administrator representing his Local.

MORE

The nucleus of the fund, $1,000, was contributed by the Ford local.

The award is to be given in the name of the 99th Fighter Squadron which is now fighting as a unit of the 332nd Fighter Group of the 15th Air Force in Italy. The $1,000 was originally designated as a gift by Local 600 to the 99th Squadron to be used in any manner the members saw fit.

Major George S. Roberts, former commander of the 99th, now deputy commander of the 332nd Fighter Group, has informed Local 600 that the squadron has decided to use the money to provide an annual award for the person or persons who, in the judgment of the administrators, "contributes the most toward racial goodwill and understanding or advancement of the Negro."

As the administrator to represent them, the personnel of the 99th chose Mr. Gibson. Major General John K. Cannon, Commanding General of the 12th Air Force, was chosen by the flyers as their alternate. The two administrators are to choose a third administrator.

The original gift of $1,000 to the 99th, then designated a pursuit squadron, was a part of the program of Local 600 aimed at boosting the morale of members of the armed forces. Other contributions consisted of furnishing a chapel at the Romulus (Michigan) Air Base, furnishing the foyer of the recreation center at Percy Jones General Hospital, Battle Creek, Michigan, and the purchase of drapes and rugs for the day room of the Naval Training School in Dearborn, Michigan.

* * * * * * * *

NEITHER BOMBS NOR TANKS
HALTED GALLANT TRUCKERS

WITH ADVANCE SUPPLY FORCES, BELGIUM---The 3524th Quartermaster Truck Company ran into strafings, bombings, and even a German tank when they rushed supplies through to men at the front during the German counter-offensive in the Ardennes. They defied treacherous backroads in the vicinity of Bastogne in accomplishing their mission.

Corporal Russell Shorts, Pennsgrove, New Jersey, one of the truckers, was dispatched on a trip to the hard-fighting Americans in Bastogne when he saw an approaching German Mark IV tank.

"I was riding over a hill beyond Marche when the tank approached in the opposite direction," he said. "I saw the tank before its crew saw me and pulled into a side road until the "stinger" passed. Then I continued my trip."

Another driver of a supply truck, Corporal Willie Strickland of Newman, Georgia, was caught in a Jerry bombing raid.

"They were trying to knock out some bridges," Strickland reported. "The concussion was terrific. I just opened my mouth and kept my fingers crossed."

The men had read a message sent to Advance Section, Communications Zone troops, by Brigadier General Ewart G. Plank, saying that "not one ounce of supplies" would be lost in the counter-offensive. And during three weeks of hell from the air and land, they did not lose an ounce, although they were frequently stymied.

Military police invariably stopped the drivers and told them that it was impossible to get to their destination. Although Bastogne was encircled, they came within several hundred yards of the city in delivering food to the garrison, which for several days was supplied by parcels dropped from the air. One group of drivers came within 300 yards of German troops.

MORE

German air raiders came out over the company's headquarters, but were chased away by a barrage of heavy ack-ack. One night, the men of the company had to "hit the dirt" a dozen times before this part of the Luftwaffe was finally driven off.

Several Nazi spies, in American uniforms, were picked up in the vicinity of company headquarters. The unit was alerted to possible paratrooper attack.

One night the Germans continued a bombing assault which they started in the day-time against a bridge near the company area. After losing several planes, they scored a near miss before departing.

American bombers and fighters roared over the camp. Dog fights took place right over the heads of the drivers. Planes burst into flame and fell to the ground. The American bombers never dropped out of formation.

A company spokesman said: "The epic stand of the Bastogne garrison by our fighting men will go down in history, but it must be remembered,too, that it took supplies to keep these men there. That's where the men of supply came in. They never failed in delivering the 'goods.' "

* * * * * * * *

PRIVATE WHO RESCUED TRAPPED
BUDDIES AWARDED SILVER STAR

WITH U.S. FORCES, WESTERN FRONT---For "gallantry in action," Private First Class William A. Wheatley, of Hardinsburg, Kentucky, has been awarded the Silver Star, Headquarters, European Theater of Operations announced today.

Wheatley is a member of the 57th Ammunition Company, a Negro ordnance unit which was forced to clear out a pocket of Germans before they could set up an ammunition dump. This action took place near the Belgian border last September.

Seeing two of his buddies wounded by the enemy, Wheatley drove his truck into the zone of fire, loaded the men in it, and drove off, all the time being a target for Germans taking refuge in the barn the GIs had surrounded.

When the fighting was over, Wheatley's unit had killed 35 Nazis, wounded three, and captured 13, all members of a crack German SS Division.

* * * * * * * *

ROUTS TWO GERMAN PLANES
WITH NOTHING BUT NERVE

ATLANTIC CITY, NEW JERSEY---Two Jerry fighter pilots will have a lot of explaining to do if word ever gets back to Luftwaffe headquarters of how Captain Henry B. Perry of Thomasville, Georgia, won his Distinguished Flying Cross over Udine, Northern Italy.

As it was, it took a lot of intestinal fortitude on Captain Perry's part. The P-51 pilot, operations officer of the famed 99th Fighter Squadron, which is now a part of the 332nd Fighter Group, was returning from a bomber escort mission, his guns inoperative and useless.

Down below, he spied two crippled Liberators, readying for an attack by two FW-190s, which were hovering overhead.

There wasn't anything else to do but poke his nose in and give the Libs a hand. In he roared, right between the two FW-190s. He turned on them, lining up his useless .50s on them.

They did what he'd fervently prayed they'd do--turn tail and run. Captain Perry stayed around, shepherded the crippled bombers to their base. A few days later he received the DFC.

MORE

The 25-year-old Negro pilot turned up here at AAF Redistribution Station No. 1 recently for reassignment, after his first visit home in 18 months.

He'd joined the 99th Squadron in North Africa, in 1943, seen his first action with them on Sicily in August. He's been with them ever since, all through the Italian campaign. He chalked up a probable kill and damaged a Jerry in action over the Anzio beachhead.

All told, the St. Augustine(Raleigh, North Carolina) College graduate has 102 missions, 89 of them divebombing runs in P-40s. He has 215 combat hours.

Worst mission he experienced was a haul to Brux, Czechoslovakia. They were escorting 15th Air Force heavies, and right over the target his P-51's engine started to conk out.

He found that he could only keep it going by repeatedly priming it - this he did, all the way back, a long almost endless trip of 600 miles. It took him three hours, and every minute he was sweating it out, hoping that his engine would keep going.

He's even seen the famed Greek Acropolis, but he had to brave the worst flak he'd ever experienced to get a look at the ruins. It was two days before the British landings in Greece, and his outfit was strafing the Jerry airfields.

Besides the DFC, the yound captain wears the Air Medal with one cluster, and three campaign stars on his European Theater ribbon. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Perry, 519 North Oak Street, Thomasville, Georgia.

* * * * * * * * *

FIRE FIGHTERS SUBDUE
AMMUNITION DEPOT BLAZE

WITH U.S. SUPPLY FORCES IN FRANCE--Braving exploding shells, the 1234th Fire Fighting Engineers, a Negro unit, recently spent two days and nights fighting a fire in a U.S. Army ammunition depot in France.

The fire was finally overcome without loss of life, although the water froze in the hoses and explosions from giant artillery shells mutilated the equipment.

First Lieutenant Scott Moore, of 1419 Arlington Avenue, Los Angeles, California, is the commanding officer. The unit has kept loss by fires at Army installations to a commendable low level in the Oise Section, Communications Zone, France.

The danger of fires is ever present in the large warehouses, ammunition dumps and oil and gas supply depots. Two sections of the fire-fighting unit are kept on duty at all times. They fight civilian as well as military fires, since civilian fires may spread to military stores or may be used as guides by enemy aircraft in bombing raids.

Equipment is installed in Army trucks and trailers. Hoses, water buckets, nozzles, picks, axes, ropes and chemical containers for smothering gasoline fires are among the items carried.

Before landing on the Normandy beachhead in France, this smoke-eater unit fought fires in invasion supply depots in England.

First Sergeant James E. Nance, of 112 Bainbridge Street, Brooklyn, New York, top-ranking non-commissioned officer, is justly proud of his unit's record.

Other members of the unit include:

ALABAMA: Bessemer--Pvt. Willie Benefield, 2119 St. Louis Avenue.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA: Washington--Pvt. Gordon Lee, 476 School St., S.W.

MORE

FLORIDA: Camp Belton--Pvt. Dave Dickens, Jr., Route 8.

GEORGIA: Atlanta--Sgt. Paul Sherwood, 301 Fort St., N.E.; Cairo--Pvt. A.W. Daniels, Route 2; Shiloh--Cpl. Jesse D. Copeland.

KANSAS: Kansas City--Cpl. John R. Coolidge, 112 Edgerton Ave.

LOUISIANA: Cullen--Pvt. Willie W. Hutcherson.

MICHIGAN: Detroit--Staff-Sgt. Lincoln N. Steele, 994 Hendria St.

NORTH CAROLINA: Elizabeth City--Pfc. Earnest Taylor, 635 Cale St.; Cpl. Earnest L. Mullen, Route 5; Fairmont--Cpl. Daniel C. McQueen, Route 1; Oxford--Sgt. George A. Strater, Route 1; Shelby--Pvt. James S. Waddell, Route 2; Tryon--Cpl. Clifford McEntyre, Route 1.

OHIO: Columbus--Pvt. Leon R. Morgan, 258 Detroit Ave.

PENNSYLVANIA: Philadelphia--Pfc. David B. Thompson, 519 S. 12th St.

SOUTH CAROLINA: Hookerton--Cpl. Walter Murphy; Newbury--Pvt. James Osbey, 610 South St.; Rock Hill--Sgt. Albert Woodard, 207 Hagin St.

TENNESSEE: Memphis--Cpl. Oscar Nelson, 42 E. Triggs Ave.; Savannah--Cpl. James L. Tatum, Route 3; Williston--Cpl. Limmie Simington, Route 1.

TEXAS: Gladewater--Cpl. Laydell Simmins, 108 Cotton St.; Houston--Cpl. John Alexander, 1311 Johnson St.

* * * * * * * *

PORT SOLDIER, CRANE MECHANIC
AWARDED BRONZE STAR MEDALS

WITH U.S. FORCES IN FRANCE---Two Negro soldiers serving in France, one, an expert crane mechanic from Manhattan, Kansas, and the other, a capable platoon sergeant from New Orleans, Louisiana, have been awarded the Bronze Star Medal, Headquarters, European Theater of Operations announced today.

The awards were presented to Staff Sergeant Charles R. McCutcheon, 413 Riley Street, Manhattan, Kansas, and Staff Sergeant Charles Patterson, 2415 LaSalle Street, New Orleans, by Major General Henry S. Aurand, of Chicago, Illinois, Normandy Base Commander. Patterson is a member of the 658th Port Company.

In the words of his official citation, "Staff Sergeant McCutcheon worked untiringly over long hours performing maintenance work, and in the absence of sufficient trained mechanics performed service over and above that which would normally be expected. He helped train inexperienced mechanics and operators, and his leadership, initiative and service was of immeasurable value in enabling this port to keep all cranes operational, thus allowing the port to meet its tonnage discharge goal."

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed McCutcheon, live at the Riley Street address.

According to his citation, "Staff Sergeant Patterson, as platoon sergeant, supervised the accomplishment of the discharge of a Liberty ship containing a cargo of critical heavy lifts during periods of total blackout and under the most difficult conditions, a few miles from the front lines. Sergeant Patterson's coolness and confidence inspired the men of his platoon to perform their duties efficiently, reflecting great credit on himself and the military service."

His wife, Mrs. Morpril Patterson, lives at the LaSalle Street address.

* * * * * * * *

MORE

AMMO HANDLERS KEEP SHELLS
MOVING TOWARD FIGHTING FRONT

WITH THE 651st ORDNANCE AMMUNITION COMPANY, FRANCE---In ammo dumps that have turned into swamps of chocolate ooze, soldiers of this Negro unit have worked round the clock for months, to keep a steady flow of "the stuff they shoot" pouring toward our battlefronts.

The great bulk of their ammo supplies head toward the First and Third Armies in Belgium, Luxembourg and Germany.

More than most soldiers, these men understand the meaning of ammunition shortages. "Our supplies," pointed out Sergeant Lucius L. Brown, 402 Regina Street, Mobile, Alabama, "must be at least 30 days ahead of the Armies' demands."

Now bending all their energies to keep the rail lines radiating from Normandy fully loaded with ammo commitments, these soldiers recall even more gruelling days during the Red Ball Highway Route, when churning convoys of trucks carried the main weight of explosives to the front. Lumbering into the knee-deep mud of their giant dump, the big vehicles cut deeper and deeper into the rolling goo until finally roads through the dump were virtually useless.

Specially trained for their dangerous and painstaking task, these men arrived here shortly after our forces had consolidated their gains in Northern France, and have helped supply ammunition for the Armies' offensives since then.

Names of members of the unit follow:

ALABAMA: America--Pvt. Samuel J. Slaughter, General Delivery; Birmingham--Pvt. Cecil Williams, 6622 - 3rd St.; Pvt. Joseph King, 2111½ - 11th Ave.; Castleberry--Pfc. John C. Moncrease, Route 2, Box 12; Fayette--Pvt. Delman J.H. Poe, Box 521; Mobile--Sgt. Lucius L. Brown, 402 Regina St.; Sylacauga--Pfc. James E. Pope, Route 2, Box 55.

CALIFORNIA: Los Angeles--Technical Sgt. Charles White, Route 4, Box 142; Sgt. Eric M. Wilson, 1160 E. 27th St.; San Diego--Cpl. Hilbert N. Mason, 836 Front St.

CONNECTICUT: Bridgeport--Cpl. Paul Edwards, 76 Garden St.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA: Washington--Pfc. Garland M. Perry, 409 Half St.; Pvt. Ernest R. Lee, 1223 - 6th St., N.W.

FLORIDA:: Gainsville--Pfc. Alphonso L. Lewis, 720 W. Seminary; Indiantown--Cpl. Elbert McIntyre; Jacksonville--Pvt. Thomas Mitchell, Jr., 1118 Duval St.; Sgt. Samuel Brown, 625 W. Ashly St.; Pfc. Calvin G. Johnson, 1651 N. 4th St.; Pfc. Leroy W. Love, 1315 Hill St.

FLORIDA: Jupiter--Pvt. Jacob E. McKenzie, General Delivery; Madison--Pfc. Warren Joseph, General Delivery; Miami--Pvt. Hubert McDonald, 1822 NW 5th Place; Sanford--Pfc. Joshua E. Jones, Route 2, Box 342.

GEORGIA: Atlanta--Pvt. Robert C. Jones, 277 Thurmond St.; Pvt. Leroy Freeman, 910 King St.; Blackshear--Pfc. Richard K. Spells, Route 1, Box 135; Douglasville--Pvt. James H. Anderson, Route 1; Duluth--Pfc. Willie Riley, Box 112; Hillsburg--Pfc. Curtis Driskell, Route 2, Box 13; Macon--Technical Sgt. Booker T. Green, 81 J Tindell Heights; Patterson--Pfc. General B. Rhem, Box 211; Smithville--Pvt. Eddie Germany, Route 1, Box 58; Valdosta--Cpl. Eddie A. Moody, 812 Patterson St.

ILLINOIS: Argo--Pfc. Otis B. Mallory, 7533 W. 64th St.

INDIANA: Indianapolis--Staff Sgt. James M. Henson, 1222 Cornell Ave.; Pvt. Clifton Shirley, 2254 Martindale Ave.; South Bend--Sgt. John C. Stith, 925 W. Washington.

KENTUCKY: Buechell--Pvt. John B. Merritt, Route 3; Harrodsburg--Technical Sgt. James G. Jackson, 135 Cornishville St.; Lexington--Sgt. John Estill,

MORE

503 E. Aspendale; Louisville--Pvt. Horace Green, Jr., 1419 W. Liberty St.; Pfc. Alphonso Lowe, 421 E. Calwell St.; Pvt. Leon H. Blakey, 632 - 10th St.; Manchester--Sgt. William Potter, General Delivery.

LOUISIANA: Lake Providence--Staff Sgt. Herman Wells, General Delivery; Natchitoches--Sgt. Cleveland Hall, Route 3, Box 140; Shreveport--Cpl. Albert Nelson, Route 3, Box 56.

MARYLAND: Annapolis--Cpl. Herman P. Slade, Jr., 1319 Landover St.; Pfc. Charles W. Sharpe, 65 College Creek Terrace; Pvt. John H. Sembly, Jr., College Creek Terrace; Baltimore--Pvt. Richard T. Stokes, 1518 Ashland Ave.; Pvt. George W. Lewis, 1038 W. Laval St.; Pvt. Albert Leach, 1101 N. Mount; Pfc. William T. Scrivens, 614 N. Biddle St.; Staff Sgt. Percy B. Brinkley, 1319 W. Landover.

NORTH CAROLINA: Aberdeen, Sgt. Frank W. Jones, Box 523; Badin--Pvt. Eugene Miller, 703 Marion St.; Charlotte--Pfc. J.B. Neal, 710 S. Cardwell; Edenton--Pvt. Isaiah Hicks, 218 E. Gale St.; Elizabeth--Pvt. George E. Newkirk, General Delivery; Greensboro--Pvt. Eugene Cathey, 1116 Gray St.; Winston Salem--Sgt. Willie L. Crowder, 1904 E. 12th St.; Fair Bluff--Cpl. R.D. Lennon, General Delivery; Greensboro--Sgt. Herman L. Overby, 534 S St.; Gastonia--Pfc. George E. Mickle, Route 1; Guilford College--Cpl. Robert E.L. Jones, Route 1, Box 26; Holly Springs--Cpl. Herbert L. Lucas, Route 1, Box 24; Knightdale--Pvt. James Jones, General Delivery; Henderson--Pvt. Robert S. Jones, 315 Walnut St.; Laurinburg--Staff Sgt. Lawrence Malloy, 215 Dickson St.; New London--Cpl. Fred T. Patterson, Route 2, Box 47 B; Norwood--Pfc. Kenneth P. Pegues, Route 1, Box 199; Raleigh--Pvt. Thomas Battle, Jr., 1013 Mark St.; Rockingham--Pfc. Marcus Redrick, Route 1; Pfc. Carl L. Robinson, Route 2, Box 238; Salisburg--Pvt. George H. Lyerly, 315 S. West St.; Troutman--Pvt. Fred H. Ramsey, Route 1; Wendell--Pvt. James J. Jones, Route 2, Box 207; Winston Salem--Pvt. Nathaniel S. McMullen, 1220 E. 11th St.; Pvt. Edward Johnson, 936 Byerly St.; Pvt. Clifton J. Cooley, 722 W. 124th St.; Salisburg--Cpl. James M. Jenkins, 318 Horah St.

NEW JERSEY: Delair--Sgt. Melvin W. Luff, 7623 Tripoli Ave.; Jersey City--Sgt. Walton A. Phillips, 351 Forrest St.; Pvt. Charles L. Smith, 30 Sackett St.; Pleasantville--Pvt. Floyd Watts, 1415 Langston Ave.

MISSISSIPPI: Aberdeen--Sgt. Henry L. Crump, Route 1, Box 8B; Brookhaven--Pfc. John C. Sanders, Route 3, Box 118; Deliser--Pfc. Clarence McLaughlin, General Delivery; Fayette--Pfc. Lennor Sampson, Route 1, Box 188; Laurel--Pvt. Willie Adams, 162 Chestnut St.; New Augusta--Pfc. Odell Dedeaux, General Delivery; Oakland--Cpl. Eugene Reed, Route 2, Box 12; Laurel--Cpl. Cleveland L. Robinson, General Delivery; Tuchola--Pvt. Jesse E. Robinson, Route 2, Box 53.

MISSOURI: St. Louis--Technical Sgt. William Morrissey, Box 611; Sgt. Alphonso Ferguson, 1310 Taylor Ave.; Pfc. Roy Owens, 2320 E. Pine St.

MASSACHUSETTS: Cambridge--Cpl. Joseph R. Davis, 25 Evcent St.; Everett--Pvt. Nelson M. Jones, 50 Harvard St.

NEW YORK: Brooklyn--Pvt. Richard Elliott, 87 Handcock St.; Mount Vernon--Staff Sgt. Lorenzo Thomas, 336 S. 6th Ave.; New York City--Staff Sgt. Napoleon D. Kaiser, 545 W. 150th St.; Sgt. Eustace D. Naylor, 35-38 Mt. Morris; Pfc. Frank Jackson, 281 W. 119th St.; Pfc. Erdman G. Salmon, 206 W. 122nd St.; Pvt. Nestfew Beckett, 129 W. 112th St.; Pvt. Levi Collins, 15 W. 116th St.; Pvt. George V. Isaacs, 48-50 W. 139th St.; Pvt. John Sena, 1001 E. 123rd St.; Pvt. Thomas Taylor, 101 W. 130th St.

OHIO: Cincinnati--Technical Sgt. Alfred Titus, 3032 O'Bryon St.; Sgt. Oscar Ravens, 2716 Park Ave.; Pfc. George Alexander, 434 Armory Ave.; Pfc. Willie M. Browner, 532 Armory Ave.; Pfc. Joel Harris, 1503 Linn St.; Columbus--1st Sgt. George H. Sawyer, 1587 Starr Ave.; Dayton--Cpl. Kenneth Blackburn, 41 Gordon Ave.; Columbus--Pvt. Leon W. Banks, 681 E. Long St.; Pvt. J.C. Lyons, 421 Freeman St.; Pvt. James L. Hadden, 928 4th St.; Springfield--Sgt. Warren G. Clark, 271 Baster Ave.

MORE

OKLAHOMA: Muskogee--Pvt. Ocie Edmondson, 200 S. Price St.; Ponca City--Master Sgt. Wilthian Tucker, 908 S. 12th St.

PENNSYLVANIA: Harrisburg--Sgt. Benjamin B. Hill, 308 Cherry St.; New Derby--Sgt. Harry G. Rice, General Delivery; Philadelphia--Sgt. Misho Singleton, 3847 Brandwine St.; Sgt. Evans Riley, 3737 Brown St.; Cpl. Charles E. Hall, 2259 N. 22nd St.; Cpl. Maurice Tibbles, 2024 Wilkins St.; Cpl. Thomas Washington, 3483 Carson St.; Cpl. Calvin C. Carter, 3835 Folsom St.; Cpl. Frank L. Trulear, 1901 N. 18th St.; Pfc. James F. Scurry, 622 N. 39th St.; Pvt. Frederick May, 7220 Saybrook Ave.; Pvt. John Myers, 3834 Mt. Vernon St.; Pvt. Robert Williams, 701 N. 34th St.

SOUTH CAROLINA: Brunson--Pvt. Booker T. Scott, Route 1, Box 40; Calhoun Falls--Cpl. Edgie L. Gray, Route 1, Box 51; Conway--Pfc. Lon D. McDonald, General Delivery; Edisto Island--Cpl. Clarence Bennett, General Delivery; Elloree--Pfc. Bennie Moorer, Route 2, Box 44; Greenville--Pvt. John Kilgore, 111 Davis Ave.; Cpl. Dennis Rhodes, 102 Davis St.; Verdery, Pfc. Moses Hall, Route 1, Box 16 A; Goldsburg--Pfc. Thomas Frazier, 511 W. Pine St.; Latta--Pfc. John A. Harrison, Route 3, Box 55; Greenville--Pvt. David Maffett, Jr., 16 Lindburg Ave.; Union--Cpl. Frank McKanic, General Delivery.

TENNESSEE: Alamo--Pvt. James T. Hardville, Route 2; Knoxville--Pvt. James Evans, 1112 Calloway St.; Memphis--Pfc. Luther Edwards, 406 Midland Ave.; Springhill--Pfc. Porter Lockridge, General Delivery; Trenton--Cpl. Doctor F. Glenn, General Delivery.

TEXAS: Dallas--Cpl. Tim Coleman, Jr., 4921 Dunius St.; Pfc. Clifford E. Fowler, 2801 Farragut Ave.; Longview--Cpl. Bennie A. Sowells, Route 1, Box 41; Teagus--Pvt. Willia Huckaby, Route 1, Box 1; Terrell--Staff Sgt. Wilburn G. Sheppard, 405 W. Newton St.

VIRGINIA: Charlottesville--Pfc. William L. Payne, 320 Lankford Ave.; Pfc. William S. Johnson, 716½ West St.; Emporia--Pfc. Shelton Boone, General Delivery; New Port News--Pfc. Hubert L. Peoples, 1143 41st St.; Norfolk--Pfc. Joseph R. Ruff, Jr., 2407 Middle St.; Pfc. John C. Riddick, 912 Gouldland St.; Richmond--Sgt. Hayes E. Willis, 3000 N St.; Cpl. Isaac B. Smith, 716 W. Clay St.; Suffolk--Cpl. Jordan J. Copeland, 308 Johnson Ave.

WEST VIRGINIA: Man--Cpl. Robert H. Moss, General Delivery; Vivian--Pfc. James L. Lawson, General Delivery.

* * * * * * * *

BUZZ BOMB BLOWS MEDICS
INTO AIR RAID SHELTER

WITH U.S. SUPPLY FORCES IN BELGIUM---Reversing the usual reactions to exploding robombs, three medics of the 389th Engineer Regiment were blown into an air-raid shelter when a Nazi V-weapon exploded near them.

None the worse for the freak life-saving incident, the men, Corporal James A. Williams, 608 East Rockspring Street, Henderson, North Carolina; Private First Class Caruso Bell, 721 Baldwin Avenue, Charlotte, North Carolina, and Private James H. Patrick, 107 Boundary Street, Fayetteville, North Carolina, were able to report to the battalion aid station and assist in the treatment of soldiers and civilians injured by the blast.

Without a let-up the men worked hours rendering medical assistance to over eighty of the victims. Of all persons treated at the dispensary there were only three who died, and it was said that when they were brought in they were beyond all human aid.

Lieutenant Colonel Herrol J. Skidmore, commanding officer of the 389th, after reviewing the havoc wrought by the buzz-bomb three doors from where one company was billeted, commended the medics for their outstanding performance.

MORE

Corporal Williams was inducted November 6, 1942, at Fort Bragg, North Carolina. He was an employee of the Rexall Drug Store, and was active in the dramatic club of the Shiloh Baptist Church and sang in the church choir in Henderson, North Carolina. His wife, Mrs. Marie R. Williams, lives at 2217 F Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

Private First Class Bell was inducted October 30, 1942, at Fort Bragg, North Carolina. A former recreation park director, Bell lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Bell, at the Baldwin Avenue address.

Private Patrick was inducted November 7, 1942, at Fort Bragg, North Carolina. He was a former shoemaker and taxi-cab driver, and played the piano in the Regimental band. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Jones, live at the Boundary Street address.

END

DISTRIBUTION: Ad.
2-14-45

25-24508-600

FUTURE RELEASE
PLEASE NOTE DATE

WAR DEPARTMENT
Bureau of Public Relations
NEWS DIVISION
Washington, D. C.

FOR RELEASE MONDAY, MARCH 19, 1945

* * * *

Inducted at Fort Custer, Michigan, as a private in January 1942, Captain Thomas had advanced to the position of operations sergeant in the 614th Tank Destroyer Battalion before he was sent to the Tank Destroyers' Officer Candidate School at Camp Hood, Texas, where he was comissioned a second lieutenant in March 1943.

After completing an advanced course at the Tank Destroyer School, he was promoted to first lieutenant and sailed overseas as commander of Company C. He was promoted to captain January 1, 1945.

Prior to his induction, Captain Thomas, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Thomas of 5877 Beechwood Avenue, Detroit, was a molder and metal pourer for the Ford Motor Company. He studied aeronautical meteorology and navigation at the Cass Technical High School, Detroit, and at the time of his induction was a student at Wayne University of that city.

The Distinguished Service Cross will be presented to Captain Thomas at appropriate ceremonies to be announced.

* * * * * * * *

332nd COMPLETES 200th MISSION WITHOUT LOSS OF SINGLE "HEAVY"

WITH THE 15th AIR FORCE, Italy---The all-Negro Mustang fighter group, led by Colonel Benjamin O. Davis, Jr., commanding officer, on February 28 chalked up its 200th combat mission with the 15th Army Air Force when it provided close escort for heavy bombers attacking enemy targets on the Brenner route in northern Italy. These Negro pilots have the enviable distinction of not having lost a single heavy bomber to enemy fighters.

The group began flying with the 15th AAF in June 1944. Using P-47 Thunderbolts soon after their initiation into the 15th, the pilots were assigned P-51 Mustangs.

The pilots have been awarded 63 Distinguished Flying Crosses and completed more than 8,000 individual sorties. Colonel Davis has been awarded the Legion of Merit, the United States' fourth highest award.

The all-Negro group has destroyed more than 200 enemy aircraft in combined aerial and ground strafing assaults and has destroyed or damaged much enemy rolling stock.

* * * * * * * *

10 NEGRO SOLDIERS DECORATED FOR HEROISM IN PHILIPPINES

WITH THE XXIV CORPS ON LEYTE, Philippine Islands---Ten Negro soldiers recently received the Soldier's Medal for heroism during the Philippine campaign from Major General John R. Hodge, Commanding General, XXIV Corps, whose troops conquered the southern and western parts of Leyte, the War Department reported today.

Coming from four states, the decorated men are:

FIRST SERGEANT HENRY L. MORRIS, Darlington, South Carolina.

MASTER SERGEANT ROSCOE E. THOMAS, 595 Parsons Street, S.W., Atlanta, Georgia.

STAFF SERGEANT LESLIE D. MURRAY, 1187 61st Avenue, Oakland, California.

STAFF SERGEANT MERLE L. GREENWOOD, 706 Hickory Street, Streator, La Salle, Illinois.

MORE

SERGEANT ALFRED COCKRELL, 4600 Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

TECHNICIAN FOURTH GRADE FRANK J. CRAMMER, 1047-C, Stalker Way, Alameda, California.

CORPORAL IVAN P. MIDDLEBROOK, Venice, California.

TECHNICIAN FIFTH GRADE NORRIS BUCKMAN, 707 Frederick Street, Detroit, Michigan.

PRIVATE FIRST CLASS COLUMBUS HOWARD, 3825 Lovett Street, Inkster, Michigan.

PRIVATE FIRST CLASS THOMAS J. CAVENESS, 4451-4 East 48th Street, Los Angeles California.

"In spite of exploding artillery shells and flying fragments," Thomas, Greenwood, Buckman and Caveness risked their lives in going to the assistance of three comrades buried under debris from an ammunition dump which had been set on fire by Japanese bombers, according to their official citations.

Morris, Murray, Cockrell, Crammer, Middlebrook and Howard risked their lives "by proceeding within 200 yards of the exploding inferno to remove hot metal fragments from inflammable materials....and fought tirelessly to prevent the fire from spreading to other vital supply dumps," their official citations said.

General Hodge, who personally presented the awards, told the soldiers, "Service troops are important, very important; without them, the men at the front could not be there." He also commended Technician Fifth Grade Buckman for his daring and devotion to duty.

* * * * * * * *

PORT MEN DELIVERED BOMBS
THAT SAVED DAY ON MINDORO

WITH U.S. FORCES IN THE PHILIPPINES---Men of the 235th Port Company got a chance to see just how important their cargo work really is last December 26 when the Japanese shelled Mindoro Island.

Having gone in with the infantry during the invasion, the Port Company soldiers had set up headquarters on the beach when Jap shells began to rain of them from out at sea.

All hands were turned to the unloading of bombs which were hurriedly sent to the air strip. As the bombs arrived at the strip, the planes took off to engage the enemy.

Soon the Jap shells ceased to fall. Soldiers of the Port Company went back to work, thoroughly convinced that their job was definitely one of the most important on Mindoro.

* * * * * * * *

NEGRO NURSES COMPLETELY FILL
NURSING POSTS AT CALIFORNIA CAMPS

CAMP SAN LUIS OBISPO, California---Nineteen Negro Army nurses now make up the complete complement of the nursing staff at the Station Hospital here, Colonel Frank W. Pinger, Post Surgeon, announced today.

At Camp Callan, San Diego, California, First Lieutenant Chrystalee Maxwell, a veteran of overseas service, is principal chief nurse of a staff of 15 at the Station Hospital.

MORE

Supervising the activities of the nurses at San Luis Obispo is Principal Chief Nurse Daisy R. Evans, a first lieutenant from Wilmington, Delaware, who received her training at the Hampton Institute School of Nurses, Hampton, Virginia. She also did post graduate work at the University of Pennsylvania.

Before joining the Army Nurse Corps in 1941, Lieutenant Evans held the appointment of a Public Health Nurse in the State of Delaware.

Other nurses on the staff at Camp San Luis Obispo include Second Lieutenants Ola M. Bland, West Avenue, Blackstone, Va.; Gwyneth T. Blessitt, 318 S. 7th Ave., Mt. Vernon, N.Y.; Louise E. Boney, 237 Bainbridge, Brooklyn, N.Y.; Goldie B. Buchanan, 2032 15th St., N.W., Washington, D.C.; Doris V. Cloud, 518 Sampson St., San Diego, Calif.; Dorothy M. Cook, 534 E. 3rd St., Oklahoma City, Okla.; Barbara C. McDonald, 6397 Scotten St., Detroit, Mich.; Mable D. Rhodes, 537 E. Kirby St., Detroit, Mich.; Bertha L. Rushing, 428 E. Concord St., Salisbury, N.C.; Grace Shallowhorn, 504 Eagle St., Buffalo, N.Y.; Virginia L. Smith, 215 S. Allen Ave., Richmond, Va.; Volma L. Washington, 654 E. 24th St., Los Angeles, Calif.; Eloise A. White, 328 W. Queen St., Hampton, Va.; Thelma R. Williams, 896 Washington Ave., Norfolk, Va.; Catherine Wilder, 408 N. 11th St., Marshalltown, Iowa; Estelle F. Worrell, 909 Glasgow St., Portsmouth, Va.; and Louise R. Wright, 174A Union Street, Jersey City, N.Y.

At Camp Callan, Lieutenant Maxwell says she intends to stay in the service. She has been a nurse for 10 years and counts her three years in the Army as the happiest of her life.

Already a veteran of overseas service, Lieutenant Maxwell was assigned to duty at Fort Huachuca, Arizona, in July 1942. Six months later she was ordered to Liberia, West Africa, where a huge station hospital for the troops guarding the East Atlantic supply lifeline was established.

In Liberia, Lieutenant Maxwell came to know, and eventually to adopt, a beautiful, dark-eyed Liberian girl. Last May, Brenda Drucilla, aged seven, flew by clipper to the United States to join her adopted mother. She's now living with Lieutenant Maxwell's mother at 1661 West 35th Street, Los Angeles.

During her varied and interesting Army career, Lieutenant Maxwell served a six months' period as chief nurse of the German prisoner of war camp at Papago Park, Arizona.

"I found out firsthand that the Nazis are far from being supermen," she laughed. "They like to act tough and big, but they cry too!"

Members of Lieutenant Maxwell's staff at Camp Callan include: First Lieutenant Nellie E. Jackson, 622 N. 6th St., Richmond, Virginia. Second Lieutenants Mildred V. Robinson, 1319 Central Ave., Baltimore, Md.; Thelma Lambert, 188 Wylie Ave., Plainsville, N.J.; Bessie O. Hart, 249 Adams St., Steelton, Pa.; Sophronia E. Graham, 329 10th St., Roanoke, Va.; and Marjorie V. Malery, 1414 Florida Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C.

* * * * * * * *

ENGINEERS IN GERMANY
KEEPING RAILROAD OPEN

WITH ADVANCE U.S. FORCES IN GERMANY---Penetrating into German territory east of Aachen, the 375th Engineer General Service Regiment is following advancing armies with rails, ties, spikes, and heavy equipment to establish necessary railheads for the continuous flow of supplies from Advance Section, Communications Zone depots to forward army elements.

Seemingly unmindful of enemy strafing and air attacks, companies of the regiment are following close on the heels of the combat troops.

Clearing away the debris and wreckage caused by both Allied and enemy bombing and shelling, the 375th has miles of track ready for service. While security patrols cover the men at work, long sections of rehabilitated track cut parallel lines in the snow over the German terrain.

MORE

"These German people around here act like they want to be friendly," said Corporal Allen J. Taylor, of New Orleans, Louisiana. "We don't pay them any attention though. Our greatest concern is getting this mission finished."

The outfit is billeted in abandoned German trains and move in them as they proceed along on their project.

* * * * * * * *

LOW STRAFING MISSIONS
SAFER, PILOT ASSERTS

ATLANTIC CITY, New Jersey---The reason for First Lieutenant Charles A. Dunne's preference for low strafing missions while on escort duty with the 332nd Fighter Group was simple, "It's safer," he said. "At least I found it so."

Reporting to the AAF Redistribution Station No. 1 was something of a homecoming for the lithe, slender pilot. He lived at 439 North New York Avenue, Atlantic City, for 12 years, attended Atlantic City High School, competed as a miler and cross-country runner. Now he makes his home at 236 Madison Street, Frederick, Maryland.

"We weren't on the deck for more than five or six missions," he said of the strafing jobs. "And we managed to sink a destroyer in Trieste harbor, hit radar towers in Southern France, and damaged some ME-109s on the ground in Austria. Our squadron was credited for these on a collective basis, which is the way it ought to be, since it was a collective job.

"But it wasn't easy. We were shot at with everything from 30-caliber slugs on up. That made me uncomfortable. I liked high altitude. Flak came at us in a pattern and it was easy---most of the time---to avoid it by a quick turn and a dive. We tangled a few times with Jerry, but he never got close enough to worry us."

Lieutenant Dunne flew a total of 92 missions with the 12th and 15th Air Forces. Mostly, he was in the P-51 Mustang which for speed, maneuverability and lightness on the controls was the best he ever handled.

"On those strafing jobs though," he said, "I felt better in the P-47. It was harder to knock down and had more guns."

Flying with the 301st Squadron out of Italy, Lieutenant Dunne received the Air Medal with five Oak Leaf Clusters. He is here for reassignment and the set-up is, as he puts it simply and directly, "much nicer than I ever expected."

* * * * * * * *

PILOT DOWNED OVER BULGARIA
WINS UNIQUE RECOGNITION

FORT LEAVENWORTH, Kansas---First Lieutenant Henry A. Wise, Jr., now a student in the 22nd General Staff Class at the Command and General Staff School here, was awarded the Certificate of Valor last week in recognition of courageous service in aerial combat by the direction of Major General Nathan F. Twining, Commanding General of the Fifteenth Air Force.

Major General Karl Truesdell, Commanding General of Fort Leavenworth and Commandant of the Command and General Staff School, made the presentation at a ceremony in Gruber Hall before some 800 of Lieutenant Wise's classmates.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Wise, of Chariton, Virginia, Lieutenant Wise, upon entering the Army in July 1942, was first assigned to Grenier Field

MORE

Manchester, New Hampshire. He was then transferred to the 38th Aviation Squadron, Dow Field, Bangor, Maine. He left Dow Field as a sergeant, and received his commission as second lieutenant at Tuskegee Army Air Field, Alabama, in February 1944.

Lieutenant Wise reached the Mediterranean Theater in July 1944 and was promoted to first lieutenant in September. He was a fighter pilot with the 332nd Fighter Group of the Fifteenth Air Force, doing principally escort work.

His last mission is one of the lieutenant's most vivid remembrances. It was a raid on the Ploesti oil fields August 26. His plane was forced down over Bulgaria, and he was captured and imprisoned by the Germans in that country. "That was a stroke of luck, though," Lieutenant Wise said. "I was a prisoner for only three weeks, and then the Russians moved in and we were all freed." He returned to the United States in October.

The Certificate of Valor, though not an official War Department award, nevertheless has an interesting history.

During the trying days of our Air Force in 1943, Lieutenant General Ira C Eaker, then a brigadier general in command of the Eighth Air Force in England, sought a personal way to express his gratitude to the men of his command who worked night and day in flying missions over Germany.

The result was the Certificate of Valor, a close, personal recognition in the form of a certificate signed by the General himself citing the faithful and courageous service of the pilot. This award became highly cherished among the men of the Eighth Air Force.

In addition to the Certificate of Valor, the 24-year-old officer holds the Air Medal and the Purple Heart. He is a former teacher of social science in the Accomac High School, Chariton, Virginia.

* * * * * * * *

FOUR WIN BRONZE STAR
FOR COURAGE IN FRANCE

WITH U.S. FORCES IN FRANCE---Four Negroes were awarded the Bronze Star Medal in France this week, two for initiative and courage displayed in rescuing injured buddies and two for outstanding performance in fighting fires at gasoline dumps.

They are Sergeant Thomas G. Banks of Berryville, Virginia, Corporal Harvey Thompson of Jackson, Missouri, Private First Class Robert L. Clark, Jr. of South Boston, Virginia and Corporal Charlie Wagoner of Center, Texas.

Sergeant Banks, a mechanic, and Corporal Thompson, a DUKW driver, with the 818th Amphibian Truck Company now stationed at a major French port, were aboard the LCT headed for Normandy when the vessel struck a mine. The explosion tore the craft in two and buried seven soldiers beneath the twisted wreckage of eight Army trucks and four loaded trailers. The fore part of the vessel sank immediately. Though the section which remained afloat was in imminent danger of sinking or of catching fire from the oil and gasoline which drenched the wreckage, Sergeant Banks and Corporal Thompson shifted the twisted vehicles and pulled the dead and injured from underneath.

When a rescue boat came alongside, the soldiers transferred the casualties from the sinking LCT.

Sergeant Banks has received a Battle Star for participation in the battle of Northern France. His wife, Mary, is a private in the WAC. Their home is at Berryville, Virginia.

Corporal Thompson also has received a Battle Star for participation in the battle of Northern France. His wife, Ernestine, lives at 1529 North Blair Street, Jackson, Mississippi.

MORE

Private First Class Clark was awarded the Bronze Star Medal for his outstanding performance in fighting two gas dump fires, one on the Omaha beach and the other in Lougainville. At each fire, Private First Class Clark maneuvered a decontamination truck that had been converted into a pumper, to within effective range of the burning gas, and extinguished the blaze before it reach the larger portion of the inflammable supplies.

Corporal Charlie Wagoner, Center, Texas, was also awarded the Bronze Star Medal. He acted in a similar manner at the same fires combated by his unit at Omaha beach and Lougainville.

Enlisting in the Army on March 20, 1941, at Fort George G. Meade, Maryla Clark was a former ice cream maker. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Clark, Sr., of South Boston.

Corporal Wagoner was inducted on September 10, 1942, at Camp Wolters, Texas. A former farmer, he lived with his mother, Mrs. Hassie Wagoner in Center, Texas.

* * * * * * * *

SERGEANT ARRIVES SAFELY
THROUGH GRACE OF 20 FEET

ATLANTIC CITY, New Jersey---Master Sergeant Roland Henry, of 312 East 9th Street, Wilmington, Delaware, contends that he is at the Army Air Forces Redistribution Station No. 1 only through the grace of 20 feet. It was that distance by which a Jap bomb missed the Liberty Ship on which he was returning to the United States after completing a 23 months' tour of duty in the Southwest Pacific Area.

"My boat was one of a convoy bound for home from Leyte in the Philippines. It was early afternoon of my second day out at sea and I was standing on the bow of the ship taking a look around," recalled the sergeant.

"Suddenly a lone Zero came zooming out the sun and picked our ship for his first pass. The 500 pounder he hurled at us hit no more than 20 feet in front of the bow where I was standing. The boat jumped in the air like a trout after a fly. The rush of water nearly knocked me off my feet in the coldest bath I ever had. In fact, it was so cold, I thought, I was frozen solid. My buddies told me later I was only scared rigid."

The Zero started a second dive, but Navy gunners on another ship got its range as it peeled off and blew it out of the sky.

Sergeant Henry was sergeant-major of a Negro aviation engineering battali that saw service in the Netherlands East Indies, New Guinea and the Philippines

Now awaiting a new assignment at the AAF Redistribution Station No. 1, the Wilmington sergeant remarked:

"I had heard about this kind of a set-up for the fellows returning from overseas, but I never imagined that the Air Forces would combine 'paradise' with physical examinations and classification."

Sergeant Henry entered the service on March 5, 1942, and was sent overseas on February 26, 1943. He wears the Asiatic Pacific ribbon with three campaign stars.

* * * * * * * *

PROMOTED TO MAJOR, CHICAGOAN
COMMANDS BATTALION IN ENGLAND

HEADQUARTERS, 1349th ENGINEER GENERAL SERVICE REGIMENT, England---The promotion in England of Captain Walker G. Stone, 7614 St. Lawrence Avenue, Chicag

MORE

Illinois, to the rank of major as the commanding officer of the second battalic in the 1349th Engineer General Service Regiment was announced recently.

Major Stone commands a Negro Engineer Battalion. He helped to direct operations in which D Company of his unit, in training for future operations on the Continent, beat the record of a top-notch Negro Pontoon Battalion in competition and established a new record by erecting in one hour and fifty-eight minutes the floating-type Bailey bridge over a 300-foot river span.

A reserve officer, Major Stone was called to active duty in 1942 as a second lieutenant. He attended the eight-week Refresher Course at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, and was later assigned to his present unit. He has served in the capacity of platoon commander, company commander, assistant battalion supply officer, battalion plans and training officer and executive officer of the battalion before his present assignment.

Major Stone's main interest is engineering construction. He is a graduat of the University of Illinois, Class '38 and received his B.S. in Architectura Engineering. While performing his duties as the Plans and Training Officer, Major Stone designed several huge camps before D-Day and provided facilities for thousands of invasion troops. He also helped to direct and supervise the construction of a network of military roads in which his unit gained a reputation for completing assigned projects ahead of schedule.

Major Stone's wife, Harriette Joyce, and daughter, Linda Carol, reside at the St. Lawrence Avenue address.

* * * * * * * *

PHILADELPHIAN CENSORS ETO
MAIL IN THREE LANGUAGES

UNITED KINGDOM BASE, England---Only Negro censor at the First Base Post Office in the European Theater of Operations, censoring mail written in three foreign languages, is First Lieutenant Tothwill W. Burke, 25, of 3856 Haverford Avenue, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

A Regular Army man with six years' service, Lieutenant Burke was commissioned in the Quartermaster Corps in July 1942, and has been overseas 18 months.

He is the husband of Mrs. Emma L. Burke and the father of Rothwell, Jr., 18 months old, of the Haverford Avenue address.

* * * * * * * *

CHAPLAIN, HOME FROM PACIFIC,
JOINS STAFF AT PERCY JONES

BATTLE CREEK, Michigan---The tenth chaplain to join the staff of Percy Jones General and Canvalescent Hospital is Captain Norman G. Long, of Oberlin, Ohio, a veteran of 32 months' service in the South Pacific.

Like another Percy Jones chaplain, Captain Albert J. Hoffman who joined t staff after entering the hospital as a patient from overseas, Captain Long came here as a patient and is now at the Convalescent Facility, Fort Custer, while recovering from a tropical illness acquired while he was stationed st Guadalcanal.

Chaplain Long served in the Solomons as regimental chaplain for 14 months, from August 1943 to October 1944. He was transferred here from Fletcher General Hospital in Ohio this January.

On temporary duty only while completing his own medical treatment, Chaplain Long is spending two mornings each week at the main hospital, at Convalescent Facility and at Fort Custer Annex.

MORE

Chaplain Long first entered the Army as a reserve chaplain in 1937, and went on active duty in 1939. For three years he served with the Ninth Cavalry at Fort Riley before being assigned to Fort Benning, Georgia, where he served until April 1942 when he was sent overseas. He went first to the New Hebrides and served there 15 months before being sent to the Solomon Islands.

* * * * * * * *

UNIT SPEEDS TONS OF SUPPLIES
TO FRONT VIA "BABY RED-BALL"

WITH THE 259th PORT COMPANY, France---Winch operators, hatchmen, cargo checkers and dock technicians of this unit, who swiftly unloaded thousands of tons of vital war materials from bulging freighters at a key Allied port here and placed them on famed Red-Ball express trucks, are now doing the same for the "Baby Red-Ball" express.

Successor to the original Red-Ball, which raced along restricted highways hundreds of miles to the front, the Baby Red-Ball comprises a chain of key freight points stretching from the major supply port of Cherbourg to Paris.

Men of the 259th Port Company, working through all kinds of weather on round-the-clock schedules, load the express trucks at the dockside. Guns, clothing, food, medical equipment, and all the vast armory of weapons and implements used by America's mechanized armies are included in the shipments.

"Sure," says Sergeant Roland J. Maples, El Centro, California, "it's no fun getting heavy cargo off the ships in rain and sleet. It's hard work--- sometimes dangerous work. But it's a job we must do because we know there's a lot of our buddies up the line depending on us."

Activated as part of the 499th Port Battalion at New Orleans, Louisiana, in August 1943, the company trained at New Orleans and at Newport News, Virginia It arrived at Southampton, England, in December 1943.

For five months, working day and night, men of the unit unloaded American and Allied freighters at the south coast English port. They sent thousands of tons of precious war materials streaming out from the port by road and rail to every supply depot in Great Britian.

As D-Day approached, carefully selected squads of 259th soldiers, working in great secrecy at camouflaged locations along the coast, loaded invasion craft of all types with the thousands of specialized items of equipment necessary for head-on assault on the fortified shores of Normandy.

Two months after the successful Allied operation, the unit was again at work at the key port of Cherbourg, a city of the utmost importance in the overall pattern of Supreme Command strategy. Cherbourg was the westerh terminus of the famed Red-Ball Highway, main supply artery for Allied troops pounding their way into the heart of France.

For four months the 259th Port Company was instrumental in keeping racing Red-Ball trucks loaded day and night, ready for swift delivery of vital equipment down the hundreds of miles of shell-scarred roadway stretching to the battle front.

Names of personnel of the company follow:

ALABAMA: Abanda--Pfc. Walter J. Ballard, Route 1, Box 84; Belle Mina--Pvt. Willie J. Harris, Box 12; Birmingham--Pvt. Lamar Hicks, 60 18th Ave., S.; Pfc. Hamp Jackson, 127 6th Ave., S.; Cpl. Stanley Jackson, 401 11th Court, W.; Cpl. Otis Miller, Route 7, Box 29; Pvt. Eddie Simpson, 521 S. 15th St.; Elkmont--Pfc. Douglas Coleman, P.O. Box 503; Fountain--Pfc. Alonzo Wiggins; Harvest--Pvt. Hector A. Blackburn, Route 2, Box 45; Huntsville--Pfc. Lonnie Gristle, 401 Hooper Ave.; Mobile--Pvt. Frederic A. Rivera, 359 Rylands Lane; Monroeville--Pvt. Charlie E. Dickerson, P.O. Box 149; Phoenix City--Pvt. Norman P. Ross, 1207 Carton St.; Scottsboro--Pfc. Elberk Knowles, General Delivery;

MORE

Seale--Pvt. Charlie L. Newsome, Route 2, Box 53; Woodward--Pvt. Samuel T. Hatter, House 664.

ARIZONA: Phoenix--Pfc. Freddie E. Battle, 1226 E. Madison; Pvt. Zebedee Fuller, 1111 W. Lincoln; Pvt. Dave Peterson, 1646 E. Jefferson St.; Staff Sgt. Charlie Tennell, 1001 S. 43rd St.; Tucson--Pvt. Willie Holt, 517 St. Mary's Rd.

CALIFORNIA: El Centro--Sgt. Roland J. Maples, 371 Orange St.; Los Angeles--Cpl. Kermit Dearman, 1237 E. 42nd Pl.; First Sgt. Cornelius J. Evans, 1646 E. 51st St.; Cpl. Leon B. Hilbert, Jr., 1531 E. 41st Pl.; Sgt. Tommie L. Joyce, 4507 Compton Ave.; Pvt. William L. Owens, Jr., 1216 E. 92nd St.; Pvt. Theopolis Wiley, 1145 E. 24th St.; Vallejo--Sgt. Marlin F. Edwards, Jr., 319 Branciforte; Los Angeles--Cpl. Nathaniel Arrington, 9567 Maie Ave.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA: Washington--Pvt. Rufus M. Judd, 509 P St., N.W.; Pvt. Howard Kiser, 715 7th St., N.E.; Pvt. James Grant, 506 1st St., N.W.

FLORIDA: Miami--Pvt. William H. Moss, 1157 N.W. 5th St.; St. Petersburg--Pfc. James Lewis, 961½ 3rd Ave., S.

GEORGIA: Atlanta--Pvt. Elijah Holmes, 180 Luckie St.; Pvt. Tinnie Perkins, 226 Courtland St., N.E.; Pvt. David C. Askew, 453 North Ave., N.W.; Augusta--Staff Sgt. Olen C. Dougherty, 1009 9th St.; Pvt. Nelson Franklin, Jr., 1350 Twiggs St.; Pfc. W.C. Henley, 1307 12th St.; Cpl. Leroy Lovett, 1232 12th St.; Pfc. Robert McKie, Route 3, Box 133; Pvt. James H. Rhodes, 1619 Floyd St.; Cpl. Matthew Sexton, Jr., 1238½ 9th St.; Cpl. Brown Wimberly, 839 Florence St.; Albany--Pfc. Eddie L. Matthews, Route 2, Box 107; Blakely--Pvt. Robert L. Hall, Route 3, Box 9; Camilla--Pfc. Joe Edgar, Box 134; Claxton--Pfc. Sylvester Timmons, Newton St.; Columbus--Cpl. Ornsby B. Calhoun, P.O. Box 303; Pfc. George B. Embry, 1704 44th St.; Pvt. Lonnie L. Moses, 1521 24th St.; Cramplee--Sgt. Roy Hood, Route 2; Crawford--Pvt. Cleveland Collins, Route 1.

Darlan--Pfc. Leroy Francis, General Delivery; Douglas--Pfc. Pierce Moore, Mill Quarters; Eulonia--Cpl. Nathaniel Sanders; Everett--Pfc. Odis Holden, Jr., Box 41; Fitzgerald--Pvt. Albert George, 804 E. Roareke; Forsyth--Pfc. William A. Gorden, Route 1; Gabbettville--Pvt. Jewell L. Slaughter, Route 3; Griffin--Pvt. James C. Taylor, 353 W. Colleb St.; Glenville--Pvt. Barney R.C. Grantham; Gray Haddock--Cpl. George W. Middlebrook, General Delivery; Hamilton--Pvt. Robert Coverson, General Delivery; Pvt. Fletcher W. Slaughter, Route 1; Hoganville--Pvt. Fuller Mooty, Route 3; Lawrence--Cpl. Thomas E. King, 304 S. Clayton St.; Junction City--Pfc. John A. Leonard, Route 2 Box 9; Lincolnton--Pvt. Alexander Hawes, Route 3, Box 51; Lumber City--Cpl. Samuel Haynes, General Delivery; Macon--Pfc. Eddie Middlebrooks, Route 2, Log Cabin Drive; Pvt. Sylvester C. Hill, 326 Lexington St.; Cpl. Joseph Spry, 409 Campbell Ave.; Mayday--Sgt. Cecil L. Davis, Route 3, Box 76.

Montezuma--Pvt. William Leggett, Jr., 122 Daryton St.; Ocala--Pfc. Charlie L. Johnson, Route 3, Box 11; Perry--Pvt. George Mathis, Jr.; Quitman--Pfc. Draughty H. Corker, 915 E. Forsyth St.; Richland--Pvt. John H. Ansley, General Delivery; Richmond--Pvt. Joseph Alexander, Route 1, Box 5; Savannah--Pvt. Solomon Anderson, 262 Shield St.; Cpl. John P. Cuthpert, 524 W. Charles St.; Pvt. John A. Dupree, 531 President St., W.; Cpl. Jessie J. Jefferson, 537 Yamacraw Village; Pvt. Isaac Johnson, Jr., 538 Montgomery St.; Cpl. John M. Smith, 1007 W. 36th Court; Pvt. Andrew J. Scott, 522 E. Anderson St.; Shadydale--Cpl. Willie F. Sanders, Route 1, Box 53; Sopertown--Cpl. Woodrow Love, Route 2, Box 12; Stone Mountain--Staff Sgt. Henry Greene, General Delivery; Summertown--Pvt. W.D. Woods, P.O. Box 202; Thomaston--Pvt. Emanuel B. Walker; 407 Kings Ave.; Valdosta--Pvt. R.B. Dwight, 415 W. Hill Ave.; Washington--Pvt. Samuel Flint, 106 Alabama St.; Wray--Pvt. David Peterson, Route 1, Box 65.

ILLINOIS: Chicago--Pvt. Leroy Johnson, 3632 Indiana St.

INDIANA: Indianapolis--Pvt. Emmitt Beckner, 622 N. Capital Ave.; Cpl. Wheeler S. Llewellyn, 517 W. 26th St.; Evansville--Cpl. Joseph C. Lowe, 314 Sumner St.; Cpl. William P. Martin, Route 6, Properity; Pvt. Charles E. Moss, 417 Mulberry St.; Cpl. Hampton Joyner, 1119 S. 12th St.

MORE

KENTUCKY: Lexington--Cpl. Henry L. Mitchell, 409 Georgetown St.; Louisville--Cpl. Henry H. Woolfolk, 1545 W. St. Catherine St.; Madisonville--Cpl. Adothis Mosley, Jr., RR. 6, Box 7; Owensboro--Pfc. Cornelious Key; Cpl. James L. Logan, 811 Oglesby St.; Shelbyville--Pfc. Emmit L. Lewis, 1016 High St.

LOUISIANA: Pointe Ala Hache--Pfc. Haywood Harvey.

MARYLAND: Rochville--Pvt. Leonard N. Wims, R. Middle Lane.

MICHIGAN: Detroit--Pvt. James Johnson, 555 S. Rademacher; Grand Rapids--Sgt. Cornelious Davis, 36 Pleasent St., S.W.

MISSISSIPPI: Belzoni--Cpl. John W. Quinn, Route 1, Box 196; Biloxi--Cpl. Jessie James, 520 Holly St.; Bolton--Pvt. Cornelious Johnson; Clarksdale--Pvt Willie Harper, Route 3, Box 570; Columbus--Pfc. Alvin Lagrone, 1618 10th Ave., North; Cottonplant--Cpl. William McAlister; Drew--Pvt. Leslie S. Hoskins; Dunleith--Pvt. Edward Logan; Glen Allen--Pvt. Percy L. Henry; Hattiesburg--Pfc. John R. Faulkner, 711 Duke Ave.; Hernando--Sgt. James Z. Bowens, RFD 2; Jackson--Pvt. Wardell P. Brown, 125 Union St.; Sgt. John Crawford, Jr., 273 George St.; Cpl. Clyde Griffith, Route 3, Box 151B; Cpl. London Moffett, Jr., 1145 Hickory Sr.; Sgt. Wiley Spence, 2400 Valley St.; Sgt. Edward W. Taylor, 229 E. Ash St.; Shaw--Pfc. Daniel L. Cubit; Waynesboro--Pvt. William J. Williamson; Vernal--Pfc. Oscar M. White; Pascagoula--Sgt. Earl Cook, Jr., 514 Tucker St.

MISSOURI: Gobler--Pfc. Richard R. Love; Cape Girardeau--Sgt. William M. Betts, 521 S. Frederic St.; South Kinlock--Pfc. Alvin L. Wilson, Hugo & Maguire Sts.; Pvt. Edelbert A. Jones, Box 122; St. Louis--Cpl. Jack A. Battley, 4577B Garfield Ave.; Sgt. Louis Bennet, 1504A N. Whittier; Pvt. Clayborne R. Bolar, 2416A Leffingwell Ave.; Pvt. George Brown, 3003 Pine St.; Pvt. Jessie Clifft, 22B S. 23rd St.; Cpl. L.C. Curtis, 2719 Dayton St.; Pvt. Louis O. Graves, 3319 Laclede Ave; Pvt. Willie Hall, 3438 Lucas Ave.; Pvt. David E. Hill, 2223A Hickory St.;Pvt. Joseph Hill, 1820A. Division St.; Pvt. William T. Holt, 2835 Delmar Blvd.; Staff Sgt. Leon Jones, 3863 Windsor Pl.; Pvt. Reginald G. Kimbrough, 1912 Goode Ave.; Pvt. James Lee, Jr., 2601A N. Leffingwell Ave.; Cpl Slatie Morgan, 4431 Page Blvd.; Sgt. Leverne Nero, 2633 Pine St.; Sgt. Thomas P Parham, 2630 Lucas Ave.; Cpl. Edgar J. Redmon, 4051 Fairfax; Sgt. Frank E. Rhoda, Jr., 4212 W. Ashland Ave.; Sgt. Sherley A. Turner, 4212 W. Ashland Ave.; Cpl. L.C. Walker, 2959 Dayton St.; Pfc. Lanier Waters, 705 N. Cardinal Ave.; Kennett--Cpl. Charles E. Washington, Box 271.

NORTH CAROLINA: Kingston--Pvt. Ralph Harper, 1002 Macon St.; Durham--Pvt. James O.H. Crawford, 708 Pine St.

NEW JERSEY: Montclair--Pfc. Joseph Hughes, 44 Lexington Ave.

NEW YORK: Bronx--Sgt. Wallace Grubbs, 918 Jackson Ave.; Columbia County-Sgt. Wallace Johnson, Schodack Landing; Corona, Long Island--Cpl. Raymond L. Jackson, 106-10 Northern Blvd.

OHIO: Dayton--Pvt. George L. Jackson, 41 Horace St.

PENNSYLVANIA: North Hills--Pfc. Linwood Holmes, 1 Pennsylvania Ave.; Philadelphia--Pfc. John L. Davis, 1707 N. 21st St.; Pvt. Claude W. Johnson, 2309 N. Garnet St.; Pvt. Haywood L. Willis, 742 S. 15th St.; Presto--Pvt. Raymond Gordon.

SOUTH CAROLINA: Georgetown--Pvt. William Lee, 522 Black River Rd.;

TENNESSEE: Collierville-Cpl. Thomas Yancey, Route 1, Box 154; Dyersburg Pfc. Hazel Gannaway, 815 Fair St.; Braden--Sgt. Clarence Williams, General Delivery; Collierville--Pvt. Mearlon Montgomery, Route 1, Box 202; Humboldt-Pvt. Bill McLin, Route 3; Memphis--Pfc. Alonzo Barnes, 1412 Nichols St.; Pfc. Jimmie Echols, Route 1, Box 82; Sgt. Nathaniel Hoskins, 683 Provine St.; Pfc. Fate Jenkins, 664 Linden St.; Pfc. George W. Johnson, 956 Keel Ave.; Pvt. Alor M. King, 1617 Webb St.; Pfc. Ray Payne, 1826 Benford St.

MORE

Millington--Sgt. Clyde Hutch, General Delivery; Nashville--Pvt. Leroy Davie, 1610 18th Ave., N.; Sgt. George M. Hamer, 2837 Clifton Rd.; Pfc. Eddie Newsome, 1817 Patterson St.; Pvt. James M. Nixon, 415 9th Ave., N.; Cpl. Roscoe S. Waters, 444 10th Ave., N.; Pfc. James A. Weatherly, 1515 Hawkins St.; Oakland-Pvt. Huley Braswell, Route 1, Box 39; Rossville--Pfc. Clifton Lowe, Star Route, Box 9; Pvt. Joe H. Yancey, Route 1, Box 154; Somerville--Pvt. Lavern Shaw, Route 6, Box 21; Williston--Pvt. John W. Fitchpatric, Route 1, Box 12L; Knoxville--Pvt. Charles E. Hicks, 1431 W. 5th Ave.; Nashville--Pfc. Alonzo Barnes 1412 Nichols St.

TEXAS: Houston--Sgt. Howard Williams, 3515 St. Charles St.; Mineola--Pvt. Deb Malone, 306 Giraud St.

VIRGINIA: Alexandria--Pvt. Thomas A. Ball; Norfolk--Pfc. Charles E. Harding, 1449 Chaple St.

END

Distribution: Ad.
3-13-45

25-29604-600

FUTURE RELEASE

PLEASE NOTE DATE

WAR DEPARTMENT
Bureau of Public Relations
NEWS DIVISION
Washington, D. C.

FOR RELEASE MONDAY, MARCH 26, 1945

* *
* NOTE TO EDITORS: The following material originates with the Public *
* Relations Officers of United States Army camps, posts, stations and Theaters *
* of War. It concerns the activities of Negro soldiers. The date of release *
* appears above. Similar informative releases will be sent to you weekly. *
* *

PRESIDENTIAL CITATION
TO 969th FA BATTALION

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCES, France---The 969th Field Artillery Battalion, a Negro 155-mm howitzer outfit, was one of 34 odd units which received citations in the name of the President of the United States for action in the Bastogne area when attached to the 101st Airborne Division, SHAEF announced today.

Men of the 969th stuck to their guns and fired all around the compass during the defense of encircled Bastogne even though mortar bombs fell on them like rain. The unit which landed in France last July was attached to the 28th Infantry Division at the time of the German attack, At one time, when enemy pressure increased and casualties became heavier, all except the actual cannoneers fought infantry fashion.

The 101st Airborne Division and certain attached units were formally presented with the honor on March 15. Twenty-five other odd units, including the 969th Field Artillery Battalion, were not present because operations required their presence elsewhere. However, appropriate ceremonies will be held for these units at a future date.

* * * * * * * *

LIEUTENANT FAILED IN ACHIEVING AMBITION
BECAUSE PATTON'S TANKS TRAVELED TOO FAST

WASHINGTON, D.C.---"I don't give a damn what color you are as long as you get out there and kill those sons of --- in the green suits."

The rough, rugged speaker stood on the steel hood of an armored car as he addressed the battalion of Negro combat troops.

He was wearing a combat jacket with two ivory-handled pistols dangling at his side and the lacquered M-1 helmet liner that he wore had three silver stars bolted on its front.

The scene was "Somewhere in France." The listeners were members of the 761st Tank Battalion. The speaker was Lieutenant General George S. Patton, Jr. He wasn't wasting any words --- he was on his way to Germany and he was telling the guys of the 761st that he was banking on them to help him get there.

It all seems like a dream now to Lieutenant William E. Blake, of 1611 City Place, Atlantic City, New Jersey, a former member of the 761st Tank Battalion. He sat in Washington this week and recalled how he was wounded while dashing across Southern France with General Patton's Third Army.

"We knew he needed our tanks and we had been trying for day to catch up with him," said the lieutenant. "When we were assigned to the Third Army the morale of our men went sky-high and we set out at once to join it. A few days later, however, we were all in the dumps because General Patton was moving so fast we were afraid he would be in Berlin before we caught up with him."

MORE

The battalion almost wore out its tanks trying to catch the fast-rolling Third Army.

"The only way we caught them," Blake went on, "was by taking off the steel combat tracks on our tanks and putting on the faster rubber ones. Even then, we had to do from ninety to a hundred miles a day to overtake them and those guys were fighting as they went. I never dreamed an Army could move so fast while fighting."

They say at one time headquarters had to drop maps to General Patton by plane because the Third Army ran off the maps that they started with and no one from headquarters was able to catch up with him on the ground.

When the 761st Tankmen caught up with General Patton, he was waiting impatiently for supplies at Nancy, France.

It was at Nancy on the occasion of the General's speech to the 761st that Lieutenant Blake first saw the former Olympic swimming and Army pistol champion.

"We were in battalion formation when the order came down to man all guns. Suddenly a bunch of Jeeps loaded with MPs and 50-caliber machineguns rolled in and took up strategic positions. Then a single Jeep came dashing up and stopped beside an armored scout car. A three-star general jumped from the Jeep and vaulted up on the hood of the armored car and when I saw his two ivory-handled pistols I knew I was looking at Lieutenant General George S. Patton, Jr."

When General Patton struck at Gros Rederching, 3,000 yards from the German border in the Alsace-Lorraine sector, Lieutenant Blake was a liaison officer between the 26th Infantry ("Yankee") Division, and a company of tanks from his battalion attached to the New Englanders for support.

"When we entered the city I had just got located in a building that was between me and the direction from which Jerry's artillery shells were coming," Blake continued, "when I received orders to report to the regimental command post for instructions.

"It was pitch dark and the only way I could find my way up the streets was to hug to the buildings as I went along.

"Just as I got outside my building a German shell landed on the outskirts of the village. This made me feel pretty good for I figured Jerry didn't have the range yet, and I'd be able to make it to the CP before he got it, but I guess I was wrong for about that time I heard one scream over my head and I flattened out on the ground close up beside the building.

"The shell landed on the top of the building and a big pile of debris fell in the middle of my back as I lay there. The concussion stunned me and I lay there for quite a while. Finally I got myself together and began crawling on to the command post."

What the lieutenant did not tell: After he arrived at the command post he did not inform anyone of his injury and when the Division moved out he went a total of eight days, making typical Patton marches, before he finally surrendered to the Medical Corps.

At the hospital it was found that he had suffered serious injuries to his spinal column and had to be evacuated at once. He was sent to a hospital at Rheims from where he was flown to England and later shipped to the United States.

Open in his admiration for the colorful Third Army Commander, Blake said, "I don't see how he stands up under it. He actually wears down his mechanical equipment."

MORE

"You see, when a tank outfit fights two days it needs the third day to make repairs and do maintenance work on its tanks, but during the heavy fighting when we were sent out to take the pressure off Bastogne, we moved so fast and fought so often that at one time we had only nine out of 54 tanks ready to fight --- but General Patton called for that nine."

Speaking of the famed Fourth Armored Division that spearheads most of General Patton's attacks, Blake said, "We would be on our way up to attack and we'd meet the Fourth Armored Division going back the other way. After this happened a couple of times, we began to get curious because we figured they must be retreating since they were always going the other way.

"Finally we found out how they were operating. A day before we were to attack the Germans, General Patton would select a strongly fortified town about 15 miles behind the German lines and tell his Fourth Armored boys to go out and 'blast Hell out of it.' Those guys would take off in their tanks and fight their way through the Jerry lines to the town and do just what he told them to do. The next day when we hit the Germans the Fourth would fight their way back from behind the German lines and join us on a frontal attack. Boy, that's a real outfit."

On leave from Camp Pickett where he is a patient in the hospital, Lieutenant Blake calls his overseas experience "Failure of a Mission."

It seems that when he went overseas in August 1944, his greatest ambition was to get a certain make of cigarette lighter which is popular with soldiers overseas.

"I never did get one," the lieutenant moaned, "General Patton moved so fast I never had time to stop at a PX."

Unmarried, Blake plans to study law at Howard University, Washington, D.C., when he is discharged. He was a pre-law student there when he was inducted.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Blake, live at the Atlantic City address.

* * * * * * * *

92nd MORTARMAN FINDS
WAR IS WAR ANYWHERE

ALLIED FORCE HEADQUARTERS, Italy---"War is war anywhere," according to Staff Sergeant Duncan M. Slater, 37-year-old Negro mortarman with the 92nd Infantry Division who spent 18 months as an infantryman in the South Pacific and has served six months with the Fifth Army in the Mediterranean Theater.

"Out in the Pacific you got the jungles," Sergeant Slater explained, "and over here you have the mountains. There it's too hot --- here, the mountains are too high."

Heat in the New Hebrides Islands came from two sources when the sergeant was there --- climate and Japs. His unit, the 24th Infantry Regiment, a Regular Army outfit now on Saipan, landed under Japanese fire on a "small rock" with elements of a combat engineer regiment and immediately started building an airfield. Twenty-one days later the field was operating as a base for planes that supported the invasion of Guadalcanal. Japanese "Zeroes" strafed and bombed them regularly.

Fighting Fever Toughest

"But the toughest part of being in the Pacific is fighting fever," Sergeant Slater added.

When he returned to the United States, the sergeant said he received a furlough and then began training at Fort Huachuca, Arizona, for his present assignment.

MORE

"The first day I got into combat in Italy, I saw the difference in fighting here and in the Pacific," he said. "You can see the Germans even in the daytime, but we never saw the Japs.

"One night a Jap patrol attacked an outfit near us and all we could do was shoot at sounds we heard in the jungle. Over here, though, the enemy's weapons are better and more accurate and the German Tiger tank beats anything the Japs had."

As mortar section chief, Sergeant Slater often sets up observation posts right in the front line. From these positions he spots enemy troops and supply movement.

"The other night out OP was pinned down by German mortar fire," said Sergeant Slater, "and we waited half an hour for them to quit shelling. We figured out their position from gun flashes and my mortar section fired 15 rounds into the German positions while I was on my way back to our headquarters.

"But the Germans did me one better because three minutes after I got back they dropped two artillery shells about 20 yards from me."

Sergeant Slater's wife, Mrs. Bertie Slater, lives at 39 Clingman Avenue, Asheville, North Carolina, with their two children, Marelwyn, 18, and Duncan, Jr., 17.

* * * * * * * *

FLYING MAJOR TAUGHT
"ETIQUETTE" TO GERMANS

ATLANTIC CITY, New Jersey---From a substitute chemistry teacher at Dunbar High School in Washington, D.C., to a full-time instructor in etiquette is the story of Major Lee Rayford, of 115 S Street, N.W., Washington, D.C.

Major Rayford's etiquette pupils were the Germans. He punched his lessons home from the pilot's seat of a P-51 fighter plane as a member of the hard-hitting all-Negro 332nd Fighter Group stationed in Italy.

Back from his second tour of duty with the 332nd, and now here at AAF Redistribution Station No. 1 to receive a new duty assignment, Major Rayford has stacked up a total of 83 lead-packed "lessons" against the Germans. Uncle Sam has seen fit to award him the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Air Medal with four oak leaf clusters --- and a Purple Heart.

"I picked up the Purple Heart while returning from a bomber escort mission into Southern Germany," said the major, who also served as a squadron commander. "A flak burst entered one of my cylinders, knocked out my supercharger and smashed my radio. Seven pieces went into my leg."

His engine leaking oil badly, the major streaked for home. He got there none too soon. His crew chief told him later that in a few more seconds his motor would have been frozen tighter than the North Pole.

The ex-school teacher was out of the fight for only three weeks, but he still carries a piece of German flak in his leg. However, he considers one piece of flak not a bad trade for the ammunition dumps, oil tanks, airfields and communication lines which have been blasted by his guns and bombs. And he feels that the 332nd's course in etiquette has borne good results.

"They're learning that it's impolite to drop in on other countries uninvited," smiled the major.

Major Rayford, who expects to return to the teaching profession after the Germans and Japs have learned their lesson, is a graduate of Lincoln University in Pennsylvania.

* * * * * * * *

MORE

ON THE LEDO ROAD-- HELL IS STRAIGHT UP

WASHINGTON, D.C.---"That's Hellgate right there," said the non-com, pointing to the Ledo Road on the map of Eastern Asia. "And the higher you go up the closer to hell you get. That's a strange part of the world alright."

The speaker was Corporal Edward H. Henry, of 210 T Street, N.W., Washington, D.C., who has just returned to this country from work on the "greatest engineering feat in the annals of the Army," the famous Ledo Road which connects India with China. He was a survey corporal with the first Engineer regiment to begin work on the road.

Hellgate is high up in the mountains on the Ledo Road and, according to Corporal Henry, is properly named, for once you enter Hellgate the Ledo Road is hell from there on as it winds its way up in the hills of India.

Among Henry's most interesting experiences on the road is that period during which he was in charge of a labor unit of Bengalese Indians. These men spoke no English, so Corporal Henry had to figure out his own way to convey his orders to the natives until he picked up their language.

"I managed to get along with signs at first but I later picked up enough words to let them know what I wanted. We didn't do much talking, however," smiled the corporal.

Nothing Like Basic Training

Surveying on the Ledo Road was a lot different from basic training at Fort Belvoir, Henry said. Often the instruments had to be disassembled and lowered to narrow ledges by rope before they could be set up for operation.

"It was rough going all the way," stated Henry. "Our instruments were almost ruined because of the humid atmosphere; the leeches had to be burned from our bodies with cigarettes and the Japs bombed us by the clock. That's when I began to like those tea plantations which look like a lot of hedges that grow around your home. They made a good place to take cover in during a strafing raid."

Corporal Henry spent 22 months on the road before he saw an American woman. She was in the Club Marguerita, a Red Cross Club set up on the road. "I didn't get to talk to her for we were just passing through but it sure made me feel good to see one of our girls over there."

Later, when he went back to Calcutta, India, for a rest, Corporal Henry had a letter of introduction to Miss Mildred DePedro, a Red Cross worker there. She was a schoolmate of one of his buddies who was still up on the road. According to Red Cross officials, she is still in the India-Burma Theater.

In speaking of his Bengalese workers, Henry said, "They work hard and can carry amazing loads but they can't do much lifting. A native will carry most any load that you can put on his back, but he cannot lift much more than twenty-five pounds up on his shoulders. Once you get a load up there, however, he will carry it all day."

A product of Armstrong High School in Washington, D.C., where he studied mechanical drawing, one of the first places Henry visited was his old school. He borrowed a book from the school library and has already begun studying. He plans to go back to school under the provisions of the GI Bill of Rights and study engineering.

Asked about the "Ledo Language," which the men created on the road, Corporal Henry told how the men picked up Chinese phrases and converted them to their own use. For instance, the word "molem" in Chinese means understand, and the word "teak" is the equivalent of our OK expression, so the GIs combined the two and came up with, "T.K., I molem," meaning "OK, I understand."

Corporal Henry is now awaiting reassignment here in the United States.

* * * * * * * *

MORE

17 MORE "SHORT SNORTERS"
RETURN FROM OVERSEAS POSTS

MIAMI ARMY AIR FIELD, Miami, Florida---Veterans of nearly three years' duty overseas, 17 Negro soldiers today were able to announce themselves as "Short Snorters." They won their way to membership in this exclusive fraternity by flying across an ocean.

Flown here from Asia and Africa aboard fleet Air Transport Command planes, the following soldiers are now clearing Miami Army Air Field prior to leaving on furloughs:

Staff Sgt. Joseph C. Robinson, 909 25th St., Bessemer, Ala,; Staff Sgt. Odis L. Hitt, Margaret, Ala.; Tech. 5th Gr. Quince A. Jackson, Route 1, Alpine, Ala.; Pvt. Willie Young, 1503 West Savannah Ave., Valdosta, Ga.; Pfc. Andrew Moses, Farmerville, La.; Tech. 4th Gr. Gene C. Hall, 1208 Madison Ave., Baltimore, Md.; Tech. 5th Gr. Leroy Belle, Terrace Place, Belleville, N.J.; Staff Sgt. Augustus Finley, Jr., 511 D St., Washington, D.C.

Sgt. Sam H. Bradley, 612 Third St., Washington, D.C.; Pfc. Joseph L. Shepherd, 635 East 169th St., The Bronx, N.Y.; Pvt. John T. Price, 3521 Beaubien St., Detroit, Mich.; Sgt. Arthur F. Hilton, 438 Pleasant St., Monongahela, Pa.; Tech. 4th Gr. Augustus Warren, 803 Elm St., Marshall, Texas; Tech. 4th Gr. Leon J. Odin, 826 Cambronne St., New Orleans, La.; Tech. 5th Gr. Joseph V. Morris, 830 Merchant St., Coatesville, Pa., and Staff Sgt. Chester Lang, Carrollton, Miss.

Sergeant Robinson was overseas for 30 months, serving with the Quartermaster Corps in the European, Middle Eastern and China-Burma-India Theaters. Sergeant Hitt spent 26 months in the African-Middle East Theater. Technician Fifth Grade Jackson, also with a Quartermaster company, was in China-Burma-India for 2½ years.

Private Young, overseas for 27 months in India and Burma, wears the bronze star on his Asiatic Theater ribbon. Private First Class Moses, assigned to the Engineers, was in the China-Burma-India Theater for 27 months. Technician Fourth Grade Hall, also with the Engineers, was in the African-Middle East Theater for 34 months.

Technician Fifth Grade Belle also was with the Engineers in the African-Middle East Theater and was overseas for 34 months. Sergeant Finley spent 2½ years in the India-Burma Theater with the Quartermaster Corps. Technician Fifth Grade Chandler was with the Quartermaster Corps for 30 months, mostly in India and Burma.

Sergeant Finley's wife also wears the uniform of Uncle Sam's fighting forces. She is Corporal Isavell Finley, with a WAC detachment at Camp Swift, Texas.

Sergeant Bradley, 26, is back in the States after 26 months in Italy. Sergeant Bradley's wife, Elma, and parents, Mr. and Mrs. A.B. Bradley, live at the same Washington address,

"The return trip by air was fast, but it wasn't fast enough," said Private First Class Shepherd. "I was overseas 34 months as a member of the 899th Aviation Engineers in the Middle East-African campaign. It's great to be back again in the good old U.S.A."

Private First Class Price, 26, and Staff Sergeant Arthur F. Hilton, 30, echoed the New Yorker's sentiment. Price and Hilton also were veterans of the 899th. Each was happy to be headed home after 33 months overseas.

Technician Fifth Grade Warren, 29, whose wife, Lola, lives at the Marshall, Texas, address, spent 18 months in Liberia assigned to a malarial control unit of the Medical Corps. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Warren, of RFD 1, Harleton, Texas.

Technician Fourth Grade Odin, 25, son of Philip Odin of the New Orleans, La., address, put in 33 months in Africa with an Aviation Engineer organization. He was a carpenter prior to his enlistment in the Army.

MORE

Technician Fifth Grade Morris, 22, son of Elizabeth Morris of the Coatesville, Pa., address, was on the same assignment with Technician Fourth Grade Odin, and both arrived in Africa and left there together.

Staff Sergeant Lang, 25, son of Mrs. Carrie Lang of Carrollton, Miss., spent 30 months with the Quartermaster Corps in the China-Burma-India Theater.

* * * * * * * *

LITTER BEARER EVACUATES
MEN DESPITE OWN WOUNDS

WITH U.S. FORCES IN BELGIUM---Unmindful of the pain in his back caused by particles of broken glass, Corporal Willie L. Baker, Box 537, Lufkin, Texas, refused medical aid until the last of 1,200 patients had been evacuated from a hospital that had been struck by a German robot bomb, Headquarters, European Theater of Operations, announced today.

Corporal Baker, assigned to the 709th Medical Sanitary Company, was on duty at the hospital with his unit, serving as a litter bearer, when the flying bomb landed.

"Ducking under a table with a doctor when I heard the Robomb falling, was all I remember," Corporal Baker said. "I didn't hear the explosion but everything seemed to be in total darkness.

"I felt the pain in my back and little trickles of blood running down, but I was able to move around alright and I knew there were others who were more in need of help than I, so I just went to work helping them." Baker has been awarded the Purple Heart.

Before entering the Army, May 25, 1942 at Camp Wolters, Texas, Baker was a student at Texas College, Tyler, Texas, where he received his A.B. degree. He received basic training at Camp Claiborne, Louisiana, and came overseas with the 709th in August 1944.

* * * * * * * *

FOOLING JAPS--RESCUING BUDDIES--WINNING AWARDS
ALL IN A DAY'S WORK FOR 93RD INFANTRY DIVISION

WITH THE 93rd INFANTRY DIVISION IN NEW GUINEA---A summary of one day's events in the 93rd Infantry Division reads like the evening edition of a small town newspaper.

Now rounding out its second year in the South and Southwest Pacific, the 93rd Division is typical of one of these small "division cities," found in our Army wherever our troops are located.

Highlight in the division's news this week is the award of a battle star, a campaign ribbon and the Purple Heart to Private First Class McKinley Cartwright, of 1052 Baker Street, Shreveport, Louisiana. The events leading up to his award make an even better story.

It was on Bougainville that Private First Class Cartwright was given the mission of locating a Jap machinegun. He located it all right, but they got the range on him at the same time and he went down in the withering fire.

To make sure that he would stay down a Jap sniper pumped two more bullets into his body and two Nips rushed from their cover to search the "dead" infantryman. However, a thundering artillery barrage forced the Japs to evacuate the area and Cartwright lay motionless on the ground.

Hours later, under cover of darkness, the "dead" infantryman crawled to the Torokina River where he was picked up by some aid men of his company, given first aid and taken to an evacuation hospital.

MORE

Five months later, when he was released from the hospital, he requested duty with his old company and is now serving with it in New Guinea.

Cartwright is a graduate of Central High School in Shreveport where he lived with his mother, Mrs. Edith Reams, at the Baker Street address.

It was all in the day's work when Sergeant James Crittenden, of 784 Rawls St., Enterprise, Alabama, risked his life to save his buddy.

Sergeant Crittenden was one of a group of men on their way to take a swim in the Pacific when someone noticed what appeared to be a human head bobbing in the water. Without a moment's hesitation, Sergeant Crittenden was in the water to the rescue. The victim had become exhausted while trying to swim out to a raft and was sinking rapidly. Sergeant Crittenden towed him in, gave him artificial respiration and took him back to his company.

The promotions and award columns show the advancement of First Lieutenant Edwin Hamilton, of Philadelphia, to the rank of captain, Private Charles Carter, of Port Arthur, Texas, to the grade of sergeant, and Sergeant Robert L. Duke, of Crosett, Arkansas, and Sergeant Robert H. Braden, of Woodbury, Tennessee, to the grade of staff sergeant.

Captain Hamilton, a graduate of Howard University, Washington, D.C., is a veteran of 12 months' service in the Pacific Theater. Employed by the Pennsylvania State Commission on Urban Problems in civilian life, he is the Information and Education Officer for the division.

Sergeant Carter, a veteran of four years' service with the Infantry, is the wearer of the Good Conduct Medal. He also is a member of a rifle paltoon which was recently commended for action against the enemy.

Staff Sergeant Duke has been awarded the Combat Infantryman Badge for meritorious performance in a combat area and Staff Sergeant Braden wears the Expert Infantryman Badge as a token of his proficiency in the use of infantry weapons.

As a student of Vienna High School in Vienna, Georgia, Techincian Fifth Grade George Hill, of 407 Second Street in that city, played a lot of basketball and baseball and as a soldier in New Guinea, he still finds time to do the same.

Sergeant Hill, who in civilian life was a movie projection operator at the Vienna Theater in Vienna, is now the mainstay of his unit's softball team in New Guinea and one of the reasons why they are looked upon as the coming champions of the Islands.

Among those learning new skills and planning for their future use while performing their daily duties are Technician Fourth Grade Arthur C. Bunch, of Milbrook, North Carolina, Technician Fifth Grade Theodore Smith, of Coatesville, Pennsylvania, and Private First Class Marcus G. Lockman, of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Bunch, while assigned to the motor maintenance section of his organization, has served as auto mechanic, tractor mechanic and battalion welder. He is mastering all these fields and plans to use them in civilian life after he is discharged.

Private First Class Lockman was recently crowned lightweight boxing champion of New Guinea and spends his spare time keeping in shape. He plans to continue his fighting career after the war. Before entering the Army, Lockman was boxing instructor at West Virginia State College, Institute, West Virginia. He is now boxing instructor in an infantry regiment within the division.

* * * * * * * *

MORE

SHIP SUNK UNDER POET,
HE PUTS IT IN RHYME

WITH THE 855th ENGINEERS IN NEW GUINEA---Corporal Travis Spencer, of Eatonville, Florida, has just completed a book of poems in New Guinea titled "Poetic Pathway," and if harrowing experiences are helpful in writing poetry, the corporal's book should be a best-seller for he has had more than his share of hair raising moments since being overseas.

One night while at sea, Corporal Spencer decided to write a poem and while he was searching his mind for a good subject, the Japs decided to sink his ship. The ship was sunk before Spencer found his subject and he spent the next 36 hours in the open sea before he was rescued. He tells all about these and other experiences in his book of poems.

Born in the State of Mississippi, Corporal Spencer entered Bethune-Cookman College at Daytona Beach, Florida, in 1940, where he studied until he was inducted into the Army in 1940.

Chosen class poet when he graduated from high school, he won first prize in a college contest for creative writers during his freshman year at college and was elected to the Association of Young Writers and Artists at Birmingham, Alabama. In 1939 he served as a member of the Town Council of Eatonville.

While in Brisbane, Australia, Spencer appeared in recitals before various civic as well as military audiences. He plans to return to school and study writing under the GI Bill of Rights, when he is released from the Army.

* * * * * * * *

BLOWN IN RIVER BY BUZZ-BOMB

WITH U.S. FORCES IN BELGIUM---Private First Class Preston A. Giles, 1811 Hoveland Court, Evanston, Illinois, of the 4401st QM Service Company, recently was awarded the Purple Heart for injuries caused by a buzz-bomb.

"The one that got me seemed to follow me wherever I went," Giles said. "I ran toward the river. Next thing I remembered I was in the water about 20 feet from the shore. I can swim, so I made for the shore and when I reached the river bank, by buddies helped me out of the cold water."

Inducted January 10, 1943 at Fort Sheridan, Illinois, Giles was a former building construction employee. His wife, Elizabeth, a son, Wellington, and daughter, Joy, live at the Hoveland Court address. His father, the Reverend William L. Giles, is pastor of a church in Cincinnati, Ohio.

* * * * * * * *

MEDICS MOVE 15,000 LITTER
PATIENTS IN SIX-WEEK PERIOD

SOMEWHERE IN BELGIUM---The movement by litter of nearly 15,000 wounded soldiers during a six-week period, including the German December counter-offensive, was the outstanding accomplishment of the 723rd Medical Sanitary Company while serving with the 77th Evacuation Hospital in Belgium.

Working in an old building, with steep, winding stairways, when speed was essential, the 15,000 patients were all moved at least twice and many several times in and out of the hospital, and from wards to surgical and X-ray sections and treatment clinics.

Crews assigned to receiving and evacuation sections of the hospital were continually on call during heavy evacuations or admissions, working 18-hour shifts and maintaining a steady pace. Their mission was completed without mishap or accident to any patient.

MORE

Commanded by Captain Sidney P. Kozac, of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, the unit received training at Fort Jackson, South Carolina, in medical sanitation, mosquito and insect control, water purification and drainage and disposal systems. In October 1944 they arrived on the Continent and recently were assigned to Advance Section, Communications Zone, front-line hospitals.

The following are assigned to the company:

ALABAMA: Birmingham--Pvt. Tim Robinson, Jr., 1218 19th Ave.; Pvt. Samuel Maxwell, Route 7, Box 27; Branchville--Pfc. James F. Turnbough; Centerville--Pfc. Randall M. Harmon; Fackler--Pvt. Cupid Steward; Opp--Pfc. Charlie B. Brannon, Route 1; Sheffield--Tech. 5th Gr. John King, Jr., Route 1, Box 168; Uriah--Pfc. Lee R. English.

FLORIDA: Lakeland--1st Lt. Alex Diner, 2204 Fairmont Drive; Avon Park--Pfc. Golden Adam; Bartow--Cpl. John C. Ammons, 444 6th Ave.; Brooker--Pfc. Lee C. Ross, Route 2, Box 3; Chattahoochee--Tech. 5th Gr. Clevon Weslie, Route 1; Dade City--Pfc. Willie B. Southward, General Delivery; Fort Myers--Pfc. Jack Scurry, 412 Lincoln Blvd; Fort Pierce--Tech. 5th Gr. Oscar W. Brooks; Tech. 4th Gr. John H. Johnson, 240 Price St.; Haines City--Pfc. Johnny L. Graham, 69 Ave. J; Hallandale--Pfc. Thomas Williams; Hialeah--Pfc. Willie H. Sanders, Route 1, Box 208; Jacksonville--Pvt. John Jefferson, Jr., 725½ Union St.; Cpl. Willie Johnson, 1439 E. Union St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Thomas L.M. Holman, 1917 Broadway; Pfc. Isiah Goodson, Jr., 1304 Lee St.; Staff Sgt. Elwood L.J. Banks, Route 3, Box 25; Pfc. Joe Albert, 622 Court E, Blodgett Homes; Lloyd--Tech. 5th Gr. Allen Lawrence, Route 2, Box 110; Lynn Haven--Pfc. Willie M. Griffin, 10th St. & La. Ave.; Mariana--Pfc. Lewis McGriff, Route 3, Box 45.

Miami--Pfc. Jule White, 1835 NW 67th St.; Tech. 4th Gr. Ernest Hawkins, 1019 N.W. Place; Micanopy--Tech. 4th Gr. Ruster Peterson, Route 1, Box 45; Midway--Pvt. Buford Monroe; Molino--Tech. 5th Gr. Risten L. Sampson; Tech. 4th Gr. Nehemiah H. Maxey, RFD 4, Box 141; Palatka--Pvt. Hutcherson Henry, 812 N. 11th St.; Palm Beach--Tech. 5th Gr. Herman Days, 1010 21st St.,W.; Palmetto--Sgt. Litt C. Callaway, Route 1, Box 180B; Pensacola--Sgt. Oscar Welch, 601 E. Aragon St.; River Junction--Pvt. Gordon Dawkins, General Delivery; Sarasota--Pfc. Ned J. Mays, 250 15th St.; Cpl. Jack O. Roundtree, 309 W. 12th St.; Shamrock--Cpl. Ola Jones; South Bay--Pfc. Melvin Drayton; Tampa--Pfc. Lovyn Byrd, 2021 Lozona St.; Cpl. Virgil L. Edwards, 212 W. Palm Ave.; Tech. 5th Gr. Rosell Sails, 2917 31st St.; Staff Sgt. Matthew H. Estaras, 2008 11th St.; Pvt. Frank Green; Tech. 4th Gr. Herbert Harris, 2801 Buffalo Ave.; Wildwood--Pfc. M.J. James, Route 1, Box 36.

GEORGIA: Atlanta--Staff Sgt. Mack Carter, 95 Mason Ave.; Pfc. J.H. Williams, Route 9, Box 521; Brunswick--Pfc. Nathaniel Wesley, 2112 Bartow St.; Dawson--Pvt. Wardel Smith, 310 Church St.; Devereaux--Pfc. Henry Roberson, Route 1, Box 7; Fort Valley--Pfc. Louis J. Walker, Route 1, Box 44; Pfc. Roosevelt McCoy; LaGrange--Pfc. Claud Johnson, 709 Depot St.; Lumpkin--Pvt. J.T. Thornton, Route 1A, Box 53; Moultrie--Tech. 5th Gr. Johnnie L. Sabb, 221 6th St., N.W.; Preston--Pfc. Leroy Snelling; Savannah--Pfc. William Priester, 1007 W. 36th St.

LOUISIANA: New Orleans--Pfc. Earl R. Forstall, 2114 St. Ann St.; Thibodaux--Pvt. Olivier Ruffin.

MISSISSIPPI: Greenville--Tech. 5th Gr. Chester Wright, 207 8th St.; Sweatman--Pfc. Bryce Q. Hubbard, Route 2; Tchula--Pfc. Charlie P. Williams, Box 225.

NORTH CAROLINA: Asheville--Pfc. James Burton, 201 Edger St.; Charlotte--Pfc. Odell Thompson, 709 S. McDowell St.; Durham--Tech. 5th Gr. Johnnie Brown, 1503 Pine St.; Goldsboro--Sgt. Marsden R. Everett, 903 E. Elm St.; Raleigh--Pfc. Andrew G. Payne, 122 Lenoir St.; Winston-Salem--Pvt. Robert S. Worthy, 601 Maple St.; Pfc. Alphonzo Hickerson, Route 3, Box 39; Raleigh--Pfc. Reuben Overstreet, Route 3.

NEW JERSEY: Newark--1st Lt. William W. Young, 751 Summer St.

MORE

NEW YORK: New York--Pvt. Robert H. Taylor, 540 W. 159th St.

PENNSYLVANIA: Philadelphia--Pfc. Leon Folks, 809 N. 19th St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Henry A. Johnson, 1444 N. Camac St.

TENNESSEE: Pickesville--Pfc. Coker L. Swafford; Memphis--Pfc. Roosevelt McKinley, 480 Carpenter St.

TEXAS: Childress--Pvt. Wesley Reese, Jr., General Delivery; Forney--Pfc. James L. Malone, P.O. Box 385; Houston--Pfc. Garland E. Mack, 3001 Mt. Rose Blvd.; San Antonio--Staff Sgt. Reginald T. Pickard, 105 Cactus St.; Wiergate--Pfc. Mel J. Coleman.

SOUTH CAROLINA: Aiken--Pfc. Ranie Vouknight, Route 3, Box 7A; Blackstock--Pfc. Flemon Means, Route 1, Box 193; Blaney--Pfc. Banjamin F. Gaultt, Jr. Route 1, Box 90; Columbia--Pfc. Willie J. Curry, 1903 Gervais St.; First Sgt. Georges Rodgers, 2401 Haskell Ave.; Pvt. Robert L. Copper, 1317½ Lyons St.; Cpl. Dave Stephens, 1224 Legree St.; Eastover--Pfc. Richard L. Harris, Route 2, Box 27; Graniteville--Pfc. Warren H. Thomas; Greenville--Pvt. Homer Haygood, 202 Gibbs St.; Hartsville--Pfc. Frances McIver, Route 1; Henderson--Pvt. Leroy Vaughn, 761 Vaughn St.; Hopkins--Pvt. Elmer Jackson, Route 2, Box 47; Martin--Pvt. James Clark, Box 98; New Zion--Pfc. Samuel Epps, Route 1, Box 250; Rembert--Pfc. Eugene Brisbon, Route 1, Box 44.

VIRGINIA: Roanoke--Pfc. Charlie S. Witcher, Box 1815; White Sulphur Springs--Sgt. William M. Franklin.

END

Distribution: Ad.
3-21-45.

25-31267-400

FUTURE RELEASE

Service Record

PLEASE NOTE DATE

WAR DEPARTMENT
Bureau of Public Relations
NEWS DIVISION
Washington, D. C.

FOR RELEASE MONDAY, APRIL 9, 1945

* * * *

village, Mason's patrol, under the command of Second Lieutenant Wilbur E. Ledbetter, of Washington, D.C., surrounded the building and effectively covered all its aproaches. Staff Sergeant Mason then crawled to within 30 feet of the dwelling in the face of withering machinegun fire. He hurled three hand grenades into the building and shifted his position slightly. Out walked five Germans, including an officer, to surrender.

First Lieutenant William E. Porter, of Indianapolis, Indiana, who was awarded the Silver Star for gallantry in action, exposed himself to enemy arms while his company advanced on its objective under a hail of machinegun fire. With his unit pinned to the ground, Lieutenant Porter succeeded in eliminating the machinegun nest, killing the German officer in command, and forcing the gun crews to surrender.

Men of non-combatant units also won their share of awards. Private First Class Walter L. Gillis, of Jonesboro, North Carolina, a member of a medical detachment, administered first aid to members of an attacking platoon while intense enemy fire created havoc with the terrain. Although he was in full view of the Germans, he did not falter in his efforts to see that all who needed medical attention were treated. He then assisted in evacuating the casualties.

"Magnificent" is the way Major General Edward M. Almond, Commander of the 92nd, describes his division's artillery. Time and time again, "Buffalo" infantrymen, sweating out a tight spot, have seen perfectly placed artillery fire shatter hostile emplacements and break up repeated and determined German counter-attacks. "Boy, that artillery was great," said many 92nd doughboys upon return from skirmishes with the enemy.

General of the Army George C. Marshall was the first five-star general to inspect the 92nd Division. In an official statement, the Army Chief of Staff said that what he had seen in Italy was "very reassuring."

* * * * * * * *

93RD DIVISION ORDNANCE OUTFIT WINS MERITORIOUS SERVICE UNIT PLAQUE

WITH THE 93RD INFANTRY DIVISION IN NEW GUINEA---Presentation of the Meritorious Service Unit Plaque to the Division Ordnance Company, awarded only to units which have demonstrated superior performance and outstanding devotion to duty, was announced today the the Commanding General of the 93rd Infantry Division.

The Negro Ordnancemen established an exemplary record in maintenance by keeping vehicles and weapons in operation under trying conditions and over long periods of time. First Lieutenant Virgil B. Fluegel of Charles City, Iowa, who entered the Army as a private in 1942, and worked his way up through the ranks, assumed command of the company a few months ago. He wears the Asiatic Pacific Campaign Medal with two battle participation stars, in addition to the wreath insignia authorized by the latest award.

Other members of the company are:

ALABAMA: Anniston--Tech. 5th Gr. Harvey L. Herndon, 1527 Mulberry St.; Atmore--Tech. 4th Gr. Willie L. Lambert; Birmingham--Tech. 4th Gr. Henry Jackson, 1210 Cahaba St.; Coatopa--Tech. 4th Gr. Demus Ingram, Route 1; Gadsen--Tech. 4th Gr. Oscar P. Hart, 951 Avenue G; Gardendale--Pfc. Robert Denson; Montgomery--Tech. 4th Gr. Albert Tally, Jr., 23 Gray St.

CALIFORNIA: Los Angeles--Tech. Sgt. Joseph E. Bronson, 828 E. 46th St.; Tech. 4th Gr. Laurence J. Sullers, 1414 Wall St.; Tech. 5th Gr. B.J. Toney, 444 E. 48th St.; Pvt. Louis D. Campbell, 10412 Grape St.; San Diego--Tech. 3rd Gr. Tennyson L. Lee, 3117 Oceanview Blvd.

FLORIDA: Jacksonville--Tech. 5th Gr. Harold A. Jones, 1135 Budier St.

MORE

GEORGIA: Atlanta--Tech. 4th Gr. Lilton Weems, 1140 Ridge Ave., S.W.; Pembrook--Pvt. James C. McMoore; Waycross--Tech. 5th Gr. Arnold Jenkins, 904 Highsmith St.

INDIANA: Indianapolis--Tech. 4th Gr. James E. Evans, 735½ S. Capitol St.; Marion--Tech. 5th Gr. Harry K. Wallace, 3605 Carey Ave.

LOUISIANA: Bastrop--Pvt. Joseph L. Crowder; Bunkie--Tech. 5th Gr. Clarence Gaines, 220 Spruce St.; Ethelsville--Pvt. Rufus L. Hudgins; Monroe--Staff Sgt. Hosie Davis, 416 N. 25th St.; New Orleans--Tech. Sgt. Ernest Wharton, 1528 Clouet St.; Tech. 3rd Gr. Andrew Thomas, 1919 Allen St.; Scotlandville--Tech. 5th Gr. Warren G.H. Moore; Waterproof--Pfc. Morris Moten.

MARYLAND: Appeal--Tech. 3rd Gr. Thomas E. Gross; Baltimore--Tech. 3rd Gr. Joseph Connick, 1530 E. Madison St.; Sgt. Thomas H. Imes, 544 Bergundy St.; Severna Park--Tech. 3rd Gr. Herbert B. Miller; Sunderland--Tech. 4th Gr. James Kent.

MISSISSIPPI: Holly Springs--Tech. 4th Gr. Ivy C. McKinney; Petal--Tech. 5th Gr. A.D. Gordon; Waynesboro--Tech. 5th Gr. Wilbert F. Jordon.

NORTH CAROLINA: Wilson's Mills--Tech. Sgt. Quincey C. Watson.

OHIO: Cincinnati--Tech. 3rd Gr. Walter E. Robinson, 856 Lincoln Ave.; Tech. 5th Gr. George W. Malone, 415 John St.

PENNSYLVANIA: Philadelphia--Staff Sgt. Courtland W. Greene, 129 W. Rittenhouse St.; Sgt. Charles A. McQueen, 1207 S. 19th St.; Tech. 4th Gr. James Burden, 2310 Hutchinson St.

TENNESSEE: Belfast--Tech. 3rd Gr. James A. Williams; Chattanooga--Tech. 5th Gr. John L. Clay, 1025 Blackford St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Arthur A. Wilkins, RFD 2, Box 333; Tech. 5th Gr. John P. Franklin, 1003 E. 4th St.; Pfc. Forrest W. King, 815 W. Main St.; Memphis--Sgt. Milburn H. Russell, 606 Edith Ave.; Tech. 4th Gr. Daniel T. Roberts, 1329 Kentucky St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Cecil A. Kent, 1052 Shaw St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Willie Neely, 1664 Pecan St.; Nashville--Tech. 5th Gr. William E. Bransford, 2407 Heiman St.; Tech. 5th Gr. James C. Merritt, 625 Middleton Ave.; Spring Hill--Tech. 4th Gr. James H. Watson.

TEXAS: Austin--Pvt. Percy L. Robinson, 2000 Comal St.; Bellville--Tech. 4th Gr. Lee O.F. Johnson, Route 1; Fort Worth--Tech. 5th Gr. Oscar C. Raleigh, 3507 Horn St.; Galveston--Tech. 5th Gr. Willie Jackson, 3204 Avenue C; Galiad--Tech. 5th Gr. Marshall R. Taylor; Giddings--Tech. 5th Gr. Ernest H. Thurman; San Antonio--Master Sgt. Walter C. Middleton, 430 Dawson St.; Pfc. William E. Walsh, 2302 Wyoming St.

VIRGINIA: Newport News--Cpl. James T. Prigeon, 759 23rd St.; Norfolk--Tech. 5th Gr. Gilmore Crump, 2229 Maltby Ave.; Portsmouth--Tech. 3rd Gr. James L. Smith, 725 Edwards St.

WEST VIRGINIA: Bolivar--Tech. 5th Gr. William Twyman; Tralee--Pfc. Mervin E. McKenzie.

* * * * * * * *

DOUGHBOY AT WALTER REED
LOST LEG FIGHTING NAZIS

WASHINGTON, D.C.---His missing right leg bearing testimony to the action he has seen, Private First Class Tom Robinson, 92 Park Lane, Cambridge, Maryland, machinegunner of the 92nd Infantry Division in Italy, leaned forward in his bed at Walter Reed General Hospital and told how he was wounded by a German bazooka shell at an Italian city. He lay hiding for five days in the captured city without medical aid until his buddies retook the town and sent him to the hospital.

MORE

"We were supposed to attack on Christmas Day," Robinson said in beginning his story. "But something went wrong and the orders were changed. The Heinies seemed to know every move we were making because when they captured an Allied soldier the next day, the first thing they asked him was why we had not attacked on Christmas Day. On the 26th of December we were due to attack at seven o'clock but Jerry evidently knew about it, for he assaulted us at six.

"That was the day I got hit. I had set up my light machinegun in a little stone house at the end of the street. My gun commanded the entire street and I figured I had a good position because it was about the only way Jerry could come. I hadn't figured on the church steeple off to my left, however. A German bazooka man sneaked up a draw behind the church and climbed up into the steeple. I didn't see him until the rocket had hit. Just as I fell, I looked up and spied him in the steeple.

"I got it in the leg and at the same time the Jerry attack began and our troops had to withdraw leaving me and my platoon sergeant trapped in the house. The Jerries took the town and we hid for five days. Some Italians gave us bread and wine, and that kept us going until the Yanks retook the town. Then I was sent to the hospital."

The son of Mrs. Carrie Butts of the Cambridge address, Robinson is recuperating at Walter Reed after having his right leg amputated. He is now studying motor mechanics in preparation for the future.

Inducted in April 1942, he went overseas in March 1944 as a member of the 366th Infantry Regiment which subsequently joined the 92nd Division.

In addition to the Purple Heart, Robinson is authorized to wear the Combat Infantryman Badge and two battle stars on his European Theater of Operations Ribbon.

* * * * * * * *

INSEPARABLE BUDDIES QUIT
POST IN PACIFIC FOR OCS

U.S. ARMY HEADQUARTERS, PACIFIC OCEAN AREAS---Two Negro soldiers who grew up together, chummed around as civilians and have been inseparable in four years of Army life, have realized a long-cherished ambition by qualifying for Officers' Candidate School

They are Staff Sergeant Charles E. Price, Jr., and Technician Fourth Grade Arthur E. Pryde, Jr., both from Brooklyn, New York, who were in an anti-aircraft battalion under Lieutenant General Robert C. Richardson, Jr.'s Pacific Ocean Areas command.

"It's been teamwork with us right along," Pryde said, as the two GIs were 'sweating out' their plane ride to Fort Benning, Georgia, the Infantry School. "We were reared together, attended the same grammar school classes, went to Alexander Hamilton High in Brooklyn together and have shared the same ideas about life--and the Army."

They have the same middle name--Edward. Their last names begin with a "P." Both are juniors. Oddly enough, Price's Army serial number is 20266762, and Pryde's 20266763.

Price, 26, and Pryde, 27, joined the National Guard in New York on December 2, 1939. A premonition that something "big" was going to happen led them to enlist together in Uncle Sam's Army on January 13, 1941.

"We had one fixed purpose in mind," Pryde said. "We hoped one of these days to become officers.

Overseas since June 16, 1942, Price and Pryde admit they crave action, but when Lieutenant Colonel Wilbur Lucas, Battalion Commanding Officer, recommended them for OCS, and their orders followed suit--their joy knew no bounds.

MORE

Before going to OCS, Price will visit his father at 522 Jefferson Avenue, Brooklyn; Pryde, his mother, Mrs. Edna Pryde, at 831 Putnam Avenue, Brooklyn.

"We've got to live up to our names," Pryde remarked smilingly. "It's the 'Pryde' we've taken in this Army and the 'Price' in patience to get this crack at OCS."

* * * * * * * *

G-2 "SLEPT" TWO JERRY GUNS
BUT THE HOUSE HAD TO BE TAKEN

WASHINGTON, D. C.---The attack was moving along as planned. All except that little house sitting out there in the vale—that little house had to go. G-2 had figured it out that one Jerry machinegun was in the house. Just one. And the little house had to go.

Quickly the sergeant selected ten men—they knew the orders—go out and get that machinegun. Quickly they deployed and moved out.

They had crawled within 75 yards of the little house when the building suddenly became a "little hell."

A machinegun opened up from the east corner of the objective—the man nearest Sergeant Marion C. George went down, shot through the chest. Another machinegun spat lead from the doorway and the lead scout hit the dirt as a bullet passed through his shoe. A third gun joined the staccato chorus and a bullet whined its way through Texas-born Staff Sergeant Knoxie Hoyt's field jacket as he flattened out for cover. The one machinegun in the little house had turned out to be three—with plenty gunners. G-2 (Army Intelligence) had missed two.

The order came down to evacuate. It was a good place to get out of—if you could.

As the pinned-down Yanks started to withdraw, snipers hidden on both flanks of the little house began peppering them with rifle fire.

The above experience was just one of many that Sergeant Marion C. George, of Whiteville, North Carolina, reminiscenses about as he lies in bed at Walter Reed General Hospital in Washington and relives his fighting days in Italy with the 92nd Infantry Division.

Shot in the left arm by a sniper during a German counter-attack at Gallicano, Italy, Sergeant George is now recuperating at Walter Reed after having his left arm amputated as the result of the sniper's bullet.

"We finally got everybody out of there alive," said Sergeant George. "But it wasn't an easy job.

"The battalion chaplain crawled up and got the man who was shot through the chest. I still don't know how that chaplain made it. They gave him the Silver Star, I heard, and he sure had it coming."

A member of the 370th Infantry Regiment of the 92nd Division, Sergeant George fought his way with the "Buffalo" division from the Arno River up through the stubborn Gothic Line into the Serchio Valley before he was wounded.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Marion C. George of Whiteville, North Carolina, Sergeant George was inducted into the Army in April 1943, and sent overseas in July of last year.

Wounded the day after Christmas, he returned to the States in February where he had his arm amputated at Walter Reed. In addition to the Purple Heart, he also has been awarded the Combat Infantryman Badge and a bronze star for battle participation.

MORE

Undaunted by the loss of his arm, the young infantryman is now studying hard under Army supervision at Walter Reed to further equip himself for a useful civilian career.

* * * * * * * *

GRIDIRON TRAINING SAVED
HIS LIFE, SERGEANT AVERS

ATLANTIC CITY, New Jersey---First Sergeant Otha B. Harris, 25-year-old Negro construction chief from Clarksdale, Mississippi, owes his life to the fact that he played football in high school and college.

Back at AAF Redistribution Station Number 1 here for reassignment after 18 months of airfield construction work in New Guinea and the Netherlands East Indies, Harris displayed a mean-looking, one-inch scar on his forehead.

"That's what I got when I made a dive for my foxhole and connected with a piece of coral reef," he explained.

"The Japs were bombing one end of our airfield while we were patching up the other," he went on. "All of a sudden they came toward us. I dove for a foxhole but the three guys I was with weren't so lucky. Shrapnel got all three of them. All I got was this scar."

Overseas, Harris had charge of 223 men whose work it was to build new airfields and rebuild damaged ones as the Japs were pushed out of each island stronghold.

"We established some sort of record," said Sergeant Harris, "when we built an airstrip and taxiing strip on one of those islands all in 30 days. Man, we really did work."

Now that he's back in the States, Harris only wants two things--he wants the war to end soon and he wants to go back to college under the provisions of the GI Bill or Rights.

Son of Mrs. Hattie Harris of 617 Grant Street, Clarksdale, Sergeant Harris entered the service in April 1941. He wears the Good Conduct Medal, the Asiatic-Pacific Theater Ribbon, and the American Defense Ribbon.

* * * * * * * *

JEEP DEADLIER THAN NAZI
PLANES, PILOT CONTENDS

ATLANTIC CITY, New Jersey---The jeep is deadlier than the Messerschmitt in the opinion of Lieutenant William H. Walker, P-51 pilot with the all-Negro 332nd Fighter Group in Italy, and he offers a broken shoulder and a trip back to the States in a hospital ship as proof.

Now here at AAF Redistribution Station Number 1 to receive a new duty assignment, the lieutenant had "jeeped" over bad, mountainous roads to pick up a fellow pilot who had crash-landed on the beach. Coming back, the jeep capsized and Lieutenant Walker's right shoulder was broken in two places.

"The crashed pilot was unhurt," said Lieutenant Walker, whose wife, Viola, lives at 328 North Illinois Avenue, Carbondale, Illinois, " and he'd been up there where the ME-109s roam. Looks like that proves my contention.

A member of the famed 99th Fighter Squadron before it became part of the 332nd, Lieutenant Walker spent 15 months in Italy and had completed 28 combat missions before being laid up by his accident. It took but one mission--his first--to impress upon him the fact that a good pilot has eyes in the back of his head and can see out of his ears.

MORE

"I was guilty of a great sin," he said. "I got lost from my formation. My only excuse is that there was a bad haze around the target area."

Dive-bombing an installation in the mountains of Northern Italy, he hardly noticed the tracer fire and bursts of flak as he released his bombs and pulled up. He was intent upon making a success of his first job. As he regained altitude he realized he'd lost his wingman. He climbed back upstairs above the haze, looked around, and realized he lost the entire formation.

"I took a heading and hightailed it for home," he said. "Right then I was about the lonesomest boy in the world."

A 1937 graduate of Southern Illinois University, Lieutenant Walker spent three years as a teacher at the Douglas Junior High School in Marion, Illinois, before entering the service.

* * * * * * * *

NEGRO PORT MEN DID PART
IN CROSSING OF THE RHINE

WITH U.S. FORCES IN FRANCE---Members of the 657th Port Company, an all-Negro unit of American troops at a large French port in the Normandy Section, worked day and night for weeks unloading supplies used in the drive across the Rhine River.

Activated in April 1943, at New Orleans, Louisiana, the company served in England before the invasion and helped load the boats for the trip across the Channel. Shipped to France shortly after D-Day, they have been unloading supplies at the port ever since.

The men were put on a round-the-clock schedule many weeks ago as the Army began its huge task of building up front-line stocks in anticipation of the present drive. They have unloaded thousands of tons of artillery and mortar shells, hundreds of tanks, guns and trucks from ships and loaded them onto trucks and trains for the combat areas.

* * * * * * * *

PORTMEN CONTINUE VITAL WORK
BEGUN PRIOR TO BIG INVASION

WITH 261ST PORT COMPANY, France---Immediately prior to D-Day in Normandy, when the entire world awaited the titanic invasion soon to be launched, the 261st Port Company proceeded secretly to an English south coast town on a special seven-day assignment.

There, they loaded landing ships, infantry assault boats, and numerous other craft with carefully planned supplies to sustain invading troops on the Normandy beachheads.

Now, at a key port in France, they are unloading thousands of tons of vital war materials from bulging freighters and swinging them swiftly on to trains and trucks bound for the front.

Soldiers of the company, working through all kinds of weater on round-the-clock schedules, load the trains and vans at the dockside. Guns, clothing, food, medical equipment and all the vast armory of weapons and equipment used by America's mechanized armies are included in the shipments.

Activated as part of the 499th Port Battalion at New Orleans, Louisiana, in August 1943, the company trained at New Orleans and Newport News, Virginia. It arrived at Southampton, England, in December 1943.

* * * * * * * *

MORE

NEGRO MEDICS SET UP FIRST
MEDICAL DEPOT IN BELGIUM

WITH U.S. FORCES IN BELGIUM---Working 24 hours a day despite robomb attacks, the 709th Medical Sanitary Company set up and operated the Medical Intransit Storage Point, nucleus for the largest medical base depot on the Continent.

Handling approximately 5,000 tons of medical supplies in the three months of its existence, the M.I.S.P. received and recorded requisitions for medical supplies from all general hospitals in Advance Section, Communications Zone. The filled requisitions were removed from the hospital trains at the M.I.S.P., where the units were contacted and received their supplies. The greater portion of medical supplies received were consigned to the First and Ninth United States Armies. When in carload lots, the supplies were either unloaded and forwarded by truck convoy, or re-routed to their proper destination.

Upon completion of duties at the M.I.S.P., the first installation of its kind in Belgium, the 709th was divided into two detachments. One was sent to the 77th Evacuation Hospital, and the other moved to a general hospital, where they served as litter bearers.

It was while the latter detachment was serving with the general hospital that the company received its first casualties from enemy activity. Three members of the unit were killed and 15 wounded when a robomb exploded in their area.

Despite the hazard, the men worked diligently in evacuating the hospital of approximately 1,200 patients in about two hours. After the removal of the hospital to another location, litter bearers not wounded seriously enough to require hospitalization continued to serve in the same capacity under greatly increased enemy activity.

Broken down into detachments, the personnel of the 709th is now serving as ambulance drivers, litter bearers, and prisoner of war guards in various parts of Belgium.

First Lieutenant Richard W. Stewart, Jr., 1306 Dawson Street, San Antonio, Texas, is the commanding officer of the company. It is composed of all-Negro personnel, including officers.

* * * * * * * *

COMMENDED FOR SUPERVISION OF HEAVY ENGINEER MATERIEL

WITH U.S. FORCES, France---Staff Sergeant James C. Stevenson, of Marshall, Texas, has been commended by his regimental commanding officer for his supervision of engineer heavy equipment on construction work in France.

The commendation reads, in part: "Sergeant Stevenson has supervised the maintenance and operation of engineer heavy equipment on important construction jobs assigned to this unit. He has worked under the most trying conditions and the most adverse weather. He is responsible for the operation and maintenance of more the 100 Ordnance and Engineer items. The low turn-in and replacement of parts has been largely due to his thorough attention to this assigned job."

The unit has constructed railroads, rail marshalling yards, hospitals, prisoner of war stockades, and bridges. It is a part of the U.S. Supply Forces in France which struggle continuously to eliminate the problem of getting supplies to front-line troops.

* * * * * * * *

MORE

TRUCKERS WHO HAULED RANGERS
NOW SUPPLY U.S. SEVENTH ARMY

WITH THE 3424TH QUARTERMASTER TRUCKING COMPANY IN FRANCE---Veterans of North Africa and the Anzio beachhead in Italy, men of this trucking unit have been getting the supplies up to Seventh Army soldiers on the Western Front when all other transportation bogged down.

Although many soldiers of this Negro unit saw snow for the first time here in northeastern France, they came through the emergency with few accidents and with a record for getting supplies through. The heavy snowfall blew the roof off the officers' quarters and stopped the railroads, but the trucks ploughed on. Hauls took so long that the men had to stay in the truck cabs for three and four days at a stretch.

The unit has been living up to its own record. Landing with Western Task Force in Africa in November 1942, the men drove the Rangers in their daring sorties around the enemy flanks. They drove a total of four million miles in Africa, and won a commendation from Lieutenant General George S. Patton, Jr.

Transferring to the Anzio beachhead, the men averaged 21 round trips a day carrying ammunition under artillery fire. After Anzio the unit participated in the invasion of the French Riviera. It was the first truck unit to arrive in Marseilles.

Members of the unit boast six Battle Stars on their Campaign ribbons. They are:

ALABAMA: Ashford--Tech. 5th Gr. G.L. Jarrett, Route 1; Belaice--Cpl. James Powell, Route 1, Box 16a; Bankhead--Tech. 5th Gr. Tom O. Franks; Demopolis--Cpl. Richard G. Willis, Box 152; Duncanville--Pvt. Solomon T. Yarborough, Route 1, Box 5; Florence--Pvt. James L. Woods, 934w College St.; Leesburg--Sgt. George W. Pinson, Route 1; Montgomery--Tech. 5th Gr. Legistine R. Larkins, 111 Maggie St.; Mobile--Pvt. Damon Norwood, 1557 Springhill Ave.; Pvt. John W. Thomas, 754 St. Lawrence St.; North Birmingham--Pfc. John H. Johnson; Riderwood--First Sgt. Willie Johnson, Route 1, Box 4; West Blocton--Pvt. Benjamin F. Holmon; Magazine--Pfc. Leonard Bason.

ARKANSAS: Anseey--Tech. 4th Gr. Foncy C. Sims; Little Rock--Pvt. George R. Clark, Jr., 1802 Rock St.

CONNECTICUT: Brandford--Cpl. John W. Beamon, 37 West End Ave.; Hartford--Pfc. Julian P. Cobb, 50 Suffield St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Willie Hart, Jr., 135 Aven St.; Cpl. Arthur J. Murray, 60 Loomis St.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA: Washington--Pvt. John E. Briscoe, 62 Massachusetts Ave., N.W.; Pvt. George C. Rolley, 719 Delaware Ave., S.W.

FLORIDA: Crystal River--Tech. 5th Gr. Claude Broocks; Leesburg--Tech. 4th Gr. Robert D. Boston, 215 S. East St.

GEORGIA: Atlanta--Pfc. J.B. Williams, 90 Chester Ave.; Covington--Pvt. Rillous Fuller, Route 2, Box 225; Douglas--Cpl. Collins Paulk, Route 2, Box 37; Rome--Staff Sgt. Charlie D. Turner, RFD 7, Box 69; Swainsboro--Pfc. R.G. Williams; Warrenton--Cpl. Willie P. Johnson, Route 2, Box 48.

INDIANA: South Bend--Pvt. Joe E. Matthews, 429½ S. Chapin St.

ILLINOIS: Chicago--Pvt. Innis Y. Turner, 2661 W. Warren St.

KENTUCKY: Benham--Pvt. James Harris, Box 16.

LOUISIANA: Lake Charles--Tech. 5th Gr. Fred Harris, Route 1, Box 24.

MASSACHUSETTS: Lawrence--Tech. 5th Gr. Harold E. Mann, 409 Lowell St.; New Bedford--Tech. 5th Gr. Joseph L. Rose, 89 Acushnet Ave.

MORE

MARYLAND: Baltimore--Pvt. James Bailey, 135 N. Chapel St.; Georgetown--Tech. 5th Gr. Martin M. Reed.

MICHIGAN: Detroit--Pvt. Arthur H. Hill, 547 E. Palmer St.; Tech. 4th Gr. Leonard C. Lawhorne, 2250 Superior St.

MISSISSIPPI: Anguilla--Sgt. Wilbur Files, Box 72; Biloxi--Pvt. Fermen K. Sharp, Box 64; Braxton--Tech. 5th Gr. Gray E. Cox; Canton--Sgt. Clytie W. Coleman; Tech. 5th Gr. J.C. Applewhite; Gulfport--Pfc. Willard Stallworth; Port Gibson--Cpl. Joseph Woods; Prairie--Staff Sgt. Eli Thompson; Sardis--Pfc. A.B. Brooks, Route 1; Sunflower--Pfc. Willie McNeal, Route 1, Box 102; Vicksburg--Staff Sgt. Mitchell Hunter.

MISSOURI: Kansas City--Tech. 5th Gr. Henry Bronson, 1514 E. 18th St.; Pvt. Robert M. Kemp, 1509 E. 10th St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Herman L. Matthews, 1414 Cypress St.; Neelyville--Tech. 5th Gr. Richard Duckworth; St. Louis--Pvt. Richard E. Gaines, 2324 Spruce St.

NORTH CAROLINA: Kinston--Pvt. Johnnie Graham, 315 Lincoln St.; Rockingham--Pvt. Lacy J. McRae, Route 1, Box 38; Rocky Mount--Pvt. Edward J. Dickens, 309 Pennsylvania Ave.; Wilmington--Tech. 5th Gr. John J. Murphy, 1419 Church St.; Wilson--Pvt. Dolly O. Brown, Jr., 500 E. Vance St.

NEW JERSEY: Trenton--Pvt. Christopher N. Conway; Sgt. Alfred Goolsby, 28 Plum St.; Tech. 5th Gr. William L. Knight, 59 Gordon Ave.

NEW YORK: Bronx--Pvt. Henry J. Pankey, 248 W. 136th St.; Brooklyn--Tech. 5th Gr. Samuel Willis, 128 Bay 19th St.; New York City--Tech. 5th Gr. Theodore E. Failton, 309 E. 99th St.; Tech. 5th Gr. Theodore L. Kennedy, 413 W. 144th St.; Pvt. Fred Murphy, 243 W. 137th St.; Pvt. Thomas W. Oates, 224 W. 140th St.; Tech. Sgt. James A. Riley, 53 Hamilton Terrace; Tech. 5th Gr. Elmo Rivera, 66 E. 113th St.; Cpl. Arthur A. Robinson, 2816 8th Ave.; Sgt. James Wilson, 20 W. 118th St.

OHIO: Cleveland--Pvt. William O. Boyd, 2324 Garden Court; Pvt. Alexander Howard, 6215 Hawthorne Ave.; Columbus--Tech. 5th Gr. Daniel L. Collins, 300 S. Oakley Ave.; Zaneville--Sgt. Dana J. Chandler, 1312 Keen St.

OKLAHOMA: Muskogee--Tech. 5th Gr. Booker Rider, General Delivery.

PENNSYLVANIA: Philadelphia--Cpl. Raymond Morelle, 1626 Ellsworth St.

SOUTH CAROLINA: Anderson--Pvt. Roosevelt Brown RFD 1; Andrews--Pfc. Floyd Ervin, Route 1; Belton--Tech. 5th Gr. Marion Putnam, Route 2; Bradley--Cpl. Wade S. Perrin, Route 1, Box 50B; Camden--Tech. 5th Gr. Ezelle Spann, Route 3, Box 96; Compens--Pvt. James Littlejohn, General Delivery; Fairfax--Tech. 4th Gr. Mannie C. Cohen, Jr.; Kingstree--Sgt. Jesse W. Fulton; Jonesville--Tech. 5th Gr. William O. Gaffney, Box 122; McBee--Pfc. Lon C. Harris, General Delivery; Orangeburg--Pvt. John B. Emery, Route 2; Sumter--Pvt. Thomas M. Pringle, Jr., Route 3, Box 168A.

TENNESSEE: Cedargrove--Pfc. Comell Hutch, Route 4.

TEXAS: San Antonio--Pvt. Lorenzo McCall, 1606 Sherman St.; Chapel Hill--Tech. 5th Gr. Hamlis Fairchild.

VIRGINIA: Halifax--Pvt. Garland M. Smith; Norfolk--Pvt. Willie B. Morris, 903 E. Olney Rd.; Richmond--Pvt. Linwood A. Queen, 418 Catherine St.; Scottsville--Tech. 5th Gr. Lucheon C. Carter, Route 3; Stony Creek--Pfc. Leroy Shands, RFD 1; Vienna--Tech. 5th Gr. Roscoe E. Brown.

WEST VIRGINIA: Dry Branch--Pvt. Lloyd Carter; Franklin--Pfc. James A. Willis.

END

Distribution: Ad.
4-3-45

FUTURE RELEASE

PLEASE NOTE DATE

Service Records

WAR DEPARTMENT
Bureau of Public Relations
NEWS DIVISION
Washington, D. C.

FOR RELEASE MONDAY, APRIL 30, 1945

* * * *

were Jerries still in front of them, they wanted to go ahead even after they had captured and cleaned out all sections of the town that they had been assigned.

Private First Class Harold Chandler, 359 W. 116th Street, New York City, who took a break to private from staff sergeant, volunteered to go and get an unknown number of Germans that had been spotted in dug-in positions near a house.

Armed with grenades and his M-1, Chandler advanced alone while his men covered him. Six Jerries, armed with Burke guns, gave up and came back with Chandler.

Private First Class Vincent R. Malveaux, who took a reduction from first sergeant to private, drew praise from his platoon leader for cool-headed work in helping to get the men out from under a mortar barrage. Malveaux, who lives at 5034 Just Street, N.E., Washington, D.C., was an attorney in the Capital before entering the service.

310th Regiment

Negro troops assigned to A Company of the 310th Regiment won the praise and respect of officers and enlisted men fighting with them in the Remagen bridgehead.

They are referred to as "the fightingest sons-a-guns you ever saw."

Lieutenant Millard G. Durham, their company commander from Steger, Illinois, says, "The colored troops, in all engagements, proved to be as courageous and aggressive as the veterans of any other company.

"Their first engagement was a terrific small arms battle. They never faltered. On the contrary, they were hard to control. Their sole desire seemed to be to close with the enemy, regardless of the scheme of maneuver. It was difficult to hold them on the company objective when there was an enemy in front of them."

"Shortage of ammunition was the only thing that stopped them from going too far ahead when two squads of the platoon spearheaded an attack at Wiese," says Lieutenant Robert R. Dobson, platoon leader from Charlotte, North Carolina.

After fighting for two days the platoon suffered its first serious casualty when one member was killed in a fire fight.

The way the men themselves size it up is best expressed by one of them, who said, "We always did want to get up here at the front. It kind of makes you feel good inside."

311th Regiment

The Negro platoon assigned to G Company of the 311th Regiment also has done well.

Lieutenant Lee Luther, their leader from 199 Elm Street, Ilion, New York, remarked, "They came through their baptism of fire in great shape. Sure they were scared at first, but who isn't!"

At the end of a week's fighting one had been killed and nine wounded out of the original platoon strength of 43.

Private George Hutchinson, of Brenham, Texas, who had been overseas for 18 months, said, "The Infantry is a heck of a lot better than some of the service outfits we have been in. Here a man's a man. Dangerous as Hades too."

Already they have taken shots at the Germans, killed some, captured some and routed others.

MORE

Private First Class Osborne B. Blanton, 1212 Delores Street, Fort Worth, Texas, recounted, "It was January 6. Boy, I'll never forget that date. That's when they asked for volunteers. First General Eisenhower asked, then General Lee asked, and finally they got around to asking me. I snapped it up in a hurry. There are plenty more who would like to get in the Infantry."

Private Jack (Pop) Walling, from Forkton, Kentucky, at 36 the "oldest" man in the platoon, said, "All we dread is those 88s--and that's all of us. But put this down, will you? I was going through this town and saw a Jerry stick his head out of a window. That was enough for me. I fired a clip at him. That was too much for Jerry."

Most of the men of G Company, fifth platoon, have had from 14 to 24 months' service overseas. All have received the coveted Combat Infantryman Badge and commendation from the regimental commander, Colonel Chester M. Willingham, of 308 E. Temple Street, College Park, Georgia.

Captain George Foelsch, their company commander from 22-63 21st Street, Astoria, Long Island, said, "They're making out all right. I told the colonel if he had any more I'll surely take them."

Private Willie Banerman, from Route 1225, Bargas, North Carolina, is impressed with his company commander. "That Captain Foelsch," he said, "is a tough man but a fair man. He always has a map and a compass in one hand and a pistol in the other. He walks right down the road with bullets going all around him. Sort of reminds me of Captain Gandy, colored company CO of the 92nd Division."

Among other Negro Infantrymen in the platoon are Pvt. Lee Robinson, 1000 N. 18th St., St. Louis, Mo.; Pvt. Warren H. Lyle, 203 Hickory St., Orange, N.J.; Pvt. James Everett, 5521 Swiss Ave., Dallas, Texas; Pvt. Abraham Harris, 1015 Springfield Ave., Baltimore, Md.; Pvt. Richard Scott, 51 Seaton Place, N.W., Washington, D.C.; Pvt. Henry Williams, 2134 Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.; Pvt. Jesse Bailey, 630 Fifth St., Birmingham, Ala.; Pvt. George Bolling, 603 Herald Ave., Bridgeport, Conn.; Pfc. Lawrence Jones, 42 6½ St., N.W., Washington, D.C.

* * * * * * * *

LIEUTENANT IN ONE COMMAND,
HONORARY MAJOR IN ANOTHER

WITH U.S. FORCES IN THE PHILIPPINES---First Lieutenant Sylvester G. Sheppard, 2026 Jefferson Avenue, Davenport, Iowa, who led his 608th Port Company into the Philippines on D-Day ahead of the infantry, has the unusual distinction of being a first lieutenant in one command and a major in another.

As a first lieutenant, Lieutenant Sheppard commands the veteran 608th Port Company of the battle weary 394th Port Battalion which has seen action from the plains of Mount Isa near Darwin, Australia, up through the Papuan Campaign in New Guinea and finally into the Philippines.

As an honorary major in the 62nd Infantry Combat Team, a Filipino Regiment, Sheppard's mission is the promotion of cordial relations between the American and Filipino armed units of the U.S. Eighth Army, fighting on the island. He was appointed an honorary major by General Order on March 28, 1945, issued by the commanding officer of the 62nd Infantry Combat Team.

* * * * * * * *

COURAGE ON FIRE-SWEPT HILLSIDE
WINS SILVER STAR FOR LIEUTENANT

STARK GENERAL HOSPITAL, CHARLESTON, South Carolina---For leading his men under withering enemy fire over heavily mined terrain to defensive positions along the face of a hill in Italy, and for personally supervising the evacuation of two casualties, First Lieutenant Aurelius B. Miles, Chicago, Illinois, has been awarded the Silver Star.

MORE

Company commander with an infantry regiment of the 92nd Division, Lieutenant Miles won his medal for heroism on February 8, 1945, at Forte di Marmi.

His citation asserts that the "enemy launched a counter-attack against Lieutenant Miles' company as it was moving into a new position on a hill under cover of darkness. The pressure of hostile attack forced the company to withdraw and brought much confusion to five other companies which occupied the hill.

"Lieutenant Miles realized the situation and gathered all the men, whether in his company or not, and led them under withering fire over heavily mined areas to defensive positions along the face of the hill. All night he personally checked the positions along the sector of the hill. He left the safety of his foxhole during the artillery barrage to personally supervise the evacuation of two casualties."

The lieutenant maintained his command post in a foxhole twenty yards from the frontline. When a mortar shell landed there, Lieutenant Miles was blown out of his foxhole, sustaining wounds which necessitated the amputation of his left leg.

He received immediate attention from Private First Class James Cooper, a medical aid man in his company. Sent to a hospital in Leghorn, Italy, Lieutenant Miles was presented with the Silver Star while still on the operating table by the commanding officer of the hospital. The presentation of the medal took place March 16 before an audience of nurses and doctors.

Lieutenant Miles tells of the time when he had a German captain as his prisoner. Apparently the Nazis had a great fear of the Negro troops because the captain kept screeching and asking when they would take his head off.

Lieutenant Miles has been in service since March 1942. He received his basic training as an enlisted man at Fort McClellan, Alabama, and remained there for a year as an infantry instructor. He attended OCS at Fort Benning, received his commission in July 1943, and went overseas in July 1944.

His parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. I. Miles, reside at 5218 Michigan Avenue, Chicago. His wife, Mrs. Ethel Miles, is teaching at the Douglas School there. Private First Class John Miles, his brother, is with a coast artillery unit in the South Pacific.

The heroic officer attended Northwestern University and was a postal clerk before he came into the Army. He was returned to the United States recently aboard the Hospital Ship Larkspur, was processed through Stark General Hospital, and is now at Percy Jones General Hospital, Battle Creek, Michigan.

* * * * * * * *

TRUCKERS' RECORD IN FRANCE
MARKED BY IMPORTANT EVENTS

HEADQUARTERS, EUROPEAN THEATER OF OPERATIONS---The 3965th Quartermaster Truck Company is a bemedalled outfit. Since their arrival at Utah Beach on D plus 42, the men have earned three campaign stars.

They have been assigned missions in all important operations, from aiding in moving the 90th Division through Avranches, participating in the German counter-offensive in December where eight men earned the Bronze Star, to crossing the Roer River with the 30th Division. All missions asked of them were accomplished with outstanding results.

MORE

They earned a commendation from Major General Wade H. Haislip of the XV Corps for operations with the 90th and 79th Divisions driving across France and a commendation from 9th Army Quartermaster for their part in the Bulge operation.

The men captured 42 Germans in their sweep through France.

In the year the 3965th QM Truck Company has been overseas, eleven men earned the Bronze Star Medal; Private First Class Edward Pitts, Rhodes Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, collected the Purple Heart, and Lieutenant Thomas H. Townsend of Waukegan, Illinois, earned the Soldier's Medal.

They claim to be among the most decorated truck companies in the ETO. The men holding the Bronze Star include: Staff Sergeant Joseph W. Raysor, Fayette Street, Perth Amboy, New Jersey; Sergeant Wallace R. Bailey, 47th Street, Los Angeles, California; Sergeant Charles W. Lowe, Ridge Avenue, Lakewood, New Jersey; Sergeant Philemon T. Wickliffe, North Washington, Springfield, Missouri; Sergeant Albert M. Logan, South Boston, Virginia; Corporal Melvin C. Duncan, North Caroline Street, Baltimore, Maryland; Corporal Wesley L. Hudson, 27th Street, Omaha, Nebraska; Corporal Henry W. Green, South 5th Street, Leavenworth, Kansas; Corporal Charles A. Patten, Lombard Street, Wilmington, Delaware; Private First Class Charles H. Valentine, West Street, Bloomfield, New Jersey; and Private Collie Evans, Crawfordville, Georgia.

* * * * * * * *

CASUALTIES FROM ITALY
ADD TO COMBAT HISTORY

U.S. GENERAL HOSPITAL, Camp Pickett, Virginia---As each new train load of casualties arrives at this huge U.S. General Hospital, a new chapter is written in the combat history of the 92nd Infantry Division on the Fifth Army Front in Italy. Each train brings one or more men from the 92nd; each man brings new material for the chronicler.

Each page has a different plot--each plot its own odd twist--but the time and place are always the same--Somewhere in Italy.

They come from all walks of life, these casualties of the 92nd Division, Some were clerks, filling station operators, mechanics, lithographers, dental technicians, lumbermen and factory workers--a good cross section of American manhood.

Men of the 92nd had to have guts. Take the case of Captain Edgar B. Felton, of 727 Harvard Street, N.W., Washington, D. C., CO of Company A, 371st Infantry Regiment. After having one of his kidneys ripped out by shrapnel, Captain Felton refused medical aid for himself and ordered the medics to care for his wounded men. He then staggered unassisted back to his command post to report that his forward platoons were pinned down in a German minefield.

And the "Buffaloes" had to have grit. Private First Class C.V. Hudson of Wagoner, South Carolina, a rifleman with Company L of the 371st Infantry, lay in the snow near Gallicano with a bullet through his chest and listened to a searching party from his own company as they frantically called his name--a call he couldn't answer because each time he tried to speak his mouth choked up with blood. He was forced to lay there helpless and unnoticed as his only means of rescue passed within a few feet.

Hudson lay there all night choking and bleeding in the snow and when morning came, unable to crawl because of his gaping chest wound, he sat up with his back in the direction of his command post. His feet dragging behind him, looking over his shoulder in the direction of his own lines, he literally pushed his near lifeless body backward across the snow for a quarter mile before he was spotted by aid men and picked up.

MORE

Fast thinking is necessary in battle. Private First Class Dugar Lee, of 1020 House Street, Columbia, South Carolina, though wounded by mortar fire and cut off from his company by the Germans, stayed three days inside the German lines and is living today to add his bit to the story of the 92nd Division.

A member of Company G of the 366th Infantry, Lee was on an outpost near Borgia, Italy, when he and members of his squad were cut off from his company and trapped in an Italian house.

They fought off all German attempts to drive them from the dwelling and finally forced the Jerries to call for artillery.

When the artillery barrage came most of the men got out of the house but Lee was seriously wounded by shrapnel. Unable to go with his buddies, he unselfishly insisted that they leave him and save themselves.

That night, Lee crawled from the house and dragged his wounded body to the building where his command post had been, only to be told by a woman Italian Partisan that the Germans were now in possession of the town. Crawling into the basement of the house, the wounded infantryman lay there for three days watching the Germans prepare for a counter-attack by the Allies.

On the second day, Allied planes flew over and gave the town a terrific pounding, blowing up the house next to the one where Lee lay. At one time the Germans actually entered the house to set up an antiaircraft gun but changed their minds.

On the fourth day, the Allies attacked and retook the town and the wounded rifleman was saved.

There are others like Private Leander Robinson, of 135 N. 8th Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, BAR man, Sergeant Francis Thomas, 1305 Q Street, N.W., Washington, D.C., a heavy weapons platoon leader, Private First Class Raymond Dantzler, 134 Peabody Street, Orangeburg, South Carolina, infantry lead scout and Private First Class Calison Roache of Swanson, South Carolina, rifleman--all brave, hard-hitting men, all wounded in action against the Nazis.

The story can't end here because there are guys over there who are still adding pages to the book--guys like First Lieutenant Alfred Savoy of Washington, D.C., who, when ordered to send out a squad of men from his platoon to take a certain hill, led the first squad himself. When the first squad couldn't do the job, he came back and led the second squad, and when they too failed, the fiery lieutenant took his third squad in, thus leading the assault on the hill three times in person.

Captain Felton, a stenciler for a machine corporation in civilian life, is a product of Howard University and entered the service in May 1942. His wife, Dr. Catherine M. Felton, is a resident surgeon at Harlem Hospital, New York City.

Hudson was a filling station operator in civilian life; Robinson was a lithographer; Thomas worked in a dental laboratory in Washington; Roach was a factory worker, and Dantzler was a South Carolina lumberman.

All of the above men who are now convalescing at the U.S. General Hospital at Camp Pickett, are wearers of the Purple Heart and the Combat Infantryman Badges with appropriate Battle Stars on their European Theater of Operations Campaign Ribbons.

* * * * * * * *

MORE

HONDO FIELD NAVIGATORS
WIN COMMISSIONS, WINGS

HONDO ARMY AIR FIELD, HONDO, Texas---A new class of 27 Negro combat navigators won wings and commissions at Hondo Army Air Field April 21, as the AAF Training Command continued its policy of "full speed ahead" in the prosecution of the war.

During 20 weeks of intensive air and ground training at the Texas airbase, not a moment has been wasted as battle-wise instructors readied their young charges for the important roles that they will play in administering the coup de grace to the floundering empires of Germany and Japan.

The young officers are steeped in the knowledge of maps, charts, radio, heavenly constellations, driftmeters, radio compasses and countless items of combat lore that make the American navigator the most highly-skilled aerial pathfinder in the world. They have studied under other young men who have already proved their mettle over China, Burma, India, Africa, Italy, England, France, Germany, Australia, the Philippines, New Guinea, Japan--every combat theater in the world.

Guest speaker during the morning graduation ceremony was Captain Frederick J. Underwood of Worcester, Massachusetts, (DFC, Air Medal with two clusters and five battle stars), who recently returned from duty with the AAF in the European, China and India-Burma theaters. Captain Underwood reminded the graduates that "it is American teamwork that the enemy fears above all else."

Parents and friends of the graduates were welcomed to the post theater by Colonel Robert B. Davenport, commanding officer. Graduates who took the course as cadets received commissions as either flight officers or second lieutenants. The entire Negro class, including a student officer, was awarded silver navigator wings and ratings as AAF combat navigators. They now await assignment.

Names and addresses of the graduates follow:

SECOND LIEUTENANTS

Edward W. Abernethy, 3218 Manzama Street, El Paso, Texas
Albert R. Burgess, 970 Rondo Avenue, St. Paul, Minnesota
Eugene T. Butler, Jr., 4035 Webster Street, Brentwood, Maryland
Robert H. Cobbs, 1068 Tinton Avenue, Bronx, New York
Thomas E. Highsmith, Jr., 317 Centre Street, Elizabeth, New Jersey
Russell H. Jackson, Jr., 2736 Brooklyn Street, Kansas City, Missouri
Clarence S. Janifer, Jr., 208 Parker Street, Newark, New Jersey
Fred T. Johnson, St. James Road, Stanton, Delaware
Richard D. Johnson, 1475 McCrea Place, Plainfield, New Jersey
Clarke P. Newton, 2412 Madison Avenue, Baltimore, Maryland
Spaulding M. Ruffin, 703 Halifax Street, Emporia, Virginia
James H. Smith, 492 North 4th Street, Newark, New Jersey
James M. Sullivan, 1121 Hildreth Avenue, Columbus, Ohio
Frederick O. Wainer, 26 Commerce Street, Norwalk, Connecticut
Roger W. Wells, Wakeeney, Kansas
Frederick M. Yergan, 22 Hamilton Terrace, New York, New York

FLIGHT OFFICERS

William E. Ballard, 28 Jackson Street, Portsmouth, New Hampshire
George W. Biggs, 27 Mendibles Street, Nogales, Arizona
David C. Bowser, 8546 Bartram Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania
Henry H. Henderson, 1520 Fairmont Avenue, Joliet, Illinois
Lorenzo S. Morris, 1607 East 22nd Street, Los Angeles, California
Alvon O. Robinson, 13084 Greeley Street, Detroit, Michigan
Earl E. Sanderlin, 835 North Capitol Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania
Charles S. Stone, Jr., 34 Brook Street, Hartford, Connecticut
Philip H. Turner, 439 East 45th Street, Chicago, Illinois
Robert W. Williams, Jr., 31 Waumbeck Street, Boston, Massachusetts
John A. Wimberly, 828 Dakota Street, San Antonio, Texas

* * * * * * * *

MORE

A LITTLE P-51 GAS SWITCH
PUTS PILOT IN TIGHT SPOT

ATLANTIC CITY, New Jersey---Captain Samuel L. Curtis, of Yeadon, Pennsylvania, P-51 pilot with the all-Negro 332nd Fighter Group in Italy, can laugh about it now, but there was nothing funny about it when he was flying all over the South Germany sky wondering if he'd have to bail out.

Usually it's flak or fighters that put a pilot in a tight spot. With Captain Curtis it was nothing more than a little switch which governed the transferring of gasoline from one tank to another.

"The handle snapped off just as I was starting to switch on a full tank," said the captain, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Curtis, live at 188 Fairview Avenue, Yeadon. "I had only about two minutes of gas left in the tank I was on, and I was over enemy territory.

"Finally I found a flare gun in the cockpit and used it to pound the switch around. The fellows in the group I was leading must have thought I'd gone nuts, because I had to let go the stick and use both hands. I was flying all over the place."

Captain Curtis, here at AAF Redistribution Station No. 1 to receive a new duty assignment after completing 70 missions, said that after he got one tank transferred he was all right until it came time to transfer another tank.

"Then the pounding routine started all over again," he said, "and I'd start cutting figure eights."

As far as Captain Curtis was concerned, that one trip gave him more trouble than any flak he picked up on the 69 other missions.

The 25-year-old pilot attended the Academy of Fine Arts in Philadelphia during 1938 and 1939 and was working as a commercial artist before entering the service in 1942. He has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal with four Oak Leaf clusters.

* * * * * * * *

AMMO HAULERS ROLL OFF
500,000 MILES IN ITALY

ALLIED FORCE HEADQUARTERS, Italy---In almost two years of overseas service, in Africa and Italy, the 105 Negro soldiers of the 3405th Quartermaster Truck Company have hauled several thousand tons of supplies and rolled up a total of more than 500,000 miles.

The outfit, a unit of the Allied Force Headquarters in the Mediterranean Theater of Operations, was at Anzio hauling ammunition from dawn to dusk for six weeks, all the time under fire. The 3405th had been in the ammo hauling business back in Africa and later at Naples shortly after the first American convoy pulled into the harbor. When Naples port opened every man in the outfit worked seven months, 12 hours a day, seven days a week.

At Anzio the men backed their 2½-ton trucks into the water to pick up their loads of shells and then hauled the ammo through shellfire to forward troops at 10 miles an hour, so as not to kick up unnecessary clouds of dust.

Private First Class Harold L. Smith, husband of Mrs. Margaret Smith, of 5041 Calumet Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, says the 3405th's method of unloading the shells from the trucks would have been considered unorthodox in civilian life:

MORE

"We'd come to a fast stop after we'd unloosed the tailgate and all the shells would come spilling out. It was a time saver. Of course, you had to make sure that the shells were not fused."

Smith, who is the father of four sons, Harold, Jr., Richard Lee, Boyd William and Andre Joseph, manages and plays on the outfit's baseball team. He is a former shortstop on the Chicago Giants.

The outfit's dispatcher, Sergeant Ira McCarter, 2045 Seifert Street, Youngstown, Ohio, claims to be one of the first Negro soldiers in Rome the day it fell. He was driving a jeep on the outskirts of the city when he got into the wrong convoy column.

It was a convoy of tanks pushing through the city on its way to attack the retreating Germans. "A general stopped the jeep and wanted to know if we thought we were a tank," he said. "We turned the jeep around and got out of that tank column as fast as we could."

The 3405th has had its quota of accidents, just as every other trucking outfit has either in the Army or in civilian life, but its injury toll has been remarkably low. One night a truck carrying mortar shells, manned by Technician Fifth Grade Warren G. Reid, of Lithonia, Georgia, Corporal Macey Williams, Jr., of Hurtsboro, Alabama, and Private James L. Covington, of Little Rock, Arkansas, hit the side of a train at a crossing near Naples. The truck was thrown through a stone wall, but the men were hospitalized only two days with bruises and cuts. Not a single shell exploded.

* * * * * * * *

SERGEANT LIVES TO TELL HOW
D.C. OFFICER WON SILVER STAR

U.S. GENERAL HOSPITAL, CAMP PICKETT, Virginia---It's hard to get Sergeant Roscoe Thompson, of Norfolk, Virginia, to tell you how he got wounded fighting with the 92nd Division in Italy, because the husky Virginia Union graduate always ends up by telling you what a great guy Captain Charles F. Gandy was.

Captain Gandy was Thompson's commanding officer in Company F of the 370th Infantry Regiment which was the first unit of the 92nd Division to cross the Arno River last fall. For his "gallantry in action" while leading Thompson and his company, Captain Gandy was posthumously awarded the Silver Star on March 5, 1945.

"Captain Gandy was a brave man," spoke Thompson admiringly. When he got killed, he was 75 yards out in front of the company. He always took the lead when we were attacking. A sniper got him first with a rifle shot and when we started up to get him, we got pinned down with machinegun fire. The Jerries turned a machinegun on him as he lay there on the ground--just to make sure they had him."

The citation accompanying the award of the Silver Star to Captain Gandy provides official concurrence to Thompson's eulogy. Released today by the War Department, the citation, in part, reads as follows:

"Captain Gandy was ordered to deploy his company in reinforcement of another company in position on difficult mountainous terrain. He personally led his company out in broad daylight and, through further reconnaissance and by personal example and leadership, succeeded in getting his entire company across a canal, with an abrupt twelve-foot wall. This was accomplished in rain and under extremely heavy enemy fire. Halting the company at its intermediate objective, Captain Gandy went forward alone to reconnoiter the route of the next movement. While engaged in this activity, he was mortally wounded by enemy machinegun fire. His outstanding gallantry and leadership in combat exemplifies the heroic traditions of the United States Army."

MORE

You can't forget the medics, either, when you are talking to Sergeant Thompson. "Those guys really deserve a lot of credit," he asserted. "They come right up in the lines where the bullets are flying and carry men out. The day I got hit, a medic drove a jeep right up on that hill to the front and got me, and in 45 minutes I was at the head aid station getting treatment."

"How I got hit? Oh, it was just one of those things, I guess," said Thompson. "I left my foxhole to go down to the command post to get the password for the night and was about three feet from my foxhole on my way back, when the Jerries fired a mortar from the reverse side of the hill. It landed next door to me."

Sergeant Thompson was wounded by shell fragments in his back, chest, throat and legs.

Convalescing at the United States General Hospital at Camp Pickett, Blackstone, Virginia, the former employee of the Norfolk Navy Base is looking forward to his first furlough in Norfolk. The son of Mrs. Viola Walker, of 910 Hanson Avenue, Norfolk, Virginia, Sergeant Thompson entered the service in March 1943 and went overseas in July 1944.

* * * * * * * *

ENGINEERS USE INGENUITY
IN REHABILITATION WORK

WITH U.S. FORCES IN GERMANY---With a resourceful display of improvisation, Company B, 375th Engineer General Service Regiment is rehabilitating railroad lines and bridges in support of our Armies pushing into the heart of Germany.

As one of the forward elements of Advance Section Communications Zone, the Negro Engineer soldiers of the 375th were assigned a project on the vital supply artery from Roermond, Holland, to Munchen-Gladbach, Germany.

The company is rated as a crack railway repair outfit, having restored over 200 miles of line in seven months on the Continent. During that time, however, it handled only one other bridge before receiving the task of spanning a 60-foot gap over the highway near the town of Wegberg.

The retreating Germans had effected a complete job of demolition on the former brick arch structure, totally smashing one abutment and severly damaging the other.

In preparing to pour concrete for the new abutments, the Engineer soldiers found themselves handicapped by the impossibility of bringing a mixer up the steep grade of the job site and the lack of a crane to use as a conveyor.

Under the direction of First Sergeant William A. Goodwin, of 124 Madison Street, Buffalo, New York, and Staff Sergeant David L. Blackman, construction sergeant, of 361 North Clayborn Street, Mobile, Alabama, they rigged a double cable across the gap with a tipping bucket suspended from a block.

The bucket was then manually pulled across the gap and dropped for filling to the mixer located on the highway.

By use of this expedient and stores of salvaged enemy timber and steel scrap, the unit completed the erection of the abutments in ample time before delivery of the pre-fabricated steel used in spanning the gap.

Sergeant Goodwin, whose wife, Mrs. Lucille Goodwin, lives at the Madison Street address, was employed by a coke company before his induction at Fort Niagara, New York, on April 4, 1942. Arriving in England in November 1943, Sergeant Goodwin has been on the Continent since August 1944, serving in France, Belgium and Germany.

MORE

Sergeant Blackman was a crane operator before his induction at Mobile in April 1942. He received basic training at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, and arrived in England in November 1943. Since landing on the Continent in August 1944, Sergeant Blackman also has served in France, Belgium and Germany.

* * * * * * * *

FORMER FORT HUACHUCA WACs
SERVING IN UNITED KINGDOM

UNITED KINGDOM BASE, England---The first Negro Wacs to cross the Atlantic, arriving in England early in February as a United States Army Postal Unit for the entire European Theater of Operations, have already won commendation from many postal officers for efficiency in execution of their assignments.

An estimation of the work this unit performs is revealed in the fact that more mail is handled through the First Base Post Office than from New York City's General Post Office.

Many of the Wacs here had been and were soldiering at the largest encampment of Negro troops in the world, Fort Huachuca, Arizona, before shipment to England. Fort Huachuca, the first camp to receive a contingent of Negro Wacs, was the station of many of these Wacs for more than two years.

Among former Fort Huachuca officers here are: Captain Mary Frances Kearney, 406 Newfield, Bridgeport, Conn., Chief of Directory Service, who capably handles both shifts of workers. Captain Kearney was one of the first officers (second officer in the WAAC) to arrive in Fort Huachuca for duty on December 4, 1942. Prior to receiving orders for her overseas assignment, she was Assistant Chief of the Special Service Branch, Camp Claiborne, Louisiana.

Captain Vera A. Harrison, 1266 Lane Street, Hamilton, Ohio, served as the advance party to the first group of WAACs to arrive in Fort Huachuca in 1942 and became Executive Officer for the old 33rd WAAC Post Headquarters Company. In England she is Commanding Officer of Company C and just prior to this was a company commander at Fort Knox, Kentucky.

First Lieutenant Violet Askins Hill, 3104 Lucas Avenue, St. Louis, Mo., who was living in Chicago, Ill., at the time she came into the service as one of the first officer candidates, served in Fort Huachuca for 2 years as Executive Officer in the old 32nd Company and later in the WAC Section. She is Assistant Chief of Directory Service for this overseas unit. Before shipment she had been serving as Executive Officer for the WAC Detachment at Fort Lewis, Washington.

Second Lieutenant Mercedes A. Jordan, 50 Grant Court, Long Branch, N.J., a postal officer for this overseas detachment, was lately Commanding Officer of the WAC Detachment at Douglas Army Air Base, Douglas, Arizona. She was one of the first auxiliaries to arrive at Fort Huachuca in 1942. Lieutenant Jordan's first assignment upon her graduation from Officer Candidate School was as WAC Special Service Officer at Fort Huachuca. She won popularity throughout the post and all the places she was stationed because of her fine piano and vocal work as well as her own compositions.

Second Lieutenant Colonia V. Powell, 2208 Bastrop St., Houston, Texas, was executive officer at Fort Bragg, N. C., previous to this assignment. Prior to her going to Officer Candidate School, she was a sergeant clerk at the Fort Huachuca Bakers and Cooks School and was one of the first auxiliaries to arrive in Fort Huachuca.

Second Lieutenant Lillian W. Duncan, 306 Range Line, Talladega, Ala., who was Plans and Training Officer for the WAC Section at Fort Know, Kentucky, before coming to England, is Executive Officer in Company C here.

MORE

First Lieutenant Corrinen Sherrard, 942 W. Fair St., Atlanta, Ga., Mess Officer for this Detachment, was one of Fort Huachuca's first women mess officers. She served in Fort Des Moines, Iowa, just prior to her overseas assignment.

List Other Personnel

Following are some of the former Fort Huachuca enlisted women now serving with this overseas detachment: First Sergeant Cleopatra Daniels, 34 St. Nicholas Pl., New York City, is the battalion sergeant major and the ranking non-com. Staff Sergeant Mattie L. Garrett, 392 Jefferson, Brooklyn, N.Y., is a non-com in charge of one of the mail rooms here.

Sergeant Lucia M. Pitts, who claims Chicago and Washington as her home towns, is permanent day secretary to Captain Mary F. Kearney, Chief of Directory Service. She worked for seven years in Washington, D.C., as secretary to Clark Foreman, first adviser on Negro affairs, and for two years as assistant to Dr. Robert C. Weaver. Just before donning the WAC uniform, she was the first Negro official in the Personnel Office of the United States Treasury's Bureau of Public Debt in Chicago.

Among the former Huachucans in the Company B Choral Group are: Sergeant Alice Allison, 530 E. Washington, Wytheville, Va.; Sergeant Creadell Haley, 916 Oak St., Quincy, Ill.; Corporal Cecelia Goldsby, 5363 Dearborn, Chicago, Ill.; Corporal Doris L. Paige, 107 Handy, Ocean Springs, Miss.; Private First Class Phyllis Branch, 1695 Elliott Pl., Brooklyn, N.Y.; Private Marie Gillisslee, 595 E. 167th St., N.Y.; Private First Class Ruth Gaddy, 2304 Davis St., Charlotte, N.C.; Private First Class Millie M. Taylor, 204 Nolan St., Marshall, Texas; Corporal Novella Auls, 421 Armory Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Among other well-known Huachuca Wacs now stationed in the ETO are the following:

Sergeant Evelyn C. Martin, 125 Woodlawn Ave., Buffalo, N.Y.; Corporal Doris Stewart, 259 W. 152nd St., New York City; Corporal Hazel M. Russell, 222½ N. 20th St., Columbus, Ohio; Private First Class Beulah Patten, 259 Newport St., Atlanta, Ga.; Private First Class Catherine Lee, Route 1, Greenville, Texas; Private Charlotte G. Cartwright, 4006 Boring St., Philadelphia, Pa.; Sergeant Odessa Taylor, 4564 Enright Ave., St. Louis, Mo.; Corporal Edna C. Burton, Sanford, Fla.

Other Huachucans here in the Postal service are Sergeant Edith Linzey, 713 S. 11th St., Newark, N.J., who was the head WAC in Message Center at Fort Huachuca; Private First Class Mildred Gates, 608 18th Ave., Middletown, Ohio; Private Theodosia E. Lee, Route 1, Box 67, Payson, Oklahoma, who was assistant in the Huachuca Post printing shop; Corporal Gertrude E. Cruse, Company A Supply Sergeant, who was WAC supply sergeant at Huachuca; Corporal Ernestine E. Hughes, 2509 Bryan St., Dallas, Texas, who is non-com here in charge of the alphabetical breakdown section from "Q" to "Z" in the directory service, with seven Wacs under her supervision.

END

Distribution: Ad
4-24-45

25-36969-450

WAR DEPARTMENT
Bureau of Public Relations
PRESS BRANCH
Tel. - RE 6700
Brs. 3425 and 4860

June 2, 1945

I M M E D I A T E R E L E A S E

FOUR NEGRO FLIERS, TWO DOUGHBOYS
ARRIVE HOME FROM GERMAN PRISON CAMPS

NEW YORK PORT OF EMBARKATION, Camp Shanks, New York---Four Negro Mustang fighter pilots of the 332nd Fighter Group and two hardened Doughboys of the 92nd Infantry Division, who had distinguished themselves in combat against the Nazis until they were captured in spirited engagements, arrived here May 29, the War Department announced today. They were included in a shipment of 2,675 American soldiers liberated from German prison camps by the surging Allied armies.

These veterans of the Italian campaign, whose numerous decorations were indicative of their war-winning endeavors, had suffered indignities and deprivations while in the hands of the Germans. But their hardships of the past were only unpleasant memories today as they cheered enthusiastically the announcement that they would receive 60-day furloughs.

Interesting stories were related by the repatriated Americans. First Lieutenant Roger B. Gaiter of 136 Sheridan Avenue, Seaside Heights, New Jersey, a graduate of New Jersey State Teachers College at Glassboro, took the lead in the recitation of experiences. He enlisted in the Army in October 1942, and subsequently joined Colonel Benjamin O. Davis' 332nd Fighter Group.

Shipped overseas in July 1944, the handsome, 23-year-old lieutenant went to Italy by way of Oran. He flew 37 missions over France, Germany and the Balkans, destroying five Nazi planes on the ground. But misfortune overtook him late in November on his 38th mission while he was engaged in low level bombing and strafing of Wehrmacht installations in the Lake Balaton area of Hungary. Flak riddled his plane, forcing him to parachute out of his burning craft with an injured knee.

After eluding his pursuers for four days by keeping under cover during the day and crawling toward Allied lines at night, Lieutenant Gaiter finally was captured. He recounted what followed:

"I was taken to Gyor in Hungary along with six other captured airmen, all of whom were white. As we were being marched to the Gyor railroad station for shipment into Germany, a mob of civilians gathered in the streets and began to assault us. The guards did little to stave them off, and we were beaten up pretty badly. A captain from St. Louis was clubbed on the head with a brick and knocked unconscious.

"Cut and bleeding, we arrived at the Gyor station and took the train to Vienna. People spat at us and cursed us there, and when we got to the prison camp in Germany, the living conditions were extremely bad. We got practically nothing to eat, and were fortunate in being rescued by Allied armies in time."

Lieutenant Gaiter wears the Air Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters, the Purple Heart and the European Theater of Operations Ribbon with three battle stars.

A typical example of the treachery and deceit employed by the Germans in Italy for propaganda purposes was described by Private Rothacker C. Smith of 10226 Delmar Street, Detroit, Michigan.

A former student at Emmanuel Missionary College in Michigan, Private Smith battled with the 366th Infantry Regiment of the 92nd Division until the outfit reached a position near Pisa. A tremendous enemy artillery and mortar barrage shattered a building in which Private Smith and his squad had taken positions, leaving him unconscious with a fractured arm, smashed shoulder and deep lacerations of the face.

MORE

But despite his weakened condition and mutiple injuries, the Nazis forced him and his buddies to march 35 miles in the freezing weather of late December. Then, after receiving treatment at a hospital, he was interned in a prison camp.

"Shortly after I arrived at the POW camp," Smith recalled, "the Germans handed me a form similar to a radiogram and told me I could send a message home to my parents saying that I was treated well, healthy and not lacking in comforts. I was happy as a lark to let my father and mother know of my safety, so I filled it out.

"About three months later, when some captured Doughfeet of my old outfit were brought to the camp where I was kept, I got the surprise of my life. One of the boys came over to me and pulled a four-page newspaper from his pocket. Right on the front page was the radiogram I thought I had sent to my parents.

"The Germans had never sent the message but had used it for propaganda purposes. They took my message and others like it and printed them in a newspaper. They then shot these papers into the American lines to tell the boys how well they treat men who surrender to them. But the trick didn't work because not a single GI surrendered without a fight."

First Lieutenant Walter L. McCreary, of 509 South Pine Street, San Antonio, Texas, went overseas in January 1944, and was attached to the 100th Fighter Squadron of the 332nd Fighter Group. He flew 90 patrol and strafing missions over Italy, Czechoslovakia, Greece, Rumania, Bulgaria, Germany, Hungary and France.

On McCreary's 90th mission on October 12, 1944, flak disabled his plane over Hungary and he bailed out at 7,000 feet west of Lake Balaton. He landed uninjured, but the mob of civilians which gathered about struck and reviled him.

As the Germans retreated before the indomitable Soviet Armies, he was forced to march through the bitterest weather of the winter. He recalls one particular 90-mile forced march which many prisoners did not survive. His last POW camp was located near Nuremberg, the shrine city of Nazism.

Second Lieutenant Richard D. Macon of the 332nd Fighter Group's 99th Fighter Squadron, took his Air Corps training with Lieutenant Gaiter at Tuskegee, Alabama, and went overseas with him. He was strafing German radar equipment in France in his fifth mission when his plane was shot down. Suffering from a fractured neck, he was taken prisoner by the Nazis and hospitalized for three months.

The food served him was as vile, he asserted, as the prison accomodations and survival was possible only with the aid of the Red Cross parcels he received weekly. He was marched long distances from one camp to another, and was finally freed from Moosburg on April 29 by units of General Patton's Third Army. Lieutenant Macon's home is at 524 South 63rd Street, Birmingham, Alabama.

First Lieutenant Charles T. Williams of 1669 East 113th Street, Los Angeles, California, was assigned to the 301st Fighter Squadron of the 332nd. Arriving overseas last July 27, he flew nine missions before engine trouble forced him down in central Yugoslavia. He eluded enemy searching parties for four days but was seized at Sarajevo.

Subjected to several forced marches, he finally wound up in Moosburg. Said Lieutenant Williams: "On April 29, General Patton's troops freed us. Fighting for the town began at 0915 and the Krauts quit at 1145. The best sight I've yet seen was Old Glory flying over Moosburg. It's a feeling you can't describe."

Private James V. Gray, of Dixie, Georgia, also was a member of the Buffalo division. A veteran of 10 months overseas and 120 days of combat fighting in Italy, Private Gray was taken prisoner after he had been knocked unconscious by a shell concussion and pinned to the ground by a fallen tree. He was placed in a box-car jammed with 50 other prisoners and taken to Moosburg.

The journey lasted 17 days, the Georgian declared, during which time the prisoners were locked in cars for as long as seven days at a stretch. The food rations consisted of one loaf of bread a day for 12 men and a thin, watery bowl of soup .

DISTRIBUTION: Ad. 6-2-45

END

FUTURE RELEASE
PLEASE NOTE DATE

WAR DEPARTMENT
Bureau of Public Relations
NEWS DIVISION
Washington, D.C.

FOR RELEASE MONDAY, JUNE 4, 1945

* * * *

Immediately, the Nazis opened up on the patrol, still on the banks of the river, with all they had. The Negro doughboys, who by this time had over a month of combat, hit the ground. Five of the patrol were wounded, but they accounted for 20 Germans and took 34 wounded prisoners.

Returning by way of the bridge was impossible as mortar shells had demolished it, so Private Edward H. Rhynes, of 342 East 42nd Street, Chicago, Illinois, ducked and dodged down the river bank until he found a fording spot and crossed the river to get Private Bill Ballis, the white medic of 465 2nd Avenue, San Francisco, California, to take care of the wounded. Private Rhynes then lead the patrol and the wounded back across the ford to safety behind the 69th's lines.

The mission was accomplished. After a larger body of the division wiped out the pocket, it was learned that those Germans the patrol had encountered made up the tail end of Elienberg pocket.

Before reaching the Mulde River, the Tan Yanks had joined the regiment near Waldorf, Germany, where the platoon had captured 34 Nazis and killed 20 others in their first action. From there they marched to Pachwiz and captured 120 Nazis disguised as members of the medical corps.

After the declaration of VE-Day, they helped guard a portion of the Reich Autobahn that the generals of the Allied armies used to meet the Russians.

The only Negro platoon in the 69th Division to be assigned a basic company spot has performed so well that the battalion commander, Lieutenant Colonel Edward J. Thompson, of New Rochelle, New York, said that he wished he could command a battalion of Negro infantry soldiers like his first platoon of K Company.

Among members of the platoon are:

1st Lt. James P. Van Schaeck, 352 E. Main St., Manasquan, N.J. (white)
Tech. Sgt. William Peklinsky, 3560 West St., Holiday Cove, W. Va. (white)
Staff Sgt. James C. Foster, 346 E. Union St., Jacksonville, Fla.
Pfc. Melvin Floyd, 9135 S. Van Raybarn Ave., Chicago, Ill.
Pfc. B. H. Bayless, 465 2nd Ave., San Francisco, Cal. (white)
Pvt. Rudolph Mays, 1227 Spruce St., Coatsville, Pa.
Staff Sgt. Lorenza Davis, 1945 A. North 7th St., Milwaukee, Wis.
Sgt. Charles L. Simms, 1560 E. Santa Barbara Ave., Los Angeles, Cal.
Pfc. Alumus N. Stewart, 4857 Evans Ave., Chicago, Ill.
Pfc. Vernon Hopkins, 3728 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.
Pfc. Albert Barthell, 1103 10th St., S., Cordele, Ga.
Pfc. Amos Grice, Selma, Ala.
Pvt. Moses C. Jackson, 4744 S. State St., Chicago, Ill.
Pvt. Edward Rhynes, 342 E. 42nd St., Chicago, Ill.
Pvt. Johnnie B. Nunn, 5800 Indiana Ave., Chicago, Ill.
Pvt. William Aldrich, 520 E. Lander, Pocatello, Ind.
Pvt. Wilbert Jackson, 809 E. 41st St., Los Angeles, Cal.
Pvt. Booker T. Miles, 4703 Pearl St., East St. Louis, Ill.
Sgt. Henry G. Bergagne, Jr., 212 S. Tonti St., New Orleans, La.
Sgt. Clarence L. Richardson, Bownemont, W. Va.
Pfc. David C. Jackson, 3410 Anita Ave., Houston, Texas
Pfc. Richard C. Tucker, 6371 Beechwood Ave., Detroit, Mich.
Pfc. Alphonza Windley, 2109 N. Camas St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Pvt. Thomas Swain, 936 Main St., Mound City, Ill.
Pvt. General S. Easlly, 2904 Brick Church Peak, Nashville, Tenn.
Pvt. Ozie Dubose, Senica, S.C.
Pvt. Robert R. Sampson, Clinton, N.C.
Pvt. John H. Brown, 408 Stedman St., Greensboro, N.C.
Pvt. Crisp Cooper, 1240 N. Hutchinson St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Pvt. Norman King, 105 Grand Ave., Coconut Grove, Fla.
Sgt. Eric F. Jones, 323 N. 56th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Cpl. S.C. Kirkland, 529 W. 152nd St., New York, N.Y.

* * * * * * * *

MORE

92ND DOUGHBOYS, CAPTURED
BY GERMANS, EN ROUTE HOME

NORMANDY BASE SECTION, France---Recently released from the German prison camp at Mooseberg, Private First Class Raymond White, 27, 231 East Lindem Street, Kennett Square, Pennsylvania, and Private First Class Maceo Collins, 3292 East 128th Street, Cleveland, Ohio, are en route to the United States following medical examinations, issuance of new clothing, and necessary administrative processing at Normandy Base Section Recovered Allied Military Personnel Camp No. 1.

A mortar man with the Fifth Army, White was captured on December 29, 1944 near Lugar, Italy. He was liberated by Third Army tanks near Mooseberg, Germany, one week before the cessation of hostilities. The Pennsylvania soldier arrived overseas in April 1944.

Collins was a rifleman in the 370th Infantry Regiment of the 92nd Division in Italy before his capture by the Germans. The mission of his platoon of Company L was to take the last big mountain before the Po River Valley on the Italian front. The Germans had dug a network of caves in the mountain and were well concealed. The attack by Collins' platoon began at night fall. Many men were wounded on both sides and by morning the platoon had dug in to await the counterattack of the Germans.

The attack came in the afternoon and bitter fighting followed. Collins was wounded by the concussion of an exploding hand grenade, captured by the German scouting party and held in a cave where he received first aid treatment. He was later interned in a prisoner of war camp in Bologna on the northern side of the Po River. An important bridge situated near the camp was a favorite target for the Allied aircraft, so the POWs were moved to Mooseberg, Germany, by freight train.

* * * * * * * *

WOUNDED DUCK DRIVERS SAW
COLORS PLANTED ON IWO JIMA

FORT SHAFTER, Hawaii---Two wounded corporals from Army amphibious truck companies that hit Iwo Jima's death-ploughed beaches with the assault forces today retold how the Stars and Stripes was planted on Mount Suribachi. For the two, the conquest of Iwo was no picnic.

Corporal Curtis J. Buckner, 608 North Bond Street, Baltimore, Maryland, weary from days of frantic work and nights of unsound sleep under the pyrotechnics of battle, huddled with a buddy in a foxhole. Their cans of K-rations looked like a feast. Buckner started to open one, when an exploding shell caught the two men and called off the party.

Corporal Emerson W. Maness, 624 Uwharrie Street, Asheboro, North Carolina, still has his souvenir from the bitter invasion---a .31 caliber bullet which a Jap sniper whanged through Maness's shoulder while he was working desperately to get his sea-going "duck" back in operation.

In an Oahu Army Hospital of Lieutenant General Robert C. Richardson, Jr.'s Pacific Ocean Areas Command, the pair exchanged notes on their battle experiences.

Buckner went ashore four hours after the first Americans hit the beaches; Maness's company didn't reach the chaotic scene until the next day. Both soldiers saw Iwo at its deadliest, when Jap fire made the shore a hell of crunched vehicles and dead and wounded men, while fresh troops floundered weirdly in the boggy, volcanic ash that dragged them down like quicksand.

They had a two-way job, loading supplies from ships onto their ducks, and carrying them to the beach, then taking loads of stretcher cases back from the beach to hospital ships.

MORE

A dozen wounded men could be carried on each trip. "We hardly ever stopped except to load up on gas or water," Buckner asserted. "As long as we kept working, we didn't feel tired, but when we stopped....."

Told about Joe Rosenthal's now-famous photo of the flag-raising, the coproral said: "Every soldier who saw that flag inching up higher just had a split second to turn his head and look. But he felt it."

Their impressions of Iwo are a fantastic, blood-smeared kaleidoscope of deafening fire, yelling men, hundreds of ships, streams of vehicles lurching and grinding through the treacherous ash, and a sky swarming with American planes that dived and swooped to punish the Jap without let-up.

* * * * * * * *

MAINTAINS COMMUNICATION
FACILITIES DESPITE FIRE

WITH THE 14TH ANTIAIRCRAFT COMMAND, New Guinea——Technical Sergeant Levy Carter, 30, son of Mrs. Beatrice Smith, 1825 East 11th Street, Kansas City, Missouri, has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal for meritorious achievement in New Guinea.

Following an enemy artillery barrage which scored a direct hit on a communication hut of the 742nd Antiaircraft Artillery Gun Battalion, he quickly installed an emergency system which enabled the battalion to conduct counter-battery fire against the enemy. "Without regard for his personal safety," his citation read, "Sergeant Carter maintained communication despite enemy artillery."

In addition to the battle participation star for the Bougainville Campaign, Sergeant Carter wears the Asiatic-Pacific Theater Ribbon, American Defense Ribbon and the Good Conduct Medal. He was inducted into the Army at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, in March 1941, and received his basic training at Camp Wallace, Texas. He has over 31 months' service overseas.

* * * * * * * *

ALL-NEGRO MP PATROL
FOR INDIA-BURMA THEATER

NEW DELHI, India——An all-Negro Military Police patrol—first in the India-Burma Theater—has been authorized by the War Department, Lieutenant Colonel Charles Meyers, acting theater provost marshal, announced this week.

Composed of one Negro officer and 60 enlisted men, the bulk of the unit will be stationed in the Ledo area. It is contemplated that the remainder will be on detached service in the Calcutta area.

"To improve control and increase understanding among Negro troops, we requested permission to form the patrol unit," Colonel Meyers explained.

Members of the unit will be picked from troops already in the theater. Selection will depend to a large extent on civilian background and former military assignments. Preference will be given to men who were MPs at stateside installations or who have had civilian police experience.

The platoon will be commanded by a Negro officer.

* * * * * * * *

DOUGHBOYS, PINNED DOWN BY NAZIS,
TURNED ARTILLERYMEN AT NAUMBERG

WITH THE 69TH INFANTRY DIVISION IN GERMANY——During the siege of Naumberg, Negro infantrymen of F Company of the 272nd Infantry Regiment serving as supporting elements for the 880th Field Artillery Battalion dropped their weapons and manned the 155-mm howitzers when white cannoneers were wounded.

MORE

The platoon under the command of Second Lieutenant Lynn C. Johnson, 22, white, of Berwind, West Virginia, was serving as reinforcement troops to the artillery battalion, which was part of the corps artillery. They were firing upon Naumberg some three miles away and the Negro doughboys, some of whom had volunteered for duty as foot soldiers out of tank, tank destroyer and field artillery units, couldn't get a shot at the Germans because they were out of range.

Holding foxhole positions not far from the American guns, the Negro soldiers could only hug the ground as the Jerry 88-mm shells came singing over. Several landed close and wounded some of the already seriously reduced white cannon crews.

Immediately, Staff Sergeant John D. Reid, of 622 2nd Avenue, Columbus, Georgia, platoon guide, ordered some of the soldiers near him to man the guns. The Tan Yanks jumped from their foxholes and began ramming the shells into the breeches and firing the guns along with the white cannoneers.

The murderous fire from the artillery battalion subdued the Germans in Naumberg and allowed the 69th Division assault teams to close on the town.

Members of the F Company platoon are:

Headquarters

2nd Lt. Lynn C. Johnson, Berwind, W. Va. (white)
Tech. Sgt. Robert Morris, Elido, Ohio (white)
Staff Sgt. John D. Reid, 622 2nd Ave., Columbus, Ga.
Pfc. James Champion, Henderson, N.C.
Pvt. David Johnson, Cincinnati, Ohio

First Squad

Staff Sgt. William R. Holloway, 3017½ Sherman Ave., Washington, D.C.
Sgt. Kenneth N. Sands, 1154 S. 36th St., Louisville, Ky.
Pfc. Sylvester Russell, 539 Josephine St., New Orleans, La.
Pvt. Theodore L. Terry, 191 Lefferts Pl., Brooklyn, N.Y.
Pvt. Ivery Waters, 1326 Wood St., Oakland, Cal.
Pvt. Cleophus George, Dumaska, Ark.
Pvt. J.C. Jackson, 56 Kearney Ave., Jersey City, N.J.
Pvt. Daniel F. Edmondson, 444 Hickcock St., Scranton, Pa.
Pvt. John Taylor, 110 S. 6th St., Dennison, Ohio
Pvt. Robert A. Tyler, 2365 E. 16th St., Cleveland, Ohio
Pvt. Eddie Jones, 10 Hicks St., Orlando, Fla.

Second Squad

Sgt. Ernest McQuiller, 1157 N. Washington St., Wichita, Kan.
Cpl. Thomas Curry, Jr., 741 Kenyon Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio
Pfc. Emile Dubriville, 505 Bloom St., Jackson, Miss.
Pvt. William A. Bradshaw, 356 W. 124th St., New York, N.Y.
Pvt. Clifford Green, 1209 Wash St., Gary, Ind.
Pvt. James Kenney, 426 148th St., New York, N.Y.
Pvt. Henry G. Bernard, 925 Charles St., Indianapolis, Ind.
Pvt. James Williams, New York, N.Y.
Pvt. Robert E. Ellison, 874 Doyle St., Waynesboro, Ga.
Pvt. Eddie C. Walker, Madison, Fla.
Pvt. Columbus Ross, 3612 E. Chelsea Ave., Tampa, Fla.

Third Squad

Sgt. Walter Hardy, 1422 St. Auben St., Detroit, Mich.
Pfc. Samuel G. Perry, 141 N. New York Ave., Atlantic City, N.J.
Pvt. James Wills, Edenton, N.C.

MORE

Pvt. Edward Douglas, 1347 W. 111th St., Chicago, Ill.
Pvt. Edgar Deal, 2419 E. 63rd St., Cleveland, Ohio.
Pvt. Humphrey Shortridge, 3928 2nd St., New Orleans, La.
Pvt. M.C. Stepgen, 31 Bay St., Montclair, N.J.
Pvt. James H. Stenson, 13 Price St., Opelika, Ala.
Pvt. Pvt. Otis Young, 43 Boyd St., Atlanta, Ga.
Pvt. Norman Beadle, 5417 S. Michigan, Chicago, Ill.
Pvt. John L. Smith, 1617 16th Ave., N., Nashville, Tenn.

* * * * * * * *

GI DRIVES INTO INFERNO;
AWARDED SOLDIER'S MEDAL

WITH THE 1312TH ENGINEERS IN LINGAYEN GULF, Luzon---By fighting a raging fire in New Guinea, Technician Fifth Grade Logan Williams, of Dayton, Ohio, became the first member of this outfit to be awarded the coveted Soldier's Medal. Called to the aid of soldiers attempting to check a blazing fire, Technician Fifth Grade Williams, with complete disregard for his own safety and at great personal risk, drove his bulldozer into the flames which towered high over his machine. By persistent effort, he finally gained control of the blaze.

The award was made to the dauntless operator by the commanding officer of the 1312th Engineer General Service Regiment, Colonel John Wade, at a decoration ceremony held shortly after his arrival in the Philippines with advance elements of the regiment.

The citation read:

"FOR HEROISM—Upon receiving an order to bring his bulldozer to help fight an uncontrollable fire raging in the dry kunai grass, Technician Fifth Grade Williams proceeded to the scene and drove his machine into the fierce flames which were over 15 feet high. Without instructions and using cool headed judgment, he covered the flames and prepared against the advancing conflagration which threatened destruction to a large amount of supplies and damage to a nearby camp area. By his initiative, calm courage and devotion to duty, Technician Fifth Grade Williams performed an outstanding act of heroism at the risk of his own life."

His company commander, Lieutenant Guy Hanks, stated that Williams' act of heroism was no surprise to him or the men of his company as he had always displayed excellent qualities of a soldier.

Technician Fifth Grade Williams, a native of Lexington, Kentucky, lives at 484 S. Broadway, Dayton Ohio.

* * * * * * * *

SURVIVOR OF DOOMED SHIP
REALLY HAD SHARE OF SALT

MIAMI BEACH, Florida---Clinging to a life raft for 39 hours after his troopship was torpedoed and sunk by a Jap sub, Private First Class Samuel Michaux swallowed so much sea water he "never wants to see another grain of salt again."

Overseas for 13 months with the 855th Engineers, a Negro outfit, attached to the Fifth Air Force in New Guinea, the 39-year-old soldier is now recuperating at the AAF Regional and Convalescent Hospital, Miami District.

Michaux, who hails from Toledo, Ohio, and formerly resided in Lenoir, North Carolina, recalled that harrowing day some 500 miles off the Fiji Islands when a Jap torpedo sent his ship and many of his buddies to the bottom.

MORE

"I guess I was lucky that morning," Michaux declared, "I awoke at dawn and as I headed upstairs for a bit of fresh air, the torpedo struck us amidship."

The resounding crash and explosion knocked the Pacific veteran off his feet, momentarily stunning him; but he recovered in time and groped through the semi-darkness of the ship's passageway to the deck. He and his mates scrambled for the nearest life raft, shoved it over the side, dived into the churning sea and clambered aboard the raft. They cleared the stricken vessel just in time to escape its suction as it rolled over and sank.

For the next 39 hours Michaux and his surviving buddies clung to the raft.

"The sea was plenty rough when we sank but it grew worse as night fell," continued Michaux. "Wave after wave swept over the raft and nearly swamped us. All we could do was hang on for dear life, and pray.

"I swallowed so much salt water that night I never want to see another grain of salt again as long as I live. I can still taste that stuff."

Just before sundown the following day they sighted a ship on the horizon and after some frantic signaling the Yanks were picked up.

As the rescue ship neared New Guinea, Jap aircraft attacked the vessel. Evasive action by the ship's master saved the day and the boat managed to escaped serious damage.

Michaux, who wears the Asiatic-Pacific Service Ribbon with two bronze battle stars for major campaigns which followed in New Guinea, has been in service since October 1942.

Son of Mrs. Mattie, Michaux, Route 7, Lenoir, North Carolina, the Pacific veteran's daughters, Mrs. Mattie Perison and Eloise Michaux, live at 83 Port Lawrence Street, Toledo.

* * * * * * * *

JUST MENTION HIS COMPANY,
TOP-KICK WILL DO THE REST

ATLANTIC CITY, New Jersey---Army top-kicks aren't generally noted for their smiles, but there's one question which will bring a broad grin to the face of First Sergeant Cornelius E. Stantian, who lists his home address as Route 10, Box 542, Birmingham, Alabama.

Just ask him about the overseas record of his trucking outfit.

"We never lost a vehicle through accident or neglect of the driver," said the sergeant here at AAF Redistribution Station No. 1, where he has reported for a new assignment. "We lost some men and trucks through mine fields, strafing and dive-bombing, and a sniper picked off one of my boys in Libya, but that's the fortunes of war. When it came to highballing supplies through, my boys were on the beam."

Sergeant Stantian's aviation trucking company highballed bombs and ammunition for an advanced fighter group during 18 months in Egypt and Libya. It spent 14 months hauling Air Forces supplies and ammunition in India.

The 27-year-old top-kick, who will be given a thorough physical examination here and will be interviewed by personnel specialists before being given a new assignment, was a student at Tuskegee Institute at the time he entered the service.

When the day comes for him to put on civilian clothes again, he plans to continue his study of construction engineering and architecture.

* * * * * * * *

MORE

NON-COMS' INVENTION
CUTS SHIP LOADING TIME

HEADQUARTERS, PACIFIC OCEAN AREAS——Technical Sergeant George Gillispie, 3138 Mocomb Street, Detroit, Michigan; Technician Fourth Grade James Wooten, 1729 Norris Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; and Technician Fourth Grade Herman Veauchesne, 203 East 22nd Street, New York, New York, have won the hearty gratitude of their comrades for an ingenious new loading sling, devised by the three Negro non-commissioned officers to facilitate handling of heavy artillery equipment at Pacific Ocean Areas ports.

The new sling, already adopted as standard gear for the port of Honolulu, was designed primarily for the Army's 155-mm howitzer and M-6 tractor, but with minor adjustments can be made to perform numerous other tasks. The three non-coms, all members of Brigadier General Roy E. Blount's Army Port and Service Command, by the success of their device, have been responsible for considerable savings in manpower and time required to load and unload from a ship artillery equipment so vitally needed on the fighting fronts.

After conducting a series of tests on the Hawaiian capital island of Oahu, the new sling was perfected by the three non-coms and several models manufactured for use in standard operations by Army Port Battalions. The improved sling is being considered for adoption by Field Artillery units to facilitate unloading operations in combat zones.

Simplicity of design and balance feature the sling, which is used in conjunction with a standard jumbo boom. When used to load or discharge the 155-mm howitzer, a 23-foot-long steel cable cradles the trail of the gun, while a 15-foot cable strap supports the carriage. Maintaining balance and equalizing tension are reinforced spreaders, which are joined to the sling by U-bolt shackles.

* * * * * * * *

200 SNIPERS FAILED TO ROUT
NEGRO TRUCKERS EAST OF RHINE

THE 185TH GENERAL HOSPITAL, England——On his fifth day beyond the Rhine, Private Jefferson Butler, of New Roads, Louisiana, was in one of seven trucks racing toward the front to establish an ammunition dump when his convoy ran into an enemy occupied town and was pinned down by 200 German snipers for more than two hours. The 24-year-old Quartermaster Corps soldier was wounded in the arm. He was flown to this United States Army general hospital.

"About 90 of us were riding up towards the front lines in seven trucks," said Private Butler, "and we had been going through town after town. We just about got into a town called Offenau when shipers opened up all around us. In the first few minutes they smashed radiators and flattened tires on all but the last truck, which was able to turn around and get away.

"The rest of us scrambled out of the disabled vehicles and fought as best we could from the ground. I fired from a ditch with my carbine until I was hit just above the right elbow. There were about 200 Germans but they got only about nine of our men in two hours. Then a dozen reconnaissance cars with heavy machineguns came up to relieve us. I was carried to safety. When I left the fight was going pretty good for us."

Private Butler entered the Army in March 1941 and trained at Camp Lee, Virginia, Camp Blanding, Florida, and Camp Pickett, Virginia. He was sent overseas in August 1942 with a Quartermaster Corps unit and served in Africa, Italy, and France.

* * * * * * * *

MORE

TRUCKERS HELD NIPS AT BAY
UNTIL MARAUDERS ARRIVED

MIAMI BEACH, Florida---Top-kick of a Negro Quartermaster outfit that pushed vitally needed supplies and ammunition over the reopened Burma Road, Master Sergeant Robert Cash, Atlanta, Georgia, veteran of over 17 years' service, asserts that "although the Allies are at last moving in China, the road to Tokyo is still a hard one."

Resting at AAF Regional and Convalescent Hospital, Miami District, where he is awaiting honorable discharge from the Army, Sergeant Cash told of hardships entailed in keeping our motor life-line to China open. Strafings from enemy aircraft, bombed-out roads, monsoons and fog are but a few of the difficulties besetting GIs who pilot the Army's big 2½-ton cargo trucks that haul everything from ammunition to surgical dressings.

At one time, Sergeant Cash's men, traveling over the Burma Road with a combat engineer outfit that had gone along to clear roads and bridges, were ambushed by Jap infantry. Armed only with small weapons and heavily outnumbered, the Tan Yanks, nevertheless managed to keep the enemy at bay until relieved by a detachment of the famed Merrill's Marauders who put the Nips to rout.

Sergeant Cash enlisted in 1928, saw service with the infantry, artillery and engineers before being assigned to the Quartermaster Corps. He spent two years in the China and India-Burma Theaters of Operations.

His mother, Mrs. Leila Dorsey, lives at 916 W. Hunter Street, Atlanta, Georgia.

* * * * * * * *

THREE GIs OPERATE
EFFICIENT AID STATION

MARSEILLE, France---The 780th Military Police First Aid Detachment is said to be one of the most efficiently managed stations of its kind in Delta Base Section, Southern France. The station is operated by three MP Medical soldiers who are technicians in medicine and surgery.

Operating with Company C is Private Edward A. Linder, 1513 18th Street, Santa Monica, California, the medical technician. He gives immunization shots and answers emergency calls in addition to administering medical care to the wounded on piers. Others in the station are Corporal Clayton A. Lisbon, East 3511 Garnet Avenue, Spokane, Washington, and Corporal John A. Smith, Jr., 1283 East 59th Street, Los Angeles, California, surgical specialists.

Thirteen months overseas, they wear the Good Conduct Medal and are entitled to the bronze service star for participation in the invasion of Southern France.

* * * * * * * *

MILLION PATIENTS CARRIED BY AMBULANCE BATTALION

WITH U.S. FORCES EAST OF THE RHINE---Working with divisions at the front since the days before St. Lo, Companies 558, 559, 560 and 592 of the 428th Medical Battalion have carried more than 1,200,000 patients in their ambulances operating with the U.S. First Army.

The battalion is one of the important links in the Army Medical Corps between the armies and Communications Zone for the evacuation of wounded to rear areas.

MORE

Two of the companies are now engaged in moving all patients evacuated by air east of the Rhine to base hospitals in Paris, the United Kingdom and United States. The companies first removed the patients from the First Army's evacuation hospitals. From there the wounded are carried to Air Holding units for evacuation by air.

Of the 230,000 patients hauled by the 592nd Ambulance Company, only two were lost, those being caused by enemy action when an ambulance was strafed by enemy aircraft at Malmedy during the German counter-offensive last winter.

Praising the performance and ability of the men under his command, Major John Moring, Fort Wayne, Indiana, said, "I believe and I'm almost certain that this battalion has hauled more patients than any other of its kind on the Continent."

The strength of the companies include four officers and 85 enlisted men. The battalion arrived overseas April 21, 1944, and landed on the Continent last June 28.

The 592nd is servicing an air strip near the Berlin front, where large transport planes unload food supplies and are loaded with wounded soldiers for the return trip.

* * * * * * * *

END

Distribution: Ad
5-30-45

25-43080-450

WAR DEPARTMENT
Bureau of Public Relations
PRESS BRANCH
Tel. - RE 6700
Brs. 3425 and 4860

Service Record

June 9, 1945

I M M E D I A T E R E L E A S E

FIRST NEGRO GIs BACK FROM PACIFIC
FOR DISCHARGE UNDER POINT SYSTEM

FORT MASON, California---Thirty Negro soldiers came back from the Pacific war June 6 for discharge from the Army after doing their part in combat and service units for periods ranging from two to more than three years overseas, the War Department announced today.

They came back to a rousing welcome accorded by the Army and the Navy to the first group of dischargees arriving at the San Francisco Port of Embarkation from the Central Pacific Area. The Army's Fort Mason and Fort McDowell bands and the Navy's Treasure Island bands serenaded them as they debarked from the Navy Transport USS Bergen and boarded a Transportation Corps harbor boat for the short ride to Fort McDowell, the staging area where their transportation to separation centers and some of their processing was arranged.

Red Cross workers gave them fresh milk and cookies; Women's Army Corps enlisted women from Fort Mason provided them with telegraph blanks to be filled out for immediate transmission of safe arrival messages to their homes, and Colonel James Hogan, Post Commander of Fort McDowell, gave them a big dinner, topped by ice cream, and welcomed them officially on behalf of the Army.

Few of the returnees were more widely traveled in the Pacific than Private First Class Arnold Perkins of New York City. Veteran of 36 months in the western area, Perkins had seen action on Saipan, Tinian, Leyte, Two Shima and Okinawa as a member of an amphibious group. In that period he had accumulated 144 points toward discharge. Private Lorenzo Williams, of Chicago, Illinois was out there 30 months and he too saw service on Saipan, Leyte and Okinawa in the same amphibious unit to which Perkins was attached.

Veterans of the 24th Infantry's hard campaigns on Bougainville came back too. Among them were Private First Class Robert Bailey of Atlanta, Georgia and Private First Class Thomas Bartley of Shaw, Mississippi. Bartley had won the Combat Infantryman Badge for his daring and skill in front-line action.

One soldier who almost didn't make it was Private First Class Charles A. Brown, of Salem, New Jersey. He was in a depot company overseas for 36 months and his point total was 86, just one over the present number needed for discharge. Private First Class Frank Bivins, of Nyack, New York, on the other hand had 120 points and a record which included action on Okinawa during his three years overseas.

Two New York soldiers with almost the same number of points came back: Sergeants John Tompkins and Richman Mankertz, with 125 and 121 respectively, and with records of three years service chiefly in the Hawaiian area. They were assigned to what was originally a New York National Guard regiment.

These GIs and all the others who came back with them remained at Fort McDowell less than 24 hours before heading east, north and south by train for the next stops on their way to discharge and return to civilian life by way of the separation centers nearest their homes.

END

DISTRIBUTION: Ad.
2:30 P.M.

FUTURE RELEASE
PLEASE NOTE DATE

Bureau Records

WAR DEPARTMENT
Bureau of Public Relations
NEWS DIVISION
Washington, D. C.

FOR RELEASE MONDAY, JUNE 11, 1945

* * * *

NEGRO ENGINEERS SPEED
REDEPLOYMENT OF TROOPS

WITH U.S. TROOPS, SOUTHERN FRANCE---As Allied powers map plans for the rehabilitation of Europe, Negro troops of the 41st Engineers speed supplies to elements engaged in maintaining supply dumps, construction Prisoner of War camps, hospitals, and staging areas for the processing of troops leaving the European Theater of Operations.

Men of the 41st keep their trucks at high speed conveying rations and clothing to their units in Delta Base Section, under the command of Brigadier General John P. Ratay. Their trucks fan the highways around the clock.

A large number of these troops have seen service in North Africa, Corsica and Southern France. They have supplied their units under enemy fire with their vehicles operating in hub-deep mud.

Among key personnel of the 41st are the following:

ALABAMA: Birmingham--Pvt. Cornelious V. Willinghamm

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA: Washington--Cpl. Robert C. Sanford, 58 South St., N.W.

GEORGIA: Leesburg--Pvt. Jesse L. Simmons; LaGrange--Pvt. B.J. Gilbert, Route 1

INDIANA: Indianapolis--Cpl. Howard Johnson, 2034 Highland St.

KENTUCKY: Louisville--Sgt. Johnson Moran, 439 S. 15th St.

LOUISIANA: Hodge--Pfc. Otis D. Gray

NORTH CAROLINA: Raeford--Staff Sgt. Cleveland McDougald

SOUTH CAROLINA: Conway--Cpl. Joseph Johnson; Charleston--Pvt. Samuel Green, No. 2 Bogart St.

VIRGINIA: Norfolk--Tech. Sgt. Charles W. Gray, 805 Avenue B; Claremont--Cpl. Eugene B. Luster TENNESSEE: Rogerville--Cpl. Philip Fugate, Fugate St.

* * * * * * * *

THREE NEGRO VETS AMONG FIRST R-DAY RETURNEES

MIAMI, Florida---Three Negro veterans of the China-Burma-India campaign were among the first returnees flown here under the Army's Redeployment Plan.

Brought here from India by ATC plane, the three vets have cleared Air Transport Command's Miami Army Air Field en route to their homes on furlough.

Veteran of the trio in point of overseas service was Technician Fourth Grade Ralph W. Garrett, 28, Kildare, Texas, who served 24 months with the Signal Corps in the China-Burma-India Theater of Operations. He plans to open a business of his own when he returns to civilian life.

Farming is the objective for Corporal H. B. Jones, 27, Goldsboro, North Carolina, when he goes into mufti again. Corporal Jones was overseas 22 months.

Wearing the Bronze Star, Private First Class Vincent A. Crowe, 33, is looking forward to returning to his home at 1126 Union Avenue, the Bronx, New York City, after 15½ months overseas.

* * * * * * * *

MORE

52 TRUCKS SENT TO INDIA
OPERATING AFTER 2½ YEARS

ATLANTIC CITY, New Jersey---A man after the heart of all good taxpayers is Captain Wilbur R. Robinson, of Birmingham, Alabama, commanding officer of an all-Negro Air Service Group truck company in India.

Here now at AAF Redistribution Station No. 1, where he has reported for a new duty assignment, Captain Robinson said that when his company started operations in India, trucking Air Forces supplies from sea ports back to inland bases, it had 52 vehicles in operation.

Two and one-half years later when the Captain brought his company back to the United States, it still had the original 52 vehicles in operation.

"That's a good record when you consider we were rolling up from 75 to 100,000 miles a month," said the captain, son of Mr. and Mrs. W.D. Robinson, 2721 6th Avenue, S., Birmingham, "but what makes me feel better is the fact that during the 30 months we were over there I lost only one man--and that was through illness."

Captain Robinson worked as a property manager with the Tennessee Valley Authority before entering the service. Now on "indefinite leave" from the TVA, he hopes to return to that organization "after Japan signs on the dotted line."

* * * * * * * *

OFFICERS WIN OAK LEAVES
AFTER TWO YEARS' SERVICE

WASHINGTON, D.C.---Captain Clarence M. Davenport, Jr., of Detroit, Michigan, a 1943 graduate of West Point and executive officer of the 742nd Antiaircraft Artillery Gun Battalion in New Guinea, and Captain Lee V. Futrell, of Sylvania, Ohio, commanding officer of an all-Negro Engineer General Service Battalion in the Philippines have been promoted to the rank of major, the War Department announced today. Both officers rose from the rank of second lieutenant in a little more than two years.

Major Davenport was the first Negro from the state of Michigan to receive an appointment to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point after maintaining a brilliant scholastic record at the University of Detroit, where he was a pre-medical student.

A resident of Detroit, Major Davenport is the husband of Mrs. Yolandie Davenport and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence M. Davenport, Sr., of 272 Hague Avenue in the Motor City.

His first assignment was to the 207th AAA Automatic Weapons Battalion as a platoon leader, from which position he advanced in rapid succession to adjutant, battalion operations officer and finally battery commander. When the 742nd AAA Gun Battalion was converted into an all-Negro unit early this year, Major Davenport was selected for the responsible position of executive officer and earned his promotion in this capacity.

He was erroneously reported as killed in action at Bougainville several months ago, as a result of his being confused with Lieutenant James Davenport, who was killed in action during a beach assault in the Solomons. The mistake was not discovered until the family and friends of Major Davenport had held memorial services in his honor.

The rugged West Pointer has completed 20 months service in the Southwest Pacific.

Major Futrell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Reat Futrell of Sylvania, Ohio. Inducted into the Army December 9, 1941, Major Futrell is married to Mrs. Francis Futrell, 1125 City Park Avenue, Toledo, Ohio. He took his basic training as an engineer at Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri, and was commissioned in August 1942, at Fort Belvoir, Virginia.

MORE

He attended schools in Sylvania and Toledo, Ohio, and has a brother, Sergeant Thomas D. Futrell, assigned to a Quartermaster truck company in India.

In addition to the Asiatic Pacific Theater Ribbon, Major Futrell also has been awarded the Philippine Liberation Ribbon with a Bronze Star. He has been overseas 16 months.

* * * * * * * *

FIRST GIs FROM 207TH
AA UNIT BACK IN STATES

WITH THE 14TH ANTIAIRCRAFT COMMAND, Southwest Pacific Area---The first group of enlisted men to return to the United States on temporary duty from the all-Negro 207th Antiaircraft Artillery Battalion include the following:

Technical Sergeant Elias Moore, 318 West 6th Street, Washington, North Carolina; Staff Sergeant Herman Robinson, 138 D Alexander Street, Charleston, South Carolina; Sergeant Alex Stewart, 2302 Livecak Street, Houston, Texas; Corporal Dock V. Smith, 718 18th Avenue, Belmar, New Jersey, and Technician Fifth Grade John R. McDonald, 501 Lakin Street, Houston, Texas.

These men have been members of the 207th since its activation at Camp Stewart, Georgia, in 1942, and came overseas in September 1943, serving first in Australia. Two months after their arrival overseas, the unit was ordered to New Guinea, and after serving many months in that area, went to the Netherlands East Indies.

They are entitled to wear the Asiatic-Pacific Theater Ribbon with a Bronze Service Star attached to denote participation in the New Guinea Campaign. They also have been awarded the Good Conduct Medal.

The 207th is under Major General William F. Marquat's 14th Antiaircraft Command. General Marquat, who heads all of General MacArthur's antiaircraft troops, has two all-Negro units under his command, the 207th Antiaircraft Artillery Automatic Weapons Battalion commanded by Major Cato L. Baskerville and the 742nd Antiaircraft Gun Battalion, recently staffed with Negro officer personnel, under Lieutenant Colonel De Maurice Moses, of New York City.

* * * * * * * *

SPECIAL MP UNIT ON DUTY
IN SAN FRANCISCO BAY AREA

FORT MASTON, California---One of the snappiest and proudest military units in the San Francisco Bay Area is the Special Police Detachment, formed recently of Transportation Corps and Quartermaster Corps personnel stationed at Camp John T. Knight, San Francisco Port of Embarkation.

Under command of First Lieutenant Monroe D. Dowling, of 270 Convent Avenue, New York City, the unit has the job of patrolling the Oakland Seventh Street district during evening hours.

Each man was selected on the basis of intelligence, military bearing, discipline, judgment and physical fitness.

The roster of the group follows:

First Lieutenant Monroe D. Dowling, 270 Convent Avenue, New York, N.Y., Commanding Officer; Second Lieutenant David L. Daniel, 5839 S. Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, second in command.

Staff Sgt. John M. Dunn, 29 Seattle St., Boston, Mass.
Sgt. Conway Maupin, 1511 Bolser, Trenton, Mo.
Cpl. John H. Nunn, Route 2, Box 68, Chapel Hill, N.C.
Cpl. Bennie Warren, 2523½ Michigan Ave., Kansas City, Mo.
Cpl. James A. Stevenson, 6118 Hawthorne Ave., Cleveland, Ohio

MORE

Cpl. Sidney White, 705½ W. 27th St., Indianapolis, Ind.
Cpl. Lonnie C. McDowell, 224 N. Ceadar St., Charlotte, N.C.
Cpl. William A. Wilson, 1720 N. Caroline St., Baltimore, Md.
Cpl. Abraham Fields, 1639 O'Fallon St., St. Louis, Mo.
Cpl. Leonard Johnson, 1217 E. 4th St., Waterloo, Iowa
Cpl. Luther Droney, 6326 St. Lawrence Ave., Chicago, Ill.
Cpl. William Graham, Box 15, Burgaw, N.C.
Cpl. James C. Daniels, 218 N. Rosemary Ave., West Palm Beach, Fla.
Pfc. M.L. Dillon, Route 8, Tylertown, Miss.
Pfc. John H. Johnson, 67 Chalkstone Ave., Providence, R.I.
Pfc. Ogenie Majette, 1022 30th St., Newport News, Va.
Pfc. Wesley Ormond, 404 White St., Williamston, N.C.
Pfc. Zery Poole, Star Route, Danville, Va.
Pvt. Edward Brandon, Route 2, Box 43, Oxford, N.C.
Pvt. Clarence Jenkins, 709 Layton Ave., Monroe, La.
Pvt. Charles Turner, 4526 Vincennes Ave., Chicago, Ill.

* * * * * * * *

AWARDED LEGION OF MERIT
FOR ASSISTING LIBERIAN ARMY

FORT BENNING, Georgia---Staff Sergeant Isaac J. Davis of the Third Student Training Regiment, The Infantry School, proudly displays the Legion of Merit.

At present a mess cadre overseer in the Second Battalion of this regiment, Davis won this coveted award for exceptionally meritorious conduct while serving with the Army in North Africa.

Entering the Army in 1941, at Camp Shelby, Mississippi, he was sent to Camp Claiborne, Louisiana, where he helped to organize the 367th Infantry Regiment. After training in Louisiana, the outfit was sent to Camp Davis, North Carolina, and then to Camp Jackson, North Carolina. After completing lengthy training, the outfit was sent to Camp Kilmer, New Jersey, where they remained until they were shipped overseas in February 1943.

Landing at Casablance at the time Rommel was driving through Africa, the 367th was selected to guard important air bases throughout Liberia, then the gateway for European Theater aerial operations. Leaving Casablanca, they were sent to Liberia by way of Freetown and Dakar.

Soon after arriving in Liberia, Sergeant Davis was one of 38 men to be chosen as cadre for an American operated Liberian Officer Candidate School, which, according to Sergeant Davis, differs little from the Officer Candidate School here in Fort Benning.

He was a specialist in bayonet and machinegun training, but at one time or another served as an instructor in every phase of the officer candidate training. After completing two cycles of training, the school was disbanded and Sergeant Davis was at this time awarded the Legion of Merit for his outstanding service as an instructor.

The official citation follows: "For exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding service as instructor in the Officer Student's Company, Officer's Training School, Liberian Frontier Force, from 7 September 1943 to 19 April 1944. By his knowledge of his subjects, skill in instructional methods, patience and ability to understand the pupils' problems, he contributed in a marked degree to the success of the training program and his work has been an important factor in the development of a uniform standard of training among the students.

"His military bearing, courteous manner, ability, and devotion to duty have earned him the respect and admiration of the students under him and the officers over him and have been a direct contribution to the mission of the United States Army Forces in Liberia."

At the same time Sergeant Davis also was decorated by the president of the Liberian Republic.

* * * * * * * *

MORE

SERGEANT CITED FOR LEADERSHIP
IS AWARDED BRONZE STAR MEDAL

WITH THE 93RD INFANTRY DIVISION, Southwest Pacific Area---Sergeant Eligah Malachi, husband of Mrs. Eligah J. Malachi, 761 Nixon Street, Biloxi, Mississippi has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal for heroic action against the enemy at Bougainville, Solomon Islands, from May 15, 1944, to May 19, 1944.

While on combat patrol into enemy territory, Sergeant Malachi and members of an artillery observer's party became separated from the remainder of the patrol when ambushed by the enemy. Sergeant Malachi immediately took charge of his party and reassembled them into a defensive position and was successful in repulsing several enemy attacks during the night. The next day he successfully led his men back to the remainder of the patrol.

"Sergeant Malachi's leadership," according to the official citation, "was undoubtedly responsible for the successful maneuver and it reflects credit upon himself and the Military Service."

* * * * * * * *

ENGINEERS BUILD POW ENCLOSURES,
TAKE ARMY COURSES IN SPARE TIME

WITH ADVANCE SUPPLY TROOPS IN GERMANY---Building transient prisoner of war enclosures for 100,000 of Hitler's former "supermen" has kept the 384th Engineer Battalion's A Company busy since VE-Day, but the Engineer soldiers still find enough spare time to take advantage of the Army's Post-Victory Educational Plan.

In their time off, members of this Negro unit, assigned to the Continental Advance Section in Germany, are taking part in an extensive program of lectures, debates, roundtable discussions, and courses in business administration. Plans are also taking shape for other recreational activities, including athletics and amateur theatricals.

"These two-hour courses given three times weekly are proving valuable, especially in teaching basic fundamentals of post-war living conditions which must be faced," said Lieutenant Carroll E. Henry, Asheville, North Carolina, commanding officer of the company.

Prior to arriving in France, the company was commended by Lieutenant General Alexander M. Patch, Commanding General of the American Seventh Army, for the construction of a 10-mile practice invasion course at Salerno Beach in Italy. Although handicapped by lack of equipment and limited personnel, the company completed the job ahead of schedule.

This invasion course was considered one of the prime factors in the success of the invasion of Southern France. After the invasion, the company cleared the beaches of mines, and moved supplies from the beaches to forward depots. These operations won an additional commendation from General Patch.

"Building the practice invasion course is work of the kind requiring the skill and equipment of an Engineer General Service Regiment," explained Staff Sergeant Jerry Ladd, construction foreman, of Chicago, Illinois, "but we did it in record-breaking time."

* * * * * * * *

TWO NEGRO OFFICERS ASSIGNED TO JAG DEPARTMENT IN PARIS

PARIS, France---The first Negro officers to be assigned to the Judge Advocate General's Department, European Theater of Operations, have arrived in Paris, SHAEF announced today. The officers are Captain James A. McLendon, 409 Oakwood Boulevard, Chicago, Illinois, and Captain Willard B. Ranson, 828 North California Street, Indianapolis, Indiana.

MORE

Captain McLendon, assigned to duty in Paris, was commended for his work on Army Regulations while he was with the Army Regulation Restatement Branch at the Adjutant General's School, then located at Fort Washington, Maryland. Before entering the Army in June 1941, when he served with the 184th Field Artillery, he practiced law in Chicago. He is married to the former Miss Elnora Davis, daughter of Brigadier General Benjamin O. Davis, on duty with the Inspector General's Department.

Assigned to duty in the Normandy Base Section, Captain Ransom entered the Army in June 1941 and was commissioned in the Chemical Warfare Service in July 1942. He transferred to the Judge Advocate General's Department in May 1944 and served as Assistant Trial Judge Advocate at Tuskegee Army Air Field, Tuskegee, Alabama.

He is a graduate of Talladega College, Talladega, Alabama, and Harvard Law School, Cambridge, Massachusetts.

* * * * * * * * *

30 PIONEER WACS MARK
THIRD YEAR IN SERVICE

WITH THE WACS IN ENGLAND---Thirty members of the 6888th Central Postal Directory in England, the only WAC Negro Battalion now serving overseas, this month marked their third year in the service.

These women soldiers represent the first class of officer candidates and enlisted women to be trained at Fort Des Moines, Iowa. Among the first group of Wacs to serve at Army posts and installations in the United States, they were already veteran soldiers when the original Women's Army Auxiliary Corps became the Women's Army Corps in July 1943.

Former school teachers, secretaries, switchboard operators, beauticians and entertainers, this pioneer group exemplifies the high qualifications of the four hundred women chosen to attend the first WAC basic training course, who upon completion of their training formed the nucleus of the organization which now numbers 99,000 women.

One member of the group was formerly an assistant director of war production training, another managed a department store, still another was a newspaper editor and recreational instructor.

The Postal Unit, second all-WAC battalion in the European Theater, changes daily an average of 30,000 addresses of soldiers who are battle casualties, reinforcements or transfers. The detachment is self-sustaining with its own mess, supply, transport and special service personnel.

Names of the 30 Wacs follow:

ALABAMA: Tuskegee--Capt. Abbie N. Campbell, Tuskegee Institute, Battalion Executive Officer.

CONNECTICUT: Bridgeport--Capt. Mary F. Kearney, 406 Newfield Ave., Chief of Directory Service.

GEORGIA: Atlanta--1st Lt. Corrine Sherrard, 942 W. Fair St., Mess Officer; Marietta--Pvt. Lettie R. Williams, 507 Lemon St., Mail Clerk.

ILLINOIS: Alton--1st Lt. Dorothy Scott, 1218 Willis St., Postal Officer; Chicago--1st Lt. Violet W. Hill, 4559 S. Wabash Ave., Assistant Chief of Directory Service.

INDIANA: Indianapolis--1st Lt. Doris N. Cable, 423 N. West St., Postal Officer.

LOUISIANA: New Orleans--Cpl. Velma L. White, 4626 Allen St., Postal Clerk.

MORE

MASSACHUSETTS: Boston--Capt. Mildred D. Carter, 522 Columbus Ave., Special Service Officer.

MICHIGAN: Detroit--1st Lt. Mildred V. Dupee, 7273 American Ave., Postal Officer; 1st Lt. Willia G. Cherry, 5758 Woodrow Ave., Postal Officer; Sgt. Ruth Wade, 4609 Pangor St., Postal Clerk; Cpl. Annie L. Braceful, 634 Holbrock St., Postal Clerk.

NEW JERSEY: Newark--Sgt. Edith M. Linzey, 713 S. 11th St., Postal Clerk.

NEW YORK: Brooklyn--1st Lt. Fannie A. Griffin, 1891 Bergen St., Postal Officer; Sgt. Mattie E. Garrett, 392 Jefferson Ave., NCO in Charge of Directory Room; New York City--First Sgt. Cleopatra Daniels, 34 St. Nicholas Pl., Battalion Sergeant Major; Cpl. Doris E. Stewart, 259 W. 152nd St., Switchboard Operator.

OHIO: Columbus--Cpl. Hazel Russell, 222½ N. 20th St., Switchboard Operator; Hamilton--Capt. Vera A. Harrison, 1266 Lane St., Commanding Officer Company D.

PENNSYLVANIA: Philadelphia--Sgt. Lillian Jones, 2330 Catherine St., Postal Clerk; Washington--Cpl. Helen Streibling, 241 Burton St., Corporal of the Guard.

SOUTH CAROLINA: Columbia--Maj. Charity Adams, 217 Lacy St., Battalion Commander.

TEXAS: Dallas--Cpl. Ernestine E. Hughes, 2509 Bryan St., Public Relations NCO; Houston--2nd Lt. Colonia V. Powell, 2208 Bastrop St., Postal Officer.

WEST VIRGINIA: Kimball--Cpl. Lelia M. Watkins, Mail Clerk Company D.

WISCONSIN: Milwaukee--Sgt. Evelyn S. Ross, 3340 W. Stevenson St., Cook.

VIRGINIA: Ashland--1st Lt. Vashti B. Tonkins, Commanding Officer Company B.

* * * * * * * *

CHAPLAIN AWARDED
BRONZE STAR MEDAL

PARIS, France--Chaplain (Captain) Beverly M. Ward, of 1112 N. 13th St., Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal for "Meritorious service in connection with military operations from October 10, 1944 to December 31, 1944."

The citation read in part: "Chaplain Ward delivered lectures to over 25,000 troops during this period. He conducted orientation courses with other chaplains concerning the best methods of combatting the crime situation. As a result of his untiring efforts, there has been a marked improvement in the morale and behavior of these troops. Chaplain Ward's display of sound judgment and initiative on this important mission have been of beneficial value to the troops whom he has lectured."

Before entering the Army in July 1943, Chaplain Ward was the pastor of Capitol Street Presbyterian Church in Harrisburg. His wife, Mrs. Pearl E. Ward and their two children, Beverly M., Jr., 17, and Louis Conway, 8, live at the 13th Street address.

Chaplain Ward has been on detached service with the Provost Marshal from the 64th Ordnance Battalion. Major General Milton A. Reckord, Provost Marshal, European Theater of Operations, made the presentation.

* * * * * * * *

MORE

FIRST TRIP ALOFT DECIDED CAREER FOR FIGHTER PILOT

ATLANTIC CITY, New Jersey---His first ride in an Army plane decided the career of Captain Harry Sheppard, Negro P-51 pilot of Corona, New York. It was then, he told interviewers at the AAF Redistribution Station No. 1 here, that he decided to take to the air for life.

The captain entered the Army Air Forces as an airplane mechanic, but no sooner did he land after that first flight than he put in for flying cadet school and was accepted.

"It was the happiest day of my life when they pinned those silver wings on me," he said. "I was up in the air with my feet still on the ground, and before the effect of that had worn off I was on a boat headed for Italy."

There he flew 123 combat missions and won the Air Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters.

"My tour was pretty easy," he recalls. "Most of my missions were escorting 15th Air Force bombers and Jerry never seemed to come around when I was up. Guess I was lucky, because the worst damage I had over there was on one low level raid when I got a few flak holes in the bottom of my fuselage."

Captain Sheppard is now awaiting his next Air Forces assignment at this station. While here he will be examined by doctors and interviewed by personnel specialists to determine where he can best fit into the AAF set-up and continue to aid the war effort. Here he will be given an opportunity to relax after his overseas tour and to be in the best physical condition to take up his new duties.

The captain is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert A. Sheppard, who live in Shrub Oak, New York. His wife is the former Amy D. Casserly, of 31-36 98th Street, New York City.

* * * * * * * *

NEGRO DOUGHS OF 78TH DIVISION
GO ON FURLOUGH TO ENGLAND

WITH THE 78TH INFANTRY DIVISION---Thirty months add up to 2½ years. That's a long time to be "sweating out" a pass. But for eight men of the Negro volunteer infantry platoon of the 309th Regiment, 78th "Lightning" Division, a big day has arrived.

For eight of them there is a seven-day furlough to England, and it's the first genuine pass they have had in the European Theater of Operations.

Most of the men in the platoon have served 30 months over here, having landed in North Africa, fought in Italy, then France and Germany. They were with service units when they volunteered for the the infantry in France.

And since the Remagen bridgehead they have fought gallantly with the men of the 78th Division.

"This is a real treat," said Private First Class Joseph W. Thomas, Jr., 446 Fenchurch Street, Norfolk, Virginia. "The infantry sure takes care of you."

"I always wanted to go to England," grinned Private First Class Otis Taylor, Jr., 3530 South Street, Chicago, Illinois, "My original outfit landed in North Africa way back there."

MORE

Other members of the Negro platoon who drew furloughs to England are Sergeant John H. Hawkins, Jr., 5354 East Capital Street, Washington, D.C., Private First Class Eugene Hoskins, 3225 Rhodes Avenue, Chicago, Illinois; Private First Class Oscar Lewis, 6 Rooker Street, Bluefield, West Virginia; Private First Class Sheard Humphrey, Covington, Georgia; Private First Class Richard P. Williams, Jr., 1005 K Street, Sparrow Point, Maryland, and Private First Class William H. Smith, 2339 Alvin Street, Knoxville, Tennessee.

END

Distribution: Ad.
6-6-45

25-44303-450

WAR DEPARTMENT
Bureau of Public Relations
PRESS BRANCH
Tel. - RE 6700
Brs. 3425 and 4860

Service Record

June 15, 1945

I M M E D I A T E R E L E A S E

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESS:

In answer to a query, Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Forces, today released the following statement:

SHAEF has issued no instructions written or verbal that UNRRA (United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration) Negro personnel may not be used in positions of authority or in any other positions at displaced persons camps.

SHAEF has fully supported provisions of UNRRA Resolution Number 37 in all its discussions with UNRRA on personnel policy.

* * * *

NOTE TO EDITOR: Attached hereto is a list of numbered vehicles and their occupants who will comprise General Eisenhower's motorcade in Washington, D.C., June 18. Negro personnel include Master Sergeant Sylvester E. Buckner, assigned to Car No. 8 and Technical Sergeant Eugene Jackson, who will ride in Car No. 10. A total of 23 enlisted men will accompany General Eisenhower.

END

DISTRIBUTION: Ad.
3:30 p.m.

WAR DEPARTMENT
Bureau of Public Relations
PRESS BRANCH
Tel. - RE 6700
Brs. 3425 and 4860

June 15, 1945

I M M E D I A T E R E L E A S E

LIST OF NUMBERED VEHICLES AND THEIR OCCUPANTS
WHO WILL COMPRISE GENERAL EISENHOWER'S MOTORCADE IN WASHINGTON, D. C.

Herewith is a list of the vehicles and their occupants as they will appear in order in the cavalcade of General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower as the General and his party of officers and enlisted men pass through Washington, D. C. Monday, June 18, en route to the Capitol.

Occupants of the first two cars will vary between National Airport and The Pentagon and between The Pentagon and the Capitol. From the Air Transport Command Terminal at National Airport Car No. 1 will transport General of the Army George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff, United States Army; General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, Supreme Commander Allied Expeditionary Force, and Captain Harry C. Butcher, USNR, Aide to General Eisenhower.

Car No. 2 will transport General Thomas T. Handy, Deputy Chief of Staff, United States Army; Lieutenant General Walter Bedell Smith, Chief of Staff, Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force; Colonel Woodrow W. Stromberg, Aide to General Eisenhower, and Master Sergeant Michael J. McKeogh, from National Airport to The Pentagon.

At The Pentagon, where the Secretary of War, the Honorable Henry L. Stimson, will greet General Eisenhower, General Marshall will leave the motorcade. Car No. 1, bearing General Eisenhower and General Smith, and Car No. 2, bearing Captain Butcher, Colonel Stromberg, and Master Sergeant McKeogh, will lead the motorcade from The Pentagon to the Capitol.

CAR NO.
1	General George C. Marshall (to Pentagon only) General Dwight D. Eisenhower Captain Harry C. Butcher, USNR (Car No. 2 from Pentagon)
2	General Thomas T. Handy (to Pentagon only) Lt. General Walter Bedell Smith (Car No. 1 from Pentagon) Colonel Woodrow W. Stromberg Master Sergeant Michael J. McKeogh
3	Vice Admiral Alan G. Kirk Lieutenant Commander Richard T. Craff, USNR Sergeant Millard R. Lewis
4	Major General Harold Roe Bull Captain Dick M. Campbell Technical Sergeant Morris H. Smith
5	Major General Robert H. Littlejohn Captain Chauncey B. Scott Sergeant R. W. Davisson
6	Major General David M. Schlatter Lieutenant Colonel Ernest R. Lee Technical Sergeant Eugene L. Pottier
7	Brigadier General Thomas Jefferson Davis Lieutenant James Gordon Grayson, USNR Technical Sergeant Virgil F. Clubb
8	Brigadier General Butler B. Miltonberger Lieutenant Richard K. Reed Master Sergeant Sylvester E. Buckner

MORE

CAR NO.
9	Colonel Edward M. Fickett Captain Sanford K. Moats Sergeant Earl R. Kauffman
10	Colonel Albert G. Duncan Lieutenant Colonel G. G. Garton Technical Sergeant Eugene Jackson
11	Colonel Jacob W. Bealke, Jr. Major Edward E. Beaty Private First Class Vernon H. Jancen
12	Colonel Frank Dunkley Captain Frank R. Marshall, Jr. Staff Sergeant Howard A. Lundblade
13	Lieutenant Colonel Arthur M. Briggs Staff Sergeant Oscar K. Fettig Staff Sergeant Herbert J. Crawford, Jr.
14	First Sergeant Calvin D. Hammel Technical Sergeant Donelson Technician Third Grade Ernest F. Koerterich
15	First Sergeant Walter P. Sapp Staff Sergeant Ulysses C. Farmer Technician Fifth Grade Elmer C. Ball
16	Captain Raymond E. Hartley, Jr. Sergeant Gerald I. Ball Corporal Richard T. Corridan
17	Captain Lester B. Johnson Sergeant Dale G. Irick Technician Fourth Grade Albert M. Graves
18	First Lieutenant Charles V. Neath Technical Sergeant Cleo A. Dekat Technical Sergeant John D. Moody

END

DISTRIBUTION: N, Y.

FUTURE RELEASE
PLEASE NOTE DATE

Service Board

WAR DEPARTMENT
Bureau of Public Relations
PRESS BRANCH
Tel. - RE 6700
Brs. 3425 and 4860

FOR RELEASE MONDAY, JUNE 18, 1945

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESS:

Following is an excerpt from the Secretary of War's Press Conference held June 14, in The Pentagon:

"Two Negro port companies, both now in the Hawaiian Islands, have been awarded Meritorious Service Unit Plaques. One, commanded by First Lieutenant Lewis E. Koppitch, 4033 Martin Avenue, Detroit, Michigan, landed with assault troops January 20, 1944 on Carlson Island in the Marshalls to prepare port installations in support of the Kwajalein invasion. The other, commanded by First Lieutenant Glenn E. McCreary, 22 Wright Street, Willoughby, Ohio, was cited for maintaining high standard efficiency in ship loading operations in the port of Honolulu."

* * *

Brief biographical data on the two Negro enlisted men who have been selected to accompany the party of General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, Supreme Commander, Allied Expeditionary Forces, at public ceremonies, follows:

MASTER SERGEANT SYLVESTER E. BUCKNER, 27, born in Seminole, Oklahoma. He served as chief clerk of the 613th Quartermaster Depot Supply Company which operated in the European Theater of Operations. A graduate of Central High School, Omaha, Nebraska, Buckner joined the Army in 1939 while a student at the University of Omaha. He arrived overseas in 1942 and wears the Bronze Star Medal for meritorious achievement and the ETO ribbon. His wife, Mrs. Delores Buckner, and son, Stephen, live at 14057 Orleans Avenue, Detroit, Michigan.

TECHNICAL SERGEANT EUGENE JACKSON, 25, born in Mepia, Texas. He served as a warehouseman for the 613th Quartermaster Depot Supply Company. Jackson joined the Army in 1939 and arrived overseas in 1942. His wife, Mrs. Ruth Jackson, and daughter, Betty Jeanne, live at 514 Emmitt Street, Fayetteville, North Carolina. He wears the bronze service star on his ETO ribbon.

Both of the above are eligible for discharge under the point system.

END

DISTRIBUTION: Ad.

Service Records

FUTURE RELEASE

PLEASE NOTE DATE

WAR DEPARTMENT
Bureau of Public Relations
NEWS DIVISION
Washington, D. C.

FOR RELEASE MONDAY, JUNE 18, 1945

* * * *

Those receiving awards and the text of the official citations, in part, are as follows:

SILVER STAR

To: PRIVATE FIRST CLASS JUNE JEFFERSON, JR., 343 Bainbridge Street, Brooklyn, New York.

"....then private, Infantry, Company A, 414th Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action in Germany on April 9, 1945. When an enemy tank crashed through a road block and entered a recently captured town, Private Jefferson voluntarily and at great risk to his life, crossed open, fire-swept terrain in the face of direct fire from the tank, made his way to the house where the tank was located, and dropped incendiary and fragmentation grenades into the open turret of the tank, causing it to catch fire. As the crew emerged, he killed them with his rifle. He then returned to his position and quickly organized an assault on the enemy riflemen who were supporting the tank, killing, wounding or capturing all of the enemy infantrymen. Private Jefferson's audacious gallantry and intrepidity in attacking and destroying an enemy tank single-handedly exemplify the finest traditions of the American combat soldier."

To: PRIVATE FIRST CLASS BEN T. BROWN, 5018 Washington Avenue, Charleston, West Virginia.

"....then private, Infantry, Company G, 413th Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action in Germany on April 1, 1945. Courageously and at great risk to his life, Private Brown crawled one hundred yards under withering, aimed enemy machinegun fire to the side of his platoon leader. After administering first aid, he moved the wounded man to a position of defilade and returned across the same treacherous route until he found an aid man. Guiding the aid man, he crawled back to the wounded man's position where first aid was administered, saving the life of the seriously wounded man. By his intrepidity and courage in the face of enemy fire, Private Brown saved the life of his leader, and his action, far above and beyond the call of duty, exemplifies the finest traditions of the armed forces of the United States."

To: STAFF SERGEANT CLAUDE PIERCE, JR., 308 South 5th Street, Easton, Pennsylvania.

"....then private first class, Infantry, Company A, 414th Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action in Germany on April 13, 1945. When a tank was hit and set afire by enemy artillery, Sergeant Pierce dashed across open terrain in the face of devastating enemy fire to remove the trapped crew. Although twice knocked from the tank by the concussion of near misses from direct enemy artillery fire, he climbed back on the flaming tank, extinguished the fire, and removed the crew from the tank. After administering first aid, he carried the more seriously wounded men across two hundred yards of fire-swept terrain to safety and medical aid. The gallantry and cool courage in the face of grave danger displayed by Sergeant Pierce, far above and beyond the call of duty, exemplify the finest tradition of the American combat soldier."

BRONZE STAR MEDAL

To: SERGEANT OCIE J. CALHOUN, 612 East Trent Street, Flint, Michigan.

"....Advancing into a town to make contact with elements of another battalion, Sergeant Calhoun's squad encountered heavy enemy fire. Undaunted, he skilfully deployed his men and courageously exposed himself to enemy fire to lead them into the town and complete the mission. He then led his squad in flushing out enemy soldiers in the town, capturing several prisoners. The courage and intense devotion to duty displayed by Sergeant Calhoun are in keeping with the finest traditions of the American combat soldier and reflect distinct credit on this non-commissioned officer and the military service."

To: TECHNICAL SERGEANT HOWARD WILLIAMS, 284 East Warren Street, Detroit, Michigan.

"....After being driven back three times in attempting to reach a wounded man lying exposed to enemy fire on open terrain, Sergeant Williams enlisted the aid of a tank. Using it for partial cover from the hail of enemy fire, he crossed six hundred yards of open terrain, and guided two litter bearers to the spot. After administering first aid, the three men evacuated the seriously wounded man. The fearless determination and undaunted courage displayed by Sergeant Williams exemplify the highest traditions of the American combat soldier, and reflect the highest credit on himself and the military service."

MORE

To: PRIVATE FIRST CLASS SILAS SMITH, 473 Hancock Street, Brooklyn, New York.

"....then private, Infantry, Company A, 414th Infantry, United States Army, for heroic achievement in connection with military operations in Germany on April 13, 1945. Voluntarily and at great risk to his life, Private Smith crossed a fire-swept bridge to reconnoiter the territory on the other side and determine the strength of the enemy forces. Despite the heavy fire, Private Smith made his way to an advantageous position, but his observation revealed nothing. Starting back, he discovered an enemy half-track and several soldiers covering the bridge. Without hesitation he threw his last grenade, setting the vehicle on fire, and then killed or captured the enemy troops, thus paving the way for his safe return. His courage and devotion to duty reflect the highest credit on himself and the military service."

To: PRIVATE FIRST CLASS PETER DODSON, 81 Orchard, Roslyn Heights, Long Island, New York.

"....leading a patrol into enemy territory, Private Dodson (then private) was wounded in the hand, but he tenaciously continued his mission. Observing an enemy tank two hundred yards distant, he advanced alone, threw a rock at the tank to attract attention, and shot the tank commander with a captured pistol when he emerged from the tank. The remainder of the tank crew were so terror-stricken that they immediately surrendered. The audacious intrepidity and cool courage displayed by Private Dodson exemplify the finest traditions of the American combat soldier, reflecting the highest credit upon himself and the military service."

To: STAFF SERGEANT GARNET A. TRAVIS, 1 Columbus Street, Lawton, Oklahoma.

"....then private first class, Infantry, Company A, 414th Infantry Regiment, United States Army, for heroic achievement in connection with military operations in Germany on April 10, 1945. In order to gain vital information about the enemy in the territory through which his company was to advance, Sergeant Travis led a patrol toward enemy lines. When the patrol was held up by gun fire, Sergeant Travis, locating a self-propelled gun, set out alone to eliminate it. As he neared the objective, he found an enemy bazooka in working order and scored a direct hit on the gun with it. Two enemy soldiers surrendered and the others fled. The completion of his self-assigned mission enabled his company to take its objective against a minimum of resistance."

To: PRIVATE FIRST CLASS JAMES E. HALLUMS, 218 Lee Street, Anderson, South Carolina.

"....then private, Infantry, Company A, 414th Infantry, United States Army, for heroic achievement in connection with military operations in Germany on March 27, 1945. When his companion was seriously wounded by enemy fire while engaged in clearing a town of enemy snipers, Private Hallums called for aid men and continued the mission alone. Spotting an enemy sniper he dashed across an open street, hurling a grenade in a window as he ran, and killing the enemy soldier. As a result of Private Hallums' fearless courage and willingness to close with the enemy, the task force was able to proceed through the town without further casualties, and his actions, above and beyond the call of duty, reflect the highest credit upon himself and the armed forces of the United States."

MORE

To: TECHNICAL SERGEANT LEON A. WHITCROFT, R.F.D. 1, Clay, Pennsylvania.

"....when one of the tanks in an armor-infantry column was immobilized by enemy fire, Sergeant Whitcroft, on his own volition, set out to reconnoiter the enemy road block and supporting enemy tank. Quickly taking an azimuth of the enemy tank with his compass, he returned to the column and reported the location of the tank to a tank commander. Using this information, the tank commander fired several rounds and disabled the enemy tank, forcing the supporting infantry to withdraw. The skilful leadership and fearless courage displayed by Sergeant Whitcroft exemplify the finest traditions of the American soldier and combat leader."

* * * * * * * *

EIGHT BULLETS AND LOUD VOICE
ROUTED NAZI PATROL IN ITALY

BATTLE CREEK, Michigan---Eight rounds of ammunition and a loud voice were all that Corporal James L. Humes of Detroit, Michigan, had to halt a Nazi patrol in Italy and save his litter squad and some wounded Yanks--but he did the job. Now a patient in Percy Jones General Hospital, Battle Creek, Michigan, this veteran of the 92nd Infantry Division has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal for rescuing six wounded men under fire.

Corporal Humes lost his right leg on April 6 when he set off an anti-personnel mine during the second day of the big Allied push which led to the complete collapse of the German troops in Italy.

The story of how Corporal Humes won the Bronze Star Medal is another "truth is stranger than fiction" testimonial to the courage and ingenuity shown by American fighting men when faced by larger odds.

It goes back to the night of November 7, 1944. Humes had been on observation posts for three days when the big attack began and he was ordered to accompany his battalion commander and a guide to the top of a hill while communication lines were being laid.

At the top of a hill, the commander stepped on a mine and was seriously wounded. The Italian guide was wounded by the same mine fragments. Staying with them under fire until nightfall, Humes loaded the wounded Italian on his back, put his arm around the captain and somehow staggered and plunged through the darkness to the American lines.

No sooner had the two wounded men been taken over by the first aid men when a call came from the top of the same hill that four more lay wounded.

"I was assigned to the job of guide," said Humes. "I had just dropped off my ammunition belt and was all set to fall in to that much-needed sleep when the call came. I grabbed my rifle and eight rounds of ammunition and we started out, two medics and 14 'pizons' or Italian litter bearers and myself.

"When we were half way up the hill, one of the Italians spotted about 12 Jerries on patrol 25 yards above us. The Jerries saw us about the same time and headed in our direction.

"There we were, 14 Italians, two medics and myself, with one rifle and eight rounds of ammunition among us. The Italians were all for getting out of there. I talked to them, using what little Italian I knew, and they decided to stay. In the excitement, we lost track of the two medics. Then I began yelling at the approaching Germans to stop, threatening them that if they came any nearer, we'd let them have all the grenades we had--which were exactly none."

When asked what he really told them, Humes grinned.

"Well, I promised to blow them straight to hell," he admitted.

MORE

"And believe it or not, those Jerries stopped in their tracks. But I sure sweated. The bluff worked all right. We didn't have a grenade in the crowd--just those eight rounds of ammunition and one rifle. We wouldn't have had a chance at all."

While the Germans were talking it over, the young corporal wasted no time in leading his party around the side of the hill and up over, sneaking above the Germans until they found the four wounded men. Two were litter cases. The job of getting those litters and the other two wounded men down a narrow trail that dropped 300 feet in the pitch darkness was not an easy one, Humes admits.

Corporal Humes, who gives his address as 5245 Williams Avenue, Detroit, has been in service since January 1942, and went overseas last September. His parents live in Beckley, West Virginia.

* * * * * * * *

HERO OF SHIP DISASTER
FLOWN HOME FROM ITALY

MIAMI, Florida---Flown back to the States from Italy by an ocean-spanning plane of the Air Transport Command, Staff Sergeant Arnett W. Lee, of Memphis, Tennessee, who last March was awarded the Soldier's Medal for outstanding courage in effecting the rescue of a number of his fellow soldiers trapped on a torpedoed ship, is en route home on furlough after clearing ATC's Miami Army Air Field.

A veteran of 37 months in the service, of which he spent 29 months overseas, Sergeant Lee was in charge of a group of men aboard a transport in the Mediterranean when, without warning, an enemy torpedo struck the ship, killing a number of his men outright, and wounding and trapping others in debris in the hold.

Despite the danger of the continually rising water and the shifting debris, Sergeant Lee let himself down into the hold with a rope and with feverish work managed to clear away enough debris to rescue the wounded men. He left the hold only on orders of the captain of the ship, when rising waters made further rescue work impossible.

In addition to the Soldier's Medal, Sergeant Lee wears five battle stars on his theater ribbons and the Purple Heart for wounds received in action. His original assignment overseas was with an antiaircraft organization, and he was later transferred to a Quartermaster Corps truck company.

Before entering the Army he was employed as an assistant chemist with a textile finishing company in Memphis, and plans to return to that job following his discharge from the Army.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lee, who live with his two daughters at 1023 North Manassas Avenue, Memphis.

* * * * * * * *

THREE MORE NEGRO GIs
HOME UNDER R-DAY PLAN

MIAMI, Florida---Returned to this country under the recently announced Army redeployment plan, three Negro GI's last week cleared Air Transport Command's Miami Army Air Base on the last lap of their homeward journey.

They were Corporal Joe N. Jones, 35, 916 NW 6th Street, Fort Lauderdale, Florida; Private Norman White, 26, RFD 2, Box 76B, Tallahassee, Florida, and Private Robert Motley, 31, 3332 Chestnut Street, Prattsville, Alabama, and were flown here from their overseas bases in ocean-spanning ATC planes.

A veteran of 26 months' combat duty with the Quartermaster Corps in Italy, Corporal Jones wears the European Theater ribbon with five battle stars. He is the husband of Mrs. Claudas M. Jones of Fort Lauderdale.

MORE

Private White, who served 15 months with the 366th Infantry Regiment in Italy, plans to go into defense work upon release from service. He is the son Mrs. Ida Mae White, 360 West Oake Street, Chicago, Illinois.

A former power plant employee, Private Motley was on duty with the Army Engineer Corps in the China-Burma-India theater for 22 months. He is the husband of Mrs. Clara May Motley, Prattville

* * * * * * * *

NEGRO MEDICS PROCESS
U.S. MAIL IN SCOTLAND

724th MEDICAL SANITARY COMPANY, SCOTLAND---Because of the lack of United States Army postal personnel in this sector, a group of men of this medical unit are processing and assorting incoming and outgoing U.S. mail.

In addition to their chief assignment as medical-aid technicians these men have acquired much skill in processing approximately 7,000 bags of mail of an average of 50 pounds each in 48 hours. The mail is loaded on mail trains and ships which transports it to towns and cities throughout the British Isles.

Men working with this group are:

ALABAMA

Cpl. Richard L. Lockhart, Route 3, Waverly.

GEORGIA

Cpl. Willie R. Banks, Route 1, Box 88, Hartwell.
Pfc. Johnnie Bankston, Route 1, Molena.
Pfc. Robert Bailey, 208 Atlanta Avenue, Winder
Pfc. Fred Barkley, Route 4, Forsythe.
Cpl. Otha L. Bonner, 911 Albany Street, Bainbridge.
Pfc. McKinley J. Bowman, Route 1, Macon.
Pvt. Sam Green, 809 River Road, Albany.
Pfc. Sam Grice, Amsterdam.
Staff Sgt. J.D. Herring, Wigham.
Pfc. J.D. Johnson, Route 1, Union Point.
Pfc. Marion Jones, Route 1, Williamson.
Sgt. Jack McCullough, Pelham.
Pfc. Andrew Moore, Route 1, Bolingbrook.
Pfc. Ernest Oliver, Hartwell.
Pfc. Conolus Scott, Route 1, Danielsville.
Cpl. Eddie B. Heard, 14 Old Decatur Road, Atlanta.
Pfc. Charlie Paden, Stonemountain.
Cpl. Sam Hunt, Route 2, Monticello.

FLORIDA

Staff Sgt. Andrew Pooler, Route 4, Lake City
Pfc. Ben Thomas, Cross City.

INDIANA

Cpl. James A. Hill, 222½ Indiana Avenue, Indianapolis.

NEW YORK

Pfc. John D. King, 13 East Peckham Street, Buffalo.

PENNSYLVANIA

Sgt. Oliver Scott, 926 N. 43rd Street, Philadelphia.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Pvt. Johnnie E. Benson, Route 3, Lancaster.

MORE

TENNESSEE

Sgt. James Adams, 500 Poster Street, Clarksville.
Cpl. Wilburn Carr, 793 Edith Street, Memphis.
Pfc. J.C. Flinn, 1786 Euclid Avenue, Memphis.
Pvt. Nathaniel Haynes, Route 1, Henry.
Sgt. Isiah Sermon, 1485 Barton Street, Memphis.

VIRGINIA

Pfc. James L. Carter, Route 2, Chatham.

* * * * * * * *

MEDICS ARE COMMENDED
FOR PERFORMANCE IN ETO

WITH THE U.S. FORCES IN EUROPE---The 1st Engineer Medical Detachment in France has been commended for efficiency and meritorious service in the fight against the Germans.

Staff Sergeant Robert Wilson, Jr., 1216 Brown Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, is the NCO in charge of the enlisted men of the detachment.

The unit maintained a staff of surgical technicians, medical staffers, a sick and wounded personnel staff, first aid men, ambulance drivers, vehicle operators, instructors, supply men, dental experts and malaria control teams.

The following personnel comprise the detachment:

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA: Washington--Private First Class Alonzo H. Johnson, 1759 R Street, N.W.

MISSOURI: St. Louis--Technician Fifth Grade Charles W. Batt, 250 A Taylor Avenue.

NORTH CAROLINA: Charlotte--Private First Class Alphonso Davidson, 1814 Lloyd; Reidsville--Private First Class Johnson Richardson, 35 Branch Street; Winston Salem--Private First Class Arthur J. Peterson, 821½ Cleveland Avenue.

TENNESSEE: Savannah--Technician Fifth Grade Leonard V. Thornton.

TEXAS: Kingsville--Private Jacob C. Williams, Jr., 1523 West Johnson.

VIRGINIA: Portsmouth--Technician Fifth Grade Joseph Ray, Jr., 2005 Green Street.

* * * * * * * *

VETERAN OF TWO WARS
LANDS IN SAME PORT

WITH U.S. TROOPS, SOUTHERN FRANCE---Disembarkation at the same southern French port in two wars is the unusual experience of First Sergeant Samuel Devaughn, 330 Braggsmith Street, Columbus, Georgia, now serving with Company A, 41st Engineers. Sergeant Devaughn enlisted in 1917 with the old 24th Infantry and in 1918 went overseas and fought in France.

"What's different from the last war in France," he said, "is that this time there are far more Negro soldiers in action." He added that in the last World War, the old 92nd Division with elements of the 8th Illinois, 15th New York National Guard and the 370th were the only Negro outfits in combat.

In 1940, he was assigned to the 41st Engineers and in the same year went overseas with them to North Africa. Here he had the pleasure of meeting President Roosevelt while acting as his chauffeur when the late President toured the country in company with President Barclay of Liberia.

MORE

"I have a deep and profound admiration for the people of the Liberian Republic," said Sergeant Devaughn adding, "they are so warm, sympathetic, understanding, and hospitable to all." He took an active part in promoting closer relations between the United States and the Liberian Republic and received the coveted Legion of Merit award for his services.

His wife, Mrs. Katherine Devaughn, lives in Columbus, Georgia.

* * * * * * * *

REVIEW COMBAT HISTORY OF FIRST
NEGRO UNIT TO LAND IN FRANCE

WITH THE 1104th ENGINEER COMBAT GROUP, GERMANY---Since June 6, 1944 men of the 582nd Engineer Dump Truck Company have been in the thick and thin of the Normandy, Northern France, and Germany campaigns. At the beginning of May, they had spent only 30 days in rear echelon areas. The other ten months found them at one time or other in one of nine different engineer combat groups of two armies--the First and the Ninth, as they fought and worked on the beachhead, in the Carentan region, at St. Lo, on the fringe of the German's Ardennes breakthrough in December, at the Roer and Rhine Rivers assault crossings, and now, deep in the heart of Germany.

They made up the first company of the initial assault forces to land intact on Utah Beach, and they were the first Negro troops to touch European soil, landing on D-Day, H-plus-two hours.

Within three hours after the order, "GO IN LCT X ! GOOD LUCK AND GOD BLESS YOU," was barked from a patrol boat off the beach, they had 44 trucks loaded with TX (hasty) bridge equipment ashore. They preceded many seaborne infantry troops in the rush of the enemy held bluffs overlooking the beaches; they roared ahead in support of the 4th Infantry Division of the First U.S. Army; they scored another "first" when they established the first kitchen on the beachhead at 1300 hours.

First Sergeant Norman Day, 303 Washington Avenue, Danville, Illinois, directed beach traffic on June 6 in such an efficient, meritorious manner that his efforts were singled out by a British general and he was awarded the British Distinguished Service Medal. In the vicinity of Ste Marie du Mont a few days later, he saved the life of an American lieutenant colonel by administering prompt first aid when a Nazi bomb landed in the area. The explosion killed six infantrymen.

On the beachhead, the 582nd carted away thousands of mines dug out from the vast German defensive system by engineers of the 1106th Engineer Combat Group. Servicing the 82nd and the 101st Airborne Divisions in addition to the 4th Infantry, they assisted in keeping front-line troops supplied with ammunition, food, mines, mine detector equipment, and bridging materials. They hauled 6,000 mines for the famed 101st, to provide for defensive protection against a frontal attack south of Meautis in the Carentan region. On one such trucking mission, Sergeant James L. Harris, Lexington, North Carolina, downed a strafing German fighter plane with his truck-mounted .50 caliber machinegun.

When ploughing Doughboys were unable to keep in contact with the retreating enemy, men of the 582nd inaugurated a unique taxi system ferrying infantrymen to the front lines and returning with casualties and prisoners of war. After unloading a band of paratroopers near Carentan, Sergeant William Goodwin, Abbeville, South Carolina, and his fellow drivers, Private Mose Green, Lanes, South Carolina, Private Hayward Riddick, Suffolk, Virginia, Private First Class Milton Penn, Washington, D. C. and Private First Class William P. Mayer, Little Mountain, South Carolina, joined the attack. Moving into a French courtyard, the group met enemy machinegun fire. A paratrooper companion, hit by the deadly fire, died in Goodwin's arms. Goodwin, returning for reinforcements, later led a party in cleaning out the machinegun replacement

Prisoners, too, have given the "Paradumpers" exasperating moments. A Nazi colonel captured near Carentan, arrogantly refused to climb into a truck driven by Private Andrew Brown, Columbia, South Carolina. The nattily dressed colonel was a firm believer in "Master Race" theories. But Brown wasn't. He simply unsheathed his convincing machete and waved it menacingly. The colonel, as did many others in the future, quickly hopped into the truck.

MORE

On one of his taxi missions, Private David Collins, Greensville, South Carolina, spied a dead German officer along the side of the road. Stopping his truck, he went to the body and searched it. He found a complete German tactical map of the Carentan area disclosing extensive, complex mine fields. He turned it over immediately to a colonel in the 101st and it was undoubtedly responsible for saving the lives of many American soldiers.

The 582nd Engineer Dump Truck Company was activated in September 1943 at Camp Claiborne, Louisiana. The majority of the men are from North and South Carolina. At one time there were 513 enlisted men in the unit, but that number was quickly pared down to authorized organizational strength--110 men. For the next five months they studied and trained in engineer subjects and prepared for overseas duty.

In January 1944, they boarded ship and sailed from New York harbor, arriving in Glasgow, Scotland, several weeks later. They participated in extensive maneuvers and went through a thorough course in water-proofing of vehicles.

It wasn't until April 2, nine weeks before the invasion, that the 582nd was issued its first consignment of trucks. Up to that time, 95 per cent of the men had never driven a 2½-ton, 6x6 dump truck.

Thirty-eight of their original 44 dump trucks have been salvaged because of wear and tear. The remaining six, still in good running order, have an average of 25,000 miles. Now assigned 48 vehicles, the 582nd has, according to the conservative estimate made by First Sergeant Frank Shuford, 302 Monastery Street, Hampton, Virginia, rolled up a grand total of approximately one and a quarter million miles since June 6.

One of their biggest single jobs was the transportation of a First U.S. Army engineer dump from Longville, France, to La Madalene and then to Modave, Belgium. Two months' time was required to complete the job.

During the Rhine River crossing, the 582nd truckers, working in the XVI Corps' sector in the vicinity of Rheinberg hauled crushed rock necessary to build the bridge approaches. Presently assigned to the 1104th Engineer Combat Group, they are again moving an engineer dump, the equipment of which will be used to bridge rivers and maintain roads leading to Berlin.

* * * * * * * *

ENGINEER, ISOLATED ON ISLAND,
CHECKS FLOOD WATERS; DECORATED

WITH THE 839th ENGINEER AVIATION BATTALION IN THE PHILIPPINES---Staff Sergeant Mazorne Elmore, son of Mr. Willie Elmore, 332 East Hudson Street, Shelby, North Carolina, has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal for heroic and meritorious achievement. A member of the veteran 839th Engineer Aviation Battalion, he is one of the top non-commissioned officers in the heavy equipment section.

The North Carolinian distinguished himself when, alone and in complete disregard for his own personal safety, he used a bulldozer for several hours to build a levee around engineer equipment worth many thousands of dollars and thus saved it from the violent current of flood waters caused by a dam-break farther upstream. Others were powerless to either rescue or assist Sergeant Elmore because the crossing to the island was washed out. Forced to remain on the island overnight, he kept constant vigil against the surging tide.

Sergeant Elmore entered the Army at Fort Meade, Maryland, in October 1942. He has been overseas 22 months and has seen service in Australia, New Guinea, and the Philippines. In addition to the Bronze Star Medal, he is entitled to wear a battle star on his Asiatic-Pacific and Philippine Liberation Campaign ribbons.

MORE

A brother, Carmie Elmore, also is in the Philippines.

* * * * * * * *

SILVER STAR TO MOTHER OF HEROIC ARTILLERYMAN

CAMP FANNIN, Texas---The Silver Star has been presented to Mrs. Parthenia Foreman, General Delivery, Kennard, Texas, for her son, Private First Class Robert L.S. Foreman, who was killed in action in Luxembourg last November after he had volunteered to re-establish artillery communications lines cut by the enemy.

The posthumous award was presented to Mrs. Foreman by Major Dale E. Kennedy on behalf of the War Department, in a brief ceremony held at Camp Fannin, Texas.

Text of the official citation follows:

"For gallantry in action....Private First Class Foreman was acting as lineman and telephone operator on an outpost when an enemy artillery barrage was layed down and wire communication blown out. Private First Class Foreman voluntarily went out to re-establish communication. After checking the wire for a distance of half a mile, he found the broken wire on a road which was under enemy observation and artillery fire. Disregarding his personal safety, he began to repair the lines and while doing so, he was fatally wounded by shell fire. The devotion to duty demonstrated by Private First Class Foreman is in keeping with the highest military traditions."

END

DISTRIBUTION: Ad.
6-12-45

WAR DEPARTMENT
Bureau of Public Relations
PRESS BRANCH
Tel. - RE 6700
Brs. 3425 and 4860

June 21, 1945

I M M E D I A T E R E L E A S E

(The following story appeared in the June 14, 1945 Paris edition of Stars and Stripes, Daily newspaper of U.S. Armed Forces in the European Theater of Operations. It may be used in whole or in part.)

NEGRO TROOPS TO FORM 10.4 PERCENT OF U.S. ARMY OF OCCUPATION IN ETO

By Allan Morrison
Stars and Stripes Staff Writer

Negro troops will comprise 10.4 percent of the U.S. Army of Occupation in Germany, it was learned from ETOUSA Headquarters yesterday.

The great majority of these troops will be members of service units "performing their primary mission," it was revealed, though it has not yet been determined which Negro units will remain as occupation forces.

This will be decided when the War Department instructs this theater of the types of units it desires to retain in Europe.

The 10.4 percentage is the standard one, set by Congress, and used by the War Department in computing the proportions of Negroes in the U.S. Army. The proportion is not standard for all theaters, however.

Since the AEF arrived in the ETO the proportion of Negro troops of total U.S. forces averaged 8.4 percent and that percentage has been maintained, with small fluctuation, to the present time.

As of May 15, there were in the ETO 259,173 Negro troops of a grand total of 3,082,142 U.S. personnel here at that time.

This figure was broken down as follows:

Field Forces	84,681
USSTAF	11,867
Com Z	155,530
Non-operating	7,095

Non-operating includes patients, PWs and casuals, while field forces includes Army Groups, armies ETOUSA and SHAEF Hq. personnel.

Until recently, approximately 25 percent of Com Z troops were Negro, while field forces were made up of four percent Negro personnel.

These figures do not include the Mediterranean Theater where there was a higher percentage of Negro combat troops, including one Infantry Division, the 92nd.

Under redeployment plans, the Army intends that 10.4 percent of all U.S. personnel returned to the U.S. for demobilization shall be Negro troops.

"We are striving to send a Negro total of 10.4 percent of all troops returned to the States for eventual discharge," stated Col. C. W. Powell, head of Troop Division, Redeployment Branch of G3 at ETOUSA. "We will not necessarily reach this figure, but we are aiming at it."

MORE

Landed On D-Day

Figures obtained from the AG section, ETOUSA revealed that the increase of Negro troops in this theater roughly corresponded with the increase of all U.S. forces in Europe.

Thus, on May 31, 1944, one week before the invasion of Europe, there were 126,877 Negro soldiers in the theater, divided as follows: Field Forces, 21,156; USSTAF, 10,062; Com Z, 95,659.

Negro units participated in the Normandy landings on June 6. These included the 320th Anti-aircraft Barrage Balloom Bn., 490th Port Bn., 494th Port Bn., 582nd Engineer Dump Truck Co., 3683rd QM Truck Co. and a number of others.

Nineteen other Negro combat units saw service in Europe during the campaign: the 333rd FA Bn., 349th FA Bn., 350th FA Bn., 351st FA Bn., 777th FA Bn., 686th FA Bn., 969th FA Bn., 999th FA Bn., 452nd AAA Bn., 761st Tank Bn., 784th Tank Bn., 614th Tank Destroyer Bn., 827th Tank Destroyer Bn., 183rd, 184th, 1696th, 1697th, 1698th and 1699th Engr. Combat Bns.

Two Negro units received Presidential Unit Citations. The 969th FA Bn. was cited for its action in Bastogne, Dec. 18-27th, when it fired in support of the cut-off 101st Airborne Div. The third platoon of "C" Co. of the 614th Tank Destroyer Bn. received the citation for "outstanding performance of duty in action against the enemy" at Climbach, France, last Dec. 14.

END

DISTRIBUTION: Special
6-22-45

25-46787-450

Source Reports

WAR DEPARTMENT
Bureau of Public Relations
PRESS BRANCH
Tel. - RE 6700
Brs. 3425 and 4860

IMMEDIATE RELEASE

ADDRESS BY
BRIGADIER GENERAL BENJAMIN O. DAVIS
OFFICE OF THE INSPECTOR GENERAL, EUROPEAN THEATER OF OPERATIONS
BEFORE OFFICERS AND MEN OF THE 477th COMPOSITE GROUP
GODMAN FIELD, KENTUCKY
AT 10:30 A.M., CWT, THURSDAY, JUNE 21, 1945

General Eaker, and comrades in the service, I am very happy to have this privilege of being present at what I understand is to be an activation of a new group. To me an assignment to duty with a new organization carries with it a serious responsibility in that the new unit has not the advantage of the tradition and history of an old established unit. It means that the new unit will be very closely observed, and all of its acts will be given very close scrutiny and evaluated more closely than similar acts by an older, well-established unit.

The department is sparing no pains to give you the advantage of experience. Your new commanding officer, Colonel Davis, and the officers accompanying him from his former assignment are men fresh from the European combat zone. Nearly all of them have not only been in combat, but they have been awarded decorations for meritorious services performed in combat. It has been my privilege to know something about our enemy, having visited his country and observed him in training.

The Jap is a tough soldier, and in most cases he has to be killed. To the veterans of World War I who may be with you now and have not had combat experience in the present war, I would like to say that the experience of the soldier of the present war is far different from that of yours. As Americans, we have our own way of thinking, but I want to emphasize this one point with those of you who have not had actual combat experience in the present war, that it is necessary for you in your thinking, in your training and in your performance to give full support to the officers who command you.

The only people who know how to fight this war to the best advantage are the people who have had actual combat experience with the enemy. I wish to congratulate you on the calibre of the officers to be assigned to you. They have the confidence of the department; they have the respect of the men they have fought with and against. I urge you to give them your whole-hearted loyalty, support and maximum effort to bring about a victory.

Again I want to assure you that I feel greatly honored having the privilege of being here today because I know that your performance is going to make this one of the most outstanding events of our history.

END

DISTRIBUTION: Ad
6-22-45

FUTURE RELEASE
PLEASE NOTE DATE

Service Record

WAR DEPARTMENT
Bureau of Public Relations
PRESS BRANCH
Tel. - RE 6700
Brs. 3425 and 4860

F U T U R E R E L E A S E

FOR RELEASE, 2 P.M., THURSDAY, JUNE 21, 1945

COLONEL BENJAMIN O. DAVIS ASSUMES COMMAND OF 477th COMPOSITE GROUP

Colonel Benjamin O. Davis, Jr., former commanding officer of the 332nd Fighter Group in Italy, today assumed command of the 477th Composite Group, formerly the 477th Bombardment Group (Medium), at Godman Field, Kentucky, the War Department announced.

The 32-year-old West Point graduate of 1936 earned his pilot's wings at the Tuskegee Army Air Field, Alabama, in 1942. Placed in command of the 99th Fighter Squadron, he went overseas with it in April 1943. The colonel, then a lieutenant colonel, served as commanding officer of the 99th in the North African, Sicilian and Italian campaigns.

On October 5, 1943, Colonel Davis, a native of Washington, D.C. returned to the United States and assumed command of the 332nd Fighter Group, which was activated October 13, 1942. The Group trained under Colonel Davis until January 13, 1944 and then went overseas and into action against the enemy as a part of the 12th Fighter Command of the Mediterranean Allied Air Forces under Lieutenant General Ira E. Eaker.

Flying the sturdy P-40 Warhawk and P-47 Thunderbolt with the 12th Fighter Command, the Group strafed enemy shipping and did low lovel skip-bombing at Cassino, Anzio and other points in Italy. They were later assigned to the 15th Air Force, and equipped with P-51s. The Mustang became a favorite with the pilots.

On February 28, 1945, Colonel Davis' Group had completed 200 combat missions with the 15th Air Force and had served as escort to heavy bombers without losing a single bomber to enemy fighters. Up to that time, members of the 332nd Fighter Group had been awarded 63 Distinguished Flying Crosses, and had completed 8,000 sorties while destroying more than 200 enemy aircraft in aerial and ground strafing assaults.

Working in close cooperation with the U.S. Fifth Army and the British Eighth Army, the fighter group performed all types of missions, ranging from escorting heavy bombers over the Ploesti oil fields to low level strafing raids on retreating Germans in Northern Italy, Yugoslavia, Austria and finally over Germany itself.

Colonel Davis has been awarded the Legion of Merit, Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal with Four Oak Leaf Clusters.

He recently returned to the United States to take command of the reconstituted 477th Bombardment Group, which will be known as a Composite Group. Elements of the 477th will include two bomber squadrons, and one fighter squadron from the 332nd Fighter Group. The remaining elements of the 332nd Fighter Group will be held in strategic reserve.

END

DISTRIBUTION: Ad.

FUTURE RELEASE

PLEASE NOTE DATE

WAR DEPARTMENT
Bureau of Public Relations
NEWS DIVISION
Washington, D. C.

FOR RELEASE MONDAY, JUNE 25, 1945

* *
* NOTE TO EDITORS: The following material originates with the Public *
Relations Officers of United States Army camps, posts, stations and Theaters
*of War. It concerns the activities of Negro soldiers. The date of release * *appears above. Similar informative releases will be sent to you weekly. *
* *

NEGRO DOUGHBOYS ALERTED FOR SHIPMENT TO STATES

WASHINGTON, D. C.---One of the four Infantry divisions of the First Army which have been alerted for shipment to the United States in June is the 104th Timberwolf Division in which Negro platoons, fighting with white companies, made an impressive record, the War Department announced today.

Members of the Division will get furloughs in the States before being sent on to the Pacific.

Major General Terry Allen, Commanding General of the 104th, recently decorated twelve Negro Doughboys with Silver and Bronze Star Medals for gallantry and heroism in action in its push past the Rhine.

The First Army of General Courtney Hodges will operate in the Pacific, but the divisions which comprised it in the European Theater will not neccessarily be sent to that area. Just how many units will be retained for combat has not been announced.

As of April 12, 1945, the First Army consisted of four corps and the 18th Airbourne, 3rd, 5th, and 7th Infantry Divisions. These corps included 13 divisions, the 1st, 2nd, 8th, 9th, 28th, 69th, 78th, 99th, 104th, and 106th Infantry Divisions; the 3rd and 7th Armored and the 82nd Airborne Divisions.

Negro platoons composed of volunteers from rear echelons service units fought with the 1st, 2nd, 8th, 9th, 69th, 78th, 99th, and the 104th Divisions.

The veteran 1st Infantry Division was assigned to the 3rd Army of General George S. Patton, Jr. in its final campaign of the European war. When the fighting stopped, the divisions remaining in the first Army were assigned to the Ninth Army of Lieutenant General William H. Simpson, giving him command of 25 divisions and nearly one million men.

* * * * * * * *

REVIEW WORK OF NEGRO AA TROOPS IN THE PACIFIC

WITH THE 14TH ANTIAIRCRAFT COMMAND IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC AREA---Negro combat soldiers of the 14th Antiaircraft Command, recruited from almost every State in the Union, have rendered invaluable service in the prosecution of the war against the Japanese, the War Department announced today. They have established a good record in the destruction of enemy aircraft.

The role of the thousands of Negro antiaircraft artillery troops in the Pacific dates back to April 1942, at a time when the Japanese had over-run most of New Guinea and were driving on Australia. The Nips' overwhelming air superiority in the first months of the war warranted the need for immediate antiaircraft defense.

MORE

At the height of the Battle of the Coral Sea, the 77th Coast Artillery Regiment, commanded by Colonel A. D. Fiskin, was four days out of Tonga Tabu in the Friendly Isles. After 18 months of maintaining antiaircraft positions in the Friendly Isles and New Hebrides, the 77th—now an antiaircraft artillery group—moved up to New Georgia Island, where it saw its first action against the enemy.

With anxiety and apprehension, men of the 77th Antiaircraft Artillery Group looked at the mud-covered coral island as they debarked at Munda early in December 1943. The whole place "stunk to high heaven" from hastily buried dead. For miles along the beach coconut trees had been toppled by naval bombardment which had preceded the initial landings. This bleak spot was supposed to be "hot."

Though the island was secure, Marines were still mopping up isolated enemy pockets. Everyday and night there were alerts. Hours were spent in foxholes. But the Japanese didn't come during the entire month of December—not even on the 13th, a date on which Japanese planes had never failed to attack in previous engagements. Action in the New Georgia Islands was no more than going into tactical position and hitting the foxhole. New Georgia appeared not as "hot" as Intelligence had reported.

The Japs, however, hadn't forgotten us. On the morning of January 13th, at 1 A. M., a lone Japanese bomber sneaked in for an attack. The guns of the 77th immediately went into action. Due to the terrific barrage of flak, the attacking plane was unable to drop his bombs with accuracy—most of them fell harmlessly in the bay.

At 11 P. M., on the 13th, two "Bettys" came. This time the antiaircraft units had a one-minute warning. The strip under the bright moonlight was like a diamond under arcs. One of the planes glided in at 10,000 feet and succeeded in bombing the air-strip and knocking out a 40-mm gun before it was blown to bits. Credit was given for hits on the other bomber. Said one gun sergeant, "We threw up everything we had into the sky. I don't see how that one bomber got away. One of the guns fired 91 rounds."

In subsequent air attacks and submarine shellings, the guns of the 77th were credited with forcing the Japanese to abandon their missions to New Georgia.

In June 1942, the 369th Coast Artillery Regiment, an all-Negro unit, under command of Colonel Chauncey M. Hooper of New York City, departed for the Hawaiian Islands where it maintained defensive positions for 34 months. The following September, the 76th Coast Artillery Regiment, under the command of Colonel Charles French, landed in the New Hebrides where they remained in combat position for 13 months. In January 1944, the regiment which became the 76th Antiaircraft Artillery Group, moved up to the Russell Islands. During their 31 months, the 76th went into action more than a dozen times, repulsing enemy air and submarine attacks.

Some 15 months following the arrival of the first group of Negro antiaircraft troops in the Pacific Theatre, additional battalions went to Australia and proceeded to take up defensive positions in New Guinea. Others landed in the New Hebrides Islands.

Included in the units that landed in New Guinea was the 207th Antiaircraft Artillery Automatic Weapons Battalion, under the command of Lieutenant Colonel DeMaurice F. Moses of New York City. Leading the first all-Negro unit into combat, Lieutenant Colonel Moses was an attorney prior to his induction with the New York National Guard. He now commands the 742nd Antiaircraft Artillery Gun Battalion which was recently made an all-Negro unit.

Colonel Moses reports that his men are working hard to aid in ending the war as soon as possible. Their ability in antiaircraft gunnery has won them the admiration and respect of their fellow artillerymen. As one inspecting officer put it, "Those soldiers can certainly shoot!"

MORE

Battery D of the 741st Antiaircraft Artillery Gun Battalion received credit for the first plane brought down by 90-mm gun fire in the New Guinea area when they destroyed an attacking Japanese bomber over the Kiriwinis in January 1944.

Battery A, also of the 741st, arrived at Arawe shortly after the initial landings made by Marines and elements of the 1st Cavalry Division. Soon after emplacing their guns, they repulsed a daylight attack by Japanese dive bombers on their gun positions. They destroyed one plane and prevented accurate bombing. In less than two months the battery went into action 15 times, getting two probables During the months of February and March, the battery supported the field artillery with terrestrial fire from their antiaircraft positions.

* * * * * * * *

24TH REGIMENT VETERANS
IN STATES FOR DISCHARGE

WASHINGTON, D. C.---Veterans of Infantry combat on Bougainville and in the Marianas Islands, Sergeant Melvin Demas, 25, of 10402 Grape Street, Los Angeles, California, and Private first class Thomas S. Bartley, 35, of Shaw, Mississippi, are back in the United States and civilians, two of the first soldiers to be returned from the Pacific for discharge under the Army's point system.

More than three years overseas, most of that time with the 24th Infantry Regiment, contributed to the 113 and 104 points credited to Demas and Bartley, respectively.

Both soldiers wore the Combat Infantryman Badge, earned by exemplary conduct in action against the enemy on Bougainville and in the Marianas Islands, when interviewed at a West Coast port.

"For the last few months," Sergeant Demas said, "I've been in a noncombatant job in Hawaii. While we were fighting on Bougainville I hurt my leg, and while I was able to go back into action later and went on to the Marianas with the outfit, I found I wasn't in good enough shape to keep up with the Infantry."

In the Marianas, where B-29s now take off regularly to keep things hot for Japan, his regiment has killed a number of Jap stragglers from holdout units in recent months. The rifle company in which he was an assistant squad leader had a respectable share in the job, he said.

"I don't know how many Japs I killed, but I fired at quite a few and saw them fall," the sergeant declared. "With an M-1 rifle that's about all you have to do, get the first shot."

Formerly employed by a Los Angeles drug store, Demas entered the service in March 1941. After basic training with another Infantry regiment at Camp Claiborne, Louisiana, he joined the 24th Infantry Regiment shortly before it went overseas in April 1942.

Sergeant Demas is the son of Mrs. Lottie Kinsey of the Grape street address.

Private Bartley, whose two children and his mother, Mrs. Oliver Holt, live on Highway 61, near Shaw, was in the service 50 months, all but the first year of which he spent overseas.

There were many times, the Negro Doughboy said, when he felt none too sure of living to receive his discharge papers. Most notable instance in his memory is the time when he and a Jap played a grim game of hide-and-seek across a log beside the Torokina River on Bougainville.

MORE

"When our scout signalled that he had sighted Japs," he related in an interview at a West Coast port, "all the men on the patrol spread out a little and took cover, then continued to move up on them. I took a firing position behind a big log when the fire fight started. It was a good spot, except there was a Jap on the other side of the log."

"I had several shots at him and he had some at me, but neither one of us was taking a chance on raising up very much, of course. One of my buddies killed the Jap, and I was glad to get out of that spot. When the intelligence men went back there the next day, they found eight Jap bodies. We had only one casualty, a sergeant wounded by a grenade."

He told with pride of how his battalion was assigned one day to drive the enemy back 1000 yards and gave good measure by pushing the Japs nearly a mile.

"We were in the Marianas," he said, "when I was told my 113 points were getting me out of the Army. We were on a security mission there, mopping up Jap stragglers on an island that has been used as an American base for months. I was notified one day that I was leaving, and I started home the next day."

Even with the 12 points each for his son and daughter, he was above the 85-point minimum.

Private Bartley, who received his basic training with another Infantry unit at Camp Claiborne, Louisiana, joined the 24th Infantry Regiment shortly before it left for overseas. Before entering the service, he worked for a grocer in Shaw.

* * * * * * * *

MISSING FOOT FAILS TO DAMPEN
DOUGHBOY'S BASEBALL AMBITIONS

CORAL GABLES, Florida——Even though his leg was blown off below the knee by a German hand grenade in Italy last November, a 28-year old infantryman and former baseball pitcher still hopes to take the mound and throw with the best of them in the Negro semi-pro ranks around Charlotte, North Carolina.

The veteran, Private first class James M. Craig, of Waxhaw, North Carolina, former member of the Charlotte Blue Sox, one of the leading semi-pro nines in the state, led a platoon which stormed a hill while the Fifth Army's 92nd "Buffalo" Division was driving up the Po Valley.

Craig's brave little band held the hill all the first night and the following day. Finally superior German forces counter-attacked during the second night and in the fierce battle that followed, the North Carolina doughfoot, repelling a charge of four Jerries on his sector, killed two of them before a hand grenade landed in his foxhole and shattered his right leg.

Captured by the Germans, Craig was liberated four months later when the British over-ran his prison camp. Flown home from Italy, he is now recovering at the AAF Regional and Convalescent Hospital here.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Stacks Craig of Route 2, Waxhaw, Private First Class Craig wears the Purple Heart, European Theatre ribbon with three bronze stars and the Combat Infantryman's Badge. Overseas for ten months, the Waxhaw veteran entered the service over three years ago.

Two other Craig boys are also in the service. Private First Class Willie Craig is still in Italy and Private First Class Sanders Craig is fighting the Japs in the Southwest Pacific.

* * * * * * * *

MORE

MAFFIN BAY ONE OF "HOT COBBLES" ON ROAD TO TOKYO

MIAMI BEACH, Florida—If you asked 999 out of 1,000 people about the Battle of Maffin Bay, Dutch New Guinea, they'd probably give you a blank stare. But Sergeant Tom L. Irvin, a 13th Air Force engineer who spent 18 months in some of the worst hellholes of the Pacific—Guadalcanal, Leyte, Wakde Island—will tell you that there was no hotter cobble on the road to Tokyo than Maffin Bay.

Now a patient at AAF Regional and Convalescent Hospital, Sergeant Tom was platoon leader of a combat engineering outfit that went in to build roads and installations for troops invading Jap strongpoints. Maffin Bay is an important link with main American bases in Dutch New Guinea and the Philippines. A few weeks after the important Hollandia operation, U. S. ground forces, closely followed by the engineers, seized the important obstacle to the philippines.

"Our line along the beach stretched only 2500 yards, exposing us to air attack and to sniper fire," Irvin related. "Nip planes buzzed around every night and didn't let us get much sleep. What few movies we had were broken up by uninvited visitors. And speaking of mosquitoes—we forgot the ones we'd seen at Guadalcanal when we had a good look at the choice variety they grow on Maffin Bay. Up there mosquitoes are bats with stingers." Sergeant Irvin's outfit prepared runways for planes which later were used to soften up the Japs on other stepping stones to the Philippines, built a road for the 33rd Division and a hospital of 14 buildings—all at Maffin Bay.

Son of Mrs. Pearl Irvin, 2728 Anna Street, Shreveport, Louisiana, the veteran received the Asiatic Pacific ribbon with two battle stars. His wife is the former Miss Ella Mae Littier, also of Shreveport.

While recovering from his arduous duty in the tropics, the platoon "sarge" spends much of his time working on a lathe in the hospital's machine shop. This is part of the regular rehabilitation program for soldiers.

* * * * * * * *

DOUGHBOY, HIT WHILE ASSISTING BUDDY, RECOVERING IN ENGLAND

THE 185TH GENERAL HOSPITAL, England—Sergeant William Hagens, 24-year old Infantryman from of 8 Locust Street, Madison, New Jersey, who was wounded by a German sniper in an attack on a town near Paderborn, Germany, as he paused to give water to a fallen buddy, is well on the road to recovery at this U. S. Army General Hospital.

"Just east of Paderborn, we had to cross a river to get to a little town," recalled the Negro doughboy. "The Germans blew up the bridge, but the Engineers quickly put up another and we got across without a casualty. We were advancing up the road towards the first houses in the town when our platoon leader and first scout were killed by snipers. My platoon was supposed to take the first house on the right, which was infested with snipers.

"As I was going forward I saw a wounded buddy in a ditch. He needed water to take his sulfa tablets, so I stopped for a few seconds to give him some. As I did so, a sniper in one of the houses to the left shot me in the right hip. I fell into the ditch and stayed there until some of our men had cleaned out a few houses. Then they got me in and patched me up. I was there for about four hours, while the battle went on, loading clips of BAR ammunition."

Sergeant Hagens entered the Army in October 1942, trained at Fort Huachuca, Arizona, went on maneuvers in Louisiana, and was stationed at Camp Clipper, California, before being sent overseas with an Engineer Corps unit in September 1943. Early this year he was transferred to the Infantry.

* * * * * * * *

MORE

MP HOPES TO CAPITALIZE ON MILITARY EXPERIENCE

ATLANTIC CITY, New Jersey---Staff Sergeant Odie McNichols, of 4017 Cook Avenue, St. Louis, Missouri, has definitely decided what he is going to do when he is discharged from the Army.

"I'm going to follow a profession I learned and liked while in the army," said the sergeant at AAF Redistribution Station No. 1. "I'm going to change uniforms and become a policeman."

Sergeant McNichols has had a thorough grounding in the work he wants to do in civilian life, having served 18 months overseas with a battalion of Military Police.

"Under all kinds of conditions I guarded any and everything from Air Force headquarters and German prisoners in Oran, North Africa to gas cans and C-rations in Naples, Italy," said the Negro returnee, "and when I'm discharged I expect to put what I learned to work again."

Sergeant McNichols entered the service on March 12, 1941, and was sent overseas on August 21, 1943. He wears the European theater ribbon with battle star.

* * * * * * * *

PORTMEN SET RECORD
FOR LOADING OF MTVs

WITH THE U. S. ARMY TRANSPORTATION CORPS IN EUROPE---Specially converted Liberty ships have ferried 133,654 vehicles from England to the Continent since D-Day, the Transportation Corps disclosed today. Negro port companies perfected the loading technique at Southampton and established a record by loading a complete craft in three hours.

Known as "Motor Transport Vessels," the Liberties had four of their five hatches modified for handling of vehicles. Each MTV carries an average of 124 vehicles and 272 men in addition to its crew. The fifth hatch was equipped as sleeping quarters for men who were to accompany each load of vehicles.

Before D-Day the MTVs were ordinary Liberty ships, making normal runs between ports in the British Isles and the United States. As plans for the invasion took shape, the need for a type of vessel which could carry large numbers of vehicles was recognized. These vessels would supplement LSTs and LCTs whose use was limited by the number of loading "hards" available. It was decided to convert some Liberty Ships.

Weeks before D-Day, dock workers started making the changes. Lashings and other equipment were installed to prevent the heavy vehicles from rolling when the vessel was at sea.

During the first 90 days after June 6, these Port companies labored under terrific pressure in order that the American troops in France might be mobile. On one day - June 21 - eighteen MTVs loaded and sailed from Southampton - a smashing testimonial to the work of the Negro stevedores who refused to change shifts until the ship had been "put to bed." For their work, two of these units, the 552nd and 554th Port Companies, have recently received the Meritorious Service Unit Plaque.

The last MTV has sailed from Southampton, and no more are being loaded. They have made 1072 trips across the channel, carrying more vehicles than are registered in the States of Vermont and Montana combined.

In addition they carried 292,988 United States Army personnel. This is equivalent to the 1940 population of Memphis, or more than 22 divisions. And all the divisions rolled on through Germany on tanks, trucks, and jeeps carried, in large part, on the MTVs.

* * * * * * * *

MORE

98TH ENGINEERS AWARDED
MERIT PLAQUE FOR SERVICES

PENINSULAR BASE HEADQUARTERS, Italy---The 98th Engineer General Serviee Regiment, veteran of thirty-five months overseas service in England, North Africa, and Italy, has been awarded the Meritorious Service Unit Plaque for superior performance of duty in the accomplishment of exceptionally difficult tasks in the Peninsular Base Section for the period January 1,1944 to April,1, 1945.

The variety of work accomplished by the regiment included hazardous mine sweeping operations conducted by the following: Staff Sgt Virgil Fletcher, Houston Texas; Staff Sgt Esker L. Walker, Oakwood, Texas; Staff Sgt Ras E. Holt, Jr., Wynne, Ark.; Staff Sgt Elgin Springfield, Smithfield, Texas; Staff Sgt Noah B. Croff, Muskogee,Okla.; Staff Sgt. James J. Price, Chicago, Ill.; Staff Sgt Early Steward, Hearne, Texas; Staff Sgt Charlie Burch, Farmersville, La.; Sgt Lawrence Redden, Jacksonville, Texas; Cpl Hollins Sampson, Cans, Mo.; Cpl Elisha Beckham, Jackson Ala.; Cpl Julius R. Rogans (deceased), Chicago, Ill.; Cpl. Frank J. Newson, Needville, Texas; Pvt Archie McBryde, Maxton, N. C.; Pvt Jessie Whisenant, Ashville, Ala.; and Pvt E. J. Frazier, Italy, Texas.

Craftsmen like Tech. 4th Grade William Hill, Miami, Fla., and Tech. 5th Grade Ernest D. Green, Chicago, Ill., provided the carpentry work for hospitals. Electrical installations were handled by specialists like Tech. 4th Grade Lovest A. Hinderman, Jr., Houston, Texas, and Tech, 5th Grade Ardis Hall, Mt. Enterprise, Texas.

Great hulks of earthmoving machinery were made to perform tremendous tasks when handled by expert and concientious operators, among them being Tech. 4th Grade Curtis Smith, Zavalla, Texas, who has received many commendations. The continual operation of this valuable equipment may be traced to the expert mechanical ability of Tech. 4th Grade Percy Dorsey, Pallulah, La. and Pvt. Tilman Beavers, Bar Springs, Miss. Enviable records were made in constructing the famous British Bailey Bridge and a great deal of this success was due to the excellent work of Staff Sgt Elgin Springfield, Smithfield, Texas.

* * * * * * * *

RETURNEES FLOWN HOME;
OVERSEAS FOR 35 MONTHS

MIAMI, Florida---Three Negro overseas returnees, two from North Carolina, and one from Detroit, Michigan were included in a group just flown back from Italy by the Air Transport Command as part of the Army plan to return 50,000 men a month by air from the European theater.

The North Carolinians now clearing ATC's Miami Army Air Field before continuing to redistribution stations, and proceeding from there on furloughs home are Privates First Class Claude E. Torrence, 28, of Gastonia, and Eugene A. Raleigh, 27, of Greensboro. Both returnees spent 35 months overseas with a regiment of the Corps of Engineers, and each wears four battle stars on his theater ribbon.

Torrence is a chauffeur in civilian life and resides in East Gastonia with his wife, Miss Bertha Lee Torrence, and his mother, Mrs. Nanny Torrence. He plans to resume his work as chauffeur when he leaves the Army.

Raleight is the son of Mrs. Judith Miller of 1116 Gray Street, Greesnboro. He was a chef before entering the service and will go back to that work when he gets his discharge. Sergeant Leamon Streety, 25, of Detroit, a machinist in civilian life, completed a total of 37 months in Italy and the Mediterranean theater with a unit of the engineers. His wife, Mrs. Helen Streety and their child live at 9654 Russell Street, Detroit. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Streety of 9208 Cardoni Avenue, in the Motor City.

MORE

Sergeant Streety will be sent from MAAF to Camp Blanding, Florida, and from there will be routed to the separation center nearest Detroit, where he will be given a furlough, after which he will return for either reassignment or release from the service.

* * * * * * * *

LANDLUBBER TURNED SEAMAN
AWARDED LEGION OF MERIT

ATLANTIC CITY, New Jersey---How the Army made a first-class seaman out of a "landlubber" is told by Tech. 4th Grade Oscar J. Thomas, 27-year-old Negro returnee, of 1109 5th Avenue Drive, Palmetto, Florida.

With no nautical experience, Thomas became skipper of a landing craft in Liberia on Africa's West Coast. In that capacity he performed his duties so well that he was decorated with the Legion of Merit. Now assigned to the Army Ground and Service Forces Redistribution Station here, he was overseas 35 months.

Thomas' chief duties were bringing supplies and men in his boat to shore from ships and picking up survivors from torpedoed ships and crashed planes. Serving under him was a crew of three deck hands and a mechanic.

The harbor where he was stationed was too shallow to accomodate large ships, so the supplies and men had to be unloaded in landing craft. It was a difficult undertaking for Thomas to pilot his boat through the swift undertow and land safely on the rough shore, past the billowing surf.

But that was one of the minor problems for the skipper. Enemy planes afforded considerable danger. When they appeared on the scene he pursued a zigzag course. His small craft especially was imperiled when he was far out at sea.

* * * * * * * *

WAC POSTAL UNIT
ARRIVES IN FRANCE

WITH U.S. FORCES IN NORMANDY---The only Wac postal battalion in the European Theater, the 6888th Central Postal Directory, has now arrived in France, where it will redirect and re-route soldiers' mail at its headquarters in Rouen.

The detachment, with 824 enlisted women and 31 officers, is the only all-Negro unit in any branch of the Army Post Office. In England, where it was stationed in Birmingham, the unit set new records in handling the tremendous daily volume of mail.

The postal battalion is responsible for re-routing to their proper destinations letters and packages which have not been delivered because of troop movements, and the mail of soldiers who moved without leaving a forwarding address.

Commanding officer of the battalion is Major Charity E. Adams, 217 Lacy Street, Columbia, North Carolina.

* * * * * * * *

CHIEF OF ONLY ALL-NEGRO
FINANCE UNIT BACK IN U.S.

CHARLESTON, South Carolina---Commander of the only all-Negro finance section in the Army's Finance Department, Major Lloyd M. Sparks, of Junction City, Kansas, has returned to the States after eighteen months spent in the Mediterranean Theater of Operations.

The major was a temporary patient at Stark General Hospital early this month, where he recounted the story of his unique outfit and his own twenty-eight years in the Army.

MORE

In November, Major Sparks will round out twenty-five years of continuous service in the Finance Department. His twenty-eight years in service have encompassed duty in much of the United States, on the Mexican border following the incidents of 1916 and the Philippine Islands from 1937 to 1940.

Major Sparks was appointed Warrant Officer in 1940 and two years later received a direct commission with the rank of Captain. In December of 1942, while at Tuskegee Army Air Field, Alabama, his 15-man finance section was activated.

The Major personally trained all of his crew. He handpicked his personnel from among the men at TAAF and then proceeded to teach them the systems he had been using for so long. Before the section left the States and as part of the training program, they operated a finance office at a base in Oscoda, Michigan.

In Italy the section was attached to both the 12th and 15th Air Service Commands. The unit encountered a variety of difficulties in the performance of tasks while overseas. Payment was in cash and in the native currency as often as was feasible.

The section's exchange department handled currencies of all the Allied countries. "It wasn't uncommon," said the Major, "to handle Yugoslav, Polish, Russian, Greek, English and French money in one day."

Major Sparks came into the Army on April 22, 1917. His first tour of duty was along the Mexican border. In 1920 the Finance Department was established as a separate Army branch. Prior to this activation each arm of the service had its own finance section and the overall business was handled by the Quartermaster Corps.

He attended the first session of the Army's finance school held at Fort Washington, Maryland. This first class graduated in November of 1920 and the major has been with this department ever since. In his 25 years in Finance, Major Sparks has worked in almost all of its branches.

He has seen finance grow from small and unsteady beginnings to its present world-wide proportions. From a struggling babe trying to avoid amalgamation into the U.S. Treasury Department to an organization which today transacts business for over 10,000,000 people.

While in Manila he was chief clerk of the property auditing section. There he was in charge of reports on Army Properties used and also of subsequent reports on claims made against the Government by people from whom the Army had leased land. Claims today are handled by the Judge Advocate General's Office.

* * * * * * * *

JUST COULDN'T KEEP MIND ON HIS WORK

ATLANTIC CITY, New Jersey—If there were any errors on Staff Sergeant Charles S. Rogers' statistical report that day, you can blame it on an exploding bomber. Rogers, clerk in a Negro Ordnance outfit near Algiers, told of the experience at the AAF Redistribution Station, where he is being examined and interviewed for his next AAF assignment. He lives at 110 Patton Avenue, N. E. Roanoke, Virginia.

"Deep in a mass of figures at the time, I wasn't even thinking about the war," he said. "One moment things were peaceful. The next thing I knew I was sailing through the air. My chair skidded off to a corner and my desk overturned, showering papers and reports all over the office."

Cause of the commotion, Rogers explained, was a Liberator, laden with bombs, which exploded about 400 yards away.

MORE

"I scrambled out to the flaming wreck to see if there was anything I could do. But we had to keep our distance from it. All but two of the crew were killed when the bombs exploded. I went back to work, but my mind wasn't on it."

The sergeant, who spent 28 months overseas, was formerly a railroad company messenger. After the war he expects to study for advancement through the GI Bill of Rights. Hif wife, Estelle, is studying nursing at Henryton Hospital, Maryland.

* * * * * * * *

FLIER WHO BLASTED KRAUTS
WANTS TO DO SAME FOR NIPS

ATLANTIC CITY, New Jersey---Having completed 124 combat missions as a fighter pilot with the 12th and 15th Army Air Forces in Italy, First Lieutenant Spurgeon N. Ellington of Winston-Salem, North Carolina hopes to return soon to combat and show the Japs a few of the things he learned in the Air over Germany and points North, South and East.

Now stationed here at the Army Air Forees Redistribution Station No. 1, Lieutenant Ellington spent 16 months overseas where he was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal with four Oak Leaf Clusters. He wears three stars on his theater ribbon.

The Lieutenant was a member of the 332nd Fighter Group and has had battle experience flying P-51,P-47 and P-39 types of fighters. Of his missions, he flew 46 with the 15th and the remainder with the AAF.

Lieutenant Ellington says that although his experiences in the ETO were nothing extraordinary he did get a "big thrill" out of strafing missions.

"I sure hope to get a chance to do a lot of that in the Pacific", he exclaimed, pointing out that on several occasions he did solo strafing when returning from otherwide routine flights. A graduate of Winston-Salem Teachers College, Lieutenant Ellington was a teacher before entering the Army in May of 1942. His first duties were with the Quartermaster Corps in which he served as an enlisted man before commencing his flying training later in the same year.

END

DISTRIBUTION: Ad
2-25-45

25-46591-450

Davis to lead new air unit in Pacific War

F.E.P.C. FATE TO BE DECIDED THIS WEEK

5¢ Tribune LOS ANGELES

A MODEL OF JOURNALISM

Vol. 5—No. 19 Monday, June 25, 1945 Los Angeles 11, California

Commission on Interracial Coopera
Standard Bldg
Atlanta, Ga

Eisenhower in careful comment on Race G.I.

Eisenhower makes statement on Negro soldiers in Europe

NEW YORK—In a press conference, given in Paris at the Supreme Hearquarters of the Allied Expeditionary forces just before leaving for the United States, General Dwight D. Eisenhower made a statement on the contribution of Negro soldiers to the European war.

Asked by an unidentified newspaperman to comment on the work of the Negro soldiers, Gen-

Georgia registrar sued for blocking Negro voting

"If I Could Be With You One Hour Tonight . . .

And I were free to say the things I might; I want you to know that you couldn't go until I told you, baby," just how much you owe. . . . My heart hath a stone in its shoe for every last delinquent subscriber among you. For pity's sake, for man's humanity to man, for the decent feeling you must have for a fellow and his job, please send in your "due and must be voted this week

WASHINGTON—Unless the bill, appropriating funds for continuance, is brought to the floor of the House of Representatives this week for passage by Saturday, the Fair Employment Practices committee, functioning since President Roosevelt's executive order of 1942, will die.

Defeated in the House Rules committee June 12 by a 6-6 vote, the bill to appropriate $599,000 for continuance of the Committee's work needed some 218 signatures last week to bring it to the floor of the House. Restoration of the appropriation would continue the agency for the fiscal year of 1945-46.

Following the tie vote, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People threw the full force of its machinery to work to prevent the bill's death. In order to help secure the balance of the 218 signatures needed, the NAACP sent wires to 155 Republican congressmen and 43 democrats in northern and border states where Negroes vote. In urging the 198 Congressmen to sign the discharge petition immediately, the NAACP said:

temporary FEPC because legislation for permanent FEPC was pending is heavy blow not only to minorities whose sole protection against job discrimination is imperiled, but to all decent Americans. We respectfully but vigorously urge you to sign discharge petition No. 4 today so that bill may come to floor of house for debate and vote before June 30 deadline. Please be good enough to notify us when you have signed petition.

In addition, NAACP secretary Walter White wired all presidents of Association State Conferences giving them names of representatives to whom urgent wires must be sent. Besides this the NAACP is working now with the Senate Appropriations Committee. In written pledges to the Council for a permanent FEPC the following Senate members have given promises of support for appropriations: Carl Hayden (D., Ariz.); Joseph Ball (R., Minn.); Theodore F.

F.E.P.C. FATE TO BE DECIDED THIS WEEK

5¢ Tribune LOS ANGELES

A MODEL OF JOURNALISM

Vol. 5—No. 19 Monday, June 25, 1945 Los Angeles 11, California

Commission on Interracial Coopera
Standard Bldg
Atlanta, Ga

Eisenhower in careful comment on Race G.I.

Eisenhower makes statement on Negro soldiers in Europe

NEW YORK—In a press conference, given in Paris at the Supreme Hearquarters of the Allied Expeditionary forces just before leaving for the United States, General Dwight D. Eisenhower made a statement on the contribution of Negro soldiers to the European war.

Asked by an unidentified newspaperman to comment on the work of the Negro soldiers, General Eisenhower was quoted by the Associated Press as answering thusly:

"I do not differentiate among soldiers. I do not say white soldiers or Negro soldiers and I do not say American or British soldiers. To my mind I have had a task in this war that makes me look upon soldiers as soldiers. Now I have seen Negro soldiers in this war and I have many reports on their work where they have rendered very valuable contributions and some of them with the greatest enthusiasm. In late November, when we were getting short of reinforcements, replacements, some 2,600 Negro soldiers volunteered for front-line service and they did good work. All my commanders reported that those volunteers did excellent work. But their major job has been in services of supply, engineer units, quartermaster units, ordnance units."

Dewey names members of commission

NEW YORK — Its membership including one Negro, the New York State Commission Against Discrimination, was appointed here last week by Governor Thomas Dewey.

The Negro member is Elmer A. Carter, member of the New York State War council and of the unemployment insurance appeal board. He is a native of New York state and was graduated from Harvard in 1922.

Chairman of the Commission is Henry C. Turner, white, a lawyer and former Board of Education member.

Nisei unit detached from 92nd infantry division

WASHINGTON — The 442nd Infantry regiment, composed of Japanese-Americans, has been detached from the 92nd Infantry division, made up of Negroes, and is now a part of the 34th division. The 442nd fought with the 92nd in the Po Valley campaign in Italy.

Georgia registrar sued for blocking Negro voting

ATLANTA, GA.—Suit has been filed in the Federal District Court here against T. E. Suttles, local tax collector and registrar for his refusal to forward the list of Negro electors eligible to vote in the 1944 democratic primaries. The plaintiff, Wallace Van Johnson, Negro registered voter of Georgia, is being represented by NAACP special counsels Thurgood Marshall and A. T. Walden, of the NAACP National Legal committee. The action in behalf of the plaintiff and other Negro registered voters in Georgia is a class suit which seeks a declaratory judgment and injunction.

The camplaint alleges that Suttles in violation of the United States Constitution, kept separate lists for Negro and White registered voters; and that last year he sent only the white list of voters to the polls on primary days.

Ground to be broken today for health center

Ground-breaking ceremonies for the new quarter-of-a-million dollar southeast district health center will be held on the site of the new structure at 49th and Avalon blvd. today at 12 noon, it was announced yesterday.

Among civic officials expected to speak at the ceremony are Mayor Fletcher Bowron, Charles A. Allen, councilman of the district in which the center is being built, Dr. George M. Uhl, city health officer, and Dr. Ruth J. Temple, southeast district health officer.

Councilman Carl C. Rasmussen, chairman of the health and welfare committee of the City Council, will be master of ceremonies.

Michigan man elected to River Rouge school board

RIVER ROUGE, Mich. — Dr. S. B. Milton, local physician, was elected to the school board here June 12, the first Negro in local board history.

"Everything nourishes what is strong already."—Jane Austen.

"If I Could Be With You One Hour Tonight . . .

And I were free to say the things I might; I want you to know that you couldn't go until I told you, baby," just how much you owe. . . . My heart hath a stone in its shoe for every last delinquent subscriber among you. For pity's sake, for man's humanity to man, for the decent feeling you must have for a fellow and his job, please send in your "due and payables" to the Los Angeles Tribune, 4225 S. Central Ave., Dunbar Hotel, Los Angeles 11. It will be appreciated by one small, unwilling jobholder.

Minneapolis woman wins city office

MINNEAPOLIS — In what amounted to a near-sweep of the city elections here last last week by the liberal forces, a Negro woman, Mrs. Nellie Stone, was elected to the library board, the first political office ever to go to a Negro in this city.

Mrs. Stone, a check room girl, door checker and elevator operator in the Minneapolis Athletic club, received 67,314 votes to place second in the library board race and win a place. Her election was all the more amazing because the Negro vote in this city is negligible, compared to the white.

Elected also was Hubert Humphrey, 34-year-old acknowledged liberal, to the office of mayor. Liberal forces also elected 8 out of 13 alderman to bring their number in the city council to a majority of 14 to 12.

Mrs. Stone has strong labor union connections. She is vice president of the Hotel, Restaurant Worker's union No. 665, AFL of Minneapolis, a member of the Minneapolis Urban League auxiliary and of the NAACP.

She was born in Dakota county near Lakeville where her father was a farmer. She attended public schools there.

Illinois to seek law against racial restrictions

CHICAGO — An endorsement of the movement to secure a law against racial restrictions on property, has been endorsed here by the Mayor's committee on race relations.

TRIBUNE classified ads work.

[illegible] must be voted this week

WASHINGTON—Unless the bill, appropriating funds for continuance, is brought to the floor of the House of Representatives this week for passage by Saturday, the Fair Employment Practices committee, functioning since President Roosevelt's executive order of 1942, will die.

Defeated in the House Rules committee June 12 by a 6-6 vote, the bill to appropriate $599,000 for continuance of the Committee's work needed some 218 signatures last week to bring it to the floor of the House. Restoration of the appropriation would continue the agency for the fiscal year of 1945-46.

Following the tie vote, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People threw the full force of its machinery to work to prevent the bill's death. In order to help secure the balance of the 218 signatures needed, the NAACP sent wires to 155 Republican congressmen and 43 democrats in northern and border states where Negroes vote. In urging the 198 Congressmen to sign the discharge petition immediately, the NAACP said:

Tie vote in rules committee on fair employment practice commission bill following appropriation committee's withholding funds for temporary FEPC because legislation for permanent FEPC was pending is heavy blow not only to minorities whose sole protection against job discrimination is imperiled, but to all decent Americans. We respectfully but vigorously urge you to sign discharge petition No. 4 today so that bill may come to floor of house for debate and vote before June 30 deadline. Please be good enough to notify us when you have signed petition.

In addition, NAACP secretary Walter White wired all presidents of Association State Conferences giving them names of representatives to whom urgent wires must be sent. Besides this the NAACP is working now with the Senate Appropriations Committee. In written pledges to the Council for a permanent FEPC the following Senate members have given promises of support for appropriations: Carl Hayden (D., Ariz.); Joseph Ball (R., Minn.); Theodore F. Green (D., R.I.); Dennis Chevez (D., New Mexico); James M. Mead (D., N.Y.); Abe Murdock (D., Utah).

B. O. Davis to take 477th bombardment group to Pacific

WASHINGTON—A promotion to brigadier general reportedly in store for him, Col. Benjamin O. Davis, Jr., and a staff of officers of the 332nd fighter group have arrived in the United States form Italy to replace Col. Robert Selway in command of the 477th Bomber Group.

Col. Davis and staff are en route to Godman Field, Kentucky to replace the white officers who have been under fire for the arrest of 100 Negro flying officers at Freeman Field, Ind., two months ago. The men were arrested when they refused to accept a jim crow officer's club. Three of the 100, assertedly the instigators of the protest, still remain in custody.

Col. Davis is expected to take the 477th overseas for action in the Pacific. The unit will be his third pioneer command. He led the 99th Pursuit Squadron to Europe, then was recalled to command the 332nd Fighter group and take it to Italy. West Point graduate, he is the son of the highest ranking Negro Army officer, Brigadier General Benjamin O. Davis.

Among his staff of 9 officers was one Californian, Major Vance H. Marchbanks, Jr., a flight surgeon; others are: Major Thomas J. Money, of Chicago, the Colonel's adjutant; Major Edward C. Gleed, Lawrence, Kansas; Major William A. Campbell, of Tuskegee; Major Andrew D. Turner, of Washington; and Captains Morris T. Johnson, San Antonio, Tex.; Dudley W. Stevenson, Washington; John R. Beverly, Richmond, Va.; and William R. Thompson, Pittsburgh.

"It is wretched taste to be gratified with mediocrity when the excellent lies before us." — Disraeli.

Ben Davis, Jr. gets Silver Star

ROME—Col. Benjamin O. Davis Jr., until recently commander of the 332nd fighter group, has been awarded the Silver Star for gallantry in action, it has been announced here. He became the first Negro pilot ever to receive the award.

Col. Davis already holds the Legion of Merit and the Distinguished Service Cross. He is the son of Brigadier General B. O.

Seven die in bomber crash

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — In the most serious air tragedy involving Negro airmen of the war, 7 members of the 477th Bombardment group crashed near here last week and were killed.

The 7, in a B-25 training plane, came down in a swamp shortly after taking off from an air field here for Godman Field, Ky., base of the group. There was one survivor, Cpl. Selwyn Wilson.

The dead, including four flight officers and three enlistees, are: Flight officers Denny C. Jefferson, Little Rock; Charles E. Wilson, Chicago; Edward Glover, Chicago; Raymond F. Noches, Junction City, Kansas; also Corporals Henry H. Valentine, Kansas City, Mo.; Luther A. Cox, Jackson, Ga., and Pvt. James H. Ewing, Springfield, Ohio.

Navy chief orders special movie on Negroes on Iwo Jima

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Because Secretary James D. Forrestal saw 2,000 Negro Marines in action on Iwo Jima and saw none appearing in the Navy's film of the invasion, he has ordered a special movie showing Negroes in the various branches of Naval service, reports Drew Pearson in his political column in the New York Mirror, June 10.

Businessmen confer with Sec'y. of Commerce Wallace

WASHINGTON — A delegation of businessmen conferred here Tuesday with Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace. They were: Roscoe Dunjee, of Oklahoma City, president of the National Negro Business league; N. S. Stewart, Memphis, Tenn.; George W. Cox, Durham, N. C.; O. K. Manning, Houston, Tex.; Leroy Crayton, Cleveland; and Willars S. Allen, Baltimore.

TRIBUNE classified ads work.

Ohio State awards 2 Negroes Ph.D.'s

COLUMBUS—Among those receiving degrees at the June convocation of Ohio State university were two Negroes, Arnett Gillian Macklin and Booker T. W. White, both of whom received the degree Doctor of Philosophy.

Dr. Macklin, associate professor of Virginia State university, took his degree in education; Dr. White took his in agricultural chemistry. He is assistant professor of natural science at A. and M. Institute of Alabama.

$1000 FOR ALTERATIONS

Now is the time to PAINT, REPAIR and MODERNIZE your home!

● UNCLE SAM has eased restrictions—you can spend $1000 for alterations or modernization of your home without priorities. So now is the time to add that extra room you've been wanting, to build your garage, or make other needed additions. And, with summer just ahead, it's a good time to think about repairs too. Whatever is needed, do it now—painting, re-roofing, building new fences, landscaping, installation of sprinkler systems, etc.

● CALIFORNIA BANK has money to lend to help you "put your house in order." Loans are made in amounts up to $2500 ($1000 without priorities for alterations and modernization); repayment is in easy monthly instalments over periods as long as three years. Ask about an improvement loan (either an FHA Title 1 loan or a bank loan) at any office of CALIFORNIA BANK

MEMBER FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE CORPORATION

(CALIFORNIA TRUST COMPANY IS OWNED BY CALIFORNIA BANK)

Immigrant Negroes leaving L. A. area, survey shows

The end of the War in Europe has already begun to reshape economic patterns for Negroes in Los Angeles, the immigrants and the natives, according to the local United States Employment Service offices. Although USES made no explanation, perhaps had none at hand, the decline in the number of Negroes applying for job placement in war industries through its service patently shows them leery of reconversion. The natives-sons are getting back their prewar jobs, while getting is good, and the immigrants are hightailing it back home, with the same thing in mind.

"The percentages of Negroes seeking jobs in the Los Angeles area is decreasing," said C. M. Von Dietz, field supervisor of the three Los Angeles U.S.E.S. offices in discussing the local employment situation.

"A recent survey shows that of the 17,565 persons served by the three offices during a 6 day test period, 4,041 or 23% were Negroes. In January a similar check showed 24.3% Negroes.

"The decline is most noticeable in the Labor Office at 8th and San Pedro st.," Von Dietz stated. "In January 79.0% of the applicants were Negroes. In June the load had dropped to 56.0%. In our main office at 11th and Flower, the January survey showed 14.2% colored; the June survey, an increase to 17.1%.

"In January, 13.0% of our colored applicants were immigrants; in June the percentage had dropped to 8.7%. Only one out of every 11 Negroes is an immigrant, while one of every 6 is a veteran."

Need for "war-time policy" in peace told by educator

ATLANTA — "Until we have understanding among the peoples of the world, since we are going to have contacts, there will be no possibility for world politics and world diplomacy to build a permanent peace." This statement by Dr. Rufus E. Clement, president of Atlanta university, opened University's Summer Forums this year with the theme, "Problems of a Shrinking World."

The discussion led by Dr. Clement was entitled "World Politics and Diplomacy in War and in Peace." "Any consideration of world politics," he told his audience, "must take into account for an over-all structure, stronger than any nation, which has authority over all nations."

Asserting that the ideas of nationalism and sovereignty must be examined critically since the world has been reduced to a "very small and closely compact globe where no individual is more than tionalism must be radically modified if we are to have developments which will make for a permanent peace."

The difference between diplomacy in war and diplomacy in peace time, according to the educator, is that countries push aside their ideologies and become realists when war is on. "Nations tend to get together for their own benefit in time of war and side with certain other nations, working for victory for survival and progress. But when peace comes, they lose sight of the fact that the war only could have been won by working together, with each nation subordinating its rights to the needs of the joint enterprise." War-time diplomacy should be continued into peace, he said.

Ethiopian treasures found

MILAN, Italy—Many treasured objects belonging to Ethiopia and

2,000 Negro Marines in action on Iwo Jima and saw none appearing in the Navy's film of the invasion, he has ordered a special movie showing Negroes in the various branches of Naval service, reports Drew Pearson in his political column in the New York Mirror, June 10.

were: Roscoe Dunjee, of Oklahoma City, president of the National Negro Business league; N. S. Stewart, Memphis, Tenn.; George W. Cox, Durham, N. C.; O. K. Manning, Houston, Tex.; Leroy Crayton, Cleveland; and Willars S. Allen, Baltimore.

TRIBUNE classified ads work.

both of whom received the degree Doctor of Philosophy.

Dr. Macklin, associate professor of Virginia State university, took his degree in education; Dr. White took his in agricultural chemistry. He is assistant professor of natural science at A. and M. Institute of Alabama.

$1000 FOR ALTERATIONS

Now is the time to PAINT, REPAIR and MODERNIZE your home!

● UNCLE SAM has eased restrictions—you can spend $1000 for alterations or modernization of your home without priorities. So now is the time to add that extra room you've been wanting, to build your garage, or make other needed additions. And, with summer just ahead, it's a good time to think about repairs too. Whatever is needed, do it now—painting, re-roofing, building new fences, landscaping, installation of sprinkler systems, etc.

● CALIFORNIA BANK has money to lend to help you "put your house in order." Loans are made in amounts up to $2500 ($1000 without priorities for alterations and modernization); repayment is in easy monthly instalments over periods as long as three years. Ask about an improvement loan (either an FHA Title 1 loan or a bank loan) at any office of CALIFORNIA BANK

MEMBER FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE CORPORATION

(CALIFORNIA TRUST COMPANY IS OWNED BY CALIFORNIA BANK)

★ BUY MORE WAR BONDS

natives, according to the local United States Employment Service offices. Although USES made no explanation, perhaps had none at hand, the decline in the number of Negroes applying for job placement in war industries through its service patently shows them leery of reconversion. The native-sons are getting back their pre-war jobs, while getting is good, and the immigrants are hightailing it back home, with the same thing in mind.

"The percentages of Negroes seeking jobs in the Los Angeles area is decreasing," said C. M. Von Dietz, field supervisor of the three Los Angeles U.S.E.S. offices test period, 4,041 or 23% were Negroes. In January a similar check showed 24.3% Negroes.

"The decline is most noticeable in the Labor Office at 8th and San Pedro st.," Von Dietz stated. "In January 79.0% of the applicants were Negroes. In June the load had dropped to 56.0%. In our main office at 11th and Flower, the January survey showed 14.2% colored; the June survey, an increase to 17.1%.

"In January, 13.0% of our colored applicants were immigrants; in June the percentage had dropped to 8.7%. Only one out of every 11 Negroes is an immigrant, while one of every 6 is a veteran."

Need for "war-time policy" in peace told by educator

ATLANTA — "Until we have understanding among the peoples of the world, since we are going to have contacts, there will be no possibility for world politics and world diplomacy to build a permanent peace." This statement by Dr. Rufus E. Clement, president of Atlanta university, opened University's Summer Forums this year with the theme, "Problems of a Shrinking World."

The discussion led by Dr. Clement was entitled "World Politics and Diplomacy in War and in Peace." "Any consideration of world politics," he told his audience, "must take into account for an over-all structure, stronger than any nation, which has authority over all nations."

Asserting that the ideas of nationalism and sovereignty must be examined critically since the world has been reduced to a "very small and closely compact globe where no individual is more than 60 air hours distant from any part of the world," the speaker declared that the old ideas of "spheres of influence, and of nationalism must be radically modified if we are to have developments which will make for a permanent peace."

The difference between diplomacy in war and diplomacy in peace time, according to the educator, is that countries push aside their ideologies and become realists when war is on. "Nations tend to get together for their own benefit in time of war and side with certain other nations, working for victory for survival and progress. But when peace comes, they lose sight of the fact that the war only could have been won by working together, with each nation subordinating its rights to the needs of the joint enterprise." War-time diplomacy should be continued into peace, he said.

Ethiopian treasures found

MILAN, Italy—Many treasured objects belonging to Ethiopia and to Emperor Haile Selassie, have been found in Italy. The treasures were stolen by Mussolini's troops during the Italo-Ethiopian war.

PENICILLIN....

The discovery of penicillin has created more public and professional interest than the discovery of any other therapeutic agent. Laymen, as well as everyone concerned with the public health, eagerly awaited the time when penicillin could be produced in quantities sufficiently above military demands to permit its distribution to civilians.

The DOCTOR'S PHARMACY immediately became one of Los Angeles' leading retail distributors of penicillin. This is wholly in keeping with our policy of procuring for this community the latest discoveries and the most modern developments in science and medicine, and of promptly supplying physicians with biologicals that have been tested, proven and properly stored and refrigerated.

Your utilization of the facilities of this modern professional pharmacy assures for your prescription accuracy in compounding, promptness of service and the finest available ingredients.

TAKE YOUR PRESCRIPTIONS TO THE

DOCTORS' PHARMACY

Prescriptions Exclusively

4012 South Central ave. Elks Building ADams 3236

American Labor Party cold on endorsement of Ben Davis

NEW YORK—The hesitation of the American Labor Party to endorse City Councilman Ben Davis for re-election, has Harlem political circles in a quandary. The ALP, which endorsed Councilman Davis in his first campaign, has refused thus far to break its silence and make a choice for the Harlem councilmanic post.

Davis, a Communist, was endorsed a few weeks ago by the Democratic party. It was a coalition between the Democrats and the ALP two years ago which first placed him in office.

A newspaperman, connected with the Communist Daily Worker, Davis was chosen to run for councilman by the first Negro to win a seat, Adam Clayton Powell, who declined to run in order to make his successful race for Congress.

Mississippi born, Davis is the son of a Republican committeeman from that state.

Tribune hires Nisei girl on editorial staff

A 23-year-old Japanese-American Nisei, this week became a member of the staff of the Los Angeles Tribune, working on the re-write desk and as a special feature writer.

The young woman, a graduate of Compton Junior college and former editor of a newspaper published at the relocation camp at Posten, Ariz., is Miss Hisaye Yamamoto, a native Californian. Miss Yamamoto, a brilliant student at Compton, who was graduated from there at the age of 18, has been contributing to newspapers since she was 14 years of age.

The decision to hire a Japanese-American was made by executives of the TRIBUNE in line with the paper's ultimate goal of achieving inter-racial status. In the past, a Gentile white and a Jew have been regular staff members.

Miss Yamamoto debuts as a feature writer this week with a column, "Small Talk", which appears in the editorial-feature section of this issue.

Hold 5 women for stealing G.I. mail

NEW YORK — Five women, accused of looting soldiers' mail, returned from overseas because the Army couldn't find the servicement, have been arrested. They looted packages containing cigarettes, lighters, jelly, candy. One was the wife of a Navyman; another the wife of an Army sergeant.

Clevelander gets Ph.D.

CLEVELAND — First Negro to win a Ph.D. in American culture from Western Reserve university, was Leslie Morgan Collins, 28, who secured it while working the past term on a Rosenwald scholarship and a Western Reserve graduate fellowship.

Walton successor to Liberia expected to be announced

WASHINGTON — The name of the successor to Lester A. Walton, for 10 years American minister to Liberia, is expected to be announced this week, following State Department receipt of an okay from Channing Tobias, member of the so-called Black Cabinet.

The appointment, again of a Negro, has already been approved by the White House and by two of the recognized Negro Democratic leadership, Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune and Congressman William L. Dawson.

Mr. Walton, former Republican leader, resigned shortly after the death of Franklin D. Roosevelt. It was said he did so in a dispute over the American instigated rehabilitation program in Liberia which he is accused of holding at a standstill.

Quality and manners of students declining, educator

ATLANTA, GA. — Educational standards are on the skids, president Florence M. Read of Spellman college told nearly 1000 of the South's teachers, principals and supervisors this week on Spellman campus. Said she: "Education has come a long way, but good care must be taken that progress continues for unless we are careful, we shall be slipping back instead of going forward." She expressed the opinion that to maintain academic standards already set, teachers must work twice as hard. Quoting from several educators who are in accord with her thinking, she stated "it is discouraging, when steady improvement should be taking place."

She lashed at the lack of ability undergoing the necessary sweat it takes to earn those fruits. Men and women cannot be built on an easy plan," she stated.

Crowd cheers man's execution

BERLIN, La. — One thousand whites stood cheering and the wife of the slain policeman sat in her car outside the courthouse when Herbert Anderson, whose case had twice been to the Supreme Court, was executed here last week for the murder of W. H. Bishop, Oakdale chief of police.

The crowd went wild when it was told Anderson had been pronounced dead. During the minutes

Dining Room Furniture

FINE SUITES OF EVERY DESIGN AND STYLE

Also Bedroom and Living Room Now on Hand

Many fine items.

New — Nearly New — Used

TERMS MAY BE HAD

Bekins Storage Co.

FURNITURE SALES DEPT.

PICO COR. CRENSHAW

(Open Every Evening)

Accent on Summer . . . .

NOW . . .

As always, ladies, Bronson Clothes is your guarantee of being the well-dressed woman. Bronson clothes are sold exclusively at the Victor Clothing Company, 214 South Broadway, in downtown Los Angeles.

Smart SUITS

With broad shoulder detail and pencil-slim skirts in both the tai-for re-election, has Harlem political circles in a quandary. The ALP, which endorsed Councilman Davis in his first campaign, has refused thus far to break its silence and make a choice for the Harlem councilmanic post.

Davis, a Communist, was endorsed a few weeks ago by the Democratic party. It was a coalition with the Communist Daily Worker. Davis was chosen to run for councilman by the first Negro to win a seat, Adam Clayton Powell, who declined to run in order to make his successful race for Congress.

Mississippi born, Davis is the son of a Republican committeeman from that state.

Walton successor to Liberia expected to be announced

WASHINGTON — The name of the successor to Lester A. Walton, for 10 years American minister to Liberia, is expected to be announced this week, following State Department receipt of an okay from Channing Tobias, member of the so-called Black Cabinet.

The appointment, again of a Negro, has already been approved by the White House and by two of the recognized Negro Democratic leadership, Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune and Congressman William L. Dawson.

Mr. Walton, former Republican leader, resigned shortly after the death of Franklin D. Roosevelt. It was said he did so in a dispute over the American instigated rehabilitation program in Liberia which he is accused of holding at a standstill.

Quality and manners of students declining, educator

ATLANTA, GA. — Educational standards are on the skids, president Florence M. Read of Spellman college told nearly 1000 of the South's teachers, principals and supervisors this week on Spellman campus. Said she: "Education has come a long way, but good care must be taken that progress continues for unless we are careful, we shall be slipping back instead of going forward." She expressed the opinion that to maintain academic standards already set, teachers must work twice as hard. Quoting from several educators who are in accord with her thinking, she stated "it is discouraging, when steady improvement should be taking place."

She deplored the lack of skills and discipline evidenced in freshmen entering college, and plead that teachers should strive for "thoroughness, accuracy, and the development of responsibility and self-reliance on the part of students." We have to start with students, wherever they may be, she pointed out, whether in the nursery, elementary or high school, college or graduate school. We ought to see to it that they know the fundamentals, the basic three R's—reading, writing and arithmetic." Form, according to President Read, is as important as content in its relation to logic, thinking and accuracy.

Pointing to the general decline in manners, nationally and internationally, President Read asserted that it is next to impossible to maintain a good society if schools and homes fail in their part. She listed as one prime reason for the quality decline in students the fact that too much is done for them and too little required of them. "They should not be given the fruits of education, without undergoing the necessary sweat it takes to earn those fruits. Men and women cannot be built on an easy plan," she stated.

Crowd cheers man's execution

BERLIN, La. — One thousand whites stood cheering and the wife of the slain policeman sat in her car outside the courthouse when Herbert Anderson, whose case had twice been to the Supreme Court, was executed here last week for the murder of W. H. Bishop, Oakdale chief of police.

The crowd went wild when it was told Anderson had been pronounced dead. During the minutes preceding the execution, the crowd had chanted, "You black ....., it'll soon be over now."

Immediately after Anderson had been pronounced dead, the sheriff escorted Mrs. W. Bishop, wife of the slain police chief, to the execution chamber to let her see that her husband's slayer had been put to death.

Oregon CIO raps race terrorism

PORTLAND — In an action paralleling that of the Los Angeles auto workers, the Oregon State CIO Council has gone on record as condemning terroristic attacks against Japanese Americans who have returned to the West Coast.

In its protest, the Oregon CIO Council specifically names the Hood River post of the American Legion which won nation-wide notoriety when it erased the names of Nisei from its World War II honor roll. This action was characterized as "regrettable and unjustifiable" and, "conducive to "race hysteria".

can Nisei, this week became a member of the staff of the Los Angeles Tribune, working on the re-write desk and as a special feature writer.

The young woman, a graduate of Compton Junior college and former editor of a newspaper published at the relocation camp at Posten, Ariz., is Miss Hisaye Yamamoto, a native Californian. Miss Yamamoto, a brilliant student at Compton, who was graduated from there at the age of 18, has been contributing to newspapers since she was 14 years of age.

The decision to hire a Japanese-American was made by executives of the TRIBUNE in line with the paper's ultimate goal of achieving inter-racial status. In the past, a Gentile white and a Jew have been regular staff members.

Miss Yamamoto debuts as a feature writer this week with a column, "Small Talk", which appears in the editorial-feature section of this issue.

icement, have been arrested. They looted packages containing cigarettes, lighters, jelly, candy. One was the wife of a Navyman; another the wife of an Army sergeant.

and a Western Reserve graduate fellowship.

Dining Room Furniture

FINE SUITES OF EVERY DESIGN AND STYLE

Also Bedroom and Living Room Now on Hand

Many fine items.

New — Nearly New — Used

TERMS MAY BE HAD

Bekins Storage Co.

FURNITURE SALES DEPT.

PICO COR. CRENSHAW

(Open Every Evening)

Accent on Summer . . . .

NOW . . .

As always, ladies, Bronson Clothes is your guarantee of being the well-dressed woman. Bronson clothes are sold exclusively at the Victor Clothing Company, 214 South Broadway, in downtown Los Angeles.

Smart SUITS

With broad shoulder detail and pencil-slim skirts in both the tailored or dressmaker versions — priced from

$29.95 to $55.00

Dresses

for the hot summer days ahead, that can easily be tubbed. 9.95 to 29.95.

Fitted Coats

for dressy wear in all the new bright shades — velvet collars and the new turn back cuffs — Yes, Milady.

SUMMER SUITS by Bronson for MEN priced $20 to $80

Tune in Hank the Nightwatchman Sunday afternoon 3:30 to 4:30— Station KFKD, 1020 on your dial

VICTOR CLOTHING COMPANY

214 SOUTH BROADWAY

IN DOWNTOWN LOS ANGELES

OPEN 9:30 A. M. 'TIL 6 P. M. . . . SATURDAY NIGHT 'TIL 9 P. M.

DRINK Coca-Cola

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

BOTTLED UNDER AUTHORITY OF THE COCA-COLA COMPANY BY

"Watch me while I watch Your Watch"

Floyd's Watch Repair Shop

Phone ADams 9271

OHREE FLOYD & SON, Proprietors

4808 S. CENTRAL AVENUE

Los Angeles 11, California

BRUCE'S

B

A GOOD SPRING TONIC

BRUCE'S DRUG STORE

4400 S. Central Avenue Phone CEntury 2-9956

● LONG HOURS?

● PRECISION WORK?

Watch Out for Eye Strain!

Your eye-sight is especially important on your wartime job. And eye-strain causes fatigue and production losses. Let us check your vision.

COME TO 4365½ S. Central

CALL CE. 2-6272 For An Appointment

DR. L. D. JOHNSON

— OPTOMETRIST —

Safer . . . Saner

GIs overseas give $10,220 to colleges

NEW YORK—As an indication of their interest in America's future, Negro enlisted men and their officers in the armed forces have already contributed $10,220 to the 1945 United Negro College Fund campaign for the war time needs of 32 private accredited colleges and universities, it was announced this week by Thomas A. Morgan, national chairman.

Some $8,500 of the amount has been sent from overseas.

One of the largest contributions received was from the 25th Infantry, fighting in the South Pacific theater which sent a check totaling $4,523.13. Four companies of the 1887th Engineers Aviation battalion in the same theater contributed $1,137.99.

Negroes in the armed forces contributed $35,000 to the Fund in last year's campaign. On the basis of the $10,220 received thus far, it is expected that 1945 armed service contributions will surpass that.

College Fund drive near close; all-out effort starts

Drawing rapidly to a close, the Los Angeles Area campaign for the United Negro College Fund moved into the churches last Sunday, where members were asked to subscribe to the Fund, in an all-out effort to meet the local quota before the closing date, July 2, Dr. Harold M. Kingsley, co-chairman, announced today. Results of the church-to-church solicitations were not known as yet, he said.

The closing date for the drive was set by the local Fund committee last Monday night, at the 28th st. YMCA, at its regular

Co-eds win first prizes in Negro Digest contest

CHICAGO— Two co-eds walked away with the $100 first prizes in the Negro Digest's College Essay contest last week. Taking opposite sides of the fence on "Should Negro Students Attend Mixed or Negro Colleges," the two winners were Lelia B. Strayhorne of Kansas City, Kan., a freshman at Lincoln university, and Miss Vivian Freeman, of Huntington Valley, Pa., a junior at Fisk university.

Miss Strayhorne, though a student in a Negro college, wrote:

"Negro students should attend mixed colleges even if it were possible to obtain an equal education in a Negro college. If Negroes do not attend in large numbers the existing mixed colleges, the contribution that higher education can make to the integration of the Negro into American society will be pushed further and further into the future. As long as Negro students make demands upon the various states for "separate but equal" education, Negro colleges will be enlarged. As Negro institutions grow, jim crow education becomes more firmly rooted."

Miss Vivian Freeman, of Fisk, in her essay favoring Negro colleges suggested, "In a mixed college the Negro student has to spend time breaking down barriers, often in preference to his studies, without assurance of favorable results. A college education is too serious to take such chances. In the Negro college, students have greater opportunities for social and extra-curricular activities."

The judges who selected the winners were: Edwin R. Embree, John Temple Graves, James E. Shepard, Charles S. Johnson, Howard W. Odum and Langston Hughes. Honorable mention was awarded to the following — For mixed colleges: Kay Cremin, 21 DAYS FREE TRIAL!

EYE GLASSES by MAIL as low as $1.95

MONEY BACK GUARANTEE!

Prescriptions Expertly Filled — PROMPT SERVICE — BROKEN GLASSES REPAIRED — DIRECTING LENS TESTER

SEND NO MONEY!

Our scientific HOME USE eye-glass tester assists you in the proper selection of glasses. Improve your sight with stylish good-looking glasses at BIG SAVINGS. We guarantee perfect fit, highest quality and expert workmanship. Just send name and address for FREE catalogue and complete information. Write today.

HOME SERVICE SPECTACLE CO.

1011 JN CHESTNUT ST., PHILA. 5, PA.

Floyd's Watch Repair Shop

Phone ADams 9271

OHREE FLOYD & SON, Proprietors

4808 S. CENTRAL AVENUE

Los Angeles 11, California

BRUCE'S

B

A GOOD SPRING TONIC

BRUCE'S DRUG STORE

4400 S. Central Avenue — Phone CEntury 2-9956

● LONG HOURS?

● PRECISION WORK?

Watch Out for Eye Strain!

Your eye-sight is especially important on your wartime job. And eye-strain causes fatigue and production losses. Let us check your vision.

COME TO 4365½ S. Central

CALL CE. 2-6272 For An Appointment

DR. L. D. JOHNSON

— OPTOMETRIST —

Safer . . . Saner

The Scientific Way to a Healthy Body

Dr. A. Thomas King's

CHIROPRACTIC HEALTH SERVICE

Complete Examinations

— GENERAL PRACTICE —

WE FIND AND TREAT THE CAUSE

DR. KING

SPECIALIZING IN HEMORRHOIDS

NO CUTTING — NO LOSS OF TIME

SPOT REDUCING — INCHES AND POUNDS OFF

GLANDULAR THERAPY

4365 AVALON BLVD. — AD. 1-2274

Use

BENTOLINE

For Beautiful Hair

50¢

Buys A 75c Jar WITH THIS AD

On Sale At All Drug Stores and at

BENTON'S

4715 S. Central Avenue

Recommended for Hot Oil Treatments, Pressing and Glossing the Hair

Benton Laboratory

Manufacturing Chemists

NEW YORK—As an indication of their interest in America's future, Negro enlisted men and their officers in the armed forces have already contributed $10,220 to the 1945 United Negro College Fund campaign for the war time needs of 32 private accredited colleges and universities, it was announced this week by Thomas A. Morgan, national chairman.

Some $8,500 of the amount has been sent from overseas.

One of the largest contributions received was from the 25th Infantry, fighting in the South Pacific theater which sent a check totaling $4,523.13. Four companies of the 1887th Engineers Aviation battalion in the same theater contributed $1,137.99.

Negroes in the armed forces contributed $35,000 to the Fund in last year's campaign. On the basis of the $10,220 received thus far, it is expected that 1945 armed service contributions will surpass that.

College Fund drive near close; all-out effort starts

Drawing rapidly to a close, the Los Angeles Area campaign for the United Negro College Fund moved into the churches last Sunday, where members were asked to subscribe to the Fund, in an all-out effort to meet the local quota before the closing date, July 2, Dr. Harold M. Kingsley, co-chairman, announced today. Results of the church-to-church solicitations were not known as yet, he said.

The closing date for the drive was set by the local Fund committee last Monday night, at the 28th st. YMCA, at its regular meeting. However, Dr. Kingsley said short-term pledges will be solicited after July 2.

To date, Lincoln Congregational church is the leading contributor among the churches to the Fund, with $130 contribution. Mrs. A. R. Mosely headed Lincoln Memorial's drive.

Fraternal organizations are still sending in donations, Dr. Kingsley reported. Last Monday night, the B. F. Talbot masonic lodge, through Dr. Herbert Greenwood, gave $100.

4 ships named for Negroes reported sunk

WASHINGTON — Only two out of 18 Liberty ships named for outstanding Negro civilians and seamen who have lost their lives in this war were among the 570 United States flag merchant ships lost from direct war causes between Sept. 1, 1939, and May 8, 1945, the War Shipping administration announced this week.

The two ships sunk by direct enemy action were the SS Frederick Douglass, named for the famed abolitionist leader and editor, and lost in the northwest Atlantic Sept. 20, 1943, and the SS Robert L. Vann, designated in honor of the founder and publisher of the Pittsburgh Courier, and sunk in the northeast Atlantic last Mar. 1.

The WSA report did not include American-owned vessels under foreign flags. Two of the Negro-named vessels are in this category. They were the SS Paul Laurence Dunbar, bearing the name of the famous Negro poet, and the SS Robert S. Abbott, the Liberty ship which honored the founder and publisher of the Chicago Defender.

The TRIBUNE welcomes all social, civic and everyday news-stories. It does not charge for the printing thereof.

YOUR FEET NEEDN'T HURT

See Dr. Ruth Wade

SURGICAL CHIROPODY

Rm. 211 Fay Bldg. 326 W. 3d st.

Hours: 9:30 to 5:30

MUtual 7828

in the Negro Digest's college essay contest last week. Taking opposite sides of the fence on "Should Negro Students Attend Mixed or Negro Colleges," the two winners were Lelia B. Strayhorne of Kansas City, Kan., a freshman at Lincoln university, and Miss Vivian Freeman, of Huntington Valley, Pa., a junior at Fisk university.

Miss Strayhorne, though a student in a Negro college, wrote:

"Negro students should attend mixed colleges even if it were possible to obtain an equal education in a Negro college. If Negroes do not attend in large numbers the existing mixed colleges, the contribution that higher education can make to the integration of the Negro into American society will be pushed further and further into the future. As long as Negro students make demands upon the various states for "separate but equal" education, Negro colleges will be enlarged. As Negro institutions grow, jim crow education becomes more firmly rooted."

Miss Vivian Freeman, of Fisk, in her essay favoring Negro colleges suggested, "In a mixed college the Negro student has to spend time breaking down barriers, often in preference to his studies, without assurance of favorable results. A college education is too serious to take such chances. In the Negro college, students have greater opportunities for social and extra-curricular activities."

The judges who selected the winners were: Edwin R. Embree, John Temple Graves, James E. Shepard, Charles S. Johnson, Howard W. Odum and Langston Hughes. Honorable mention was awarded to the following — For mixed colleges: Kay Cremin, Wheaton college, Norton, Mass.; Obedia Cunningham, LeMoyne college, Memphis, Tenn.; Hugh S. Deale, Indiana university; Mercedes L. Rehm, Northwestern university. For Negro colleges: Mildred E. Delaney, Talladega college; Margaret P. Schwinn, Ohio state; Dorothy Bernice Jones, Virginia State college; Maggie F. Kirkendall, Tennessee A. & I.

SCHW insists Ala. wants poll tax ousted

BIRMINGHAM—The recent defeat of anti-poll tax legislation in the Alabama State legislature does not represent the will of the of the people, according to the Southern Conference for Human Welfare.

The Conference said it had taken a poll of white registered voters and of the Negro community and had found 69 percent of the people against the poll tax.

EYE GLASSES by MAIL as low as $1.95

MONEY BACK GUARANTEE!

PROMPT SERVICE

Prescriptions Expertly Filled

BROKEN GLASSES REPAIRED

SEND NO MONEY!

Our scientific HOME USE eye-glass tester assists you in the proper selection of glasses. Improve your sight with stylish good-looking glasses at BIG SAVINGS. We guarantee perfect fit, highest quality and expert workmanship. Just send name and address for FREE catalogue and complete information. Write today.

HOME SERVICE SPECTACLE CO.

1011 JN CHESTNUT ST., PHILA. 5, PA.

COMPLETE EXAMINATION

FLUOROSCOPIC

X-RAY

$2 See for Yourself What the X-Ray Fluoroscope Shows.

Let US HELP you find the CAUSE of your illness. Eliminate guesswork.

- X-Ray (Fluor.) Lungs and Bronchial Area
- X-Ray (Fluor.) Heart, Stomach, Intestines (small and large)
- X-Ray (Fluor.) Ribs, Pelvis and Bony Parts of Body
- Special Examinations of Sinuses
- Mouth, Nose, Throat, Ears
- Lungs and Bronchi
- Heart
- Gall Bladder
- Kidneys
- Blood Pressure
- Spine and Nervous System
- Pelvic Examination
- Prostate
- Rectal
- Temperature

—FREE: SPECIAL DIET THIS WEEK WITH THIS AD—

Especially prepared and checked diet to suit your own particular case

UNITED DIAGNOSTIC OFFICE

Dr. Wm. L. Corey, D.C.

405 S. Hill St., Suite 1100 — Ph. MI-6091

1201 S. Alvarado St. — EX. 1253

HOURS: Mon., Wed., Fri., 8 A.M. - 8 P.M.

Tues., Thurs., 8 A.M - 5 P.M. Saturday Till Noon

Boy Scouts to spend $30,000 in Negro recruiting program

The General Education Board has appropriated $30,000 to the Boy Scouts of America for a three-year project to carry the programs of scouting to more Negro boys, it was announced last week by Elbert K. Fretwell, chief scout executive.

This was in addition to $17,000 granted by the Board in 1941, which made possible the employment of Negro field executives by 36 local scout councils in the South.

Any local scout council in the South wishing to employ a Negro field executive or add an additional one to its staff may receive a grant from the General Education board fund. One-third of the field executive's salary and traveling expenses will come from the fund if one-third is provided by Negroes and one-third by white persons in the community, or if the last two-thrids is provided by the Community Chest or War Chest.

This program makes possible the employment of 30 to 40 additional Negro field executives who will devote their full time to the organization and supervision of club scout packs, boy scout troops and senior scout units, the recruiting and training of suitable volunteer leaders and the supervision of camps and other Scout activities.

Since the 1941 grant, Negro participation in scouting has increased to a membership of over 100,000 boys and adult leaders.

New Jersey minister becomes first Negro Freeholder

ATLANTIC CITY — The election of the Rev. John Hester as freeholder for the thrid ward in the recent primary elections, marked the first time in the history of state politics that a Negro has won such an office. The Rev. Foster had the support of a metropolitan daily paper in his campaign. It was the New Jersey Herald News.

Ads in the TRIBUNE pay off.

Come In and See Our Large Assortment of RATION-FREE
DRESS AND PLAY SHOES
FOR THE LADIES
$1.99 to $4.99

Here's your chance, girls!

Four lonely sailors who "receive mail, but not enough", appealed this week to the TRIBUNE to put them in touch with "some nice young ladies to write to us".

Ranging in age from 18 to 21, the youths apparently are seabees on duty at a Pacific port. D. E. O'Hern, S/1c, wrote the letter for himself and his buddies, whose names are: C. K. Small, G. L. Silva, and W. B. Brownlow. Their addresses are all the same: USS Atlanta (CL-104), c/o Fleet Post Office, San Francisco, California, 3rd Division.

Here's your chance, girls. The line at the post office forms to the right.

Marine tells of wounding on Okinawa

SOMEWHERE IN THE PACIFIC—Curiosity about heavy anti-aircraft barrage on Okinawa during his first night caused Marine Pfc. Alvin A. Fitzpatrick of Pittsburgh, Pa., to be hit by a small piece of falling flak from Marine guns, according to a War Department relase this week. The scratch was a prophetic one because 11 days later he was wounded by Japanese mortar shell fire in the same leg.

Fitzpatrick explained that he left his foxhole during the anti-aircraft barrage. Later he was wounded while helping to take ammunition and food to the front.

Said the Marine, "I was with a supply company on the north end of the island. We started forward in two amtracs and were supported by three tanks. Suddenly the Japanese opened up with mortar fire. While scrambling for cover, one landed too close and I was hit."

He was evacuated by air and is recovering at a Naval hospital in the Pacific.

A graduate of Pittsburgh Schenley High school in 1941, Fitzpatrick also studied metallurgical engineering at Carnegie Tech. He has a wife and infant daughter

Pasadena to have new VFW post

PASADENA — All returned veterans of both World Wars are urged to join the new Veterans of Foreign Wars post which is being organized in the Pasadena area.

Tentative steps have been taken towards forming the new post with a temporary cabinet of acting officers and Women's Auxiliary in the process of organization. Thost desiring further information are asked to call Mr. Clarence Guy, at SY 32816, or the Sanitary Barber shop, 119 W. Green st., Pasadena.

Negro sergeant represented southern students at S. F.

SAN FRANCISCO — Sgt. Maurice C. Clifford of Meharry Medical college, with a white youth, Douglas Hunt, of the University of North Carolina, represented Negro and white southern students as unofficial observers at the San Francisco conference. Sgt. Clifford, assigned to the Army Specialized Training corps, is a sophomore medical student at Meharry and a native of Washington, D. C. He is a graduate of Hamilton college and the University of Chicago and is a Phi Beta Kappa.

Come . . . See . . . Compare!
$695 DOWN
and low monthly payments will buy one of these
BRAND NEW, INVITING
2 and 3-BEDROOM
HOMES in the delightful
new subdivision for Negro families at
120th STREET

week by Elbert K. Fretwell, chief scout executive.

This was in addition to $17,000 granted by the Board in 1941, which made possible the employment of Negro field executives by 36 local scout councils in the South.

Any local scout council in the South wishing to employ a Negro field executive or add an additional one to its staff may receive a grant from the General Education board fund. One-third of the field executive's salary and traveling expenses will come from the fund if one-third is provided by Negroes and one-third by white persons in the community, or if the last two-thrids is provided by the Community Chest or War Chest.

This program makes possible the employment of 30 to 40 additional volunteer leaders and the supervision of camps and other Scout activities.

Since the 1941 grant, Negro participation in scouting has increased to a membership of over 100,000 boys and adult leaders.

New Jersey minister becomes first Negro Freeholder

ATLANTIC CITY — The election of the Rev. John Hester as freeholder for the thrid ward in the recent primary elections, marked the first time in the history of state politics that a Negro has won such an office. The Rev. Foster had the support of a metropolitan daily paper in his campaign. It was the New Jersey Herald News.

Ads in the TRIBUNE pay off.

Come In and See Our Large Assortment of

RATION-FREE

DRESS AND PLAY SHOES FOR THE LADIES

$1.99 to $4.99

Half-Pint Editions of Grown-up Styles

Buskens

BY CORTELL

RATION-FREE

How wonderful to find nationally-famous BUSKENS in little girls' sizes . . . 8½-3! Yes . . . all the style-appeal of America's favorite casuals. Brown non-marking and long-wearing rubber soles. Get several pairs . . . they're ration-free. In colors . . . or white.

$1.99 to $2.99

ADVERTISED IN MADEMOISELLE, CLAMOUR, CALLING ALL GIRLS, SEVENTEEN AND SCREEN GUIDE.

REEVES SHOE STORE

VERNON AND CENTRAL AVENUE

Los Angeles

on duty at a Pacific port. D. E. O'Hern, S/1c, wrote the letter for himself and his buddies, whose names are: C. K. Small, G. L. Silva, and W. B. Brownlow. Their addresses are all the same: USS Atlanta (CL-104), c/o Fleet Post Office, San Francisco, California, 3rd Division.

Here's your chance, girls. The line at the post office forms to the right.

Marine tells of wounding on Okinawa

SOMEWHERE IN THE PACIFIC—Curiosity about heavy anti-aircraft barrage on Okinawa during his first night caused Marine Pfc. Alvin A. Fitzpatrick of Pittsburgh, Pa., to be hit by a small piece of falling flak from Marine guns, according to a War Department relase this week. The scratch was a prophetic one because 11 days later he was wounded by Japanese mortar shell fire in the same leg.

Fitzpatrick explained that he left his foxhole during the anti-aircraft barrage. Later he was wounded while helping to take ammunition and food to the front.

Said the Marine, "I was with a supply company on the north end of the island. We started forward in two amtracs and were supported by three tanks. Suddenly the Japanese opened up with mortar fire. While scrambling for cover, one landed too close and I was hit."

He was evacuated by air and is recovering at a Naval hospital in the Pacific.

A graduate of Pittsburgh Schenley High school in 1941, Fitzpatrick also studied metallurgical engineering at Carnegie Tech. He has a wife and infant daughter living in Pittsburgh.

33 attacks on Japanese reported

Thirty-three attacks against Japanese-American returnees have occurred in California since January 2, when the mass exclusion orders were revoked, War Relocation Authority Dillon S. Myer revealed this week in an address at Occidental college.

Twenty of the attacks were shootings, one a dynamite, three involved arson, and in 2 instances, Japanese were threatened and warned to stay away from a given area, he said. Nine of these have happened in the last two weeks.

Two of the incidents resulted in court cases, he added. The defendants in one case were acquitted and the other case brought about a light sentence.

Even more dangerous than the "incidents," Mr. Myer said, was the "rationalization — public and private — which permits the perpetrators to go unpunished."

Retiring USO director and associated honored

The board of directors and staff of the Avalon USO, 4200 Avalon blvd., were "at home" last Sunday afternoon from 4 to 7, in honor of Ben Ellison, the retiring director of the center, and Mrs. Armstrong, the associate director.

Sponsors of the fete invited all USO volunteers and friends to attend.

LOS ANGELES TRIBUNE
Vol. 5—No. 19 June 25, 1945
A Model of Journalism is published every Monday by the Tribune Publishing Co., at 4225 S. Central ave., Los Angeles 11, Calif. Printed in U. S. A. Subscription rates: 1 year, $2.00; 6 mos., $1,25; 3 mos., 75c. 5 cents per copy. Entered as second class matter July 27, 1942 at the post office at Los Angeles, Calif., under the act of March 3, 1879.

towards forming the new post with a temporary cabinet of acting officers and Women's Auxiliary in the process of organization. Thost desiring further information are asked to call Mr. Clarence Guy, at SY 32816, or the Sanitary Barber shop, 119 W. Green st., Pasadena.

Francisco conference. Sgt. Clifford, assigned to the Army Specialized Training corps, is a sophomore medical student at Meharry and a native of Washington, D. C. He is a graduate of Hamilton college and the University of Chicago and is a Phi Beta Kappa.

Come . . . See . . . Compare!

$695 DOWN

and low monthly payments will buy one of these

BRAND NEW, INVITING 2 and 3-BEDROOM

HOMES

in the delightful new subdivision for Negro families at

120th STREET

AND

AVALON BLVD.

PLEASE NOTE!

AS LITTLE AS $100 WILL HOLD YOUR RESERVATION

It is necessary to have a "V" card

BIG 50' LOTS!
PRE-WAR CONSTRUCTION

Think of it! Just one low price pays for a roomy home and homesite and such features as . . . lawn and shrubs . . . vented gas floor furnace . . . tile kitchen . . . tile floor in bath . . . hardwood floors. Streets, sidewalks, curbs and sewers to be installed AT NO EXTRA COST! Bus transportation right to these homes.

Don't Delay Come Today!

COMMUNITY HOME BUILDERS

120th ST. and AVALON BLVD.

THornwall 2841

Cues for Difficult Times

Sunday Thoughts for Week-day Living

Week of June 25 to July 1, 1945

"What is man that Thou shouldest magnify him? and that Thou shouldest set thine heart upon him?

"And that Thou shouldest visit him every morning, and try him every moment?

"How long wilt Thou not depart from me, nor let me alone till I swallow down my spittle?

"I have sinned; what shall I do unto Thee, O Thou Preserver of men? why hast Thou set me as a mark against Thee, so that I am a burden to myself?

"And why dost Thou not pardon my transgression, and take away mine inquity? for now shall I sleep in the dust and Thou shalt seek me in the morning, but I shall not be."

—Job 7: 17, 18, 19, 20, 21

Chicago pastor takes over the late Rev. Beane's charge

Arriving Monday of last week, with his family, the Rev. Mr. D. DeWitt Turpeau, of Chicago, preached his first sermon at his new charge, Hamilton Methodist church, East 18th and Naomi sts., last Sunday.

He is the former pastor of the Indiana Avenue Methodist church, Chicago, and succeeds the late Dr. S. M. Beane. The youthful Rev. Turpeau is recognized as one of the Methodist church's most prominent leaders.

Christian Science radiocast

A lecture on the subject "Christian Science: The Science of Divine Mind" will be radiocast over station KFWB (980 kc), next Thursday at 8 p.m., from Ninth Church of Christ, Scientist. The lecuturer, Florence Middaugh, C. S., of Los Angeles, is a member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship.

Your Gas Company offers Practical Canning Aids

FOR YOUR 1945
FOOD SAVING PROGRAM

You are invited to call on your gas company's Home Service Department for any of the helpful information listed below

Negroes lead Methodists in paying missionary pledges

CHICAGO — Negroes of the Methodist church have paid in 80% of their "crusade askings" as against 53% for the entire church, it was revealed by Methodist church last week.

The New Orleans area, headed by Rishop Robert N. Brooks was the first area to pay in full and the Central West conference of the St. Louis area, headed by Bishop E. H. Kelly, was second.

Negro Methodists are segregated into separate jurisdictional conferences by the union in 1939 of the Methodist Episcopal church. The Methodist Episcopal church, South and the Methodist Protestant church, split almost 100 years ago over the slavery issue.

Four active bishops now serve the 19 Negro conferences. They are: Bishop A. P. Shaw, Baltimore; Bishop L. H. King, Atlanta, Bishops Brooks and Kelly, aforementioned. Bishop Willis J. King was elected to serve last year in Liberia, Africa.

Durham church ends $50,000 debt

DURHAM, N.C.—Four years to the day after they first entered their new $50,000 structure, the members of the Mt. Vernon Baptist church here paid off their last dollar of indebtedness on June 10.

Church members participated in a rally which raised a total of $5,000, almost twice as much as was needed to clear the debt. The Rev. J. H. Thomas is the pastor of the church, and it was under his leadership that the new building, whose architecture rivals that of any church in the city of Durham, was erected and paid for.

Southern paper editorializes on the death of a Negro

BIRMINGHAM — Treating the subject with surprising dignity, the Birmingham News, one of the South's leading daily newspapers, editorialized on the death of the Rev. W. D. Hargrove, radio minister and pastor of the United Bethel Independent church. The newspaper said the Rev. Hargrove "was a 'good man'—a fine example of what we mean by that term. He was a faithful servant of his Lord and his people. His death leaves this community the poorer."

"For just experience tells, in every soil,
That those who think must govern those who toil."
—Oliver Goldsmith.

Twenty-Ninth Church of Christ Scientist
1316 East 46th Street
Christian Science Services
Sunday, 11 A.M.
Wednesday evening meetings, testimonials of Christian Science healing, 8 P.M.
Sunday School, 9:30 A.M. for pupils up to 20 years.
Reading Room open daily from 2 to 5 P.M. except Sundays and Holidays.
All are cordially invited to attend our services and visit our Reading Room.

FOR COURTESY—SERVICE AND CONSIDERATION

South Los Angeles Mortuary
1750 East 102nd Street
JE-4778
"Maximum Service at Minimum Cost"

★ In your time of need
HUMAN SYMPATHY is what you value most

Listen every Monday night to "SPOTLIGHT NEWS OF COLORED AMERICANS from Coast to Coast." It's refreshing, different, informative! Sponsored by PEOPLE'S FUNERAL HOME. Le Roy S. Hart, newscaster. Monday night, KFOX (1280), 8:15 to 8:30.

People's Funeral Home
4250 S. CENTRAL AVE. ADams 7181

Sunday Thoughts for Week-day Living

Week of June 25 to July 1, 1945

"What is man that Thou shouldest magnify him? and that Thou shouldest set thine heart upon him?

"And that Thou shouldest visit him every morning, and try him every moment?

"How long wilt Thou not depart from me, nor let me alone till I swallow down my spittle?

"I have sinned; what shall I do unto Thee, O Thou Preserver of men? why hast Thou set me as a mark against Thee, so that I am a burden to myself?

"And why dost Thou not pardon my transgression, and take away mine inquity? for now shall I sleep in the dust and Thou shalt seek me in the morning, but I shall not be."

—Job 7: 17, 18, 19, 20, 21

Chicago pastor takes over the late Rev. Beane's charge

Arriving Monday of last week, with his family, the Rev. Mr. D. DeWitt Turpeau, of Chicago, preached his first sermon at his new charge, Hamilton Methodist church, East 18th and Naomi sts., last Sunday.

He is the former pastor of the Indiana Avenue Methodist church, Chicago, and succeeds the late Dr. S. M. Beane. The youthful Rev. Turpeau is recognized as one of the Methodist church's most prominent leaders.

Christian Science radiocast

A lecture on the subject "Christian Science: The Science of Divine Mind" will be radiocast over station KFWB (980 kc), next Thursday at 8 p.m., from Ninth Church of Christ, Scientist. The lecuturer, Florence Middaugh, C. S., of Los Angeles, is a member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship.

80% of their crusade asking as against 53% for the entire church, it was revealed by Methodist church last week.

The New Orleans area, headed by Rishop Robert N. Brooks was the first area to pay in full and the Central West conference of the St. Louis area, headed by Bishop E. H. Kelly, was second.

Negro Methodists are segregated into separate jurisdictional

The Methodist Episcopal church, South and the Methodist Protestant church, split almost 100 years ago over the slavery issue.

Four active bishops now serve the 19 Negro conferences. They are: Bishop A. P. Shaw, Baltimore; Bishop L. H. King, Atlanta, Bishops Brooks and Kelly, aforementioned. Bishop Willis J. King was elected to serve last year in Liberia, Africa.

Durham church ends $50,000 debt

DURHAM, N.C.—Four years to the day after they first entered their new $50,000 structure, the members of the Mt. Vernon Baptist church here paid off their last dollar of indebtedness on June 10.

Church members participated in a rally which raised a total of $5,000, almost twice as much as was needed to clear the debt. The Rev. J. H. Thomas is the pastor of the church, and it was under his leadership that the new building, whose architecture rivals that of any church in the city of Durham, was erected and paid for.

Southern paper editorializes on the death of a Negro

BIRMINGHAM — Treating the subject with surprising dignity, the Birmingham News, one of the South's leading daily newspapers, editorialized on the death of the Rev. W. D. Hargrove, radio minister and pastor of the United Bethel Independent church. The newspaper said the Rev. Hargrove "was a 'good man'—a fine example of what we mean by that term. He was a faithful servant of his Lord and his people. His death leaves this community the poorer."

Rev. Jordan in Cleveland

The Rev. Frederick D. Jordan, pastor of First AME church, is in Cleveland, attending the summer session of the Bishops' and Connectional Councils of the AME church. In his absence, the Rev. H. C. White was guest preacher at yesterday's worship services.

Baha'i lecture

"The 20th Century Mothers A World Civilization" is the title of a talk to be given next Sunday at 3 p.m., at the Los Angeles Baha'i headquarters, 1709 W. 8th st., at Beacon. Willard Hatch, the speaker, is well-known to those following these talks on Baha'i teachings on what he describes as "the oneness of the world of humanity," the basic and fundamental unity of religions, the agreement between science and religion, its unequivocal position regarding the abandonment of all prejudices and superstitions, and advancement of divinely conceived plans for a world-wide civilization, conceiving the world as one home, and mankind, whatever their race or persuasion, as its citizens."

Women's Political Study Club Council meeting Thursday

The regular monthly meeting of the Council of the Women's Political Study club will be held next Thursday at 1 p.m. at Republican headquarters, Room 200, Spring Arcade building, 541 S. Spring st. Visitors are invited.

BAHA'I WORLD FAITH
1709 W. 8th Street at Beacon
"The 20th Century Mothers A World Civilization"
Willard P. Hatch, Speaker
SUNDAY, JULY 1, 3 p.m.
No Admission Fee No Collection
KMTR—SUNDAYS—7:15 to 7:30 p.m.

FIRST AME CHURCH
8th and Towne Ave. VA-7543
Frederick D. Jordan, Pastor
SCHEDULE OF SUNDAY SERVICES:
6:00 a.m.—Sunrise Prayer.
9:30 a.m.—Church School.
10:45 a.m.—Morning Worship.
6:00 p.m. — Allen Christian Endeavor League.
7:15 p.m.—Hymn Sing.
7:30 p.m.—Evening Worship.

Christian Science Services
Sunday, 11 A.M.
Wednesday evening meetings, testimonials of Christian Science healing, 8 P.M.
Sunday School, 9:30 A.M. for pupils up to 20 years.
Reading Room open daily from 2 to 5 P.M. except Sundays and Holidays.
All are cordially invited to attend our services and visit our Reading Room.

FOR COURTESY—SERVICE AND CONSIDERATION
South Los Angeles Mortuary
1750 East 102nd Street
JE-4778
"Maximum Service at Minimum Cost"

★ In your time of need HUMAN SYMPATHY is what you value most
Listen every Monday night to "SPOTLIGHT NEWS OF COLORED AMERICANS from Coast to Coast." It's refreshing, different, informative! Sponsored by PEOPLE'S FUNERAL HOME. Le Roy S. Hart, newscaster. Monday night, KFOX (1280), 8:15 to 8:30.
People's Funeral Home
4250 S. CENTRAL AVE. ADams 7181

'Unsurpassed Service For Over 25 Years'

A FAMILIAR LANDMARK . . . .
And preferred by hundreds of families for over 25 years because of that DISTINCTIVE QUALITY in a Conner-Johnson memorial.
CONNER-JOHNSON CO., INC.
1400 EAST 17th STREET PR-3195

A DIGNIFIED MEMORIAL

(SINCE 1905)
ROBERTS MORTUARY
(A. J. Roberts, Sons & Co.)
1415 S. Central PRospect 3477
Our 40 Years of continuous service have rewarded us with many faithful and lasting friendships.

Your Gas Company offers Practical Canning Aids
FOR YOUR 1945 FOOD SAVING PROGRAM
You are invited to call on your gas company's Home Service Department for any of the helpful information listed below; or to bring in your pressure cooker for a free gauge-test report which takes about 15 days' time.

1 FREE INSTRUCTION MANUAL
A handy Manual crowded with information about canning is yours for the asking at your nearest gas company office. Tells about the boiling water bath method; how to use the steam pressure cooker; and all the a-b-c's of canning.

2 FREE CANNING INFORMATION
Just call your Gas Company's Home Service Department about printed Information and Recipes, Lectures for Women's Organizations—and Canning Classes in certain areas.
SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA GAS COMPANY
It's the FLAME that makes it perfect
GAS MODERN PRACTICAL

"U" of Chicago holding race relations summer institute

CHICAGO — Designed to permit the exchange of actual experiences and encourage development of new techniques and organizing methods, a new kind of summer institute on "Race Relations and Community Organizations" is under way at the University of Chicago under joint sponsorship of the University and the American Council on Race Relations.

The close to 30 registrants in the institute, which started June 18 and runs through June 29, all are active in race relations work in their home communities, and represent a geographical as well as an organizational cross-section of the country.

Panel discussions deal with practical problems which arise in every community, such as housing, employment and industrial relations, police protection and law enforcement, public services, organization, education, public relations, and federal agency policy.

Authorities and experienced workers in each of the fields listed present their views at the daytime panels, followed by evening seminar discussion by the registrants. The last two sessions are being reserved for discussion of specific plans and recommendations for more effective community organizations and programs.

Among those attending the institute are: Dennis Dowdell, executive director, Southwest Community center, Pontiac, Mich.; Thomas Elliot, professor of sociology, Northwestern university; Robert Gibson, executive secretary, Council for Civic Unity, San Francisco; Sven Godfredson, educational director, United Packinghouse Workers, Chicago; George Goodman, director, North End Community Center, Inc., Hartford, Conn.; Goldie Greenfield, Jewish Community Center, Youngstown, Ohio; Frank Horne, national Public Housing Administration, Washington, D. C.; Harry Jones, War Manpower Commission, Chicago; Miss Capitolia Jones, member of Mayor's Interracial Committee, Kansas City, Mo.; Lloyd Lewis, Morehouse college, Atlantic, Ga.; Miss Jean McKenzie, acting dean of students, Mills College, Oakland, Calif.; Mrs. Emily Miller, Parkway Community House, Chicago; Mrs. Irene Miller, race relations adviser, Federal Public Housing authority, Seattle, Wash.; Mrs. Helen Parker Mudgett, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis; John O'Brian, information section, OPA, Washington; John Provinse, War Relocation Authority, Washington; C. E. Singer, executive secretary, YMCA, Kansas City, Mo.; Horace Stewart, Akron Council on Race Relations, Akron, Ohio; Robert Strozier, race relations consultant, International House, Chicago, Ill.; Ellen Turner, field representative, ACRR, San Francisco; Thomas A. Webster, executive secretary, Urban League, Kansas City, Mo.; Mrs. Beulah Whitby, ass't. director, City of Detroit Interracial Committee; Thomas Wright, executive director, Mayor's Committee, Chicago.

Hit-run driver convicted, given 5-year sentence

Tried for hit-and-run driving and involuntary manslaughter, Henry Watson, Jr., of 846 E. 32nd st., has been acquitted of the latter charge and given a five-year sentence, the first 6 months to be spent in County Jail.

The manslaughter charge involved the death of Mrs. Nellie McLacklin, who died last May 6 of injuries received when she was struck down at Vermont and W. 50th sts., by the car Watson was driving.

Watson was having his preliminary hearing on May 7 before Judge Louis W. Kaufman, when

New tract announced

The Sun Village corp. this week announced the opening of a new tract, known as Sun Village, near Palmdale, in Little Rock, 48 miles from Los Angeles. According to the promoters, the climate is ideal for the raising of rabbits, turkeys and chickens and the land will be available in acre or lot sizes, 66 by 165 feet. A cooperative community with schools, hotels, stores, swimming pool is planned.

In order to make the proposition attractive, a low down payment has been set with terms. For those who are postwar planning, Sun Village offers an opportunity to own a self producing ranch or home.

The offices of Sun Village, Inc., are located at 416 W. 8th Street, Room 308.

U. S. Japanese suffered over 2,000 casualties

ARMY HEADQUARTERS, PACIFIC OCEAN AREAS — More than 2,000 American soldiers of Japanese ancestry suffered casualties in the European war, according to an Army compilation, a U.P. dispatch reported this week.

The total covered battles in Italy and France, and included 361 killed in action, 49 dead of wounds, 1,651 wounded, 34 missing, and 6 captured.

Most of the soldiers belonged to the 100th battalion, composed mainly of Hawaiian Japanese, and the 442nd Combat team, which includes volunteers and draftees from the relocation centers and Hawaii.

Shaw university professor to administer German relief

WASHINGTON — John Francis Price, former registrar of Shaw university for Negroes at Raleigh, N. C., has been appointed to an administrative position with the displaced persons program in Germany, the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation administration announced this week. Mr. Price is now taking a special training course given by UNRRA at the University of Maryland.

Meharry School of Dentistry approved by dental ass'n.

NASHVILLE — The Council on Dental Education of the American Dental association has designated the School of Dentistry of Meharry Medical college as one of the dental schools listed as "approved."

The Angelus is centrally located with Chapel facilities, Organ music and modern equipment under experienced personal supervision.

The ANGELUS FUNERAL HOME

1030 East Jefferson Blvd.
ADams 5188

L. G. ROBINSON
President and Manager

LORENZO BOWDOIN
Secretary and Treasurer

Prepare Now for Your Future——

mit the exchange of actual experiences and encourage development of new techniques and organizing methods, a new kind of summer institute on "Race Relations and Community Organizations" is under way at the University of Chicago under joint sponsorship of the University and the American Council on Race Relations.

The close to 30 registrants in the institute, which started June 18 and runs through June 29, all are active in race relations work in their home communities, and represent a geographical as well as an organizational cross-section of the country.

Panel discussions deal with practical problems which arise in every community, such as housing, employment and industrial relations, police protection and law enforcement, public services, organization, education, public relations, and federal agency policy.

Authorities and experienced workers in each of the fields listed present their views at the daytime panels, followed by evening seminar discussion by the registrants. The last two sessions are being reserved for discussion of specific plans and recommenda-

Among those attending the institute are: Dennis Dowdell, executive director, Southwest Community center, Pontiac, Mich.; Thomas Elliot, professor of sociology, Northwestern university; Robert Gibson, executive secretary, Council for Civic Unity, San Francisco; Sven Godfredson, educational director, United Packinghouse Workers, Chicago; George Goodman, director, North End Community Center, Inc., Hartford, Conn.; Goldie Greenfield, Jewish Community Center, Youngstown, Ohio; Frank Horne, national Public Housing Administration, Washington, D. C.; Harry Jones, War Manpower Commission, Chicago; Miss Capitolia Jones, member of Mayor's Interracial Committee, Kansas City, Mo.; Lloyd Lewis, Morehouse college, Atlantic, Ga.; Miss Jean McKenzie, acting dean of students, Mills College, Oakland, Calif.; Mrs. Emily Miller, Parkway Community House, Chicago; Mrs. Irene Miller, race relations adviser, Federal Public Housing authority, Seattle, Wash.; Mrs. Helen Parker Mudgett, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis; John O'Brian, information section, OPA, Washington; John Provinse, War Relocation Authority, Washington; C. E. Sanger, executive secretary, YMCA, Kansas City, Mo.; Horace Stewart, Akron Council on Race Relations, Akron, Ohio; Robert Strozier, race relations consultant, International House, Chicago, Ill.; Ellen Turner, field representative, ACRR, San Francisco; Thomas A. Webster, executive secretary, Urban League, Kansas City, Mo.; Mrs. Beulah Whitby, ass't. director, City of Detroit Interracial Committee; Thomas Wright, executive director, Mayor's Committee, Chicago.

Hit-run driver convicted, given 5-year sentence

Tried for hit-and-run driving and involuntary manslaughter, Henry Watson, Jr., of 846 E. 32nd st., has been acquitted of the latter charge and given a five-year sentence, the first 6 months to be spent in County Jail.

The manslaughter charge involved the death of Mrs. Nellie McLacklin, who died last May 6 of injuries received when she was struck down at Vermont and W. 50th sts., by the car Watson was driving.

Watson was having his preliminary hearing on May 7 before Judge Louis W. Kaufman, when word was received by the court that Mrs. McLacklin had died. The court held him to answer a manslaughter charge, and bail was raised from $500 to $2,000.

He was represented by Attorney H. L. Richardson.

Fisk to hold race relations institute

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Fisk university will hold its second annual institute of race relations July 2-21 under auspices of the race relations division of the American Missionary Association. Nine institutes on major minority problems in the United States will be conducted by Dr. Ira DeA. Reid, of Atlanta university; Dr. Charles H. Thompson, Howard; W. W. Alexander, of the Rosenwald fund; Dr. Allison Davis, University of Chicago; Frayser T. Lane, Chicago Urban League; Willard Townsend, labor unionist; Dr. Louis Wirth, University of Chicago; and Charles H. Houston, member of the FEPC.

'Christian Science' Lesson-Sermon Text

"Lift up the hands which hang down, and the feeble knees; and make straight paths for your feet, lest that which is lame be turned out of the way; but let it rather be healed." This admonition of Paul to the Hebrews is the Golden Text of the Sunday Lesson-Sermon on "Christian Science" in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston.

A Lesson-Sermon citation from I Samuel records that when Goliath sent his challenge to the armies of Israel, "David said to Saul, Let no man's heart fail because of him; thy servant will go and fight with this Philistine. . . . And he took his staff in his hand, and chose him five smooth stones out of the brook, . . . and his sling was in his hand: . . . Then said David to the Philistine, Thou comest to me with a sword, and with a spear, and with a shield; but I come to thee in the name of the Lord of hosts, . . . whom thou hast defied. . . . And David . . . smote the Philistine in his forehead, . . . and he fell upon his face to the earth."

tract, known as Sun Village, near Palmdale, in Little Rock, 48 miles from Los Angeles. According to the promoters, the climate is ideal for the raising of rabbits, turkeys and chickens and the land will be available in acre or lot sizes, 66 by 165 feet. A cooperative community with schools, hotels, stores, swimming pool is planned.

In order to make the proposition attractive, a low down payment has been set with terms. For those who are postwar planning, Sun Village offers an opportunity to own a self producing ranch or home.

The offices of Sun Village, Inc., are located at 416 W. 8th Street, Room 308.

ARMY HEADQUARTERS, PACIFIC OCEAN AREAS — More than 2,000 American soldiers of Japanese ancestry suffered casualties in the European war, according to an Army compilation, a U.P. dispatch reported this week.

The total covered battles in Italy and France, and included 361 killed in action, 49 dead of wounds, 1,651 wounded, 34 missing, and 6 captured.

Most of the soldiers belonged to the 100th battalion, composed mainly of Hawaiian Japanese, and the 442nd Combat team, which includes volunteers and draftees from the relocation centers and Hawaii.

administrative position with the displaced persons program in Germany, the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation administration announced this week. Mr. Price is now taking a special training course given by UNRRA at the University of Maryland.

Meharry School of Dentistry approved by dental ass'n.

NASHVILLE — The Council on Dental Education of the American Dental association has designated the School of Dentistry of Meharry Medical college as one of the dental schools listed as "approved."

The Angelus is centrally located with Chapel facilities, Organ music and modern equipment under experienced personal supervision.

The ANGELUS FUNERAL HOME

1030 East Jefferson Blvd.
ADams 5188

L. G. ROBINSON
President and Manager

LORENZO BOWDOIN
Secretary and Treasurer

Prepare Now for Your Future—
Become Independent for Life

"You Will Love to Live" In Beautiful Sun Village
"Your Place In the Sun," Little Rock, California

Only 48 miles from Los Angeles (Near Palmdale)

"The Most Healthful Climate In the World"

LITTLE ROCK GRAMMAR SCHOOL

Here is your chance to be your own landlord—
No more rent receipts—
Here you can build your own model home away from city noise and congestion
Ample acreage available in one and three acre tracts—
A proven paradise for turkey, chicken and rabbit farms (Ready market—quick turnover)—
Fertile soil

Also residential lots.....66x165—
Already plenty of business activity in the locale—
Low down payment.....suitable terms—
(Pre-development prices)
Free Life Membership in Sun Village Country Club when completed—
Low taxes—no assessments—water and streets — good schools nearby — adequate transportation facilities—
— Unrestricted —

ACT NOW!

Call in person or mail coupon.

SUN VALLEY INCORPORATED
416 West Eighth Street Los Angeles, Calif.
Suite 203 — Telephone TR. 5581

Without obligation on my part send sales representative or mail descriptive literature.

Name .....
Address .....
City .....
Phone .....

Should have made out he was asleep

Instead of answering the rap at his door last Sunday night, Bill Pilkin, 1110 E. 12th st., should have "stood in bed". When he did answer, as he shouldn't have, an unidentified man bashed him with a brickbat, entered his lodgings, and made off with $35 in cash.

He should have been singing in the bathtub

If Lewis Johnson had been singing in his bathtub early last Wednesday morning, the thief who broke into his lodgings via the W. C. would have had an awkward moment, and Johnson would not have been minus his ring and watch, valued at $205.

THE COTTON CLUB
Vallejo's Newest and Smartest Spot
Located at VIRGINIA and BRANCIFORTE
Operated in conjunction with the
CAPITAL HOTEL and CIGAR STORE
COCKTAIL LOUNGE FOR THE LADIES
Serving All Fine and Choice Wines and Liquors
Courtesy Services Pay Roll Checks Cashed

CHARLES E. DELONG
Your Used Car Dealer in Vallejo, California
SEE US FIRST BEFORE YOU BUY FOR THE BEST BUY IN USED CARS
— ASK FOR SCOTTY —
Our Motto Is: "When You Are Right With the World, the World Is Right With You"
128 Virginia St. Phone 33013
Vallejo, California

For the Best in Rest—
TRY THE
LA JOLLA HOTEL

NEWS LETTER . . . VALLEJO

VALLEJO — (By Howard Jeffers)—The month of June at the Georgia Street USO was full of interesting programs. The monthly "Grand Slam Party" was held each Thursday night at 9:00 p.m. Scores for the month were tabulated and a grand prize given at the end of month for highest scorer.

Musical teas on Sunday afternoon have become a favorite at the club. On Sunday, June 3rd, the "Awakening Echoes" of the Second Baptist church presented a program through the cooperation of the Rev. H. J. James, pastor. On June 10, Kyles Temple AME church gave a musical sing at the club with Rev. J. E. McCorkle as sponsor. These programs will continue on Sunday afternoons at 7:00 p.m., after which tea will be served by volunteers.

The four Monday nights in the month were set aside for Junior Hostess training courses. Speakers were: Captain Garfield Steward, "Morale Factors in the Army"; Miss Juanita Baker, associate director of USO caravan; Miss Gertrude McGhee, NCCS Consultant on Volunteers. Lt. James Dunn spoke on "The Important role of the Junior Hostess in the life of the Military."

Each Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 p.m. Miss Eleanor Wood, of the Vallejo Nursing Service, conducts a series of lectures on "Parenthood." Certificates are awarded at the end of the course which lasts nine weeks.

The John King post of the American Legion, since its installation May 24 has been regular business meeting at the club. On June 17, they served as hosts for the Father's Day breakfast for servicemen.

A very much needed service has been added for military personnel in the form of a "Mending Corner." Miss Gladys Scott has started this service and has been on hand on Wednesdays at 7:00 p.m.

Local NAACP sparking fight for bomber officer's release

The local branch of the NAACP, through its Citizens Emergency Committee, is conducting a campaign to secure the release of Lieutenant Roger Terry, Marsden Thompson, and Shirley Clinton, Negro officers of the 477th Bomber squadron, who were arrested two and a half months ago for entering a white officers' club at Freeman Field, Ind., and are now "in arrest of quarters" at Godman Field, Kentucky.

In spite of the War Dept. order prohibiting such segregation, Freeman Field restricted the use of the club to white officers. More than 100 other Negro officers were arrested for refusal to sign a statement accepting this segregation but were released after a few days. No formal charges have been made against the officers now being held except "refusal to obey a direct order," the order apparently being to "stay out of the white officers' club."

At the time of the occurence the national office of the NAACP sent a member of its legal staff to Freeman Field, but the Army refused to let the officers have legal counsel because charges had not yet been made. Pressure from the NAACP and other quarters has failed to net any action to date.

Two of the officers, Lts. Terry and Thompson, are residents of Los Angeles.

Telegrams have been sent to the national office of the NAACP, urging that the full weight and influence of the organization be used, and to President Truman urging that, as Commander-in-Chief of the armed forces, he give his attention to the delay in bringing the officers to trial and requesting a thorough investigation.

102 Van Buren in Carquinez Heights, entertained Nathaniel V. Burgess and Julius Stewart, both seaman 1/c, last Saturday evening. After dinner, the following guests joined in an evening of dancing and games: Miss Sarah L. Durham, Mrs. Elmett J. Butts, Bernice Driskell, Deldert Halliburton, Miss Nellie Driskell, Mr. and Marion Toney, Cornelius Toney, Mrs. Doris Gilbert, Walter J. Haynes, Gunner's Mate Francis E. Johnson and Seaman 1/c Montroce J. Brock and Mrs. Brock.

The Juvenile Court of the Heroines of Jericho, Harmony Court No. 18, will have their first event since being organized, a grand picnic July 4 at Blue Rock Spring

Motorman sues autoist for assault

O. L. Evans, 1006 E. 28th st., a motorman for the L. A. Transit co., filed suit last week in municipal court for $2,000, against Henry H. Grossman, 322 Camden drive, Beverly Hills, for assault and battery.

According to Evans, on June 21, Grossman parked his car in a safety zone on Lucas and 7th sts., blocking the passage of the streetcar. After the streetcar driven by Evans, hit Grossman's car, the driver allegedly jumped on the car and assaulted the motorman.

Grossman claims Evans deliberately struck his car. Trial date has not been set. Walter Gordon Jr., represents Evans.

College in North Carolina to admit Negroes

TUSKEGEE—A Negro student and faculty member will take part for the first time in the summer session of Black Mountain colledge, Black Mountain, which opens next week.

The student is Mrs. Elaine Thomas, a Rosenwald scholar who was awarded a scholarship for answer, as he shouldn't have, an unidentified man bashed him with a brickbat, entered his lodgings, and made off with $35 in cash.

W. C. would have had an awkward moment, and Johnson would not have been minus his ring and watch, valued at $205.

THE COTTON CLUB
Vallejo's Newest and Smartest Spot
Located at VIRGINIA and BRANCIFORTE
Operated in conjunction with the
CAPITAL HOTEL and CIGAR STORE
COCKTAIL LOUNGE FOR THE LADIES
Serving All Fine and Choice Wines and Liquors
Courtesy Services Pay Roll Checks Cashed

CHARLES E. DELONG
Your Used Car Dealer in Vallejo, California
SEE US FIRST BEFORE YOU BUY FOR THE BEST BUY IN USED CARS
— ASK FOR SCOTTY —
Our Motto Is: "When You Are Right With the World, the World Is Right With You"
128 Virginia St. Phone 33013
Vallejo, California

For the Best in Rest—
TRY THE
LA JOLLA HOTEL
721 East Sixth Street or
THE HOTEL ELLIS
802 East Sixth Street
For the Good in Food
The La Jolla Cafe
Mackel-Corp.

ly "Grand Slam Party" was held each Thursday night at 9:00 p.m. Scores for the month were tabulated and a grand prize given at the end of month for highest scorer.

Musical teas on Sunday afternoon have become a favorite at the club. On Sunday, June 3rd, the "Awakening Echoes" of the Second Baptist church presented a program through the cooperation of the Rev. H. J. James, pastor. On June 10, Kyles Temple AME church gave a musical sing at the club with Rev. J. E. McCorkle as sponsor. These programs will continue on Sunday afternoons at 7:00 p.m., after which tea will be served by volunteers.

The four Monday nights in the month were set aside for Junior Hostess training courses. Speakers were: Captain Garfield Steward, "Morale Factors in the Army"; Miss Juanita Baker, associate director of USO caravan; Miss Gertrude McGhee, NCCS Consultant on Volunteers. Lt. James Dunn spoke on "The Important role of the Junior Hostess in the life of the Military."

Each Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 p.m. Miss Eleanor Wood, of the Vallejo Nursing Service, conducts a series of lectures on "Parenthood." Certificates are awarded at the end of the course which lasts nine weeks.

The John King post of the American Legion, since its installation May 24 has been regular business meeting at the club. On June 17, they served as hosts for the Father's Day breakfast for servicemen.

A very much needed service has been added for military personnel in the form of a "Mending Corner." Miss Gladys Scott has started this service and has been on hand on Wednesdays at 7:00 p.m. Chevrons are sewed on, coat linings mended and other services performed.

The whole month has been dedicated to the recruiting and training of volunteers and this program will continue throughout the month of July.

O.E.S. NEWS

Fidelus Chapter No. 19 O.E.S. had its regular meeting Friday night during which initiation of five candidiates in the first degree was conducted.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Toney, of 102 Van Buren in Carquinez Heights, entertained Nathaniel V. Burgess and Julius Stewart, both seaman 1/c, last Saturday evening. After dinner, the following guests joined in an evening of dancing and games: Miss Sarah L. Durham, Mrs. Elmett J. Butts, Bernice Driskell, Deldert Halliburton, Miss Nellie Driskell, Mr. and Marion Toney, Cornelius Toney, Mrs. Doris Gilbert, Walter J. Haynes, Gunner's Mate Francis E. Johnson and Seaman 1/c Montroce J. Brock and Mrs. Brock.

The Juvenile Court of the Heroines of Jericho, Harmony Court No. 18, will have their first event since being organized, a grand picnic July 4 at Blue Rock Spring.

* * *

Shore Patrolman J. Jones is tearful since his lovely wife, Carrie, left for her home in Philadelphia, to visit relatives and take care of business which will keep her there until near the last of the year. Hubby has moved to the "Y".

* * *

Send all news to P.O. Box 750 or call 3-4148 not later than Tuesday morning. Please pay up on your subscriptions at once.

* * *

Theodore P. Higby, son of Mrs. Beatrice Jackson, aid grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Toney, died Sunday afternoon after more than a year of lingering illness.

Mrs. Collia Scruggs has been seriously ill during the past week. Mother Dunn is considerably improved.

Evangelist, Rev. Hazel Brownrig is conducting a series of meetings here at Kyle Temple. Three persons have connected with the church, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin and Florence Banks, of Cabot Terrace and Mr. Harry Camper, of Floyd Terrace.

Lieutenant Roger Terry, Marsden Thompson, and Shirley Clinton, Negro officers of the 477th Bomber squadron, who were arrested two and a half months ago for entering a white officers' club at Freeman Field, Ind., and are now "in arrest of quarters" at Godman Field, Kentucky.

In spite of the War Dept. order prohibiting such segregation, Freeman Field restricted the use of the club to white officers. More than 100 other Negro officers were arrested for refusal to sign a statement accepting this segregation but were released after a few days. No formal charges have been made against the officers now being held except "refusal to obey a direct order," the order apparently being to "stay out of the white officers' club."

At the time of the occurence the national office of the NAACP sent a member of its legal staff to Freeman Field, but the Army refused to let the officers have legal counsel because charges had not yet been made. Pressure from the NAACP and other quarters

Los Angeles.

Telegrams have been sent to the national office of the NAACP, urging that the full weight and influence of the organization be used, and to President Truman urging that, as Commander-in-Chief of the armed forces, he give his attention to the delay in bringing the officers to trial and requesting a thorough investigation.

Motorman sues autoist for assault

O. L. Evans, 1006 E. 28th st., a motorman for the L. A. Transit co., filed suit last week in municipal court for $2,000, against Henry H. Grossman, 322 Camden drive, Beverly Hills, for assault and battery.

According to Evans, on June 21, Grossman parked his car in a safety zone on Lucas and 7th sts., blocking the passage of the streetcar. After the streetcar driven by Evans, hit Grossman's car, the driver allegedly jumped on the car and assaulted the motorman.

Grossman claims Evans deliberately struck his car. Trial date has not been set. Walter Gordon Jr., represents Evans.

College in North Carolina to admit Negroes

TUSKEGEE—A Negro student and faculty member will take part for the first time in the summer session of Black Mountain colledge, Black Mountain, which opens next week.

The student is Mrs. Elaine Thomas, a Rosenwald scholar who was awarded a scholarship for study in music and art.

Roland Hayes, internationally known in the field of music, is to be on the faculty.

Black Mountain College was founded in 1933 by a group of teachers and students as a coeducational college of liberal arts.

South must take a chance on the Negro, says white

CHICAGO — The South must take 7 chances, one of which is on the Negro, declares John Temple Graves, noted writer for the Birmingham News and the Age-Herald (White). "For decency's sake, for economy's and society's, the 10,000,000 Negroes who live there must be not only permitted but encouraged to continue advancements which have carried them far since the first World War."

This analysis of the South appears in the July issue of New Vistas magazine, a new interracial publication, published at 366 E. 47th st., Chicago.

"The best tunes of all"
on our Juke "Boxes"
BRONZE AMUSEMENT CO.
OUR MACHINES IN YOUR FAVORITE SPOTS
A Race-owned business—Eddie Atkinson & Phil McGee, Props.
24-Hour Service 3719 Griffith Ave. VA-5533
Call us for Machines for Business or Parties

TIMBERWOLVES COMMENDED—Brigadier General Benjamin O. Davis, of the Inspector General's office, European Theatre of Operations, congratulates troops of the famed 104th Timberwolf division on their commendable record in combat. "You have proven white and Negro troops can serve—and fight—side by side," General Davis told them. "You have won the respect and friendship of your comrades." Ten of the division received Silver Star and Bronze star

Afro-American papers get extra newsprint grants

WASHINGTON — Seven Negro newspapers have obtained extra-quota grants of newsprint, aggregating 157 tons, on appeals before the War Production board's appeal board. The Negro periodicals were included among 28 newspapers obtaining extra-quota grants totaling 921 tons.

The following Negro newspapers obtained the extra-quota grants: Norfolk (Va.) Journal and Guide, 65; Baltimore (Md.) Afro American, 27; National Afro American, 34; New Jersey Afro American, 3; Philadelphia Afro American, 13; Richmond Afro American, 5; Washington Afro, 10. All of the five last names are published by the Afro-American publishing co. at Baltimore, Md.

Southern university bars student from examination

COLUMBIA, S. C. — A student wishing to take an examination for entrance to Vassar college for women in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and directed to the University of South Carolina which is a clearing house for Vassar applicants, was barred from the examination on grounds that "only one racial group could be examined on the campus."

Woman sentenced to die

PHILADELPHIA — Corine Sykes, 20-year-old housemaid, has been sentenced to the electric chair for the murder last December of her employer, Mrs. Freda S. Woodlinger.

Eastsiders work with Chest youth agencies

Although less than 10 per cent of the children of the war-boomed population of the Los Angeles area have been included in character building and citizenship training groups, 38 youths agencies of the Community Chest have 100,000 enrolled, including some 25,000 boys and girls active in clubs, classes, athletic groups and other groups in the Los Angeles

Terrorism against Nisei is protested

Sharp condemnation of West Coast terrorism against returning Japanese-Americans has been made by World War II veterans who are members of the United Auto Workers' Union, in a resolution passed and adopted by the Los Angeles District Auto and Aircraft Council.

The resolution included a demand that law enforcement officers bring an end to the recent

TIMBERWOLVES COMMENDED—Brigadier General Benjamin O. Davis, of the Inspector General's office, European Theatre of Operations, congratulates troops of the famed 104th Timberwolf division on their commendable record in combat. "You have proven white and Negro troops can serve—and fight—side by side," General Davis told them. "You have won the respect and friendship of your comrades." Ten of the division received Silver Star and Bronze star quota grants of newsprint, aggregating 157 tons, on appeals before the War Production board's appeal board. The Negro periodicals were included among 28 newspapers obtaining extra-quota grants totaling 921 tons.

The following Negro newspapers obtained the extra-quota grants: Norfolk (Va.) Journal and Guide, 65; Baltimore (Md.) Afro American, 27; National Afro American, 34; New Jersey Afro American, 3; Philadelphia Afro American, 13; Richmond Afro American, 5; Washington Afro, 10. All of the five last names are published by the Afro-American publishing co. at Baltimore, Md.

Southern university bars student from examination

COLUMBIA, S. C. — A student wishing to take an examination for entrance to Vassar college for women in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and directed to the University of South Carolina which is a clearing house for Vassar applicants, was barred from the examination on grounds that "only one racial group could be examined on the campus."

Woman sentenced to die

PHILADELPHIA — Corine Sykes, 20-year-old housemaid, has been sentenced to the electric chair for the murder last December of her employer, Mrs. Freda S. Woodlinger.

Eastsiders work with Chest youth agencies

Although less than 10 per cent of the children of the war-boomed population of the Los Angeles area have been included in character building and citizenship training groups, 38 youths agencies of the Community Chest have 100,000 enrolled, including some 25,000 boys and girls active in clubs, classes, athletic groups and other groups in the Los Angeles Youth project, it was learned last week at the annual meeting of the group work division of the Welfare council.

Election of officers for the coming year was held at the same time, and Floyd C. Covington, of the L.A. Urban League, and Mrs. Walter L. Gordon, Sr., of the Eastside settlement, Woodlawn Branch YWCA and Sojourner Truth home, were both elected members-at-large.

Largest summer school on record at Atlanta University

ATLANTA—Enrollment figures at the Atlanta University summer school had reached an all-time high last week. Eleven hundred students are registered in the graduate and undergraduate courses in 14 different departments. The Summer School is operating 7 dormitories on four different campuses and two dining halls.

Terrorism against Nisei is protested

Sharp condemnation of West Coast terrorism against returning Japanese-Americans has been made by World War II veterans who are members of the United Auto Workers' Union, in a resolution passed and adopted by the Los Angeles District Auto and Aircraft Council.

The resolution included a demand that law enforcement officers bring an end to the recent campaign of violence and intimidation. Pointing out that a jury in Placer County, (Calif.) had acquitted three persons who were accused of shooting into the homes of returned Japanese-Americans, the resolution also called upon the governors of the three Pacific Coast states to "take public steps to prevent further recurrences," and demanded that police be instructed to carry out their duty of protecting the residents of their various communities.

Wednesday's children

Wednesday's child is full of woe, the saying is. Anyway, last Wednesday night Nathaniel Hinton, 867 E. 52nd st., and Alonzo Mills had slight proof of the above. Unidentified thieves broke into both their lodgings, robbed Hinton of pants, money, and keys, valued at $25; and Mills of his wrist watch.

FORD CLEANERS
CLEANING, PRESSING, DYEING
All Garments Insured
Expert Alterations — Fast Service
TAILOR MADE SUITS BY BISHOP TAILORING CO.
Now Available — Ask to See Our Samples
2027 S. CENTRAL PRospect 7-9113
H. FORD, proprietor

THE THRIFTY
Let Thrifty furnish your home, 3 rooms complete, including pictures on the wall, $119.50. Ask to see our deluxe 4 room outfit, including stove and refrigerators, $298.50.
— Thrifty Special —
5 Piece Breakfast Set, $16.95.
THRIFTY FURNITURE CO.
4350 SOUTH BROADWAY
The Corner for Household Values

A NEW TRANSIT SERVICE DAY is Dawning

Soon, now, you'll hear visitors to Los Angeles inquire, "What's going on? What is your street railway company doing in every neighborhood, on almost every street?" They'll exclaim, "Why, Los Angeles is a different place! Your transit service is the best in the world. It is delightful to travel around your beautiful city now."

Right now we are arranging to buy over $6,000,000.00 worth more of swift and comfortable Transitliners as a partial investment to start promised improvements. Other fine and modern equipment will be rushed into this area and important improvements made. Before long, Los Angeles residents and visitors, alike, will have nothing but praise for our transportation service.

The sun has broken through the clouds of some of our past difficulties. In a railroad man's language, it will be, "High ball, full speed ahead!" with us in the future.

LOS ANGELES
TRANSIT LINES
SAFETY COURTESY SERVICE
BUY BONDS NOW
HOLD UNTIL MATURITY

Hooper avenue PTA holds school closing exercises

The Hooper Avenue PTA held school closing exercises last Thursday afternoon at which new officers were installed by Mrs. Fay Allen, former Board of Education member. Mrs. M. Smith is president; Mrs. Ivy Oliver, secretary.

Buy War Bonds!

SUPPORT RACE BUSINESS
TIP-TOP CLEANERS
DYEING & ALTERATIONS
6 day laundry service
1501 East 23rd Street
(23rd & Hooper) PR. 1507
Thekla Coleman - Owner

HOUSEHOLD GOODS
Blankets, Pillows, Quilts, Curtains, Drapes, etc.
See MRS. WHITE
4420 So. Central Ave.
Terms Arranged Without Red Tape

Jackson-McNeil engagement is announced

Mrs. Ella Jackson announces the engagement of her daughter, Marilyn Elizabeth, to Albert J. McNeil. The announcement was made at a party Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Robinson, 2170 E. 29th st. During the evening, a beautiful ball was rolled down the center of the floor, and the one receiving it was instructed to read the note attached. Dr. Isadore Mitchell caught the ball and read the announcement.

Miss Jackson is a student at the University of Southern California, and is director of the choir at the Morning Star Baptist Church. Mr. McNeil teaches school here and is musical director at Independent Church of Christ. The wedding is planned for September.

Ardie C. Dials home

Ardie C. Dials, former postoffice clerk, is home after two years and 10 months in the South Pacific with the Navy as first class cook.

At present he is stationed at San Pedro Naval recruiting base.

Welcome to the Westside
Now Open for Your Pleasure
ALVINA & CAROL'S
Ladies' and Men's Style Shop
All Clothes Tailor Made
3563 S. WESTERN AVE.
Los Angeles 7, California
Phone PArkway 4607
Open Daily Until 8 P.M.
Open Saturday Until 10 P.M.
"Come in and get clothes to suit your individual personality"

109 veteran nurses are reclassified

Together with other Veterans Administration nurses, 109 Negro nurses in four veterans hospitals have been ordered reclassified from a subprofessional to professional status, effective July 1, Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, announced this week.

Negro nurses now on duty in veterans institutions include 74 at Tuskegee, Ala.; 15 at Oteen, N. C.; 15 at Kecoughtan, Va., and five at Fort Bayard, N. M. Vacancies for nurses at these facilities include 25 at Tuskegee, 15 at Oteen, and one each at Kecoughtan and Fort Bayard.

The reclassification order, which will bring pay increases, making the salary range extend from $2,000 to $4,600, plus overtime, is designed to place nurses in the Veterans Administration service on a parity with Army, Navy and Public Health nurses, and, it is believed, will help recruit nurses to meet the demand for 2,000 needed immediately in the Veterans facilities.

In addition to reclassification, a new policy of automatic rotation from isolated stations after two years of service and an advanced educational program have also been announced.

Women protest Argentine clamp on women's body

WASHINGTON—In a telegram to Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius last week, the National Council of Negro Women urged that the United States send a sharp protest to the Argentine government on the dissolution of the Junta de Law Victoria, leading woman's international relief organization in Argentina.

Concerned with the fight of Participation in protest before Truman discouraged

SAN FRANCISCO — Joseph James, local head of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, this week questioned the integrity of Edgar Brown and branded his National Negro Council a "highly questionable" organization in a warning against participation in a planned demonstration before President Truman when he arrives here for the closing of the UNCIO.

The demonstration is planned to present a signed petition to Truman asking "pardon" for the 50 Negro sailors who were court-martialed for alleged "mutiny and conspiracy" at Yerba Buena last fall, following the Port Chicago explosion.

James said:

"One is not pardoned unless one is guilty, or judged guilty through legal procedure. It is the position of the NAACP that these 50 sailors are innocent. All of our efforts have been based on that premise. Hence, this move to demand 'pardon' jeopardizes a favorable outcome of the case by admitting that the men are guilty. The decision of the Yerba Buena court-martial has been appealed by the NAACP before the navy board of review. The case is not before President Truman and he is therefore in no position to take action. The demonstration is for that reason ill-advised at this time, and should not be staged.

"This movement is being inspired by Edgar Brown and the 'National Negro Council.' It should be generally known that this man and this 'organization' are highly questionable from the standpoint of integrity. Irresponsible playing upon a highly emotional issue such as this can only have unfortunate results. Gross irresponsibility is shown in this case, where appeals for mass action are being made without first making certain that such action fits the situation."

Eastsider elected treasurer of L. A. Youth council

Ike Adams, of 1615 E. 41st st., president of the Junior NAACP, was elected to serve as treasurer of the Los Angeles Youth council at an organizational meeting of that group Sunday.

As treasurer of the newly-formed council, young Adams will work with a committee of young people from various cultural, religious, social, racial, and nationality groups of this area in making plans for an Institute of Youth Problems, scheduled for the Fall.

At that time, the Los Angeles Council's delegate to the August World Youth Conference in London, Mrs. Elizabeth McCandless of the Los Angeles Youth Project, will report to youth of this area.

Ration calendar

SUGAR

Sugar stamp No. 36 continues good for five pounds of sugar through Aug. 31.

MEATS, FATS

Red stamps E-2 through Z-2 are valid for 10 points each. Last date for use of E-2 through J-2, June 30.

PROCESSED FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

Blue stamps N-2 through Z-2 and A-1 through H-1 continue useable for 10 points each. Last date for the use of N-2 through S-2, June 30.

GASOLINE

A-16 coupons, good for six gallons each, are now valid.

SHOES

Airplane stamps Nos. 1, 2 and 3 in Book Three continue valid indefinitely. No new shoe stamp will be validated until Aug. 1.

Who wouldn't? Wouldn't you — in these days and times?

Allen, former Board of Education member. Mrs. M. Smith is president; Mrs. Ivy Oliver, secretary.

Buy War Bonds!

SUPPORT RACE BUSINESS

TIP-TOP CLEANERS

DYEING & ALTERATIONS

6 day laundry service

1501 East 23rd Street
(23rd & Hooper) PR. 1507
Thekla Coleman - Owner

HOUSEHOLD GOODS

Blankets, Pillows, Quilts, Curtains, Drapes, etc.

See MRS. WHITE
4420 So. Central Ave.

Terms Arranged Without Red Tape

the engagement of her daughter, Marilyn Elizabeth, to Albert J. McNeil. The announcement was made at a party Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Robinson, 2170 E. 29th st. During the evening, a beautiful ball was rolled down the center of the floor, and the one receiving it was instructed to read the note attached. Dr. Isadore Mitchell caught the ball and read the announcement.

Miss Jackson is a student at the University of Southern California, and is director of the choir at the Morning Star Baptist Church. Mr. McNeil teaches school here and is musical director at Independent Church of Christ. The wedding is planned for September.

Ardie C. Dials home

Ardie C. Dials, former postoffice clerk, is home after two years and 10 months in the South Pacific with the Navy as first class cook.

At present he is stationed at San Pedro Naval recruiting base.

Welcome to the Westside

Now Open for Your Pleasure

ALVINA & CAROL'S

Ladies' and Men's Style Shop

All Clothes Tailor Made

3563 S. WESTERN AVE.
Los Angeles 7, California
Phone PArkway 4607

Open Daily Until 8 P.M.
Open Saturday Until 10 P.M.

"Come in and get clothes to suit your individual personality"

FURS

From Manufacturer Direct To You

At 40% Discount

Cold Storage

We remodel any fur coat for only $35.00

— Budget Plan or Cash —

M. BRANDSTATTER

635 S. Hill Street, Room 607 VA-2832

Together with other Veterans Administration nurses, 109 Negro nurses in four veterans hospitals have been ordered reclassified from a subprofessional to professional status, effective July 1, Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, announced this week.

Negro nurses now on duty in veterans institutions include 74 at Tuskegee, Ala.; 15 at Oteen, N. C.; 15 at Kecoughtan, Va., and five at Fort Bayard, N. M. Vacancies for nurses at these facilities include 25 at Tuskegee, 15 at Oteen, and one each at Kecoughtan and Fort Bayard.

The reclassification order, which will bring pay increases, making the salary range extend from $2,000 to $4,600, plus overtime, is designed to place nurses in the Veterans Administration service on a parity with Army, Navy and Public Health nurses, and, it is believed, will help recruit nurses to meet the demand for 2,000 needed immediately in the Veterans facilities.

In addition to reclassification, a new policy of automatic rotation from isolated stations after two years of service and an advanced educational program have also been announced.

Women protest Argentine clamp on women's body

WASHINGTON—In a telegram to Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius last week, the National Council of Negro Women urged that the United States send a sharp protest to the Argentine government on the dissolution of the Junta de Law Victoria, leading woman's international relief organization in Argentina.

Concerned with the right of women everywhere to organize, and to exercise their responsibility as citizens of the world, Jeanetta Welch Brown, executive secretary, called the dissolution of Junta de Law Victoria, "a most regrettable and flagrant violation of democratic principles."

Junta de Law Victoria is reported to be the strongest and most democratic-minded women's organization in Argentina, created for the exclusive purpose of giving aid to the United Nations and to the liberated countries. The organization was closed by the Minister of the Interior of Argentina and ordered to suspend all further activities.

At gun point

At gun point, Clarence Fitzgerald, 3622 Griffith ave., was robbed of $55 last Friday night by three unidentified hiesters.

of Colored People, this week questioned the integrity of Edgar Brown and branded his National Negro Council a "highly questionable" organization in a warning against participation in a planned demonstration before President Truman when he arrives here for the closing of the UNCIO.

The demonstration is planned to present a signed petition to Truman asking "pardon" for the 50 Negro sailors who were court-martialed for alleged "mutiny and conspiracy" at Yerba Buena last fall, following the Port Chicago explosion.

James said:

"One is not pardoned unless one is guilty, or judged guilty through legal procedure. It is the position of the NAACP that these 50 sailors are innocent. All of our efforts have been based on that premise. Hence, this move to demand martial has been appealed by the NAACP before the navy board of review. The case is not before President Truman and he is therefore in no position to take action. The demonstration is for that reason ill-advised at this time, and should not be staged.

"This movement is being inspired by Edgar Brown and the 'National Negro Council.' It should be generally known that this man and this 'organization' are highly questionable from the standpoint of integrity. Irresponsible playing upon a highly emotional issue such as this can only have unfortunate results. Gross irresponsibility is shown in this case, where appeals for mass action are being made without first making certain that such action fits the situation."

Eastsider elected treasurer of L. A. Youth council

Ike Adams, of 1615 E. 41st st., president of the Junior NAACP, was elected to serve as treasurer of the Los Angeles Youth council at an organizational meeting of that group Sunday.

As treasurer of the newly-formed council, young Adams will work with a committee of young people from various cultural, religious, social, racial, and nationality groups of this area in making plans for an Institute of Youth Problems, scheduled for the Fall.

At that time, the Los Angeles Council's delegate to the August World Youth Conference in London, Mrs. Elizabeth McCandless of the Los Angeles Youth Project, will report to youth of this area.

Tuskegee to open veterinary medicine school

TUSKEGEE—A school of veterinary medicine will be opened at Tuskegee Institute here in the Fall. It will be headed by Dr. E. B. Evans, of Prairie View college, Tex. Head of its department of pathology and parisitology will be Dr. Theodore S. Williams, recruited from a 9-year post as veterinary meat inspector of the War Foods administration at the Iowa Packing co., Des Moines.

Veterinary medicine is a special interest at Tuskegee since Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of the Institute, is a veterinarian.

Californians stationed at Pearl Harbor

PEARL HARBOR, T. H.—Willie Collins, seaman, first class, USNR, of Los Angeles, Calif., is stationed at the Naval supply depot link here as a gas watcher. He enlisted in the Navy in June, 1943, and has been overseas for 19 months. His mother, Mrs. Mamie Wilson, lives at 1232 Coral st., Los Angeles.

Also stationed here is Alfred J. Bradford, boatswain's mate, second class, of Bakersfield, Calif. Bradford is a cargo handler. He enlisted in the Navy in August, 1942, and has been overseas 21 months. His mother, Mrs. Adelene Bradford, makes her home at Route 2, Bakersfield.

PAC wires Senate in behalf of FEPC

NEW YORK — The Senate Appropriations committee was urged last week by the National Citizens Political Action Committee (PAC) to restore to the War Agencies Appropriation bill funds for the Fair Employment Practices committee which were stricken from the bill last week by the House Appropriations committee.

At the same time, the NCPAC sent a wire to President Truman congratulating him upon his "unequivocal message to Congress urging prompt passage of legislation for a permanent FEPC" and assuring him of PAC support.

Ration calendar

SUGAR

Sugar stamp No. 36 continues good for five pounds of sugar through Aug. 31.

MEATS, FATS

Red stamps E-2 through Z-2 are valid for 10 points each. Last date for use of E-2 through J-2, June 30.

PROCESSED FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

Blue stamps N-2 through Z-2 and A-1 through H-1 continue useable for 10 points each. Last date for the use of N-2 through S-2, June 30.

GASOLINE

A-16 coupons, good for six gallons each, are now valid.

SHOES

Airplane stamps Nos. 1, 2 and 3 in Book Three continue valid indefinitely. No new shoe stamp will be validated until Aug. 1.

Who wouldn't? Wouldn't you — in these days and times?

A kid stopped Tony Robinson, 783 E. 18th st., last Saturday night and asked to see his wrist watch. Touched by the kid's admiration for the trinket, Robinson took the watch off, handed it to him for closer inspection, and, of course, the lad ran off with it.

The Best Place to Eat Is At

WOODSON'S

Woodson is known throughout the West for his delicious new flavors of fried chicken. Eat at Woodson's where the soft lighting and quiet atmosphere are conducive to a splendid dinner out.

— CALL FOR RESERVATIONS —

Caterers to Parties and Clubs

Avanna Cotton

Playing and Singing Your Favorite Songs

Saturday & Sunday Nights

Woodson' Chicken Shack and Steak House

Open Week Days 6 P.M. Until 2 A.M. Saturday and Sunday 6 P.M. Until 4 A.M.

On Jefferson Blvd. at Raymond St.—1427 W. Jefferson Blvd. REpublic 9485

Newest Style

SPORTSWEAR

Bigger Savings

SLACK SUITS $8.95 up

No Extra Charge for Credit

SWEATERS $3.95 up

BLOUSES $3.95 up

SKIRTS $3.95 up

MRS. WHITE
4420 S. Central

Postscripts

By S. C. Bottler

AU MILITAIRE—Friendship is the most priceless stuff above the worms and below the stars. I thought so once and now I know it. There comes a time in the affairs of all men, when taken at low ebb, that each will know this—and well!

Proof of this bit of wisdom came forcibly to mind last weekend when we attended the stag-buffet for 1st Lt. Charles Williams, given by his formr postal buddies, at the home of Elmo Phelps. As most of you know now, Lt. Williams, AAF, was recently released from a German prisoner of war camp. He was captured after being forced down by engine trouble over central Yugoslavia. Well, anyway, the party was their real friendly way of welcoming him back to the way of life he had left behind. God bless 'em.

The lieutenant, after a little urging, recited his military history. He began with his Air cadetship, went on to his combat experiences in Italy and other European sectors, his final capture, and prison camp experiences. Thereafter, his audience moved on to a game of chance, at which your correspondent remained inept and puzzled by raucous cries of "snake-eyes" and etc., always having the wrong spots before his eyes, and sadly never collecting a sou. Several times, he thinks, others were chancing on his fortune, and he was mightily offended to hear rough words when he happened on a five-duce, he thinks they called it, after having come out on what they called a point . . . Well, the food was much better, anyhow.

Later, Lt. Williams was called on for another word or two. Said he: We must keep on our toes, ready for every opportunity. Furthermore, we must be ready to defend to the last drop of blood every gain we make. "If it's worth fighting for, in the first place, over there, it's a whole lot more worth the fight over here." He commended the American Red Cross, its bounty and kindness to the fighting man on the fighting front. And ended saying, "America is the dearest thing in the heart of G.I. Joe."

The gang included: Marion D. Walker, J. Bradley, Charles R. Jones, Arthur Green, W. C. "Willie" Bartlett, William S. Sutton, Leroy Beaman, A. Wallace, Samuel McPherson, James White, Curtis V. Thompson, Jerry C. Baldwin, Harry Walker, Roland Bell, Charles Thorton, Revious Morris, Audolph Minkus, Henry Hunter, Dan Postell, Elmo Phelps, Carl L. Waters, Carey Jenkins, Joe C. Moore, Mac Boyd, Lambert Greene, Lantz Baltzer, Frank Braxton, Dan Walker, Granville W. Norman, Merle J. Anthony, Joseph T. Sides, Eddie Abrams, Charles W. Thrash, Alvin Watkins, Milton J. Ammons, Samuel Cummings, Garnell Burwell, and Ben

Especially for YOU . . .

Have your hair style created just for you. Skilled operators, professional services—at

Sherwood's

'Hairdresser for those who care'
5113 South Central Ave.

AD-7886

FACIALS AND MANICURES GIVEN
Plenty of Operators to Serve You

Sigmas fete press at supper

Members of the press will be feted tonight (Monday) at supper in the Blue Room of the Clark hotel by Phi Beta Sigma chapter of Phi Beta Sigma fraternity.

The newsmen will be direct guests of Sigma president, Dr. Charles W. Hill, and of the vice president, Horace P. Clark. Other chapter officers are: William Perry, secretary-treasurer; the Rev. George R. Garner, sergeant-at-arms; S. P. Johnson, chaplain; James J. McGhee, paliamentarian; Harry G. Mercer, editor.

Executive board members are: Dr. Frank G. Zetar, chairman; Clarence Muse, national vice president; Cecil Davis, Edgar S. Browne, Dr. R. P. Williams, Albert Maddox and Harry G. Mercer.

Lt. Roscoe C. Washington heads the committee on juvenile delinquency; Bertrand B. Bratton, Sidney P. Dones and William Nickerson Jr.

Mrs. Ernest Shelby installed as PTA president

The 36th st. school PTA held its final meeting recently at which officers headed by Mrs. Ernest Shelby were installed.

Mrs. George Eckfelt, newly elected president of Exposition Council, conducted the installation, presenting each officer with a different colored lei, and with poetry and quotations explained the meaning of the color and its symbolic connection with the office.

Officers installed were: Mrs. Ernest Shelby, president; Mrs. Cecil McLinn, first vice president; Miss Judith Liknaitz (teacher), second vice president; Mrs. James Akers, secretary; Mrs. Velma Pickard, financial secretary; Mrs. Leota Gantt, treasurer; Mrs. Ellen Garrott (teacher), auditor; and Mrs. Pauline Alexander, historian.

Talbot Masonic Lodge celebrate 43rd anniversary

One of the most colorful social events of the season was held June 16, at Second Baptist Church, when B. F. Talbot lodge No. 8, of the Free and Accepted Masons, celebrated its 43rd Anniversary.

The evening began with a cultural program in the church auditorium, the assemblage recessing afterwards to a banquet in the lower hall of the church, where dinner was served to approximately 300 members and guests.

Special guests of honor were past masters of the lodge, to whom were presented special certificates of merit by the Deputy Grand Master, S. J. Hopkins.

Other special guests were the worthy matrons and patrons, the Queen of Sheba chapter, the Daughters of Isis, the Visiting Masters and Past Masters of other affiliated lodges and also the wives of both the past masters and of the present officers of B. F. Talbot lodge.

The worshipful master of the lodge, Julius C. Hall, together with his staff, was formally presented. Mr. Hall was congratulated on the service he is rendering to the lodge and was openly credited with having made greater and more rapid advancement for the lodge than any previous master.

Anniversary pamphlets were distributed to all persons attending in which was set forth a brief history of the Talbot Lodge.

Mrs. Marguerite Chapman was the featured soloist for the occasion.

Other special guests were Joe L. Oliver, Imperial Potentate and Imperial Assistant Chief Rabban; Titus P. Martin, Grand Inspector; Mrs. W. W. Tatum, Illustrious Potentate, and Mrs. Alberta Parker, Illustrious Commandress.

REDUCE

TO A SLIM FIGURE

Easily and Quickly

By these Healthful Treatments. All that is needed to start Reducing is to start. No where else can you see results so quickly.

LOW RATES

Dr. Frank G. Zetar, D. C.

4803 S. Central Avenue
Los Angeles, Calif.
Phone CE. 2-7621

BRIDGE PLAYERS ATTENTION

Golden West Bridge Club . . .

starting the year 1945, will have instruction for beginners and advanced players.

Tuesday nights there will be instructions from 7:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. on the play of the hand, the strength, etc.

Registration for evening play will begin at 8:45; plays from 9:00 to 11:00 p.m.

We are soliciting registration of all bridge players in Los Angeles and vicinity to join our national organization which involves many social benefits throughout the United States.

For further information contact our President,

CLARENCE ENNIS

AU MILITAIRE—Friendship is the most priceless stuff above the worms and below the stars. I thought so once and now I know it. There comes a time in the affairs of all men, when taken at low ebb, that each will know this—and well!

Proof of this bit of wisdom came forcibly to mind last weekend when we attended the stag-buffet for 1st Lt. Charles Williams, given by his formr postal buddies, at the home of Elmo Phelps. As most of you know now, Lt. Williams, AAF, was recently released from a German prisoner of war camp. He was captured after being forced down by engine trouble over central Yugoslavia. Well, anyway, the party was their real friendly way of welcoming him back to the way of life he had left behind. God bless 'em.

The lieutenant, after a little urging, recited his military history. He began with his Air cadetship, went on to his combat experiences in Italy and other European sectors, his final capture, and prison camp experiences. Thereafter, his audience moved on to a game of chance, at which your correspondent remained inept and puzzled by raucous cries of "snake-eyes" and etc., always having the wrong spots before his eyes, and sadly never collecting a sou. Several times, he thinks, others were chancing on his fortune, and he was mightily offended to hear rough words when he happened on a five-duce, he thinks they called it, after having come out on what they called a point . . . Well, the food was much better, anyhow.

Later, Lt. Williams was called on for another word or two. Said he: We must keep on our toes, ready for every opportunity. Furthermore, we must be ready to defend to the last drop of blood every gain we make. "If it's worth fighting for, in the first place, over there, it's a whole lot more worth the fight over here." He commended the American Red Cross, its bounty and kindness to the fighting man on the fighting front. And ended saying, "America is the dearest thing in the heart of G.I. Joe."

The gang included: Marion D. Walker, J. Bradley, Charles R. Jones, Arthur Green, W. C. "Willie" Bartlett, William S. Sutton, Leroy Beaman, A. Wallace, Samuel McPherson, James White, Curtis V. Thompson, Jerry C. Baldwin, Harry Walker, Roland Bell, Charles Thorton, Revious Morris, Audolph Minkus, Henry Hunter, Dan Postell, Elmo Phelps, Carl L. Waters, Carey Jenkins, Joe C. Moore, Mac Boyd, Lambert Greene, Lantz Baltzer, Frank Braxton, Dan Walker, Granville W. Norman, Merle J. Anthony, Joseph T. Sides, Eddie Abrams, Charles W. Thrash, Alvin Watkins, Milton J. Ammons, Samuel Cummings, Garnell Burwell, and Ben Nance.

* * *

Histrionically: With apologies to our theatrical editor, this department again took in the 4-star light Opera Carmen Jones. This time with love-doves Jimmy Robinson-Albertina Parrish and Chrys Armstrong. For saying what I'm about to say, here is my neck for Muriel Smith, diva of the show, to take a whack at, in case I can't get out of arms reach. The performance of Inez Matthews in the titled role on this particular evening was tops. Deserving the thunderous applause that greeted her, eye-arresting little Elton Warren was so wonderful. She is as demure and sweet in everyday life as she is as "Cindy Lou."

Of our set, I saw Messrs. and Mmes. Lorenzo Bowdouin, Richard Bagnerise, Attorney and Mrs. Willis O. Tyler, and Vivian Walker.

* * *

USO: It was doubly nice for those attending the spagetti spread staged by the service men for the members of the Carmen Jones Show last Friday.

Aside from the delicious food, the entertainment was superb. USO had the decor of a swank night spot, with all the trimmings that the servicemen had superimposed on its recreation hall for the occasion. And it was added delight, the gracious manner in which Mrs. Ethel Atkinson and her corps of canteen hostesses served their guests.

Yesterday (Sunday) the USO center held open house in appreciation of retiring Ben Ellison, who for 21 months directed the activities of the center, and for the new director, lovely Chrys Armstrong.

* * *

The Open Door: There will be a house full at Patriotic Hall, 18th and Washington blvd., when the Guild of the People's Independent church presents "Always Tell The Truth." Watch the papers for the date.

Mrs. Gwendolyn Russell is the president of the Guild; and the affair is for the benefit of the Guild's scholarship fund.

Members of the press will be feted tonight (Monday) at supper in the Blue Room of the Clark hotel by Phi Beta Sigma chapter of Phi Beta Sigma fraternity.

The newsmen will be direct guests of Sigma president, Dr. Charles W. Hill, and of the vice president, Horace P. Clark. Other chapter officers are: William Perry, secretary-treasurer; the Rev. George R. Garner, sergeant-at-arms; S. P. Johnson, chaplain; James J. McGhee, paliamentarian; Harry G. Mercer, editor.

Executive board members are: Dr. Frank G. Zetar, chairman; Clarence Muse, national vice president; Cecil Davis, Edgar S. Browne, Dr. R. P. Williams, Albert Maddox and Harry G. Mercer.

Lt. Roscoe C. Washington heads the committee on juvenile delinquency; Bertrand B. Bratton, Sidney P. Dones and William Nickerson Jr.

Mrs. Ernest Shelby installed as PTA president

The 36th st. school PTA held its final meeting recently at which officers headed by Mrs. Ernest Shelby were installed.

Mrs. George Eckfelt, newly elected president of Exposition Council, conducted the installation, presenting each officer with a different colored lei, and with poetry and quotations explained the meaning of the color and its symbolic connection with the office.

Officers installed were: Mrs. Ernest Shelby, president; Mrs. Cecil McLinn, first vice president; Miss Judith Liknaitz (teacher), second vice president; Mrs. James Akers, secretary; Mrs. Velma Pickard, financial secretary; Mrs. Leota Gantt, treasurer; Mrs. Ellen Garrott (teacher), auditor; and Mrs. Pauline Alexander, historian.

Couple surprise friends with marriage

Arthur Houston, 1005 E. 51st, Central avenue businessman, stole a march on his friends last Wednesday by motoring to Santa Ana where he was married to Mrs. Thelma Ford Brousseau, of 703 E. 45th st. This is the third marriage for the groom and the second for the bride.

The couple will be at home after next week to their many friends and well wishers at 3719 S. Van Ness.

Passes: Pretty Johnye Osborne, choo-chooed back to San Francisco after a fortnight laze hereabouts with friends, last Wednesday . . . Jimmy Robinson, ass't. director of the Avalon USO, and the petite and lovely redheaded Albertina "Teena" Parrish will middle-aisle it Aug. 12th . . . Jerry and Viola Sample will do a re-take on their silver anniversary, June 29 . . . Mrs. Lillian Hammond entertained a houseful at her Arlington manse last Friday afternoon, for the Charioteers' farewell and again for the Carmen Jones cast . . . Young Carl Peterson nervously awaits the clarion call to "enter" the ranks of the Holland Masonic lodge come August — Nothing to get nervous about, Carl, please believe me . . . Impressive is the brilliant young Ted Reed, San Francisco barrister and labor representative . . . Had an interesting GI note from Sgt. Joe Oliver, Jr., somewhere in the Phillippines . . . Chit-chat visit with lovely Lois Siegel, of Honolulu, and the Curtis Thompsons . . . Finally we meet the fetching Jean Himes, and she is as interesting as the advance notices . . . If Wrenna Clarke gives me the proper info re her club, I'll know just how nervous to get for the address I am suppose to give before the lovelies . . . As it is I can only say, as "Carmen" herself would say, "arrest me," before I say, as Lt. Charles Williams would say, that's it just at —deadline!

TRIBUNE classified ads work.

One of the season was held June 16, at Second Baptist Church, when B. F. Talbot lodge No. 8, of the Free and Accepted Masons, celebrated its 43rd Anniversary.

The evening began with a cultural program in the church auditorium, the assemblage recessing afterwards to a banquet in the lower hall of the church, where dinner was served to approximately 300 members and guests.

Special guests of honor were past masters of the lodge, to whom were presented special certificates of merit by the Deputy Grand Master, S. J. Hopkins.

Other special guests were the worthy matrons and patrons, the Queen of Sheba chapter, the Daughters of Isis, the Visiting Masters and Past Masters of other affiliated lodges and also the wives of both the past masters and of the present officers of B. F. Talbot lodge.

The worshipful master of the lodge, Julius C. Hall, together with his staff, was formally presented. Mr. Hall was congratulated on the service he is rendering to the lodge and was openly credited with having made greater and more rapid advancement for the lodge than any previous master.

Anniversary pamphlets were distributed to all persons attending in which was set forth a brief history of the Talbot Lodge.

the featured soloist for the occasion.

Other special guests were Joe L. Oliver, Imperial Potentate and Imperial Assistant Chief Rabban; Titus P. Martin, Grand Inspector; Mrs. W. W. Tatum, Illustrious Potentate, and Mrs. Alberta Parker, Illustrious Commandress.

Especially for YOU . . .

Have your hair style created just for you. Skilled operators, professional services—at

Sherwood's

'Hairdresser for those who care'
5113 South Central Ave.
AD-7886
FACIALS AND MANICURES GIVEN
Plenty of Operators to Serve You

ALWAYS . .

THE BEST

In FOOD and

SERVICE

The Fawn

29th at Western

RE. 0853

Open Daily 4 to 10 P.M.
Sundays, 12 Noon to 10 P.M.
Closed Mondays

Food to Take Out

REDUCE

TO A SLIM FIGURE

Easily and Quickly

By these Healthful Treatments. All that is needed to start Reducing is to start. No where else can you see results so quickly.

LOW RATES

Dr. Frank G. Zetar, D. C.

4803 S. Central Avenue
Los Angeles, Calif.
Phone CE. 2-7621

BRIDGE PLAYERS ATTENTION

Golden West Bridge Club . . .

starting the year 1945, will have instruction for beginners and advanced players.

Tuesday nights there will be instructions from 7:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. on the play of the hand, the strength, etc.

Registration for evening play will begin at 8:45; plays from 9:00 to 11:00 p.m.

We are soliciting registration of all bridge players in Los Angeles and vicinity to join our national organization which involves many social benefits throughout the United States.

For further information contact our President,

CLARENCE ENNIS
3932 S. Main, Los Angeles, Calif. Phone ADams 1-2497

DOLORES DRESS SHOP

Classic Sportswear

114 S. San Pedro Street
Los Angeles 12 Calif.

● THE RUM CONNOISSEUR

RED RUMMIE

1½ oz. rum
A quarter of a lime (optional)
Sparkling Papaya Drink

Pour rum into a 10-oz. highball glass. Add 2 cubes of ice. Fill glass with Sparkling Papaya—then add lime if desired.

dunbar

imported & domestic LIQUORS WINES and BEERS

GUARANTEED QUALITY

MAE CROWDER, Prop.
4223 S. Central Avenue

Thrifty
CUT RATE DRUG STORES
4351 S. Central Ave.

Bring Your Films to Thrifty for Expert Photo-Finishing
GIANT-SIZE PRINTS
Made 2 to 6 times larger than original on sizes 35 mm to 116.
AT NO EXTRA COST!

At Our Ice Cream Department

Fresh Fruit
DE LUXE
SHERBET
Full Pint 13c
Delicious true-fruit flavors.

67¢ Mosso
MINERAL OIL
Full Quart

49¢!

Pure, first quality, crystal-clear oil . . family size bottle at 18c saving!

It's a Fact! THE BIGGEST BARGAINS Are AT THRIFTY!

GOLDEN FLEECE

Scouring CLOTH

Non-Metallic
Long-lasting, specially prepared cloth for scouring, cleaning, peeling.

9¢

REGULAR 25c

Ova-Nite GLOVES

To Beautify Your Hands
Put them on over softening hand cream at night to protect bed linen.

19¢

STURDY 4-INCH

Genuine
DUNBAR
DOUBLE BOILER
1½-Quart Size
$1.89

DEPENDABLE HOUSEHOLD THERMOMETER

Metal Holder 24c

Others at 34c and 39c

